Vol. I

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1942

No. 606

LOUIS BUCHALTER, PETITIONER,

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 610

EMANUEL WEISS, PETITIONER,

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COURT OF APPEALS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 619

LOUIS CAPONE, PETITIONER,

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

PETITIONS FOR CERTIORARI FILED { DECEMBER 30, 1942.
JANUARY 2, 1943.
JANUARY 4, 1943.

CERTIORARI GRANTED MARCH 15, 1943.

INDEX

	PAGE
Statement Under Rule 234	1
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	3
Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	6
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	9
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone	11
Minutes of Presentment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	14
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Buchalter	16
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	18
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Capone	20
Indictment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	21
Endorsements on Indictment	22
Pedigrees	26
Order of Brancato, C. J., Denying Capone's Application of Severance	29
Notice of Motion for Severance (Capone)	31

PAGE

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 33

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 45

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 55

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 60

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone) 65

Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone) 72

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 76

Affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 110

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 112

Exhibit A—Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter 116

Exhibit B—Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter, questioned in a different manner 121

PAGE

Copy of Indictment 122

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 123

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 125

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 139

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 155

Copy of Indictment 164

Opinion of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 165

Order of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 167

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 169

Order of Mr. Justice Brennan Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 175

Memorandum Opinion of Taylor, C. J., Adjourning Trial 177

Minutes of Trial 178

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Buchalter 214

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Buchalter 216

PAGE

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 218

Death Warrant against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 220

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Capone 222

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Capone 224

Case and Exceptions 226

Opening Statement on Behalf of People 227

Opening Statements Waived as to Defendants 244

Motions to Dismiss Indictment 243, 2712

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Buchalter.... 3525

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Weiss..... 3532

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Capone..... 3538

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Buchalter 3543

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Weiss 3647

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Capone 3699

Summation on Behalf of People..... 3782

Exceptions to Court's Refusal to Permit Objections During People's Summation 3869

The Charge of the Court..... 3871

PAGE

Requests to Charge and Exceptions.... 3932

Verdict 3993

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Buchalter 3994

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Weiss 3995

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Capone 3996

Stipulation as to Exhibits..... 4022

Clerk's Certificate 4029

Testimony

Witnesses for People

Estelle Rosen:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 245

Cross by Mr. Barshay 263, 310

Cross by Mr. Talley 265, 312

Harry Regenbogen:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 314

Louis Stamler:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 322

Guglielmo Cappadora:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 331

M. Edward Marten, M.D.:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 339

Frederick W. Walsh:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 361

George V. Dumont:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 376

PAGE

Emil Schaefer:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 378

Herman Schiesser:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 379

Hirsh Merlis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 384

John J. McGowan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 394

Samuel Pearl:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 397

Henry G. Nelson:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 403

William S. King:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 408

Henry F. Butts:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 411

Max Kaufman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 435
Cross by Mr. Talley 444

William R. Jarvis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 445

Simon P. Ambraz:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 449

Abraham Waxman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 455

Harold D. Rosen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 465
Cross by Mr. Barshay 487

Hyman W. Barron:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 545
Cross by Mr. Talley 559

PAGE

Anthony O. DeSario:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 563

Sylvia Greenspan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 564
Cross by Mr. Climenko 585
Cross by Mr. Talley 678
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 684
Recross by Mr. Talley 685

Sol Bernstein:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 690
Cross by Mr. Talley 764, 1263
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 937
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1274

Max Rubin:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1284
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1492
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 1749
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1754
Recross by Mr. Barshay 1755
Recross by Mr. Talley 1755
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2371
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2391
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2402

Edward C. Maguire:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1757
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1763

Paul Berger:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1776
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1883
Cross by Mr. Talley 2042
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2191
Recross by Mr. Talley 2201

PAGE

Albert Tannenbaum:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2203
Cross by Mr. Barshay 2245
Cross by Mr. Talley 2341
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2353
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2368

Seymour Pagoon:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2421
Cross by Mr. Talley 2472
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 2486
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2603

Albert E. Aman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2607, 2618
Cross by Mr. Talley 2614, 2684
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2686

Joseph Bell:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2687
Cross by Mr. Talley 2691

James C. Ryan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2699
Cross by Mr. Talley 2702

Thomas J. Winne:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2704
Cross by Mr. Talley 2706

Witnesses for Defendants

John J. Fegan:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2716

Henry H. Eisenberg:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2740

Larry H. Cooper:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2776

PAGE

Michael J. Monz:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2780

Nat Sobler:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2784
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2825
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 2889
Recross by Mr. Turkus 2894

Ellsworth Baker:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2897

Carl Shapiro:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2901
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2921
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 2991
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 3000
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 3014, 3022, 3030, 3037
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3016, 3023, 3035

Major William W. Kleinman:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3003
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3012
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3014

John J. Canevari:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 3039
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3043

Harry Cohen:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3047
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3063
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3067

Sidney Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3070
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3076
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3224

PAGE

Samuel Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3239
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3242

Dorothy Isaacson:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3259
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3268
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3320
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3321

Blanche Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3322
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3329
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3445
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3445

Helen A. Hazley:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3446

Lena Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3447

Rebuttal

Witnesses for People

James P. Malone:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3493
Cross by Mr. Talley 3506
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3508

John J. Whalen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3509
Cross by Mr. Talley 3514
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3517

Vance Newman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3518

Exhibits

People's Exhibits

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*1.—Photograph showing body of Joseph Rosen	321	.....
*2.—Photograph of Rosen Candy Store	326	.....
*2-A.—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 2	327	.....
*3.—Photograph of Louis Stamler's house	327	.....
*4.—Photograph showing Rosen Candy Store as viewed from a window of Louis Stamler's house	330	.....
*5.—Bullet labeled "M.M."	353	.....
*6.—Bullet labeled "M.R."	354	.....
*7.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 2"	366	.....
*8.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 1"	369	.....
*9.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 3"	370	.....
*10.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 4"	371	.....
*11.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 5"	372	.....
*12.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 6"	372	.....
*13.—Photograph showing plate number L-16-67, N.Y., 1936, of automobile	382	.....
*14.—Photograph of automobile	383	.....
*15.—Photograph of candy store	385	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*16. Photograph showing walk across the railroad leading from Livonia and Van Sinderen side to Junius Street side of tracks	389	.....
*17. Photograph showing Junius Street side of walk over connecting up from the entrance to the stand	390	.....
*18. Photograph showing place where Samuel Pearl was walking	399	.....
*19. Gun found by Samuel Pearl in a lot and initialed "WK" in presence of the policeman	402	.....
*20. Photograph showing premises in which Max Kaufman lived, and the surrounding locale	437	.....
*21. Photograph showing locale as it was in September 1936	458	.....
*22. Photograph showing garages including the one in which the Ford automobile was stored	460	.....
*23. Photograph of car of Abraham Waxman	464	.....
*24. Diagram showing the candy store as it existed in September, 1936	553	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4528.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*25.—Photograph of Ardies' Soda, Candy and Luncheonette Store	686	.....
*25-A.—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 25	738	.....
*26.—Photograph showing Sackman Street near where the car was parked	697	.....
*27.—Photograph showing house and alley as it were when the drop was rented by Sol Bernstein	707	.....
*28.—Photograph of garage	708	.....
*29.—Photograph of house to which Mendy Weiss told Sol Bernstein to go	730	.....
*30.—Photograph of an apartment house at Wyona and Belmont Streets	734	.....
*31.—Photograph showing corner of the park at Bradford and Blake Avenues	738	.....
*32.—Photograph showing garage where the gun was hidden in the cellar	749	.....
*33.—Order of Appointment of Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court, etc.	1379	.....
*34.—Appointment and Oath of Thomas E. Dewey	1370	.....

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*35.—Bank account of Max Rubin in the Bank for Savings, 4th Avenue	1403	.....
*36.—Registration record of Max Rubin in the Hotel New Orleans	1418	.....
*37.—Registration record of Max Rubin in the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn	1435	.....
*38.—Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin	1451	.....
*39.—Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, dated Nov. 13, 1936	1453	.....
*40.—Thirty-two checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, various dates	1458	.....
*41.—Eight checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, various dates	1459	.....
*42.—Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2620	.....
*43.—Two sheets consisting of check and stub	2627	.....
*44.—Bank book of Security National Bank, Kansas City, Kansas, in name of James W Bell; deposits, Oct. 1, 1940, $1000	2629	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*45.—Card taken from Mendy Weiss	2631	.....
*46.—Social Security Card No. 500-14-1906 bearing name of James William Bell	2633	.....
*47.—Registration Certificate for Selective Service issued to James William Bell	2634	.....
*48.—Motor Vehicle License Receipt No. 35629	2642	.....
*49.—Prescription blank of Dr. Geo. Wm. Bancroft	2646	.....
*50.—Copy of Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2656	.....
*51.—Driver's License No. 1078237 bearing name of James W. Bell	2659	.....
*52.—Motor Vehicle Driver's License, Kansas City, Mo., No. 153827 bearing name of James W. Bell	2661	.....
*53.—State of Colorado, Application for a Title for a Motor Vehicle, made by Rose Bell	2664	.....
*54.—Receipt for $40.00 from Geo. W. Bancroft, M.D. to James Bell, dated Sept. 23, 1940	2668	.....
*55.—Receipted Bill from St. Francis Hospital and Sanatorium to James Bell, dated Aug. 29, 1940	2669	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*56.—Receipt for $11, from Standard Finance Company to Rose Bell, dated July 24, 1940	2670	.....
*57.—Card of Martin's Indoor Poultry Farm	2672	.....
Defendants' Exhibits
*1.—Envelope in the handwriting of Sol Bernstein	1246	.....
*2.—Affidavit of Albert Tannenbaum, sworn to April 3, 1940	2327	.....
*3.—Affidavit of William J. Kennedy	2493	.....
4.—Agreement between Morris Bluestein and Nathan Sobler, and Martin F. Kelly Inc. and Joseph Rosen, dated Oct. 28, 1931	2793	3998
5.—Agreement between Morris Bluestein, Nathan Sobler and Joseph Rosen, and New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, Inc., and Martin F. Kelly, Inc. and Martin F. Kelly, dated April 27, 1932	2807	4007
6.—(Admitted in Evidence as Ex. 7) Original lease between The Fifth Avenue Building Company and Raleigh Manufacturing Inc., dated Jan. 29, 1936, together with diagram	2903	4016

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*7.—Ten Checks	2995	.....
8.—Two green blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 9568 and 9569, respectively	3033	4018
9.—Two pink blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 1121 and 1122, respectively	3033	4020
*10.—Copy of birth certificate of Sidney Weiss, certified June 12, 1941	3238	.....
*11.—Map showing layout of streets in connection with Rosen Candy Store, Rosen Residence, Long Island Railroad, etc.	3489	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

Court of Appeals

OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Respondent,

against

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss" and LOUIS CAPONE, Defendants-Appellants.

Statement Under Rule 234

These are appeals from judgments of the County Court of Kings County, dated December 2nd, 1941, convicting the appellants Louis Buchalter, Emanuel Weiss and Louis Capone of the crime of murder in the first degree and sentencing them to be put to death.

The trial took place before Honorable Franklin Taylor, County Judge of Kings County, and a jury beginning on October 20th, 1941, and concluding on November 30th, 1941. Honorable William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County, by Burton B. Turkus and Solomon A. Klein, Esqs., Assistant District Attorneys, of counsel, appeared for the People on the trial.

4 Statement Under Rule 23A

The appellant Buchalter was represented by Wegman & Climenko and Hyman Barshay, Esqs.: the appellant Weiss by Alfred J. Talley, James I. Cuff and M. M. Kreindler, Esqs.; and the appellant Capone by Leon Fischbein, Emanuel Rosenberg and Sydney Rosenthal, Esqs. There has been no change of attorneys.

5

6

7

Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter

COUNTY COURT

COUNTY OF KINGS

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Respondent,

against

8

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss" and LOUIS CAPONE, et al., Appellants.

SIRS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, hereby appeals to the Court of Appeals, State of New York, from the judgment of conviction of the crime of murder in the first degree and the sentence of death thereon, rendered against him on the 2nd day of December, 1941, and entered in the Office of the Clerk of that Court on that day, and from each and every part thereof, including orders denying the defendant's motion for a new trial, and the said defendant hereby appeals from each and every part of the said judgment and sentence, as well as from the whole thereof, and

9

10 Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the orders heretofore made and entered on the 16th day of July, 1941, and on the 22nd day of September, 1941, denying motions theretofore made on behalf of the said defendant for an order to transfer the trial of this action from the County Court of Kings County, to the Supreme Court of the State of New York in any county other than those embraced within the City of New York, and

11

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the order or other ruling of the Hon. Franklin Taylor, a Judge of the County Court of Kings County, on August 5, 1941, pursuant to which ruling or order the trial of this action was directed to proceed, beginning on the 15th day of September, 1941, and

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the several rulings made by the said Hon. Franklin Taylor

12 with respect to the fitness and capacity to serve

of those several talesmen sworn on voir dire examination.

Dated: New York, N. Y. December 24, 1941.

Yours, etc.,

WEGMAN & CHIMENKO and
HYMAN BARSHAY,
Attorneys for defendant,
Louis Buchalter,
Office & P. O. Address, 14
60 Wall Street,
New York City.

To:

Hon. WILLIAM O'DWYER,
District Attorney, Kings County

Hon. FRANCIS SINNOTT
Clerk of the County Court of Kings County
County Clerk of Kings County

15

16

Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter

COUNTY COURT

COUNTY OF KINGS

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Respondent,

against

17

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss," LOUIS CAPONE, et al, Appellants.

SIRS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, hereby appeals to the Court of Appeals, State of New York, from the judgment of

18

conviction of the crime of murder in the first degree and the sentence of death thereon, rendered against him on the 2nd day of December, 1941, and entered in the Office of the Clerk of that Court on that day, and from each and every part thereof, including orders denying the defendant's motion for a new trial, and the said defendant hereby appeals from each and every part of the said judgment and sentence, as well as from the whole thereof, and

Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the orders heretofore made and entered on the 16th day of July, 1941, and on the 8th day of September, 1941, denying motions theretofore made on behalf of the said defendant for an order to transfer the trial of this action from the County Court of Kings County, to the Supreme Court of the State of New York in any county other than those embraced within the City of New York, and

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the order or other ruling of the Hon. Franklin Taylor, a Judge of the County Court of Kings County, on August 5, 1941, pursuant to which ruling or order the trial of this action was directed to proceed, beginning on the 15th day of September, 1941, and

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE, that the defendant, Louis Buchalter, appeals from the several rulings made by the said Hon. Franklin Taylor with respect to the fitness and capacity to serve of those several talesmen sworn on voir dire examination.

22 Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter

Dated: New York, N. Y. January 9, 1942.

Yours, etc.,

WEGMAN & CLIMENKO, &
HYMAN BARSHAY,
Attorneys for appellant,
23 Louis Buchalter,
Office & P. O. Address,
60 Wall Street,
New York City.

To:

Hon. WILLIAM O'DWYER,
District Attorney, Kings County

Hon. FRANCIS SINNOTT
Clerk of the County Court of Kings County
24 County Clerk of Kings County

25

Notice of Appeal of Defendant Emanuel Weiss

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,

against

26

EMANUEL WEISS,
Defendant.

SIR:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the defendant, Emanuel Weiss, above named, hereby appeals to the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, from a judgment of conviction of the crime of murder in the first degree rendered against him in this Court on November 30th, 1941 and from the sentence thereafter imposed on the 2nd day of December, 1941, and from an order made and entered herein on the 2nd day of December, 1941 denying defendant's motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial, and that the defendant appeals from said judgment of conviction and from said order and from each and every part thereof.

27

Notice of Appeal of Defendant Emanuel Weiss

Dated, Brooklyn, N. Y., December 11, 1941.

Yours, etc.,

ALFRED J. TALLEY
40 Wall Street
New York City

JAMES I. CUFF
99 John Street
New York City

M. M. KREINDLER
51 Chambers Street
New York City
Attorneys for Defendant

To:

Hon. WILLIAM O'DWYER
District Attorney Kings County

Hon. FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
County Clerk of Kings County

31

Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Plaintiffs,

against

32

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke",
EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss",
HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil",
JAMES FERACO,
PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel",
LOUIS CAPONE,
Defendants.

Indictment No. 23855

33

SIR:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the defendant, Louis Capone, hereby appeals to the Court of Appeals from a judgment of conviction of the crime of Murder in the First Degree rendered against him in this Court on the 2nd day of December, 1941, and from the sentence imposed upon him thereunder, and the defendant, Louis Capone, appeals from each and every part of said judgment of conviction and sentence; and

34 Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the defendant, Louis Capone, further appeals from the order of Judge Peter J. Brancato of the County Court of this county made and entered the 23rd day of June, 1941, denying the defendant's motion for a severance of the indictment and for a separate trial; and from the order of Mr. Justice Peter M. Daly of the Supreme Court of the County of Kings made and entered on the 1st day of August, 1941, denying the defendant,
35 Louis Capone's motion to transfer and remove the trial of the within indictment from the County Court of Kings County to a term of said Court in another county within the State of New York; and from each and every intermediate order made herein and from the whole and each and every part of said orders.

Dated, Brooklyn, New York, December 27th, 1941.

Yours, etc.,

36

LEON FISCHBEIN,
66 Court Street,
Brooklyn, New York.

EMANUEL ROSENBERG,
66 Court Street,
Brooklyn, New York.

SYDNEY ROSENTHAL,
10 Court Square,
Long Island City.

Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone 37

To:

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
County Clerk, Kings County.

WILLIAM O'DWYER, ESQ.,
District Attorney, Kings County.

The Warden and Agent of Sing Sing Prison,
Ossining, New York.

38

39

40

Minutes of Presentment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 28th day of May 1940.

Present: Hon Franklin Taylor County Judge.

41

The People of the State of New York

against

Louis Buchalter, alias (Lepke)
Emanuel Weiss, alias (Mendy Weiss)
Louis Capone Impleaded

#23855

42

Proclamation made and Court opened.

The Grand Jury comes into Court and presents Indictment against the following named defendants, for the crimes set opposite their names respectively:

Minutes of Presentment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone 43

23855 Louis Buchalter, alias (Lepke)
Emanuel Weiss, alias (Mendy Weiss)
Louis Capone Impleaded

Jointly indicted for Murder in the First Degree.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk 44

45

46

Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Buchalter

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 29th day of May 1941.

Present: Hon. GEORGE W. MARTIN County Judge.

47

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

LOUIS BUCHALTER Alias, "Lepke"

#23855

48 Proclamation made and Court opened.

The following named defendant personally appeared and was advised as to his rights pursuant to Section 308 of the C.C.P.: and was then arraigned to plead to Indictment found against him respectively:

Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Buchalter

49

23855 Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke"	Indicted for Murder in the First Degree. Defendant stands mute, plea of Not Guilty, Ordered by the Court to be entered. Bail denied—Trial set for July 14, 1941, U. S. Marshal, in whose custody defendant is, directed to produce defendant on that day.

50

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk

51

52

Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Emanuel Weiss

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 11th day of April 1941.

Present: Hon. Franklin Taylor County Judge.

53

The People of the State of New York

against

Emanuel Weiss, alias
"Mendy Weiss"

#23855

54

Proclamation made and Court opened.

The following named defendant personally appeared and was advised as to his rights pursuant to Section 308 C. C. P.; and was then arraigned to plead to indictment found against him respectively:—

Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Emanuel Weiss 55

#23855	Indicted for Murder—
Emanuel Weiss, alias	1st Degree.
"Mendy Weiss"	Pleads—Not guilty.
	No Bail—Remanded.
	M. M. Kriendler, Esq.
	Atty. for Deft.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk 56

57

58

Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Capone

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 28th day of May 1940.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR County Judge

59

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

LOUIS CAPONE
Impld.

#23855

60

Proclamation made and Court opened.

The following named defendant personally appeared and was arraigned to plead to indictments found against him respectively:

#23855 Louis Capone Impld.	Indicted for Murder—1st Degree. Pleads—Not guilty Bail denied—Remanded

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT

61

Indictment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone

COUNTY COURT

OF THE COUNTY OF KINGS

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK
Plaintiffs

against

62

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke"
EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss"
LOUIS CAPONE,
Defendants

The Grand Jury of the County of Kings, by this indictment, accuse the defendants of the crime of Murder in the First Degree, committed as follows:

63

The defendants on or about September 13, 1936, in the County of Kings, wilfully, feloniously and of malice aforethought shot and killed Joseph Rosen, with revolvers.

WILLIAM O'DWYER
District Attorney

64

(Endorsements on Indictment)

Strauss & Capone, Both
Pleads Not Guilty May 28, 1940
Judge Both bail denied—Matter of A.D.A. discretion—See Sec. 553 CCP
Both remanded
Strauss to County Jail, Kings Co. and Capone to Bronx Co. Jail

Taylor, J.

Cohen pleads "Not Guilty"—Bail denied, as a matter of Discretion.

65 Remanded. Dec. 2, 1940

Taylor, J.

Louis Buchalter, personally appears for arraigament.
Defendant stands mute.
Plea of "Not Guilty" ordered by Court to be entered—bail denied—trial set for July 14, 1941
U. S. Marshal, in whose custody defendant, is, directed to produce defendant on July 14, 1941—Martin, J.
May 29, 1941—Burton Turkus, A.D.A.
12/2/40 Cohen—Defendant personally appears
66 and advised by the Court of his rights pursuant to Sec. 308 C.C.P.—
Have you a lawyer? No, but will retain own counsel.
Weiss (See over)
5/28/40
Moe Levy Esq., Assigned to Strauss, by Taylor, J.
8/26/41 Dism. as against Strauss, he having been duly executed under judgment on another indictment.

F. T.
C.J.

Endorsements on Indictment 67

Emanuel Weiss, alias "Weiss"

Pleads Not Guilty—No bail, remanded to the custody of U. S. Marshall for Eastern District of New York, to be detained at the Federal Detention Prison of New York for recall of Trial—April 11, 1941—Taylor, J.

Buchalter, defendant personally appears and advised by the Court of his rights pursuant to Sec. 308 C.C.P.—Have you a lawyer? Yes or no. Have you money to retain a lawyer? Yes or no.—Do you wish the Court to assign a lawyer? Yes or No. 68

Name of lawyer assigned.

Trial—Buchalter, Weiss, Cohen and Capone—August 4, 1941

August 5, 1941—Taylor, J.

2

Case set to Sept. 15, 1941

Woolsey W. Conlon—Juror in Box.

By Order of the Court—Capone committed to the N. Y. Tombs to await recall for Trial—August 5, 1941—Taylor, J.

September 15, 1941. Trial continued. 69

As to Defendant Philip Cohen; motion by Saul Price, Esq., for a separate trial as to Philip Cohen, defendant present.

Consented to by Burton Turkis, Esq., A.D.A. Motion for a severance Granted as to Philip Cohen. Philip Cohen remanded.

Taylor, J.—Sept. 15, 1941

As to defendant James Feraco:

Motion by Burton Turkis, Esq., A.D.A. for a severance as to James Feraco, defendant not present.

70 Endorsements on Indictment

Motion granted as to James Feraco.

Taylor, J. Sept. 15, 1941

Trial began August 4, and 5, 1941

Trial continued Sept. 16, 1941—Sept. 18—Sept. 19—Sept. 24, 25, 26, 29, 30.—October 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31.

Nov. 3, 5, 6, 7, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 21, 22, 24, 25, 26, 28, 29, 30

Verdict—Buchalter, Weiss and Capone guilty
71 of Murder in the first degree. All three remanded—Taylor, J.

11/30/41

Buchalter, Weiss, Capone Guilty of Murder in the first degree—Sentenced Dec. 2, 1941—

Buchalter, Weiss, Remanded in custody of U. S. Marshalls for the Eastern District of N. Y. to House of Detention, New York City.

Capone—Remanded to Tombs Prison, New York City—

Taylor, J.

72 11/30/41

Endorsements on Indictment 73

No. 23855 112/478a

THE PEOPLE

vs.

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke"
EMANUEL WEISS, alias
"Mendy Weiss" 74

LOUIS CAPONE
Impleaded

INDICTMENT

MURDER FIRST DEGREE

A True Bill

JOHN B. MALONE 75
Foreman

WILLIAM O'DWYER
District Attorney

MURRAY KRIENDLER,
51 Chambers St., N. Y.

Atty. for Weiss
Filed May 28, 1940

76

(Pedigree)

LOUIS BUCHALTER

Counsel Assigned No
Sex Male—White
Age 44
Nativity New York City
Residence 427—West St.
Occupation Retired
Mechanical Trade No
Married Yes
77 Read and Write Yes
Degree of Education Public School Graduate
Religion Hebrew
Degree of Religious Instruction Irregular
Parents Mother living
Temperate Yes
Drugs No
Previous Conviction remains mute

Sentence To be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the fourth day of January, 1942.

Taylor, J.—December 2, 1941

78

Pedigree of Emanuel Weiss 79

EMANUEL WEISS

Counsel Assigned No
Sex Male—White
Age 35
Nativity New York City
Residence 427 West St., Manhattan
Occupation Salesman
Mechanical Trade None
Married Yes
Read and Write Yes 80
Degree of Education Public School 6th grade
Religion Jewish
Degree of Religious Instruction—Irregular
Parents Mother living
Temperate Yes
Drugs No
Previous Conviction 2 misdemeanors 1 felony
Sentence To be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the fourth day of January, 1942.
Taylor, J.—December 2, 1941

81

82 Pedigree of Louis Capone

LOUIS CAPONE

Counsel Assigned No
Sex Male—White
Age 44
Nativity Naples, Italy
Residence 2780 Stilwell Ave.
Occupation Restaurant Owner
Mechanical Trade None
Married Yes
83 Read and Write Yes
Degree of Education Public School Graduate
Religion Catholic
Degree of Religious Instruction Regular Parents Father—living
Temperate Yes
Drugs No
Previous Conviction None

Sentence To be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the fourth day of January, 1942.

Taylor, J.—December 2, 1941

84

85

Order of Brancato, C. J., Denying Capone's Application for Severance

At a Term, Part 1., of the County Court of Kings County held at the Court House thereof, 120 Schermerhorn Street, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 23rd day of June, 1941.

Present: Hon. Peter J. Brancato, County Judge.

86

Indictment No. 23855

The People of the State of New York,
Plaintiffs,

against

Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke"; Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss"; Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil"; James Feraco; Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel"; Louis Capone, Defendants.

87

The defendant, Louis Capone, having applied to this court for an order severing the indictment herein and granting to the defendant, Louis Capone, a separate trial of the above charges contained in the indictment, and the said motion having duly come on to be heard on June 11, 1941, and Leon Fischbein, Esq., attorney for the defendant, Louis Capone, having appeared in support thereof, and the District Attorney of Kings County, by Burton B. Turkus, Assistant District Attorney, having appeared in opposition thereto and due deliberation having been had,

88 Order of Brancato, C. J., Denying Capone's Application for Severance

Now on reading and filing the notice of motion dated June 5, 1941; the affidavit of Leon Fischbein, duly verified June 5, 1941 and the exhibits submitted therewith, all submitted in 89 support of said motion, and the affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, verified June 17, 1941, submitted in opposition thereto, and upon the opinion rendered on June 20, 1941, and upon all other papers and proceedings heretofore had herein, it is on motion of William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County,

Ordered, that the said motion be, and the same hereby is, denied without prejudice to renewal of the motion before the trial court.

90 Enter:

Peter J. Brancato
County Judge.

Granted Jun. 23, 1941

Francis J. Sinnott
Clerk

Notice of Motion for Severance (Capone)

91

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

Ind. #23855

In the Matter of the Application of 92

LOUIS CAPONE

for a Severance and Separate Trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,

against

EMANUEL WEISS, alias "MENDY WEISS," HARRY STRAUSS, alias "PITTSBURGH PHIL," PHILIP COHEN, alias "LITTLE FARVEL," LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "LEPKE," and LOUIS CAPONE, Defendants.

93

SIR:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that upon the annexed affidavit of Leon Fischbein, attorney for the defendant, Louis Capone, herein, duly acknowledged the 5th day of June, 1941, and upon the indictment and all the pleadings and proceedings heretofore had herein, the undersigned will move this Court Part 1 thereof for the hearing of motions

94 Notice of Motion for Severance (Capone)

at the Courthouse located at 120 Schermerhorn Street in the Borough of Brooklyn, County of Kings, City and State of New York, on the 9th day of June, 1941 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard for an order severing the indictment herein and granting to the defendant Louis Capone a separate trial of the charges contained in the indictment pursuant to Section 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and for such other 95 and further relief in the premises as to this Court may seem just and proper.

Dated: Brooklyn, New York, June 5th, 1941.

Yours, etc.,

LEON FISCHBEIN,
Attorney for Defendant,
Louis Capone,
66 Court Street,
Borough of Brooklyn,
City of New York.

96

To:

Hon. WILLIAM O'DWYER,
District Attorney,
Kings County.

97

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

In the Matter of the Application of

98

LOUIS CAPONE

for a Severance and Separate Trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,

against

EMANUEL WEISS, alias "MENDY WEISS," HARRY STRAUSS, alias "PITTSBURGH PHIL," PHILIP COHEN, alias "LITTLE FARVEL," LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "LEPKE," and LOUIS CAPONE, Defendants.

99

State of New York }
City of New York } ss.:
County of Kings }

LEON FISCHBEIN, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the attorney for Louis Capone, one of the defendants herein.

Deponent makes this affidavit in support of an application for an order severing the indictment herein and granting to the defendant Louis Capone a sepa. e trial of the indictment pursuant to Section 391 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The indictment herein was filed on the 28th day of May, 1940, charging the defendants with the crime of murder in the first degree, in that on or about the 13th day of September, 1936 in the County of Kings, the defendants willfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought shot and killed one Joseph Rosen with revolvers.

The allegations which your deponent shall hereinafter state are not in any way intended as a reflection upon the other defendants nor are these allegations made as a statement of fact or opinion as to their guilt or innocence.

Your deponent, however, shall submit in support of this motion facts which have created a condition whereby it would be impossible for the defendant Louis Capone to receive a fair and impartial trial if this motion were to be denied. The condition which your deponent refers to is one that has been created by the newspapers published in the metropolitan area and circulated throughout this county, state and nation. Your deponent, however, shall refer to and rely mostly upon the publication called the New York Times, which is and has always been considered a newspaper of conservative editorial policy and the subscribers and readers of this newspaper are persons of average intelligence and who rely upon this newspaper for their knowledge of the events and occurrences in the world of today and usually accept these news items as true.

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 103

The publicity and notoriety given to the other defendants in this case, and more particularly to the defendant, Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, in the public press, has undoubtedly created an impression that there is something sinister and unholy about the other defendants. This impression shall result in the creation of an atmosphere during the trial of these issues, prejudicial to the rights of the defendant, Louis Capone, to a fair and impartial trial.

The prosecution may urge in opposition to this 104 motion that your deponent would have the right to challenge any prospective juror, for actual bias, who has an impression or opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant formed as a result of reading from newspapers or his inability to render an impartial verdict upon the evidence uninfluenced by any opinion or impression that he may have. This fact is unquestionably true and although every man consciously feels that he could render such a verdict upon the evidence uninfluenced by extraneous matters, yet sub-consciously he cannot divorce his mind 105 from that impression which has been created over a period of years as a result of what he has read and heard about the other defendants and more particularly the defendant, Louis "Lepke" Buchalter.

The defendant Louis Capone has never been convicted of any crime; he has resided in the Borough of Brooklyn for a long period of time with his wife and children. Prior to 1940 he was never linked in the press with rackets or racketeers, murderers or persons of sinister and unlawful repute and has maintained himself as a family man with a definite aversion to publicity and with the exception of innendoes and insinuations cast upon him in the press subsequent to this indictment, his life has been obscure.

106 Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

The defendant Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke" is a person of national prominence. The publicity which he has received by innuendo and suggestion, through the medium of radio and 107 the press, has been such as to create the indubitable impression and opinion that he and his associates ruled a vast empire of crime in this country; that their actions were sinister and unlawful to such an extent that the lives of the people and the industry of this city and nation were endangered. The publicity that "Lepke" and his aides received was such that anybody falling into the category of being his aide, although even if not mentioned by name, would create such an unfavorable impression as to preclude the possibility of a juror deciding the issues solely upon the evidence uninfluenced by that impression regardless of the 108 juror's expression of his belief that he could render a verdict solely upon the evidence and his ability to set aside all his prior impressions and opinions created by the press.

Over a period of years the press developed the sinister reputation of "Lepke" until at the present time he is depicted as a tyrannical king and overlord of crime. That he heads a mob of vultures, thieves and killers and if this application is not granted, Louis Capone cannot hope for or receive the type of trial guaranteed to him by the constitution and the laws of the State of New York or the Constitution of the United States.

 109

In substantiation of the aforementioned allegations, the files of the New York Times disclose that Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, alias "Buckhouse" was named in the Bakery Trucking racket. In 1935 he was under investigation by District Attorney Dewey as a controller of all major rackets. In 1936 he was named as the 110 head of the Dress Industry racket. The press charged him with jumping bail, kidnapping, the garment racket, murders, one who caused witnesses to disappear, the flour racket, harboring of a fugitive, extortion, violation of the Anti-Trust Laws, and named as head of the racket which compelled payments to him and his aides in the Fancy Fur Dressing Industry. He was named as the head of a narcotic ring, smuggling and dope traffic, and was involved in a passport scandal.

The above are just some of the items that 111 have been taken from the files of the publication hereinbefore mentioned. Your deponent made an extract of the Times Index, which briefly outlines the publicity given to Louis Buchalter, and submit this to the Court as proof of what has been published concerning the career of "Lepke" and his aides.

Your deponent once more calls to this Court's attention that the most conservative newspaper was chosen in order that there be no exaggeration of the publicity which "Lepke" and his aides received. It is needless for deponent to 112 make mention of the publicity given to him by the other tabloids and publications. Most of these items that appeared in the New York Times from the year 1935 up to the present date received first page publicity, "headline publicity." The other newspapers played these items up with greater effect, knowing that such news items appealed to the reading public.

113 After the Honorable Judge William O'Dwyer became the District Attorney of this county, he waged a campaign against crime, the likes of which have never been matched in the history of this state. Although the newspapers prior to 1940 vilified and degraded "Lepke" and his aides, the publicity which this campaign received magnified all prior news items to such a degree that the name "Lepke" stands out like a beacon light as the potential "Czar" and the No. 1 man of "Murder Incorporated."

The following are some of the typical headlines as found in the newspapers published in the year 1940:

114

"Twelve Gunmen Called Killers for Lepke".
"Two Lepke Men seized in Murder Inquiry".

In the World Telegram of March 23rd, 1940, the following article appeared:

> "Murder, Inc. executives decided that Rudnick must be killed. Louis "Lepke" Buchalter, industrial racketeer, heard that they intended to rub out Rudnick and is said to have asked as a favor that they use the killing to warn any former associates of "Lepke" who may be inclined to turn State's evidence for District Attorney O'Dwyer. For this reason Rudnick was killed as brutally as possible."

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 115

The World Telegram of April 6th, 1940 printed a three column diagram. This diagram contained a number of boxes, mentioning in these various boxes a number of men. Included therein were 116
"Lepke" and "Gurrarh" and attached to these boxes by lines were other boxes and in each box, obviously referring to rackets, were names as follows: garment, fur, flour, trucking, bakery and narcotics. These were attached to the "Lepke" box. In this diagram Louis Capone's name was not mentioned. Below this diagram there appeared this news item:

"District Attorney O'Dwyer's inquiry into Brooklyn crimes quickly revealed the people who employed Brownsville and East New York hoodlums, Murder, Inc., to commit murder for hire. Chief of the Brooklyn mob was Abe Reles, whose lieutenants were Harry "Pittsburgh Phil" Strauss and "Happy" Maione. When the "Lepke", "Gurrarh" gang, Louis Buchalter and Jacob Shapiro, wanted murder done, they got in touch with Murder, Inc." 117

One cannot dispute the power of the press. The press can create good will and the press can create hatred. The effect that newspapers have upon human beings is indescribable, and when one reads such news items as have been published up to the present date concerning "Lepke" and his aides, it is inconceivable that anyone reading such inflammatory matter can retain such equilibrium of mind as to be able to retain the ability to impartially weigh the legal evidence against the man jointly accused with the commission of crime with Lepke, because the mere placing him on trial with the other defendants would be indicative of an accusation that he is one of "Lepke's" aides.

It is an undisputed fact that millions of dollars are spent yearly by business in advertising through the medium of the press and the radio only because the public is influenced and guided by what it reads and hears. People suffering from ailments use patented products not because it is prescribed by physicians but because they are guided by what they read and hear.

In a perusal of the news items contained not only in the New York Times but in the other newspapers as well it is quite obvious that not once has any newspaper gone to the "front" for "Lepke" or his aides. All the newspapers have consistently been of one opinion concerning "Lepke." They have all characterized him in the same evil light The force of the press would nullify any possibility of Louis Capone receiving a fair and impartial trial if he were to be tried together with the other defendants. A prospective juror could not under these conditions even recognize his own mental reaction to that which has been built up over a period of years and although a prospective juror, when questioned as to his bias, prejudice, impressions and opinions, he would honestly answer those questions and yet subconsciously his prejudice would be beyond his control.

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 121

Your deponent submits clippings from The New York Sun and The World Telegram, from the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, from the Daily Mirror, from the Daily News, from the New York Post and from The Journal-American, which have been 122 published since the arraignment of "Lepke." Some of these headlines were as follows:

"Thirty Detectives Guard Lepke".
"45 Cops, in Their Golden Badges, anger Lepke Hearing Judge".
"Siegel Ordered Here for Lepke Inquiry".
"Judge Flays 'Arsenal' of 47 Lepke Guards".
"Judge Mocks Lepke Guards Filing Court".
"Lepke Will Hear Murder Charge".
"Murder, Inc., Job Told by State at Nitzberg Trial". 123
"Lepke Reported 'Singing' to Escape Chair as Reles Tells of Murder Ordered by Him".
"Ex-Girl Friend of Lepke on Stand".

His name appears in "The Lyons Den", an article written by Leonard Lyons.

On May 21st, 1941 in The Daily News he is mentioned in the Pete Clifford murder and he is also mentioned on June 2nd, 1941 in the

124 Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

Journal-American and other newspapers when one Irving (Knadles) Nitzberg was sentenced to die in the electric chair as having been the one who killed Shuman for "Lepke."

That although your deponent submits these newspaper clippings in support of this application, these articles appeared in every metropolitan newspaper.

The other two defendants have been mentioned
125 from time to time in the press and in proceedings in the Federal and State Courts as aides of the alleged Czar "Lepke."

Again deponent states that he does not know the truth or falsity of these alleged statements contained in the press, but the mere fact that they have been mentioned as associates of the man whose career has been painted from coast to coast as the ruler of a criminal empire, their mere presence with Louis Capone at the counsel table will strongly prejudice the jury against deponent's client and prevent him from receiving 126 a fair and impartial trial. The rights of the People of the State of New York would not be defeated or prejudiced if this application is granted. It is true that there may be additional expenses involved but the rights of Louis Capone are also involved and must be considered and every effort should be made to protect those rights.

The Constitution of the State of New York and of the United States guarantees to every defendant a fair and impartial trial and any statute which is opposed to the spirit, intent and purpose of the Constitution is as much within the condemnation of the organic law as though the intention to violate the Constitution were written in bold characters on the face of the statute itself.

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 127

It is obvious and apparent that Louis Capone, sitting at the counsel table with the other defendants mentioned in this indictment, cannot receive a fair and impartial trial for the very definite reason that the passions and prejudices of men 128 who will be called upon to sit as judges of the fact will be swayed by the atmosphere created by the newspapers long before the defendant was joined in this indictment.

The laws of God and man gives your deponent the right to make this application on behalf of his client. To deny this application would amount to depriving this man not only of a fair and impartial trial but denies him the right to his day in Court as prescribed by law.

Your deponent urges this Court to exercise its discretion in order to prevent a great injus- 129 tice being done to a man charged with the crime, the penalty of which calls for the forfeiture of his life.

Your deponent further states that there may be other conditions to contend with which unquestionably will militate against his client, without being required to be tried with the other above named defendants, and that is that the newspapers have created a mythical institution called "Murder, Inc." This organization, as created by the press, has been accused of many infamous and dastardly crimes.

130 Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

WHEREFORE, in the interest of justice and to preserve the constitutional rights of the defendant Louis Capone and to continue what has always been the American way of determining the guilt or innocence of a man charged with a crime, your deponent earnestly prays that this motion be granted in all respects and that the indictment be severed and the defendant Louis Capone be granted a separate trial of the charge against 131 him.

LEON FISCHBEIN

Sworn to before me this 5th day of June, 1941.

MAX K. EHRLICH
Attorney and Counsellor at Law
Office Address—66 Court Street
Brooklyn, N. Y.
Kings County Clerk's #6—Reg. #3002

132

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

133

THE NEW YORK TIMES INDEX TO LOUIS BUCHALTER

PAGE 659 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1935 ***

Oct. 12 p. 2—c. 3
"Louis Buchalter alias Buckhouse and Jacob Shapiro under Investigation by Thomas E. Dewey."

Oct. 16 p. 48—c. 2
"Louis Buckhouse and Jacob Shapiro under investigation by Dewey; 19 cartons of business records taken from Perfection Cost Front Mfg. Co., Inc. and 14 persons taken as witnesses; police records of Buckhouse and Shapiro.

134

PAGE 660 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1936

Oct. 26 p. 1—c. 5
"New group (including Lepke) takes over control of all major rackets. Gangs headed by C. Luciano, C. Siegel, M. Lansky, L. Buckhouse, J. Shapiro and A. Zwillman."

PAGE 667 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1936

135

Apr. 30 p. 44—c. 4
"O. Saffer accused of being payoff man for J. Shapiro and L. Buckhouse in industrial rackets.

July 8 p. 1—c. 4
"Loma Dress Company raided. Interest of Buckhouse and Shapiro recalled.

July 10 p. 40—c. 4
"Buckhouse and Shapiro missing from city for 2 weeks."

 (p. stands for page; c. stands for column.)

136 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

Page 698 New York Times Index Year 1936

Oct. 22 p. 1—c. 4
"Dewey raid in Bakery racket reveals L. Buchalter and J. Shapiro connection."

Page 884 p. 17—c. 2
"U. S. Circuit Court confirms conviction of J. Shapiro "Gurrarh" sets aside that of Lepke Buchalter."

July 7 p. 17—c. 2
"Buchalter and Shapiro flee trial. Bail
137 forfeited."

Page 176 New York Times Index Year 1937 and Page 177

Sept. 25 p. 1—c. 3
"Thomas E. Dewey announces arrest of Max Silverman in Los Angeles Telegrams. Show Shapiro and Buchalter supplied Silverman with funds."

Sept. 28 p. 1—c. 2
"Extortion indictment names Shapiro, Buchalter."

138 Page 885 New York Times Index Year 1937

Nov. 6 p. 4—c. 2
"Lepke Buchalter and Gurrarh Shapiro sought in Anti Trust action in fancy fur dressing industry."

Nov. 9 p. 1—c. 2
"Government posts reward for information leading to arrest."

Nov. 17 p. 1—c. 2
"Buchalter alias Lepke evades arrest on Drug Traffic charge."

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 139

PAGE 28 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1938

Jan. 7 p. 1—c. 1)
Jan. 8 p. 1—c. 1) man whose photo resembles "Louis "Lepke" Buchalter got passport through County Clerk Marinelli's office."

PAGE 1825 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1938

Feb. 19 p. 32—c. 6
"Shapiro and Lepke sought in Poland for Kidnapping threats."

Apr. 15 p. 1—c. 3 140
"Shapiro surrenders to Federal Court named as aide Lepke Buchalter."

Apr. 16 p. 3—c. 1
"S. Schwartz aide to Lepke returned to U. S. as part of a narcotic ring."

June 12 p. 40—c. 1
"Testimony by witness that payments were made to Buchalter and Shapiro in behalf of Fur Dressers Factor Corporation."

June 17 p. 6—c. 4
"Witness describes threats and pressure methods used against dealers." 141

PAGE 1878 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1939

July 29 p. 1—c. 5
"Dewey asks City to increase reward for Louis Lepke Buchalter co-defendants in Garment and Bakery Racket Cases. Cites murders and disappearances of former associates. Reviews cases and makes statement."

July 30 p. 1—c. 5
"LaGuardia backs higher reward. Dewey asks Board of Estimate to appropriate sum."

142 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

Aug. 1 p. 1—c. 4
"Tootsie Cohen, former Buchalter (Lepke) aide, held in high bail as witness; police plan wide Lepke search; grand jury subpoenas garment and bakery firms books to stop payments to Lepke."

Aug. 2 p. 7—c. 5
"Estimate Board to act on Dewey's plan for higher reward."

Aug. 3 p. 1—c. 3
"Dewey aides confer with police on Lepke
143 search plans; Borough President Lyons backs higher reward."

Aug. 6 p. 6—c. 1
"Comment on Lepke search."

Aug. 7 p. 3—c. 4
"Police check rumors Lepke has been killed. F.B.I. denies he is held."

Aug. 8 p. 1—c. 4
"Estimate Board votes higher reward."

Aug. 10 p. 5—c. 4
"Rumors of Lepke capture denied. Dewey postpones his vacation." 144

Aug. 23 p. 13—c. 1
"Wife testifies before Grand Jury."

Aug. 25 p. 1—c. 4
"Lepke surrenders to F.B.I. Never left New York City; criminal career reviewed."

Aug. 26 p. 32—c. 3
"Lepke indicted and arraigned on Federal charges of narcotics smuggling; pleads not guilty; Dewey aides not allowed to question him."

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 145

Aug. 27 p. 15—c. 1
"Lepke questioned by F.B.I. and U. S. Atty. Gen. Cahill's aides; Dewey aides excluded from hearing."

Aug. 29 p. 13—c. 3
"Lepke arraigned: gets more time to hire counsel; harboring defendants trial set."

Aug. 30 p. 1—c. 3
Lepke hires counsel. Appears in court.

Aug. 31 p. 20—c. 3
"Gets postponement of hearing." 146

Sept. 1 p. 11—c. 6
"New York City rescinds Buchalter (Lepke) reward."

Sept. 3 p. 2—c. 5
"Emanuel "Mendy" Weiss, narcotics smuggling aide, held by Federal agents."

Sept. 12 p. 27—c. 2
"Asks release on habeas corpus writ. Lepke's trial tentatively set."

Sept. 16 p. 34—c. 2
"Lepke transferred to another jail."

Sept. 17 p. 51—c. 4 147
"Dewey aide again denied permission by Federal agents to question Lepke."

Sept. 29 p. 46—c. 4
"B. Siegel, Federal crime inquiry witness, jailed for refusal to answer question on talk with Lepke."

Oct. 3 p. 24—c. 2
"Dismissal of indictments against 7 for harboring Lepke asked."

Oct. 4 p. 52—c. 2
"Siegel freed after answering questions on Lepke talks."

148 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

Oct. 20 p. 14—c. 5
"Trial of C. Shapiro and 4 others on charge of harboring Lepke and J. Shapiro postponed."

Oct. 25 p. 14—c. 4
"Court refuses to dismiss indictment."

Oct. 31 p. 24—c. 2
"Trial set. Snyder murder trial also set."

Nov. 1 p. 14—c. 5
"Trial of C. Shapiro and 4 others opened."

149 Nov. 3 p. 22—c. 2
"M and H. Silverman and S. Schorr arraigned on extortion charges in bakery and flour racket. J. Miller, Government witness, and 4 defendants testify in Shapiro trial."

Nov. 9 p. 10—c. 2
"Lepke trial delayed."

Nov. 22 p. 30—c. 7
"Judge Knox to preside."

Nov. 24 p. 42—c. 4
"H. Greenberg (G. Schaeter) slain, Hollywood."

150

Nov. 26 p. 13—c. 1
"Jury chosen."

Dec. 1 p. 15—c. 1
"Narcotics trial of Lepke, D. Kardonick, M. Schmuk'er and M. Sweder opened."

Dec. 12 p. 31—c. 4
"I. Mandel, sought by Government as Lepke witness, slain."

Dec. 20 p. 26—c. 2
"Defense sums up."

Dec. 21 p. 1—c. 4
"Lepke and Schmukler convicted."

PAGE 46 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Apr. 5 p. 1—c. 1
"I. Bernstein alleged trigger man and C. Siegel Lepke aide reported in New York City to silence witnesses."

Apr. 13 p. 9—c. 2
"Two witnesses r eal they hid Lepke at request of Abe Reles."

152

Apr. 14 p. 24—c. 3
"Reles links Lepke to J. Rosen murder."

PAGE 53 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

May 24 p. 21—c. 1
"Lepke Buchalter indicted in M. Diamond and J. Cohen murders."

PAGE 175 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

July 30 p. 21—c. 7
"Court clears C. Shapiro and four others in connection with harboring Lepke and J. Shapiro."

153

PAGE 178 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Aug. 21 p. 40—c. 1
"Lepke and four others indicted for murder of H. Greenberg in Los Angeles, Cal."

PAGE 186 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Feb. 2 p. 13—c. 4
"Jury picked to try Lepke on flour and bakery racket charges. Jury locked up."

154 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

Feb. 3 p. 30—c. 2
"A. Held, United Flour Trucking Co. official, testifies to extortions by Lepke, S. Schorr, W. Goldis and M. Silverman."

PAGE 187 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Feb. 20 p. 14—c. 7
"Five counts against Lepke and H. and M. Silverman quashed."

Feb. 21 p. 3—c. 1, 5
155 "Two more counts quashed; defense confers with court on guilty pleas; trial of 28 in fur racket case opens."

Feb. 28 p. 23—c. 8
"Defense ends summation."

PAGE 201 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Mar. 1 p. 11—c. 4
"Lepke bakery trucking racket case to go to jury."

Mar. 2 p. 1—c. 1
"Lepke and M. and H. Silverman convicted."

156 Mar. 5 p. 44—c. 2
"Lepke examined by court psychiatrists."

Mar. 15 p. 15—c. 1
"W. Karpouzas recants testimony that B. Gold, I. Potash and other union leaders asked him to use force to organize Needle Trades Workers Indus. Union; blames prosecutor; U. S. Atty. Cahill starts inquiry; fur workers back union at rally."

Mar. 31 p. 8—c. 1
"Sentencing of Lepke and M. and H. Silverman postponed."

PAGE 209 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Jan. 3 p. 1—c. 4
"Lepke sentenced on narcotics and fur racket charges; to be tried by Dewey on flour racket charges."

Jan. 5 p. 42—c. 4
"Shapiro, Lepke and others to be indicted on garment industry racket charge; Lepke refused to plead to flour-trucking racket charge."

Jan. 6 p. 30—c. 6 158
"Federal Court denies plea to save him from State prosecution on flour-racket charge."

Jan. 7 p. 24—c. 6
"Transfer from Federal to State jurisdiction stayed pending Circuit Appeals Court hearing."

Jan. 9 p. 24—c. 3
"Circuit Appeals Court reserves decision."

Jan. 10 p. 14—c. 5
"Denies plea; C. Shapiro, N. Borish and S. Smith sentenced for harboring Lepke; F. Dwyer and P. Kasakove get suspended sentences." 159

Jan. 11 p. 25—c. 4
"Lepke pleads not guilty to flour-racket charge."

Jan. 16 p. 13—c. 1
"Lepke flour-racket trial date set; court assigns counsel."

Jan. 17 p. 5—c. 3
"J. Shapiro, Lepke and 7 indicted on garment industry racket charges; victimized firms listed."

160 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

Jan. 18 p. 2—c. 7
"Three Lepke aides plead not guilty to garment industry racket charge."

Jan. 25 p. 1—c. 4
"W. Goldis pleads guilty to bakery and flour-trucking racket extortion attempt. Berated by Lepke; trial adjourned."

Jan. 27 p. 30—c. 2
"Trial of Lepke and 3 on flour racket charges opened."

161 Jan. 30 p. 2—c. 4
"Lepke jurors chosen."

PAGE 212 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1940

Apr. 6 p. 7—c. 1
"Lepke and H. and M. Silverman sentenced for flour and bakery racket."

Apr. 9 p. 14—c. 5
"I. Potash and 2 ask indictment dismissal in Needle Trades Workers Indus. Union case."

Apr. 14 p. 14—c. 3
162 "B. Gold and 10 found guilty. 7 acquitted."

Apr. 25 p. 14—c. 6
"Gold, Potash and 9 freed on bail."

PAGE 59 NEW YORK TIMES INDEX YEAR 1941

Jan. 31 p. 38—c. 4
"P. (Little Farvel) Cohen and 3 others convicted Drug Traffic."

163

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
Plaintiffs, 164

against

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke"; EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss"; HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil"; JAMES FERACO; PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel"; LOUIS CAPONE, Defendants.

State of New York }
City of New York } ss.: 165
County of Kings }

LEON FISCHBEIN, being duly sworn, deposes and says

That he is the attorney for Louis Capone, one of the defendants herein. That in his capacity as attorney for Louis Capone he made a motion before Judge Brancato, one of the Judges of this Court on the 11th day of June, 1941 for a severance of this indictment and a separate trial of the issues in this case in so far as the said Louis Capone was concerned. That the grounds of such motion are set forth in the moving papers and exhibits submitted in support of such moving papers which are on file in this Court.

166 Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

That after hearing argument on said motion, Judge Brancato in a decision dated the 17th day of June, 1941 denied the application but granted leave to renew the application before the trial judge and an order was duly entered to that effect on the 23rd day of June, 1941.

167 That your deponent now renews such motion and makes the affidavits and exhibits heretofore used in support of the application before Judge Brancato for a severance and separate trial for Louis Capone, part of this motion as though they were annexed hereto and fully set forth herein.

The application before Judge Brancato was on the ground that Louis Capone could not and would not receive a fair and impartial trial if tried together with the defendant Louis Buchalter, alias Lepke. That the name Lepke has been synonymous with crime and rackets and he 168 had been given so much publicity that the newspaper reputation of Lepke will build up a prejudice against the defendant Louis Capone and prevent him from receiving a fair trial.

The defendant Capone has been practically unheard of in the newspapers and has received no publicity which would cause members of a jury to consider him a sinister or notorious character. Yet if he is forced to trial with the defendant Buchalter all the adverse publicity and the newspaper reputation of Lepke will most assuredly militate against him by the very fact that he is on trial with Lepke. Try as they will the members of the jury will consciously or unconsciously find it impossible to divorce their minds from everything written and said about Lepke and will consciously or unconsciously be prejudiced against Capone by reason of the fact that he is on trial with Lepke. The interests of the defendants Capone and Lepke are antagonistic for this reason. 169

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

As an indication of the extent to which they are antagonistic your deponent submits herewith and makes a part hereof newspaper clippings of various metropolitan papers published yesterday and which announced the fact that this action was to be tried today. It is apparent that the reading public is interested in Lepke. He is the news. The other defendants are merely tacked on to him. Your deponent submits that this makes the interests of Capone and Lepke antagonistic: that Capone is entitled to receive a fair and impartial trial uneffected by passion or prejudice. Yet how can he receive such a trial? The newspapers as the attached clippings show heralded the trial of Lepke and told of the unusual and heavy guard which would attend the trial not only in the courtroom itself but in the court house and outside in the street around the court house. The atmosphere so created is highly prejudicial to a defendant and makes an indelible impression on jurymen. The presence in the courtroom itself of an armed guard will always be before this jury and will consciously or unconsciously be used against all the defendants. Capone has nothing to do with creating this atmosphere. It is the result of the news- 170 171 paper publicity and criminal reputation of the defendant Lepke. He is now under sentence in the Federal Prison. The federal authorities are in the courtroom notwithstanding the fact that there is also present an unusually heavy police guard. The number of attendants has been doubled.

172 Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

This atmosphere would never exist if Capone were tried alone. He is not a notorious character as the jury will think from the very fact he is brought to trial with Lepke. His Constitutional right to a fair and impartial trial uneffected by prejudice or passion is denied him and will be denied him if he is forced to trial with Lepke. The district attorney knows this and on the previous application said that Capone has been neglected by the newspapers but that he will see that he is not neglected in the future. This is not the American way of trying a man for his life. Placing a man on trial for murder in an atmosphere that exists here today solely because of the presence of the defendant Lepke is a violation of the fundamental law of this land and violation of the sacred Constitutional right given to every man to a fair trial.

173

174

The defendant Capone cannot efface what has already happened in this courtroom. The impressions made on the jury by reason of the atmosphere will remain with them as long as they live. This condition was created solely by the presence of Lepke and definitely makes the interests of the defendants Lepke and Capone antagonistic.

As set forth in the memorandum of law furnished upon the motion before Judge Brancato

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone)

175

the test and only test as to whether a separate trial in a criminal action should be granted when such an application is made is "Can the defendant receive a fair and impartial trial if tried together with the other defendants." This rule was laid down a long time ago and has been consistently followed by our honored Courts. This test must be applied in this case and the only answer is that because of the unusual atmosphere, the notorious and infamous newspaper reputation of Lepke, Capone cannot receive a fair and impartial trial uneffected by passion and prejudice.

176

Louis Capone under these circumstances cannot receive a fair trial and the district attorney of Kings County in the interests of justice should join in the application to the end that the fundamental principal of American fair play will continue unsullied and unblemished.

WHEREFORE your deponent prays that an order be made and entered severing this indictment and granting to the defendant Louis Capone a separate trial of the issues herein.

177

LEON FISCHBEIN

Sworn to before me this 4th day of August, 1941.

FRANCIS J. SULLIVAN
FRANCIS J. SULLIVAN
Attorney and Counsellor at Law
66 Court St., B'klyn., N. Y.
Kings Co. Clks. No. 9 Reg. No. 2010
Commission expires March 30, 1942

178 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

* Sunday News, August 3, 1941 • 32

BIG POLICE GUARD FOR LEPKE MURDER TRIAL

Arrangements were completed yesterday for a heavy police guard in Brooklyn County Court when Louis (Lepke) Buchalter goes on trial tomorrow for the murder of Joseph Rosen on Sept. 13, 1936.

179 Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss, Phillip (Little Farvel) Cohen and Louis Capone will be tried with Lepke for the shooting of the Brooklyn candy store proprietor.

A squad of 15 uniformed police under a sergeant has been detailed to guard the doors of the courtroom and the building corridors. Inside the courtroom a dozen or more detectives will be scattered among the spectators.

U. S. Marshal on Guard.

180 In addition, a number of United States marshals will be on hand, because Buchalter and Cohen have already been convicted on federal offenses and Weiss is waiting trial on a Federal indictment.

Two hundred and fifty talesmen from the blue ribbon jury list have been directed to appear in County Judge Franklin Taylor's court for examination as prospective jurors.

Lepke, who for more than a year was the nation's most widely publicized fugitive from justice until he surrendered voluntarily to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was returned to New York from Leavenworth prison to be tried.

Rosen was snuffed out in his candy store at 725 Sutter ave., Brooklyn, a few days before he was scheduled to appear as witness for District Attorney Dewey against Lepke during an investigation of the trucking racket.

Burton B. Turkus and Solomon A. Klein, assistants to District Attorney William O'Dwyer, will be in charge of the prosecution.

182

BROOKLYN EAGLE, SUNDAY, AUG. 3, 1941 A3

BIG POLICE DETAIL TO GUARD TRIAL OF LEPKE AND THREE

FEDERAL AND LOCAL OFFICERS ASSIGNED TO 'BLUE RIBBON' CASE

Arrangements were completed yesterday for stationing of a heavy police guard in County Court tomorrow, when Louis (Lepke) Buchalter 183 is scheduled to go on trial on an indictment charging him with first degree murder.

Co-defendants with Buchalter are Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss, Louis Capone and Philip (Little Farvel) Cohen. They are charged with the fatal shooting on Sept. 13, 1936, of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn candy store proprietor, in his establishment at 725 Sutter Ave.

Buchalter and Cohen, who have already been convicted of Federal offenses, and Weiss, who is awaiting trial on a Federal indictment, will be heavily guarded by United States Marshals. Further precautions, however, have been taken by local authorities. A police sergeant, 15 policemen and an undetermined number of plain clothesmen have been detailed to guard not only the courtroom and corridors but the outside of the court building as well.

184 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

BLUE RIBBON JURY TRIAL.

Trial of the four defendants is scheduled to 185 take place before County Judge Franklin Taylor and a blue ribbon jury. A panel of 250 talesmen has already been chosen.

Prosecution will be in charge of Assistant District Attorneys Burton B. Turkus and Solomon A. Klein, who successfully prosecuted Harry (Happy) Maione and Frank (The Dasher) Abbandando and Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Martin (Buggsy) Goldstein in the first two trials resulting from District Attorney O'Dwyer's investigation of Murder, Inc.

Rosen, with whose death the quartet are charged, was slain several days before he was 186 to have appeared as a witness for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey in Manhattan in the investigation into Buchalter's alleged activities in the New York trucking racket.

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 187

SUNDAY MIRROR AUGUST 3, 1941

6 LEPKE WILL GO TO TRIAL TOMORROW

S U N D A Y M I R R O R

A heavy police guard will be stationed in Brooklyn tomorrow when Louis (Lepke) Buchalter goes to trial on first-degree murder indictment.

Co-defendants are Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss, Louis Capone and Phillip (Little Farvel) Cohen. They are charged with the fatal shooting on Sept. 13, 1936, of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn candy store proprietor.

(PICTURE) 188

Louis Buchalter
Heavy police detail
will guard courtroom during his trial

A U G U S T

Buchalter and Cohen have already been convicted of Federal offenses.

A police sergeant, 15 policemen and an unspecified number of plainclothes men have been detailed to guard the courtroom, corridors and the outside of the building.

Trial of the four defendants is scheduled before 189
3 County Judge Taylor and a blue ribbon jury. A panel of 250 talesmen has been drawn.

1 Prosecution will be in charge of Assistant Dis-
9 trict Attorneys Turkus and Klein, who successfully
4 prosecuted Harry (Happy) Maione and Frank (The 1 Dasher) Abbandando and Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss and Martin (Buggy) Goldstein in the first two trials resulting from District Attorney O'Dwyer's investigation of the Brooklyn Murder Ring.

Rosen, with whose death the four are charged, was slain several days before he was to have appeared as a witness for District Attorney Dewey in the investigation of Buchalter's activities.

190 Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein

NEW YORK JOURNAL AMERICAN

Page 4

DOUBLE GUARD AT LEPKE TRIAL

Kings County Court will be like an armed camp tomorrow, when 50 guards patrol the steps, corridors and courtrooms. The reason? Louis (Lepke) Buchalter goes to trial on a first degree murder charge before Judge Franklin Taylor 191 and a blue ribbon jury.

Lepke and his co-defendants, Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss; Louis Capone and Philip (Little Farvel) Cohen, are charged with the shooting on Sept. 13, 1936, of a Dewey witness, Joseph Rosen, in the latter's candy shop at 725 Sutter Ave., Brooklyn.

Burton B. Turkus and Solomon A. Klein, who have conducted District Attorney O'Dwyer's trials of the Brooklyn murder ring, will prosecute Lepke.

192

193

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone)

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, 194
Plaintiffs,

against

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE,
Defendants.

State of New York } 195
County of Kings } ss.:

BURTON B. TURKUS, being duly sworn, deposes and says, that he is an Assistant District Attorney of the County of Kings and Chief of the Homicide Bureau of the District Attorney's Office. This affidavit is submitted in opposition to the motion made by the defendant Capone for an order severing the indictment herein and granting to him a separate trial.

The indictment against the defendants was filed in the County Court of Kings County on

196 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone)

May 28, 1940, charging them with the crime of Murder in the First Degree, committed as follows:

> "The defendants on or about September 13, 1936, in the County of Kings, wilfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought, shot and killed Joseph Rosen with revolvers."

197 With the exception of the defendant James Feraco all of the defendants have been duly arraigned and pleas of not guilty duly and properly entered and issue joined. The District Attorney intends to proceed with the trial of this case on or about July 14, 1941.

The present motion seeks a severance upon the alleged ground that the wide newspaper publicity received by the co-defendant Buchalter has been of such a nature as to prevent the defendant Capone from receiving a fair and impartial trial. In an attempt to support this contention 198 the defendant Capone submits the affidavit of his attorney, Leon Fischbein, a resume of the New York Times Index, and various newspaper clippings relating to the activities of the defendant Buchalter and others. Based upon the newspaper clippings, Mr. Fischbein speculates that because Buchalter has received unfavorable newspaper publicity, neither Capone nor any other co-defendant jointly tried with him can receive a fair and impartial trial. It is worthy of note that not a single affidavit from a citizen of the community or from one qualified to preside as a juror is produced to substantiate the speculation and partisan point of view entertained by Capone's counsel. 199

It would indeed be a sad commentary upon the intelligence and integrity of the citizens of Kings County that out of its vast population of approximately two and one-half million people, twelve men could not be found among the qualified jurors to give the defendant a fair and impartial trial, to decide the merits of the case on the evidence uninfluenced by newspaper stories relating to a co-defendant. The moving affidavit would have us believe that such is the case. 200

The argument made on behalf of the defendant completely disregards the law regulating the selection of a fair and impartial jury. We all know the ephemeral nature of impressions derived from reading the public prints. The community is fed on horrors daily, almost hourly, and one sensation crowds out the previous one. So thoroughly is this known that it is provided in Section 376 of the Code of Criminal Procedure that: 201

> "the previous expression or formation of an opinion or impression in reference to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, or a present opinion or impression in reference thereto, is not a sufficient ground of challenge for actual bias, to any person otherwise legally qualified, if he declares on oath, that he believes that such opinion or impression will not influence his verdict, and that he can render an impartial verdict according to the evidence and the court is satisfied that he does not entertain such > a present opinion or impression as would influence his verdict."

202 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone)

In this connection, it is significant that the above quoted provisions of law deal with a situation where a prospective juror has formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant affected thereby. The defendant Capone's speculations are based not upon any con-
203 tention that newspaper publicity has created any prejudices against him, but that he will indirectly be affected by prejudices supposedly created against the co-defendant Buchalter. This argument rests upon a double assumption, first, that no jury could be found qualified to give Buchalter a fair and impartial trial, and, second, if such be the fact then the supposed prejudices against Buchalter must preclude the possibility of a jury being capable of passing upon the merits of the case against the defendant Capone because the publicized Buchalter is seated alongside of him
204 at the trial. Such surmise and speculation does not present any compelling reason for deviating from the statutory rule that defendants jointly indicated should be jointly tried. Furthermore, the defendant Capone completely disregards the special provisions made by law to protect a defendant's rights in cases where there has been widespread newspaper publicity. Under such circumstances the Judiciary Law, Section 749-aa, permits the defendant or the District Attorney to apply for a special jury. Subdivision 2 of that statute affords ample protection against the selection of any juror who may be biased because of newspaper comments. It provides that:

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone) 205

> "No person shall be selected as such special juror * * * who doubts his ability to lay aside an opinion or impression formed from newspaper reading or otherwise, or to render an impartial verdict upon the evidence, uninfluenced by any such opinion or impression * * *."

It is evident from the foregoing that the co-defendant Buchalter can and will receive a fair 206 trial by fair and impartial jurors. A fortiori, the defendant Capone who predicates his contention upon alleged prejudice against the co-defendant Buchalter, must necessarily receive such fair and impartial trial.

Apart from the foregoing, defendant Capone attempts to create the impression that he has lived a life free from all association or connections with organized murders. The fact, however, is that far from being the family man who has lived a life of obscurity, which Mr. Fischbein portrays for him, the defendant Capone has been 207 the associate and active partner of organized criminals. The confidential files and records of the District Attorney's Office reveal that the defendant Capone was the mentor of Harry "Pittsburgh Phil" Strauss (named as co-defendant with him in this indictment), Martin "Buggsy" Goldstein, Abe Reles, Harry "Happy" Maione, and Frank "Dasher" Abbandando, all of whom have been revealed in courts of record as being hardened and vicious members of organized murder. Two of his pupils, namely, Strauss and Goldstein have recently been electrocuted, two others, Maione and Abbandando await electrocution. These characters were schooled and trained by the defendant Capone. After receiving their training from the defendant Capone, he embraced them as his partners in crime. The records of the trials of Strauss, Goldstein, Maione and Abbandando conclusively establish that Capone was their partner in union-sluggings, extortions, shylocking and murder incidental to 209 their business.

208 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone)

It is true that the defendant Capone has thus far been able to escape conviction for his criminal activities. None the less he is not an unknown character to law-enforcement agencies, nor has he been since 1930 when he was first arrested on a gun charge. Attached hereto is a copy of the criminal record of the defendant Capone as certified by the commanding officer of the Bureau of Criminal Identification. In addition thereto, the defendant Capone has been an active participant, as disclosed by the records of the District Attorney's Office, in five murders exclusive of the 210 Rosen Killing. At least one of these murders, the killing of an innocent man by mistake (Irving Penn) was committed in conjunction with and pursuant to the directions of the co-defendant Buchalter.

In conclusion, the defendant Capone is a man who for the greater part of his life has been engaged in organized crime, participating in murders incidental to the transaction of his illicit business when the occasion required, and who now claims that because he succeeded in hiding behind the mask of alleged respectability that his rights would be invaded if he were tried with the man who committed crime with him. There is thus neither basis in law nor in justice for the granting of a severance upon the ground presented.

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone) 211

WHEREFORE, your deponent respectfully submits that the motion should be denied without prejudice to renew before the trial judge. 212

BURTON B. TURKUS

Sworn to before me this 17th day of June, 1941.

CHARLES T. SCHACK,
Notary Public Kings County
Kings Co. Clk's No. 1099, Reg. No. 3346
Commission Expires March 30, 1943

213

214

Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone)

Motion for a separate trial pursuant to Section 391 Code of Criminal Procedure Denied.

The only issue presented on this motion by the defendant Louis Capone, the moving party, is whether the reputation for obedience to law and order of one of his codefendants, Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", is so "sinister" and vicious and his own so "obscure" and good, that for him to be tried jointly with the said "Lepke", 215 upon an indictment charging them both and others with first degree murder, would be tantamount to depriving him of a fair and impartial trial in violation of constitutional guarantees.

The right to a separate trial afforded defendants for upward of a century, was revoked by the Legislature for reasons of public policy in July, 1926 when it enacted Section 391 Code of Criminal Procedure. By the provisions of this Statute the Court is now vested with the discretionary power to grant a separate trial for cause. The Legislature not having seen fit to 216 set fixed bounds to the exercise of the discretion restored to the Courts, there is no general rule limiting or governing the Court's exercise of said discretion. Hence, its decision rendered before trial is dictated by a reasonable anticipation based on the facts then disclosed: (Peo. v. Doran 246 N. Y. 409; Peo. v. Snyder 246 N. Y. 491; Peo. v. Fisher 249 N. Y. 419; Peo. v. Feolo 282 N. Y. 276; Peo. v. Wargo 149 Misc. 461; Peo. v. Lashkowitz 166 Misc. 640.)

Intensely adverse interests between defendants coupled with the fact that a defendant, confessing to the authorities his participation in the commission of a crime, implicated a codefendant who made no such confession, has been considered sufficient justification for the Court to exercise the judicial discretion contemplated by the Statute under consideration (People v. Feolo; People v. Wago; People v. Lashkowitz, supra.) I have not been referred, however, to any reported case as authority for the proposition herein urged by the defendant Capone, that a separate trial be granted to a defendant solely because, forsooth, 218 the criminal activities and history of a codefendant have been publicized by our daily papers more extensively than his own. Conceding that the searching eye of an alert public press in this City has been focused upon Lepke's alleged many encounters with the Penal Law, resulting even in amazing revelations, I am unwilling to subscribe to the assumption in the general proposition, that a jury of intelligent citizens will be influenced thereby not only against Lepke but will also transcend their prejudice against a codefendant to the extent of depriving the latter 219 of a fair and impartial trial. Our experience in the administration of the Penal Law, negatives any such assumption.

217

Our Laws give to a defendant accused of murder, a wide latitude in examining the qualifications of the individual prospective jurors. A defendant is provided with thirty peremptory challenges and an unlimited number of challenges, for cause (Sec. 373—Code of Criminal Procedure) and ample means to select from the various walks of life, fair-minded intelligent and unbiased judges of the facts who can discern and can divorce themselves from the prejudices which would inflict upon one defendant the ill effects of the sinister reputation of a codefendant: (Judiciary Law Sec. 749aa; sub. 2.)

220 Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone)

The moving defendant refers us to the learned opinion in the case of Peo. v. Hines 168 Misc. at 470, wherein it is stated that the Court would have been disposed to grant the defendant a severance of the indictment and a separate 221 trial, "were the moving defendant to be surrounded upon the trial by a larger group of codefendants having criminal records or unsavory reputations." The underlying principle enunciated has no application in the case at bar. Of the defendant Hines, Mr. Justice Pecora in his opinion stated that "many of the newspaper articles present the defendant as an attractive personality, and might well be considered as exciting sympathy for him rather than prejudice." However sinister be the reputation of Capone's codefendants (and it is not my purpose to divine 222 what facts will be adduced at the trial nor to prophesy the result thereof,) the record impels the conclusion herein that Capone's own reputation is not unblemished, nor was it nurtured in the sacred precincts of an obscure family life, as depicted by Defense Counsel in his moving affidavit.

According to the affidavit submitted in opposition to this motion by the Assistant District Attorney who has been prosecuting members of the so-called Murder Incorporated, the files of the District Attorney's office and the trial record attest that such vicious characters as Harry,

Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone)

223

"Pittsburgh Phil" Strauss and Martin "Bugsy" Goldstein, both electrocuted for murder a few days ago, also Harry "Happy" Maione and Frank "Dasher" Abbandando, both awaiting electrocution and Abe Reles who has confessed his participation in eleven murders, received their schooling in crime from the moving defendant Capone, with whom they allegedly shared their ill-gotten profit of union-sluggings, extortions, shylockings and the murders incidental to their nefarious business. In an application under Sec. 391 Code of Criminal Procedure, the burden is upon the moving defendant to reasonably satisfy the Court that a joint trial would impede the proper administration of justice; and when the sinister reputation of a co-defendant is made the sole basis for the severance, a reasonable anticipation of petitioner's own bad repute and criminal associations are sufficient to defeat the application. Submit order accordingly:

224

225

Dated: June 19, 1941.

PETER J. BRANCATO
PETER J. BRANCATO
County Judge, Kings County

226

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

County of Kings

227

In the Matter of the Application of

Louis Buchalter

to remove the trial of the action of The People of the State of New York vs. Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", James Feraco, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", Louis Capone, to another county.

228

State of New York }
County of New York } ss.:

Hyman Barshay, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I am one of the attorneys for the defendant, Louis Buchalter.

This affidavit is made in support of a motion for an order removing the above entitled action from the County Court of Kings County for trial in a county outside the City of New York on the ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in Kings County. This application is not intended as a waiver of defendant's contest of the jurisdiction of the State Court under the circumstances and conditions of defendant's incarceration as a Federal prisoner.

 229

A fair and impartial trial of the defendant, Buchalter, cannot be had in Kings County for the manifest reason obvious to anyone who has 230 lived in this City during the past two years, that the defendant has already been tried and convicted in the public mind in consequence of unprecedented newspaper, radio and magazine publicity directed against him. He has been described as society's most dangerous enemy. The attack against him by newspaper, radio and magazine accusations has been continued unremittingly during the past two years even though for the greater part of that period, he has been a prisoner of the Federal Government and shackled by judgments of conviction which require his imprisonment, first in a Federal Penitentiary for a period of fourteen years, and then 231 in the prisons of the State of New York for a consecutive period of incarceration of thirty years.

One of the explanations for the continued attacks upon the character and reputation of that defendant, even after his imprisonment, is the publicity surrounding the preparation and trial of that series of cases journalistically known as "Murder Inc." In this affidavit, I shall refer to a relatively small number of all of the newspaper clippings in which condemnatory references to defendant Buchalter have been made. I shall not attempt to characterize these publications since no compendium description will serve as an adequate substitute for a knowledge of the color and the inflammatory character of the originals.

232 Affidavit of Human Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

On April 7, 1940, there appeared in the Sunday edition of the New York Daily News, a three-233 page resume of the alleged scope of the activities of a group of professional murders. The article, Exhibit 1, summarizes the activities of this defendant with the statement:

> "All in all, O'Dwyer figures, Crime Corp. eliminated seven of the 11 witnesses against Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro in District Attorney Dewey's investigation of their racket activities."

The article states that the defendant caused 234 the murder of Joseph Rosen in the following language:

> "Joseph Rosen, slain in his Brooklyn candy store in September, 1937. Rosen had been a truck fleet operator, but was driven from business by rackets. The Lepke-Gurrah combination was said to fear his testimony in front of District Attorney Dewey and for that reason contracted to have him killed. Pittsburgh Phil Strauss and Happy Maione were arrested in this case, and soon were freed."

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 235

Much of the article is based upon a reputed interview with the District Attorney of Kings County, as to its contents set forth under the by-line of two reporters, indicate.

The references to the defendant, Buchalter, during the course of the publication of the activities of alleged hired murders have pictured him as the "master-mind". At the same time, the defendant, Buchalter, has been depicted, quite unnecessarily, in other court proceedings and in 236 other jurisdictions within the Greater City of New York, as society's most dreaded enemy. Exhibit 2, annexed hereto, is an excerpt from the New York Journal of February 4, 1941. It quotes an Assistant District Attorney in New York County, during a judicial proceeding, as referring to Buchalter as "the most vicious racketeer who ever preyed on the people of this City."

Since March, 1940, the District Attorney of Kings County has had in his custody one Abe Reles, who is known generally as an important witness for the prosecution and who has been 237 depicted as an associate and employee of the defendant, Buchalter. On May 15, 1941, the New York Sun published an article about Abe Reles. Reles was then in the custody of the District Attorney. The article is set forth herein as Exhibit 3, annexed to this affidavit. It says in substance that Reles, a prospective witness against the defendant Buchalter in the trial of this indictment, had fallen ill in consequence of worry about the prospect of testifying against the defendant, Buchalter. The sense of the article is that Buchalter is so dreaded a criminal that Reles, a man who had committed eleven murders by his own admission, became sick of worry at the prospect of confronting Buchalter in Court.

238 Affidavit of Human Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

On June 14, 1941, the Journal-American published a story which is annexed hereto as Exhibit 4. It states in substance that one Paul Berger, an associate of the defendant, Buchalter, had 239 acted as a "finger man" in September 13, 1936, murder of Joseph Rosen, and further, that Berger was "squealing".

During the course of the last several months, the New York Post printed an article, a copy of which is set forth as Exhibit 5. It quotes an "official" as saying that arrested men had committed murder on instruction from the defendant, Buchalter, and that were they induced to talk, "both Lepke and Anastasio will die in the electric chair."

On June 5, 1941, the New York Daily News published a story, a copy of which is set forth 240 as Exhibit 6 hereof. In it the District Attorney of Kings County is quoted as having personally accused the defendant, Buchalter, of the murder of Joseph Rosen. In referring to the arrest of Paul Berger, the article said:

> "He has always assumed respectability," the prosecutor said, "but we have positive information that he has been connected with Lepke for years in the clothing racket."
>
> On Sept. 12, 1936, O'Dwyer said, Berger

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 241 pointed out Rosen to the assassins Lepke had hired.

Rosen, a former truckman who had threatened to testify against Lepke in the investigation of the flour-trucking racket, was found next day with 21 slugs in his body.

Brought Back for Trial

242

Lepke, who is serving 30 years for extortion, has been brought back from Leavenworth Penitentiary to stand trial for first degree murder as Rosen's technical killer. O'Dwyer did not say whether Berger would be tried at the same time, or later."

There are other recent newspaper statements which state in the baldest terms that this defendant is guilty of the murder of Joseph Rosen. Exhibit 7, annexed hereto, is a photostatic copy of a statement published in the New York Journal on April 7, 1941. 243 Exhibit 8, annexed hereto, is a story published by the New York Sun on April 16, 1941. It states that the District Attorney of Kings County is in possession of strong evidence of the guilt of the defendant, Buchalter, as alleged in the indictment. It says in part:

"Thus far, Mr. O'Dwyer has uncovered strong evidence that Lepke hired the killers to silence at least two men who he feared might talk too much about his affairs when District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was looking into his rackets several years ago.

244 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

The former schoolteacher, so the story goes, left pedagogy for the more lucrative field of industrial racketeering in which Lepke was supreme. He became a close friend of Joseph Rosen, the Brooklyn 245 candy store proprietor, who also knew a good deal about Lepke's affairs.

In September, 1936, soon after Rosen had visited Mr. Dewey's office, he was shot to death. The ex-schoolteacher is said to have become so angry at Lepke for having killed his friend that he went to Mr. Dewey's office also. Not long afterward he also was shot down."

On January 22nd, 1941, the News published a story of which Exhibit 9 is a photostatic copy. Referring to Workman, whom it accused of the 246 murder of "Dutch Schultz" the article said:

"Workman is now a prisoner in Brooklyn, in default of $100,000 bail as a material witness in the murder of Joseph Rosen, candy store proprietor who dared to testify against Louis (Lepke) Buchalter. Lepke now serving a federal term in Leavenworth, is one of five men indicted by the Brooklyn Grand Jury for the Rosen murder."

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 247

Exhibit 10 is a copy of a story printed in the News on April 14th, 1940. It also imputes guilt to this defendant for the murder of Joseph Rosen and asserts that this defendant had a motive to cause that murder. The newspapers have not only quoted the authorities as suggesting that the authorities are in possession of proof of the defendant's guilt of the murder of Joseph Rosen and of proof of his motive for desiring to effect the death of Joseph Rosen, 248 but they have also published statements to the effect that the defendant himself had admitted his guilt or was ready so to do if only the Prosecutor would negotiate a bargain with the defendant Buchalter by the terms of which the defendant Buchalter might escape the penalty of death. In other words, the public has been led to believe not only that the District Attorney is convinced of the guilt of the defendant, Buchalter, but beyond that that the defendant Buchalter himself has acknowledged his guilt.

Exhibit 11 annexed hereto is a copy of a remarkable story published in the World Telegram 249 on May 16th, 1941 which says that the defendant acknowledged his guilt and was bargaining with the District Attorney through his relatives and attorneys, but that the District Attorney thought that the demand on him by the defendant was "excessive." It says that Buchalter was ready to deliver "a nationally prominent labor leader on a murder charge, a noted public official of New York City on a conspiracy charge, and a close relative of a very high federal office holder • • •" etc.

250 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

On May 29th, 1941, the World Telegram published a story to the same effect, a copy of which is annexed hereto and marked Exhibit 12. The story said in part:

> "It was regarded as much more likely, however, that the announcement was to put the screws on Lepke to make him come down in his pride. This price was re-251 ported as freedom from the murder charge and commutation of a 30-to-60 year sentence for racketeering.
>
> Incidentally, political observers speculated on the effect of the announcement on Mr. O'Dwyer's Mayoralty aspirations. Reliable sources reported that Mr. O'Dwyer held a series of conferences with Democratic leaders over the week end, including Brooklyn's Frank V. Kelly and James Roe of Queens. These reports were that the party leaders were pretty lukewarm to 252 Mr. O'Dwyer's ambitions.
>
> The indictment on which Mr. O'Dwyer says he'll proceed in July charges Lepke and others with the murder of Joseph Rosen, shot in his candy store at 725 Sutter Ave., Brooklyn, Sept. 13, 1936, because, the state charges, he had offered to give information about Lepke's racketeering in the Dewey investigation."

The newspaper columnists as well as reporters have imputed acknowledgment of his guilt to the defendant Buchalter. On May 12th, 1941,

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 253

the Mirror in the Column called "Over the River", which is devoted to Brooklyn Gossip said:

> "Lepke, heavily guarded in a local 'hotel' is pendering whether to 'open up' on three bigshots who have so far escaped the crime roundup . . . Convinced that this will be his only chance to beat the chair, the former No. 1 mobster's family are putting on the pressure." 254

On May 17th, 1941, the Mirror following the lead of the Telegram printed a story, a copy of which is marked Exhibit 14. The headline and opening paragraph state:

> "Lepke Reported 'Singing' to Escape Chair as Reles Tells of Murder Ordered by Him.
>
> By Arnold Prince 255
>
> While Louis (Lepke) Buchalter was reported trading for his life, promising to solve numerous murders and implicate three nationally known figures in assassinations and rackets, the cold-blooded story of one murder actually "ordered" by Lepke and how it was done, was told on the witness stand yesterday by Abe (Kid Twist) Reles."

On the following day the Mirror cited in a story a copy of which is Exhibit 15 hereof:

256 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

"Reles has "definitely promised" to testify, a spokesman for District Attorney O'Dwyer, of Brooklyn, said yesterday. This fact is said to have brought Lepke one step nearer the point where he himself is willing to turn informer, if assured he will be saved from the chair.

Among those Lepke is said to be ready to name are "three nationally known fig-257 ures," allegedly implicated in assassinations and rackets. If a bargain is struck, Lepke's revelations it is predicted, will be the "greatest exposure of organized crime in the United States ever made."

Lepke is known to have conferred with O'Dwyer's aides.

Rosen, like Shuman, was "erased," it is charged, because he informed against Lepke.

Lepke ordered him slain, according to the State, and Reles is said to be ready to give details as he did in the Shuman 258 killing.

Also reported ready to testify against Lepke is "Allie" Tannenbaum, who drove the car in which Shuman took his last ride."

It is a fact, which the authorities should be very willing to acknowledge as such, that the defendant has not conferred with them, that there has been no discussion of a bargain between the defendant's attorneys or other representatives of the defendant with the District

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 259

Attorney of Kings County or any of his associates or employees. Thus the question of whether reporters whose statements appear under their signature and who purported to quote the District Attorney of Kings County or his associates were unauthorized so to do, is not a problem presented on this application. Omitting that question and proceeding on the assumption that such conversations never took place, that the defendant had not acknowledged his guilt, that 260 he had not attempted to bargain with the District Attorney, he has been misrepresented broadly, generally and widely by every important newspaper in this area as having acknowledged his guilt. The public has been led to believe that the prosecutor believed that the defendant was guilty and on top of that the defendant himself had attempted to negotiate a bargain be..use of his own acknowledgment of his guilt.

It is to be observed that these statements imputing an acknowledgment of guilt to the defendant Buchalter are not restricted to the recent past. They were served up to the public 261 as early as October, 1940.

On October 31st, 1940 the Telegram printed a story of which Exhibit 16 is a copy. It said in part:

> "But now Lepke faces the electric chair as a result of the smashing of Murder, Inc., by District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn.
>
> And so, the World-Telegram is informed, Lepke has told Mr. O'Dwyer that he will buy his life by turning state's evidence as the far lesser Abe Reles and small fry of Murder, Inc., already have done.

262 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

It is known that Mr. O'Dwyer and Captain Frank C. Bals, who commands detectives working on the Murder, Inc., case, left Brooklyn together on Oct. 22 for Kansas City.

And today it was reported that Mr.
263 O'Dwyer made two secret journeys to Leavenworth to talk with Lepke before he and Captain Bals returned to the city last Monday.

Previous Report.

It had been previously reported that Lepke probably would talk if that was the only way he could escape the chair, but today's information is the first definite report from a source of such reliability that Lepke's singing was assured.

264 The argument that convinced Lepke to spill all he knows, to bring to light the deepest secrets of the big shots of the underworld and their alliances with politics, is reported to have been the first degree murder indictment obtained against him by Mr. O'Dwyer.

Mr. O'Dwyer's investigation of Murder, Inc., revealed evidence that Lepke had given 11 murder contracts to this syndicate of retailers of homicide and that seven of the murder orders had been executed satisfactorily.

 265

The indictment against Lepke was for one of these crimes—the slaying of Joseph Rosen to shut his mouth so he could not testify against Lepke.

Victim of Extortionists.

Rosen was forced out of the trucking 266 business by Lepke's extortionists. He was reduced to running a small candy shop at 725 Sutter Ave., Brooklyn. That was where he was killed Sept. 13, 1936. He had a subpoena to appear before the Dewey grand jury in his pocket when gunmen walked in and fired 22 bullets into his body.

Even this did not shake Lepke's silence, as far as could be learned. But then Assistant District Attorney Louis Aidino obtained important corroborative evidence against Lepke and the five men indicted 267 with him for the Rosen Murder. The nature of the evidence is still a closely guarded secret, but it was important enough to cause Mr. O'Dwyer, to exclaim jubilantly:

"At last I've got Lepke and Capone on their way to the chair:"

And whatever the evidence was, it is reported, it was enough to convince Lepke that his only chance to escape frying in the hot seat was to sing—and sing loud.

268 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Charge against Capone.

The Capone Mr. O'Dwyer referred to was Louis Capone, one of those indicted with Lepke for the Rosen murder. Capone is now in Raymond St. Jail in Brooklyn. Capone has been described as the liaison officer who took care of murder contracts between Murder, Inc., and Lepke and other top drawer racketeers.

269 Three of the others indicted with them are still fugitives. They are Emanuel (Mandy) Weiss, Phil (Little Farvel) Cohen and James (Dizzy Jimmy) Ferraco.

The sixth man named in the indictment was Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss, now in the death house waiting electrocution for the murder of Irving (Puggy) Feinstein. He is one of four notorious members of Murder, Inc., convicted so far in Mr. O'Dwyer's drive against the gang."

270 Exhibit 17 is a story published by the New York Sun on October 31st, 1940.

Exhibit 18 is a reprint from the Mirror of November 1st, 1940. The headline and opening paragraph state:

"Report Lepke Will 'Sing' to Escape Chair

Louis (Lepke) Buchalter was officially reported last night to be ready to buy his life by revealing to District Attorney

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 271

O'Dwyer of Brooklyn all he knows about the underworld."

• • • • • • •

Mr. O'Dwyer is quoted as follows:

"At last I've got Lepke and Capone on their way to the chair," O'Dwyer was reported to have declared before Lepke decided to talk. No hint was forthcoming from O'Dwyer's office last night whether he is willing to bargain with the kingpin racketeer." 272

Presumably the District Attorney will be the first to concede that he never spoke with the defendant Buchalter and certainly that he did not confer with him as stated in these last referred to releases.

The publication of inflammatory and irresponsible statements against this defendant Buchalter continue, to the very day of the making of this application. On July 10th, 1941 the Daily Mirror in reporting the progress of Democratic Party conferences held for the purpose of selecting a nominee in the city campaign said: 273

"One reason given yesterday for O'Dwyer's first place position is that he "seems to be the only man who could beat LaGuardia." The Brooklyn prosecutor is expected to strengthen his candidacy further by a successful prosecution of Louis

274 Affidavit of Human Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

> (Lepke) Buchalter, due to go on trial Aug. 4 for the murder of Joseph Rosen, ex-member of the Murder Syndicate, "erased" as an informer."

The story in which this statement is contained is Exhibit 19 hereof.

Prejudice has been generated by the press against this defendant in the report of the pro-
275 ceedings in Kings County Court on those occasions when the defendant Buchalter was produced for arraignment.

Exhibit 20 hereof is an excerpt from the New York Tribune of May 10th, 1941. It quotes Judge Martin who presided on that occasion as saying of this defendant:

> "I know this man is a bad man," he said, "a dangerous man, and his record is bad. But how is any man going to confer with his folks for the choice of counsel if ten other men are hanging over him? I don't 276 see any sense to this. Why couldn't just two or three men go in with him? I'm not afraid anybody will take him out of the courtroom. If they try to take him, they'll take me with him. It seems to me to be ridiculous for him to be surrounded as he is. He won't jump out of a window. One man could keep guard there."

Exhibit 21 is the report of the same proceedings as it appeared in the New York Times that same morning. There is a verbatim repetition of the language of Judge Martin in the Times account.

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 277

The Journal on May 9th, 1941, reported the same events in its own somewhat different journalistic style. Its story is Exhibit 22 hereof.

Incidentally, it may be noted that on May 16th, 1941, when the defendant was again produced before the County Judge, the Assistant District Attorney in addressing the court said among other things: 278

> "Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, this is a mile stone in law enforcement. After fifteen months of investigation by Judge O'Dwyer we have succeeded in bringing before your Honor at this bar of justice Louis Lepke on a charge of murder in the first degree, the man who pulled the strings."

Mr. Turkus' language was equally unreserved on May 29th, 1941, when addressing Judge Martin. He said in part: 279

> "It is about time that issue was joined to the end that a trial date may be fixed. If this Court has no jurisdiction, as I pointed out in the manner in which he took offense, but which would give his client the 'break,' as the expression goes, if he were convicted, and the Court had no jurisdiction, he would cheat, as I said, the electric chair."

280 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

The public has been led to believe that the defendant Buchalter is not only guilty of the crime charged in this indictment, but that he caused the murders of many other people.

Exhibit 22 is a copy of a headline and story in the New York Journal dated April 16th, 1940. The headline and the first paragraph state:

"Shot Down Stranger in Brooklyn

281 Says 'Armorer' Pointed Victim Out To Him

The amazing admission that he shot and killed a man as the appointed executioner for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter without even knowing his victim's last name was revealed today as part of the confession of Abe (Kid Twist) Reles, tattling triggerman of the Brooklyn cut-rate murder ring."

282 Exhibit 23 is an excerpt from the Tribune of January 3, 1941, in which Mr. Foley, the District Attorney of Bronx County is quoted as being convinced that this Defendant Buchalter had caused the murder of Irving Penn and that that murder had resulted from a confusion of the victim with another intended victim, one Philip Orlofsky.

Exhibit 24 is an excerpt from the Mirror of June 4th, 1940, and asserts that the defendant Buchalter caused the murder in Sullivan County of Hyman Yuran.

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 283

Exhibit 26 is the story in the Times of May 16, 1940, in which the murder of Yuran is attributed to the defendant Buchalter.

On May 16th, 1940, the Post published a statement of which Exhibit 27 is a copy and which included the following:

> "The slaying of Mandel, whose body was found in Folsom, N. J., last December, was almost identical to the murder 284 > of Yuran, whose body was found yesterday in a shallow lime-lined grave near Loch Sheldrake Inn, at Lock Sheldrake, Sullivan County.
>
> Find Gold Wrist Watch
>
> Yuran is believed to have been killed in Lepke's "war of extermination" against witnesses. Bernstein led O'Dwyer and Sullivan County officials immediately to his grave."

285

On May 8th, 1940, the News referred to the then current prosecution for the murder of one Rudnick and said in a story of which Exhibit 28 is a copy:

> "Stabbed With Ice Pick
>
> The indictment charges that the trio stabbed Rudnick fifty-four times with an icepick and then crushed his skull with a meat cleaver. The murder, detectives claim, was perpetrated on a cash assignment from Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, jailed ex-racket chief in New York."

286 Affidavit of Human Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

With respect to Rudnick the Mirror said on April 15th, 1940, of this defendant:

"The specific charge is the slaying of George Rudnick, a police informer, found stabbed 54 times with an ice pick, in his 287 car on Jefferson Ave. between Central and Evergreen Aves., Brooklyn. In a pocket of Rudnick's coat was a letter, signed by an investigator, thanking Rudnick for "the information you gave me." Authorities assert Louis (Lepke) Buchalter ordered the killing and that the letter was put there on Lepke's order as a threat to other informers."

Exhibit 29 is a copy of that story. The paper quoted Mr. O'Dwyer as follows:

288

"Anastasio is said by O'Dwyer to be the man who obtained "killing contracts" for the gang and to have been in charge of the hiding of Lepke when the Government and the State were looking for him."

In reporting developments in the investigation of the death of Irving Penn, the New York Times published a statement on April 15th, 1940, of which Exhibit 30 is a copy. The Times said:

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 289

"Mr. O'Dwyer said that Parks had definitely identified Martin (Buggsy) Goldstein, Abraham (Pretty Boy) Levene and Seymour Magoon as the three men who had stolen a car from a garage at 1 Neptune Avenue, where Parks worked, the night of July 21, 1939. Penn was shot down from the car a few days later as he left his home at 250 East 178th Street, the Bronx, to take a subway downtown to 290 his work as an official of a music publishing house. The explanation of his slaying was that he was mistaken for Philip Orlovsky, a witness against Louis (Lepke) Buchalter in District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's investigation of Lepke's racket empire. Penn and Orlovsky lived in the same apartment house and were of about the same build.

• • • • • •

In connection with an intensified search 291 for two more alleged members of the Murder ring, Albert Anastasia and Vito Gurino, it was revealed that two of Mr. O'Dwyer's material witnesses had been questioned until the early hours of yesterday at his office. Detectives have been sent to Florida on the trail of the two men, it was said. The two witnesses from whom information was sought were Louis Capone, no relative of the Chicago gangster, and Gurino's wife, Gertrude. Both > are in jail in default of $100,000 bail. Capone has been described as the go-between who accepted orders from Lepke and other gangsters for murders they wanted performed and passed the orders on to the actual killers."

292 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

On April 13th, 1940, the Mirror accused the defendant Buchalter of participation in the murder of Morris Diamond and based the accusation on an affidavit prepared by the office of the 293 District Attorney of Kings County and sworn to by a police officer. Exhibit 31 is a copy of that statement. It says in part:

> "Louis (Lepke) Buchalter was directly implicated yesterday in a Brooklyn murder syndicate execution, according to an announcement from District Attorney O'Dwyer's office.
>
> . . . . . .
>
> 294
>
> The affidavit makes the definite charge that Lepke was involved in the Diamond killing."

On April 16th, 1940, the Telegram published an omnibus charge of murder against the defendant Buchalter. Exhibit 32 is a copy of its statement.

On May 20th, 1940, the Mirror reported that it had been informed by a police official that a witness, Albert Tannenbaum, in the custody of the police, "links Lepke to a 'murder trust.'" Exhibit 33 is a copy of that statement.

295

On August 6th, 1940, the Mirror accused Buchalter of causing the murder of Sam Feinstein. Exhibit 34 is a copy of that report. It is based on information reputedly obtained from the office of the District Attorney of Kings County.

On August 21st, 1940, the Telegram quoted two witnesses in the custody of the District Attorney of Kings County, the notorious Reles and Tannenbaum as saying that one Schacter had been killed "on Lepke's orders for knowing too much." See Exhibit 35.

296

Exhibit 36 is a more inflammatory recital of the same accusation which appeared in the News on August 21st, 1940.

Exhibit 37 is the Telegram's account of the accusation of Reles and Tannenbaum published August 22nd, 1940.

Exhibit 38 is a report from the New York Journal of January 3rd, 1941, in which the District Attorney of Bronx County is quoted as accusing the defendant Buchalter of the murder of Irving Penn. The article proceeds to say:

297

> "The District Attorney charged that Capone was a liaison man between Lepke and Murder, Inc., and carried the instructions that resulted in the "mistaken" slaying. Foley announced he would ask for transfer of Capone, held in Brooklyn in default of $100,000 bail, to The Bronx."

298 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Capone is a defendant in the instant indictment.

Exhibit 39 is the Post version of the same interview with Mr. Foley. It says in part:

> "Penn, a 42-year-old music publisher, was killed by gangsters in front of his home at 250 E. 178th St., The Bronx, on July 28, 1939. Foley says he had been slain by mistake by men hired by Lepke 299 to murder Benjamin Orlofsky, a witness in District Attorney Dewey's garment racket case against Lepke."

On the same day the Daily News said of Capone:

> "Foley will present evidence against Capone, reputed trigger-man for the Louis (Lepke) Buchalter gang, and two unnamed men who are fugitives. Ten witnesses will testify."

300 The article itself is marked Exhibit 40 hereof.

On January 30th, 1941, the body of Peter Panto was excavated at Lyndhurst, New Jersey, and that event is reported in a story which is marked Exhibit 41 hereof, published in the New York Times of that day. The composition of the story, which refers to Buchalter as having caused the death of Yuran, whose body was said to have been disposed of in a similar manner, is calculated to give the impression that Buchalter had caused the murder of Panto and all other persons who in the opinion of the District Attorney of Kings County had been buried in the same area in New Jersey.

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 301

On February 8th, 1941, the Times reported the murder of Benjamin Tannenbaum. It said that Tannenbaum had been on the payroll of Charles Workman, a material witness in the Rosen murder, and then said "Tannenbaum knew a great deal and was about ready to talk". It attributed that statement to a detective. 302 It quoted another investigator as saying "he was most likely killed for having talked to District Attorney Dewey in his investigations of the rackets in which Lepke and his mob played." That article is exhibit 42.

On February 8th, 1941, the Mirror said that Mr. O'Dwyer accused Buchalter of the murder of Benjamin Tannenbaum. Its story of that day is marked Exhibit 43 hereof. It says in part;

> "Benjamin (Ben, the Boss) Tannenbaum "knew too much about three murders. 303 He was indicted for one; Louis (Lepke) Buchalter for another; and another "pal" of Benny's is said to have fired the shots that "erased" Dutch Schultz.
>
> So, according to Brooklyn District Attorney, O'Dwyer's office, underworld executioners tracked him down in Featherbed Lane in the Bronx." * * *
>
> Yesterday, a hunt was on for the killers,

304 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

while O'Dwyer's office offered the following explanation:

"We place this execution squarely at the cell doors of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and Charles (Charlie the Bug) Workman."

Referring to the indictment in this case, representatives of Mr. O'Dwyer are quoted as say-305 ing:

"Aides to the Brooklyn District Attorney stressed that Lepke is to be brought from Leavenworth prison in June for trial on the charge of ordering the 1936 murder of Joseph Rosen, prospective Dewey witness against Lepke in the fur racket. Workman is behind bars under $75,000 bail as a witness in the Rosen Killing.

But there is a more important allega-
306 tion against Workman. Authorities in Newark charge he fired the bullets that ended Schultz's career in a tavern there.

"Tannenbaum was in a position to give important testimony concerning these two crimes," was the way O'Dwyer's associates expressed it."

The story based on alleged quotations of aids of Mr. O'Dwyer states that Rosen was killed because he had been a witness against Buchalter and that Benjamin Tannenbaum had been killed on Buchalter's directions because he knew of the murder of Rosen.

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 307

On or about May 15th, 1941, there began in the Kings County Court the trial of one Nitzberg for the alleged murder of Al Shuman. That proceeding, widely publicized, became the occasion for the accusation that Buchalter had instigated the murder of Shuman. Exhibit 44 is the statement which appeared in the Sun on May 15th, 1941. Exhibit 45 quotes Mr. Helfand, 308
Assistant to the District Attorney of Kings County as explaining to a reporter of the New York Telegram that he was about to make an accusation in Court against Buchalter. The opening paragraphs of that story are:

> "The slaying of Albert (Plug) Shuman in Brooklyn two and a half years ago was ordered by Louis (Lepke) Buchalter before the latter was picked up by police and sentenced to a long prison term. Julius Helfand, Assistant District At- 309 > torney, was to charge today in his opening address to the blue ribbon Kings County Court jury sitting in the murder case against Irving (Knadels) Nitzberg.
>
> Mr. Helfand was to declare the state would produce as a witness the woman in whose home the head of Murder, Inc., hid when he mapped out plans for the killing of Shuman, who was found in front of 628 E. 95th St., Brooklyn, in a stolen car on Jan. 9, 1939—two bullets in the back of his head."

310 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Exhibit 46 is the Mirror's version of the same accusation printed on May 16th, 1941.

Exhibit 47 is a report from the Sun of May 16th, 1941.

Exhibit 48 is a repetition of this accusation as it appeared in the Mirror on May 16th, 1941.

Exhibit 49 is the Times report of May 17th, 1941.

Exhibit 50 is an excerpt from the News of 311 May 17th, 1941, and Exhibit 51 is an excerpt from that paper of May 20th, 1941.

All of these reports state that Buchalter procured the murder of Shuman. It is to be noted that Buchalter was not named in that indictment. The actual Court proceedings were leveled only against Nitzberg, but in the public mind Buchalter was found guilty of having employed Reles and Tannenbaum and Nitzberg to kill Shuman because Shuman was a squealer. There is of course a gap in this journalistic proof. There was no indication that Shuman had been known 312 to Buchalter or that Buchalter had any reason for fearing anything that Shuman might say to authorities. Nevertheless, Buchalter, who was not afforded an opportunity to contest the accusation of the police and of the District Attorney, was tried in the public press for the murder of Shuman.

The newspaper publicity against the defendant Buchalter has not been limited to the accusation that he had been guilty of the instigation of many murders.

Exhibit 51 is a report from the New York

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 313

Post of February 4th, 1941. Buchalter is there referred to "as the most powerful and vicious racketeer who has preyed upon the public of this city."

Exhibit 52 is a report from the News of May 11th, 1940. Buchalter is referred to as "the brains behind the Brooklyn murder mob."

The News of April 17th, 1940, in a story, a copy of which is Exhibit 53 hereof, quotes Mr. Turkus, Mr. O'Dwyer's assistant, as searching 314 for Max Rubin. It says in part:

> "If Rubin can be found, Assistant District Attorney Burton B. Turkus, of O'Dwyer's office, hopes that he will be able to link Lepke with several syndicate murders, even more definitely than he is connected at present."

It says that:

> "Rubin soured against Lepke when, on orders from the latter, gunmen shot him as 315 he returned to his home at 245 E. Gunhill Road on the night of Oct. 1, 1937. Rubin recovered from his wounds and testified against Lepke in the trial on charges of extortion in the flour and trucking rackets, for which Buchalter was sentenced to 14 years' imprisonment."

Rubin's whereabouts have never been unknown to the District Attorney of King County. The testimony he has given in other proceedings has indicated that he will be a witness for the People in the trial of the instant indictment. Publication of which Exhibit 53 is a copy, is advance notice to the public by the District Attorney's office that Rubin will testify against this defendant and will do so because Rubin believes that the defendant Buchalter attempted to cause the murder of Rubin.

316 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Exhibit 54 is a copy of a statement which 317 appeared in the World Telegram of April 18th, 1940, which purports to prove that the notorious Reles was an employee of the defendant Buchalter and by that proof attempts to fasten on Buchalter guilt for all of Reles' crimes.

The Exhibits hereto annexed are only a small number of those available in the proof of a proposition that needs no proof. Buchalter has been convicted in the mind of the public of this locality. The prosecutor has been frequently quoted as informing newspaper reporters of his belief in Buchalter's guilt. Witnesses in the 318 custody of the District Attorney have been quoted as acknowledging guilt in the commission of other murders and as having said that they committed those murders upon instructions from Buchalter and while engaged in his employ. There has never been so widespread or devastating an attack upon any defendant. It cannot be believed that this defendant, burdened with these advance notices, can obtain a fair trial in this locality. It is for that reason that this application for a change of venue is made.

There is submitted herewith the affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, a trained investigator, who, on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd day of July, 1941, interviewed two hundred persons in various localities in the Borough of Brooklyn. One hundred and sixty-four of those persons said that in their opinion Buchalter is guilty of murder. Thirty-four said that they had no opinion, two that he was not guilty. That report, it is submitted, is proof of the devastating effect of the newspaper attacks on the defendant Buchalter. The public has been conditioned to believe that he must be guilty.

319

320

No doubt, everyone will agree that the defendant like any other should be accorded a fair trial. The prosecution, however, will be giving only lip service to that doctrine if it insists that the trial be held in Kings County. A fair trial cannot be had in Kings County for the reason that the literate section of its population has been taught by every agency of propaganda that this defendant is guilty.

It may be suggested in opposition to this application that it ought be denied because a denial will better serve the convenience of the people's witnesses. But those who cherish and defend the ideal of a fair trial for any defendant, should not permit their loyalty to that doctrine to be overthrown and frustrated by concern over the convenience of witnesses. It has been found convenient in the past for the witnesses in the custody of the District Attorney to be transferred across the continent. If their convenience was not greatly interfered with by their removal to a point 3,000 miles distant from Kings County, they can now be removed a few hundred miles if that transfer is needed to accord this defendant a fair trial.

321

322 Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

No doubt many of the quotations attributed to the District Attorney of Kings County and his various aides as set forth in the exhibits annexed to this affidavit, were improper in the sense that they were made without authorization. But the fact is that they were circulated to the public with the apparent approval of the officials quoted.

323 It may be that public officials are without power to refute unauthorized statements. Perhaps no one can efficiently deny statements attributed to him in the press. But a confession of inability to make such successful refutation is not the same thing as a demonstration that because the statements were unauthorized they were therefore not harmful. Their harm is incalculable. They deprive the defendant Buchalter of an opportunity for a fair trial. This application should not only be granted, but in common fairness the prosecutor should join in seeking the relief here requested.

324 No prior application for this or any other similar relief has been made.

This application is made by order to show cause rather than by the giving of the ordinary notice of motion for the reason that deponent desires to make this application as consistently as may be possible with the preparation of the voluminous papers necessary for the presentation of this application and as long before the fourth day of August, 1941, the date for which this case is now set for trial, as may be possible.

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 325

HYMAN BARSHAY

Sworn to before me this 16th day of July, 1941.

AARON A. JANIS
Notary Public, Kings County
Clk's. No. 151, N. Y. Co. Clk's No. 219 326
Commission expires March 30, 1943

327

328

Affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

COUNTY OF KINGS

In the Matter of the Application of 329

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county.

330 State of New York }
County of New York } ss.:

EMANUEL BUCHALTER, being duly sworn, deposes and says: I am a brother of the defendant, Louis Buchalter.

From time to time, during the past eight months, aides and other representatives of the District Attorney of Kings County have, on their initiative, discussed with me the fact that the defendant has been so named in an indictment pending in Kings County, and have asked me to discuss certain matters with my brother.

Affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 331

One of these conversations was initiated by and held at the instance of an Assistant District Attorney of Kings County. That Assistant District Attorney is, I was informed by him, to try this case for the People of the State of New York.

The aforesaid Assistant District Attorney told me at that particular conversation that I should use whatever influence I could to induce my brother to perform certain services for the District Attorney, because if I d.. not, then he would proceed with the prosecution and assuredly the defendant would be convicted upon the trial of this case. He said, "I don't need any evidence or witnesses to try this case, all I need is the indictment and a summation." He said in words and in substance that current prejudice existing in this locality against the defendant, Louis Buchalter, is so strong that the mere making of any charge against him would result in his conviction. 332

I submit this affidavit in support of the application made on behalf of the defendant, Louis Buchalter, for a change of venue. 333

EMANUEL BUCHALTER

Sworn to before me this 16th day of July, 1941.

LEE DEUTCH
Com. of Deeds NYC
N. Y. Co. Clerk's #40
Com exp 3-26-42

334

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

State of New York)
County of New York) ss.:

BENJAMIN D. FERNBACH, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I live at 10 Monroe Street, New York City. I was at one time employed as an agent in the 335 Secret Service Division of the United States Treasury Department. For the past twelve years, I have been engaged in the making of investigation. I am presently associated with the firm of Tracy & Seery whose offices are located at 420 Lexington Avenue, New York City. I was admitted to the Bar of the State of New York in 1938. I am a graduate of New York University and New York University Law School.

On July 1, 2 and 3, 1941, I interviewed two hundred persons in the Borough of Brooklyn, 336 City of New York. These conversations were carried on in the following neighborhoods of Brooklyn:

1. Bay Ridge

2. Coney Island

3. Vicinity of Long Island Railroad Station and Atlantic Avenue.

4. Prospect Park

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

337

5. Flatbush Avenue

6. Church Avenue

I stated to the persons whom I interviewed that I was conducting a publicity survey in an effort to determine how public opinion was formed, based on what the public hears and what the public reads. To each of these persons, I propounded the following questions:

338

1. Will this country enter the war?

2. Is Lepke guilty or not guilty of murder?

3. Will democracy survive this war?

I followed this method in interviewing the first 180 persons whose names and addresses are set forth in the schedule annexed hereto, marked "Exhibit A", and made a part hereof.

In interviewing the twenty persons whose names appear in the schedule annexed hereto, marked "Exhibit B" and made a part hereof, I followed a slightly different method of interrogation. I did not mention the purpose of my inquiry, but in each instance with respect to those twenty persons, I asked without preliminary interrogation the following questions:

339

1. Will this country enter the war?

2. Is Lepke guilty or not guilty of murder?

When this second method of interrogation was employed, the persons whose names appear on schedule B hereof invariably asked me the reason for the interrogation, and my response was that I was conducting a publicity survey.

340 Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Every one of the 200 persons whom I interrogated had a quick answer to the second question. Each of these persons indicated doubts as to the first and third questions and showed a desire to engage in a discussion as to the merits of the answers that they entertained. But 341 in answering the second question as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant Buchalter, they entertained no reservations and gave me a categorical answer without hesitation. 164 of the 200 persons thus interviewed said without reservation that in their opinion, the defendant Buchalter was guilty; 34 said that they had no opinion and two said that he was not guilty.

The twenty persons whose names comprise the schedule "Exhibit B" hereof, gave me the sources of their opinions and the names of the newspapers which they read. That newspaper 342 information is set forth in that schedule. Of those twenty persons, eighteen entertained the definite opinion that the defendant was guilty. One said that he had no opinion and one said that it was his opinion that the defendant was not guilty.

In the same classification, the persons whose names comprise schedule B hereof, several said that they believed the defendant guilty because of his participation in other murders, and some said that they believed him guilty because he had a record.

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 343

One of the persons I interviewed replied as follows to the question as to whether Lepke was guilty or not guilty of murder. "After hearing Burton Turkus lecture, how could I think otherwise?"

Immediately after interviewing each of these persons whose names appear in schedule A and B hereof, I made a memorandum of the name and address of the person interviewed. My original memoranda are available. 344

BENJAMIN D. FERNBACH

Sworn to before me this 15th day of July, 1941.

LEE DEUTCH
Com of Deeds NYC
N. Y. Co. Clerk's #40
Com exp. 3/26/42

345

346

Exhibit A, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach

Opinion as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter.

Name	Address	Opinion
John Sakal	482 76th Street, B'klyn, N. Y.	Yes
A. Venturelli	2261 60th Street	Yes
Richard Van Jones	7822 Third Avenue	Yes
Chester Flynt	77th St. and 4th Avenue	Yes
Wm. Fitzgerald	339 84th Street	Yes
Fred Lotthamines	7605 Third Avenue	No opinion
John Connelly	309 77th Street	No opinion
347 Edward Connelly	3608 Quentin Road	Yes
Joseph Sackman	194 Gelston Avenue	No opinion
Charles R. Holahan	450 78th Street	Yes
J. W. Sands	7814 Fourth Avenue	No opinion
Wm. F. Stark	205 71st Street	No opinion
Jerome Carroll	429 78th Street	Yes
W. R. Moore	341 41st Street	No opinion
Peter Fleasen	1243 Putnam Avenue	Yes
Thomas J. Donovan	431 79th Street	Yes
F. Foxwell	79th Street	Yes
H. Seyden	888 Fifth Avenue	Yes
F. S. Marsh	237 79th Street	Yes
Dan Gully	8415 Fourth Avenue	Yes
Joseph F.	82nd St. & Fourth Avenue	Yes
348 Anthony D'Antonio	8822 Ft. Hamilton Ave.	Yes
O. Sigmond	245 96th Street	No opinion
F. Clement	8415 Fourth Avenue	Yes
W. Clement	8415 Fourth Avenue	No opinion
John Conrick	301-100	Yes
E. Peterson	325 89th Street	Yes
S. Schwartz	8525 Fourth Avenue	No opinion
Wm. Connors	8525 Fourth Avenue	No opinion
B. Ellenson	405 86th Street	Yes
L. Wyler	1474 E. 55th Street	Yes
Dr. Senter	419 86th Street	No opinion
Sm. F. Gumper	8711 Fifth Avenue	Yes
M. Imbriale	1128 69th Street	No opinion

Exhibit A, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach 349

E	Address	Opinion
einstein	459 86th Street	Yes
s. Mazio	6721 Seventh Avenue	Yes
lermanser	1361 86th Street	No opinion
ph Marone	2124 Avenue T	Yes
lichaels	1435 Bath Avenue	No opinion
nderson	247 86th Street	No opinion
ge West	352 85th Street	Yes
H. Peck	1601 West 6th Street	Yes
ollenstein	900 Avenue H	Yes
mith	38 Westminster	No opinion
wyer	367 96th Street	Yes 350
infer	471 86th Street	No opinion
wyer	469 86th Street	Yes
cMahon	310 94th Street	Yes
enny	402 85th Street	No opinion
Laff	444 72nd Street	Yes
itcher	59 Gatling Place	Yes
ld Nelson	469 86th Street	Yes
Kelly	339 86th Street	Yes
. Walsh	465 84th Street	Yes
k Russo	2467 West 15th Street	Yes
s Carbone	1839 East 18th Street	Yes
Verdoliva	2925 West 19th Street	Yes
. Traae	8602 Ridge Boulevard	Yes 351
. S. Moskowitz	1867 E. 9th Street	Yes
k DeMarco	529 Surf Avenue	Yes
as McCormick	289 16th Street	Yes
Kalish	200 Liberty Avenue	No opinion
rd Nash	1777 76th Street	Yes
S. Rosenfeld	1640 Ocean Avenue	Yes
A. Nicholson	1017 Surf Avenue	Yes
Scott	1919 Surf Avenue	Yes
Roland	1012 Sixth Avenue	Yes
egel	2258 Ocean Avenue	No opinion
s Schenk	2824 West 16th Street	Yes
gers	6408 Gates Avenue	Yes
lazer	2877 West 20th Street	Yes

352 Exhibit A, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach

	Name	Address	Opinion
	Jack Cohen	437 St. Johns Place	No opinion
	S. Rosenfeld	914 Avenue M	Yes
	R. McCreery	217 Prospect Place	No opinion
	L. O'Neill	203 Underhill Avenue	Yes
	W. Van Tassel	1721 East 35th Street	Yes
	Axel Bromark	149 St. Marks Avenue	Yes
	F. Koenig	5 Linden Boulevard	Yes
	J. Shulman	155 Riverdale Avenue	Yes
	Ed. Cahill	482 10th Street	Yes
	M. Jacobson	3509 Canal Avenue	Yes
353	Anonymous	Interviewed in front of Half Moon Hotel	Yes
	L. Goodman	3719 Poplar Avenue	Yes
	S. Russo	570 Pacific Street	Yes
	Fred Lehman	4611 Sixth Avenue	Yes
	George Crisp	271 41st Street	Yes
	J. W. Parks	619 Warren Street	No opinion
	Al. Bova	19 Fourth Avenue	Yes
	A. Salc	19 Fourth Avenue	Yes
	J. Germano	19 Fourth Avenue	Yes
	G. Bova	19 Fourth Avenue	Yes
	Louis Gladstein	532 Pacific Street	Yes
	G. Stillwell	126 Terrace Place	Yes
354	L. Endler	333 Bleeker Street	Yes
	A. Russo	19 Fourth Avenue	Yes
	F. D'Antonio	618 Hendricks Street	Yes
	J. Clarke	486 State Street	Yes
	August Trezza	676 DeGroce Avenue	Yes
	Joe Potsdam	596 Atlantic Avenue	Yes
	Max Baslaw	280 Ocean Parkway	Yes
	S. Zegans	139 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
	Frank Pisam	130 Flatbush Avenue	No opinion
	G. Rosenthal	130 Lott Avenue	Yes
	A. Aureiia	1003 40th Street	Yes
	John DeLeo	130 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
	Percy Visconte	1825 West 3rd Street	Yes

Exhibit A, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach 355

Name	Address	Opinion
Gus Resta	1740 44th Street	Yes
Eli Ross	558 Pennsylvania Avenue	Yes
Albert Weissman	526 Pennsylvania Avenue	Yes
Louis Keller	1000 President Street	Yes
A. Silverstein	74 Fifth Avenue	Yes
H. Christie	1239 Dean Street	Yes
Wm. Klein	394 Bergen Street	Yes
Fred B. Roth	1445 75th Street	Yes
Chas. J. Kearney	9281 Shore Road	Yes
Michael Cammaroto	1829 76th Street	Yes
Morris Feiner	239 Prospect Place	Yes 356
Samuel Feiner	1317 East 14th Street	Yes
L. Kaplowitz	433 Dean Street	No opinion
Nathan Cogan	1723 74th Street	No opinion
H. Anargyros	190 East 21st Street	Yes
Sam Takis	310 St. John's Place	Yes
Paul Eliot	234 Bergen Street	Yes
Theodore Levine	1990 Bedford Avenue	Yes
John Quist	82 St. Marks Avenue	Yes
M. Feinstein	693 Crown Street	Yes
J. Abrams	252 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
Frank Sheeron	101 Berkeley Place	Yes
J. Hannon	157 St. Marks Avenue	Yes
Peter Maggio e	648 83rd Street	Yes 357
Michael Pafundi	763 Franklin Avenue	Yes
Michael Kravitch	991 President Street	No opinion
John Martorana	137 Fourth Avenue	Yes
E. J. Duffy	193 St. John's Place	Yes
R. Ziv	285 Prospect Place	Yes
P. Ducato	325 Baltic Street	Yes
F. Hubbard	25 Stratford Road	Yes
John Warren	384 Sterling Place	Yes
J. Walker	918 President Street	Yes
Michael Russell	670 President Street	Yes
Dan Ryan	1 Prospect West	Yes
N. C. Murray	926 President Street	Yes
Thos. Bellafiori	1757 W. 2nd Street	Yes

358 Exhibit A, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach

Name	Address	Opinion
John Greies	764 Union Street	Yes
P. Quinn	349 St. John's Place	No
J. A. Fives	670 Lincoln Place	No opinion
Wm. Lane	611 Vanderbilt Avenue	Yes
L. S. Veck	234 Berkeley Place	Yes
M. Lyons	511 Lincoln Place	Yes
J. H. Edsall	199 Park Place	Yes
Tom Maher	2112 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
G. Cleva	221 Ninth Avenue	Yes
John Dorsey	35 Oakland Street	Yes
359 D. Goldstein	122 Van Buren Street	Yes
Daniel Gerstein	1658 Pitkin Avenue	Yes
J. Deegan	1041 Bergen Street	Yes
Arthur Chayes	85 Monroe Street	Yes
C. Drosopulos	73 Sterling Street	No opinion
Graham Brown	1031 Nostrand Avenue	No opinion
Raymond O'Connor	328 E. 26th Street	No opinion
Chas. Lobine	188 South Second Street	No opinion
Harry Hoffman	1365 Carroll Street	Yes
Thos. Earley	528 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
J. Dunne	510 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
Barnett Rahn	379 East 96th Street	Yes
J. B. Munsell	2312 Voorhies Avenue	Yes
360 H. Dietz	2121 Westbury Court	Yes
H. Zeldis	6681 Flatbush Avenue	Yes
S. Skolnick	181 Clarkson Avenue	No opinion
Miss S. Roth	311 Powell Street	No opinion
J. Pecorella	248 East 26th Street	Yes
Emil Chiappetta	977 Rogers Avenue	Yes
A. Calabro	83 Second Place	Yes
S. J. Davidson	2101 Westbury Court	Yes
F. G. Cameron	105 6th Avenue	Yes
R. Sica	2723 Voorhies Avenue	Yes
Emil Purino	1782 Nostrand Avenue	Yes
V. L. Sica	2723 Voorhies Avenue	Yes
F. J. Healey	60 Clarkson Avenue	Yes

Exhibit B, Annexed to Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach

Name	Address
Meyer Katz	2229 East 24th Street	Yes	Papers and Radio
J. Philipps	533 Ocean Avenue	Yes	Newspapers P. M.
Milton Goldsmith	1307 East 8th Street	Yes	Newspapers Times and Post
M. Rothman	178 Ocean Parkway	Yes	All Papers
J. Centes	540 Ocean Avenue	Yes	Commentators, papers and radio
J. Pecker	90 East 18th Street	Yes	Papers and radio
Dr. Lamkay	416 Ocean Avenue	Yes Wants all racketeers cleared out	Herald Tribune, World Telegram and radio
M. S.	91 South Street	Yes	Comm on sense and Newspapers
Norman Hilford	395 Ocean Avenue	Yes	Times, Post and News
P. Romano	1470 73rd Street	Yes	Times, News and Radio
E. Karchmar	2105 Church Avenue	Yes Because of his record	News, Post, Telegram and Radio
J. Rodskin	540 Ocean Avenue	Yes	World Telegram, Times, News, and Radio
S. Lamberti	1554 Bath Avenue	No opinion	Times and Radio
F. Bramerlow	48 Sterling Place	Yes Takes no stock	Times, Journal-American, News
E. Weisbjerg	1701 Albermarle Road	No Not guilty of murder but for other crimes	Times, World-Telegram, Sun, News, and Radio
F. Panzella	4118 Fort Hamilton	No opinion	Journal, News, and Radio
Dr. Herman Schneider	962 Flatbush Avenue	Yes Because he knows P. D. men on the case	Newspapers Telegram, News and Radio
. Stidle	1638 Coleman Street	Yes	Times, Journal and News and Radio
. Elwell	460 East 38th Street	Yes	All papers and Radio
. Isaacs	2100 Westbury Court	Yes Gangsters	Telegram, Sun, Times and Radio
I. Strom	597 Lefferts Avenue	Yes	Eagle and Telegram
Seidler	216 East 39th Street	Yes	News and P. M.

364

Copy of Indictment

COUNTY COURT

County of Kings

The People of the State of New York,
Plaintiff,

against

365 Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss," Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", James Feraco, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", Louis Capone, Defendants.

The Grand Jury of the County of Kings, by this indictment, accuse the defendants of the crime of murder in the first degree, committed as follows:

366 The defendants on or about September 13, 1936, in the County of Kings, wilfully, feloniously and of malice aforethought, shot and killed Joseph Rosen with revolvers.

William O'Dwyer
District Attorney

Indictment filed May 28, 1940.

John B. Maione,
Foreman

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK
COUNTY OF KINGS

- - - -

- - - -

and determination of this motion.

LET service of a copy of the within papers on the District Attorney of Kings County or one of his assistants or deputies, on or before July 17th, 1941, be deemed sufficient.

Dated, New York, July 17, 1941.

Justice of the Supreme Court

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK
COUNTY OF KINGS

- - - -

- - - -

is my opinion that presumption has been destroyed and in its place we find that each of these defendants are presumptively guilty and will be called upon to establish their innocence.

Unquestionably, it will be urged by opposing counsel that out of the six hundred and fifty names that have been selected as prospective jurors, twelve could be found in this large group, out of which a fair and impartial jury could be composed. But unquestionably, no matter how zealous a person may be to perform his civic duty as a juror, and no matter how honest his answers may be, notwithstanding the fact that he may be able to disregard public opinion and newspapers impressions yet subconsciously, an impression or an opinion cannot be disregarded and that opinion and impression will influence his verdict.

All that I seek at the present time is an opportunity to safeguard the rights of LOUIS CAPONE, and certainly the District Attorney of our county desires that there be no miscarriage of justice in any case and that the right of a defendant be safeguarded. Certainly the rights of the People of the State of New York will be amply safeguarded no matter where this trial is held, but they cannot be safeguarded in the County of Kings because of the notoriety and publicity which this case has, up to the present time, received.

I most respectfully submit that we, the reading public, are duly impressed by what we read in newspapers. We use patent medicines prescribed to us by newspapers only because we believe what we read. We listen to radio broadcasts and when the commodity is advertised in that manner, we purchase said commodity. Millions of dollars a year are spent to promote sales only because manufacturers know the value of advertising. All this holds true even in the trial of an action. Public opinion is created, impressions are created, and finally bias and prejudice is the result; and no matter how honest we may be in our belief that we can se aside these impressions and render a verdict fairly and impartially and solely upon the evidence, that subconscious impression and opinion will naturally influence that verdict.

During the month of June, your deponent made a motion for severance on behalf of his client. This motion was denied but at that time your deponent submitted voluminous excerpts from the New York "Times" publication. These excerpts are now in the files of the County Court of Kings County in the Clerk's office thereof. I am submitting herewith additional clippings from the newspapers, which have been published subsequent to the argument of the motion heretofore mentioned.

If this motion is denied and the defendant is required to stand trial in this county, I believe that the jury will regard my client as presumptively guilty rather than presumptively innocent.

If this motion is denied and the defendant is required to stand trial in this county, I believe that the jury will regard my client as presumptively guilty rather than presumptively innocent.

That I have read the affidavit of HYMAN BARSHEY and the affidavit of BENJAMIN D. ZENBACH, and the exhibits annexed to these affidavits which are submitted in support of the motion for change of venue on behalf of the defendant LOUIS BUCHALTER. I verily believe that the facts set forth in these affidavits and from my knowledge of local opinion, that a fair trial cannot be accorded my defendant tried with the defendant Buchalter in this jurisdiction at any time. I am now more convinced than ever before that the defendant LOUIS CAPONE, whom I represent, if compelled to proceed to trial as a co-defendant of the defendant LOUIS BUCHALTER in this county, cannot receive a fair and impartial trial.

That no prior application for this or any similar relief has been made on behalf of the defendant LOUIS CAPONE.

That this application is made by order to show cause rather than the ordinary notice of motion because the trial of this action is scheduled for the 4th day of August; and for the further reason that I am informed by co-counsel that they have made this motion returnable for the 18th day of July 1941.

Sworn tobefore me this day ofJuly, 1941

6

367

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

COUNTY OF KINGS

In the Matter of the Application of 368

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county.

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.: 369

BURTON B. TURKUS, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I am an assistant district attorney of the County of Kings, in charge of the Homicide Bureau. District Attorney O'Dwyer has assigned me and Mr. Klein to prepare and prosecute the case against the above named defendants.

I have read the affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter submitted in support of his brother's motion for a change of venue. In that affidavit Buchalter's brother asserts that an assistant district attorney, assigned to prosecute the case against Buchalter, made the following statements:

370 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

> "I don't need any evidence or witnesses to try this case, all I need is the indictment and a summation. * * * current prejudice existing in this locality against 371 the defendant, Louis Buchalter, is so strong that the mere making of any charge against him would result in his conviction."

I have been informed by Mr. Klein, who opposed the motion for a change of venue, that upon the argument the accusation was made that it was I who made the above quoted statement to Buchalter's brother.

I never, either in words or substance, made any such statements to Buchalter's brother or 372 anybody else. The accusation that I made those statements is false.

BURTON B. TURKUS.

Sworn to before me this 21st day of July, 1941.

JOHN J. LEE, Notary Public,
Kings County. Kings Co. Clerk's
No. 557, Reg. No. 3248.
Commission Expires March 30, 1943.

373

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

County of Kings

In the Matter of the Application of 374

Louis Buchalter

to remove the trial of the action of The People of the State of New York vs. Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", James Feraco, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", Louis Capone, to another county.

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.: 375

Solomon A. Klein, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is an assistant district attorney of Kings County assigned to assist in the preparation and presentation of the case against the defendants above named.

This affidavit is submitted in opposition to the motion made by three of the defendants, namely, Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", and Louis

376 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Capone, for an order removing the trial of the above entitled action from the County Court of Kings County to the Supreme Court, held in a county outside the City of New York.

The defendant, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", has not made a similar motion nor has he joined in the present motion.

The indictment against all the defendants was filed in the County Court of Kings County on 377 May 28, 1940, charging them with the crime of Murder in the First Degree for the killing of Joseph Rosen, committed in the County of Kings on September 13, 1936.

Your deponent submits that the present motion is completely without merit and is designed solely for the purpose of delay.

When the murder indictment was filed, the defendant Buchalter was serving a 14-year term of imprisonment in the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, under a judgment and sentence of the United States District
378 Court of the Southern District of New York. In accordance with the practice usually followed in such matters, the District Attorney made a request upon the Attorney General of the United States for his consent to the production of Buchalter for trial in Kings County on the aforesaid murder indictment. After extended negotiations, the Attorney General, on April 25, 1941, gave his consent to produce Buchalter for arraignment and trial in Kings County, provided, among other things, that Buchalter should at all times remain in the custody of the United States Marshal of the Eastern District of New

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 379

York until his return to Leavenworth after the conclusion of the trial, and provided further that the expenses of Buchalter's transfer and maintenance for the purpose of standing trial in the County of Kings be paid for by the County.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Attorney General, habeas corpus proceedings were duly instituted and Buchalter, at an expense of over $1,300, was brought from Leavenworth to 380 the Federal Detention Headquarters in New York City. On May 29, 1941, he was arraigned in the County Court, Kings County, where a plea of not guilty was entered on his behalf.

Thereafter, on June 9, 1941, Buchalter sued out a writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, seeking to be transferred back to Leavenworth. In his petition Buchalter contended, among many other things, that the Attorney General had no right to order his removal to New York City for the purpose of standing trial 381 in Kings County and that because of unfavorable newspaper publicity he could not receive a fair trial. On June 19, 1941, the United States District Court dismissed the writ, an opinion being written by Conger, D. J.

The writ having been dismissed, the District Attorney on June 23, 1941, made a motion, pursuant to the provisions of Section 749-aa of the Judiciary Law, for an order directing that the trial be had before a special jury and that the trial date be fixed for July 14, 1941. Upon the argument of the motion, all the defendants consented to a trial by a special jury, but objected to the trial date upon the ground that it would not afford them sufficient time to prepare their defense. Accordingly, an order for the empaneling of a special jury was duly entered on July 2, 1941. Said order directed the drawing of a panel of 250 special jurors and fixed August 4, 1941, as the date for the commencement of the trial. After due and timely notice to the de-383 fendants, the provisions of the said order were duly complied with on July 8, 1941, the Honorable Harry E. Lewis, Justice of the Supreme Court, presiding at the selection of the special panel.

382 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Despite the consent by all the defendants to the selection of a special panel, three of them now seek a change of venue to a county outside the City of New York upon the alleged ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the City of New York. Buchalter's contention is that during the past two years newspapers, radio and 384 magazines have described him "as society's most dangerous enemy," as the "master mind" of all criminals, and as "a vicious racketeer" who not only directed the murder of Rosen but of many others. He argues that this unfavorable publicity has been such as to lead the public to believe that he is guilty not only of the crime charged in the indictment but that he caused other murders to be committed, and therefore concludes that it would be impossible to find anywhere in the City of New York 12 qualified jurors who could give him a fair and and impartial trial.

The defendant, Cohen, does not join in the motion. But the defendants, Weiss and Capone, do join in the motion, their argument being that because of the unfavorable newspaper and radio notoriety received by Buchalter, they, as his co-defendants, would be indirectly affected by the alleged prejudice against Buchalter if they were to be tried together in any county of the City of New York.

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

385

All three defendants suggest that the District Attorney should join in the motion. It cannot 386 be gainsaid that the District Attorney in this County fully realizes that, as a quasi-judicial officer, it is his duty, not only to prosecute and bring about the conviction of those guilty of crime, but also to see to it that justice is done. The right of a defendant charged with crime to a fair and impartial trial—no matter how vicious a criminal he may be—is guaranteed to him by the law of the State. Thus, if facts were presented, showing that the defendants in the instant case could not receive a fair trial in the County of Kings, or that they could receive a fairer trial 387 anywhere outside the City of New York, the District Attorney would readily join in the motion for a change of venue.

The circumstances at bar, however, do not justify such action. We are here confronted with a case where the defendant, Buchalter, because of his criminal activities for many years, has received widespread notoriety as a gangster-chieftain. This publicity has not commenced, as suggested in Buchalter's moving papers, only two years ago. It has long antedated the present murder indictment. An examination of the New

388 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

York Times index concerning Buchalter reveals that the notoriety given to his criminal activities dates back to at least the year 1935.

Nor has this publicity been limited to the City of New York. It is common knowledge that the metropolitan press circulates throughout the country. Even Buchalter admits that he has also received notoriety through the media of the radio and magazines. In this connection, it is significant to note the contents of an affidavit dated June 5, 1941, and submitted to the County Court of Kings County by the attorney for the co-defendant, Capone, on a motion for a separate trial upon the ground that the publicized criminality of Buchalter would prevent Capone from receiving a fair trial. In that affidavit, Capone's attorney stated:

389

> "The condition which your deponent refers to is one that has been created by the newspapers in the metropolitan area and circulated throughout this county, state and nation. * * * The defendant Louis Buchalter, alias Lepke, is a person of national prominence * * *, whose career has been painted from coast to coast as the ruler of a criminal empire."

390

This is the affidavit of the attorney for one of the co-defendants. It is thus safe to say that there is no reason to believe that the defendants would receive a fairer trial in any county outside the City of New York than would be given to them in Kings County.

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

391

At this point the Court's attention is called to the affidavit submitted on this motion by Buchalter's brother. He states that an assistant district attorney, whose name he fails to mention, informed him that he was assigned to try this case. He further alleges that the assistant district attorney stated:

> "I don't need any evidence or witnesses to try this case, all I need is the indictment and a summation. • • • Current prejudice existing in this locality against the defendant, Louis Buchalter, is so strong that the mere making of any charge against him would result in his conviction."

392

The statements just quoted are false. They were never made. Your deponent and Assistant District Attorney Burton B. Turkus, whose affidavit is annexed hereto, have been the only assistant district attorneys assigned to the preparation and trial of the case against Buchalter. Neither he nor your deponent ever uttered, in words or substance, the statements above quoted. It is apparent from the very wording of the alleged statements that they were concocted to bolster Buchalter's attempt to delay his trial for the murder of Rosen.

393

Of decisive importance is the fact that the argument made on behalf of the defendants completely disregards the law governing the situation. The orderly administration of justice, which requires that a trial be held in the county where the crime was committed, should not be disrupted, unless it affirmatively appears that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in that county. As was said in the famous case of People v. Sharp, where a motion for a change of venue was denied (5 N. Y. Crim. Rep. 155 at p. 158):

394 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

395 "The normal condition of things is to try the accused by a jury drawn from the vicinage. Speculations, doubts and possibilities should not cause a deviation from this fundamental rule. Before it is suspended on a particular indictment, defendant must make out a clear and convincing case that by reason of popular passion or prejudice he cannot have a fair trial in the county."

The foregoing rule has been consistently fol-
396 lowed by our courts (People v. Sullivan, Sup. Ct., Kings Co., N. Y. L. J., Dec. 15, 1911, per Kapper, J.: aff'd 150 App. Div. 911; People v. Hyde, 75 Misc. Rep., 407-409, per Lehman, J.: aff'd 149 App. Div., 431; People v. Hines, 168 Misc. Rep. 453, per Pecora, J.).

Tested by this salutary standard, the defendant's motion papers fall far short of establishing justifiable cause for a change of venue. The contention of the defendants rests upon the speculations and surmises of their counsel and the report of a hired investigator, Benjamin D.

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

397

Fernbach. The affidavit of this investigator alleges that in three days he interviewed 200 persons in the Borough of Brooklyn and that he asked them the following questions:

1. Will this country enter the war?

2. Is Lepke guilty or not guilty of murder?

398

3. Will democracy survive this war?

He further reports that of the 200 persons thus questioned 164 stated without reservation that, in their opinion, the defendant Buchalter was guilty, that 34 stated that they had no opinion, and that two said that he was not guilty. This investigator also notes in Exhibit B of the moving papers that the opinions of the persons questioned were based upon reports made by newspapers and the radio.

Your deponent submits that the affidavit of the hired investigator is worthless. It does not present any facts justifying the conclusion that 12 qualified jurors could not be found to give the defendants a fair trial. The question propounded by the investigator to the persons he interviewed was misleading and in no way designed to determine whether the persons interviewed could preside fairly and impartially as jurors in the case. The proper question should have been so worded as to determine whether or not the person interviewed if called as a juror

399

400 could decide the merits of the case on the facts alone, uninfluenced by newspaper and radio accounts. This was not done apparently for the reason that it would be difficult to find intelligent citizens who would be unable to preside as fair and impartial jurors without and prejudice because of impressions derived from the newspapers.

401 Indeed, it would be a sad commentary upon the intelligence and integrity of the citizens of Kings County if, out of its population of approximately two and one-half million people, 12 men could not be found among the qualified jurors to give the defendants a fair and impartial trial and decide the case on the evidence, uninfluenced by newspaper stories.

Experience teaches us that such is not the situation. In the much publicized case of People v. Hines, the pre-trial newspaper accounts, concerning the alleged corrupt and criminal alliance of Hines with the underworld, were much more 402 constant and voluminous than the newspaper items printed with reference to the case at bar. In answer to the contention that because of such publicity Hines could not receiv a fair and impartial trial in New York County, Justice Pecora said (168 Misc. Rep. 453, at p. 470):

> "Any resident in this county must recognize the fact that it has a most cosmopolitan population, eminently fair and tolerant in its sentiments. That its people are capable of using discrimination in the formation and exercise of their individual judgment has often been demonstrated at the polls where they have voted in large majorities against predominating newspaper opinion and exhortation."

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

403

Justice Pecora's observation is equally applicable to the citizens of Kings County. In People v. Sullivan (Sup. Ct. Kings County) (N. Y. L. J., Dec. 15, 1911, aff'd. (2nd Dept.) 150 App. Div. 911), a motion was made for a change of venue because of prejudicial newspaper publicity. In denying the motion, Judge Kapper wrote:

404

"I find myself unable to conclude that in this large county * * * a jury of fair minded and reasonable men cannot be obtained who will determine the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendant upon the evidence, and upon the evidence alone."

405

Recent experience substantiates Judge Kapper's conclusion. In three highly publicized cases, the jurors in this county, although surrounded by newspaper accounts showing strong feeling against the defendants, have not been swayed thereby and have rendered verdicts of "not guilty." (People v. George W. Martin; People v. Police Lieutenant Behan; People v. Alexander Baldwin).

Our law gives to a defendant accused of murder a wide latitude in examining the qualifications of the individual prospective juror. A defendant is provided with 30 peremptory challenges and an unlimited number of challenges for cause (Code Crim. Pro., Sec. 373). There are thus ample means to select from the various walks of life fair-minded, intelligent and unbiased judges of the facts, who can discern and can divorce themselves from the impressions or opinions received through the medium of newspapers. So thoroughly is this recognized that 407 it is provided in Section 376 of the Code of Criminal Procedure that

406 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

> "the previous expression or formation of an opinion or impression in reference to the guilt or innocence of the defendant, or a present opinion or impression in reference thereto, is not a sufficient ground of challenge for actual bias, to any person otherwise legally qualified, if he declares on oath, that he believes that such opinion or impression will not influence his verdict, 408 and that he can render an impartial verdict according to the evidence and the court is satisfied that he does not entertain such a present opinion or impression as would influence his verdict."

Furthermore, where the subject matter of the indictment or the issue to be tried "has been so widely commented upon" in the press "that an ordinary jury cannot without delay and difficulty be obtained to try such issue", the defendant or the district attorney may apply for a special jury (Judiciary Law, section 749-aa, subd. 4). This was done in the instant case and consented to by all the defendants. Subdivision 2 of the Statute cited affords ample protection against the selection of any juror who may be biased because of newspaper comments. It provides that:

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 409

> "No person shall be selected as such special juror * * * who doubts his 410 > ability to lay aside an opinion or impression formed from newspaper reading or otherwise, or to render an impartial verdict upon the evidence, uninfluenced by any such opinion or impression * * *."

In this connection, the opinion of Clarke, P. J., in People v. Brindell (1st Dept.) (194 App. Div. 776), is quite apt here. Judge Clarke stated at page 781:

> "If newspaper articles furnished ground 411 > for removal, no defendant could ever be tried in New York County for a spectacular crime. If the defendant's fears in the case at bar are justified, we would not know to what county his trial should be transferred, as the metropolitan press circulates through the entire state. The busy residents of New York City are too much interested in their own affairs to be so impregnated with casual news accounts as to render them unfit for jury duty. The jury list is large, the special jurors are selected with care. We are satisfied from past experience that there will be little difficulty in securing in New York County a fair and impartial jury."

412 Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

In concluding this affidavit, it is to be remembered that the removal of the trial to a distant community outside the City of New York would entail great delay and great expense. It would 413 necessitate the transfer of practically half of the District Attorney's staff. It would also endanger the safety of the People's witnesses, who are being kept under constant guard by police officers. This protection of witnesses has been made necessary by virtue of the fact that Buchalter and his hirelings have been responsible for the murder of many prospective witnesses against him. Indeed, Rosen, for whose murder Buchalter is presently charged, was killed because he was a prospective witness against him.

For the foregoing reasons deponent respect-
414 fully prays that the motion for a change of venue should be denied.

SOLOMON A. KLEIN.

Sworn to before me this 21st day of July, 1941.

JOHN J. LEE, Notary Public,
Kings County, Kings Co. Clerk's
No. 557, Reg. No. 3248.
Commission expires March 30, 1943.

415

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

County of Kings

In the Matter of the Application of 416

Louis Buchalter

to remove the trial of the action of The People of the State of New York vs. Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", James Feraco, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", Louis Capone, to another county.

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.: 417

Hyman Barshay, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

I submit this affidavit in answer to the affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, sworn to the 21st day of July, 1941.

Mr. Klein states (page 2) that this application for a change of venue is "completely without merit and is designed solely for the purpose of delay." He says also that the newspaper notoriety with which the defendant Buchalter is burdened has been so sweeping and has covered so great a period of time, that it is not to be assumed that a fairer trial could be had outside the City of New York than can be obtained within it.

418 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

This application is not made for the purpose of delay. It is true that on behalf of the defendant, Buchalter, the jurisdiction of the County Court to try him has been contested. That contest involves serious questions of law
419 which, however, have not been raised in the State Court because they are properly justiciable only in the Federal Court. The District Attorney can be assured and is hereby assured that there is no connection between this application for a change of venue and any effort on the part of the defendant, Buchalter, to delay the trial of this action. There is no demonstration by the District Attorney that there is any such connection. An Assistant District Attorney partakes of the quasi judicial status of his superior. (See page 4, affidavit of Mr. Klein)
420 Mr. Klein's affidavit is somewhat lacking in the quasi judicial aspects of his office when he states that an application is made solely for the purpose of delay and has no proof to support that statement.

Reference is made to the fact that no objection was interposed to the application by the District Attorney for the trial of this action by a special jury. When that application was made, the District Attorney also sought an order placing the case on the Calendar for trial on July 14, 1941. That aspect of the motion only was contested and the County Judge who heard the application saw merit in the opposition of the defendants and set the case down for trial on August 4, 1941, three weeks after the date sought by the District Attorney. It is not said in so many words, but Mr. Klein seeks to create the impression that the failure to contest that aspect of the motion which sought a special jury, in some undefined manner constituted a waiver of the right to make this application. The argument is not defined be- 422 cause it could not be logically articulated. The defendants were not required to contest the application for a special jury and their failure so to do has nothing to do with the merits of this application.

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 421

The burden in the opposing affidavit is that there is a failure of scientific demonstration, that it is impossible for the defendant Buchalter to obtain a fair trial in Kings County. But it has never been required that a defendant make such demonstration of mathematical formulae or scientific propositions. It is the purpose of the 423 law to assure each defendant a fair trial. (People v. Diamond, 36 Misc. 71, at pages 75-79) All that need be shown is that there is reason to apprehend that a fair trial cannot be had in what the cases refer to as the "vicinage." If that be shown, then discretion ought be exercised by the granting of the application for a change of venue. It is not enough, as the answering affidavit seeks to convey, to justify a denial of the application, merely to show that possibly a fair trial can be obtained. In People v. McLaughlin, 150 N. Y. 365, at page 379, the Court of Appeals said,

424 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

"That jurors are sometimes prejudiced, and courts may be unconsciously biased to the injury of one of the parties, must be admitted. Prejudice is often an insuperable barrier to the fair and impartial administration of the law. Its influence is subtle, insidious and often unconsciously warps the judgment and blinds the intelligence of those surrounded by its 425 atmosphere. But its presence can usually be discovered only from the circumstances and conditions which produce it. In discussing this question in another case it was said: 'But there cannot well be any serious misapprehension as to the existence of facts (showing prejudice against the defendant), especially where they are of a public nature. The principal question is as to the inferences to be drawn from them. It (the trial) is the very thing which the law seeks to avoid, when 426 it is seen that the party may, and probably will be drawn into a trial by a jury, who, under an influence of which they may themselves be hardly conscious—an influence which, perhaps, no human sagacity can detect—may pronounce a verdict against him, and conclude his rights forever. Above all, would it be dangerous to require that he should risk his trial by a panel selected from a community already sought to be influenced by the course of the press: that very panel being personally appealed to by the opposite party's > own press, or one put in motion by him, or by some other person.' (People v. Long Island R. R. Co., 4 Parker's Crim. R. 602, 604; People v. Webb, 1 Hill, 179.)"

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 427

In People v. Nathan, 139 Misc. 345, the Court said:

> "The right thus given to defendants is a substantial one, and follows the fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence that every person accused of a crime is entitled to a fair and impartial trial before an unprejudiced jury. Obviously, it is not within the realm of possibility to determine, with mathematical accuracy, the existence of prejudice or the extent thereof. It has been held, therefore, that the true test is not the mere possibility of selecting an apparently unprejudiced jury, but whether from the circumstances of a particular case, there is a strong probability that bias exists in the community where the indictments are pending. (People v. Webb, 1 Hill, 179; People v. McLaughlin, 150 N. Y. 365.) Each case must stand on its own merits, and in these cases it must be determined from the surrounding circumstances whether there is probable reason to believe that a fair and impartial trial cannot be had in the county where the venue is laid.
> • • •
>
> It is not reasonable to reject the inference that these circumstances in combination must have left an impression on the public mind. Neither the action of the press, the proceedings of the district attorney, nor the actions of those concerned with political issues can be justifiably criticised. Each within its proper sphere performed a legitimate public function, but the fact remains that this peculiar 431 combination of circumstances created an atmosphere which is not conducive to a fair and impartial trial. The average taxpayer, always sensitive about matters of taxation, may well have concluded that the frauds charged were a direct assault on his pocketbook, nor would assurances, as to a recovery of money lost, necessarily remove such impression. The evidence revealed by the committee was certainly not calculated to soothe the feelings of the irate taxpayer, and he may well

428

429

432 have been convinced from such evidence that those named were in fact guilty. A voluminous mass of form affidavits has been submitted by the defendants to establish their contentions in this respect, and the district attorney has countered by submitting an equally voluminous mass of affidavits to prove the contrary. Proof through the very uncertain medium of affidavits is invariably unsatisfactory, but in these cases the circumstances themselves lend color to the defendants' claim and are heavily in their favor.

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

433

For reasons less grave than those enumerated the places of trial of actions, merely civil in their nature, have been changed (Barnes v. Roosevelt, 164 App. Div. 540; Niven v. Stoddard, 225 id. 705). In his opinion in the case of People v. McLaughlin (supra) Judge Martin said: 'That jurors are some times prejudiced, and courts may be unconsciously biased to the injury of one of the parties, must 434 be admitted. Prejudice is often an insuperable barrier to the fair and impartial administration of the law. Its influence is subtle, insidious and often unconsciously warps the judgment and blinds the intelligence of those surrounded by its atmosphere. But its presence can usually be discovered only from the circumstances and conditions which produce it. In discussing this question in another case it was said: "But there cannot well be any serious misapprehension as to the existence of 435 facts (showing prejudice against the defendant), especially where they are of a public nature. The principal question is as to the inference to be drawn from them. It (the trial) is the very thing which the law seeks to avoid, when it is seen that the party may, and probably will be drawn into a trial by a jury, who, under an influence of which they may themselves be hardly conscious—an influence which, perhaps, no human sagacity can detect—may pronounce a verdict against him, and conclude his rights forever."

436 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

To the same effect is People v. Becker, 135 Misc. 471.

Where it is established that the community is "practically a unit" in concluding that the defendant is guilty, a proper exercise of discretion dictates the granting of the application for a 437 change of venue. So, in People v. Hyde, 149 App. Div. 131, at page 134, the Appellate Division of the First Department said:

"Whether or not the application should be granted is to be determined by the wise exercise of judicial discretion, and each case must be decided upon its own facts. Of course there can be no certainty established in regard to such a future event. It is enough if the court can find that in all human probability such a condition exists.
438 In People v. Georger (109 App. Div. 111) Mr. Presiding Justice McLennan said: 'Without going into detail as to the character of the opinions expressed, all to the effect that the defendant was culpable and wholly responsible for the difficulties in which the bank was involved, it is sufficient to say that by the quotations from the public press contained in the record, from the opinions of parties interested, assembled to consider the situation, from the expressions of citizens who met and casually discussed the matter, it would seem that the community was practically a unit in concluding that the defendant had been guilty of serious wrongdoing and which resulted in or caused the failure of the bank.'

439

If this court was satisfied that a fair and impartial jury could not be obtained in the county of New York to try the defendant upon the indictment found against him, 'that the community was practically 440 a unit in concluding' him guilty, it would be its duty—and it would not hesitate—to reverse the order appealed from and grant the motion for a change of venue."

Public hatred generated by newspaper comment is in and of itself a sufficient reason to conclude that a fair trial cannot be had in a particular locality and that, therefore, the trial should be removed to another county. As to that Mr. Justice Giegerich said in People v. Diamond, 36 Misc. 75: 441

"The fairness of a trial should be above and beyond suspicion, and no court should allow a trial by a jury of a vicinage the general opinion and belief of which, upon the matters involved in such a trial, either party has industriously, through newspapers, sought to form. To do this would simply encourage parties, in advance of actual trial, to create prejudice and bias, in the hope of benefit to follow from a legal investigation before men, some of whom,

442 Answering Affidavit of Human Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

at least, might have obtained their views and judgments of a cause elsewhere than in the court room.' (Moulton v. Beecher, 52 How. Pr. 18.)

The possibility of selecting a jury in the county which would be apparently unprejudiced, is not the test of such an application as this, for where there is a general sentiment adverse to the party on trial,
443 and a strong probability that bias exists throughout the community, he should not be compelled to take the risk of coming before a jury whose members, or some of whom, are influenced by adverse sentiments which may be undiscovered in the course of examination, or which, indeed, may be not fully appreciated by the jurors themselves. (See People v. Webb, 1 Hill, 179.)

Although support may be found in certain of the earlier decisions in this State
444 for the proposition that before such an application as this should be granted the impossibility of obtaining a jury should be demonstrated by an actual attempt and failure to obtain one (Bowman v. Ely, 2 Wend. 250; Messenger v. Holmes, 12 id. 203), the later and better decisions repudiate it. (People v. Webb, supra; People v. Long Island R. R. Co., 16 How. Pr. 106; Budge v. Northam, 20 id. 248; People v. McLaughlin, 150 N. Y. 365, 380.)

Indeed, the obtaining of a jury apparently impartial, would seem to be the very danger against which this provision of the statute is intended to shield a defendant. Against obvious prejudice, such as can be made to appear upon the record, courts can protect; but this statute is designed to protect against that other prejudice which is the more dangerous because unconscious and not capable of discovery. As was said by Cowen, J., sitting with Nelson, Ch. J., in People v. Webb, supra, 446 at p. 184: 'To make such an experiment essential, would seem to be quite dangerous. It (the trial) is the very thing which the law seeks to avoid, when it is seen that the party may, and probably will be drawn into a trial by a jury, who, under an influence of which they may themselves be hardly conscious—an influence which perhaps no human sagacity can detect—may pronounce a verdict against him, and conclude his rights forever. Above all, would it be dangerous to require that he 447 should risk his trial by a panel selected from a community already sought to be influenced by the course of the press; that very panel being personally appealed to by the opposite party's own press, or one put in motion by him, or by some other person.' This language was quoted with approval by the Court of Appeals in People v. McLaughlin (150 N. Y. 365, 379), in which case the court further said in this point: 'That jurors are sometimes prejudiced, and courts may be unconsciously biased to > the injury of one of the parties, must be admitted. Prejudice is often an insuperable barrier to the fair and impartial administration of the law. Its influence is subtle, insidious and often unconsciously warps the judgment and blinds the intelligence of those surrounded by its atmosphere. But its presence can usually be discovered only from the circumstances > 449 and conditions which produce it.' "

445

448 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

In the same case Mr. Justice Giegerich said with respect to highly publicized issues:

> "There is one other consideration on this branch of the case which I am led to advert to by the following pertinent observation made by Strong, J., in People v. Baker, (3 Park Cr. 181, 195): 'During an experience of many years I do not remember a verdict in a criminal case, in opposition > 450 to a strong public sentiment previously entertained and generally known. If that should be erroneous, and it sometimes is, it will probably lead to an unjust verdict. If there should be a divided sentiment, it would result in a disagreement, and the trial thus prove abortive.' "

In the Diamond case, the same argument was made as is made here to the effect that because certain persons were acquitted by jury, it was to be assumed that everyone else could expect a fair trial in the county. Mr. Justice Giegerich

451

(36 Misc. 76) indicates the fallacy of that argument. There is no connection between the public furor against this defendant, Buchalter, and other persons, who, presumed to have been innocent at the time they were indicted, were found to be innocent by a jury. The learned Assistant District Attorney states in his affidavit (page 7) that the affidavit of Fernbach submitted in support of this motion is worthless. People v. Hyde, 149 App. Div. 131, demonstrates the contrary.

452

The suggestion that under Section 376 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, a prospective juror is competent if he can state under oath that he can lay aside antecedent opinion and that, therefore, it is to be assumed that twelve such persons can be assembled in the Kings County Court to give the defendant, Buchalter, a fair trial, is fallacious. It misses the point of the remarks of the Court in People v. McLaughlin, 150 N. Y. at 379. The mere expression of a supposed ability to lay aside a judgment already formed, does not eliminate that judgment from the mind of the juror.

453

In opposing this application, the learned Assistant District Attorney says:

> "This protection of witnesses has been made necessary by virtue of the fact that Buchalter and his hirelings have been responsible for the murder of many prospective witnesses against him. Indeed, Rosen, for whose murder Buchalter is presently charged, was killed because he was a prospective witness against him."

454 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Of a less inflammatory statement, it was said in People v. Lucas, 131 Misc. 664, at page 668:

"In addition to what has been said, there appears to be an attitude on the part of the assistant district attorney, who 455 has charge of the case, which is hardly in keeping with the calm and deliberate administration of the law which every defendant is entitled to in a criminal case. In one of the affidavits filed he has gone entirely beyond the charge made against the defendant, and has presented statements connecting the defendant with the commission of another crime, the presentation of which could have been made with no other purpose than to prejudice the court against the defendant on this motion.
456 In another affidavit he charges the defendant, or persons on his behalf, with attempting to intimidate witnesses, and charged the defendant's counsel with having made an effort to pay certain moneys to witnesses if they would decline to appear and testify against the defendant. The court is satisfied that no improper methods were used by defendant's counsel in obtaining a statement from the complaining witness and that his conduct of the case has been ethical in all respects despite criminations and recriminations on both sides. The zeal of advocacy may be carried beyond the bounds of proper professional conduct that is to be expected of a prosecuting officer. And, finally, he asks to have the case sent to another justice on the ground that the justice before whom the motion is made has prejudged the case. The motion came on before a justice who had out of a sense of duty, passed upon the various motions, in this acrimonious prosecution, as the attorney saw fit to bring them on at Special Term, and, because of his connection with the case, he had been charged with having prejudged the motion to change the place of trial. These matters are referred to as showing the animus of the assistant district attorney and as bearing upon the question whether a fair and impartial trial can be had in Monroe county. The only fair and reasonable conclusion upon the evidence before me, based upon the decisions of the courts on similar motions, is that, in the interests of justice, the defendant should be tried in a county where he will not be met by the atmosphere that would surround him in a trial in the county of Monroe. (People v. Long Island R. R. Co., 4 Park. Cr. 602; People v. Diamond, 36 Misc. 71; People v. Georger, 109 App. Div. 111; People v. Jackson, 114 id. 597; People v. Ryan, 123 Misc. 450; Barnes v. Roosevelt, 164 App. Div. 540; People v. McLaughlin, 150 N. Y. 365.)"

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

457

458

459

460 Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

There are less important errors in Mr. Klein's affidavit. He states that he and Mr. Turkus are the only persons assigned in the preparation of the trial of this case. At the same time, he says that the case should not be removed because to do so would require the transfer of one half the staff of the District Attorney's office. Both statements cannot be true. Neither is important if a demonstration has been made that 461 there is reason to apprehend that a fair trial cannot be accorded the defendant in Kings County at this time.

It is respectfully submitted that a fair trial cannot be accorded that defendant in this County and that that proposition has been demonstrated so far as it is possible to demonstrate it short of an experimental trial. An experimental trial is not a needed requirement to the making of this application. People v. Ryan, 123 Misc. 450.

HYMAN BARSHAY

462

Sworn to before me this 24th day of July, 1941.

IRIS MORRISON, Comm. of Deeds
New York City. Comm. exp. Feb. 11, 1943.

463

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

COUNTY OF KINGS

In the Matter of the Application of 464

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county.

State of New York
County of New York } ss.: 465

JESSE CLIMENKO, being duly sworn, deposes and says: I am a member of the firm of Wegman & Climenko, attorneys for the defendant, Louis Buchalter.

I submit this affidavit in support of an application for the removal of the trial of this action from the County Court of Kings County, to the Supreme Court held in another county outside the City of New York.

There is annexed to this affidavit a series of articles published by the Daily Mirror. This application is occasioned by the publication of that series of articles.

466 Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

The Daily Mirror is a newspaper having a circulation which is counted in hundreds of thousands.

For several days prior to August 25, 1941, the Mirror published a special announcement to the effect that beginning on August 25, 1941, it would publish a series of articles for the exclu-467 sive attention of its Brooklyn readers, devoted to the defendant Louis Buchalter. On August 25, 1941, and daily thereafter, it proceeded to publish the articles which are annexed as an exhibit hereto.

These publications were made against the following background:

The indictment herein charges the defendants with the murder of one Joseph Rosen on September 13, 1936.

The indictment was filed on May 28, 1940. The defendant Buchalter was then and continues
468 now to be a prisoner in the custody of the Attorney General of the United States. In May, 1941, upon the request of the District Attorney of Kings County, he was transferred from the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, to the Federal House of Detention in New York City. He was caused to appear in the County Court of Kings County and instructed to plead to the indictment. Upon advise of counsel he remained mute and a plea of not guilty was entered on his behalf at the direction of the Court. He continues to contest the jurisdiction of that Court; and this application is not to be construed as a waiver of that contest.

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 469

Subsequently, upon the request of the District Attorney of Kings County, the trial of this action was set for July 14, 1941, and later adjourned by a Judge of the County Court of Kings County to August 4, 1941.

The District Attorney's application for the empanelment of a special jury was granted prior to August 4, 1941, and was unopposed by the 470 defendant Buchalter.

On August 4, 1941, the action was called for trial at a Part of the County Court of Kings County before Judge Taylor. Of the 256 talesmen comprising the special panel, about 230 were present in the Court on that morning.

The Court devoted itself on August 4, 1941, to listening to excuses of those members of the panel who did not want to serve because service would interfere with their own vacation schedule or the vacations of business associates. About 120 such excuses were offered. 471

Presumably, approximately 100 talesmen were ready to serve at that time if accepted as jurors.

Nevertheless, on August 5, 1941, the Court announced that the trial would be adjourned because in the opinion of the Court it was impossible then to obtain a jury to hear the case. No defendant requested that adjournment.

Counsel for this defendant requested the Court at that time to proceed with the case then or to adjourn the trial until a day in November after the municipal elections.

472 Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

The Court adjourned the trial to September 15, 1941, and said in substance that it could not adjourn the case to a date subsequent to the municipal elections because to do so would be a tacit admission that the administration of justice might conceivably be subordinated to the exigencies of a political campaign and, of course, that concept was impossible.

Counsel for this defendant excepted to the 473 Court's ruling.

During the course of colloquy which proceeded between the Court and counsel for the various defendants, the attorney for the defendant, Weiss, the Hon. Alfred Talley, urged the Court to adjourn the trial until the end of the election campaign for the reason that a trial held during the midst of the campaign would of necessity be held at a time when a jury might be influenced against the defendants and in favor of the prosecution, and that for the simple reason that the District Attorney of Kings County was the demo-
474 cratic nominee for Mayor. Counsel for this defendant joined in that request. In urging that contention, Mr. Talley submitted to the Court a copy of the New York Journal American of that date, which included one of a series of articles purporting to constitute a factual biographical record of the democratic nominee. There will be submitted upon the argument of this motion as an exhibit to be appended to these papers, photostatic copies of all of the articles making up the series thus published by the Journal American.

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

475

In rejecting Mr. Taliey's suggestion that the mere publication of these articles might prejudice a jury against the defense and in favor of the prosecution, the Court said in substance, and there is no pretense here that the statement is given verbatim, although this is the true substance of it, that the series of articles then being currently published by the Journal American would have been completed long before the middle of September and, therefore, counsel need not be concerned about them.

476

Since that time and beginning on August 25, 1941, the Mirror has begun and now continues publication of those articles devoted to the alleged career of the defendant, Buchalter, of which complaint is now made. This series is not completed as of the time of the dictation of this affidavit. The text of the articles indicates that the series will con inue perhaps to the date now set for the trial of this action. The articles are obviously intended to reach a climax and that climax will be a discussion of the murder alleged to have been committed according to the allegations of this indictment. Upon the argument of this motion, all of the articles constituting the series and then actually published will be submitted to the Court. There is no other way of bringing this matter to the Court's attention because there is no way of knowing when the series will end, and if this application were suspended until the completion of the series, probably it could not be made until after September 15, 1941, and if it were done in that way, the District Attorney would undoubtedly assert that it was tardily made.

477

478 Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

These articles are prejudicial and inflammatory. They completely destroy the possibility that a fair trial can be accorded the defendant Buchalter. They are of a type of journalism which defies adequate characterization. They assert that the defendant has been guilty of twenty-seven murders and they assure the public 479 of his guilt at the same time that they depict the past inability of public officials to prosecute him. They vest the defendant Buchalter with leadership over a notorious group of murderers. They describe him as one who profited to the extent of countless millions of dollars from criminal activities. By subtle effective statements, they assume his guilt of the murder charged by this indictment.

I do not pretend by this reference to the contents of these articles to have done justice in describing the degree of their prejudicial and in-480 flammatory character. I assert that it is impossible because they are without parallel. I assume that I am under no obligation to characterize them since they are submitted as an exhibit to the Court and since I believe that the Court itself will gauge the expected harm which must come to the defense from their publication.

Thus it appears that the assurance of the County Court that the prejudicial publications of the Journal American would be forgotten by September 15, 1941, was unfortunately unfounded. The Journal American and the New York Mirror are newspaper properties of the same owner.

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

481

The offense against the administration of public justice which was initiated by the glorification of the prosecution is continued by the unprecedented denunciation of a defendant under circumstances which indicate that the denunciation will be continued until the opening day of the trial as set by the County Court. It is frequently said in opposition to these applications when they centre about the publication of inflammatory matter, that it would be idle to grant them and for the 482 reason that the circulation of the metropolitan newspapers is not limited to the City of New York. Irrespective of the value of that argument, the fact is that frequently metropolitan newspapers are distributed beyond the confines of New York City, but that contention cannot be made here. These articles are published in an edition which is printed exclusively for the residents of Kings County. You cannot buy a copy of the Mirror which carries this series unless you buy it in Brooklyn. They are set forth on a page which is devoted only to the residents of Brooklyn. The rest of the page is made up of the 483 printing of a gossip column devoted exclusively to the activities, political and amatory, of residents of Kings County. That column printed under the name of Edward Zeltner has, as I am informed, a substantial number of readers. Mr. Zeltner was first and still is a sports reporter and there are many citizens of Brooklyn who read his gossip column. So, the Mirror's special dish for residents of Brooklyn is made up of the Zeltner column and the series of which complaint is made by this motion.

484 Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Presumably, in a sterner jurisdiction, the publication of these articles would expose the publisher and the author to summary contempt proceedings. In England, no one would dare publish anything like it. In Massachusetts so far as I know, they could not be published without the certainty that the publisher and author would be dealt with by the imposition of summary punishment. But such is the condition of the law in the 485 State of New York that the defendant has no relief from it except by an application for a change of venue. The County Court cannot interfere with the publication of these articles. No one can in advance order the suppression of the publication of any matter unless perhaps it be an incitement against the government during the period of war. The County Court cannot issue a warrant in a contempt proceeding because these articles are not the reports of a current proceeding.

For these reasons, the only relief which any Court can give the defendant is that of ordering 486 the venue of the action to be transferred to a Court, outside of the City of New York. The reasons for granting that application will be found in the articles themselves.

This application is made by order to show cause for the reason that it is impossible to give the ordinary notice of motion in view of the fact that the articles published by The Mirror were being currently published and counsel desired, of necessity, to suspend the making of the application until the nature of the articles might be discerned as they were published.

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

487

No prior application for this or any similar relief has been made except that a prior application for a change of venue was made on behalf of the defendant, Buchalter, at a Special Term, Part 1, of this Court held before Mr. Justice Daly. That application was made upon the ground that other publications had resulted in general hostility against that defendant on the part of the residents of King County. That application was made prior to the publication of 488 the series of articles now complained of. There is annexed hereto a copy of the order made by Mr. Justice Daly denying that application and also a copy of the opinion of Mr. Justice Daly on that application.

JESSE CLIMENKO

Sworn to before me this 8th day of September, 1941.

JULIAN BUCHBINDER
Attorney and Counsellor at Law
60 Wall Street
Residing in Bronx County
Bronx Co. Clk's. No. 15 Reg. No. B-43-18
Certificate filed in N. Y. Co. Clk's. No. 73, Reg. No. 3-B-908
Kings Co. Clk's. No. 7, Reg. No. 3035
Commission Expires March 30, 1943.

489

490

Copy of Indictment

COUNTY COURT

County of Kings

The People of the State of New York,
Plaintiff,

against

491 Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss," Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", James Feraco, Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", Louis Capone, Defendants.

The Grand Jury of the County of Kings, by this indictment, accuse the defendants of the crime of murder in the first degree, committed as follows:

492 The defendants on or about September 13, 1936, in the County of Kings, wilfully, feloniously and of malice aforethought, shot and killed Joseph Rosen with revolvers.

William O'Dwyer
District Attorney

Indictment filed May 28, 1940.

John B. Maione,
Foreman

493

Opinion of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter)

"The defendant moves for a change of venue to a county outside of the City of New York for the trial of an indictment for murder in the first degree filed against him by the Grand Jury of Kings County on May 28, 1940, upon the ground that a fair and impartial trial cannot be obtained in this county or in this city.

"Upon a motion by the District Attorney for an order directing the trial before a special 494 jury on July 14, 1941, the moving defendant, as well as the defendants, Weiss and Capone (who seek similar relief in separate motions), consented to a special jury and objected solely to the trial date inasmuch as it would not permit sufficient time to prepare. An order was duly entered on July 2, 1941, directing the drawing of a panel of 250 special jurors and fixing August 4, 1941, as the date of the commencement of the trial. Upon due notice, said order was complied with on July 8, 1941, by the selection of a special panel. 495

"After a careful consideration of the application herein, the court is of the opinion that there is no merit thereto. The papers do not establish by convincing proof that the defendant, by reason of prejudice or passion, cannot obtain a fair trial in this county. Great stress is placed by the defendant upon the notoriety given him by newspapers and radio. It is evident, however, that such notoriety was not confined to the metropolitan press, which circulates throughout the country, and certainly was not limited to radio listeners in the City and State of New York. 'If newspaper articles furnish ground for removal, no defendant could ever be tried * * * for a spectacular crime,' in the county of indictment. (People v. Brindell, 194 App. Div. 776.)

"The affidavit of the investigator to the effect that in a period of 3 days, he interviewed 200 persons in Kings County is of little probative force. Three questions were propounded, two 497 of them wholly unrelated to the defendant. The third was as follows: 'Is Lepke guilty or not guilty of murder?' It is claimed that one hundred sixty-four persons stated that he was guilty; two that he was not; and thirty-four had no opinion one way or the other. Even if a poll of this character could properly be considered upon this application, the Court is of the opinion that the question propounded was misleading and did not reflect whether the persons interviewed could preside fairly and impartially as jurors in the case who must reach their con-
498 clusion on facts established on the witness stand alone, uninfluenced by impressions derived from newspapers or other sources. It is inconceivable that in a cosmopolitan community such as Kings County, with a population of over two million people, a jury cannot be found, qualified to fairly and impartially try the defendant on the evidence.

"Under all the circumstances, therefore, the application is in all respects denied."

PETER M. DALY,
J. S. C.

499

Order of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter)

At a Special Term, Part I, of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of Kings, at the Court House thereof, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 1 day of August, 1941.

Present: Hon. PETER M. DALY, Justice. 500

In the Matter of the Application of

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county. 501

The above named defendant, Louis Buchalter, having applied to this court for an order granting a change of venue of the trial of this action, and the said application having duly come on to be heard on the 18th day of July, 1941,

Now on reading and filing the order to show cause, issued out of this court on the 16th day of July, 1941, the affidavits of Hyman Barshay, duly verified the 16th day of July, 1941, and the

502 Order of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter)

24th day of July, 1941; the affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, duly verified the 16th day of July, 1941; the affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, duly verified the 15th day of July, 1941; submitted in support of said order to show cause; the affidavits of Solomon A. Klein and Burton B. Turkus, both duly verified the 21st day of July, 1941, submitted in opposition to said application, and upon all other papers and proceed-
503 ings had herein, and after hearing Hyman Barshay, Esq., of counsel for the defendant, in support of said application, and Solomon A. Klein, assistant district attorney, in opposition thereto, and upon filing the opinion of the court and due deliberation having been had, it is on motion of William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County,

ORDERED that the said motion be and the same hereby is in all respects denied.

Enter:

504

PETER M. DALY
J. S. C.

Granted Aug. 1, 1941.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk

At a Special Term, Part I, of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of Kings, at the Court House thereof, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 1st day of August, 1941.

PRESENT:

HON. PETER M. DALY

Justice.

- - - -

The above named defendant, Louis Capone, having applied to this court for an order granting a change of venue of the trial of this action, and the said application having duly come on to be heard on the 18th day of July, 1941,

Now, on reading and filing the order to show cause, issued out of this court on the 17th day of July, 1941; the affidavit of Leon Fischbein, duly verified the 17th day of July, 1941, and a copy of the indictment, No. 23855, submitted in support of the said order to show cause; the affidavits of Solomon A. Klein and Burton Turkus, both duly verified the 21st day of July, 1941, submitted in opposition to said application, and upon all other papers and proceedings had herein, and after hearing Leon Fischbein, Esq., of counsel for the defendant, Capone, in support of said application, and Solomon A. Klein, assistant district attorney, in opposition thereto, and upon filing the opinion of the court and due deliberation having been had, it is on motion of William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County.

ORDERED that the said motion be and the same hereby is in all respects denied.

ENTER

Peter M. Daly

Granted

August 1st, 1941.
Francies J. Sinnott
Clerk

505

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

COUNTY OF KINGS

In the Matter of the Application of 506

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county.

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.: 507

BURTON B. TURKUS, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he is Chief of the Homicide Bureau of the District Attorney's office of Kings County, assigned to the preparation and presentation of the case against the defendants above named.

This affidavit is submitted in opposition to the motion made by defendant, Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", for an order removing the trial of the above entitled action from the County Court of

508 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Kings County to the Supreme Court, held in a county outside the City of New York.

The defendants, Emanuel Weiss, Philip Cohen and Louis Capone, have not made a similar motion, nor have they joined in the present motion.

The indictment against all the defendants was filed in the County Court of Kings County on May 28, 1940, charging them with the crime of Murder in the First Degree for the killing of 509 Joseph Rosen, committed in the County of Kings on September 13, 1936.

Your deponent submits that the present motion to transfer the trial beyond the limits of the City of New York is without merit. This is the second time that the defendant, Buchalter, seeks a change of venue. On July 18, 1941, a similar motion was made in the Supreme Court which was heard by Justice Daly. On that motion Buchalter's contention was that during the past two years newspapers, radio and magazines have described him "as society's most danger-510 ous enemy," as the "master mind" of all criminals, and as a "vicious racketeer" who not only directed the murder of Rosen but of many others. Buchalter contended that this unfavorable publicity was such as to lead the public to believe that he was guilty not only of the crime charged in the indictment, but that he caused other murders to be committed. He, therefore, contended that it would be impossible to find anywhere in the City of New York, 12 qualified jurors who could give him a fair and impartial trial.

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 511

In an attempt to support his contentions, there was submitted to Justice Daly voluminous exhibits, consisting of photostatic copies of news items appearing in various newspapers. Justice Daly denied the motion and wrote an opinion, a copy of which is annexed to the moving papers. In that opinion Justice Daly said, in part, the following:

> "After a careful consideration of the 512 > application herein, the court is of the opinion that there is no merit thereto. The papers do not establish by convincing proof that the defendant, by reason of prejudice or passion, cannot obtain a fair trial in this county. Great stress is placed by the defendant upon the notoriety given him by newspapers and radio. It is evident, however, that such notoriety was not confined to the metropolitan press, which circulates throughout the country, and certainly was not limited to radio listeners 513 > in the City and State of New York. "If newspaper articles furnish the ground for removal, no defendant could ever be tried • • • for a spectacular crime," in the county of indictment. (People v. Brindell, 194 App. Div. 776) • • •"

The present motion is in substance an attempt to re-argue the motion made before Justice Daly. The defendant, Buchalter, does not present any additional proof to justify a different decision. He merely submits additional newspaper arti-

514 cles of recent origin which, he claims, are of such a nature as to preclude the selection of a fair and impartial jury in Kings County. One series of articles submitted as an exhibit appeared in the New York Journal-American describing the life of William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County. These articles, Buchalter contends, have tended to "glorify" the District Attorney and, therefore, would op-
515 erate to Buchalter's detriment. The other series of articles submitted as an exhibit have been appearing in the New York Daily Mirror (Brooklyn section). A reading of these articles shows that they consist of nothing more than a restatement of what has already been said about Buchalter in many newspapers for at least the past five years.

An examination of the New York Times index concerning Buchalter reveals that the notoriety given to his criminal activities dates back to at least the year 1935. Nor has this publicity been 516 limited to the City of New York. It is common knowledge that the metropolitan press circulates throughout the country. Buchalter has also received notoriety through the media of the radio and magazines. His notoriety has been state and nation wide. There is thus no basis for asserting that Buchalter can receive a fairer trial outside the limits of the City of New York than he can receive in Kings County.

Furthermore, our law gives the defendant accused of murder a wide latitude in examining the qualifications of prospective jurors. A defendant is provided with 30 peremptory challenges and an unlimited number of challenges for cause. (Code of Crim. Proc., Sec. 773.)

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Where the subject matter of the indictment or the issue to be tried "has been widely commented upon" in the press so "that an ordinary jury cannot without delay and difficulty be obtained to try such issue," the defendant or the District Attorney may apply for a special jury (Judiciary Law, Sec. 749-aa, Subd. 4). This was done in the instant case and consented to by all the defendants. Subdivision 2 of the statute cited affords ample protection against the selection of any juror who may be biased because of newspaper comments. It provides that:

> "No person shall be selected as such special juror * * * who doubts his ability to lay aside an opinion or impression formed from newspaper reading or otherwise, or to render an impartial verdict upon the evidence, uninfluenced by any such opinion or impression * * *."

There are thus ample means to select from the various walks of life fairminded, intelligent and unbiased judges of the facts, who can divorce themselves from impressions or opinions received through the medium of newspapers and render judgment on the evidence, uninfluenced by newspaper accounts. As was said by Justice Daly in denying the prior motion:

> "It is inconceivable that in a cosmopolitan community such as Kings County,

520 Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) with a population of over two million people, a jury cannot be found qualified to fairly and impartially try the defendant on the evidence."

For the foregoing reasons, your deponent respectfully submits that the motion for a change of venue should be denied.

521 BURTON B. TURKUS

Sworn to before me this 10th day of September, 1941.

ROBERT J. BURT

ROBERT J. BURT
Notary Public, Kings County
Kings County Clks. No. 770, Reg. No. 3319
Commission Expires March 30, 1943.

522

523

Order of Mr. Justice Brennan Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter)

At a Special Term, Part 1 of the Supreme Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at the Court House thereof, Fulton and Joralemon Streets, Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 22 day of September, 1941.

524

Present: Hon. PHILIP A. BRENNAN, Justice.

In the Matter of the Application of

LOUIS BUCHALTER

to remove the trial of the action of THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK vs. LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "Lepke", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "Mendy Weiss", HARRY STRAUSS, alias "Pittsburgh Phil", JAMES FERACO, PHILIP COHEN, alias "Little Farvel", LOUIS CAPONE, to another county.

525

The above named defendant, Louis Buchalter, having applied to this court for an order removing the trial of the indictment herein from the County Court of Kings County to the Supreme Court, held in another county outside of the City of New York, and the said application having duly come on to be heard on the 10th day of September, 1941,

526 Order of Mr. Justice Brennan Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter)

Now on reading and filing the order to show cause issued out of this court on the 8th day of September, 1941; the affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Esq., duly sworn to the 8th day of September, 1941, submitted in support of said application; the affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, duly sworn to the 10th day of September, 1941, submitted in opposition thereto, and upon all other papers and proceedings had herein, and after 527 hearing Jesse Climenko, Esq., attorney for the defendant in support of said application, and Burton B. Turkus, assistant district attorney, in opposition thereto, and due deliberation having been had, and upon filing the opinion of the court, it is on the motion of William O'Dwyer, District Attorney of Kings County, ORDERED that the said application be and the same hereby is in all respects denied.

Enter:

528 P. A. BRENNAN
J. S. C.

Granted Sep. 22, 1941

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk

Memorandum Opinion of Taylor, C. J., Adjourning Trial

529

This jury situation is unprecedented. It is practically a run out. The reason for it may be reluctance to give protracted service during the hottest month of the year. There is merit in that position. To arbitrarily combat it would smack of coercion and would tend to undermine that quality of jury service which is essential for a fair trial of this case. The court will grant the motion for a continuance of the trial until after Labor Day, but it cannot go over until after election as that would subordinate the trial to the exigencies of a political campaign, which is unthinkable. No prejudice can come from trying the case before election, because sensibly no juror will be influenced by his political views in deciding the question of guilt or innocence in a capital case.

530

"The trial is continued until September 15, 1941. The August term of Part 2 of this court is continued for that and for all other purposes of the trial.

531

"Decision is reserved on all pending applications for excuse from jury service. All members of the jury panel are directed to return on September 15, 1941, in this part at 10 a.m. The prisoners are remanded. This action has no relation to the personal convenience of the court, as the court will remain in session for the trial of other cases throughout the summer.

"The jurors are urged to withdraw their objections and to serve willingly on the date fixed. Should a new panel be desired all counsel for the defense should agree."

532

Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 4th. day of August 1941.

Present: Hon. Franklin Taylor. County Judge.

533

The People of the State of New York

against

Louis Buchalter alias Lepke.
Emanuel Weiss alias Mendy Weiss.
Philip Cohen. alias Little Farvel.
Louis Capone.
James Feraco Not Present.

Indict No: 23855
Murder First Degree.
534 Special Panel of Jurors.

Appearances. People &c

Burton B. Turkus. Sol A. Klein. Louis Josephs.

Appearances for Defendants.

Jesse Climenko. Bertram Wegman. Hyman Barshay. for Buchalter.

Minutes of Trial 535

JAMES I. CUFF. ALFRED J. TALLEY. M. M. KRIENDLER. for Weiss.
LEON FISHBEIN. EMANUEL ROSENBERG. SIDNEY ROSENTHAL. for Capone.
SAUL PRICE. for Cohen.
THOMAS F. DARCY. JULIA McGOWEN. Stenographers.

The District Attorney moves this indictment for trial.

Preliminary motions by defense counsel. 536

The Court so orders, the following named juror Woolsey W. Conlon 711 E. 24th St. was called and placed in box not examined or sworn. all application for excuse to be passed upon August 5th. 1941.

Trial continued August 5th. 1941.

A true extract from the minutes

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT.
Clerk.

537

538 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 5th day of August 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from August 4th, 1941. all ap-539 pearances noted. Juror Woolsey W. Conlon. called, not examined or sworn.

Motion by District Attorney and all counsel

Case adjourned until September 15th, 1941. Jurors ordered to return at that date.

The August term of Part 2. of this Court, is continued for that and for all other purposes of this trial.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT.
Clerk.

540

Minutes of Trial 541

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 15th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from August 5th. 1941 all appearances noted. the juror heretofore drawn but unsworn. appears and answers to the call of his name. Motion by Saul Price for a separate trial 542 as to defendant Philip Cohen. motion consented to by Mr. Turkus. motion granted. remanded. motion by Mr. Turkus for a severance as to defendant James Feraco defendant not present. motion granted.

Examination of jurors proceed.

Trial continued September 16th. 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, 543 at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 16th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 15th. 1941. all appearances noted.

Examination of jurors continued.

Motion by Mr. Rosenthal for an adjournment until September 18th. 1941. because said counsel is ill.

Motion granted.

544 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 18th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 16th. 1941.
All appearances noted.
Examination of jurors continued.
545 Trial continued September 19th. 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 19th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 18th, 1941.
All appearances noted.
546 Examination of jurors continued.
Morris Leibowitz. accepted tentatively
Examination of jurors continue.
Trial continued September 24th. 1941

Minutes of Trial 547

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 24th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 19th. 1941.
All appearances noted.
Examination of jurors continued.
Charles E. Stevens. accepted tentatively not 548 sworn.
Examination of jurors continue.
Trial continued September 25th. 1941

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 25th. day of September 1941.

549

Trial continued from September 24th. 1941.
All appearances noted.
Trial of jurors continued.
Trial continued September 26th, 1941

550 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 26th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 25th. 1941. All appearances noted.

Examination of jurors continued.

551 Trial continued September 29th. 1941

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 29th day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 26th, 1941. All appearances noted.

552 Examination of jurors continued.

Benjamin Protter, accepted tentatively not sworn.

Examination of jurors continued.

Trial continued September 30th, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 553

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 30th. day of September 1941.

Trial continued from September 29th, 1941.
All appearances noted.
Examination of jurors continued, tentatively jurors appear and answer to their names. 554
Examination of jurors continued.
Trial continued October 2nd, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 2nd day of October 1941.

Trial continued from September 30th, 1941. 555
All appearances noted.
Examination of jurors continued.
Charles T. Prentice, accepted tentatively not sworn.
Examination of jurors continued.
Trial continued October 3rd, 1941.

556 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 3rd. day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 2nd, 1941. All appearances noted.

Examination of jurors continued.

557 Trial continued October 6th, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 6th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, Country Judge.

558 Trial continued from October 3rd, 1941. Defendants personally present.

All appearances noted. The jurors placed in the box but not sworn.

Charles A. Murphy, placed in box as tentative juror. No. 3.

Examination of jurors continues.

Jurors admonished. Trial continued October 7th, 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

Minutes of Trial 559

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 7th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 6th. 1941. All appearances noted. 560

3 tentative jurors appear and answer to their names.

Examination of jurors continued.

No. 4 David M. Day accepted by both sides as tentative juror not sworn.

Examination of jurors continued.

No. 5 Henry T. Gill accepted by both sides as tentative juror not sworn.

Examination of jurors continued.

Trial continued tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock jury admonished.

561

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk.

562 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 8th day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 7th. 1941. All
563 appearances noted.

Tentatively accepted jurors appear and answer to their names. Examination of jurors continued.

No 6. James A. Cummings. Tentatively accepted.
No 7 George B. Hall Tentatively accepted
No 8 Philip Stroker Tentatively accepted.

Trial continued to October 9th. 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

564

Minutes of Trial 565

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 9th day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 8th. 1941. All appearances noted.

Tentatively accepted jurors all appear and answer to their names. 566

Examination of jurors continued.

No 9. Harold T. Cross. Tentatively accepted.

Original panel exhausted Court orders additional panel to report October 14th. 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, 567 at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 10th day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR County Judge.

Trial continued from October 9th. 1941. All appearances noted.

Tentatively jurors accepted all appear and answer to their names.

Examination of jurors continued.

Panel exhausted.

Trial continued October 14th. 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk

568 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 14th. day of October 1941.

Additional panel of special jurors present.
Trial continued from October 10th, 1941.
All appearances noted. Tentatively jurors all appear and answer to their names.

569 Arthur G. Jaeger, 3545 89th St., Jackson Heights, Queens Co. U. S. Marshall. Sworn.
Examination of jurors continued.
No. 10, John D. Butt. Tentatively accepted.
Trial adjourned until October 15th, 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings,
570 at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 15th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 14th, 1941. All appearances noted. The tentatively accepted jurors all appear and answer to their names.
Examination of jurors continued.
Trial continued October 16th, 1941.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

Minutes of Trial 571

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 16th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 15th, 1941. All appearances noted. The tentatively accepted jurors all appear and answer to their names. 572
Examination of jurors continued.
No. 11, James L. Edghill tentatively accepted.
Juror No. 8, Phillip Strober excused by consent of all counsel.
No. 11, John J. Rorke, tentatively accepted.
Examination of jurors continued.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

573

574 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 17th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 16th, 1941. All
575 appearances noted. All tentatively. Jurors appear and answer to their names.

No. 9, John D. Butt, juror No. 9, on consent of all counsel.

No. 11, William C. Links tentatively accepted.

The following jurors were duly drawn, empanelled, accepted and sworn and now constitute the jury to decide the issue.

1 Charles E. Stevens.	7 George B. Hall.
2 Chester T. Prentice.	8 Harold S. Cross.
3 Charles A. Murphy.	9 James R. Edghill.
4 David M. Day.	10 John J. Rorke.
576 5 Henry T. Gill.	11 Wm. C. Links.
6 James B. Cummings.	12 John E. Coleman.

Examination of jurors continued.

Carl M. Gilt, alternate juror.

George K. Ormond, alternate juror.

Trial continued October 20th, 1941.

Jury and alternates to be furnished with lodgings and refreshments.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

Minutes of Trial 577

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 20th. day of October 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

Trial continued from October 17th, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore 578 duly sworn all appear and answer to their names.

Opening to the jury on behalf of the People &c.

Counsel for all defendants waive opening to the jury.

Peoples witnesses. Sworn.

Estelle Rosen. 345 Wyona St. Sworn.

Harry Regenbonger. 451 Miller Av. Sworn.

Louis Stamler. 720 Sutter Av. Sworn.

Gieglielmo Cappadora 17733 M. C. S. Sworn.

Dr. Edward Marten. 152 Lenox Rd. Sworn.

Trial adjourned until October 21st, 1941. 579

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

580 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 21st day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 20, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore duly sworn, all appear and answer to their 581 names.

Peoples Witnesses:

Dr. M. Edward Marten. Recalled.

Frederick W. Walsh Shield 809 123 Squad Ballistic Bureau. Sworn.

George V. Dumont Shield 1631 Homicide Squad Sworn.

Emil Schaefer Shield 1163 Ballistic Bureau Sworn.

Herman Schiesser 123-19 85 Ave., Richmond Hill, L. I. Sworn.

Hirsh Merlis 166 Orchard St., New York. Sworn.

582 Hirsh Merlis continued.

John J. McGowan Homicide Squad Sworn.

Samuel Pearl 298 E. 45 St. Sworn.

Henry G. Nelson Shield 12154 Traffic K Sworn.

William S. King Shield 972 75 Squad Sworn.

Henry F. Butts Shield 824 Ballistic Bureau Sworn.

Minutes of Trial 583

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 21 day of October 1941.

Peoples Witnesses:

Max Kaufman 1801 1st St., Peoria, Ill. Sworn. 584

William R. Jarvis Shield 479 75 Squad Sworn.

Trial continued to October 22, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 22nd day of October 1941.

585

Trial continued from October 21, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses:

Simon P. Ambraz U. S. Army, Camp Upton, N. Y. Sworn.

Abraham Waxman 1167 Wilmohr St. Sworn.

Harold E Rosen 1611 Perkionem Ave., Reading, Pa. Sworn.

Harold E Rosen continued

Hyman W Barran 135-21 229 St., Laurelton, L. I. Sworn.

Trial continued to October 23, 1941.

586 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 23 day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 22, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

587 Peoples witnesses: continued

Hyman W Barron continued

Anthony O DeSario 610 Ovington Ave. Sworn.

Sylvia R Greenspan 401 Schenectady Ave. Sworn.

Trial continued to October 24, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City
588 of New York, on the 24 day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 23, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jurors sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses:

Sylvia R Greenspan continued

Sylvia R Greenspan continued

Sol Bernstein Half Moon Hotel Sworn

Trial continued to Monday, October 27, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 589

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 27 day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 24, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jurors sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses: Continued 590

Sol Bernstein Continued

Sol Bernstein Continued

Trial continued to October 28, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 28 day of October 1941.

591

Trial continued from October 27, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued

Sol Bernstein Recalled

Sol Bernstein Recalled

Trial continued to October 29, 1941.

592 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 29 day of October 1941.

Trial continued from October 28, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to the 593 call of their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued

Sol Bernstein Recalled

Trial adjourned to October 30, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 30 day of October 1941.

594

Trial continued from October 29, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to the call of their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued.

Sol Bernstein recalled.

Sol Bernstein recalled.

Trial continued to October 31, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 595

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 31 day of October, 1941.

Trial continued from October 30, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names. 596

Peoples witnesses:

Max Rubin address refused Sworn

Max Rubin recalled

Trial continued to November 3, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 3 day of November, 1941. 597

Trial continued from October 31, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued.

Max Rubin recalled

Trial continued to November 5, 1941.

598 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 5 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 3, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to their 599 names.

Peoples witnesses: continued.

Max Rubin recalled.

Trial continued to November 6, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 6 day of November, 1941.
600

Trial continued from November 5, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to the call of their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued

Max Rubin recalled

Max Rubin recalled

Trial continued to November 7, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 601

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 7 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 6, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury heretofore sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names. 602

Peoples witnesses: continued.

Max Rubin recalled.

Edward C Maguire 122 E 42 St, New York Sworn

Paul Berger Bossert Hotel, Sworn

Paul Berger recalled

Trial continued to November 10, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 10 day of November, 1941. 603

Trial continued from November 7, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses: continued.

Paul Berger recalled

Paul Berger recalled

Trial continued to November 12, 1941.

604 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 12 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 10, 1941.
All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.
605 Peoples witnesses: continued
Paul Berger recalled.
Paul Berger recalled.
Albert Tannenbaum address refused Sworn
Trial continued to November 13, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 13 day of 606 November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 12, 1941.
All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.
Peoples witnesses:
Albert Tannenbaum recalled
Albert Tannenbaum recalled
Max Rubin recalled
Trial continued to November 14, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 607

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 14 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 13, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses: 608

Max Rubin recalled.

Seymour Magoon 608 Pennsylvania Ave. Sworn

Trial continued to November 15, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 15th day of November, 1941. 609

Trial continued from November 14th, 1941. All appearances noted. The jurors sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Peoples witnesses.

Seymour Magoon. Recalled.

Seymour Magoon. Recalled.

Albert E Amen 2171 Eastwood Ave., Chicago, Ill. Sworn

Trial continued to November 17, 1941.

610 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 17 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 15, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

611 Peoples witnesses: continued

Albert A Amen recalled.

Joseph Bell 743 West Courthouse, Kansas City, Mo. Sworn

James C Ryan 90 Church St., New York Sworn

Thomas J Wynne 2667 Morris Ave., Bronx Sworn

People rest.

Motion by Mr. Climenko on behalf of defendant, Buchalter, for dismissal of indictment and verdict of Not Guilty. Denied.

612 Same motion by Mr. Talley for defendant Weiss. Denied.

Same motion by Mr. Rosenthal on behalf of defendant, Capone. Denied.

Defendant Buchalter's witnesses:

John J Fegan 5503 31 Ave., Woodside, L. I. Sworn.

Henry H Eisenberg 152 Belleview St., Elizabeth, N. J. Sworn.

Trial continued to November 18, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 613

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 18 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 17, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Defendant Buchalter's witnesses: continued. 614

Henry H Eisenberg recalled

Larry H Cooper 1602 Ave. P., Brooklyn, N. Y. Sworn

Michael J. Monz 6414 99 St., Queens Village, L. I. Sworn

Nat Sobler 170 Bay 29 St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Sworn

Nat Sobler continued.

Ellsworth Baker Monticello, N. Y. Sworn

Carl Shapiro 2301 Springdale Ave., Baltimore, Md. Sworn

Trial continued to November 19, 1941. 615

616 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 19 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 18, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

617 Defendant Buchalter's witnesses: continued.

Carl Shapiro recalled

Carl Shapiro recalled

Trial continued to November 21, 1941.

618

Minutes of Trial 619

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 21 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 19, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Defendant Buchalter's witnesses: continued. 620

Carl Shapiro recalled

William W Kleinman, Camp Wheeler, Ga. Sworn

The witness, testifying for defendant, Weiss, taken out of order.

Carl Shapiro recalled

John J Canevari 2401 Cortelyon Road Sworn

Defendant Buchalter rests.

Defendant Weiss's witnesses:

Harry Cohen 32 Glenmore Ave., Sworn

Harry Cohen recalled 621

Sidney Weiss 10 Monroe St., New York City Sworn

Trial continued to November 22, 1941.

622 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 22 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 21, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their na .es.

623 Defendant Weiss's witnesses: continued.

Sidney Weiss recalled

Sidney Weiss recalled

Samuel Weiss 10 Monroe St., New York Sworn

Dorothy Isaacson 148 Clinton St., New York Sworn

Trial continued to November 24, 1941.

624

Minutes of Trial 625

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York on the 24 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 22, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Defendant Weiss's witnesses: continued 626

Blanche Weiss 10 Monroe St., New York Sworn

Blanche Weiss recalled

He'en A Hazley 871 Pavonia Ave., Jersey City Sworn

L a Weiss 10 Monroe St., New York Sworn

T al continued to November 25, 1941.

627

628 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 25 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 24, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

629 Defendant Weiss rests.

Defendant Capone rests.

Peoples witnesses: in rebuttal

James P Malone Shield 1797 Manhattan G. J. Squad Sworn

John J. Whalen 1746 Manhattan G. J. Squad Sworn

Vanse Newman 55 Pierrepont St. Sworn

People rest.

Motion by Mr. Climenko on behalf of defendant Buchalter for dismissal of indictment and direction of verdict of not guilty. Denied.

630 Same motion by Mr. Talley; for Weiss. Denied.

Same motion by Mr. Rosenthal for Capone. Denied.

Trial continued to November 26, 1941.

Minutes of Trial 631

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 26 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 25, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Mr. Barshay sums up for Buchalter. 632

Trial continued to November 27, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 27 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 26, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names. 633

Trial adjourned to November 28, 1941, on account of the illness of Judge Taylor.

634 Minutes of Trial

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 28 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 27, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

635 Summation by Mr. Talley for defendant Weiss.

Summation by Mr. Rosenthal for defendant Capone.

Trial continued to November 29, 1941.

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 29 day of November, 1941.

636

Trial continued from November 28, 1941.

All appearances noted. The jury sworn in the case all appear and answer to their names.

Summation by Mr. Turkus for the People.

Charge to the jury by the Court.

The two alternate jurors discharged in accordance with section 358a of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

The jury retire to deliberate, in custody of Officers Fitzsimmons, Meek, Frawley and Lehritter and Captain Gannon, who were first duly sworn.

Minutes of Trial 637

At a term of the County Court, held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 30 day of November, 1941.

Trial continued from November 29, 1941.

All appearances noted.

Returning into Court the jury in the presence of the three defendants and their counsel, answer 638 to the call of their names and say they find all three defendants guilty of Murder in the first degree.

Mr. Barshay moved that the jury be polled. Jury polled.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT,
Clerk.

639

640

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Buchalter

At a Term of the County Court held in and for the County of Kings, at 129 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

Present: Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge.

641

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "LEPKE".

#22855

642 Indicted for Murder, First Degree, and convicted thereof, as charged, by the verdict of a jury on November 30th, 1941.

Being personally present and sworn says: My true name is Louis Buchalter; I am 44 years of age; I was born in New York City; I reside at 427 West Street; I am retired; I am married; I can read and write; I am a Public School graduate; I am a Hebrew, irregular attendant; my mother is living; I am temperate; I do not use drugs; asked as to previous convictions, the defendant remained mute.

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Buchalter 643

The defendant and his counsel being present and the defendant being asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the law should not be pronounced against him, and he having nothing to say, the Court pronounced judgment as follows:

WHEREUPON, it is Ordered and Adjudged by the Court that the said Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", for the murder in the first degree of 644
Joseph Rosen, whereof he is convicted, be and he hereby is sentenced to the punishment of death, and that within ten days from this date, the Sheriff of the County of Kings deliver the said Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", together with the Warrant of this Court, to the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, where he shall be kept in solitary confinement until the week beginning with Sunday, January 4th, 1942, and that upon some day within the week so appointed the Agent and Warden of the said Sing Sing State Prison, at Ossining, shall 645 do execution upon him, the said Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", in the mode and manner prescribed by law.

A true extract of the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
(Seal) Clerk.

646

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Buchalter

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

647 LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "LEPKE".

#23855

Death Warrant

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.:

To the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York:

648 WHEREAS, at a trial term of the County Court held in and for the County of Kings on the 4th and 5th days of August, 1941, the 16th, 18th, 19th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 29th and 30th days of September, 1941, and the 2nd, 3rd, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st days of October, 1941, and the 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 21st, 22nd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 28th, 29th, and 30th days of November, 1941, the above named Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke", was put upon his trial for the murder of Joseph Rosen committed in the County of Kings on or about the 13th day of September, 1936, and upon said trial the said Louis Buchalter, alias "Lepke" having been found guilty of murder in the first degree on November 30th, 1941, for the killing of the said Joseph Rosen, and on the 2nd day of December, 1941 having been sentenced to be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942.

NOW, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the execution of the said sentence be done upon the said Louis Buchalter, alias, "Lepke" by you, the said Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York, in the manner provided by law, on such day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942 as you shall determine, and within the walls of your said prison or inclosure thereto adjoining

WITNESS my hand at the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, County of Kings aforesaid on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANKLIN TAYLOR
County Judge of Kings County.

Given under my hand and attested by the seal of the said Court this 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
(Seal) Clerk.

652

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Emanuel Weiss

At a Term of the County Court held in and for the County of Kings, at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

Present: Hon. Franklin Taylor, County Judge.

653

The People of the State of New York

against

Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss".

#23855

654 Indicted for Murder, First Degree, and convicted thereof, as charged, by the verdict of a jury on November 30th, 1941.

Being personally present and sworn says: My true name is Emanuel Weiss; I am 35 years of age; I was born in New York City; I reside at 427 West Street, Manhattan; I am a salesman; I am married; I can read and write; I have had a Public School education, 6th grade; I am Jewish, irregular attendant; my mother is living; I am temperate; I do not use drugs; I have previously been convicted of two Misdemeanors and one Felony.

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 655

The defendant and his counsel being present and the defendant being asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the law should not be pronounced against him, and he having nothing to say, the Court pronounced judgment as follows:

WHEREUPON, it is Ordered and Adjudged by the Court that the said Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", for the murder in the first de- 656
gree of Joseph Rosen, whereof he is convicted, be and he hereby is sentenced to the punishment of death, and that within ten days from this date, the Sheriff of the County of Kings deliver the said Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", together with the Warrant of this Court, to the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, where he shall be kept in solitary confinement until the week beginning with Sunday, January 4th, 1942, and that upon some day within the week so appointed the Agent and Warden of the said Sing Sing State Prison, at 657
Ossining, shall do execution upon him, the said Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", in the mode and manner prescribed by law.

A true extract of the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk.

(Seal)

658

Death Warrant against Defendant Emanuel Weiss

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

659 EMANUEL WEISS, alias "MENDY WEISS".

#23855

Death Warrant

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.:

To the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York:

660 WHEREAS, at a trial term of the County Court held in and for the County of Kings on the 4th and 5th days of August, 1941, and the 16th, 18th, 19th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 29th and 30th days of September 1941, and the 2nd, 3rd, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st days of October, 1941, and the 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 21st, 22nd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 28th, 29th and 30th days of November, 1941, the above named Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", was put upon his trial for the murder of Joseph Rosen committed in the County of Kings on or about the 13th day of September, 1936, and upon said trial the said Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss" having been found guilty of murder in the first degree on November 30th, 1941, for the killing of the said Joseph Rosen, and on the 2nd day of December, 1941 having been sentenced to be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942: 662

Death Warrant against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 661

Now, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the execution of the said sentence be done upon the said Emanuel Weiss, alias "Mendy Weiss", by you, the said Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York, in the manner provided by law, on such day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942 as you shall determine, and within the walls of your said prison or inclosure thereto adjoining.

663

WITNESS my hand at the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, County of Kings aforesaid on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANKLIN TAYLOR
County Judge of Kings County.

Given under my hand and attested by the seal of the said Court this 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
(Seal) Clerk.

664

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Capone

At a Term of the County Court held in and for the County of King., at 120 Schermerhorn Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

Present: Hon. Franklin Taylor, County Judge.

665

The People of the State of New York.

against

Louis Capone.

#23855

666 Indicted for Murder, First Degree, and convicted thereof, as charged, by the verdict of a jury on November 30th, 1941.

Being personally present and sworn says: My true name is Louis Capone; I am 44 years of age; I was born in Naples, Italy; I reside at 2780 Stilwell Avenue; I am a restaurant owner; I am married; I can read and write; I am a Public School graduate; I am a Catholic, regular attendant; my father is living; I am temperate; I do not use drugs; I have never previously been convicted of a Felony or a Misdemeanor.

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Capone 667

The defendant and his counsel being present and the defendant being asked if he had anything to say why the judgment of the law should not be pronounced against him, and he having nothing to say, the Court pronounced judgment as follows:

WHEREUPON, it is Ordered and Adjudged by the Court that the said Louis Capone, for the murder in the first degree of Joseph Rosen, 668 whereof he is convicted, be and he hereby is sentenced to the punishment of death, and that within ten days from this date, the Sheriff of the County of Kings deliver the said Louis Capone, together with the Warrant of this Court, to the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison, at Ossining, where he shall be kept in solitary confinement until the week beginning with Sunday, January 4th, 1942, and that upon some day within the week so appointed, the Agent and Warden of the said Sing Sing State Prison, at Ossining, shall do execution upon him, the said Louis Capone, in the mode and manner pre- 669 scribed by law.

A true extract from the minutes.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
Clerk.

(Seal)

670

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Capone

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

against

671 LOUIS CAPONE.

#23855

Death Warrant

State of New York }
County of Kings } ss.:

To the Agent and Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York.

672 WHEREAS, at a trial term of the County Court held in and for the County of Kings on the 4th and 5th days of August, 1941, and the 16th, 18th, 19th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 29th and 30th days of September, 1941, and the 2nd, 3rd, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 27th, 28th, 29th, 30th and 31st days of October, 1941, and the 3rd, 5th, 6th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 13th 14th, 15th, 17th, 18th, 19th, 21st, 22nd, 24th, 25th, 26th, 28th, 29th and 30th days of November, 1941, the above named Louis Capone, was put upon his trial for the murder of Joseph

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Capone 673

Rosen committed in the County of Kings on or about the 13th day of September, 1936, and upon said trial the said Louis Capone having been found guilty of murder in the first degree on November 30th, 1941, for the killing of the said Joseph Rosen, and on the 2nd day of December, 1941 having been sentenced to be put to death in the manner provided by law on some day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942.

NOW, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the execution 674 of the said sentence be done upon the said Louis Capone, by you, the said Warden of Sing Sing State Prison at Ossining, New York, in the manner provided by law, on such day in the week beginning the 4th day of January, 1942 as you shall determine, and within the walls of your said prison or inclosure thereto adjoining.

WITNESS my hand at the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, County of Kings aforesaid on the 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANKLIN TAYLOR 675
County Judge of Kings County.

Given under my hand and attested by the seal of the said Court this 2nd day of December, 1941.

FRANCIS J. SINNOTT
(Seal) Clerk.

676

Case and Exceptions

COUNTY COURT

KINGS COUNTY

PART II

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK against 677 LOUIS BUCHALTER, alias "LEPKE", EMANUEL WEISS, alias "MENDY WEISS" and LOUIS CAPONE, Defendants.	Indictment No. 23855. Murder, First Degree.

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 20, 1941.

Before—Hon. FRANKLIN TAYLOR, County Judge, and a Special Jury.

678

APPEARANCES:

For the People:

Hon. WILLIAM O'DWYER,
District Attorney,
By BURTON B. TURKUS, Esq.,
SOLOMON A. KLEIN, Esq.,
LEWIS JOSEPH, Esq.,
Assistant District Attorneys.

679

For the Defendant Buchalter:

HYMAN BARSHAY, Esq.,
BERTRAM WEGMAN, Esq.,
JESSE CLIMENKO, Esq.

For the Defendant Weiss:

ALFRED J. TALLEY, Esq.,
JAMES I. CUFF, Esq.,
M. M. KREINDLER, Esq.

680

For the Defendant Capone:

LEON FISCHBEIN, Esq.,
EMANUEL ROSENBERG, Esq.,
WILLIAM MURPHY, Esq.,
SIDNEY ROSENTHAL, Esq.

THOMAS F. DARCY,
JULIA A. McGOWAN,
Official Stenographers.

Mr. Turkus: In the interests of justice, I respectfully ask that all witnesses on both sides be excluded until after their testimony has been given. 681

The Court: All witnesses for both sides step outside. They will not confer or contact with one another.

(Mr. Turkus then made his opening statement to the jury as follows:)

May it please the Court, Mr. Foreman, and gentlemen of the jury: Now that you have been duly impanelled and sworn as the jury to try the issue between The People of the State of New York and these defendants at the bar,

682 Opening Statement on Behalf of People

Buchalter, Weiss and Capone, it becomes the duty of the District Attorney to state what The People of the State of New York intend to prove at this trial.

You will observe as my opening statement proceeds that it is not my intention to set forth each and every detail of the case. Witnesses, whom you will see and hear, will do that. At this time I shall state the highlights of the case so that you may readily follow the testimony of 683 the witnesses when they reveal the facts to you.

Shortly before seven o'clock in the morning on Sunday, September 13, 1936, a uniformed police officer who was patroling his beat on Sutter Avenue, in the Brownsville District of Brooklyn, suddenly observed a man in the middle of the street frantically waving both arms, shouting, "Police! Murder!" The police officer ran to his side. The civilian quickly blurted out a story. The officer dashed into the candy store located at 725 Sutter Avenue. Inside he saw a ghastly sight. There, on the floor of this little candy store lay the proprietor, Joseph Rosen, 684 flat on his back, his arms outstretched; his face, neck and shirt were drenched with blood; pools of blood flowed from the body in the direction of the counter. Scattered newspapers were strewn on the floor. The body was at an angle, head facing toward the rear of the store, feet facing toward the front and side, legs spread apart. The eyes of the corpse were wide open, staring towards the ceiling.

The police officer questioned the civilian. He was a tailor, who lived across the street. At approximately 6:45 A. M. the tailor heard a series of shots ring out in the quiet of that Sunday morning. The tailor looked out the window. He saw an automobile pull away from in front of the Rosen candy store and start down Sutter Avenue. As the car drew away from in front of the store, the tailor saw the body of a man lying on the floor of this candy store. Whereupon, the tailor followed the car with his eyes to get the license number. As the car was going down Sutter Avenue, and before it reached the corner of Wyona Street, into which it turned, the 686 tailor memorized the license number of that car. The policeman then telephoned an alarm; an alarm for a black sedan, License Number L-16-67, with four occupants.

Radio cars converged at the store, detectives and commanding officers arrived. The ambulance surgeon who responded pronounced the victim "Dead on arrival." The body and scene of the murder were guarded and remained untouched and undisturbed pending the arrival of the Medical Examiner. Photographs were taken by detectives of the Photo Gallery of the Police Department. 687

Dr. Marten, the Deputy Chief Medical Examintr of the City of New York, arrived and made an examination and inspection of the corpse at the scene. He then ordered the removal of the body to the Kings County Morgue, for autopsy. There, and prior to the autopsy, Harold Rosen viewed the body and identified it as being that of his father, Joseph Rosen.

The autopsy revealed that Joseph Rosen had virtually been riddled with bullets. His body had been pierced with seventeen entrance and exit bullet holes.

688 Opening Statement on Behalf of People

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as an entirely improper statement.

Mr. Turkus: (continuing) At the point of objection I had come to the point where I told you that Rosen's body had been pierced with seventeen entrance and exit bullet holes. One bullet entered the left side of his face, near the ear, and came out in the back of his neck on the right side. A second bullet entered at the lower left jaw, passed through the brain, and lodged itself 689 in the temporal muscle on the right side of the head, where it was recovered by the Medical Examiner. A third bullet entered on the left side of the neck, went from left to right, almost horizontally, and imbedded itself in the back of his neck. This bullet was likewise recovered by the Medical Examiner. There were thirteen other entrance and exit wounds where bullets had punctured and penetrated the chest, shoulder and neck of the victim.

Two bullets, as stated, were recovered by Dr. Marten, on autopsy. Four bullets were pried 690 out of the floor, directly beneath the victim's body. Another was extracted from the floor near the body; and still another bullet which passed through the wall of the candy store, was recovered on the floor in the millinery shop next door. The recovered bullets were sent to the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department, for examination.

At approximately 10:40 that very Sunday morning, on Van Sinderen Avenue, about twenty-five or thirty feet north of Livonia Avenue, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn, a detective discovered an abandoned automobile bearing License Plates L-16-67 N. Y. 1936; the very car for which the alarm had issued. This car was a Chevrolet, two-door, four-passenger hard top vehicle, black in color, now commonly called a coach. The place of abandonment of the vehicle was close by the I.R.T. and B.M.T. station and railroad bridge at that location.

The operator of the candy store and news stand at this station actually saw this car abandoned at about seven o'clock that Sunday morning. Four men got out of the car and walked 692 up the stairway to the left of his stand. This stairway permitted access to the I.R.T. station and to a bridge which crossed over the railroad tracks, and had an exit a block away on the other side. The news stand operator paid no special attention to the men and could effect no identification of any of them.

The abandoned Chevrolet coach was a stolen car. It had been stolen from the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn sometime between midnight on Friday and nine o'clock in the morning on Saturday, from in front of 621 Lefferts Avenue, 693 where it had been parked over night by the owner, near his residence. The discovery of its theft and report thereof was made by the owner on Saturday morning and a police alarm then sent out for its recovery.

The license plates, L-16-67, affixed to this Chevrolet, were not the license plates which had been issued for the car by the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. The license plates L-16-67 also had been stolen, but from a different vehicle, namely, a Ford, which had been stored in a private garage on East 96th Street, in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn. The owner of the Ford automobile had last seen it the day after Labor Day when he put the car away and locked the garage doors. The discovery of the theft of the plates was made the very morning of the murder when detectives came to interrogate the owner of the plates. Accompanying the detectives to the private garage, the owner discovered for the first time that the padlock had been broken and the plates were missing.

695 Under the direction of Captain John J. McGowan, the commanding officer of the Brooklyn Homicide Squad in charge of all detectives in the Homicide Division in the Borough of Brooklyn, photographs were taken of the stolen car. In addition, under his direction and supervision, a chalk and mercury mixture was dusted on the windshield, the body of the car, the license plates, inside mirror, and all other places where there might likely be a fingerprint, in an endeavor to bring out fingerprint impressions. The search for fingerprint clues was fruitless.

696 Far away from the place where the murder car was abandoned, a pedestrian shortly after eleven o'clock the very morning of the murder, walking along Ralph Avenue at a point about one hundred feet north of Church Avenue, discovered a gun in the grass, near the sidewalk. He picked up the weapon, looked at it, and then carried it over to a police officer directing traffic in that vicinity. Quickly, notification of this find was given to the detectives working on the Rosen case. The gun was sent to the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department for inspection and examination.

The Commanding Officer of the Ballistics Bureau personally conducted the examination and inspection of the weapon. This gun was a Colt 38-caliber police positive, special.

In an endeavor to trace the serial number of the gun this ballistics expert made an examination of the gun at the three points where the serial numbers should have been. There he discovered that the numbers had been mechanically removed and obliterated, so that they were not visible either to the naked eye or with a mag- 698 nifying glass. Then with acids he attempted to bring out or restore those serial numbers by etching, that is, bringing to view a ghost-like number which then gives you what the number was before it was obliterated. The obliteration, however, had been too thorough and the expert was unable to bring up the serial number or enough of it so that a trace could be made.

In addition to the obliteration of the numbers, the gun had received other mechanical treatment after it had left the factory. At the muzzle end of the barrel a thread had been cut. This had 699 been cut for the attachment of a "silencer" to muffle or do away with the sound of a report. The "silencer" was not affixed to the gun but the threading for it was covered by a "collar."

As I have already related, eight bullets were now at the Ballistics Bureau for examination. Of the eight, you will remember, two of the bullets had been extracted from the body of Joseph Rosen by the Medical Examiner, and the remaining six bullets had been found at the scene of the murder. Four of these eight bullets were half metal-case bullets and the other four were copper-coated bullets. One of the bullets recovered from the body of Joseph Rosen by the medical examiner was a half metal-case bullet, and the other was a copper-coated bullet. The eight bullets were microscopically examined and tests made. The tests revealed that the four half metal-case bullets were fired from the very gun found in the lot; whereas, the four copper-coated bullets had been fired from another gun, of similar make. The gun, however, which fired 701 the four copper-coated bullets, was never recovered.

Thus, briefly, the proof discloses that in advance of the murder an automobile was stolen from the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn; the license plates were stolen from another car in the Brownsville district, the stolen plates were switched to the stolen car; the murder was committed; the killers fled from the scene in the stolen car; they abandoned the car at the railroad bridge, and escaped without identification, not a single fingerprint clue was found on the 702 murder car; only one of the guns used in the killing was found, but that with the serial numbers obliterated, blocking trace of its sale or ownership. In short, the killers had made a clean getaway and left no clues in their wake.

This is the point, gentlemen, where we naturally ask ourselves what is the proof as to why the proprietor of a penny business should be the victim of a brutal murder, carried out with flawless technique. Who was this Joseph Rosen?

Joseph Rosen had been a candy store owner in the Brownsville district only a few months. All his adult life he had been in the clothing-trucking business, starting as a driver and working up to a partnership in the business. The trucking concern in which he was a partner was disrupted, Rosen was forced out. The defendant Buchalter and others manipulated the deal. Rosen, through Buchalter and a union official, was put to work as a foreman. Several months later Rosen was discharged. Then he walked the streets endeavoring to reinstate himself in the clothing-trucking industry, complaining that Buchalter had put him out of business. Finally, 704

Buchalter and this union official put Rosen to work again, but this time as a truck driver. This job lasted only a short time and again Rosen was out of employment. Ultimately, Rosen ended up in the little candy store in Brownsville at 725 Sutter Avenue.

In the latter part of the year 1935, the Honorable Herbert H. Lehman, the Governor of the State of New York, appointed an Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court for the purpose of inquiring into

705

(1) Any and all acts of racketeering and vice;

(2) Any and all acts of organized crime or any other crime;

(3) Any connection between such acts and any law enforcement officials, committed or alleged to have been committed by any and all persons, including public officers, within the County of New York, in violation of the provisions of the Penal Law of the State of New York or the penal provisions of any other general, special or local law.

706 Opening Statement on Behalf of People

Thomas E. Dewey was the Special Prosecutor designated to conduct the investigation.

Several months after the Dewey investigation got under way, Joseph Rosen threatened to go to Dewey and tell what he knew. In an attempt to silence him, $200 was turned over to Rosen in his candy store, and he was told to go out of town and stay out, until everything blew over. Rosen took the $200 and he did leave town, but he stayed away for only a few days, and then came 707 back.

Thereafter, Rosen again threatened to talk. On September 13, 1936, in the manner that I have already described, Rosen's lips were forever sealed by a stream of bullets from two guns.

But nothing happened. Weeks passed—months passed—in fact, year after year went by—still nothing happened.

In May, 1940, something did happen. The case was broken from the inside. Then on May 28, 1940, the Grand Jury of Kings County handed down an indictment for murder in the first de-708 gree against these defendants, Buchalter, Weiss, and Capone, together with others, for the murder of Joseph Rosen.

The indictment duly found by the Grand Jury reads:

"County Court of the County of Kings.

"The People of the State of New York,
Plaintiffs,

against

Louis Buchalter, alias 'Lepke',
Emanuel Weiss, alias 'Mendy Weiss',
Harry Strauss, alias 'Pittsburgh Phil',
James Feraco,
Philip Cohen, alias 'Little Farvel',
Louis Capone,
Defendants.

"The Grand Jury of the County of Kings by this indictment accuse the defendants of the crime of murder in the first degree, committed as follows:

"The defendants on or about September 13, 1936, in the County of Kings, wilfully, feloniously and of malice aforethought shot and killed Joseph Rosen, with revolvers.

"William O'Dwyer,
District Attorney.

"A true bill:

John B. Malone,
Foreman."

712 Opening Statement on Behalf of People

The defendant Harry Strauss, alias "Pittsburgh Phil," is no longer alive. In so far as the defendants Philip Cohen, alias "Little Farvel", and James Feraco, are concerned, the indictment against them has been severed by this Court, which means they will not be tried together with these defendants at the bar.

The testimony to be given in open court will show you what the Rosen killing is all about.

In the days when Rosen was a partner in the 713 clothing-trucking business the defendant, Lepke, together with certain officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, set out to run that industry, to their liking and benefit. To effectuate this, Rosen was one of the clothing-truckers who had to be dealt with and who, as I have already stated, ultimately wound up running a penny candy store.

Rosen, however, was bitter. He complained endlessly against Lepke for his plight. When the Dewey investigation got under way Rosen threatened to get even.

To keep Rosen's mouth shut, it was the de-
714 fendant Lepke who ordered Rosen to get out of town and stay out until the Dewey investigation blew over. Max Rubin, the business agent of Local 240 of the Clothing, Drivers and Helpers Union, and a trusted aide of the defendant Lepke, was sent by Lepke to do this job. It was Max Rubin who delivered Lepke's message and the $200 to Joseph Rosen. It was at Lepke's orders that Rosen left town, but, as you know, Rosen came back.

The Dewey investigation was under way. Word that Rosen was back and again threatening to tell all that he knew, reached Lepke. Then it was that Lepke ordered the execution of Joseph Rosen; the murder to have a double-barreled effect: An object example to all others who might dare to talk; and to forever end Rosen's threat to go to Dewey.

Mr. Climenko: We respectfully except and ask the Court to instruct the jury to disregard reference to what is not part of an opening.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: (continuing) At the point of objection I told you that it was Lepke who ordered 716 the execution of Rosen—that the murder was to have a double-barreled effect: An object example to all others who might dare to talk; and to forever end Rosen's threat to go to Dewey.

Events moved with rapidity. Weiss was assigned to handle the details by Lepke; Lepke personally furnishing Weiss with the man to "finger" Rosen, that is, to point out the victim to Weiss. Capone, "Pittsburgh Phil", Strauss, Feraco and "Farvel" Cohen went to work with Weiss. "Sholem" Bernstein was brought in.

The conspirators made their plans. The pre- 717
liminary details, namely, the theft of the murder car and plates and a "drop" or garage for its concealment until needed—were promptly attended to.

The victim was "fingered" to Weiss. Capone schooled Bernstein in the route to be used for the "getaway," driving Bernstein, who was to be the "wheel man," or chauffeur, over the route again and again until Bernstein knew it by heart —from beginning to end—the end being the place of abandonment of the car at the railroad bridge.

The stage having thus been set, the conspirators set out to kill their victim.

718 Briefly (for the details will be given you in the testimony), the victim was followed from his home to the little candy store that Sunday morning, September 13, 1936. Pursuant to plan and agreement, Weiss and Strauss entered for the "kill." Armed with a loaded gun, Feraco stood outside, as the "lookout." Bernstein sat at the wheel of the getaway car, motor running. Weiss and Strauss pumped shot after shot into Rosen. They made sure he would never reach Dewey's 719 office.

Into the waiting getaway car they piled. Weiss and Strauss gave instructions, but Bernstein adhered to the route that Capone had drilled into him the day before. The car, as planned, came to a halt at the railroad bridge, where it was abandoned. Out stepped the four, Weiss, Strauss, Feraco and Bernstein. Past the news stand, up the stairs, and over the bridge across the tracks to the Junius Street side they walked, to keep their rendezvous with Capone and "Farvel" Cohen. There, in wait, were Capone and Cohen —with two automobiles. Weiss passed his gun 720 to one of his confederates, for destruction. The killers separated—Weiss, Capone, Strauss, and "Farvel" Cohen fleeing in one of the waiting cars in one direction, while Feraco and Bernstein fled in the second car in a different direction. Weiss's gun was destroyed—the second gun was flung into the lot, where it was subsequently discovered.

The murder having been successfully completed, Weiss duly made his report to Lepke.

Lepke set out to insure that there would be no arrest and prosecution in the Rosen case—no arrest and prosecution of himself and his accomplices. Lepke maintained contact with the movements and happenings in the Rosen investigation. To thwart and frustrate all investigation, Lepke sent witnesses out of the jurisdiction, keeping some out—permitting others to be questioned when he was satisfied that it was safe to do so.

Lepke soon decided that investigations must collapse, if witnesses are not available. In line with this decision, he ordered Rubin to leave town. 722

At Lepke's insistence and direction, Rubin was at times hidden and concealed in the City of New York and at other times shuttled from city to city throughout the nation. This continued until Rubin could no longer stand the continuous flight and concealment. Contrary to Lepke's orders he, too, came back to New York City, to stay.

Three days after Max Rubin had testified before a Grand Jury in New York County, a bullet was fired into the back of his head—

Mr. Barshay: Now I object to that as having absolutely nothing to do with this case. 723

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: We all join in that motion and exception.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: Gentlemen, before the objection of counsel I told you that three days after Max Rubin had testified before a Grand Jury in New York County, a bullet was fired into the back of his head, which emerged at the bridge of the nose, in close proximity to his eye.

724 Opening Statement on Behalf of People

This shooting was directed and planned by the defendant "Mendy" Weiss,—

Mr. Talley: I object. If your Honor please, that has nothing whatever to do with the case, is inflammatory and improper. I move that the District Attorney be directed to refrain from bringing in extraneous matters of that kind. I move for a mistrial and the withdrawal of a 725 juror.

Mr. Climenko: Defendants join in that motion.

Mr. Rosenthal: As to the defendant Capone, this has no connection with him, and I make the same motion as was made by the two other defendants.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: (continuing) Gentlemen, before the interruption or objection, I told you that the shooting of Max Rubin was directed and planned by the defendant "Mendy" Weiss, who 726 had learned that Rubin was "talking." Miraculously, however, Rubin was more fortunate than Rosen. Unlike Rosen, Rubin's lips were not sealed. Rubin survived, and will testify at this trial—the trial for the murder of Rosen.

Mr. Foreman and gentlemen of the jury: The proof that you are about to receive in this court of justice will establish to your satisfaction, beyond all doubt, that these defendants, Louis Buchalter (alias Lepke), Emanuel Weiss (alias Mendy Weiss), and Louis Capone, in combination are three of the killers of Joseph Rosen.

For The People of the State of New York, the interests of justice will require a verdict of guilty as charged—guilty of murder in the first degree.

The Court: Is there any opening by counsel for the defendant Buchalter?

Mr. Barshay: Before that I would like to make some motions.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: First I move to dismiss the indictment on the ground that, as a matter of law, Mr. Turkus, the Assistant District Attorney, has failed to set forth sufficient facts to connect the defendant Buchalter with the commission of this crime. 728

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Secondly, I object to the opening of the District Attorney on the ground it was highly prejudicial, highly inflammatory, concerning matters not binding on the defendant Buchalter, and containing evidence of other crimes, in violation of law.

The Court: Motion denied. 729

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I make the same motion in behalf of the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: I make the same motion in behalf of the defendant Capone.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The Court: You may open for the defendant Buchalter.

730 Opening Statement Waived as to Defendants

Mr. Barshay: We will not open.

The Court: You waive?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: Is there any opening for the defendant Emanuel Weiss?

Mr. Talley: No, we waive opening.

The Court: Any opening for the defendant Capone?

Mr. Rosenthal: Opening waived for Capone.

Mr. Barshay: Now, may I request your Hon-
731 or to instruct the jury at this time that the opening of the Assistant District Attorney shall not be considered by them as evidence in this case.

The Court: The jury is so instructed. Evidence comes from witnesses and such exhibits as may go into the case.

Mr. Cuff: I ask your Honor to instruct the jury now that the statement made by the District Attorney in his opening, with respect to the shooting of Max Rubin be entirely disregarded by them as not being a proper part of the opening address in this case, in which there is no mention 732 of the shooting or killing of Max Rubin in this indictment. We are here on one indictment. The District Attorney has gone on an entirely different matter. If Rubin was not killed it was an entirely different issue; it is no part of this complaint at all; it was injected for no other purpose except to inflame the minds of the jury before any evidence is taken at all against the defendant Weiss in this case.

Mr. Turkus: It was an endeavor to kill off a witness in this prosecution; of course it is admissible.

The Court: You do not have to argue it. The previous ruling applies.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

ESTELLE ROSEN, residing at 345 Wyona Street in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Where did you reside in September of 1936? A. 345 Wyona Street.

Q. Are you the widow of Joseph Rosen? A. 734
Yes, sir.

Q. How many years were you married to him? A. About twenty-five.

Q. At the time of his death how old was he? A. Forty-six.

Q. At the time that you married him, Mrs. Rosen, what was his business? A. He was working in the men's clothing line.

Q. Had he been working in that line when he was courting you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years had he been courting you? A. About a year or eighteen months.

Q. For how many years did he remain in the 735 clothing-trucking line? A. He always was in that line.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object on the ground she said "clothing line."

The Court: Objection orverruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Do you recall when your husband went into the candy store business? A. I do.

Q. When was that? A. It was around April or May of 1936.

736 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

Q. Where did he maintain his candy store? A. 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn.

Q. Was he in that business at the time of his death? A. He was.

Q. Are you familiar with the places of employment he had when he was in the clothing-trucking business? A. I think so.

Q. Where did he first work?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as immate-
737 rial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Lippman Bros.

Q. Do you know how long he worked there? A. About eleven or twelve years.

Q. Following that where did he work? A. I think for Arensweig Bros.

Q. After that where did he work? A. Louis Miller.

Q. Then what was his next employment? A. He went to the Garfield Express.

738 Q. Do you know how long he worked for the Garfield Express? A. A few years.

Q. Were those all clothing trucking employments you are relating to this jury? A. That is right.

Q. After he left the Garfield Express, where did he go to work? A. He went in business for himself.

Q. Did he return to work for the Garfield Express? A. He did.

Q. Did he ultimately go into business with a man named Kelly? A. That is correct.

Q. What was the business they were engaged in? A. Men's clothing, the same line.

Q. When you say "men's clothing," do you mean the trucking of men's clothing? A. That is correct.

Q. After he had been in business with Kelly for some period of time, did he join the force or join up with some other men? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were those men? A. Nat Sobler and Morris Blustein.

Q. After your husband had been in business 740 with those men, under what name did they do business? A. The New York and New Jersey Transportation Company.

Q. Was that for the trucking of clothing? A. That is correct.

Q. After he was in business with those men under the name of the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company, did the business break up?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 741

A. He was forced out of business.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Strike it out. Just say whether or not it broke up.

The Witness: It broke up.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor instruct the jury to disregard the remark voluntarily made?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: On behalf of the defendant Capone, may I have a general objection and exception to this entire line of questioning as not binding upon him.

The Court: You mean the last one?

Mr. Rosenthal: All these questions referring to whatever it may be in the garment trade as depicted by Mr. Turkus.

The Court: That would not be in order.

743 Mr. Rosenthal: I make a general objection as to any testimony regarding any connection of Rosen with any trucking business or otherwise in so far as it affects the defendant Capone, as in no wise binding upon him.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The reason why I do this at this time is so I do not have to interrupt the continuity of Mr. Turkus's examination.

By Mr. Turkus:

744 Q. After this business, the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company, broke up, what did your husband do? He walked the streets.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. What had happened in the New York and New Jersey—what was his status there? A. Partner.

Q. Sometime after the business of the New York and New Jersey Trucking Company broke up, did your husband secure a position or a job? A. He did.

Q. Who employed him? A. He went back to Cooper.

Q. Cooper, of the Garfield Express? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he go back as a foreman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the first name of this Cooper? A. Louis.

Q. And the Garfield Express, was it located in New Jersey? A. That is correct. 746

Q. Do you know the town? A. Passaic, New Jersey.

Q. After your husband worked for Cooper about six or seven months, what happened? A. He was fired.

Mr. Cuff: I object. I object to that as a conclusion of the witness.

The Court: It is purely collateral. I will take it.

Mr. Cuff: I think we should have competent testimony given in a case of this kind. She is not competent to testify to what she is. 747

Q. (The Court) Was his connection discontinued? A. It was.

Mr. Barshay: I respectfully object and move that the answer she volunteered (that he was fired) be stricken out.

The Court: Yes.

Q. Did your husband's connection with Louis

748 Cooper or the Garfield Express end? A. That is right.

Q. Sometime after it ended did you go to the clothing district? A. I did.

Q. About how long after your husband's connection with Louis Cooper ended, did you go to the Garment District? A. Shortly.

Q. Did you go there to meet somebody? A. I did.

Q. Who was it?

749

Mr. Climenko: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: May we have the date, Mr. Turkus?

The Witness: I do not remember exactly the date.

By the Court:

Q. About the year—about how many years ago?

750

Mr. Barshay: May we have it before 1935 or after 1935?

The Witness: It was after 1935.

Q. Was it when your husband was still alive? A. Oh, yes.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Have you given the date as your best recollection? A. It was around 1935.

Q. The question was, Who did you meet there in the clothing district? A. Max Rubin.

Q. Was Max Rubin business agent for the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as leading.

Mr. Turkus: If you want me to ask it the way you want it, I will go right ahead.

The Court: You will have to reframe it.

752

Q. Who was Max Rubin? A. Business agent for the Clothing Express Union.

Q. Did you talk to Max Rubin? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to him?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on the defendant Buchalter, or any other defendant.

Mr. Turkus: It will be connected.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I take it an exception made by one counsel applies to all, doesn't it. 753

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: Throughout the trial?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: An objection may be based on one ground by one counsel and an entirely different ground by another.

The Court: I am not restricting you.

Mr. Talley: Then, if there is another ground, we will have to make a separate 754 objection. My only thought was whatever benefit there may be—

The Court: It simply means one thing. Counsel makes objection to evidence and excepts. Other counsel fail to stand up, but they nevertheless have the advantage of it. But it does not prevent anybody from standing up and making a separate objection upon any other ground.

755 By Mr. Turkus:

Q. You were asked about relating a conversation you had with Max Rubin in the clothing district. A. I went over and I told him my husband lost his job. I went over to Rubin and told him that for no reason at all my husband lost his job, and I would like to see Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on the defendant.

756 The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (The Court) You would like him to speak to Mr. Cooper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What else did you say to Rubin, if anything? A. I told him that I—I don't remember the exact words—I would like him to take me to Cooper and ask him why my husband was discharged. He told me— In fact, he took me down to Cooper.

Q. Did you and Max Rubin go some place after you spoke to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go? A. I think it was in the clothing district on Fifth Avenue somewhere.

Q. Who did you see there when you got there with Max Rubin? A. Louis Cooper.

Q. Is that the Louis Cooper connected with the Garfield Express? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you there have a talk with Louis Cooper? A. I did.

Q. Was Max Rubin there at the time? A. He was.

Q. What was said? 758

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on the defendants.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I except on the ground it is not binding on Weiss.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Will you kindly relate to the jury what was said in that talk between you, Cooper, and Rubin? A. I went over to Cooper and I talked to Cooper and I said, "After all these years my husband worked for you and he was an honest worker, and a good fellow, why did you discharge him?" He said, "Mrs. Rosen, I cannot say anything to you. It is not my fault. Go over and see Lepke." 759

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: I will take it subject to connection. If it is not connected, the

760 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

Court then will, upon motion, strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: It will be connected by other witnesses.

The Court: Not by this witness.

Mr. Turkus: No.

Q. After Cooper told you to go see Lepke, did you talk to Max Rubin? A. Yes, sir, I asked Max Rubin to take me to see Lepke.

761

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did he do so? A. He promised me, but he did not. I never did.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

762 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Can you estimate how long it was that your husband remained unemployed after he was discharged by Louis Cooper?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About eighteen months, I would judge.

Q. Now, did he find him another job after eighteen months, as you estimated it?

Mr. Barshay: If your Honor please, she said that conversation took place sometime in 1935.

The Court: I understood around that time.

Mr. Barshay: Now, eighteen months he was out of employment, and now Mr. Turkus is questioning her about another 764 job. I would like your Honor to ask this witness again to speak of the day when she first saw Rubin.

The Court: She said she does not remember; apparently she kept no diary; that is a long time ago.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Before objection by counsel I asked you, after your husband remained unemployed, following his discharge by Louis Cooper, for about eighteen months, as you estimate it, did he then 765 get another job? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When he worked for Louis Cooper what position did he hold? A. He was manager or foreman of the Garfield Express.

Q. Did you know his salary? A. I think at that time he was getting either $100 or $125 a week.

Q. And so, after approximately eighteen months of unemployment, he got another job? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This time who employed him? A. Larry Cooper, I think.

766 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

Q. Is Larry Cooper any relation to Louis Cooper? A. He is not.

Q. How long did that job last? A. Just a few months.

Q. Did your husband then remain unemployed again? A. He did.

Q. Did that last for some time? A. It did.

Q. To your knowledge, did he make any effort to reinstate himself in the clothing trucking industry? A. He made every effort.

767 Q. Was he successful? A. He was not.

Q. Was it then that he opened a candy store? A. That is right.

Q. Approximately when did he open the candy store? A. It must have been around April or May of 1936.

Q. Where did he open this candy store? A. 725 Sutter Avenue.

Q. Is that in the Brownsville district of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir, in East New York.

Q. Directing your attention to the middle of July, 1936, did your husband come home one evening and talk to you? A. He did.

768 Q. You are not permitted to say what he told you, but at that time did he come home with something in his possession?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: That does not call for information as to whether or not she saw something in his possession. Objection sustained.

Q. That evening, when your husband came home, in the middle of July, 1936, did you see him in possession of something? A. Yes, sir, he had money in his hand.

Q. How much money did he have? A. $200.

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike out the answer on the ground that it calls for a conclusion; it is not binding on any of the defendants in this case.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

770

Q. At that time how much did you and your husband have in the bank?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About one dollar and some change.

Q. Does $1.20 refresh your recollection?

Mr. Barshay: I object. 771

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Something around that.

Q. When your husband had this $200 did he talk to you? A. He did.

Q. After that talk what did your husband do? A. He left.

Q. Did he pack up? A. He did.

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel leading.

772 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

The Court: Objection overruled. This is all leading up.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Answer this question yes or no: Did he tell you where he was going? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a son named Harold? A. I have.

Q. At that time when your husband left your house where was Harold, your son, living? A.
773 Reading, Pennsylvania.

Q. Sometime after your husband left home, did you receive a telephone call? A. I did.

Q. Who was the telephone call from? A. From my husband.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on any of the defendants.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. And at that time, Mrs. Rosen, what was the 774 condition of your health?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I was not well.

Q. While your husband was gone who took care of the store? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

775

Q. After you and your husband spoke on the telephone, what happened? A. He came home the next morning.

Q. Did he go back to his store? A. He did.

Q. Directing your attention to the Saturday before your husband was killed, were you in the store? A. I was.

Q. Were you there during the evening? A. I was.

Q. Was your husband there? A. He was.

776

Q. Can you fix approximately the time when your husband went home that night? A. It must have been about 11 or 11:30.

Q. Who closed the store that Saturday night? A. I did.

Q. About what time did you close the store? A. It must have been between 1:30 and 2 o'clock.

Q. In the morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That would be early on Sunday morning? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. Did you ever close the candy store yourself before that Saturday night? A. I did not.

777

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. What is your answer, that you had not? A. That is correct.

Q. Coming back to the Saturday night before he was killed, and referring to the evening, while your husband was in the store did some man come in the store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see what that man did—yes or no? A. Yes, sir, I did.

778 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

Q. Tell this Court and jury what you observed this man do.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: This is taken subject to connection. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Tell us what this man who came in the 779 store—

Mr. Rosenthal: (interrupting) I object unless the man is identified.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. He walked into the store in his shirt sleeves and walked to the back of the store. I followed him and he bought a cigarette for a penny, a single cigarette, and he just looked around the place.

780

Mr. Barshay: I object and move to strike out the answer as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Motion denied. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Was it customary in that neighborhood to sell single cigarettes? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

781

The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Will you tell the jury how far into the store this man walked, the man you described as being in his shirt sleeves?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

782

A. Quite a distance in the back of the store. There was a toilet there and he walked in the back of the store.

Q. Where was your husband in the store at that time? A. In the front of the store, at the window; the open window.

Q. Were there single cigarettes at the open window? A. Yes, sir, there were.

Q. This man, who served him, you or your husband? A. I did.

Q. And a short time later did you see that man again? A. Yes, sir.

783

Q. Where did you see him the second time? A. He came in again and bought another cigarette.

Q. On the second occasion was your husband still in the store? A. He was.

Q. Now, on Sunday morning, September 13, 1936—

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out all the testimony with respect to the unidentified man.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

784 Estelle Rosen—For People—Direct

Q. On Sunday morning, September 13, 1936, at some time in the morning did you see your husband? A. Yes, sir, he woke me before he went down.

Q. Do you remember approximately what time that was? A. It must have been about six o'clock or a little later; I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see your husband alive after that? A. I did not.

Q. Did you see his body after he had been 785 shot? A. I don't remember it.

Q. Coming back to the man who was in the candy store that Saturday night, who was that man? A. The man sitting there (indicating in court-room).

Q. Point him out. A. With glasses, right in the front row.

Q. Indicating the defendant Emanuel Weiss, alias Mendy. A. He was not so heavy at the time.

Q. Did he wear glasses? A. He did not.

786 Mr. Barshay: I object to it on the ground that it is not binding on the defendant Buchalter.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

May I ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard that statement with respect to the defendant Buchalter?

The Court: I will instruct the jury at the proper time. Your motion is denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: I make the same objection on behalf of Capone.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Cross-examination by Mr. Barshay:

Q. You remember the first name of the gentleman for whom your husband worked last, Mr. Cooper? A. Louis Cooper.

Q. Is that his name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And his place of business was in Brooklyn? A. Passaic, N. J.

Q. No, the last Mr. Cooper. A. Larry?

Q. That is one of the men, is that his name, Larry? A. Yes, sir. 788

Q. He had a place of business in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was your husband sick at the time he worked for this Larry Cooper in Brooklyn? A. He was not feeling very well from the trouble he went through.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the last part of the answer.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Was your husband complaining of a heart condition when he was working for Larry Cooper? A. He did. 789

Q. Was your husband receiving medical treatment at the time he was working for Larry Cooper for a heart condition? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not your husband had been visiting a physician for any kind of treatment about that time? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether or not your husband quit voluntarily when he worked for Larry Cooper? A. I don't remember.

790 Q. Did your husband tell you that he could no longer work because of this illness? A. I don't remember.

Q. You know of your own knowledge that Larry Cooper did not discharge your husband, don't you? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. You do not claim Larry Cooper discharged your husband, do you?

791 Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question; the widow does not claim anything; she is here as a witness for the People.

Mr. Barshay: She has claimed substantially, on direct examination—

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the remark of counsel be stricken out.

Mr. Barshay: It is not a remark; it is directly in answer to your argument.

The Court: I think the Court excluded any testimony that he was discharged, on the ground that the witness did not know.

792 Mr. Barshay: We did not come to the point of discharge by Larry Cooper; there were two Coopers.

The Court: Did the witness say he was discharged?

Mr. Barshay: No, she did not say anything.

The Court: Then the objection is sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you know Larry Cooper personally? A. Maybe if I saw him.

793

Q. Did you ever speak to him? A. I think I did.

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley:

Q. You have answered some seven questions asked by counsel with the reply, "I don't remember." Do you mean to tell us you don't remember whether your husband was ill and receiving medical attention in 1936?

794

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I do not remember.

Q. Your answer is you do not remember whether or not your husband was being treated for heart trouble in 1936; is that correct? A. All I know is that he was worrying—

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

795

Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand. It is responsive.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Do you not remember whether or not he was attending a physician or a physician was attending him, a visiting physician? A. I do not remember that.

Q. You would have been concerned if you thought your husband had heart failure or heart trouble, wouldn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as to form.

The Court: Sustained as argumentative.

Q. Was your husband in debt at the time the candy store was opened or shortly before that? A. He was.

Q. Do you know how much money he had borrowed at that time? A. No.

Q. Was it $200? A. I beg your pardon?

797 Q. That he had borrowed, that he was in debt for. A. He never borrowed $200.

Q. Did he borrow any money at all at or about the time he opened the candy store? A. He owed some money, certainly, he borrowed money.

Q. He did borrow? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know from whom he borrowed it? A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. Do you know it had not been paid in 1936, in September? A. It had not been paid?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. You did not know anything about your husband's business then, did you? A. I knew to a 798 certain extent.

Q. Well, did you know he was in debt for money borrowed in 1936—did you know it to that extent? A. He did not borrow no money from anybody from the outside; from no outside people did he borrow money; I know that.

Q. Who did he owe the money to that you say he did owe? A. He just owed it to my sister when we bought the store.

Q. From whom he bought the store? A. When we bought the store.

Q. He bought it from your sister? A. No, sir; he borrowed the money from her to buy the store.

Q. How much did he borrow from her? A. A few hundred dollars.

Q. How many hundred? A. I don't remember whether one hundred, two hundred, or three hundred; I don't remember.

Q. Did your sister ever tell you how much she had loaned to him? A. No, sir, I don't know.

Q. You don't know whether your sister told you that or not? A. No, sir. 800

Q. Or is it you do not remember? A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you know all that he owed? A. He did not owe anything.

Q. How do you know? A. Because he told me.

Q. He told you he did not owe any money? A. No, sir, not on the outside.

Q. The only person you know to whom he was indebted for money was your sister? A. That is correct.

Q. What is her name? A. Do I have to answer that? 801

Mr. Turkus: I will object to it as improper cross-examination; nothing about that has been brought out on direct.

The Court: No harm in it. Objection overruled.

Mr. Turkus: She may have a reason for not divulging the name of her sister.

Q. Give me the name and address of the sister. A. I don't like to mention her name here.

Q. Whether you like it or not, I am asking you to give me the name. A. Rose Rosenblatt.

Q. Rose Rosenblatt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that Mrs. Rose? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where does she live now? A. 1864 Eightieth Street.

Q. Was she living there in 1936? A. She was.

Q. When did she lend the money to Mr. Rosen? A. Just before we bought the store.

Q. You say that was something around three 803 or four hundred? A. Something like that.

Q. When you say "something like that," just how much do you mean? A. I don't know exactly.

By the Court:

Q. Were you there? A. When she loaned the money, no, sir, but I was told he went to borrow it because he had no other alternative; we had to do something.

Q. Judge Talley asked you if any money was borrowed, and you said yes, but you did not 804 make it clear whether you knew it. A. I did know he was going there for the money, yes, sir.

Q. He told you? A. Yes, sir; I knew it. I phoned my sister before to tell her he was coming for the money.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did your sister take the money out of the bank and give it to him? A. I would not know that.

Q. You mean you would not know it or you do not remember? A. I don't know whether she had it on hand in her bag or whether she had it in the bank.

805

Q. Did she have a bank account in 1936? A. I do not know her private affairs.

Q. Did she tell you she had loaned your husband money? A. That is right.

Q. She told you that much about her private affairs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did she tell you how much she had loaned him? A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you know when the loan was made? A. Before the store was bought.

Q. When was the store bought? A. Around 806
April or May of 1936.

Q. How long before April or May of 1936 was the money loaned by your sister to your husband? A. Maybe a day or two before the store was bought.

Q. A few days before? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. The District Attorney asked you about the night of September 12th when you said you were in the store. A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. At what time did you say it was that the defendant Weiss, whom you pointed out, came 807 into the store? A. I do not remember exactly what time, but it was late in the evening, maybe about 9 or 10 o'clock?

Q. Was that the first time he came into the store, between 9 and 10 o'clock? A. That is right.

Q. At what time was the second time you say he came in? A. Not long after, about maybe about half an hour after that.

Q. Did he say anything to your husband? A. He did not.

Q. Was your husband at the window, do you say, the first time he came in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he at the window the second time? A. I don't know where he was the second time; I don't remember.

Q. Did he have a hat on when he came in? A. No, sir.

Q. He was in his shirt sleeves. You mean by that that he had no coat on? A. That is right.

Q. You had never seen him before that night? A. I did not.

Q. That was on September 12, 1936? A. Yes,
809 sir, that is right.

Q. When was the second time that you saw him? A. A half an hour after the first time he came in.

Q. That is all you saw of him that night? A. That is right.

Q. When, after that night, September 12, 1936, did you next see the defendant Weiss? A. Maybe about two years later.

Q. That would be 1938—that is about three years ago. A. 1938 or 1939.

Q. In what month of 1938 or 1939? A. I do not remember.

810 Q. Do you remember it was in 1939? A. Between 1938 and 1939.

Q. You mean either in 1938 or in 1939? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not remember what month? A. I do not.

Q. Do you remember what part of the year it was in? A. I do not.

Q. You do remember where it was, don't you? A. Yes, sir, I remember where it was.

Q. Where? A. Up in the Federal Building.

Q. Was that on Church Street? A. I don't know; I was taken there. I don't remember; I don't know where it was.

Q. Do you remember it was in the Borough of Manhattan? A. I think so.

Q. Do you remember it was not in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. It was in the Borough of Brooklyn.

Q. In whose office was it? A. I don't know in whose office.

Q. In whose office was it you saw him? A. I don't know whose office it was.

Q. Was it in the Court House or the Post Office Building? A. The Post Office Building. 812

Q. The Federal Building? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who was there? A. I do not know who was there.

Q. Who went with you? A. Somebody took me down. I would not know the name of who took me down there.

Q. Did you ever know his name? A. The one that took me down?

Q. Yes. A. I did not—I do not remember.

Q. You do not remember that name? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember what floor it was you were brought to? A. I do not. 813

Q. Do you remember any name on the door of the place where you say you saw him? A. I know it was the Federal Building, that is all I know.

Q. At what time of the day or night was it when you went? A. Sometime in the afternoon.

Q. Had you given a description to anybody of the man whom you saw, that you say you saw in his shirt sleeves in your store? A. I did.

Q. Did you describe him as a man about 5 foot 6 inches or 7 inches tall? A. He was taller than 5 foot 6.

Q. Did you describe him as being a man 5 feet 6 inches or 5 feet 7 inches tall? A. I do not remember that.

Q. Did you describe him as being a man weighing about 135 pounds? A. Well, it was not 135 pounds; he was much heavier, but he wasn't as heavy as I saw him today.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out as not responsive.

815 The Court: I will allow it to stand.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. My question is, didn't you describe him as a man weighing about 135 pounds? A. No, sir.

Q. At no time to nobody; is that right? A. Absolutely no.

Q. Did you describe him as being a man 5 feet 5 inches or 6 inches—5 feet 6 or 7 inches tall? A. I do not remember that; I think he was taller than 5 feet 6 or 5 feet 7.

Q. My question is, didn't you describe him as being 5 foot 6 or 7 inches tall and weighing 816 about 135 pounds? A. No, sir.

Q. Now the next occasion you saw the defendant Weiss, after you saw him in the Federal Building—and you are agreed he was there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The second time you saw him was when? A. A few weeks ago.

Q. That is the first time in the Federal Building, you say in 1937, 1938, or 1939? A. 1938 or 1939.

Q. Then you saw him a few weeks ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you say "a few", precisely how many do you mean? A. Maybe about six or seven or eight weeks back.

Q. You do not remember just when it was? A. I do not remember just when it was.

Q. Then you did not see him again until you pointed him out in this court-room? A. That is right.

Q. Where was it you say you saw him the second time several weeks ago? A. When they were picking a jury. 818

Q. In this Court House? A. I don't remember which court house.

Q. You say after the jury began to be picked in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it in this room? A. I don't remember which room it was.

Q. You don't remember whether it was in this building or not? A. Oh, it was this building.

Q. You remember that? A. I think it was this building.

Q. You think it was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. (The Court) Was it a larger court-room? 819
A. It was not in this room; I do not think it was this room.

Q. Do you say it was this room or not? A. I do not remember.

Q. Who brought you to the court-room in which the jury was being selected in this building? A. I was brought down by one of Mr. Turkus's men.

Q. Had you been in the District Attorney's office before you came to the court-room? A. I was.

Q. Do you know who the man was who brought you over? A. I do not know.

Q. Was the defendant Weiss pointed out to you in the court-room? A. He was not pointed out; I pointed him out.

Q. Now, that was the only time you had seen him, in the court-room and in the Federal Court House? A. And in the store.

Q. And in the store? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

821 Q. Was there any court session when you went to the court-room some five or six weeks ago? A. Just picking the jury.

Q. Was the Judge on the bench? A. He was.

Q. Did you see the defendants come into the court-room? A. I seen them walk through.

Q. You saw them walk through the court-room? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They walked through with their guards? A. They did.

Q. Did you notice they had handcuffs on them? A. They did not.

822 Q. When they walked through the room? A. I don't think they did; I don't think they did; I don't remember.

Q. Did you see them coming in the room or leaving? A. I saw them coming in the room; I was not there when they left.

Q. Now, on the occasion when you were in the Federal Building, did you point Weiss out as the man you had seen in your store? A. Well, I seen him sitting there and I recognized it was him, only he was heavier than when he was at the time in the store.

Q. Did you tell anybody in the Federal courtroom that that was Weiss and that was the man in your store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To whom did you point him out? A. To the detective that was with me. I don't remember who they are.

Q. Would you know him if you saw him again? A. I have seen so many, I don't remember.

Q. You would not remember him? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you seen him since you say you pointed Weiss out? A. I did not.

Q. Who was with Weiss when you say you saw him in the Federal Building? A. Nobody was with him; he was just sitting there alone. There were some detectives, or whoever they were, I don't know. 824

Q. Then, you cannot be right in saying nobody was with him if you saw detectives were with him. A. There were quite a number of them in the room.

Q. Why did you say nobody was with him? A. He was brought down; I saw him brought down; two detectives on both sides of him, into the room where I was sitting. I do not know where he was brought from. 825

Q. You were in the room first and Weiss was brought in? A. That is right.

Q. And brought in between two detectives? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was the only prisoner that was in the room? A. That is right.

Q. Did they tell you they were going to bring Weiss down, so you could see him? A. They did not mention any name; they just asked me that they would bring someone down and if I recognize that man. They mention no names.

826 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Q. You knew you were there to recognize or identify somebody? A. That is right.

Q. Do you mean to say that up to that time, between the time you say you saw this man in his shirt sleeves in your store, up to the time you were in the Federal Building, that nobody told you you were brought there to identify Weiss? A. They did not mention any name; they just told me if I could identify somebody.

Q. Can you tell me the name of anybody that 827 was in the room when they brought this man in between two detectives and pointed him out to you? A. No one pointed him out to me; and I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember what? A. I don't remember the name of the people who were in the room with me at the time.

Q. You don't remember the name, even, of the man who brought you down to the Federal Building? A. I do not.

Q. Have you seen him since? A. I have not.

Q. You mean no? A. I don't think so.

Q. You mean you don't remember whether you
828 did or not? A. That is right.

Mr. Turkus: I object to this as having been already answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Did any of the detectives or anybody else tell you they wanted you to identify Weiss? A. They did not mention any name to me.

Q. Did they describe the man they wanted you to identify as the one who had come into your store? A. They did not.

Q. Do you mean to say that all they said to you was: "We want you to come and identify somebody"? A. That is right; it was done before.

Q. You are sure you told us the only places you saw Weiss after the night you say you saw him in the store? A. That is right.

Q. There was an interval of some three years, wasn't there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Between the time you say you saw him in your store and the time you saw him in the Federal Building? A. Yes, sir. 830

Q. You say you immediately recognized him? A. Only he got heavier.

Q. Did you immediately recognize the man you saw in the Federal Building as the man who came in and bought two single cigarettes in your store on the night of September 12th or 13th, 1936? A. Certainly; that is right.

Q. And the night you saw him in your store, as you say, did he have a collar on? A. Well, it was a collar on, yes, he had a collar on his shirt; he wore a white shirt.

Q. Did he have a necktie on? A. I do not remember. 831

Q. Do you remember he wore a white shirt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know what kind of trousers he had on? A. No, sir.

Q. He was without a hat, you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you saw him in the Federal Building, how was he dressed? A. He wore a suit, no hat.

Q. Had a coat on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he have a collar and necktie? A. I do not remember.

Q. Did he have a hat on? A. No, sir.

832 Q. You do remember he did not have a hat on? A. That is right.

Q. When you saw him in the Federal Building did he have eyeglasses on? A. No, sir.

Q. You told us exactly what happened when these two detectives brought him into the room in the Federal Building in which you were waiting—you were there? A. I was there.

Q. You were sitting with some detectives? A. Sitting with two more women of the office.

833 Q. Two more women from the Federal office? A. From the Federal office, correct.

Q. When they brought you there, did somebody say to you they were going to bring somebody in for you to identify? A. That is right, they would bring somebody in.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as having been already answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. How long were you kept waiting there before they brought the defendant Weiss in? A.
834 A few minutes.

Q. Then did these two men walk in with Weiss in between them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he handcuffed? A. No, sir.

Q. He had nothing on his wrists at all, no chains, or anything else? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you sure about that? A. I am positive.

Q. What did you say when he was brought in? A. I did not say anything; I was sitting. I did not say anything.

Q. You were thinking? A. I said I was sitting.

Q. Did you say anything while he was there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you just look at him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While he was there you did not say, "That is the man I saw in my candy store"? A. I did not say anything.

Q. Did he say anything to you? A. No, sir.

Q. He just came in and you just looked at him? A. He came in; they held a conversation; I don't know who spoke to him at the desk, but there was a conversation about a ring and a setting. They were asking him about some setting in a ring and how he paid the tax or something. 836

Q. You kept silent, looking at him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then he was taken out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then did you say, "That is the man who was in my candy store," or did you say, "I cannot identify him as the man"? A. I said to him, "He looks much heavier. He was not as heavy in the store. I have not seen him in a few years. He was slimmer when he came in my store." 837

Q. Were you in doubt as to whether he was the man? A. If he was slimmer, I would definitely say he was the man, but he put on weight, much weight; he got much heavier than in 1936.

Q. It created some doubt in your mind as to whether you were looking at the right man? A. It did not create. He did not wear his hair over his forehead; he wore his hair the same way, the same as it was in the store.

Q. Is it not a fact that when you saw him in the Federal Building that you said to all the people who were surrounding you in the room, "I cannot identify that man as the man who was in my store"? Didn't you say that in substance or effect? A. I do not remember saying that.

Q. Why were you brought into this courtroom in the last two or three weeks to look at the defendant Weiss, do you know?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

839 The Court: She said she was told.

The Witness: I was not told.

By the Court:

Q. When was the Federal Building affair? A. It was between 1938 and 1939, about two or three years ago.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. That is the time I have been asking you about. Is it not a fact you then said you could 840 not identify the man that was brought in by two detectives, as the man who was in your shop?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Already answered. Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Didn't you on that occasion in the Federal Building say, when Weiss was brought in and you were asked if that is the man, didn't you then say, "I do not remember"?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I said I don't remember, yes, because he got so heavy.

The Court: Gentlemen, please do not discuss the case nor let anyone talk to you about it. Keep your minds open. For convenience we will make lunch hour from 12:30 until 1:30. Defendants remanded. 842

(Recess taken until 1:30 P. M.)

AFTERNOON SESSION. TRIAL RESUMED.

ESTELLE ROSEN, resumes the stand for further cross examination: 843

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Mrs. Rosen, after your husband was shot, were you interviewed by detectives? A. I was.

Q. And was that in your home? A. I was taken down to the police station.

Q. Whereabouts? A. I think it was on Miller Avenue.

Q. And did you then describe this man that you say came into your store the night before?

A. For the spur of the moment I didn't remember anything. My mind was a blank.

Q. Is your answer that you did not?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is already answered.

A. I don't remember what happened at that time.

Q. Didn't you tell the detectives when they first interviewed you the man that came into 845 your store on that Saturday night that you are speaking of was a man about five foot six or seven and weighed about 135 pounds? A. At the moment I don't remember, or don't remember anything at all.

Q. Did you tell them anything at all? A. I would not remember.

Q. Did you ever tell anybody at any time that the man that came in your store on Saturday night was a man that answered that description? A. I did talk to Mr. Turkus and Mr. Klein of a man that came into the store and tried to de-846 scribe him.

Q. And did you describe him as weighing 135 pounds and being five foot six or seven? A. I don't think so.

Mr. Cuff: What is the answer?

The Witness: No, I don't think so.

Q. When did you describe this man to Mr. Turkus? A. Oh, that was long after the murder.

Q. How long after September 13, 1936, which was the date of the killing? A. Well, a few months later I picked a picture and I said, "That looks like the man that was in the store."

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.

Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand she picked a picture.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Talley: Exception. May I have the question read, if your Honor pleases?

The Court: Yes.

(Question read by the reporter.) 848

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Turkus? A. Not at that time.

Q. How long after that time? A. I don't remember how long after.

Q. You do not remember whether it was weeks or months? A. I do not.

Q. Did you testify before the Grand Jury in this case? A. I did.

Q. Do you remember when that was? A. I would not remember that.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I said it was in May, 1940? A. I don't know. It was 849 right after the killing.

Q. Right after the killing? A. I don't know how long after but after the killing.

Q. Would it be as long as a year after? A. No. Sooner than that.

Q. Was it six months after? A. I don't remember the exact time but it was a few months after or maybe a week. I don't remember exactly.

Q. What is your best recollection, Mrs. Rosen; was it a week or two after the killing or was it several months after? A. No, it was right after 850 the killing, maybe a few weeks, maybe it was the following week.

Q. How many times did you testify before the Grand Jury? A. Once.

Q. When you testified before the Grand Jury, is it not a fact that you said nothing whatever about this man that came into the candy store on the night before the killing? A. Well, probably the spur of the moment I didn't remember it but after I remembered. After the murder I 851 realized somebody did come in the store and look around.

Q. I am speaking about your testimony before the Grand Jury. Is it not a fact that you made no mention— A. I don't remember.

Q. Of that fact? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember? A. I do not.

Mr. Talley: I ask your Honor for a direction to the District Attorney to produce the minutes of the Grand Jury in so far as this witness' testimony is concerned.

852 The Court: Have you any authority for that?

Mr. Talley: Why, yes, sir. I think the fact that this witness has stated—

The Court: Have you any authority?

Mr. Talley: —she does not ecollect or does not know entitles me to have those Grand Jury minutes for the purpose of cross-examination.

The Court: Have you any authority at law on that point?

Mr. Talley: Not immediate except the general authority that I am entitled to any papers that may tend to contradict.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: It is suggested to me the authority is People against Walsh in 262 New York. I did not think authority really would be necessary upon that point. Here is a document that I want to use to cross-examine this witness that is not within my control and is within the control of the District Attorney and subject 854 to your Honor's direction and I submit that I am entitled to it.

The Court: You are not entitled to the Grand Jury minutes, Judge, unless the Court of Appeals—

Mr. Talley: Will your Honor examine the testimony—

The Court: Pardon me. I will finish. Unless the Court of Appeals has made a recent ruling which changes the law as it was always understood.

Mr. Talley: Will your Honor examine 855
the Grand Jury minutes and this lady's testimony particularly in that regard?

The Court: I will be glad to.

Mr. Talley: Will you do so?

Q. You only testified once before the Grand Jury—

Mr. Turkus: Will you wait just a minute until we get the papers out?

Mr. Talley: Certainly.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you, Judge. I put a pencil mark on page 16.

856 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Mr. Talley: I request that if your Honor finds anything bearing upon this point on which I have interrogated this lady that you know my demand to inspect the Grand Jury minutes is before you and if you do I submit that I am then entitled to them without any question.

The Court: I will be glad to receive any authority of law giving any relaxation of the rigid rule which has always 857 been against it.

Mr. Talley: This is different from an application before trial for inspection of the Grand Jury minutes.

Mr. Turkus: This has to be something contradictory.

The Court: Is this all her testimony?

Mr. Turkus: That is the particular part that—

The Court: You understand the request which is made places a responsibility on the Court of an unusual nature. There 858 are 17 pages of testimony. The Court cannot read a few words that are pointed out but has to read the entire record.

Mr. Turkus: That is all.

The Court: I think it is an unfair burden. The Court should not be required to decide or assume any responsibility on contradictions unless the Court volunteers to do so. I am glad to read the minutes. I am reading them solely for the purpose of seeing if anything occurs to me to which I should direct the attention of the witness on that point but not because the Court considers that under the law it is under any obligation to do so. I have never known it to be done.

Mr. Talley: May I read to you the citation?

The Court: If you give me the citation, I will read it myself.

Mr. Talley: I ask your Honor to look at 262 New York, 140, at page 149. Read the excerpt.

Mr. Turkus: I believe that is the 860
Walsh case that deals with a statement.

The Court: I read that case and I want to refresh my memory on it.

Mr. Talley: If you will just let me read this citation to you, that is all your Honor should require. Shall I continue?

The Court: If I have got to read the whole testimony of a witness before the Grand Jury several years ago, it means an interruption of the trial and there can be no questioning until I am through. The Walsh case was in 1933. There is a more 861 recent authority, within the last few months. You might look that up and let me know later if you find it. I have a distinct recollection of having read it.

Mr. Talley: Your Honor does not recall the case, do you?

The Court: I did not memorize the name and citation. I read it in the advance sheets. This case has been followed in a number of cases where statements are involved, prior statements. I have never extended it to apply to Grand Jury minutes unless the Court found something in the nature of an inconsistency which it was the duty of the Court to have revealed to the jury.

862 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Mr. Talley: I ask your Honor—

The Court: If you stop asking, I can do some reading.

Mr. Talley: I will stop asking until you finish, if you will tell me when you finish.

The Court: It is here. I think you would like to hear it before the jury hears 863 it.

Mr. Talley: I would like to look at it.

The Court: Do you want to come up?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

(Mr. Talley, Mr. Cuff and Mr. Kriendler conferred at the bench with the Court, not within the hearing of the Jury).

(The following occurred at the bench, not within the hearing of the jury).

The Court: The Court offers to read from page 16 of the Grand Jury minutes of October 14, 1936, testimony of Estelle Rosen. Judge Talley objects to it being 864 on the minutes. The Court, of course, sustains the objection so I will continue reading but not for the minutes—

Mr. Talley: May I object to the reading?

The Court: And also state or say to Judge Talley this puts more or less of a burden upon the Court because I have to read every question and answer and if I slip up on anything that I should notice and fail to call attention to it and it is reviewed for the first time in the appellate court, it reflects on the integrity of the trial court. I now continue it.

Mr. Talley: I object to the reading of any of the minutes unless the entire testimony of this witness is placed at my disposal, on my motion, and given to me for the purpose of cross-examination.

The Court: For the same reason you do not want this on the minutes which would only be for the discretion of the appellate court, I am quite sure you would 866 not want all this testimony.

Mr. Talley: I certainly do not. I do not want any of it unless I could cross-examine her.

The Court: There is quite a lot of stuff you would not want.

Mr. Talley: Only on identification.

The Court: As far as the record is concerned, that is all.

(The Court continued to read).

Mr. Turkus: May the record show, your Honor, that I handed to you—
867

The Court: The record is complete.

Mr. Turkus: Has it got the date?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: I ask that the Grand Jury minutes, in so far as they apply to the testimony of this witness, be marked for identification.

The Court: Mark them for identification but as records I don't think they have to be so marked.

Mr. Talley: I want this record to show they are marked or considered marked in evidence.

The Court: Any court takes notice—

Mr. Talley: Even so, I ask that they be marked for identification, or regarded as marked.

The Court: The Court is not entering into a controversy. The Court said they would be marked. I am calling attention to the fact it is simply superfluous. They do not have to be marked. Mark them.

869

(Grand Jury minutes marked Defendants' Exhibit C for identification).

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Mrs. Rosen, do you know a Major Williams? A. Maybe I do. I don't remember him.

Q. Do you remember ever having met him? A. I don't remember no names.

Q. Were you ever in the office of Major Williams at 90 Church Street, Manhattan? A. I 870 don't remember.

Q. Do you know a detective named Olivera, a Federal agent named Olivera? A. Maybe I do. I don't remember. I don't remember names.

Q. Do you say that you do not know Mr. Olivera and that you do not know Major Williams? A. I didn't say I don't know. I said I don't remember.

Q. That is you do not remember whether you know either one of them, is that right? A. Maybe if I see them I would know them. I don't remember names.

Q. Did you refresh your recollection during recess as to whether you were or were not at 90 Church Street in the office of Major Williams there? A. I don't remember.

Q. Were you ever brought to any office building, Federal office building, in the Borough of Manhattan, in connection with this case? A. I was.

Q. And was that a building 90 Church Street? A. I do not know where it was located at.

Q. Was it uptown or downtown in Manhattan? A. It was in Brooklyn, I think, the Post Office 872 Building.

Q. I am asking you about 90 Church Street in the Borough of Manhattan. A. I don't remember.

Q. Have you been living in the Half Moon Hotel? A. That is right.

Q. How long have you been living there? A. About three months.

Q. Three months? A. About three months.

Q. That is these past three months? A. That is correct.

Q. And you are not paying your own bills 873
there, are you? A. No.

Q. They are being paid by the District Attorney? A. I do not know who is paying them.

Q. You don't mean that, do you, Mrs. Rosen? A. I do. I do not know who is paying them.

Q. But you know that you are not paying them yourself? A. That is correct.

Q. And you have no idea who is? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know Mr. Victor Herwitz of the District Attorney's office in New York County? A. I don't remember names.

874 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Q. Did you ever hear the name before? A. I would not remember.

Mr. Talley: Mr. Herwitz, can I trouble you to stand up, please?

(Mr. Victor Herwitz, Assistant District Attorney, stands.)

Q. Did you ever see this gentleman before? A. I don't remember.

875 Q. You do not remember having seen him? Did you see Mr. Herwitz at any time in 90 Church Street, Manhattan? A. I do not remember.

Q. Do you remember having seen this gentleman who just stood up at any time? A. I don't remember.

Q. Don't remember that? A. No.

Q. Were you not in 90 Church Street— A. I don't remember.

Q. Let me finish, please. A. I am sorry.

Q. —at a time when Mr. Herwitz, who just 876 stood up, was present and at a time when the defendant Weiss was brought in? A. Maybe he was there. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you remember whether Saturday night when you had this candy store was a busy night? A. It was a very hot night, I know.

Q. Isn't Saturday night the best night that you had for business? A. Well, this night was pretty fair. It was not a rush, a store where it was over rushed.

Q. Was it a busy night? A. Not very busy, not at all.

Q. It was busy enough for you to keep the store open until twelve or one o'clock in the morning, wasn't it? A. We usually kept it open until twelve or one o'clock whether we were busy or not.

Q. Did you keep it open every night in addition to Saturday night as late as that? A. Yes.

Q. Were there any other customers in the store on this Saturday night of September 12, 1936? A. There was no one in the store at the time.

Q. Nobody in the store at the time? A. No, 878 just people passing.

Q. Do you remember that, that at the time you saw this man come into the store nobody was there except himself? A. When he came in nobody was there. I was in the store.

Q. Any customers? A. Well, I do not know; not that I remember.

Q. Not that you remember? Were there any customers there the first time he came in, which you said was between nine and ten o'clock? A. No.

Q. Were there any customers there the second 879 time you saw him which was later? A. I would not remember.

Q. You do not remember? That is your answer? A. No.

Q. Were you not in another courtroom besides the one in which this jury was being selected, which is the courtroom on this floor adjoining this room that we are now in, at the time when Mr. Weiss was present? A. Will you please repeat that?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

880 Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is ambiguous.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I don't remember. I don't think so.

By the Court:

Q. Before this trial, were you in another courtroom? This trial began in August. A. I was.

881 Q. Before August were you at any time in any courtroom when the defendant Weiss was brought in? A. I was.

Q. That was when he was first arraigned? That would be a long time ago. A. I don't remember. I was in the courtroom but he was not there at the time.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. How long ago was that? A. Well, that was a different trial entirely.

882 Q. How long ago was it that you— A. I do not remember.

Q. Will you let me finish the question? A. I am sorry.

Q. How long ago was it that you were in a courtroom in Manhattan and this defendant Weiss was there at the same time you were? A. Weiss was not there and I don't remember how long ago it was.

Q. When was the last time you saw Weiss before today? A. That was a few weeks ago.

Q. That was in this building? A. In this building.

Q. After this trial had commenced and the jury was being selected, is that right? A. When the jury was to be picked, correct.

Q. Who was it that brought you into the courtroom?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That has been gone over before the recess hour--detail.

The Court: I think so.

Mr. Talley: I am entitled to repetition 884 on cross-examination.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's ruling.

Q. Somebody brought you in?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It has been answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Describe the man or men who brought you 885 into the courtroom that you said was from Mr. Turkus' office?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It has been answered before recess.

Mr. Talley: That has not been asked.

By the Court:

Q. Do you know who they were? A. I don't remember. I was brought in but I don't remember who they were.

886 Q. Would you know them again if you saw them? A. I don't remember faces.

Q. Did you pay attention to the faces of them? A. I was very nervous and so. I do not remember.

Q. Please listen. I do not care whether you were nervous or not. The question now is did you pay attention to the faces and names— A. I paid attention—

Q. Did you pay such attention to faces and 887 names so that at this time you can remember them? A. I paid attention but I do not remember their faces.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you tell his Honor just now that your memory is very poor on faces? A. I did not say it was very poor. I said I don't remember that particular day.

Q. What did you say about being poor on faces, to the Court?

888 The Court: She did not say that.

Q. What did you say about faces? A. I don't remember just which detectives or who the men were that brought me in on that particular day.

Q. I am asking you what you said in answer to the Court's question that you remember names but you do not remember faces?

The Court: She did not say that. The answer was specifically related to the men who brought her in.

Mr. Talley: I would like to have it read.

(Testimony in question read by the reporter.)

The Court: That was only a small part of the answer. (To reporter) Read that so the jury can hear.

(Testimony referred to read by the reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: That is referring to the detectives. 890

Mr. Talley: Referring to what?

Mr. Turkus: To the detectives.

Mr. Talley: We will let the jury determine what it is referring to.

The Court: Do you want to know the names of the detectives? Mr. Turkus may be able to give them to you.

Mr. Turkus: I will find out.

The Court: Then give them to Judge Talley.

Mr. Turkus: I will find out.

The Court: Normally a person would not notice a thing of that kind. 891

Q. Will you describe these persons or detectives that brought you into the courtroom since this jury was being impaneled? A. I cannot describe detectives.

Q. Cannot? A. No.

Q. Where did they bring you from, the District Attorney's office? A. They brought me from my home.

Q. From your home? A. Correct.

Q. What time in the morning did they come to your home to bring you? A. I do not remember.

Q. How did you get from your home to the court house? A. They took me down by automobile.

Q. I do not hear you, madam. A. They took me by automobile.

Q. And you rode with them in the automobile? A. That is right.

Q. How many were there? A. I don't re-
893 member.

Q. Where did they bring you to from your home in the automobile? A. To the court house.

Q. This court house that you are in now? A. I think so.

Q. Did you go to the District Attorney's office with them before you came into the court room? A. I did not.

Q. Did you go there after you had left the court room? A. I did not.

Q. How long was it between the time they called for you at your home and the time that you left them after having been in the court 894 room in which this trial was progressing?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. How long were you in the company of these two men on the morning that you were brought into the court room?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

Mr. Talley: I am not only testing memory; I am testing credibility.

The Court: Mr. Turkus has said he would find out who they were and give you their names.

Mr. Talley: I am not interested in that, if your Honor pleases. I am interested in this witness from the question of both credibility and her power of description.

The Court: It is not a question of 896 power of description; it is a question of circumstances. You might drive an hour in a taxicab, you might drive all day in a taxicab, and see the chauffeur at the wheel and pay no attention to him whatever—

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's statement.

The Court: —because there is nothing to make you look at him memorize his face. I might sit here watching the impaneling of the jury day in and day out, 897 listening to many thousands of questions, and yet when the jury is impaneled I might not have had occasion to have fixed the looks of any particular juryman in my mind so as to recognize him when I see him out of court; so I rule that it is irrelevant—

Mr. Talley: I object to the statement of the Court and take exception to it.

The Court: —that it is not a fair test and tends to be misleading and confuse the jury.

898 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Mr. Talley: I ask leave to put this question—and do not answer this, madam, until the Court rules.

Q. What time intervened between the time the detectives came to your house, brought you to the court room and you left there together?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is irrelevant.

899 The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You told the Court you paid attention to their faces, didn't you? A. I did not.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Would you know these men again if you saw them?

900

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You now remember that you were brought to a court in Manhattan. Do you not remember that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Q. Do you? A. I was brought to a court. I don't remember where it was.

Q. Mrs. Rosen, you know whether the court was in the Borough of Manhattan or the Borough of Brooklyn, don't you? A. I don't remember where it was. I know I was taken, that's all, and after all I went with somebody that I could well be taken care of.

Q. Do you say that the court in which you appeared was not a court in the Borough of Manhattan? A. I do not say that. 902

Q. Will you say it was not in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. I do not say that.

Q. Do you know where it was? A. I do not.

Q. Was the defendant Weiss pointed out to you in that court room, wherever it was? A. He was not.

Q. What was the purpose of bringing you to that court room as explained to you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, if it please the Court.

The Court: Sustained. 903

Q. Were you told the purpose for which you were brought to this court room that you do not know whether it was in Manhattan or Brooklyn? A. Will you please repeat that again?

The Court: Did they tell you why you were brought to that court?

The Witness: They told me they were bringing in several men if I could identify them, if I know any one of the men.

Q. And did you identify any men that were brought into that court room? A. I did.

904 Q. You did not identify the defendant Weiss, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. She has answered that he was not there.

Mr. Talley: That is what she says. I am asking her if she identified the defendant Weiss.

Mr. Turkus: Please, sir, I have an objection. That is a tricky question. How can you identify somebody who was not there to be identified?

905

Mr. Talley: I do not ask tricky questions. I leave that to you.

Mr. Turkus: You are doing a pretty good job of it yourself. I object to the question on the ground that it is a tricky question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: Did you see Weiss there?

The Witness: He was not there.

906 Q. Are you sure about that? A. I am positive.

Q. The fact is that you did not identify Weiss in that court room on that day, isn't that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is answered that he was not there.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Going back to the Saturday night in which you saw this man in his shirt sleeves, how long was he in your store the first time he came in? A. Just walked in, bought a cigarette and looked around and walked out.

Q. How long was he in the candy store the second time he came in? A. The same, just a few minutes, walked in, took a cigarette, looked around and walked out again.

Q. That would take about a minute, wouldn't it? A. I suppose so.

Q. What do you think? A. I do not know. It could not take more than a minute or two minutes, maybe three minutes; I don't know.

Q. When this man in shirt sleeves came into your place, did he give you any money? 908

Mr. Turkus: Object to this man as a man who was in his shirt sleeves. He has been identified by this witness.

Mr. Talley: The witness knows who I am referring to as the man who came into the store in shirt sleeves, the man she so described.

The Court: Overruled.

A. He paid for the cigarette.

Q. Whom did he pay, you? A. To me.

Q. How much did he give you? A. A penny. 909

Q. He handed you a penny? A. That is correct.

Q. And took out one cigarette, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And the second time that he came in, did he give you a penny? A. He did.

Q. He had no business, or transaction, or talk with your husband on either one of these occasions? A. Oh, no.

Q. And your daughter did not wait on him? A. No.

910 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Q. And he did not give the penny or any other money to your daughter? A. To me.

Q. On both occasions he gave the money to you? A. That is right.

Q. And you gave him the cigarettes, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Both times? A. That is right.

Q. Did you ever testify before the Grand Jury that this man that you described as being in his shirt sleeves gave your daughter a dollar? A.

911 This man?

Q. The man that you say came in in his shirt sleeves on Saturday, September 12, 1936, to your store? A. No.

Q. Did you ever testify that the man who came into your store on that date, in his shirt sleeves, that you have described, gave your husband one hundred dollars? A. No.

Mr. Talley: Now I ask your Honor to turn over to me the Grand Jury minutes so that I can examine this witness upon this point.

912 The Court: Every question and answer on that point has been read to you by the Court. Upon your objection it was not taken by Miss McGowan as part of the record. Any one of those questions or answers may be read to the jury if you wish and made a part of the record.

Mr. Talley: I wish to have the Grand Jury minutes placed in my hands so that I can cross-examine or continue my cross-examination of this witness with respect to what she did or did not testify to before the Grand Jury.

The Court: You are not entitled to them.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's ruling. I now ask that the question—

The Court: I am asking you, in view of the questions and answers which you know and which have just been read to you, which on your own objection have been kept out of the record, do you now wish them read to the trial jury?

Mr. Talley: Yes, I do. 914

The Court: Very well then.

Mr. Talley: I want to use them on cross-examination. I will read them to this witness if your Honor will give them to me.

The Court: I cannot give you the Grand Jury minutes and you know I have no right.

Mr. Talley: I know nothing of the kind, sir. I submit I am entitled in the process of cross-examination of this witness—

The Court: Take your exception.

Mr. Talley: Particularly in view of her 915 testimony and your Honor having read the minutes, I am entitled to these Grand Jury minutes.

The Court: You are not entitled to the Grand Jury minutes on other points. I am giving you everything on this point.

Mr. Talley: I don't want them on the other points. I want them on this point.

The Court: You are not entitled to handle them and even use what is in the minutes on other points. You can look over my shoulder at those points and you can see that the Court is accurate in what he read to you and in what you excluded from the record by your objection. You may come right over here and be persuaded that the Court is fair.

Mr. Talley: I don't need to look over the Court's shoulder to know that, sir. I do not like the suggestion. I ask your Honor to read to this jury this witness' answers before the Grand Jury on those two points, as to the question of the man paying her daughter a dollar and on the question of paying her husband a hundred dollars.

917

The Court: How about the rest of it?

Mr. Talley: I don't want the rest of it now. I am stabbing in the dark. You won't give me the minutes. How can I tell whether I want the rest or not?

Mr. Turkus: Let the part be read about the man in the shirt sleeves.

The Court: You are trying to create an impression that the Court is unfair.

918

Mr. Talley: I am doing nothing of the kind and I object to that statement of your Honor.

Mr. Turkus: The money obviously refers to something else.

The Court: How can I pick this out for his discussion? I will read the question to him. There will be an opportunity on your part, Judge Talley, or on the part of any other counsel to object to the reading of the answer to that question, if you desire to object.

919

"Q. You saw him between eleven and twelve and your daughter saw him earlier in the evening?"

That finishes the question. The Court interpolates that the answer is obviously hearsay.

"A. Yes, she saw him walking up and down the block. I want to call your attention to one more thing. He gave my husband one hundred dollars and gave my little girl a dollar."

920

Mr. Talley: That is all I want, sir.

The Court: "Q. Were you there?" Do you wish that?

Mr. Talley: I object. I do not want any more than those two questions that I asked you for.

So that the record on this point may be complete and there will be no misunderstanding about it, I again ask that the testimony of this witness given before the Grand Jury be placed in my hands solely for the purpose of examining this witness upon her testimony.

921

The Court: The record is complete. You will not resume any discussion on that matter.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's refusal.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor entertain an objection on my part, sir? I ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard that statement, question and answer, with respect to the defendant Buchalter not binding upon him.

The Court: I do, because it is obviously hearsay.

Mr. Barshay: That is right.

The Court: A child comes and prattles something to the mother, the mother tells it to the Grand Jury because there is no lawyer for the defense there to object. It is incompetent as evidence either for the purpose of procuring or supporting an indictment or procuring a conviction 923 upon this trial.

Mr. Talley: I object to that statement of the Court.

Mr. Fischbein: Your Honor, I at this time, on behalf of the defendant Louis Capone, join in the objection on behalf of Louis Buchalter.

The Court: The jury is so instructed.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Now I ask you, Mrs. Rosen, having heard the testimony read, did you so testify before the 924 Grand Jury?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is hearsay testimony.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception. May I call your Honor's attention to the fact there is nothing about hearsay testimony in that. She testified the girl had been given a dollar by this man in shirt sleeves and that the man in shirt sleeves paid her husband a hundred dollars.

Mr. Turkus: There is not a scintilla of testimony at all adduced from this witness that there was a man in his shirt sleeves paid a dollar or a hundred dollars to anybody

Mr. Talley: The Court just read the testimony.

Mr. Turkus: Not the man in his shirt sleeves. You did not want it read.

Mr. Talley: Will the District Attorney concede so we won't have to call the Grand Jury stenographer here, that she testified 926 in the manner that the Court read to the jury?

The Court: You do not have to concede it. It is part of the record and established.

Mr. Talley: No further questions.

By the Court:

Q. You are positive you did not see any dollar handed to your daughter or a hundred dollars handed to your husband? A. There was money 927 given but not by this man in the shirt sleeves. There is some mistake somewheres.

Q. I am talking about this man. A. No, not this man.

The Court: The jury will decide whether or not there was any confusion.

The Witness: Not by this man, no.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the last statement made by the witness.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

928 Estelle Rosen—For People—Cross

Mr. Barshay: May I ask your Honor for a direction to the jury that any testimony she gave up to now with respect to any identification of any person is not binding upon the defendant Buchalter?

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: The jury will be charged at the proper time.

Mr. Barshay: May I ask your Honor to 929 instruct the jury that your denial of my motion is not any indication that the testimony at this time is binding upon the defendant Buchalter but you are merely reserving—

The Court: Gentlemen, the Court charges the jury at the conclusion of the evidence and if the Court starts a policy of charging piecemeal throughout the trial, it will simply confuse the trial of the issue. Cases are not tried that way.

930 By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Madam, when you were told by Mr. Cooper to see Mr. Buchalter, it was at some time in 1935?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness has already stated that under oath, that she cannot fix the exact time.

Q. About 1935?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. This is improper re-cross.

The Court: There has been no cross on behalf of Capone. That is the next in order. Mr. Barshay, you will have to wait until counsel for Capone has cross examined.

Mr. Barshay: I have been informed by Mr. Rosenthal with respect to Capone there will be no cross-examination.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal will have to make his own announcement.

Mr. Fischbein: Your Honor, there is 932 no cross-examination on behalf of defendant Louis Capone. At this time, if your Honor pleases, I respectfully move that this Court instruct the jurors to disregard the testimony of this witness up to the present time on the ground that her testimony is not any way binding upon the defendant Louis Capone.

The Court: The Court is tired of saying that the jury will be instructed at the conclusion of the trial. That must not be asked every minute. 933

Mr. Fischbein: I respectfully except.

Mr. Barshay: Now may I press my question?

Mr. Turkus: As to that question I object. It is improper re-cross examination.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

The Court: Sustained. We have been all over that.

Mr. Barshay: This is not re-cross, sir. It is further cross.

The Court: No.

Q. At any rate, were you told by Mr. Cooper that Mr. Buchalter at that time was in Europe?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: You may answer that.

A. No, he just told me to go to see him.

Q. Did you go to see him? A. I was promised but was never taken.

Q. Madam, did you personally go to see him?

935 A. I did not.

Q. You knew where his place of business was, did you, Mr. Buchalter's place of business was? A. I did not.

Q. Did your husband tell you it was in the City of New York? A. I do not know where his place of business was.

Q. Did you ask anyone where his place of business was? A. I asked Mr. Rubin. He told me he will take me to see him.

Q. Of your own accord, madam, did you make any effort to go to his place of business? A. I could not go myself.

936

Q. Did you go? A. I tried to.

Q. Mr. Buchalter never refused to see you, did he? A. Oh, no.

Mr. Barshay: That is all.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you.

Mr. Talley: May I have a further question of this witness?

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Mrs. Rosen, do you remember that this was a warm night that you have been speaking of? A. Particular warm night.

Q. And in that neighborhood it is not unusual to see men in their shirt sleeves, is it? A. No.

Q. And this candy store that you had had an open window? A. That is right.

Q. Leading out to the street? A. That is right.

Q. And you saw many people pass that night? A. That is right.

Q. In their shirt sleeves; is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. There was nothing unusual in anybody purchasing one cigarette in your store at a time, 938 w.... there? A. No.

Q. That was quite the common practice of people, buying one cigarette? A. That is right.

Q. In your store, is that right? A. Yes.

Mr. Talley: That is all.

Mr. Turkus: Harry Regenbogen.

Mr. Talley: If your Honor pleases, will your Honor direct that this witness be kept within call until you definitely and finally pass upon the matter of my application for Grand Jury minutes? I am asking you if you will look at 257 N. Y., 939 page 54, Peo. v. Miller, on this subject, because if your Honor changes your ruling I will have to bring her back,—Peo. v. Miller, 257 N. Y. 54, at page 57.

940 Harry Regenbogen—For People—Direct

HARRY REGENBOGEN, residing at 451 Miller Avenue, Brooklyn, New York, called as a witness on behalf of The People, and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

The Court. I am familiar with this, and that is the reason I indulged as I did. The Court has fully complied with this requirement. Proceed.

Mr. Talley: Take an exception to your Honor's ruling on that.

941

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Regenbogen, did you state to the stenographer that you reside at 451 Miller Avenue, Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you married, sir? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you live there with your wife and family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the year 1936 were you in business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What business were you in? A. Grocery

942 Q. Speak up. A. Grocery and dairy.

Q. Where did you have your grocery store? A. 725 Sutter Avenue.

Q. And where is 725 Sutter Avenue? A. Sutter Avenue corner Bradford Street.

Q. Is that Brownsville? A. I beg pardon?

Q. Is that what they call Brownsville? A. East New York.

Q. How many years did you have a grocery store at 725 Sutter Avenue? A. Over ten years.

Q. Are you in business now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What business are you in now? A. Same business.

Mr. Cuff: Objected to, incompetent.

The Court: Overruled.

The Witness: Same business.

Q. Where is your place of business now? A. 772 Miller Avenue.

Q. In September, 1936, was your grocery store at 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, what time did you open up your grocery store? A. About half past six. 944

Q. In the morning? A. In the morning.

Q. At the time that you arrived at your grocery store at half past six in the morning, did you notice the Rosen candy store? A. Well, the store was closed.

Q. After you opened your store, did you do certain things inside the store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had you had the store open when you heard something? A. It was about fifteen or twenty minutes.

Q. What did you hear? A. I heard some shooting. 945

Q. When you heard the shooting, what did you do? A. I did not pay much attention to it. I did not think it something wrong. I thought it something outside in the street from some machine tires.

Mr. Talley: We do not hear you.

Mr. Turkus: You will have to speak up.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike out all except, "I did not pay much attention to it."

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. Tell me very loud. Try to have me hear you over here. What did you do? A. All right.

Q. Talk to me now. Tell me, what did you do when you heard the shooting? A. I was busy with my things inside the ice box and I tried to straighten out everything in the morning to be ready for business.

Q. All right. You said you were near your ice box doing something when you heard a noise like shooting? A. Yes.

947 Q. When you heard the noise like shooting, what did you do? A. Did not do anything.

Q. Did you walk out of your store? A. No, not at all.

Q. When did you go out of your store, how long after the shooting? A. Quite a few minutes.

Q. At that time when you walked out of your store after you heard the shooting, what did you have on you? What did you wear? A. An apron.

Q. What was the color of the apron? A. White apron.

948 Q. When you got out into the street what did you see? A. I did not see anything in the street when I got out. I tried to look around to see something, but I did not see.

Q. Did you see a man in the street?

Mr. Cuff: Object to that as leading.

A. No, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: The answer is in now.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Louis Stamler? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you talk to Stamler? A. He tried to talk to me.

Q. He started— A. He saw me.

Mr. Fischbein: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Fischbein: Anything that was told to him by another party. 950

The Court: Are you questioning the Court?

Mr. Fischbein: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: Is the Court a witness?

Mr. Fischbein: No, I am merely calling your Honor's attention.

The Court: I am calling attention to the fact the Court has ruled upon something other than that. Apparently you do not understand what is being asked.

Q. Go ahead. What were you saying? A. I looked around in the street and I did not see anyone, but Mr. Stamler noticed me and he told me— 951

Mr. Talley: I object.

The Court: He told you something.

The Witness: He told me to look around in the store.

Mr. Talley: I object to what Stamler told him, if your Honor pleases, and move to strike out whatever it was the witness said.

The Court: Strike it out. You want to find out what he did and what he saw?

Mr. Turkus: That is right.

The Court: Get right down to it.

Mr. Turkus: That is what I am trying to do, but the witness does not speak English as properly as some of the counsel do. It may be a little difficult to extract it from him.

The Court: We all understand that.

953 Q. You say you saw Stamler. Did you see him? A. Yes.

Q. Without telling me what he said, did he say something to you? A. He said to me to look—

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

Q. Don't tell me what he said, but just tell me yes or no: Did you say something to Stamler or did Stamler say something to you? A. As I remember, Stamler said something to me.

954 Q. After Stamler spoke to you, what did you do? A. I turned around to the store.

Q. What store? A. To the candy store.

Q. Did you walk into the candy store? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you look into the candy store? A. I did look when Stamler told me.

Q. When you looked into the candy store what did you see? A. I saw Rosen laying dead.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

955

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit A for identification.)

Q. Mr. Regenbogen, I show you People's Exhibit A for identification and ask you if that is what you saw when you looked into the candy store.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that—

A. Yes, sir.

956

Mr. Rosenthal: —if your Honor pleases, upon the ground that that is not the proper method of proving a photograph.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: People's Exhibit A for identification is offered in evidence.

Mr. Talley: I object to it, if your Honor pleases. I see no possible aid to the jury that that can be. Let me see it, please.

957

Mr. Turkus: You just said you see, it could not be any aid, without looking at it.

Mr. Talley: I say that that photograph is not necessary on the proof of the People's case, is only presented for the purpose of inflaming the jury. There is no question about the man being found dead in that store, in that place, and there is no necessity for putting this photograph on record.

The Court: Overruled. Let me see it.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: Before it is marked in evidence, counsel for defense will be permitted to cross-examine on this point.

Mr. Talley: Have to see the picture first.

Mr. Turkus: Your witness.

The Court: Wait a minute.

Mr. Barshay: May I know from the Court whether or not this was offered for identification or in evidence?

959 The Court: It was marked for identification. It has been offered in evidence.

In view of the scanty character of the witness's answer in identifying the picture, the Court is permitting counsel for defense to cross-examine as to the accuracy of the identification of the picture before it will be marked in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: Counsel declines to cross-examine on that point. He has an objection addressed—

The Court: How about counsel for 960 Weiss?

Mr. Barshay: —to the introduction of this picture in evidence.

Mr. Talley: I have no cross-examination. The objection remains the same.

The Court: How about counsel for Capone?

Mr. Rosenthal: I have no questions, your Honor.

The Court: (to the reporter) Mark it in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: May I note my exception?

Mr. Talley: Exception.

(People's Exhibit A for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 1 in evidence.)

Mr. Barshay: May I direct an objection to its introduction in evidence?

The Court: I thought you had.

Mr. Barshay: I did not because I was not permitted to.

The Court: The Court has not forbidden you to.

962

Mr. Barshay: I did not say you had, but by virtue of the questions—

The Court: Objections were made and overruled.

Mr. Barshay: I did not make any, sir.

The Court: Then make yours.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it on the ground that it is highly inflammatory and prejudicial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Any other counsel object?

963

Mr. Rosenthal: I reiterate the objection on the ground it is in no wise binding upon my client and it is highly inflammatory and prejudicial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: May I exhibit People's Exhibit 1 to the jury?

The Court: Pass it around.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

964 Louis Stamler—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: No cross on behalf of defendant Buchalter.

Mr. Talley: No cross on behalf of defendant Weiss.

Mr. Rosenthal: None on behalf of defendant Capone.

LOUIS STAMLER, residing at 720 Sutter
965 Avenue, Brooklyn, New York, called as a witness on behalf of The People, and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Stamler, what is your business or occupation? A. Tailor.

Q. And how long have you been a tailor? A. About thirty years.

Q. Are you married, Mr. Stamler? A. Married.

Q. And do you live with your wife and fam-
966 ily? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where do you live? A. 720 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn.

Q. Is that near Bradford Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Stamler, on Sunday, September 13, 1936, in the morning, do you recall what time you awoke? A. It was about a quarter to seven I woke up and went to my boy's second room to my boy to wake him up.

Q. You will have to speak loudly.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike out all except "about a quarter to seven" as not responsive.

Q. Did you say that about a quarter to seven you woke up and you went into your son's room? A. To wake him up, he should go to work in the grocery store.

Q. When you were in your son's room waking him up to go to work, did you hear something? A. I heard a shot. I went in back to my room to look out of the window.

Q. When you were looking out of the window, what did you see? A. I saw a machine pull away from the store, the candy store, and a man was 968 laying on the floor all bloody. Then after—

Q. Wait. Slowly. You say you looked out of your window and you saw a machine pull away from in front of the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that when the machine got away from the candy store you saw a man lying on the floor all bloody? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you saw that, did you continue to look at the automobile? A. Then I looked after the machine and took down the license number, plate number, from the machine.

Q. Did you memorize the license number? 969

Mr. Cuff: Object to leading the witness, if your Honor pleases.

A. Yes.

Mr. Cuff: Wait a minute.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. Did you tell me, before the objection, that you had memorized the license number?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you see that automobile go? A. It was turned into Wyona Street.

Q. Turned into Wyona Street? A. Sutter Avenue to Wyona Street.

Q. Is Wyona Street the next street from Bradford? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you memorized the number and saw where that automobile went, what did you do? A. I dressed myself, put on pants and shoes, and I went down to that candy store.

971 Q. Did you dress quickly. A. Very quick.

Q. When you went downstairs, did you see a grocer there, Mr. Regenbogen, the man that wore the white apron? A. He was outside.

Q. When you went downstairs what did you do? A. I saw the man laying and I started to holler. I was screaming, "Police! Police!" Then I saw a cop come down, was between my street and Wyona Street. He came down and I was calling—

Q. Wait, Mr. Stamler, not so fast. Before you ran out into the street and started to scream, 972 "Police!" did you look into the candy store? A. Yes.

Q. When you looked in the candy store did you see this, People's Exhibit 1 in evidence (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes.

Q. After you saw the man did you know who he was? A. I know him.

Q. What was his name? A. Mr. Rosen.

Q. And was he the proprietor of the candy store? A. Yes.

Q. After you saw Rosen, as you have seen him now in this picture, Exhibit 1, did you then run out into the street? A. Yes, and then back. I could not go in.

Mr. Talley: We cannot hear.

Mr. Turkus: You'll have to talk up.

Q. After you saw Rosen laying there dead in the store, did you run out into the street? A. Yes, I ran out and started to holler, "Police!"

Q. And when you hollered "Police!" did you wave your hands? A. Yes, then I saw the cop coming and I called him, "Quick, quick, there's a murderer." 974

Q. Did the policeman come over to you? A. Yes, he come.

Q. When the policeman came over to you, without telling me what you said to him, did you talk to him? A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: Will you bring in Patrolman Cappadora?

(Patrolman Guglielmo Cappadora, Shield No. 17733, enters the court-room.)

975

Q. Do you recognize this police officer? A. Yes, this is the one.

Q. Is that the one? How long after you heard the shots was it before you saw the patrolman, can you tell us, about how many minutes? A. It took about five or seven minutes.

Q. After you spoke to this patrolman whom you have identified as Patrolman Cappadora, did you see the patrolman do something? A. (no answer)

Q. Did you see the policeman go into the candy

976 Louis Stamler—For People—Direct

store? A. He went to the candy store and looked and then he went somewhere.

Q. Let me ask you this: Did you tell Cappadora, the patrolman, the number of the car you had memorized? A. Yes, I told him.

Q. And did you give him a description of the car? A. Told him it was a dark car.

Q. And did Patrolman Cappadora have you remain at the scene of the shooting until police officials and detectives came there? A. Yes.

977

Mr. Turkus: (to reporter) Will you mark that large photograph for identification?

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit B for identification.)

Q. Mr. Stamler, will you kindly arise, turn around, and look at that picture, People's Exhibit B for identification, and tell me, does that show the Rosen candy store as you saw it that Sunday? Is that it? A. Yes.

978

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

Mr. Talley: No objection.

(People's Exhibit B for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 2 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: For convenience in handling, I offer a small-sized photograph, People's Exhibit 2 in evidence, to be received as 2-A, that for the convenience of the jury.

(Photograph received and marked People's Exhibit 2-A in evidence.)

Mr. Talley: Is it a duplicate?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Cuff: That is the regular picture and that is the enlargement.

Q. The house that you house that you live in, Mr. Stamler, is it directly across the street from the Rosen candy store? A. Yes, sir. 980

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this be marked for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit C for identification.)

Q. Mr. Stamler, I show you People's Exhibit C for identification and ask you if that is a picture of the house you live in and the one that you lived in Sunday, September 13, 1936. A. Yes, sir.

981

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

(People's Exhibit C for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 3 in evidence.)

The Court: This is the Bradford Street side?

Mr. Turkus: At Sutter Avenue, one side is the Rosen candy store, that is People's Exhibit 2; the other side is the Stamlers' house, across the way. The third picture will clear up the situation.

982 Louis Stamler—For People—Direct

Q. This picture, People's Exhibit 3, which is the house that you told us you live in, what floor, will you point your finger on the floor where you lived and point it so the jury can see it? A. (Witness indicates.)

Q. One flight up? A. One flight up.

Mr. Turkus: Indicating one flight up on People's Exhibit 3. I ask this photograph be marked for identification.

983

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit D for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit D for identification and ask you if that is the view through your window when you look across the street at the Rosen candy store. A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

Mr. Talley: Is this as the premises existed in September, 1936?

Mr. Turkus: No, that is the way it
984 was in September, 1936. That is the way it is now.

Mr. Talley: I object to it, if your Honor pleases, solely because it is not a photograph of the structure as it appeared in September, 1936.

Mr. Turkus: The photograph is offered, your Honor, to give the jury the visual picture of what you see through Stamler's window.

The Court: I take it it is to show what opportunity there was to see the car and the license plate number from that window.

Mr. Talley: That photograph does not indicate that.

The Court: Pardon me?

Mr. Talley: I beg your pardon.

The Court: For the witness to see from his window into the inside of the store across the street and to see the body lying on the floor.

Mr. Talley: That photograph does not 986 show what anybody could see from the other side of the street.

The Court: It shows only the relative placing of the building, doesn't it?

Mr. Turkus: That is all.

The Court: Let me see it.

Mr. Talley: The photograph can show things that the human eye did not see.

The Court: is this photograph taken from the inside of this witness's premises?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

The Court: Then the frame—

Mr. Turkus: The window frame. 987

The Court: This dark business on the two sides is the window frame?

Mr. Turkus: That is right.

The Court: And the sole purpose is to show the relative location of the two buildings and opportunity to see what he claims to have seen?

Mr. Turkus: That is right.

The Court: So that the details, in so far as they have been changed, are of no consequence in the case?

Mr. Turkus: None at all.

The Court: The picture is received in evidence. Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception on the ground it is not an accurate representation of the premises as they existed in September, 1936.

The Court: As long as the location of the building has not changed it stays in evidence

989 (People's Exhibit D for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 4 in evidence.)

Q. Mr. Stamler, will you turn around and look at the big picture, People's Exhibit 2? On Sunday was the hat store next to the candy store, that Sunday when Rosen was shot? A. Yes.

Q. And was the grocery store there that Sunday? A. Yes.

Q. Now there are different stores there, is that right, alongside of the candy store? A. Grocery store now.

990 Q. And what kind of a store is the next store? A. Supply store, electric supplies.

Q. Other than that, is the building in the same condition as it was at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Same place? A. Same place, only the stores are changed.

Q. But the candy store is still a candy store? A. Same store.

The Court: (to jury) Don't discuss it, gentlemen; just look at it.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

The Court: First, on behalf of the defendant Buchalter.

Mr. Barshay: No cross.

Mr. Talley: No cross.

Mr. Rosenthal: No cross.

GUGLIELMO CAPPADORA, Shield No. 17733, attached to Motorcycle Precinct No. 2, New York Police Department, called as a witness on behalf of The People, and being first duly sworn, testified as follows: 992

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Patrolman Cappadora, are you a member of the uniformed police force of the City of New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what is your present assignment? A. Motorcycle Precinct No. 2.

Q. How many years have you been attached to the uniformed police force of the City of New York? A. Going on eleven years. 993

Q. Are you a member of the Honor Legion of the Police Department?

Mr. Cuff: I object to that.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is that cross bar that you wear over your shield the insignia of the Honor Legion?

Mr. Cuff: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

994 Guglielmo Cappadora—For People—Direct

The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

A. Yes.

Q. When did you receive designation to the Honor Legion of the Police Department?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is not competent with respect to this case.
The Court: Sustained.

995 Q. Did you say your present designation is Motorcycle Squad No. 2? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On September 13, 1936, Patrolman Cappadora, where were you assigned or detailed? A. I was working in the 75th Precinct, assigned to Post 20½ and 19, that is Sutter Avenue.

Q. Where is the 75th Precinct located? A. Miller and Liberty.

Q. How many years had you been in that precinct, the 75th? A. About eight years.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, up to that time how many years had you been in the 75th 996 Precinct? A. A little over five.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, what was your tour of duty? A. I was working 12 midnight to 8 A. M. in the morning.

Q. And did you say you were working post 20½ and 19? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you previously been assigned to those posts before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years had you worked those specific posts? A. For about three years on and off.

Q. On Saturday night when you went to work, did you pass that candy store shown on People's Exhibit 2 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About what time Saturday night did you go by? A. About 10 or a little after.

Q. Did you stop at the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you there see the proprietor, Joseph Rosen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your occasion for stopping there? A. I stopped in and bought a pack of cigarettes. 998

Q. Was that on your way to work? A. On my way going to work.

Q. You say you worked from 12:01 Sunday midnight all the way down to 8 o'clock in the morning on Sunday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the early hours of Sunday morning did you have a particular task to do in connection with traffic lights? A. Yes, sir, I was supposed to put them on.

Q. Approximately what time were you supposed to put those traffic lights on? A. Well, they are supposed to be on by 7 in the morning, so I started a little earlier, about a quarter to. 999

Q. Had you previously put those lights out? A. At 3 in the morning.

Q. And you say about a quarter to seven you started to relight the lights? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were performing your duty, did something occur on Sutter Avenue which attracted your attention? A. Yes, sir.

Q. About what time was it? A. I would say around 6:50 or 6:55 A. M.

Q. What attracted your attention? A. Well,

1000 I saw—I was walking west on Sutter Avenue, I mean east on Sutter Avenue—

Q. Between what streets were you? A. I was between Wyona Street and Vermont Street on Sutter Avenue.

Q. And were you walking in the direction of that Rosen candy store shown on People's Exhibit 2? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you notice? What did you see? Well, I saw a man in the roadway hellering
1001 "Police! Murder! Help!" So he was looking up my way, calling me, so I immediately ran toward him and pulled my gun out to find out what was wrong, and he told me, "In the candy store a man is dead."

Q. Did you look into the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see the proprietor in there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he dead? A. He was lying on his back. I figured he was dead.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 1 and tell me if 1002 that is what you saw when you looked in. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you talk to the man who was yelling "Police! Murder!"? Did you talk to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know his name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is his name? A. Stamler.

Q. Was he the witness who preceded you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you question Stamler? A. I did.

Q. After you questioned Stamler, what did you do? A. Well, he gave me the licence number of the car, and he told me how many men—

Mr. Cuff: I object to what he said to him. Move to strike out the answer.

Mr. Turkus: Consented to.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Tell this jury, after you spoke to Stamler, exactly what you did. Did you get on the telephone? A. I ran into the back, into the candy store, and I got on the telephone and called up T. B.

Q. The jury do not know what T. B. is. A. 1004
The Telegraph Bureau in the Police Department.

Q. That handles all the alarms? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And radio and all other communications for the Police Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What alarm did you broadcast? A. I broadcast an alarm for a car L-16-67, and then I immediately, right after that, I notified the station house of what happened.

Q. What did you say in connection with L-16-67, specifically, the number of occupants? A. I says three or more men in a black sedan, and 1005
I gave them the license number and I told them which way they were proceeding at the time.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out as not binding on the defendants.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Now will you describe what you saw when you saw this man, the proprietor, on the floor? A. Well, when I walked in the candy store I saw the proprietor laying on his back with his 1006 arms outstretched, his face facing the ceiling and his eyes wide open at a sort of an angle, his feet facing to the right of the door of the candy store and his head facing towards the rear of the toilet on the right, on this side, and a puddle of blood on the floor and a lot of newspapers.

Q. How were his legs? A. Wide apart, straight up.

Q. Did you see where the blood was flowing
1007 from the body, in which direction?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is prejudicial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. There was the blood on the left side of his shoulder and arm, and it was going toward the soda fountain to the left of him, quite a puddle of it, and a lot of newspapers in this blood, and there was blood by his back.

1008 Q. After you telephoned the alarm for the automobile with the license number that you gave us and the occupants that you recited, did you keep Mr. Stamler with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make any further report? A. Well, I tried to find out—

Q. No, you cannot tell us that. Did you make any further report to anybody in the Police Department? A. I notified the station house and told them what had happened, and immediately, right after that, the radio cars came down, a sergeant who was on patrol and a sergeant who was turning out for the 8 to 4.

1009

Q. Did the sergeant, your commanding officer from the 75th Precinct, respond? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long after you got there was it before he arrived? A. Oh, about three minutes.

Q. Did you maintain a guard of the premises? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you permit anybody to touch anything in the premises? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, at some time after your commanding officer arrived, did an ambulance arrive? A. Yes, sir.

1010

Q. Was there an interne or ambulance surgeon on the ambulance? A. There was.

Q. Did he look at Joseph Rosen? A. Just looked at him.

Q. And what did he respond? A. He said he was D.O.A.

Q. What does "D.O.A." mean? A. "Dead on arrival."

Q. Did the detectives from the Photo Gallery arrive while you were there? A Yes, sir.

Q. Did they take pictures in your presence? A. They did.

1011

Q. Subsequently did the Medical Examiner of the City of New York arrive? A. He did, right after the ambulance doctor arrived.

Q. Until the Medical Examiner arrived, did you permit anybody to touch or disturb anything either in connection with the body or with the premises? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you fix approximately when the Medical Examiner arrived? A. I would say around 8:30, like that.

Q. Did the Medical Examiner make an inspection of the corpse? A. He did.

Q. Did the Medical Examiner order the removal of the body to the Kings County Morgue? A. He did.

Q. Were you there when the body was taken out of that candy store and sent down to the morgue? A. I was.

Q. Did you assist in putting the body into the morgue wagon? A. I did.

Q. Were you ordered to accompany the body to the morgue? A. I was.

1013 Q. Did you do so? A. I did.

Q. What time did the body arrive at the morgue? A. I would say around 11 o'clock.

Q. Did you there see the body of Joseph Rosen in the Kings County Morgue, on a slab? A. I did.

Q. Who identified the body to the Medical Examiner? A. I did.

Q. Do you remember whether Harold Rosen also identified the body? A. I don't get you.

Q. Harold Rosen, did he also identify the body? A. He did.

1014 The Court: What Medical Examiner?
The Witness: Marten.

Q. Were you present when the Medical Examiner, after identification of the body, commenced the autopsy? A. I was.

Q. Did you stay there long? A. Could not stand it, and I walked out.

Mr. Turkus: Your witness.
Mr. Barshay: No cross.
Mr. Rosenthal: No cross.
Mr. Cuff: No cross.

M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct 1015

M. EDWARD MARTEN, M. D., residing at 152 Lenox Road, Brooklyn, New York, called as a witness on behalf of The People, and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Dr. Marten, are you a physician and surgeon duly licensed to practice your profession in the State of New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how many years have you been so licensed? A. About twenty-five. 1016

Q. Have you continuously practiced and engaged in the practice of your profession? A. Yes, sir, I have.

Q. What position do you hold with the Medical Examiner's office of the City of New York? A. I am the Deputy Chief in charge of Brooklyn and Queens Counties.

Q. And is your title known as Deputy Chief Medical Examiner of the City of New York? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And how many years have you held that office? A. More than twenty years. 1017

Q. Has the office of the Medical Examiner of the City of New York any connection whatsoever with the District Attorney's office? A. No, sir, it has not.

Q. In the twenty years that you have been attached to the Medical Examiner's office, approximately how many autopsies have you performed? A. More than four thousand.

Q. Now, Doctor, on Sunday, September 13, 1936, did you go to premises 725 Sutter Avenue, a candy store? A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. And did you there see a body in that candy store? A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. Was that body subsequently identified to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who made the identification of the body? A. The son of the deceased, Harold Rosen, also a nephew by the name of Schraner.

Q. And was the body also identified by a police officer by the name of Cappadora? A. That is correct, yes, sir.

1019 Q. Will you tell the Court and jury what you saw in connection with that body that was identified to you, first telling us who identified the body as the corpse of what individual? Is that clear to you? A. His son identified the body.

Q. As that of his father? A. At the Kings County Morgue, and also a man that said he was his nephew. His name was Otto Schraner.

Q. The name of the deceased? A. Was Rosen. May I refresh my recollection from the records?

Q. I have no objection. A. The deceased's full name was Joseph Rosen.

1020 Q. Directing your testimony now to the inspection and findings that you made at the scene of the homicide— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —tell the Court and jury what you saw. A. I saw a man partly clad in what appeared to be the usual, you understand, small candy shop, lying flat on his back. He was partly dressed. The clothing upon him—do you want?

Q. Yes, give us an entire description, loudly, so that everybody on the jury can hear it. A. Yes. I arrived at this place somewhere around 8:45 in the forenoon of that day, on the 13th of September, and found a man lying prone, on his back, his body being frankly warm, way down to his extremities, that is to say, he had no opportunity to chill, showing that he had been dead but a short time, relatively speaking.

M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct 1021

Q. Will you keep your voice up, Doctor? A. Within an hour or two. He had on a white woven Oxford weave white shirt with collar attached. The collar band had the name "Rosen" on it, and a rather blurred, hard-to-make-out laundry mark. It bore the label "Fox Haberdashery, Philadelphia, Reading, and Norris- 1022 town." This shirt was badly bloodstained, saturated with blood in its upper portion in front and back and also the sleeves. There were bullet holes present corresponding to those found in the chest, which I shall afterward describe.

There was a white apron such as you might see butchers wear, a string attached at the upper part of it.

He had a pair of cotton shorts on with a blue stripe. This garment was marked "Peppereli Fabrics."

He had an athletic undershirt, which was also 1023 bloodsoaked, and marked, "B.V.D. for best retail trade." In the back the shirt was torn and had six holes in it. There were two what might have been bullet holes around the left armhole.

He had a pair of Oxford gray serge trousers bearing the following laundry marks: "315—657—162—743—and 5."

He had a black leather belt with a metal buckle.

He had a pair of gray garters with blue and red stripe.

He had two white cotton socks and a pair of brown slippers.

Q. What did the inspection of the body disclose, Doctor? A. The inspection showed a white male adult who measured 5 feet 5 inches. His approximate weight was about 175 pounds. He was stocky, heavily built, with a broad, short stubby nose—I would call it.

He had a little opacity or scarring in one of the eyes. This was on the right side.

Rigidity, that is to say, the rigor that develops after death, was already setting in. It was 1025 fairly marked.

Q. Did you order that body removed, that corpse removed, to the Kings County Morgue? A. I did, yes, sir.

Q. And was it brought to the Kings County Morgue for autopsy? A. Yes, that was the purpose.

Q. And was it there where identification was made of the body? A. That is quite correct.

Q. Will you tell the Court and jury what you did on autopsy and what you found? A. An autopsy is essentially a minute dissection of a 1026 body, the technique of which I won't go into. It comprises essentially an outward inspection with a description of the entire body as to height, weight, any special peculiar marking, and then the technique of the autopsy is very fine, what you are doing at a certain time.

The Court: You don't need that. What did you find as bearing on the cause of death?

The Witness: I just wanted to say that there is a stenographer present at all times while I am doing the work and telling him what I am doing and what I am finding and making the proper notations on his record. That is essentially the autopsy.

Q. That autopsy is performed in the regular course of your business as Deputy Chief Medical Examiner of the City of New York? A. Yes.

Q. And it is done for a specific purpose? A. To get all the information I can about the body.

Q. Right. Tell us what you found on autopsy. A. Well, I have described the man to you. Now 1028
I go on to tell you what special markings I found on this man.

This particularly was noted, because of the marks of violence on this man, situated—

Q. You will have to speak more loudly.

Mr. Cuff: We cannot hear you, doctor.

The Witness: Excuse me. I will see that you hear me. There were seventeen bullet holes on this man.

Q. Would you call those entrance and exit 1029 bullet holes, doctor? A. There were a total of seventeen, some of which were entrance and others were exit. If you will permit me to refer to my records, I will give you the exact location of each of the wounds, whether they were or were not entrance or exit wounds, and then give you the tract and the corresponding exit and entrance with which to hook up. Merely for purpose of description I label them 1, 2, 3, and so on. No. 1 was an entrance wound. This was situated on the left side of the face at a level that was one-quarter inch below the ear canal on the left side and one and one-quarter inches anterior to it. The ear canal is merely the hole in your auricle or ear. This was on the left side. It was one and one-quarter inches below—one-quarter inch below this line and one and a quarter inches anterior to it, roughly where my index finger is (indicating). That was an entrance. Bullet hole No. 2 was situated on the lower margin of the mandible or lower jaw—here is the lower margin of the jaw—on the 1031 left side, three inches to the left of the midline —that is the position about where my finger is now (indicating).

1030 M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct

Q. Was that an entrance? A. Yes, sir. No. 3 was another entrance which was situated on the left side of the neck, two and a half inches to the left of the midline, on the level with the upper border of the Adam's apple—position about here (indicating). No. 4 now was an exit wound. This was situated on the back of the neck one inch below and one inch to the right of the bony prominence on the back known as the occipital protuberance. That is the position 1032 where my finger is now (indicating) one inch to the right and one inch below. That would be a point where my finger is now. Bullet wound No. 5 was an entrance. This was situated on a level with the sternal notch, that is the concavity above the breast bone where my finger is now. It was situated at this level and two and three-quarters of an inch to the left—position where my index finger is now. This tract was probed and it was found that it passed from before backwards and somewhat mesial or toward the midline, making its exit. Bullet hole No. 6 which was situated at a point that was on the level with the seventh cervical vertebra and two inches to the left of the midline, the lowest one of these, which would correspond to a position right here on me (indicating) was where this bullet was located or this exit was located, two inches to the left of the midline. Bullet wound No. 7 was an entrance wound and this was situated on the anterior portion of the left shoulder, six inches to the left of the mid-sternal line and one and a half 1034 inches above the supra sternal notch. The supra sternal notch, as before described to you, is the concavity on top of the breast plate, and at a level that was one and a half inches above there and six inches to its left, position about here, indicating by my index finger, there was entrance wound No. 7. This was probed and it was found that the tract was from before backwards and toward the midline, making its exit at bullet wound No. 8, which was situated on the back of the shoulder at a point that was on the level with the seventh cervical vertebra and five 1035 inches to the left of the midline. Now I am going to get into a little difficulty.

Q. Use the court attendant. A. Thank you, sir. There is the seventh cervical and five inches to the left of the midline (indicating on court attendant). That would just about make the exit of that former. Bullet wound No. 9 was situated at a point that was six and three-quarter inches to the left of the midsternal line but on a level with the top of the breast bone. Bullet hole No. 10 was an entrance. This was situated in line with the anterior axillary fold and two inches below the highest point of the pit of the arm, the anterior axillary fold.

Q. Two inches below the highest point of the pit of the arm? A. That is easy enough to fix (indicating on court attendant). The fold is marked out by this muscle here, so it was in line with the fold of the muscle in front and two inches below the highest point of the pit of the arm, about that level. Bullet wound No. 11 was an entrance. It was situated on the 1037 anterior chest wall at a point four and a half inches below the level of the top of the breast plate and six inches to the left of the midline, four and a half inches below, six inches to the left of the midline. Bullet wound No. 12 was an entrance wound that was situated on the outer surface of the left forearm. Anatomically the outer and inner surfaces of the arm are designated in this way. A man is supposed to hold his hands outward like that (indicating). Anything you see in front is anterior and behind is posterior. This was on the posterior surface of 1038 the arm, on the left forearm, and this at the point that was three and three-quarter inches below the oleeranon process, that is simply the funny bone, three and a half inches below that, a position about here (indicating). To this there was a corresponding bullet wound of exit, No. 13, that was found on the inner surface of the forearm at a point four and a half inches below the bend of the elbow. This caused a fracture of one of the bones of the forearm. Bullet wound No. 14 was an entrance wound and was situated on the anterior aspect of the left shoulder on a level with the notch on top of the breast plate and seven inches to the left of the midsternal line, position about where my finger is now. This particular bullet took a course from left to right and downward, left, right, and down, making its exit bullet wound No. 15 which was situated on the outer aspect of the arm at a point four inches below the acromion process, on this side. That simply means the highest, the overlapping arching bone that is over the shoulder joint is known as the acromion process, and four inches below that, 1040 on the outer side, was bullet hole No. 15. There were found two exit wounds on the back of this man, bullet wound No. 16 which was situated on a level with the first thoracic vertebra, that is this one below the cervical which I described before, and two inches to the left of the midline of the body. Bullet hole No. 17 was situated one-quarter inch to the left of the midline of the back on a level with the lower angle of the scapula or shoulder-blade. Perhaps I can show that better on you.

The Court: That is near enough. 1041

The Witness: As near as I can make out, right there (indicating).

The Court: The cause of death was what?

The Witness: Bullet holes perforating the skull, brain and lungs.

Q. Doctor, on autopsy you traced the tract or course of the bullets, did you not? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Let us take bullet No. 1, as you described, which had its entrance on the left side of the face, on a level a quarter of an inch below the line of the external auditory meatus on that side and an inch and a quarter anterior to it. That is labeled bullet hole No. 1, entrance? A. Yes, that is right.

Q. See whether that bullet did not come out at bullet hole 4 exit and trace the course for the jury how that bullet went from the left side of the face, how it went through the head, where it came out? A. Yes, sir. Bullet wound of 1043 entrance labeled 1 made its exit at bullet hole No. 4.

Q. Will you put your two fingers, indicating to the jury on your own body, where the bullet entered and where it exited?

The Court: Is there going to be much more of that?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

The Court: We will resume at the stipulated time.

Mr. Turkus: It will take another half hour at least.

1044

The Court: Ten o'clock tomorrow morning. Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case, let nobody talk to you about it, keep your minds open. The jury may leave.

Gentlemen of the defense, subpoena duces tecum calls for August 4th, what do you want to do about that?

Mr. Cuff: Make it next Monday.

The Court: Change the date.

Defendants are remanded.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to Tuesday, October 21, 1941, at 10 a.m.)

M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct 1045

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 21, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

M. EDWARD MARTEN, a witness in behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Mr. Talley: If your Honor please, may I suggest that while any witness is on the stand who is not going to use the big chart (referring to exhibit on easel in back of witness chair), it should be removed? It has no place there unless a witness is going to use it. 1046

The Court. Will it be all right if it is just turned around?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

The Court: I don't know that it does any harm, but we will turn it around.

(Exhibit adjusted to the wishes of counsel.)

Direct examination (continued) by Mr. Turkus: 1047

Q. At the point of recess last night, if my memory serves me right, you had described the seventeen entrance and exit bullet holes in the corpse of Joseph Rosen, and you were indicating the course or track of Bullet No. 1, exiting at Bullet Hole 4; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you indicate to the jury with your fingers where Bullet Hole No. 1, the entrance bullet, entered the victim, and where it emerged at Bullet Hole No. 4? A. The wound described as being situated in the front of the ear canal on the left side. This made exit at Bullet Hole No. 4. This was on the back of the neck one inch below and one inch to the right of the occipital protuberance. Course: left to right, backward, almost a horizontal course.

1048 M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct

Q. (The Court) Through the brain? A. No, through the neck.

Q. Will you indicate to the jury the track or course of Bullet Wound No. 2, which was the entrance?

1049

The Court: I take it this is not in any way assuming the order of shooting, but is an arbitrary designation by numerals?

Mr. Turkus: That is true. Dr. Marten indicated that yesterday before recess.

The Witness: No. 2 was an entrance wound which had no corresponding exit wound.

Q. Will you show the jury on your face the entrance of Bullet Wound No. 2?

1050

Mr. Cuff: I object. I think that was all given yesterday by Dr. Marten.

Mr. Turkus: We are describing the course and track of the bullet.

The Court: If I recall correctly, yesterday the location of the points of entrance and exit were stated. I do not recall that the course of the bullets was stated.

Mr. Cuff: We cannot see any materiality, in view of what Dr. Marten says was the cause of death.

The Court: The Court is powerless to stop it unless it is incompetent and irrelevant.

The Witness: No. 2 had an entrance point at the lower margin of the mandible on the left side, 3 inches to the left of the mid line—on the left side, 3 inches posterior to the mid line.

Q. (The Court) Do you know the course of that bullet? A. The course of that bullet was from left to right, almost horizontally, and imbedded itself in the 4th cervical verterbra 1052

Q. Meaning what? A. The bony spool, from the top downward the 4th in consecutive order, the top of which is No. 1.

Q. At the top of the spine? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Lodged in the back of the backbone? A. No, sir, in the neck, known as the 4th cervical vertebra.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. I am referring to the entrance which you labeled the entrance of Bullet Wound No. 2 on the lower margin of the mandible, on the left side, 3 inches to the left of the mid line. I want you to follow the course of that bullet and see if it did not go from its point of entrance left to right and upward, passing on the right side through the brain and lodging itself in the plate of bone up in this region (indicating)—the right temporal muscle. A. Yes, sir; I indicated that Bullets 2 and 3 had no corresponding exits. Now, if we were to take No. 2—is that the next? 1053

Q. Yes? A. No. 2 took a course just as you pointed out, that is to say, from the point of entrance left to right and upward, passed through the skull and into the space on the right side, lacerating the brain, and found on the right side, on the inner side of the plate or bone that is adjacent.

Q. Would that about indicate the entrance and exit— That bullet was imbedded, wasn't it, in the temporal muscle? A. Yes, sir, on the right side.

1055 Q. Did you recover or extract that bullet from the temporal muscle on the right side of the victim when you performed your autopsy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you that bullet in court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you designate that bullet with any marking? A. Yes, sir, I marked it.

Q. What was the marking? A. "M".

Q. Is it "MM"? A. "MM", and another I recovered that I labeled "MR." "MM" was the one that passed through and mushroomed.

Q. The one you recovered that entered in the 1056 jaw and you found lodged in the temporal muscle, having passed through the brain, which bullet is that? A. The mushroomed bullet.

Q. You have designated that mushroomed bullet— A. "MM", I believe.

Mr. Turkus: "MM", recovered on the autopsy, is now offered in evidence.

The Court: As each bullet is marked in evidence, put it in a separate envelope, a manilla envelope.

Mr. Turkus: Is there anything on the envelope you have (addressing witness) that should not be on that envelope? Can we use it?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I see no objection to using that envelope that Dr. Marten has. I will pass it to counsel and see if they have any objection.

(Received in evidence and marked People's Exhibit No. 5, without objection.)

1058

By the Court:

Q. Are we to take it that the mushrooming is caused by its going through the skull? A. Yes, sir, any hard substance would cause a mushroom.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Now, Doctor, will you refer to the bullet which you have labeled No. 3, the entrance wound? A. Yes, sir.

1059

Q. Did that bullet enter on the left side of the neck about 2½ inches to the left of the mid line of the neck or on a level with the upper border of the thyroid cartilage, which is known as the Adam's apple? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you indicate that point of entrance to the jury and tell us where you recovered that bullet? A. This wound was to the left side of the neck about the level of the Adam's apple. It went from left to right almost horizontally across, somewhat backward, and imbedded itself on the side of the 4th cervical vertebra.

1060 M. Eduard Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct

Q. Will you indicate where the 4th cervical vertebra is? A. (Witness indicates on court attendant.)

Q. Having entered the left side of the neck? A. Yes, sir, just about the level of the upper part of his collar (indicating on court attendant).

Q. Did you recover that bullet that lodged itself in the vicinity of the 4th cervical vertebra in the autopsy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you mark that bullet? A. Yes, sir.

1061 Q. How did you designate it? A. This I believe is "MR," yes, sir.

Mr. Tuskus: I offer that bullet in evidence.

(Received in evidence and marked People's Exhibit No. 6, without objection.)

Q. This bullet which you recovered in the region of the 4th cervical vertebra appears to be deformed. Is that the exact condition in which 1062 you found it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you account for that deformity of the bullet, or has that something to do with ballistics? A. I would rather have it explained by the ballistics expert.

Q. At any rate, that bullet, in its course and track, did not hit any bony parts of the body? A. It hit alongside of the 4th cervical vertebra.

Q. (The Court). That is the bone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Bullet 5 is the wound that you have described as the entrance wound situated on a level with the suprasternal notch and 2¾ inches to the left of the mid line, and that bullet passed from backward and slightly laterally. Will you explain to the jury whether that wound does not exit at the Bullet Wound No. 6? Show the jury the course and track of that bullet. A. (indicating on court attendant). About here, on a level with the top of the breastbone and made its exit in the back in the hole we call No. 6. No. 6 situated at a point on the level with the 7th cervical vertebra, 2 inches to the left of the mid line, which would be about here (indicating on court attendant).

1064

Q. I asked you through what part of the body did that bullet pass? A. About the base of the neck.

Q. Referring to Bullet Wound No. 7 which you have described as entrance, situated on the anterior portion of the left shoulder, 6 inches to the left of the mid sternal line and 1½ inches above the level of the suprasternal notch, it took a course from before backward, laterally; see if that does not exit at Bullet Wound 8. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you indicate to the jury the course and track of that bullet, showing where it entered and exited and the course through the body it took?

1065

Mr. Cuff: I object to this as being pure repetition, and testified to last night. He testified to that bullet.

Mr. Turkus: The Medical Examiner took seventeen entrance and exit wounds, but the course and track of these bullets have never been established. They are an important part of the People's case.

The importance will be seen with the next witness.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

The Witness: It is on the anterior part of the left shoulder, 6 inches to the left of the mid line, which is about here (indicating). This went backwards through the shoulder, the soft part, and then went laterally toward the center and also on the left of the 7th cervical vertebra, and came 1067 out at a point 5 inches to the left of the middle, about here (indicating). That takes care of 7 and 8 so far.

Q. Now referring to Bullet No. 9, which you have designated as an entrance wound, did that enter the victim at a point that is about $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches to the left of the mid sternal line and on a level with the suprasternal notch? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did that wound— Will you describe the track of that bullet wound—showing where it 1068 entered and where it exited? A. The track of Bullet 9 perforated the skin only, did not go inside, did not penetrate any member. There was no track, in other words, beyond the skin, of No. 9 bullet.

Q. Will you show the jury where the entrance was? A. The entrance of No 9 was $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches to the left of the mid sternal line on a level with the suprasternal notch, $6\frac{3}{4}$ inches—about here (indicating).

Q. That left no track and no exit? A. No, sir, it just nicked the skin and did not enter the structure of the chest wall any further.

M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct 1069

Q. Referring to Bullet No. 10, which you have described as an entrance wound situated in line with the anterior axillary fold, 2 inches below the highest point of the pit of the arm, and show the jury the course and track of that bullet. A. No. 10 at its entrance is in line with the anterior axillary fold on the left side, 2 inches below its highest point, a position about here (indicating), and came through at 16. Now, 16—

Q. Is that on a level with the 1st thoracic vertebra? A. That is situated on a level with the right thoracic vertebra and 2 inches to the left of the mid line. 1070

Q. Will you indicate the exit and entrance wound and tell us the course or track of the bullet? A. That is No. 10?

Q. Yes. A. No. 10, situated in a line with the anterior axillary fold, 2 inches below the highest point of the pit of the arm, made its exit at 16, situated on a level with the 1st thoracic vertebra, a position about where I am putting my finger. That is on the upper part of the chest and 2 inches to the left of the mid line. 1071

Q. Did that bullet in its course or track go around the chest wall? A. Yes, sir, it did.

Q. It did not pass through the chest cavity? A. No, that is correct.

Q. Now, Doctor, will you refer to the wound you have described as an entrance, Bullet Wound No. 11? A. 11 was situated on the anterior chest wall at a point 4½ inches below the top of the breastplate and 6 inches to the left of the mid sternal line, about where my finger is now (indicating).

1072 Q. Did that exit at Wound No. 17? A. It did, yes, sir.

Q. Will you describe where the bullet came out? A. 11 came out 1/4 of an inch to the left of the mid line of the back and at the lower angle of the scapula or shoulder blade—one sometimes refers to it as "wing."

Q. Will you tell the jury the course and track of that bullet entering at Bullet Hole No. 11 and emerging at Bullet Hole 17? A. 4 1/2 inches 1073 below the level of the suprasternal, 6 inches to the left.

Q. You say that came out on the left of the mid line of the back, at a point you call the scapula or wing? A. Yes, sir. It is a triangular bone. That is, went from before backward, almost horizontally across, and came out at that point.

Q. Did it go from left to right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it go through the 4th rib? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it perforate the lower margin and the upper lobe of the left lung? A. Yes, sir.

1074 Q. Did it go through the lower lobe and then through that portion of the body at the 6th thoracic vertebra? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And came out as you indicated at that point where the wing is? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. When you were asked last night as to the cause of death, I think you mentioned three causes, one perforation by bullet in the brain, another bullet perforation of the lung. What was the third? A. A hemorrhage that attends either one of those would be fatal.

M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct 1075

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Will you refer to Bullet Hole No. 12, which you described as entrance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you show the jury if it did not exit at Bullet Hole No. 13? Show the jury the course and track of that bullet. A. Yes, sir. 12 and 13 correspond, 12 being situated on the olecranon, on the left forearm, at a point 3¾ inches below the funny-bone. That was the entrance.

Q. (The Court) You mean inside the elbow? 1076
A. I mean it was 3¾ inches below the olecranon, a process which we commonly refer to as the funny-bone, on the surface of the left forearm. This had a corresponding exit wound.

Q. Was that on the inner surface of the forearm? A. This is labeled No. 13; this is on the inner surface of the forearm, 4½ inches below the bone of the elbow. Here is the point of the elbow (indicating); 4½ inches below.

Q. So that the bullet that went in at the point indicated exited at the point you indicate and fractured the radius of the arm? A. Yes, sir. 1077

Q. Will you tell the jury what the radius is? A. It is one of the bones of the forearm. The outer one, near the front, is the radius.

Q. Those are bones you can feel if you press your arm with your fingers? A. They can be felt, yes, sir.

Q. You refer to Bullet Hole No. 14, entrance. See if that does not correspond with Bullet Hole No. 15, exit, and describe to the jury the course and track of that bullet. A. Yes, sir, 14 was the entrance wound, it is situated on the anterior aspect of the left shoulder on the left or top of the breast plate, and 7 inches to the left of the mid sternal line, possibly about here (indicating). This had a corresponding exit at 15, which is on the outer aspect of the arm at a point 4 inches below the bony prominence known as the olecranon process, which overlies the shoulder joint; 4 inches below that on the outer aspect, a corresponding exit wound was No. 15.

1078 M. Edward Marten, M.D.—For People—Direct

I think that takes care of them all.

Q. No, there is one more. A. I checked them
1079 as I was going along.

Q. 16 is the exit of Bullet 10? A. Yes, sir.

Q. 17 is the one that corresponds with 11? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now Doctor, referring now to People's Exhibit 5 and 6, "MM" and "MR", respectively, which you recovered from the body of Joseph Rosen on autopsy and placed where you told the jury, were they delivered by you to the Bureau of Ballistics of the Police Department? A. Yes, sir. I marked them on the envelope at the time.

Q. Do you recall whether you made delivery
1080 to Detective George Dumont of the Ballistics Bureau? A. Yes, sir, that is correct. He initialed them for me.

Q. Did you produce those bullets in court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive them from Detective Schaefer of the Bureau of Ballistics? A. I believe I did. I marked them.

Q. Do you recall the date you gave them to Detective Dumont and the day you received them back from Detective Schaefer? I may be able to refresh your recollection. A. It was very near the 13th of the month, on the day of the autopsy, and they were returned on the 11th month, 7th day, of the 40th year.

Q. That would be November 7, 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is yours for cross-examination.

Defense Counsel: No cross-examination.

By the Court: 1082

Q. Who identified the body to you? A. The son of Mr. Rosen, Harold, and a nephew whose name was Schraner.

Mr. Turkus: And Patrolman Cappadora. That was also testified to.

FREDERICK W. WALSH, Shield No. 809, attached to the 123rd Squad, Police Department, Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of The People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows: 1083

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Are you a member of the Police Department of the City of New York? A. I am.

Q. How many years have you been attached to the police force? A. Since July 1st, 1931.

Q. What is your present assignment or detail? A. 123rd Squad, detective.

Q. Have you heretofore been associated or detailed with the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department? A. I was.

Q. For how many years were you connected with the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department? A. From April 15, 1934, to October 24, 1940.

Q. Some 6½ years? A. Approximately.

Q. While connected with the Ballistics Bureau what were your duties? A. My duties were to make investigations at the scene of shootings, 1085 examine any firearms that may have been recovered to determine whether or not they had been recently discharged, examine clothing for the presence or absence of powder marks. Make a search for spent bullets, and note their location.

Q. Did you receive your training from the commanding officer of the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department? A. I did.

Q. What is his name? A. Sergeant Harry Butts.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, were you attached to the Ballistics Bureau? A. I was.

1086 Q. Did you receive an order or command in connection with certain duties to be performed? A. I did.

Q. Did you respond thereto? A. I did.

Q. Did you ultimately go to 725 Sutter Avenue, in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall approximately at what time you arrived there? A. About 7:45 a. m.

Q. Were the premises a candy store? A. They were.

Q. Will you turn that photograph around, please, referring to the picture in back of the witness chair, People's Exhibit 2 in evidence—is that the place where you went? A. It is.

Q. Do you say you arrived there at approximately what time? A. 7:45 A. M.

Q. Did you there see the body of a man on the floor of that candy store? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall the condition of that body? A. The body was lying on its back face up; there were pools of blood about the body.

Mr. Barshay: I object. This has already been described amply by the other witnesses; it is repetition. 1088

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Continue with your description. A. And the clothing was bloodstained.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 1 in evidence and ask you if that is an accurate picture of the condition of the body and the candy store at the time you made your inspection. A. It is.

Q. Now, were you present, Detective, when Medical Examiner Marten arrived and made an inspection of the body? A. I was. 1089

Q. Were you there when the Medical Examiner ordered the corpse removed to the Kings County Morgue for autopsy? A. I was.

Q. Did you see the body removed from the premises? A. I did.

Q. Did you see who picked the body up? A. The officer assisted the morgue attendant.

Q. Did you, after the body was lifted from its position where you first saw it, and then brought to the wagon and then ultimately to the 1090 morgue, did you afterwards commence your work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell the jury what you found at the scene of the homicide? I would like you to detail the measurements of the place, where you found the bullets. If you cannot do it by memory, refer to any paper that will refresh your recollection. A. May I refer to my notes?

The Court: Yes.

1091 The Witness: I first noted that there was a bullet hole in the west wall 47½ inches up and 90 inches from the north wall at the edge of the mirror, the same penetrated the wall and exited into the adjoining hat store.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 2 in evidence, that large photograph in back of you. Is the west wall as you describe it the wall between the candy store and the hat store called the Pearl-Renee Hat Shop? A. It is.

1092 Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 1 in evidence and tell us if the wall you refer to is not the wall nearest the telephone booth on People's Exhibit 1? A. It is.

Q. You say there was a bullet hole on that wall in the candy store nearest the telephone booth, that went through the wall and came out in the hat store or hat shop?

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have it clear on the record that I am going to object and that all this testimony is taken subject to connection and subject to a motion to strike out as far as the defendant Capone is concerned?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: And as far as the defendant Buchalter is concerned?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: And as far as our defendant, Weiss, is concerned?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. It is. 1094

Q. Did you give the measurements as being, the point of entrance in the candy store as 47½ inches up and 90 inches from the north wall? A. I did.

Q. Is the north wall the wall against which the telephone booth and the various containers of candy and bottles are indicated on People's Exhibit 1, their Coca-Cola exhibit? A. Yes.

Q. So that roughly, then, the back of the store is the north wall? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the wall connecting the candy store with the Pearl-Renee Hat Shop is the west wall? A. It is. 1095

Q. Did you go into the Pearl-Renee Hat Shop in search of that bullet which went through the candy store west wall? A. I did.

Q. Where did you find that bullet exited? A. It exited at the east wall of the hat shop at a point 41 inches up from the floor, and I recovered that bullet lying on the floor 36 inches from the north wall and 2 inches from the east wall.

Q. Does that indicate that the bullet, after going through the wall, still carried on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. 36 inches before it dropped, or does it indicate it dropped right alongside of the wall? That is not clear to me. A. It apparently bounced around the room and was found lodged there or it may have been kicked to the position I recovered it in.

Q. What kind of a bullet was it that you recovered in the Pearl-Renee Hat Shop? A. That 1097 was a .38 calibre copper-coated lead bullet, twisted rifling, left six, which I marked "FW 2" for identification.

Q. Was that a .38 calibre special? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a copper-coated bullet? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you say "left six," does that refer to the rifling? A. Twisted rifling.

Q. Did you mark that bullet with "FW 2" as you just stated? A. I did.

Q. Have you that bullet here? A. Yes, sir.

1098 Q. May I see it? A. (producing) This is "FW 2".

Mr. Turkus: The bullet "FW 2" found under the circumstances related by Detective Walsh I offer in evidence.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit No. 7 in evidence, without objection.)

Q. Referring to People's Exhibit 7, which is that spent bullet, "FW 2", and which you said

"left six", does that mean the twisted rifling was left? A. It was from the left to the right.

Q What does "six" mean? A. That there are six lines of groove marks engraved on that bullet.

Q. Will you tell the jury what "rifling" is? A. "Rifling" is the result of a bullet or projectile having been fired from a firearm, the twisted rifling having been put there by the manufacturer.

1100

By the Court:

Q. There is rifling in a gun made for the purpose of obtaining greater speed of the bullet when it leaves the gun? A. It does.

Q. By looking down the barrel of a gun, is that visible? A. Yes, sir, it is.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Isn't it a scientific fact that every barrel has a rifling that leaves an impression on the bullet, leaves the impression on that bullet alone; in other words, that any gun which fires a bullet will leave a peculiar characteristic of the bullet which has remained in that gun? A. It is true of rifles and firearms. 1101

Q. That is also true as to fingerprints? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Climenko: I object to that as calling for a comparison. You have not qualified him on that.

The Court: The question of rifling is quite apart from the question of individ-

1102 Frederick W. Walsh—For People—Direct

ual characteristics of firearms. I want the jury to understand—is this a plain statement: The purpose of rifling the inner surface of the rifle or gun barrel is to spin the bullet and thereby produce more velocity?

The Witness: That is true.

Q. That is, if the rifle barrel is not rifled or if the gun barrel is not rifled, the bullet shoots 1103 out and simply sails in the air? A. Turns end over end.

Q. But when it spins it maintains its true course afterward? A. That is correct.

Q. Then the rifle mark on the bullet, as I take it, is caused by the resistance of the fire on the inner side or surface of the barrel by the lead or copper or other covering on that bullet, thereby leaving a mark? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which is indicated in precisely the opposite direction by any scar it leaves on the bullet? A. In the same direction.

1104 By Mr. Turkus:

Q. This bullet which was recovered in the hat shop, initialed "FW 2", People's Exhibit 7 in evidence, was that weighed? A. It was.

Q. And what was its weight? A. 155.6 grains.

Q. Did you find another bullet at the scene of the homicide? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the next bullet you found? A. I found a bullet imbedded in the floor at a point 7 inches from the right shoulder of the deceased. This was 52 inches from the west wall and 74 inches from the north wall.

Q. What kind of a bullet was it? A. That was a .38 calibre Special, half metal case bullet, left six, which I marked "FW 1."

Q. You say you pried that out of the floor at a point 7 inches from the right shoulder of the corpse? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would that be in the vicinity of that Coca-Cola box shown on People's Exhibit 1? A. It would.

Q. Did you put a mark on the bullet which you pried out of the floor? A. I did. 1106

Q. How did you mark or designate that bullet? A. "FW 1."

Q. Did you weigh that bullet? A. I did.

Q. What was its weight? A. 175.2 grains.

Q. Was that a different type of bullet you referred to from People's Exhibit 7 in evidence, the spent bullet which you marked "FW 2," as half-metal case bullet, am I correct? A. The first bullet was copper coated.

Q. The second bullet you speak of, was that a half metal case bullet? A. Half metal case bullet. 1107

Q. That is "FW 1"? A. Yes, sir

Q. Is that a different type of ammunition, that copper-coated bullet? A. The bullet itself is made of different construction. It has a cupro-nickel jacket over the nose of the bullet, half way to its face, and it is termed, half-metal case.

Q. Cupro-coated, is that a fine veneer of copper over the lead bullet? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the bullet, "FW 1" in evidence.

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 8 in evidence.)

By the Court:

Q. What is cupro-nickel? A. A composition of nickel and copper used in the metal covering for manufacturing bullets.

Q. How do you spell it? A. Cupro-nickel.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Referring to People's Exhibit 8, that half-metal case bullet, is that jacket that goes or fits 1109 over the lead, is that what makes it known as half-metal case? A. It has a cupro-nickel jacket that fits half way down over the nose of this bullet.

Q. Will you tell the jary now where you found the next bullet? A. I found a bullet hole in the floor at a point 85½ inches from the north wall and 53 inches from the west wall beneath the body from which I recovered a bullet.

Q. You recovered the bullet directly beneath the body at the measurements you have indicated? A. Yes, sir.

1110 Q. What kind of a bullet was that? A. A .38 calibre special copper-coated lead bullet, left deformed, which I marked "FW 3."

Q. Did you weigh that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did it weigh? A. 154.6 grains.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the bullet in evidence.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 9 in evidence, without objection.)

The Court: See that each bullet is in its proper envelope before another one is passed around.

Q. In addition to People's Exhibit 9, "FW 3," which you pried out from the floor underneath the body, did you find another bullet beneath the body embedded in the floor? A. I did.

Q. Tell the jury about that. A. A bullet hole in the floor beneath the body, 82 inches from the north wall and 58 inches from the west wall.

Q What kind of a bullet was that? A. .38 calibre Special, copper-coated lead bullet, left deformed, which I marked "FW 4." 1112

Q. Did you weigh that bullet? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did it weigh? A. 152.2 grains

Mr. Turkus: I offer that bullet in evidence.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 10 in evidence, without objection.)

Q. In addition to these two bullets which you pried out of the floor, underneath the body, People's Exhibit 9 and 10, which are marked "FW 3" and "FW 4," did you find still another bullet beneath the body which you pried out of the floor? A. Yes, sir. 1113

Q. Will you tell the jury where that bullet was? A. That bullet was at a point 78½ inches from the north wall and 57½ inches from the west wall, imbedded in the floor.

Q. What was it? A. A .38 calibre Special half-metal case bullet, left deformed, marked "FW 5."

Q. Did you weigh that bullet? A. Yes, sir.

1114 Frederick W. Walsh—For People—Direct

Q. What was the weight? A. 155.2 grains.

Mr. Turkus: I offer that bullet in evidence.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 11 in evidence, without objection.)

Q. In addition to those three, People's Exhibits 9, 10, and 11, which you have in court, "FW 3", "FW 4", and "FW 5", respectively, 1115 did you find still another bullet imbedded in the floor underneath the body? A. I did.

Q. Where did you find that bullet? A. That was at a point 84½ inches from the north wall and 61 inches from the west wall, imbedded in the floor.

Q. What type did you recover there? A. A .38 calibre Special, half-metal case bullet, left deformed, which I marked "FW 6."

Q. Did you weigh that bullet? A. I did.

Q. What was its weight? A. 156.5 grains.

1116 Mr. Turkus: I offer that bullet in evidence.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 12, without objection.)

Q. How was that candy store floor covered, and describe how you pried these bullets out of the floor in the condition they were in when you pried them out. A. The floor was covered with two types of linoleum, and the bullets were recovered imbedded straight into the wood beneath the linoleum.

Q. Did you take those bullets out of the wooden floor beneath those two layers of linoleum? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any blood on the bullets? A. There was some blood over the bullets, because I removed the clot from above this in order to locate them.

Q. Were you there when the body was lifted up from its position on the candy store floor? A. Yes, sir, I was.

Q. Did you see the position of the body before 1118 it was lifted up from the floor and removed to the morgue? A. I did.

By the Court:

Q. What method did you use in gouging or cutting out these bullets from the floor to prevent further mutilation? A. I cut around into the floor with a pen knife without touching or scarring further.

By Mr. Turkus: 1119

Q. Referring to the four bullets you dug out of the floor underneath the body, People's Exhibits 9, 10, 11, 12, designated by you as "FW 3," "FW 4," "FW 5," "FW 6," will you tell the jury whether or not two of the bullets are not copper-coated bullets and the other two half-metal case bullets? A. Exhibits 9 and 10 are copper-coated lead bullets, and Exhibits 11 and 12 are half-metal case bullets.

Q. Those four bullets, the two copper-coated and the two half-metal case, were pried out from 1120 the floor in the manner described to the jury. Were those direct shots? A. They entered directly into the floor.

Q. Having been present when the body was lifted up, and having done the things you described to the jury, can you say with reasonable certainty that the victim was flat on his back when those four bullets went through his body into the floor as direct hits? A. I cannot.

Q. Can you say with reasonable certainty the 1121 four bullets, the two copper-coated and the two half-metal case, Exhibits 9, 10, 11, and 12 in evidence, were direct hits through the body into the floor? A. I cannot.

Q. Describe the course of those bullets. A. Those bullets were fired directly into the floor. Whether they passed through the body or not, I am unable to tell.

Q. You found blood on them, didn't you?

Mr. Barshay: I object. He is trying to impeach his own witness.

1122 The Court: I can understand the objection. There was a pool of blood on the floor, so the presence of blood on the bullet would not mean it passed through his body. The jury will listen to argument on that point. The witness says he cannot say as an expert.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. As I understand it, you were there when the body was lifted off the floor? A. I was.

Q. Now, in prying out those bullets, did you say there was coagulated blood there? A. There were pools of blood covering these bullet holes beneath the body.

By the Court:

Q. Were there bullet holes in the wood, directly into the wood, or did they go laterally into the wood? A. Directly into the wood.

Q. Laterally would mean they ran somewhat sidewise. A. Either one side or the other. 1124

Q. In other words, it was a downward shot? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Referring to the four bullets recovered from underneath the body, they were not angular shots, were they?

Mr. Climenko: I object to that as repetition.

The Court: He has just explained. He said they were directly down into the floor from above. 1125

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this revolver be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit E for identification.)

Q. People's Exhibit E for identification, was that People's Exhibit E for identification brought to the Ballistics Bureau of the Police Department? A. It was.

1126

Q. Do you recall the day it was brought there? A. September 14, 1936.

Q. Was it brought there by Detective King of the 75th Squad? A. It was.

Q. Did you receive the gun from Detective King at the direction of your commanding officer, Sergeant Butts of the Ballistics Bureau? A. I did.

Q. Did you turn it over to Sergeant Butts for comparison purposes? A. I did.

1127

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross examination.

Defense Counsel: No questions.

GEORGE V. DUMONT, Shield No. 1631, attached to the Brooklyn Homicide Squad, Police Department, Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

1128

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Are you a detective in the employ of the Police Department of the City of New York? A. Yes.

Q. How many years have you been attached to the Police Department of the City of New York? A. For the past 18½ years.

Q. How many years have you been in the Detective Bureau? A. About 8½ years.

Q. How many years have you been assigned as a detective to the Ballistics Bureau? A. I was there about 8½ years, I take that back.

Q. Your present assignment, is that in the Brooklyn Homicide Squad? A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the month of September, 1936, were you assigned a detail to the Bureau of Ballistics of the Police Department of the City of New York? A. I was.

Q. In the course of your regular duties did you receive People's Exhibits 5 and 6 in evidence? A. I did. 1130

Q. Did you receive those two bullets, People's Exhibits 5 and 6 in evidence, from the Deputy Chief Medical Examiner, Dr. Martin? A. I did.

Q. Are those two bullets marked MM and MR, respectively? A. They are.

Q. Were they received by you in the regular course of your duties at the Ballistics Bureau on the 14th of September, 1936? A. They were received by me at the morgue; I brought them to the Ballistics Bureau.

Q. What was the date they were received at the morgue? A. September 14, 1936.

Q. Did you take both of these bullets, "MM" and "MR," respectively, designated People's Exhibits 5 and 6 in evidence, to the Bureau of Ballistics of the Police Department? A. Yes, sir. 1131

Q. Did you there turn them over to your commanding officer, Sergeant Butts, for comparison, examination, and inspection? A. I did.

Mr. Turkus: You may inquire.

Defense Counsel: No questions.

1132 Emil Schaefer—For People—Direct

EMIL SCHAEFER, Shield No. 1163, Ballistics Bureau, Police Department, Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. You are a detective in the employ of the Police Department of the City of New York? A. Yes.

1133 Q. How many years have you been attached to the Police Department of the City of New York? A. Ten years.

Q. Of those ten years how many years have you been a detective? A. Seven.

Q. Are you attached to the Bureau of Ballistics? A. I am.

Q. How many years have you been there attached? A. Seven years.

Q. I show you People's Exhibits 5 and 6 in evidence, and I ask you whether or not you received them during the regular course of your duties in the Ballistics Bureau? A. Yes, sir.

1134 Q. Are those bullets marked "MM" and "MR," respectively? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you on the 7th of November, 1940, receive those two bullets marked "MM" and "MR," respectively, now designated People's Exhibits 5 and 6 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom did you receive those bullets? A. Sergeant Butts, the commanding officer of the Ballistics Bureau.

Q. To whom did you make delivery of those bullets? A. To Dr. Marten, the Medical Examiner.

Defense Counsel: No questions.

Herman Schiesser—For People—Direct 1135

HERMAN SCHIESSER, residing at 123-19 85th Avenue, Richmond Hill, Borough of Queens, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of The People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Were you a member of the Police Department of the City of New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For how many years were you a member of the Police Force? A. About 25 years and 5 months. 1136

Q. Did you retire from it? A. I did.

Q. What was the date of your retirement? A. March 7, 1937.

Q. Are you presently employed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where are you employed? A. By Gibbs & Cox, 21 West Street.

Q. Of the 25 years you have been in the Police Department, how many years were you a detective? A. Between 23 and 24.

Q. (The Court) What is the business of Gibbs & Cox? A. They are architects and draftsmen. 1137

Q. For 23 or more years you were attached to the Detective Division of the Police Department and you were assigned to a particular or specific detective division? A. I was.

Q. What detective division were you detailed to? A. The 12th Detective Division.

Q. What squad of detectives were you assigned to? A. The 75th Squad.

Q. Did you then, for upwards of 23 years, work as a detective in that particular district, which was the 12th Detective Division? A. I worked in the 75th Squad for about 20 years.

1138 Herman Schiesser—For People—Direct

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, Detective, did you work a tour of duty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall the tour? A. From half past eight to six p. m.—from 8:30 in the morning until 6 P. M. at night on September 13, 1936.

Q. At sometime during the morning of Sunday, September 13, 1936, while you were doing your tour of duty, did you find an automobile? A. I did.

Q. At approximately what time did you find 1139 this automobile? A. At about 10:04 a. m. September 13, 1936.

Q. Where did you find it?

Mr. Climenko: At this time may I note an objection to this question and to the line which we may reasonably anticipate will follow, so I will not be required to repeat? The point is that the testimony perhaps is not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1140 Q. Where did you find it? A. I found it on Van Sinderen Avenue near Livonia.

Q. Was the automobile on Van Sinderen Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it north of Livonia Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many feet from it approximately? A. About forty feet.

Q. What kind of an automobile did you find there? A. A black Chevrolet, a 1935 black Chevrolet coach.

Q. Was that car abandoned when you found it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a two door? A. Yes, sir, two door.

Q. A four passenger hard top vehicle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Black in color? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it bear license plates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were they? A. L-16-67.

Q. New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you make a report of your discovery or finding of this abandoned car? A. I did.

1142

Mr. Climenko: Objected to as incompetent.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. After you made this report of the finding of a stolen car with "L-16-67, N. Y., 1936", plates, did you see Detective King? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it Detective King who was attached with you to the 75th Precinct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Upon the arrival of Detective King was the engine number of the car dusted off with a cloth? A. I had dusted it off. 1143

Q. Were the numbers brought out to view so they were visible? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer this photograph to be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit F, for identification.)

Q. (The Court:) Why did you dust it? A. There had been grease on it and you could not see the numbers.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit F, for identification, and ask you if that truly represents the automobile that you described which you found abandoned under the circumstances you have told the jury. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the position in which it was when you made your finding or discovery of that car? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the photo in evidence.

1145 Mr. Climenko: I note the same objection and take exception.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 13.)

(Exhibit 13 passed around to the jury.)

Mr. Turkus: May I request that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Photograph received and marked Peo-1146 ple's Exhibit G, for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit G, for identification, and ask you if that is another view of the automobile which you have related in your testimony to the jury. A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

Q. For the record, is that the rear view of the car? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. The right wheel being up on the curb—in the same position? A. Yes, sir, the car was facing north on Van Sinderen Avenue.

Q. How far was that from the scene of the alleged shooting? A. Eleven blocks—eleven and one-half blocks—fourteen blocks.

Mr. Cuff: I make the same objection as before.

The Court: Objection overruled. Mark it. 1148

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 14.)

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Did you discover this abandoned car shown on People's Exhibits 13 and 14 at the position they are indicated on the exhibits? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that close by the I.R.T. or the B.M.T. station at Van Sinderen Avenue? A. Yes, sir. 1149

Q. Is there a railroad bridge there that goes over the Junius Street side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 13, look through the front and back glass of the automobile, and see if you can see a portion of a candy stand that is located near the I.R.T. and the B.M.T. station? A. It may be, but it may not be visible.

Mr. Climenko: I object. The exhibit offered speaks for itself.

1150

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Now, you cannot see it through the glass? A. I know the candy store being there.

Q. Is it where that opening is? Will you indicate where that is? A. Looking right through there (indicating), it would be right in here (indicating). There is a doorway leading up there into the station.

1151

Defense Counsel: No questions.

HIRSH MERLIS, residing at 166 Orchard Street, Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, called as a witness on behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testifies:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Did you or your father operate a candy
1152 store and newspaper stand underneath the I.R.T. and B.M.T. station located at Livonia and Van Sinderen Avenues in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For how many years did you and your father operate that stand? A. About seven years.

Q. Would that be from on or about February, 1931, to on or about November, 1937? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was the entrance to the B.M.T. station with relation to your newsstand? A. Right opposite.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit H, for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit H, for identification, and ask you if it fairly and truly represents the candy store you and your father operated for seven years, as you have told this jury. A. Yes, sir.

1154

Mr. Turkus: I offer the photo in evidence.

Mr. Climenko: Your Honor, may we assume this is being taken subject to connection, subject to a motion to strike out.

The Court: Yes.

(Photograph received and marked People's Exhibit 15.)

Q. (The Court) Is that right in the entrance? A. The entrance is right on that side (indicating). 1155

Q. Up where you are, behind the station, you face the entrance? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The entrance to the I.R.T. or the B.M.T.? A. The B.M.T.

Q. (The Court) Just a few feet away? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Referring to People's Exhibit 15, the photograph which you have just identified, is that substantially the way your stand, the candy stand, looked at or about September of 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the exact location where the stand was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that surrounding territory or locale as exhibited on People's Exhibit 15, in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is this street which runs toward your stand? A. Van Sinderen Avenue.

Q. What is the street that runs parallel with the bridge? A. Near the B.M.T.?

Q. Yes. A. That is Van Sinderen Avenue.

1157 Q. That is, the street running alongside the railroad tracks is Van Sinderen Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the street running toward your stand is Livonia Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, is that stairway indicated on the picture to the left of your stand, a stairway that leads to the I.R.T.? A. The I.R.T. or to Junius Street.

Q. When you say, "or to Junius Street," do you mean Junius Street side of the bridge over the railroad tracks? A. Yes, sir.

1158 Q. That is indicated, isn't it, on People's Exhibit 15, the entrance to that stairway which leads up to the I.R.T. or the Junius Street side of the tracks? A. Yes.

Q. And on Sunday, September 13, 1936, at approximately what time of the morning did you go on duty? A. About 3:00 o'clock.

Q. How long did you work? A. Until about noon of the next day.

Q. Now, during the course of Sunday morning, about 7:00 o'clock, was your attention attracted to something? A. There was a car coming around, went up from Livonia, went around to Van Sinderen Avenue, and stopped.

Q. You say the car came around Livonia and turned into Van Sinderen and stopped? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did that car go at a fast rate of speed? A. Pretty fast.

Q. Did the car make any noise when it turned into Van Sinderen from Livonia? A. It had to stop a little to make a right hand turn and it screeched a little. 1160

Q. Did it pull up suddenly or abruptly? A. It stopped about thirty or forty feet off the corner.

Q. Did it come to a stop with a screeching noise, or was the screech made when it made the turn?

Mr. Talley: I object unless the witness testifies. I object to this question as leading.

By the Court: 1161

Q. When was the screeching, was it on the turn? A. When he made the turn, like when he came in from Livonia into Van Sinderen.

Q. It screeched at the turn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the car stop? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Who did you see get out of the car? A. Four men.

1162 Q. Where did these four men walk? A. Toward my stand.

Q. Did they walk down Van Sinderen toward the stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did they do when they got near the stand? A. They just walked by me.

Q. Where did they walk to? A. They walked up toward the trestle.

Q. Will you show the jury on this picture, People's Exhibit 15, in evidence, the entrance 1163 to the station and trestle that these four men walked up to? A. (Witness indicates.)

Q. Are you indicating the entrance to the L.R.T. subway and to the bridge across to the Junius Street side of that railroad track? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Which one do you refer to? A. The walk which you take over to Junius Street, or you can go over to the L.R.T.

Q. That is a pedestrian trestle? A. Yes, sir.
1164 Q. Not an elevated structure? A. No, sir, a foot bridge.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit I, for identification.)

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. I show you People's Exhibit I, for identification, and ask you whether or not that is a photograph showing the walk across the railroad track leading from Livonia and Van Sinderen side to the Junius Street side of the tracks. A. Yes, sir.

Q. As you go up the stairs, does that photograph show where the train level is of the I. R. T. station? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the picture in evidence.

1166

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 16.)

By the Court:

Q. What is the name of that station? A. One is Livonia, the B. M. T., and the other is Junius Street station of the I. R. T.

Q. What tracks are those below the crossover? A. The Long Island Railroad.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification. 1167

(Received and marked People's Exhibit J, for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit J, for identification, and ask you if that represents the Junius Street side of the walk-over connecting up from the entrance to your stand. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the way it was substantially in September of 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

1168 Hirsh Merlis—For People—Direct

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 17.)

By the Court:

Q. Where is your stand (handing witness exhibit)? A. It is on the other side.

Q. It does not show on the picture? A. No, sir.

Q. On the opposite side of the Long Island Railroad? A. Yes, sir.

1169

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. In order to have this clear—

The Court: Which is the street that appears on the other side of the track there (indicating)?

Mr. Turkus: If you are referring to People's Exhibit 17, that refers to Junius Street.

The Court: What is this street here (indicating on photograph)?

1170

The Witness: Junius Street.

The Court: It crosses Livonia Avenue?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: (To the jury): The court will now recess until 1:30 P. M. Gentlemen, please do not discuss the case or let anybody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open. Do not talk about the case during the recess hour.

Defendants are remanded.

AFTERNOON SESSION. TRIAL RESUMED.

HIRSCH MERLIS, (resumes the stand).

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Merlis, just before recess you identified People's Exhibit 15 as a view of the newsstand and the locale of Livonia and Van Sinderen Avenues, did you not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you also identify People's Exhibit 16 in evidence as the bridge across the railroad 1172 track? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you identify People's Exhibit 17 in evidence as the other side of the track, namely, the Junius and Livonia Avenue side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Referring to People's Exhibit 15 which is the photograph with your stand on, am I indicating with my finger the entrance to the I. R. T. station and to the bridge on People's Exhibit 16 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And if you walk along People's Exhibit 16 in evidence, do you come out down the stair- 1173 way pictured on People's Exhibit 17 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the Junius and Livonia Street side of the bridge? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before recess you said that four men got out of this automobile. Do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that they walked past your newsstand up the stairway leading to the I. R. T. and to the bridge, People's Exhibit 17 in evidence. You remember that? A. Yes, sir.

1174 Q. At that time when they walked past your newsstand, what were you doing? A. I was sorting the Sunday papers.

Q. Did you get a sufficient view of any of the four men to make a positive identification of any of them?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the characterization.

The Court: Overruled.

1175 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: Calling for a conclusion.

Mr. Turkus: Will you read the question, please?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. No, sir.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 13 in evidence, and tell the jury whether or not that is the car which screeched around the corner and from which the four men got out and walked past your stand, as you have testified? A. Yes, sir.

1176 Q. When for the first time did you know that something was wrong with that car? A. Around eleven.

Mr. Cuff: Object to that, if the Court pleases, calling for a conclusion of the witness.

The Court: He has not yet said that he ever knew.

Mr. Turkus: Withdrawn in that form.

Q. At eleven o'clock in the morning, what happened in connection with that car? A. The police came around and started taking pictures of it and examining it and looking it over.

Q. And was it the very car which had screeched around the corner and from which the four men had emerged and walked past your stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And had that car remained there from the time that you saw it screech around the corner and the four men get out until detectives got there and took pictures and examined the car? A. Yes, sir. 1178

Q. Were you then questioned by police in connection with the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the first time that you knew there was something wrong with that car?

Mr. Talley: Objected to, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out. It does not belong in the record.

Mr. Turkus: No objection to it.

Q. What time were you relieved from duty that day? A. Around noon. 1179

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: No questions.

Mr. Cuff: May we have just a few moments?

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor entertain a motion on my behalf?

The Court: Is there any cross-examination?

1180 Mr. Barshay: No; I would like to make a motion in respect to his testimony.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out as not binding on the defendant Buchalter.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir. Do I understand that the Court is taking this subject to connection?

The Court: Of course.

1181 Mr. Talley: No cross-examination.

JOHN J. McGOWAN, Captain, Homicide Squad, Borough of Brooklyn, called as a witness in behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Captain McGowan, are you the commanding officer of the Brooklyn Homicide Squad in 1182 charge of all detectives in the homicide division in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And have you held that office in September, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years have you been in the Police Department? A. Thirty years.

Q. And how many years have you been a commanding officer? A. About twenty.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, at approximately eleven o'clock in the morning, were pictures taken of an automobile at Van Sinderen and Livonia Avenues? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were those pictures taken under your supervision and direction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they taken by Detective Hammel of the photo gallery of the Police Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know where Detective Hammel is today? A. He is dead.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 13 in evidence, and ask you if that is one of the pictures taken under your supervision and direction at Van Sinderen and Livonia Avenues (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes, sir. 1184

Q. And is that a true and accurate representation of the vehicle the picture of which was taken in your presence and under your direction and supervision? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 14 in evidence and ask you whether or not this picture was likewise taken under your direction and supervision at the same time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is People's Exhibit 14 in evidence a rear view of the same vehicle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are they both, People's Exhibits 13 and 14, true and accurate reproductions of the vehicle the pictures of which were taken under your direction? A. Yes, sir. 1185

Q. In addition, Captain McGowan, was there further examination made of that vehicle? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a black Chevrolet sedan, two door? A. Yes, it was.

Q. Under your supervision and direction, did you have Detective Hammel place a powder on various parts of the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that powder commonly known as chemist's gray? A. Yes, it is gray and—

1186 John J. McGowan—For People—Direct

Q. Is it a chalk and mercury mixture? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the powder commonly used by the detective division to bring out fingerprint impressions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where under your supervision and direction did Detective Hammel dust this powder known as chemist's gray? A. He dusted the whole car, the outside, side, inside, and the license plates, wheel, steering wheel, and so forth.

1187

Q. In substance, was every place where there might likely be a fingerprint impression dusted with this mixture of chemist's gray? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the purpose of that to bring out fingerprint impressions, if any? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you or Detective Hammel or any detective acting under your supervision and direction in your presence able to bring out a fingerprint clue or evidence from that automobile or any part of it? A. No, sir.

1188

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: No questions on behalf of Buchalter.

Mr. Talley: No questions.

Mr. Rosenthal: No questions.

SAMUEL PEARL, residing at 298 East 45th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., called as a witness in behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Pearl, are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you reside at 298 East 45th Street, Brooklyn, with your wife and family? A. Yes, sir.

1190

Q. What business are you in? A. In the pleating and stitching, embroidery, all combined.

Q. Speak up loud. A. Embroidery business.

Q. And what is the name of the company that you operate? A. American Pleating.

Q. American Pleating & Stitching Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is your place of business? A. 307 West 36th Street.

Q. In Manhattan, New York City? A. In Manhattan, New York City.

Q. Were you in that business in September, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

1191

Q. And where did you live in September, 1936? A. On 5514 Snyder Avenue.

Q. Speak up. A. 5514 Snyder Avenue, Brooklyn.

Q. Is that commonly known as the East Flatbush section? A. East Flatbush section.

Q. Directing your attention to Sunday morning, September 13, 1936, some time during the morning did you take a walk from your home? A. I walked to see a certain property and I went with Snyder Avenue up to Ralph Avenue.

1192 Samuel Pearl—For People—Direct

crossing Church Avenue up to Linden Boulevard, so—

Q. About what time in the morning did you start out to look at a piece of property? A. About after ten, about half past ten.

Q. In your walk in which you were en route to visit a piece of property, did you walk along Ralph Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you walk past Church Avenue? A. Yes, past Church Avenue.

1193 Q. And did you continue north on Ralph Avenue some distance north of Church Avenue? A. North of Church Avenue to Linden Boulevard.

Q. About how far north of Church Avenue had you walked? A. About 125 feet, I think.

Q. While you were walking along Ralph Avenue, in that vicinity, did you see something or find something? A. It just strikes me. I picked it up, that's all. I didn't look for it.

Q. Did something strike your eye? A. Yes.

Q. Where was this something that struck your eye? A. That was on Ralph Avenue.

1194 Q. Where in relation to the sidewalk was it? A. To my left side, walking from Church Avenue.

Q. What was on the left side when you were walking? Was it a vacant lot? A. An empty lot, yes.

Q. Was there high grass in that lot? A. Yes, was grass.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit K for identification.)

1195

Q. Mr. Pearl, I show you People's Exhibit K for identification and ask you if that is a true and substantial picture of the place where you were walking when something met or struck your eye, as you told the jury (handing photograph to witness). Is that a picture of the place where you were walking? A. Yes, that looks the picture, on that side.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

1196

(People's Exhibit K for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 18 in evidence.)

The Court: Straighten me out on this. This street with the white line center—

Mr. Turkus: I will have the patrolman that follows.

The Court: Is that Ralph Avenue?

Mr. Turkus: Will you turn the picture so I can see it? That, I understand, is Ralph Avenue. That is my notion of it.

1197

Q. Is that correct? A. I don't believe that Ralph Avenue has a white line.

The Court: He said "on that side." He put his finger to the left side of the picture.

Mr. Talley: The picture certainly has not been identified.

The Court: It is of little importance. It can be straightened out.

Mr. Turkus: It will be straightened out by the time the police officer leaves the stand who will follow.

Q. When something met or struck your eye that was in the grass off the sidewalk, what did you do? A. I picked it up.

Q. When you picked it up, did you look at it? A. I saw it is a little too heavy. First it strike me like a child's gun but I picked it up; I put it in the bag I find on the grass and bring it over to the officer.

Q. Was the gun you picked up on the grass what you put into a bag and you went in search 1199 of a police officer, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Did you take the gun in the bag to the policeman? A. To the policeman.

Q. Where did you find the policeman? A. On Linden Boulevard, on Linden or Remsen. There is a couple of streets come together.

Q. Are they Remsen, Kings Highway, and Linden Boulevard? A. Yes.

Q. Was that policeman directing traffic there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know his name now? A. I know his name.

1200 Q. What is his name? A. Nelson.

Q. Patrolman Nelson. Did you show the gun that was in the bag to the patrolman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you talk to him about the gun? A. I just told him this is what I picked up.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: Is that made in good faith?

Mr. Cuff: We should not have any conversation.

Mr. Turkus: If you want it stricken out, I will consent to it.

Mr. Cuff: Let it go. Please do not have the conversation.

Q. After you spoke to the policeman, did you, the gun, and the bag and the policeman go back to where you saw the gun the first time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you there point out to the policeman where you found the gun? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you then taken to a police station by the policeman? A. Yes, sir. 1202

Q. And did the gun and the bag go along with the two of you? A. Yes.

Q. In the presence of the policeman at the police station, did you initial the gun that you found in the lot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what initials did you put on? A. S. P.

Q. Are they the initials for your name, Samuel Pearl? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at this gun, People's Exhibit E for identification, and tell us if that is not the gun that you found in the lot and initialed in the presence of the policeman (handing gun to witness). Do you see the "S. P." on it? A. Yes, 1203 this is the one.

Q. Is that the gun? A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

Mr Barshay: Objected to, not binding on the defendant Buchalter.

Mr. Talley: Make the same objection. It has not been connected in any way at all.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1204 Samuel Pearl—For People—Direct

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: Take it subject to connection.

(People's Exhibit E for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 19 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May I exhibit People's Exhibit 19 to the jury?

1205 The Court: Hadn't you better connect it up first? Sergeant Butts will do that.

Q. Mr. Pearl, can you tell me at about what time it was when you saw that gun, People's Exhibit 19, in the lot? Can you estimate the time? A. Before eleven a couple of minutes.

The Court: What was that?

Mr. Turkus: His estimate was before eleven a couple of minutes.

Q. I guess that means a few minutes before 1206 eleven, according to your estimate, is that right? A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

(No cross-examination.)

1207

HENRY G. NELSON, patrolman, shield 12154, attached to Traffic K, New York Police Department, called as a witness on behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Patrolman Nelson, are you a member of the uniformed police force of the City of New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are you presently assigned or detailed to Traffic K? A. Yes, sir.

1208

Q. How many years have you been a member of the Police Department? A. Seventeen and three months.

Q. And how many years have you been attached or detailed to Traffic K? A. About twelve years.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, were you attached to Traffic K? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what tour of duty did you do on that day, officer? A. Ten a. m. to five p. m.

Q. Where was your assignment or detail? A. At Kings Highway, Linden Boulevard, and Newport Street.

1209

Q. Is one side of that intersection known as East Flatbush, the district to one side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is the other known to be the Canarsie side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some time while you were directing traffic at that location during the morning of Sunday, September 13, 1936, did a man whom you now know to be Samuel Pearl approach you? A. He did.

Q. Approximately what time was it that he approached you? A. 11:15 a. m.

Q. Without telling me what he said, did that man have a conversation with you; Samuel Pearl, did he hold a conversation with you? A. He did.

Q. At the time that he spoke to you at that intersection, did he have in his possession something? A. He did.

Q. What was that something? A. He had a revolver in a brown paper bag.

1211

Q. In his presence did you take the revolver out of the paper bag? A. I did.

Q. Did you inspect it? A. I did.

Q. Was it a firearm? A. It was.

Q. After you spoke to this man, Samuel Pearl, did you take him to a certain place? A. I took him to the 69th precinct in Canarsie.

Q. What I am referring to is this: Did you take him back to the spot where he found the gun? A. I asked him where he got the revolver and he told me he found it and I asked him to show me the spot and we walked over to the spot where it was found.

1212

Q. Where is the spot that Samuel Pearl pointed out to you as the place where he found the revolver? A. It was about 100 foot north of Church Avenue, west side of Ralph, and the revolver was laying about one foot off the sidewalk on the left.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 18 in evidence and tell us whether or not that substantially shows the place where Pearl indicated he had found the gun (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes, sir, right over here (indicating) at about off that tree.

Q. Are you referring to a large tree as you look at the photograph on the right-hand side? A. That is right, yes, sir.

Q. The tree being on the side nearest the sign which has the word "Ruppert" on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the spot where you indicated as the place where Pearl indicated he found the gun is to the right of that tree as you face the paper? 1214
A. That is right.

Q. In the grass? A. It was a foot off the sidewalk, towards the building line, in the grass.

The Court: How long has that white mark been on Ralph Avenue?

The Witness: I am sorry, I could not say.

Q. At the time when Pearl indicated the spot where he found the gun, was it a vacant lot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was there grass there and weeds? A. 1215
There were weeds.

Q. After Pearl indicated to you the position where the gun was found, as you have pointed out to us on People's Exhibit 18, where did you go with Pearl and the gun? A. To the 69th precinct.

Q. Did you there make report to your superior or commanding officer? A. I did, sir.

Q. At the time you arrived was there a report received in the station house about the commission of a murder? A. There was.

Q. Was contact then made to the 75th precinct in Brooklyn? A. Yes, there was.

Q. Was that the precinct in which the news came of the murder having been committed? A. It was.

Q. Did a detective come over from the 75th precinct to the 69th precinct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the name of that detective? A. He is here this morning. He is from the homicide squad. I only met him once.

1217 Q. Is it Detective King? A. No, he came from the 75th squad.

Q. Did a man come over from the 75th squad, a detective? A. No, the detective came from the 75th precinct. He was a member of the homicide squad.

Q. Did the detective from the homicide squad, Pearl and yourself go to the 75th precinct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got to the 75th precinct, did Mr. Pearl in your presence initial the revolver, People's Exhibit 19 in evidence, with the initials "S. P."? A. He did.

1218

The Court: When was that picture taken?

Mr. Turkus: This is a recent picture.

Q. Did you in the presence of Pearl and a detective initial this weapon, People's Exhibit 19 in evidence, with the initials "H. N."? A. I did.

Q. And did Detective King of the 75th squad initial the weapon with the initials "W. K." in your presence? A. He did.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 19 in evidence and tell us if that is the gun about which you have testified (handing exhibit to witness)? A. It is.

Q. Did you, after the gun had been initialed with the initials which it now bears, turn that weapon over to Detective King? A. I did.

Q. At the time when you received that gun from Mr. Pearl under the circumstances you have told the jury, was the barrel empty? A. It was.

Q. And was it in that condition when you turned it over to Detective King? A. It was. 1220

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Cuff: No cross-examination.

Mr. Turkus: Just one more thing.

Q. At the time when that gun was initialed in the 75th precinct, was there an Assistant District Attorney by the name of McCarthy then present? A. Yes, sir, there was.

Mr. Barshay: No questions.

1221

1222 William S. King—For People—Direct

WILLIAM S. KING, detective, shield 972, attached to the 75th squad, New York Police Department, called as a witness on behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Detective King, are you a police officer attached to the police force of the City of New York? A. I am.

1223

Q. And are you assigned to the detective division? A. I am.

Q. How many years have you been in the Police Department? A. Twenty-three years.

Q. And how many years have you been attached to the detective division? A. Seventeen years.

Q. In September, 1936, what squad were you attached to? A. 75th squad detectives.

Q. Will you turn around and look at the picture in evidence, People's Exhibit 2, and tell me whether that picture is embraced within the territorial confines of the squad to which you were 1224 attached, that candy store? A. It is.

Q. Are you still attached to the 75th precinct? A. I am.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, in company with Detective Schiesser, now retired, did you go to Van Sinderen Avenue and Livonia Avenue? A. I did.

Q. On Van Sinderen Avenue near Livonia, did you there find a motor vehicle? A. I did.

Q. Will you look at pictures, People's Exhibits 13 and 14 in evidence, and tell us whether those are views of the automobile that you found in company with Detective Schiesser? A. It is.

Q. At the time that Detective Schiesser and you found that automobile, was there an alarm out for that car bearing license L-1667-1936? A. There was.

Q. And was it an alarm in connection with a murder which had occurred at 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn? A. It was.

Q. Did you examine the automobile? A. I did. 1226

Q. What did it disclose to you, that is the examination; what kind of a car was it? A. It was a Chevrolet 1936 coach, painted black.

Q. Were the motor numbers dusted off with a cloth? A. Detective Schiesser dusted them off, took the oil off them.

Q. After the oil or other substance was wiped off the motor numbers, what numbers were revealed to your observation? A. The motor number 6376729.

Q. Was there investigation then conducted with regard to that motor number of the car and with regard to the license plates L-1667-1936? A. They were. 1227

Q. Detective King, will you look at People's Exhibit 19 in evidence and tell us whether that weapon bears your initials "W.K." (handing exhibit to witness)? A. It does.

Q. And was that revolver or weapon, People's Exhibit 19 in evidence, turned over to you? A. It was.

Q. In a police station? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What day did you receive that gun? A. On September 13, 1936.

Q. Was there present at the time a patrolman by the name of Henry G. Nelson and a civilian by the name of Samuel Pearl? A. They were.

Q. And were their initials put on the gun? A. They were.

Q. Was that in the presence of a former Assistant District Attorney by the name of McCarthy? A. It was.

1229 Q. What kind of a gun is that, detective? A. That is a .38 calibre special Colt.

Q. Is it known as a police special? A. Police positive, police special.

Q. Did you in turn deliver that gun to the Bureau of Ballistics and specifically to Detective Frederick Walsh of the Ballistics Bureau? A. I did.

By the Court:

Q. Police special is a trade name, isn't it? A. Yes.

1230 Q. it does not mean the Police Department owns the gun? A. No, sir.

Q. That is a name under which the Colt concern puts it out? A. That is right.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: No cross.

Mr. Cuff: No cross.

Mr. Rosenthal: No cross.

Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct 1231

HENRY F. BUTTS, Sergeant, Shield No. 824, attached to the Ballistics Bureau, Police Department of the City of New York, called as a witness on behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Sergeant Butts, are you a member of the police force of the City of New York? A. I am.

Q. And how many years have you been a member of the Police Department of the City of New York? 1232 A. Thirty-eight years.

Q. What is your present assignment? A. I am in command of the Ballistic Bureau.

Q. And how many years have you been attached to the Ballistic Bureau? A. Since it was established in May, 1930.

Q. And have you since that time been the commanding officer in charge of ballistics? A. I have.

Q. What are the duties of the Ballistic Bureau of the Police Department? A. Investigation of cases wherein a firearm has been used, covering 1233 those things affected by the firearm, cooperating with the other squads in the investigation.

Q. Does it, briefly, take in the gathering and safeguarding of all ballistics evidence? A. It does.

Q. Recovery from walls and furniture of spent bullets? A. Yes.

Q. Examination of bullet holes? A. Bullet holes, bullet wounds, powder marks, examination of bullet markings, whether or not an arm functioned properly, anything connected with the firearm.

Q. In connection with your duties are you brought into the questioning of any witnesses? A. No we have nothing to do with the questioning of witnesses, hearing statements, or anything of that nature.

Q. Is your job confined to looking at the scene and the concrete evidence, and from that to supply expert testimony with regard to the things that you find and discover at the scene of crime? A. That is the job.

1235 Q. And upon that you do not depend upon any testimony given to you by any human witness; is that correct? A. We disregard the human witness.

Q. For how many years have you made a study of firearms and ballistics? A. Over thirty years.

Q. Are you familiar with the manufacture and makes of American firearms? A. I am.

Q. How many tests have you made in connection with firearms? A. Many, many thousands.

Q. We these tests made by firing at and through various types of materials? A. Yes, and observing the results both on the material 1236 and the results of the action on the bullet and what occurred with the arm.

Q. And in connection with the thousands of tests that you have conducted, have they been in connection with the ordinary household furnishings, plaster, brick, wood, and the other materials we frequently come in contact with? A. That would cover it, and dead human tissue, live and dead animal tissue.

Q. In these tests that you have made, were they for different purposes? A. The various purposes were to, I might say, observe the action of the arm, the action of the ammunition, the effect on the ammunition as it passed through the arm, and the effect of the ammunition on various things.

Q. When you speak of the arm, do you refer to the firearm? A. The firearm.

Q. During the past twenty-two years, have you been testifying for the Police Department as an expert on firearms? A. Yes, twenty-two or twenty-four years. In that time I have testified well over eight hundred times, possibly a thou- 1238 sand.

Q. And has your testimony been accepted in courts of record? A. Yes.

Q. Sergeant, did you on or about September 13, 1936, receive from Detective Walsh six bullets? A. I did.

Q. Were those bullets designated with certain markings? A. They were.

Q. And what were the markings that were designated on the bullets? A. A combination of the letters, "F. W.", and then numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. 1239

Q. I show you People's Exhibits 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, and ask you if they are the six bullets that you received from Detective Walsh, marked, "F. W.", one to six, inclusive? A. They are.

Q. Will you hold them at your side there, Sergeant. On September 14, 1936, did you receive from the Deputy Chief Medical Examiner, Doctor Marten, two bullets marked, "M. R." and "M. M.", respectively? A. Through Detective Schaefer, I did.

Q. Detective Schaefer is attached to the Ballistics Bureau? A. He is.

1240

Q. And he received them for you and under your command, is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Will you look at these exhibits, People's Exhibit 5 and People's Exhibit 6, and tell us whether or not they are the two you received from Doctor Marten through Detective Schaefer?

The Court: Be sure that each bullet is put back in its own envelope, so they won't be mixed as to exhibit number.

1241

A. They are.

Q. On the same day when you received those bullets marked, "M. R." and "M. M." from Detective Schaefer sent to you from Doctor Marten, did you receive from Detective King People's Exhibit 19, in evidence, this firearm? A. I did.

Q. What kind of a firearm is People's Exhibit 19? A. It is a Colt, Police Positive Special, 38 calibre revolver.

Q. Does that gun take the same cartridge as the regulation gun for the Police Department of the City of New York? A. It does.

1242

Q. What is the regulation Police Department gun known as? A. In a Colt it is known as the Army special, or official police, and in Smith and Wesson, it is military and police. That would be in the 38 special. There are also as regulation the old 38 police positive that would be had by men who were in the department before 1926 and the Smith and Wesson 38.

Q. Referring to the regulation gun that is in the Police Department at the present time, is this police special a lighter frame? A. It is.

Q. Is it lighter all over in weight? A. It is.

Q. And it is a lighter gun for carrying purposes than the regulation police firearm? A. Yes, it weighs less.

Q. After you received these articles, People's Exhibit 19, the weapon, the bullets, People's Exhibits 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, did you make an examination and inspection and tests with regard to the same? A. I did.

Q. Over how long a period of time did it take you to conduct the examination and tests? A. Well, that would be hard to say. The making of 1244 tests with the gun, that is, the firing of test bullets, the examination would be done in a half hour, but then the comparison between the test bullets and the bullets that I had, I don't know just how long it took. I would say off-hand it was probably several days.

Q. Before we go into what the examination and tests showed, when you received that gun, People's Exhibit 19, in evidence, did you examine it? A. I did.

Q. What did you find in connection with that weapon, People's Exhibit 19? A. I found that 1245 after leaving the factory the barrel had been threaded at the muzzle and that on that thread there had been placed a collar. That thread is the thread that is used in silencers. The purpose of the collar is to dress up a muzzle when there is not a silencer on it.

The Court: To protect the thread from damage?

The Witness: Yes, and then it does not look so raw.

1246 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

Q. Was that thread on the barrel of the weapon, People's Exhibit 19, in evidence, cut into the barrel after the gun had left the factory? A. Yes.

Q. And was that put on by some mechanical means? A. Yes.

Q. Has ever in your experience any manufacturer of guns cut a thread on the barrel of a gun such as is on weapon 19 in evidence? A. Not at the factory. There was a manufacturer 1247 of guns who became, might I say, mixed up with a group, and he did put silencers on guns, but not on his product while he was making them at the factory.

Q. That was some extra activity on the outside? A. Yes. I might say it was not this. It was the Rising (?) pistol.

Q. Are threadings such as appear on People's Exhibit 19, in evidence, put on the weapon by some individual machinist or gunsmith after the gun has left the factory? A. Yes.

By the Court:

1248

Q. Is that standard thread or special? A. It is a standard thread.

Q. Adapted for what silencer? A. Adapted to the Maxim.

Q. There is another one, too? A. You just took the name away from me; the one that is made in Ohio.

Q. Is it adapted to either of those silencers? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. When that gun, People's Exhibit 19, left the factory, had it been blued over, as the expression goes, in the factory? A. It was.

1249

The Court: Is that the Moore silencer you were trying to think of?

The Witness: The Moore, yes, sir.

Q. Look at the thread on there. Take the collar off. Does that show raw steel indicating that the threading had been put on after the gun had been blued at the factory? A. Yes.

1250

Q. What is the purpose of a silencer?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: I respectfully except, sir.

The Court: Is it a muffler?

The Witness: It is really a muffler, and the principle of it and its action is the same as the muffler on your car.

Q. Has a silencer any legitimate purpose in peace times?

1251

The Court: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Other than being used by a sniper in war time, has a silencer any legitimate function?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to, sir.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Do you know of any legitimate purpose for which a silencer may be used?

1252 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: The word "legitimate" is objectionable. Sustained.

By the Court:

Q. Is there any standard purpose for which a silencer is commonly used? A. It is not used in hunting; it is not used in target practice.

Q. It is used by police? A. No.

1253 Q. Is it lined on the inside with circular system of battle plates which absorb the sound? A. Yes.

Q. So that when the discharge occurs there is a very slight sound, a hardly noticeable sound? A. That is correct.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Sergeant Butts, did you make an examination and inspection of that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, in an endeavor to find the serial number of the weapon? A. I did.

1254

By the Court:

Q. Are those what are known as thimble battle plates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Inverted backwards? A. Yes, sir, and they are put in so that they have a curve of that sort. The front part would bulge, the rear part—

Q. Briefly, the sound wears itself out before it gets to the muzzle? A. It breaks up sound waves.

Q. Just by interference? A. Yes.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. I got to the point, Sergeant Butts, where I asked you if you made an examination to endeavor to find the serial numbers of that weapon. A. I did.

Q. When a gun leaves the factory does it have a serial number? A. It does.

Q. And when that particular gun, People's Exhibit 19, left the Colt factory, where did it have its serial numbers? A. At the points that I indicate with the point of the pencil. There would be 1256 one number at that point.

Q. For the record, Sergeant, when you say, "That point," will you describe it with relation to the weapon so that the record will be clear where that number should have been when you looked for it? A. It is not the technical name but let us say this movable hinge on which the cylinder is carried, at that point on the moving part, at that point on the thickest part of the frame.

Q. When you say, "That point," will you describe it for the record? A. The part of the 1257 frame is below the bridge of the barrel, where the barrel is screwed into the frame. It is about an inch below the center of the axis of the barrel, and then on the inside of the plate. The plate is that portion held by those two screws. If those two screws are taken out, that part comes out, and near the latch, the serial number is on the inner surface there.

Q. So that when that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, left the Colt factory it had on it three serial numbers in the positions that you indicated to this jury? A. It had the same serial number in three places.

1258 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

By the Court:

Q. Did it have a secret one inside? A. No, this is inside the plate on the Colt.

Q. You have to remove the plate by taking out the screw? A. Yes, sir; it is not visible.

1259 By Mr. Turkus:

Q. When you looked at the three places where the serial numbers should have been, did you see them with the naked eye? A. I did not.

Q. Did you look then with a magnifying glass? A. Not with a magnifying glass. When I found that I could not see the numbers, I went to work with acids.

Q. When you could not see the numbers, what did that indicate to you? A. Well, the surface indicated—and that is visible to the naked eye—

1260 that the surface had been ground away. Instead of a flat surface there was a groove.

Q. In all the three places, can you say with reasonable certainty that the serial number had been mechanically removed and obliterated?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it as not binding on the defendants.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I can.

Q. And had they been mechanically removed and obliterated?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They had.

Q. When you saw that the serial number in the three places where they should have been on the weapon, People's Exhibit 19, had been so removed and obliterated, did you endeavor to bring out or bring up what the number was before the obliteration? A. I did.

1262

Q. Tell the jury what tests you conducted and what results you had. A. The acids that I used are nitric and hydrochloric and glycerine, and it takes sometimes thirty seconds and sometimes thirty minutes and sometimes thirty hours.

By the Court:

Q. Briefly, is that called processing? A. It is. I was unable to bring up the numbers.

Q. Is that due to the under grooves of stamping the numbers on the die? A. Yes, sir, the metal beneath the actual stamping.

1263

Q. Does it crystallize? A. It does.

Q. In the shape of the letters, even though below the cut? A. Yes.

Q. And I take it the acid works in where the metal is crystallized, works around the carbon particles or steel particles? A. Yes.

Q. And forms the letters? A. It does.

Q. That are not visible otherwise to the naked eye? A. And they come up as a ghost.

1264 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Sergeant, to make this clear to us who are not experts, when the number is stamped on in the factory in the three places that you have indicated to the jury, is the metal underneath the number compressed? A. Yes.

The Court: Is it bruised?

The Witness: Yes.

1265 The Court: That is what I mean by crystallized.

Q. When you found that the numbers had been mechanically removed and obliterated, did you endeavor with the acid to bring out the compression or the ghost-like numbers that would come up when the acid ate into that bruised metal? A. I did.

Q. If the obliteration is not too thorough, does the ghost-like number come to view? A. It does.

1266 The Court: Has that been for many years the common way of determining the numbers of stolen automobiles where the numbers have been filed from the block?

The Witness: The same system. With the automobile very often heat is used in addition to the acid.

Q. Now, what experience or what result did you have after you put the acid on? Did you get a ghost-like number out? A. I got a few numbers but I could not get a complete serial.

Q. Could you get enough numbers on it to trace that serial number from the Colt factory? A. No.

Q. Had the obliteration and mechanical removal of the numbers been too thorough?

Mr. Cuff: I object to that.

A. It had.

Mr. Cuff: He answered.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception. 1268

Q. Before we go into the tests, when you received that gun, that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, and you examined it, tell the jury what it disclosed with reference to the number of times it had been fired at the time of last discharge. A. My recollection is that it showed that it had been fired four times at the time of last firing.

Q. The jury must be told the tests that you conducted in regard to People's Exhibit 19, the weapon, and its bullets that you took from it. Will you explain that to the jury, how you get 1269 test bullets for comparison? A. We fire the bullet into absorbent cotton. We use the regular hospital rolls of one pound, the ones that are about ten inches in length, about four inches in diameter. We unroll those and take the paper divider out, then re-roll them and fire longwise into the roll. The bullet traveling with forward motion and a motion of rotation strikes the cotton, the cotton fibres are pulled apart and act as a brake and wind themselves around the bullet as a snowball, so that we get in four or five bes a ball of cotton an inch and a quarter to inch and a half in diameter, and pulling that ton apart we find nested in the center of it bullet. That gives us an undeformed specimen.

Q. For example, Sergeant, could you take that apon, People's Exhibit 19, put a bullet in it d fire it into the cotton in our view and then e that test bullet out of the cotton? A. Yes.

Q. And that would be an accurate specimen llet from that gun, is that right, People's Exbit 19? A. It would.

Q. Has that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, cern peculiar characteristics on the barrel that other weapon has? A. Yes.

Q. And are those characteristics peculiar to at barrel alone? A. They are.

Q. Is that the way in which identification is de of bullets which are fired from a specific particular firearm? A. It is because of that at identification is possible.

Q. And are barrels as different as human finrprints are? A. I say they are more invidual.

The Court: Not from the mere characteristics of the rifling. Will you tell the jury just what there is about the inside of a gun barrel which makes no two exactly alike?

Q. Will you take it from the piece of steel and ow the jury how it is bored out and the whole ystem, so that we will understand it in detail? . The barrel, that portion that I am indicating that runs forward and from the frame through which the bullet travels starts out in this case as a solid bar. It is first smooth bored by a single lip cutter. That cutter is fixed in a fixture. It does not move. The barrel is rotated around the cutter so that we get then a smooth bore cut.

Q. Is there oil pumped through there when the cutter is boring in there? A. The oil is pumped through the rod or fixture that holds the cutter. The cutter, as much as my hand, is now coming to a cutting point. Back from the 1274 cutter is a V slot and through the center of the fixture there is a hole, and through that hole oil is pumped forward so that it strikes on the cutting point.

Q. Is that oil under pressure? A. About 700 pounds. The purpose of it hitting the cutting point is to lubricate that part and it then after that carries back through the V slot the chips that it has cut away and they come backward along the V slot and are thrown out. After that the barrel is reamed.

Q. That operation that you described, that is 1275
the first operation, isn't it?

The Court: He has not finished. Go ahead.

A. (Continued) After the cutting with the single lip cutter there are in this case three or four reamings, that is to smooth down any burrs, any particles that may stick too high as ridges. After that, spiral grooves are cut in the barrel. Those grooves in this case are about three and a half thousandths deep, and there would be six and they would have a left twist.

1276 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

Q. Is that commonly called the rifling system, these grooves, or left twist, that you are speaking of? A. That group of six grooves will be called the rifling in that barrel. The twist would make a complete turn in this case in about sixteen inches. If we had a barrel sixteen inches long, the cutter would have one complete turn, cut until it came around. The cutter cuts on the pull stroke, that is, it cuts as it is coming this way and turns, drops into a recess in the 1277 fixture, goes forward, and does not do any work, goes over now into the next place in the barrel. It goes over. Where we have six grooves it would go over one-sixth of a turn. The barrel would be turned and it cuts there, goes back. The barrel turns another sixth, she cuts again until she has gone around, and that cutting keeps on until the depth of the cut has reached three and one-half thousandths. During that time the cutting face, in this case in the Colt they use a hook cutter, and that is shaped as my hand is now, and it pull cuts. During this cutting the 1278 cutting face of the cutting tool is changing—we say cutting; actually it is a scraping, the same as if we scrape snow off the sidewalk with a rake. It is a scrape. It is not the cut that we talk about or think about when we say cut. That, when it is finished, appears to be mirror-like. If you look down the muzzle of a barrel and have light go through it, you see a mirror-like surface. Actually on that surface there are microscopic projections, irregularities. If we cut open a section, take a photograph of it, we see ridges, we see little dots sticking up.

The Court: You mean microscopic photographs?

The Witness: Yes.

A. (Continuing) So that when the bullet is driven through the barrel, those microscopic projections actually engrave on the bullet a pattern, and that pattern will be peculiar to this barrel and no other. Two barrels or six barrels made on the same machine, by the same operator, with the same cutter, will be as different as day and 1280 night, and no two grooves in the one barrel will have the same characteristics as any of the other grooves of the six, so that we then have a bullet with a pattern on it, and that is the purpose of firing into the cotton, to get an undeformed specimen that will carry the characteristics of this particular barrel, and then a microscopic comparison is made between a bullet in question and the test bullet. The examination is made of those patterns on the various areas. We would have six grooved areas and six land areas. The land would be the undisturbed metal between two grooves. That on the bullet makes 1281
a depression. The microscopic comparison is made with the comparison microscope. That is simply two compound microscopes joined by a comparison eye-piece. It has a prismatic bridge. Actually the bullets are set up on the microscope stages about six inches apart. The images are brought up through their individual tubes, across through the prismatic system, and into a single eye-piece, so that we can examine two objects at one time, and if, in the case of the two bullets, we are looking at like areas and they have the same pattern, those patterns, those lines, will meet and fuse into each other as my fingers are doing. If they are not from like area or not from the same gun, there won't be a meeting of the lines of the pattern. After the like area is found on both bullets, assuming they are from the one gun, then each successive area of the bullet is examined and checked.

Q. Is this correct, sergeant? If I were to take that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, and fire 1283 a bullet into somebody and that bullet was extracted by a doctor, and then you took the weapon and fired a test bullet into a bale of cotton and took two out under that machine that you told the jury about, you can match up the riflings and show that both bullets came out of that identical barrel? A. If the bullet from the body has not been too badly distorted, yes.

Q. Did you take all of those bullets that were turned over to you, the six that Walsh took from the scene of the homicide and the two that the medical examiner took out of the corpse, and examine them microscopically? A. I did.

1284 Q. And did you examine them microscopically with a test bullet from People's Exhibit 19, that weapon? A. I did.

Q. Will you tell the jury what the examination and inspection disclosed? A. Some of the bullets I found were fired from that gun and some were too deformed to tell what gun they were fired from. Some of the bullets are known as half-metal case. Those are bullets with a metal jacket at the point. I think there were four of those and four that are called copper-coated.

Q. May I direct you in my examination—

1285

The Court: I do not think he has finished.

Mr. Turkus: He has not but I want to specifically direct his attention.

The Court: Let him finish.

A. The copper-coating is different from the copper jacket. The copper-jacketed bullet is a jacket of solid copper. The copper-coated bullet is, let us say, a copper-plated bullet. It is just a copper flashing that is on a lead bullet.

1286

By the Court:

Q. Did you find that any of those bullets had not been fired from that gun? A. On four there was not enough left to see whether or not they had been fired from this particular gun. Four I could identify and four I could not.

Q. How many did you examine in all? A. I think I had eight bullets.

Q. That is two from Dr. Marten and six from the detective who made the search of the premises? A. Yes, sir.

1287

Q. How about the two that came from Dr. Marten? A. One I could identify and one I could not.

Q. Did you identify that one? A. I did.

Q. You say that was fired from that gun? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of the other six, how many did you identify? A. Three.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Sergeant, may I take you step by step in 1288 this examination. Is it that you had eight bullets turned over to you, six recovered at the scene and two taken out of the corpse? A. That is correct.

Q. Of the eight bullets that you had to inspect, were four half-metal case bullets and the other four copper-coated bullets? A. Yes.

Q. Are those two different types of ammunition? A. Yes.

1289 Q. Will you take this sheet of paper and draw a H.M.C. bullet and a copper-coated bullet so the jury can get a visual idea of it? A. The first I have marked "H.M.C." The inner portion would be lead and that portion that I have separated,—while actually it is close to the lead, I have separated so that you could see it,—that is a copper jacket that extends from that point up to the nose and down to here (indicating) leaving lead bare from that portion down. Now a copper-coated bullet is simply a lead bullet that has been copper-plated and it simply has a thin flash of copper all over it.

1290 Q. Sergeant Butts, in your testimony you have been referring to these exhibits in evidence, People's Exhibits 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, namely the eight bullets, there as bullets. Is that the term that is used to distinguish them from cartridges? A. Oh, yes. The cartridge is the complete assembly. A cartridge would be the shell or case, the primer, the powder, and the bullet. The bullet is the projectile.

Q. It is known as a cartridge before it is fired? A. Yes.

Q. And the projectile is called by you scientific men a bullet? A. That is correct.

Q. I want to get down to an examination bullet by bullet of these eight that you had. Will you take that bullet, the one that had the markings on by Dr. Marten, "M.R." That should be People's Exhibit 6, or maybe 5. A. People's Exhibit 6 is a half-metal case bullet.

Q. People's Exhibit 6, that half-metal case bullet, is that the one marked "M.R." by Marten? A. It is.

Q. Did you examine that microscopically with a test bullet from People's Exhibit 19, the fire- 1292 arm? A. I did.

Q. What did your test disclose? A. That in my opiaion Reople's Exhibit 6 was fired from Exhibit 19.

Q. And can you say that with reasonable certainty? A. Yes.

Q. The other bullet which the medical examiner turned over to your office, the "M.M." bullet, People's Exhibit 5 in evidence, what did you find about that? A. That is a copper-coated bullet.

Q. As distinguished from the other bullet 1293 which was a half-metal case? A. Yes, and that bullet I was not able to identify.

Q. Was that bullet too deformed to identify to that or any other gun? A. Yes.

Q. So that one of the bullets turned over by Marten was a half-metal case bullet and the other was a copper-coated bullet, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Of the six bullets that were recovered at the scene of the homicide, how many were half-metal case bullets and how many were copper-coated bullets? A. Three and three.

1294

Q. Take a look at bullets "F. W. 1", "F. W. 5" and "F. W. 6". "F. W. 1" is People's Exhibit 8, "F. W. 5" is People's Exhibit 11, and "F. W. 6" People's Exhibit 12. A. 8, 11, and 12, is that what you said?

Q. That is right. A. People's Exhibit 8 is a half-metal case bullet. That bullet I was able to identify.

Q. And do you identify it as having been fired from People's Exhibit 19? A. I do.

1295

Q. Now check "F. W. 5" People's Exhibit 11. A. That bullet is a half-metal case bullet.

Q. And are you able to identify that bullet as having been fired from People's Exhibit 19 in evidence? A. I am.

Q. And do you say that with reasonable certainty? A. Yes.

Q. Take "F. W. 6", People's Exhibit 12 in evidence. A. That bullet is a half-metal case bullet and that bullet I identified as having been fired from Exhibit 19.

1296

Q. In other words, Sergeant Butts, the four half-metal case bullets that were turned over to you, three from the scene and one from the body, are all attributed to having been fired from People's Exhibit 19, that weapon right on the desk? A. That is correct.

Q. Now taking bullets marked "F. W. 2", "F. W. 3", "F. W. 4",—"F. W. 2" is People's Exhibit 7, "F. W. 3" is People's Exhibit 9, and "F. W. 4" is People's Exhibit 10. A. People's Exhibit 7 is a copper-coated .38 special bullet. That I could not identify.

By the Court:

Q. Were all of the copper-coated bullets so badly smashed that you could not identify them? A. That is correct, sir.

Q. Is the purpose of copper jacketing to protect the lead from deformation? A. It does.

Q. But where only plated or coated, the metal is not protected so they deform readily? A. Yes, and the copper flashing or plating tends to move from its original place. It may be high 1298 up on the boring surface but it is dragged down to a place other than where it was originally so it may have gotten a mark up at the top of the boring surface and just brought down toward the bottom. It is just like flakes on the bullet.

Q. Now, sergeant, going back to that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, you told us earlier in your examination that your examination and inspection disclosed that at the last time of firing four bullets had been fired out of that gun. A. Yes.

Q. Now, the four half-metal case bullets that you attribute to having been fired from that gun, 1299 did you examine them to see if there was any copper coating on them? A. I did.

Q. Was there any copper coating? A. There was not.

Q. Had copper-coated bullets first been fired through that weapon, People's Exhibit 19, and then later four half-metal case bullets, would there have been a copper coating on those four "H. M. C.'s" or half-metal coat bullets? A. I would have found some copper coating on some of them at least.

Q. So can you say this with reasonable certainty, sergeant, that People's Exhibit 19, the weapon, fired the four "H. M. C.'s" or half-metal case bullets? A. Yes.

1300 Henry F. Butts—For People—Direct

Q. And that some other gun or weapon of similar make and character fired the four copper-coated bullets? A. That would be my opinion from my examination of the copper-jacketed bullets and I ran a patch through the barrel and I did not get any copper flaking from copper-coated bullets.

1301 Q. Is that conclusion established by two factors, the conclusion that the four "H. M. C.'s", the half-metal case bullets, were fired from People's Exhibit 19, and the four "C. C.'s" or copper-coated bullets were fired from another gun of similar make and calibre, and are these the factors: The examination of the cylinder showing four discharges— A. Yes.

Q. And the residue of copper that you would have found on those "H. M. C." bullets as you have described to the jury? A. That is one thing and then the patch that I ran through the 1302 barrel would have picked up some flaking from a copper-coated bullet.

Q. So then do I understand clearly of the eight bullets the four "H. M. C's" came out of the weapon, People's Exhibit 19, and the four copper-coated bullets issued out another weapon of similar make and character? A. That is my opinion.

Mr. Turkus: Offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: No cross-examination. I move to strike out his testimony with respect to defendant Buchalter as not binding upon him, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: Same motion with respect to defendant Weiss.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Fischbein: Defendant Louis Capone has no questions and makes the same motion made by the other counsel.

The Court: Denied. 1304

Mr. Fischbein: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: May I exhibit People's Exhibit 19, the weapon, to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

MAX KAUFMAN, residing at 1801 First Street, Peoria, Illinois, called as a witness on behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

1305

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Kaufman, are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you reside with your wife and family in Peoria, Illinois? A. That is right, sir.

Q. And in cooperation with the District Attorney's office and police department of Peoria, did you return to New York City to testify in this case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you live in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

1306 Max Kaufman—For People—Direct

Q. How long did you live in Brooklyn? A. About 25 years.

Q. In September, 1936, did you reside in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And specifically did you live at 621 Lefferts Avenue, Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that an apartment house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And is it located on the corner of Lefferts and Albany Avenue in Brooklyn? A. Right, sir.

Q. When you lived at 621 Lefferts Avenue in 1307 Brooklyn in September, 1936, did you own an automobile? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a Chevrolet automobile, 1936, two door, hard top sedan, black in color? A. Right.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit L for identification.)

Q. Mr. Kaufman, I show you People's Exhibit L for identification, and ask you if that is sub-1308 stantially a photograph of the premises in which you lived and the surrounding locale? A. Yes, sir, I lived right here at the white entrance.

Q. Where the white entrance is on that photograph? That is where you lived in September, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. And the building with the white entrance is 621 Lefferts Avenue? A. That is correct.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as not binding on the defendant.

Mr. Cuff: Same objection.
The Court: Let me see it. Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(People's Exhibit L for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 20 in evidence.)

Q. Mr. Kaufman, on Friday, September 11, 1936, did you use your Chevrolet car? A. Friday, yes.

1310

Q. And what time did you get through using it? A. It must have been about one o'clock at night.

Q. And would you say one o'clock in the morning of Saturday, September 12, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. When you got through using your car, did you park it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you park it? A. Right in front, on the other side of the street, across the street.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 20 now in evidence and indicate to the jury where you parked your car in front of your premises? A. I parked it right over here (indicating).

1311

Q. Is it about where the other automobile is? A. Well, I would not say exactly. Right across the street from the house it was, but the other side of the fence. There was a fence around there at that time.

Q. At that time when you parked the car, that Saturday morning early, was there a fence similar to the fence on People's Exhibit 20? A. Right.

Q. And was your car parked directly opposite? A. Opposite the entrance.

Mr. Turkus: May I exhibit People's Exhibit 20 to the jury?

The Court: Yes. Objection is overruled.

Mr. Kaufman, when you parked your auto-
e in front of 621 Lefferts Avenue in Brook-rly Saturday morning, September 12, 1936, ou lock your car? A. Yes, sir.

At that time did your car have a radio in
A. Yes, sir.

Did the ignition key, that is the key that s the engine or ignition key, was that the key that fitted the handle of the lock? A.
sir.

Did you take the key with you after you
d the door? A. Yes, sir.

Did anybody else to your knowledge ha-e t of keys? A. No, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

When you took the keys and you went ss to your apartment, did you go across to to sleep? A. Yes, sir.

Did you give anybody permission or au-ity to use your automobile?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

1315

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike the answer out.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you give anybody permission or authority to use your automobile? A. No, sir.

Q. Saturday morning what time approximately did you wake up? A. I woke up about nine o'clock.

Q. Did you go downstairs? A. Yes.

1316

Q. Did you go down there with intention of using your car? A. That is right.

Mr. Barshay: Object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: May I take one objection to this whole line of inquiry? Is that all right, sir?

The Court: I would rather you make your objections, unless you make the ground of objection more specific. Then one ruling may be enough to cover all.

1317

Mr. Barshay: On the ground that it is not binding on the defendant Buchalter and on the further ground that it is evidence of another crime that has nothing to do with this.

The Court: All evidence so far is taken subject to checking up and connection.

Mr. Barshay: So when I say the objection, sir, I won't set forth the grounds. Those are the grounds, sir.

The Court: It only goes to the order of proof.

1318 Max Kaufman—For People—Direct

Mr. Talley: Also for the other defendants.

The Court: Yes, same ruling. Overruled.

Q. I think we got to the point in your testimony, Mr. Kaufman, where you had parked your car about one or two o'clock Saturday morning in front of your house, locked it up and went home to sleep; is that right? A. That is right.

1319 Q. That nobody else had any keys and you gave nobody permission to use it? A. Correct.

Q. That when you woke up about nine o'clock in the morning, you went down with the intention of using your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got downstairs was the car there? A. No.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection. Same exception.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. When you found your car missing, Mr.
1320 Kaufman, did you go some place? A. I went to the police station.

Q. Do you recall whether that was on Empire Boulevard near Prospect Park? A. That is right.

Q. Did you there make a report of the occurrence in connection with your automobile?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

A. I just made a report that my car was stolen, that was all.

Mr. Barshay: Move to strike the answer out.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you recall whether there was a detective there by the name of Jarvis or not? I know it is a long time ago. A. It is a long time ago but there was a detective there as far as I know.

Q. On Sunday, September 13th, at about noon time, did you hear something with respect to your automobile; yes or no? A. Yes, sir. 1322

Q. At that time did you receive a telephone call? A. Yes, I received a telephone from the police station from Miller Avenue.

Q. After you received the telephone call from the police station at Miller Avenue, did you go some place? A. I went to the police station.

Q. And did you there see your automobile? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you there identify your automobile? A. I did.

Q. Now did you look at your car? Did you examine it at the police station? A. Yes, I looked at it. I did. 1323

Q. When you had parked the car you told us before you had a radio in it, is that right? A. That is right.

Q. When you saw the car Sunday in the Miller Avenue police station and identified it, was the radio in the car? A. No.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

1324 Max Kaufman—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Was the radio missing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you given anybody permission to take the radio?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

1325 A. No, not that I know of.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now when you examined the car, did the car have on it when you examined it at Miller Avenue on Sunday after you got the call from the police station, did it have on it the license plates that had been issued to you by the Bureau 1326 of Motor Vehicles and the plates that were on the car when it was stolen? A. No.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Will you answer? A. It did not have my license plates. It had somebody else's.

Q. Did you ever recover your license plates back?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

A. No.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, and I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 1328

Q. So that when you examined your car, Mr. Kaufman, in the Miller Avenue station on Sunday after it had been recovered by the police, it had different license plates on it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you notice anything else different about your car when you saw it in the Miller Avenue station on Sunday after it had been recovered by the police as contrasted with it when you parked it that Saturday morning? A. You mean the way it looked?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir, it was all powdered up 1329 with some kind of powder, for fingerprints—I don't know what it was for but it was all white.

Q. Did you see a wire? A. Yes, there was a wire that went from the ventilation to the ignition.

Q. Mr. Kaufman, I show you People's Exhibits 13 and 14 in evidence, and ask you if that is a front and rear view of the automobile concerning which all these things that you have related to the jury happened? A. That was the color of the car and that is the model that I had.

1330 Max Kaufman—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Offered for cross-examination.

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley:

Q. Mr. Kaufman, was the radio in the car when you bought the car? A. You mean when I purchased the car?

Q. Yes. A. No, I installed it after I purchased it.

1331 Q. What kind of a car was it? A. 1936 Chevrolet.

Q. What kind of radio was it? A. I think it was a Motorola.

Q. Where did you buy it? A. I bought it on Graham Avenue.

Q. Do you remember how much you paid for it? A. I think it was about $33, something like that.

Q. Was it a new radio? A. Yes.

Q. And you had it installed in the car? A. I had it installed there.

1332 Q. You left the car about one o'clock in the morning, did you? A. Around that time.

Q. In front of your residence which was 621 Lefferts Avenue, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in front of your door? A. In front of, that is across the street.

Q. Across the street from your residence? A. Yes.

Q. Then you went upstairs and went to bed, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. That was one o'clock on Saturday morning? A. That was on Friday night; that is already Saturday morning.

Q. Friday night you left it there. If you left it there at one o'clock that would be one a.m. Saturday morning? A. That is right.

Q. But you missed it about nine o'clock? A. About a little after nine on Saturday morning.

Mr. Turkus: A matter of eight hours.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: That is all and th. ık you.

1334

WILLIAM R. JARVIS, detective, shield 479, attached to the 75th squad, New York Police Department, called as a witness on behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Detective Jarvis, are you attached to the police force of the City of New York? A. I am.

Q. And how many years have you been a police officer? A. Seventeen. 1335

Q. Of the seventeen years that you have been in the department, how many years have you been assigned to the detective division? A. Over nine.

Q. In September, 1936, what squad were you attached to? A. 71st squad, at Empire Boulevard, Kings County.

Q. On September 12, 1936, were you assigned to the 71st squad? A. I was.

Q. Was it then located on Empire Boulevard? A. It was.

1336 William R. Jarvis—For People—Direct

Q. Did you do a tour of duty that day? A. I did.

Q. What hours did you work? A. From 8:30 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Q. At or about 10 o'clock in the morning did a man come in to you by the name of Kaufman? A. He did.

Q. And did he make a report of a stolen automobile?

1337 Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is incompetent.

The Court: Purely collateral. Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He did.

Q. What was the name of the individual? A. Max Kaufman.

Q. Did you recognize him when he left the stand? A. I recognized him before he went into the court.

Q. And was that the Max Kaufman who made
1338 the report of the loss of an automobile? A. It was.

Q. Without stating the conversation, did Mr. Kaufman tell you what happened to the car as far as he knew? A. He did.

Q. What was the license plates of Kaufman's car as reported to you? A. L-8359 New York.

Q. 1936? A. 1936.

Q. Did you get a full description of the property that Mr. Kaufman reported stolen? A. I did.

Q. Did you get the motor number of the car which he reported stolen? A. I did.

Q. What was the motor number? A. May I refer—

Q. Naturally. A. Motor number was 6376729. That was verified with the B. of I. in the Police Headquarters in Manhattan.

Q. Did you get a serial number? A. I did.

Q. What was the serial number? A. 46192.

Q. And did you get a description of the car? A. I did.

Q. What was the description? A. A 1936 Chevrolet sedan, painted black. 1340

Q. When that report was made and you received a full description of the property reported stolen, did you cause a teletype and radio alarm to issue? A. I did.

Q. What was the alarm that issued? A. Alarm No. 11933.

Q. And what was it for? A. It was for a 1936 Chevrolet sedan bearing the license number and motor and serial numbers given before in this testimony.

Q. Did it give the name of the owner, Max Kaufman, and his address? A. It did. 1341

Q. And did the alarm report that vehicle stolen? A. It did. It reported his car was stolen.

Q. And in pursuance of police duties, when that alarm goes out is the police department and all its various members on watch for that motor vehicle? A. They are.

Q. On September 13, 1936, at about 12:30 at noon, did you receive a message from Detective Schiesser? A. I received a message from somebody in the 75th squad that my automobile reported stolen on 1/19/33 had been recovered but the plates were missing and I should cancel my alarm, it was used in a crime.

1342 William R. Jarvis—For People—Direct

Q. And did you cancel the alarm upon the recovery of the car? A. I did.

Q. And was there an alarm, a teletype alarm, sent out over the wire cancelling the lookout alarm for that Max Kaufman stolen Chevrolet? Is that the procedure? A. You mean prior to the recovery?

Q. No, after the recovery. When the car was 1343 recovered? A. Yes.

Q. Does another alarm go out over the wires? A. No, the alarm No. 11933 cancelled in so far as car; plates still missing, which means to keep looking for those plates.

Q. To your knowledge were the plates ever recovered? A. They were not.

Mr. Turkus: Offered for cross.

(No cross-examination.)

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, the defendant moves to strike out the testimony of the witness Jarvis upon the 1344 ground it is not material to the issue here: it is not binding on any of the defendants and has to do with the commission of another crime.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: Defendant Capone joins in.

Mr. Talley: We all join in.

The Court: Denied.

Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case; let nobody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open. Remember the other instructions. Please follow them.

The defendants are remanded.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to Wednesday, October 22, 1941, at 10 a. m.)

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 22, 1941. 1346

TRIAL RESUMED

SIMON P. AMBRAZ, United States Army, Camp Upton, New York, called as a witness in behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Are you a captain in the United States Army? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is your post? A. Camp Upton, New 1347 York.

Q. Are you captain in any particular special branch of the Government service? A. Yes, sir, military police officer.

Q. Are you captain of the military police at Camp Upton, New York? A. Yes.

Q. Prior to being captain in connection with the military police of the United States Army force were you attached to the Police Department of the City of New York? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years were you a member of the Police Department? A. Twenty-six years.

Q. Of the twenty-six years you were a police officer, how many years were you a detective? A. About twenty years.

Q. During the month of September, 1936, were you a detective? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What post or command were you assigned to? A. I was connected with the Homicide Squad, Brooklyn.

1349 Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, did you have a conversation with Detective Schiesser? A. No, sir, I do not recall that.

Q. Did you see an automobile bearing license plates L-16-67, N. Y., 1936? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you conduct an investigation in connection with license plates L-16-67 N. Y. 1936 on Sunday, September 13, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those the circumstances under which you went to the home of one Abraham Waxman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In conducting your investigation as to the ownership of the plates L-16-67 N. Y. 1936, did you ascertain the owner of those plates? A. I did.

1350

Mr. Barshay: I object to it as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant with respect to the defendant Buchalter; it does not tend to connect him with the commission of the crime.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. At approximately what time on Sunday morning, September 13, 1936, Captain, did you learn that the plates L-16-67 N. Y. 1936, were in the possession of the police of the City of New York?

1351

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: It calls for a conclusion. Is there objection on that ground?

Mr. Barshay: On that ground too.

The Court: Sustained on that ground.

1352

Q. At approximately what time on Sunday morning, September 13, 1936, did you start your investigation?

Mr. Barshay: I make objection on the ground stated.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Approximately between 7 and 7:30 o'clock.

Q. Was that at the time when an alarm issued for the plates? A. No, information was received that the license plates bearing those license numbers, L-16-67 N. Y. was seen leaving the premises 725 Sutter Avenue.

1353

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out as not binding.

The Court: Strike it out as hearsay.

Mr. Turkus: Does your Honor strike out the time? I asked him what time he started the investigation.

The Court: He made an investigation. I assume your purpose in putting him on he stand is to show ownership of the license plates that were on the car.

Mr. Turkus: That is true.

The Court: Now, that can be shown in a legal way, according to the rules of evidence.

Mr. Turkus: I have a right to bring out what time in the morning he started his investigation.

The Court: That is all right.

Mr. Turkus: That is all I wanted from that answer.

. Turkus:

Will you tell me the time when you started nvestigation of the ownership of the plates 7 N. Y. 1936, on Sunday, September 13, A. About 7:30 A. M.

Did you ascertain the name and address of vner of those plates?

Mr Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled. Yes or no.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Yes, sir.

After you made your investigation and find with respect to the ownership of the plates, e did you go? A. I went to the premises Newport Street.

Whom there did you see? A. One Abraham nan.

Without stating what the conversation was swer yes or no—did you have a conversation with Abraham Waxman in connection with plates L-16-67 N. Y. 1936?

Mr. Barshay: I object on the same grounds.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you had that conversation with Abraham Waxman in connection with the plates, did you go somewhere? A. Yes, sir. 1358

Q. Did Abraham Waxman accompany you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did the both of you go? A. We went to 384 East 96th Street.

Q. In what portion of the premises did you go? A. We went directly to the garage.

Q. In the rear of the premises? A. In the rear of the building, yes, sir.

Q. Did Waxman point out the garage to you?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on the defendants. 1359

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He did.

Q. Did you look at that garage? A. I did.

Q. While you were looking at the garage was Waxman talking to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you observe in connection with the garage doors?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection, and on the further ground that it calls for evidence of another crime.

1360 Simon P. Ambraz—For People—Direct

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. The garage door was forced and the lock was removed.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1361 Q. Was that examination of the garage door and the lock made in the presence of Abraham Waxman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the garage doors open so a view of the inside was had? A. No, sir, they were closed, but no lock on it.

Q. After the discovery had been made by you, were the garage doors opened by either you or Waxman? A. Yes, sir, I opened the garage door.

Q. Was there a motor vehicle inside? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were there any license plates on that motor 1362 vehicle? A. No, sir.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor give me one general objection to all this line of inquiry so that I will not interrupt Mr. Turkus, and one exception?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: He is your witness.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out all of his testimony on the ground it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, it has not connected the defendant Buchalter with the commission of the crime.

Motion denied. Exception.

Mr. Talley: The same applies to the other defendants. (No questions by defense.)

ABRAHAM WAXMAN, residing at 1167 Willmohr Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York, called as a witness in behalf of The People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows: 1364

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Waxman, what is your business or profession? A. Barber.

Q. How many years have you been a barber? A. About 40 years.

Q. Did you list your address as 1167 Willmohr Street, Brooklyn, with the stenographer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you reside there with your wife and family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you live there in September of 1936? 1365
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Willmohr Street at one time known by another name? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the other name? A. Newport Street.

Q. How do you spell that? A. N-e-w-p-o-r-t.

Q. In 1936, and specifically during the month of September, 1936, did you own an automobile? A. I did.

Q. What kind of an automobile was it? A. It was a Ford sedan, '29 four-door sedan.

Q. A four-door sedan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was its color? A. Grey.

Q. Do you still own that car? A. I do not.

Q. When did you sell it? A. The latter part of 1939.

Q. Now, Mr. Waxman, in September, 1936, when you owned this grey Ford sedan, do you recall the license plates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are the numbers? A. L-16-67.

Q. Did you garage that automobile in a gar-
1367 age? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you keep the garage or maintain the garage?

Mr. Barshay: May I have the same objection on the same ground with respect to this witness?

The Court: Yes, the same ruling.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. 384 East 96th Street.

Q. That is in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

1368 Q. What type of a garage was it? A. It was a three-car garage, with no partition, but a door for each occupant.

Q. Is that commonly called a private garage? A. Yes, sir, I think you would call it so.

Q. How many blocks away from your home was this garage? A. Two and one-half blocks.

Q. What was the method you used to close or lock the doors of the garage? A. Just an ordinary cheap 10-cent lock.

Q. Would you describe it as an ordinary padlock? Would that be a fair description? A.

Well, it would be just an ordinary 10-cent lock such as you buy in a 5-and-10 cent store.

By the Court:

Q. Is that in the Canarsie section? A. No, sir, it is the dividing line between the Canarsie line and the Canarsie district—East New York and East Flatbush—right on the dividing line. That is where I live, right on the dividing line.

Q. (Mr. Turkus) This garage is in what they 1370 call the Brownsville district? A. No, sir, East Flatbush.

Q. Does that street run one block away from the boulevard? A. No, sir, that street, I believe, begins at Lenox Road.

Q. The street runs north and south? A. Are you referring to my home or the garage?

Q. The street where your home is. A. That street commences at East New York, yes, sir, and that is 98th Street, and Newport Street.

Q. That is in the section that meets with Rockaway Boulevard? A. No, sir, Rockaway Parkway. 1371

Q. I mean Parkway? A. One block this side.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit M for identification.)

Q. How far south is Church Avenue from that? A. One block from Church Avenue, one block south.

1372 Abraham Waxman—For People—Direct

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. I show you People's Exhibit M for identification and ask you if that substantially portrays the locale there on the picture as it was in September, 1936, including the row of garages in which you stored that Ford automobile. Can you recognize that? Look where the garages are. A. I believe this is the beginning of the alley.

1373 Q. That is the side entrance view? A. The beginning of the alley.

Q. Do you recognize it now? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: The same objection with respect to the exhibit as the objection made to the receipt of the testimony.

The Court: Same ruling.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Received in evidence and marked People's Exhibit No. 21.)

1374

Mr. Turkus: May I submit People's Exhibit 21 for examination by the jury?

The Court: Yes.

By the Court:

Q. So the jury will understand, is Rockaway Parkway a continuation of Rockaway Avenue? A. Rockaway Parkway and Rockaway Avenue, I do not see any connection there. Rockaway Avenue in Brooklyn is about seven or eight blocks further east of Rockaway Parkway.

1375

Q. Where does Rockaway Parkway begin? A. Rockaway Parkway begins at I believe East New York Avenue.

Q. And runs to Canarsie? A. It runs out quite a bit, yes, sir.

Q. Where this garage is located was a short distance from the car barns on Church Avenue Line, wasn't it? A. Your Honor, I really am not familiar. I know there is on Hegeman Street a car barn, but I should judge it would be about a mile away.

1376

Q. I want to get the location. I was under the impression the car barns were at Rockaway Avenue and Church. A. No, it is not there; it is on Hegeman Street, around New Lots Avenue.

Q. My recollection of the car barns probably is the old location; it goes back about 40 years. A. Most likely yes, but it would be about a mile from the garage. That street is called Hegeman Avenue or Hegeman Street, I believe.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

1377

(Received and marked People's Exhibit N for identification.)

Q. I hand you People's Exhibit N for identification and ask you if that is another view of the garages including the one in which you stored your Ford automobile, and I ask you whether it truly represents, substantially, the conditions as they existed in September of 1936. A. Exactly.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 22 in evidence.)

Q. As we face this photograph, People's Exhibit 22, and looking at it again, can you indicate which one was the garage you stored your grey Ford in? Can you indicate it or pick it out? A. The first one.

Q. The first garage as you face the photograph on the right-hand side? A. Yes, sir.

1379

Mr. Turkus: May I show this exhibit, People's 22, to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Mr. Waxman, did you use your Ford car on Labor Day, September, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got through using it did you store it in the garage? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And specifically, did you store it in a garage portrayed on People's Exhibit 22 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any difficulty in the operation
1380 of the car? By that, I mean did you get flat tires at about that time? A. I got a flat tire on Labor Day night.

Q. Did you store the flat shoe in the rear part of the car? A. Inside.

Q. Subsequently did you cause that flat shoe to be brought to a repair man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that taken there by your son? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Thereafter did you personally go to the repair shop for that shoe? A. I did.

Q. Did you drive down in your Ford car? A. I did.

Q. Did you take the shoe with you or was it put on the car? A. The garage man put it on the wheel and I drove back to the garage.

Q. Was the spare tire then put on the rack, back on the rack, the tire rack? A. The one that was repaired was put on the wheel and the one taken off the wheel was put on the rack.

Q. After you had the deflated shoe changed, 1382 which had been flat and subsequently repaired, put on the car, did you drive your car back to the garage portrayed on People's Exhibit 22 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you lock the car in the garage? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Approximately when was that, to the best of your recollection? A. I believe it was on Wednesday night.

Q. Did you see the car after that and before the arrival of the detectives at your home? A. No, sir.

Q. Was that a car which you used on week- 1383 ends? A. Mostly, yes, sir.

Q. You were one of those Sunday drivers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On Sunday morning did the detectives come to your home? A. Two detectives.

Q. Did you recognize Captain Ambraz, who preceded you out of the court-room as you came in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he one of the detectives who called to see you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The law does not permit you to tell us what the detectives said to you or what you said to the detectives, but I can go this far: Did the detectives talk to you? A. They did.

Q. Did they talk to you in reference to license plates L-16-67—yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they talk to you in reference to the ownership of the plates? A. They asked me if I had a car with license plates 16-67.

Q. Did you answer the detectives? A. I said, "Yes, sir, I have a car."

1385 Q. Well, were you asked where the car was? A. They asked me, "Where is your car?" I said, "In the garage."

Q. After that talk what happened? A. We went to the garage.

Q. You and the two detectives? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you estimate what time of the morning you went there? A. About eight o'clock.

Mr. Talley: Is this Sunday morning?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Q. That Sunday we speak of was Sunday, Sep-
1386 tember 13, 1936? A. I think it was.

Q. When the detectives accompanied you to the private garage, did they go with you to the garage exhibited on People's Exhibit 22 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was the place where you had stored your car after you had used it last? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got to the garage what did you notice in connection with the garage doors and the lock? A. The lock had been broken.

Q. When you had locked the garage doors, was the lock intact? A. It was locked, properly locked.

Q. Were you ever able to use that lock again? A. Never.

Q. Did you give anyone permission to open up your garage? A. No, sir.

Q. Were the garage doors opened by the detectives or yourself to look at the car inside? A. Well, when we got to the garage the first thing I did was to look in through the window, and when I saw my car there I felt safe. Then when the detectives opened the door the first thing they noticed was the plates were off. 1388

Q. Had you given anyone permission to take your plates? A. Never.

Q. Was that the first knowledge or intimation you had that your plates were stolen—under the circumstances you have related to this jury? A. Ye., sir.

Q. Was it through the visit of the detectives that you first learned the plates were gone? A. That is right.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification. 1389

(Received and marked People's Exhibit O for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit O for identification and ask you if you can identify it. A. That is right.

Q. When you say "That is right," what is it? A. This was my car.

Q. Were you present when the detectives took that picture? A. No, sir, I don't think so.

Q. Is that the way the car looked without the plates? A. Exactly.

1390 Colloquy

Mr. Turkus: People's Exhibit O for identification is offered in evidence.

(Received, without objection, and marked People's Exhibit 23 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May I exhibit People's Exhibit 23 in evidence to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross examination.

1391

Defense Counsel: No questions.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the testimony on the grounds previously set forth.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

And on the further ground that it is evidence of another crime not connected with this case.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1392

Mr. Talley: May I have the exact location of this garage which is indicated on People's Exhibit 22?

Mr. Turkus: The first garage to the right as you look at the photograph and in which was stored the Ford car.

Mr. Talley: Will you designate the place?

The Court: 384 East 96th Street, he said.

Mr. Talley: 384 East 96th Street is the approximate location?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Talley: I just wanted to know where it was.

1393

HAROLD D. ROSEN, residing at 1611 Perkimonen Avenue, Reading, Pennsylvania, called as a witness in behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. How old are you? A. Thirty years old.

Q. Do you reside at the address listed with the stenographer, 1611 Perkimonen Avenue, Reading, Pennsylvania? A. Yes, sir.

1394

Q. Were you in business in Reading, Pennsylvania until recently? A. I was.

Q. Where was that business located? A. 554 Lancaster Avenue, Reading.

Q. What kind of a business did you conduct? A. A meat market and grocery business.

Q. What kind of work are you engaged in now? A. Part time in a department store in Reading.

Q. When you speak of Reading, do you refer to Reading, Pennsylvania? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you at one time a school teacher? A. Yes, sir. For the last two years I was teaching in the Reading evening high school.

1395

Q. What subject did you teach? A. English.

Q. Are you a son of the late Joseph Rosen who was killed September 13, 1936, in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. I am.

Q. Now, from the summer of 1931 to the spring of 1932, did you work for your father, Joseph Rosen? A. Yes, sir, I was employed by him and his partner; I was employed by the firm of my father.

Q. What was the name of the firm your father ember of? A. The New York and New Clothing Transportation Company.

w many partners were there in the firm?

o were the four? A. My father, Joseph Morris Blustein, Nat Sobler, and Martin

at business was this firm, the New York Jersey Transportation Company, Clothnsportation Company, engaged in? A. re engaged in transporting clothing from ufacturer to the contractor, and they ve the articles, pants, coats, and vests, and returned back again.
that commonly known as the clothing industry? A. Yes, sir, known as cloth-king.
en you were employed there do you re-
re the place of business was, the office?
ington Place off Broadway in Manhatile employed there what were your du-General charge of the office, taking care fice, answering telephone calls and be of ssistance around the books.

re you familiar with bookkeeping and ng? A. Yes, sir, I took accountancy at s that one of your regular courses at

A. No, sir, I took that as a subject for e.
what college did you study accountancy?
ght College, Reading, Pennsylvania.
re you familiar with the books and rec-
the company? A. Yes, sir, at that time

I was familiar with the books and records of the company.

Q. Was the business a paying business?

Mr. Barshay: I object. That is a conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception to defendants.

A. I certainly know; I was bookkeeper there.

1400

The Court: You have not the books here now?

The Witness: No.

Q. Did the partners, including your father, have a weekly salary? A. Yes, sir, they had a weekly salary.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as entirely incompetent with respect to the defendants.

The Court: It is competent, because it is collateral. The rule as to conclusions 1401 is relaxed as to collateral testimony. Objection is overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception to defendants.

Q. You got to the point before objection of counsel of telling me, or rather, telling the jury and the Court that the partners had a weekly drawing account or salary. A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. In addition to that, were there profits that were distributed?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir, there were profits; they usually had expense accounts which they took a certain amount during the week, etc. For example, my father had to go to Pennsylvania quite often—

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not responsive.
1403 The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Tell me about that. You can respond to me now.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
The Witness: For example, he had to go to Pennsylvania to make contacts there with contractors; he certainly had to have 1404 a drawing account to do that, and it was taken out of the firm.

Q. Were there trips to Pennsylvania the disbursements for which were defrayed and paid by the company in connection with securing Pennsylvania business? A. That is right.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1405

A. He contacted various chambers of commerce in different towns, like Carbondale, and members of the banks, in order to find out what could be done to place different industries there.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out that answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1406

Q. Directing your attention to the summer of 1932, did you accompany your father to a hotel in Manhattan on Broadway and 8th Street, known as the Broadway Central Hotel? A. I did.

Q. Did you go there with your father by appointment?

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel leading.

The Court: Overruled on that point.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1407

A. My father had an appointment and I accompanied him.

Q. Before you and your father went to the Broadway Central Hotel, did you know with whom he had the appointment?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer yes or no.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Answer this question too yes or no— Did you know when you went with your father to the Broadway Central Hotel whom he was going to meet?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: The word "know" is really objectionable, because it states his own conclusion.

Mr. Turkus: I will reframe it.

The Court: As to the alleged persons—were you so informed?

1409 The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (The Court) And did you assume it was true?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1410

A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Answer this yes or no. Did your father ask you to accompany him to that meeting?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go of your own initiative?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you go with him side by side to the hotel?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection. 1412
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, when you and your father got to the Broadway Central Hotel what did you see your father do?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to this line on behalf of the defendant Capone as in no wise binding on him.
Mr. Cuff: We make the same objection 1413
as to Weiss.
The Court: I don't know whether it is or not; if it is not connected up it means nothing.
Mr. Rosenthal: May I have an objection to this question and may I have a general objection to this line of questioning in so far as the defendant Capone is concerned?
The Court: As to the subject-matter, yes.

1414

Mr. Rosenthal: And I take an exception to the Court's ruling.

Mr. Cuff: May the same rule apply to the defendant Weiss?

The Court: Yes. The Court figures if it is not connected it is not prejudicial in any way. No harm is done by taking it subject to being connected.

By Mr. Turkus:

1415

Q. What did you see your father do? A. I saw him walk into the hotel.

Q. Did you wait for your father to come out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you wait? A. About three-quarters of an hour or an hour approximately.

Q. Did your father come out? A. Yes, sir, he did.

Q. Was he alone when he came out? A. When he came out he was alone.

Q. Did anybody join him in the lobby? A. Yes, sir, they did.

1416

Q. Now, that question I asked may be ambiguous about coming out alone. Do you mean stepping out of the hotel, the outer door? I am referring to the time you saw him in the lobby. A. In the lobby there were three men with him.

By the Court:

Q. That is rather a small lobby? A. It is not very large, the Broadway Central.

Q. The small lobby was visible from where you stood? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Did you see your father walk in the lobby with these men or did you see something else? A. I saw him standing with three men.

Q. Did you watch him and the men?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1418

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Do you recognize one of the men? A. I do.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: I object to this line of testimony on the ground he says what he is describing was in 1932, and I submit and object to it on the ground that whatever happened is too remote to be competent evidence in this trial, four years before the crime charged in the indictment, 1932—four years before 1936.

1419

Mr. Barshay: And I join in that objection.

The Court: The same ruling.

Mr. Barshay: Defendants except.

Mr. Talley: Defendants except.

Q. Tell this jury who one of the men was that was in the hotel lobby with your father. A. The gentleman there named Lepke.

The Court: We don't know what that means.

1420 The Witness: The gentleman right here, next to that fellow with the badge.

Q. Do you know his name? A. Yes, sir, Lepke.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: By "Lepke" indicating whom?

1421 Mr. Turkus: The defendant Buchalter, alias Lepke.

The Court: The record does not show who Lepke is.

Mr. Turkus: He pointed to him and indicated him. He called his name on the record.

Mr. Barshay: I object. There is no proof that they are one and the same person, although there will be. Let the District Attorney wait his time.

The Court: All right.

1422 By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Did the defendant Buchalter, or Lepke, as you call him, and your father and those other men stop in the hotel lobby and talk? A. Yes, sir, they did.

Q. About how far away were you from your father and the defendant Lepke and the other men? A. It seemed about 15 or 20 feet.

Q. As you looked at them, which way was your father facing? A. His back was toward me.

Q. Who was your father facing? A. He was facing the gentlemen—

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as a conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You told us as you looked at the group your father's back was to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Toward whom was he facing? A. My father was facing toward the man I pointed out in this court-room now.

Q. What name did you call that man? A. The only name I knew him at that time, Lepke. 1424

Q. At that time was the name Lepke a familiar name to you? A. Yes, sir, it was.

Q. Had you heard that name before you went to the hotel with your father? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. From where you stood did your senses, that is your physical senses, tell you who was doing the talking? 1425

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Sustained as to form.

Q. Who was talking?

Mr. Barshay: I object. He says he was not in a position to hear.

Mr. Turkus: I never heard such an answer.

1426

Mr. Barshay: He said he was 15 feet away or 20 feet away.

By the Court:

Q. Did you hear who was talking? A. Yes, sir, Lepke was talking.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1427

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. While Lepke was talking, did he do anything? A. He seemed to be in an animated—

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Barshay: My objection is to the answer as he started it.

The Court: The answer was not finished when the interruption came.

1428

Mr. Barshay: He started to answer with the words "He seemed." It is obviously a conclusion.

By the Court:

Q. What did you observe as to the talk? A. Lepke, the man I referred to, was in an animated discussion with my father.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the characterization.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that your Honor rule that the witness be permitted to complete that testimony.

Mr. Barshay: That is an inference that I did not allow him to complete. He finished his answer.

The Court: Did you finish your answer?

The Witness: No, I was continuing.

The Court: Well, go ahead. 1430

The Witness: There were two men beside him. They all seemed—

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out. That is not responsive. It is not responsive to the question Mr. Turkus asked. He finished the answer to the question Mr. Turkus put to him.

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor permit him to finish?

Mr. Cuff: May we have the question read?

The Court: Leave out what "seemed." 1431
State what you observed. Finish your answer.

A. He was in an animated discussion.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out.

The Court: Please don't interrupt. Let the witness finish his answer and then objection may be made. This delays the trial. What is your answer.

1432 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Direct

The Witness: Lepke was in an animated discussion with my father.

By the Court:

Q. How about the others? A. There were two men beside him who seemed to edge up close to Mr. Lepke.

The Court: They "seemed" you say?

1433 The Witness: I was looking at them. They did.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. While Lepke was engaged in this talk with your father, which you said was an animated discussion, did you see Lepke himself do anything?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1434 A. It all looked like threatening. I would rather not answer that.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the witness's voluntary statement.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Answer it the way you want to answer it.

Mr. Barshay: I object. It is an improper statement.

The Court: You were asked if you saw Lepke himself do anything.

The Witness: He moved closer to my father.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. When he moved closer to your father, how far apart were their faces when Lepke was talking? A. They were almost face to face.

Q. How close were the faces? A. He spoke right into his face. 1436

Q. When you say "he spoke right into his face," who spoke? A. Lepke spoke into my father's face.

By the Court:

Q. How many inches away would you say their faces were? A. Maybe six.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. When facing Lepke quite as close as you told the Judge what did your father do? A. My father turned around and walked out of the hotel. 1437

Q. When he walked out of the hotel, did he join you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you look at your father's face? A. I did.

Q. Describe it to the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor will keep mind this is in 1932.

Mr. Cuff: I object on the ground that at his father's face appeared to be is t material; it has no materiality and relevancy whatever to this case.

The Court: The Court is keeping erything in mind.

Mr. Cuff: May we have an exception your Honor's ruling?

The Court: Objection is overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Defendants except.

Mr. Barshay: Defendants except.

The Witness: He was very white and le and seemed very nervous, and was ry nervous.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out a conclusion.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: It is not binding on these endants. I wish counsel would refrain m his cynical smile when I make an ection.

The Court: It is competent under the es of evidence as understood by the urt. Immediate physical reactions may described.

Mr. Barshay: I have a right to object. r Honor understands that.

Turkus:

n you saw your father in the condition described to the jury—and answer this —did you talk to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he answer you—yes or no? A. No.

Q. How long after that was it before your father's business broke up?

Mr. Barshay: I objec., especially to the word "broke up." That is a conclusion.

The Court: Well, "discontinued." Use the word "discontinued."

Mr. Barshay: I object to the use of that word on the ground it has no relevancy to this issue. 1442

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About six months.

Q. After your father's business had ended, that is, the New York and New Jersey Company, did your father secure a position? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For whom did he go to work? A. Louis Cooper.

Q. Louis Cooper of the Garfield Express? A. That is right. 1443

Q. Approximately how long did your father work for Louis Cooper? A. About five or six months.

Q. When your father secured this position with Louis Cooper did you return to Reading, Pennsylvania? A. I did.

Q. Did you there go to school?

Mr. Barshay: I object to what he did; it has nothing to do with this case.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1444 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Direct

A. I went back to finish my last year at college.

Q. When the school semester was completed, did you return to New York City?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

1445 Q. Did your father's position with Louis Cooper or the Garfield Express terminate? A. It did, before I finished school.

Q. During the summer of 1939 did your father have any steady employment—1933—excuse me.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Cuff and Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1446 A. He did not.

Q. Did he, to your knowledge, make any attempt to secure work?

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He did.

Q. Did he seek to get a connection in the clothing trucking business?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.

The Court: How would he know?

Mr. Turkus: He was back from school, working for his father.

The Court: That would be hearsay.

Q. You were not with him when he tried to get work? A. In constant communication with him.

The Court: That is all hearsay.

Mr. Turkus: I will not pursue it. 1448

Q. Do you know this of your own knowledge: While your father was unemployed did he make visits to the garment district and the clothing district?

Mr. Barshay: I object, at the most it is hearsay, unless he went with him.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether your father secured a position with a man named Larry Cooper? A. He did. 1449

Q. Do you know whether that position lasted a short time? A. It lasted a short time, yes, sir.

Q. Was it after that position ended that your father went into business in the candy store at 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I want to direct your attention to the summer of 1936. Were you living then in Reading, Pennsylvania? A. I was.

Q. Did your father, Joseph Rosen, go down to Reading, Pennsylvania? A. He did.

Q. How long did your father stay in Reading, Pennsylvania? A. Just a few days.

1450

Q. Can you remember the date of his arrival now? A. It was a Friday night.

Q. When your father arrived in Reading, Pennsylvania—and this question just answer yes or no—did he talk to you? A. Yes, sir, he did.

Q. Answer this only yes or no: Did he discuss the reason for his visit with you?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

Mr. Cuff: That is calling for hearsay testimony.

1451

The Court: Answer yes or no. Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff and Mr. Barshay: Exception to defendants.

A. Yes, he did.

The Court: What year was that?

Mr. Turkus: In the summer of 1936.

Q. Approximately how many days did your father spend in Reading?

1452

Mr. Cuff: Objected to as already answered. He said a few days.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff and Mr. Barshay: Defendants except.

A. Three days.

Q. Did your father then depart from Reading? A. Yes, sir. He did.

Q. On Sunday, September 13, 1936, did you receive a telephone call in Reading, Pennsylvania? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Who telephoned you? A. My sister Sylvia.

Q. After that telephone call did you go to Brooklyn, New York? A. I did.

Q. When did you arrive in Brooklyn? A. I arrived at about one o'clock.

Q. Would you say one o'clock in the afternoon? A. Yes, sir, I believe—it was the nine o'clock train and it got to New York about 1454 12:30; it was about one o'clock approximately.

Q. Did you go to your father's home? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Where was it then located? A. 720—

Q. No, the home? A. 345 Wyona Street.

Q. Did you there see various people? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Members of your family? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Detectives and police officials? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From your home did you go to the Kings County Morgue? A. Yes, sir, they took me there.

Q. Did you there view the body of your father, 1455
Joseph Rosen? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Did you identify his body to the Medical Examiner? A. I did.

Q. Did you attend the funeral? A. Yes, I did.

Q. On Monday, July 7, 1941, did you receive a visit at Reading, Pennsylvania, from any people now in this court? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Who were the people? A. The attorneys over there—Mr. Barshay and Mr. Cuff.

The Court: When was that?

Mr. Turkus: July 7, 1941.

1456 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Direct

The witness is offered for cross-examination.

The Court: (addressing jury) We will now take a recess until 1:30, gentlemen. Please do not discuss the case nor let anyone talk to you about it. Keep your minds open.

The defendants are remanded.

(A recess was taken at this point for 1457 luncheon, at the request of Mr. Barshay, the attorney for the defendant Buchalter.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

TRIAL RESUMED

HAROLD E. ROSEN (resumes the stand).

Mr. Barshay: Now I ask your Honor to instruct the jury at this time, in the 1458 language of Section 39 of the Canons of Professional Ethics of the American Bar Association, the New York City Bar Association of the City of New York, as follows: A lawyer may properly interview any witness or prospective witness for the opposing side in any civil or criminal action, without the consent of opposing counsel or party. In doing so, however, he should scrupulously avoid any suggestion calculated to induce the witness to suppress or deviate from its truth or in any degree to affect his free and untrammelled conduct when appearing at the trial or on the witness-stand.

The Court: That is correct.

Mr. Barshay: I ask Mr. Turkus to concede that by the last question he put to the witness he meant no innuendo of any kind, nature or description with respect to Mr. Barshay or Mr. Cuff.

The Court: I think you are too sensitive. 1460

Mr. Barshay: All right, sir. I ask Mr. Turkus to be gentleman enough to concede that.

The Court: Maybe the manner of putting that request is not quite proper.

Mr. Barshay: Maybe the manner of putting the last question to the witness and dropping him in the manner in which he did is not proper too. I have a right to be sensitive of our reputations when there are people in the court room who do not know the ethics of the profession and have a right to infer there was something wro. g. I do not want that impression to go unchalienged. That is all I care about. 1461

The Court: The Court gives him the instruction that you request. Let the incident rest there.

Mr. Barshay: All right, Mr. Turkus.

Cross-examination by Mr. Barshay:

Q. Mr. Rosen, when for the first time were you questioned by any member of any District At-1462 torney's office after your father's death? A. Please repeat that, Mr. Barshay.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I could not remember exactly but I know I was taken up to District Attorney Geoghan's office and questioned there.

Q. And can you tell me how long after your father's death? A. I don't know exactly what you mean, Mr. Barshay.

Q. How long after your father died or was 1463 killed?

The Court: Days, weeks or months?

Q. Were you questioned in the District Attorney's office? A. After that time, you mean?

Q. Yes.

The Court: Was it soon?

A. I don't remember whether he called me or not. That is why—

Q. You now recall that before your father's 1464 death you were not questioned by anyone, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Did you identify the body in the morgue? A. Yes, I did, your Honor.

Q. To whom, Dr. Marten? A. I don't know his name.

Q. The medical examiner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And about that time did you go to the District Attorney's office? A. I know they took me there. I was so wrought up I don't remember what day but it was right after that.

1465

Q. It was right after? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Would you say the same day or the next day or a week later? A. I do not know. I cannot remember.

Q. I am trying to probe your recollection, that is all; nothing personal here at all. A. I understand that, Mr. Barshay.

1466

Q. Was it in a month? A. Naturally in a case like this they would take me up there shortly after the death.

Q. Do you recall the assistant to whom you made the statement? A. Assistant District Attorney McCarthy.

Q. And was there a stenographer present? A. Yes.

Q. You were asked questions and you made answers? A. That is right.

1467

Mr. Barshay: I call upon the District Attorney to produce that statement. Well, I would like to have an answer if he has it or he has not got it. Is he producing it or isn't he? May I ask the Court to address the District Attorney?

The Court: No.

Mr. Barshay: Then I press the question. I call upon the District Attorney to produce such statement for the purpose of marking it for identification.

The Court: The District Attorney is not required to answer you. If there is

1468 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Cross

no answer it is a negative response by implication.

Q. Did you testify before the Grand Jury? A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you recall when? A. It was within that time. I don't remember exactly when.

Mr. Barshay: I call upon the District Attorney to produce this gentleman's testimony before the Grand Jury as this man 1469 says he testified there, for the purpose of marking it for identification.

The Court: You don't have to have the Grand Jury minutes marked. The Court takes at all times judicial notice of them.

Mr. Barshay: Then I call upon the District Attorney to produce that statement and the Grand Jury minutes for the purpose of seeing whether or not therein contained are statements which are contradictory to the testimony that this witness now gives.

1470 Mr. Turkus: There are rules of law. They have not been complied with.

The Court: I understand there is a declination.

Mr. Turkus: There is. There are rules of law governing when I can release Grand Jury minutes. I must comply with the law.

Mr. Barshay: All right, I will prepare a subpoena right away.

Q. Did you in the Grand Jury give testimony with respect to this meeting at the Broadway

Central Hotel? Please either look in the direction of the jury or the judge or anyone else, but please— A. Repeat that question. I do not know what you are driving at, Mr. Barshay.

Q. You are an English teacher? A. Certainly.

Q. Do I speak plain simple language? A. Yes, but please repeat the question.

Q. Don't you hear me, sir? A. Sometimes I do.

Q. I will try to keep my voice up.

1472

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you to Mr. McCarthy give testimony with respect to this meeting at this hotel? A. I repeat I don't remember.

Q. That is your best answer, is that so, sir? A. That is the answer.

Q. Can you give me the date when you went to this hotel? A. How can I give you a date?

Q. Mr. Rosen, I am not here to argue with you. A. I cannot.

1473

Q. If you cannot, please say so. A. No.

Q. Can you give me the month? A. No.

Q. Can you give me the week?

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to as already answered. He said he could not give him the month so obviously he could not give him the week.

The Court: Sustained. I think the answer is clear enough.

Mr. Barshay: Respectfully except.

Q. Can you give me the season of the year? A. Yes.

Q. Will you give it, please?

The Court: Was it in the fall?

The Witness: No.

The Court: Winter?

The Witness: I believe it was in the spring of the year.

1475 Q. In the spring, you say, of 1932? A. Mr. Barshay, I can't remember all those things, the dates, the months, exactly what happened that time.

The Court: Counsel is asking you about 1932, four years before your father was killed.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Did you go before the Grand Jury at that time?

The Witness: No, sir.

1476 Mr. Barshay: May I proceed, your Honor?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Do you now claim that this meeting at the Broadway Central Hotel took place in the spring of 1932?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form, what the witness now claims, carrying with it an intimation and innuendo and implication.

The Court: Yes, it does. Sustained.

1477

Q. Do you now say on your oath that this meeting which you say you went to with your father was in the spring of 1932?

Mr. Turkus: Same objection, the word "now."

The Court: The words "now say."

Mr. Barshay: I eliminate those two words "now say."

1478

Q. Is it your testimony that you went to the Broadway Central Hotel in the spring of 1932?

The Court: Do you recall?

A. I recall that it was the middle, probably, of the year 1931, because that is the year I stayed home from college.

Q. Did you say now 1931? A. Between 1931 and 1932 I stayed home from college. I did not go to college that year.

1479

The Court: That is in the fall and winter?

The Witness: That is right.

The Court: Of 1931-'32?

The Witness: That is right.

The Court: Is it a sensible inference that if it was in the spring, that it was in the spring of 1932?

The Witness: It was approximately that time.

Q. Is that your best answer? A. That is my best answer.

Q. Did you say at the morning session that 1480 it was in the summer of 1932 that you went to that hotel? A. I don't remember. Did I say it? I am asking you.

Q. Under the rules of evidence you have no liberty to ask me questions because the law does not allow it. Do you mind, sir, if I ask you questions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say this morning that the visit you made to that hotel with your father was in the summer of 1932? A. I remember that it was 1481 six months after—

Q. Excuse me, sir, Mr. Rosen—

The Court: Let him answer.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is not responsive.

The Court: Find out. Let him answer. You remember what?

The Witness: It was probably six months after 1931 began because at that time the partnership started again—

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out this 1482 man's answer.

The Witness: It was approximately the spring or summer of 1932. This is my best answer, Mr. Barshay.

Q. Mr. Rosen, I am sure you want to respect the rights of other people, too. A. I certainly do, Mr. Barshay.

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, I ask for a yes or no answer to the question I put to this gentleman.

The Court: He has answered the question excellently.

Mr. Barshay: May I put it again?

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike it out as not responsive.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: The question asked about this morning.

Q. I ask you again, this morning did you say on this witness stand that you visited with your father the Broadway Central Hotel in the summer of 1932; yes or no? 1484

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. The answer has been completed.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Respectfully except, sir.

Q. Your father was once a prizefighter, wasn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. You say that with positiveness, sir? A. Certainly, sir. 1485

Q. I don't mean that in any derogatory sense.

Mr. Turkus: I don't care how he means it. The answer is no. I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Respectfully except.

Q. Did you ever hear your father referred to in the professional prizefight business as Kid Rose? A. Certainly not.

Q. All right, you do not have to feel offended. A. I think it is ridiculous to bring that up.

1486 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Cross

Q. Are you finished? A. I am sorry.

Q. Your father was a strong man in 1932? A. Physically fit.

Q. He was short and stocky, wasn't he? Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you go with your father from Reading?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. There is no such testimony.

1487

Q. All right, how did you go with your father from wherever you went? A. Wherever I went, where to where?

Q. To the Broadway Central Hotel. A. From where?

Q. From where did you go? A. From the office, Washington Place.

Q. That is in New York? A. Manhattan.

Q. All right, sir. How did you go there? A. We walked there. It is right around the corner.

Q. Had you ever been to the Broadway Central Hotel before? A. I never was inside.

1488

Q. You never were inside before? A. I never was inside.

Q. You never were inside? A. Inside the hotel.

Q. In the hotel in your entire life, was that, you were not inside the hotel? Please: on the day in question? A. I was not inside the hotel.

Q. When you say inside the hotel you mean— A. Walking through the doors.

Q. You know the hotel had an entrance, did it not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you cross that entrance? A. No, sir.

1489

Q. So that we now have it that you never step foot within the hotel?

Mr. Turkus: I object to "we now have it". It has been answered that way by the witness consistently in his testimony.

The Court: Sustained as to form.

Q. You did not enter the hotel physically, did you? A. No, sir.

1490

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as answered twice.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Barshay: He said no.

Q. How were you dressed? A. I don't remember.

Q. How was your father dressed? A. With pants and shirt, probably a tie.

Q. Do you know the color of the pants? A. Remember the pants you wore ten years ago?

1491

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Remember if he had a hat on? A. I don't remember.

Q. A coat? A. I don't remember.

Q. The color of his shoes? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know what time you started out? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know what time you got there? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know what time your father came down? A. Came down from where?

Q. From the Broadway Central Hotel? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know what time you left with your father? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know what time you arrived at your place back with your father? A. No.

1493 Q. Do you recall speaking to any other person that day? Do you? A. I don't remember that, Mr. Barshay.

Q. Do you recall doing anything that night? A. I don't remember that, Mr. Barshay.

Q. Do you recall where you had your lunch or dinner that night? A. Usually have dinner at home.

Q. Do you recall that night? A. I usually eat dinner at home.

1494 The Court: If these are details you do not remember, all you have to say is you don't remember. Did any of the details of your daily life register except the incident you have testified to?

The Witness: No, sir, not the usual routine.

The Court: Did you have any occasion to remember the daily routine?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Barshay: I object to both of the Court's questions.

Mr. Turkus: I could not hear either the question or the answer.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, and I move to strike the answers out, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Incidentally, Mr. Rosen, you went to Albright College on a football scholarship, did you not? A. If you made the varsity ball team you received something.

Q. You were standing in the street while your father went in? A. That is right. 1496

Q. Did he tell you what room he was going to? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he tell you he had to apply at the desk to determine what room he was going to? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know the name of any room— A. No, sir.

Q. I want to finish the question. A. Pardon me.

Q. That was assigned to any particular party where your father went? A. Repeat that question please, Mr. Barshay. 1497

(Question read by reporter.)

A. He told me where he was going.

Q. Pardon? A. He told me who he was to meet.

The Court: Did he tell you the number of the room?

Q. Did he tell you the name or the person in whose name the room was registered? A. No, sir.

1498 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Cross

Q. Do you know in whose name the room was registered? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the floor? A. No, sir.

Q. You waited outside for three-quarters of an hour, did you not? A. Approximately.

Q. Did you meet any one? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you speak to any one? A. No, sir.

Q. Three-quarters of an hour passed and you say your father comes down is that correct? A. That is right.

1499 Q. Where were you when he came out of the building? A. I had been looking in the hotel. I was watching, looking inside.

The Court: Does the lobby floor open directly from the street?

The Witness: Well, they have—

The Court: Just yes or no.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question. Your Honor, we are referring to 1932.

The Court: Broadway Central Hotel?

1500 Mr. Barshay: That is correct, but there is no proof here that the physical structure was the same then as it is now. I suggest you ask the question then.

The Court: I have been familiar with the hotel for fifty years.

Mr. Barshay: It has been re-constructed, the entire lobby.

The Court: I have a picture of that lobby in my chambers, if you would like to see it.

Mr. Barshay: I am only asking your Honor to ask him as of that date. I don't argue with the court about it.

The Court: That is an old hotel in the vicinity of Wanamaker's, Mr. Witness?

The Witness: Yes, Wanamaker's is on 8th Street, I believe.

The Court: And is that in the Washington Square district?

The Witness: Yes. Of course, Washington Square is down further. That is on Broadway.

The Court: Slightly further?

The Witness: Yes. 1502

The Court: Does Washington Place run over in that direction?

The Witness: Washington Place runs to meet Broadway.

The Court: Yes. It is a short place, isn't it?

The Witness: That is right.

The Court: Then you have University Place?

The Witness: And Waverly Place.

Q. Do you know now whether or not at that time the lobby of the hotel ended directly on the sidewaik or whether or not it had an inner lobby and an inner hall? A. I don't remember. There is glass on each side. I looked through that. 1503

Q. Was it glass through which you could look? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you start to look through the lobby glass? A. I had been looking all the time.

Q. Did you stand there and take a position? A. I looked around, naturally, and then after a half hour I started looking inside.

Q. Did you make any effort to go inside? A. No, sir.

Q. And as your father walked out, you were at the glass door? A. Not the glass door, the glass window.

Q. That was in the outer door? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was there any storm door at that time in the Broadway Central Hotel? A. I don't know. I looked through the window.

Q. Could you see the lobby as you were looking in there? A. Yes, sir.

1505

Q. Did you see where your father came from? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see whether he came out of an elevator? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see whether he came down the stairs? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see whether he came from the left? A. No, sir.

Q. Or from the right? A. No, sir.

Q. Or from the back? A. No, sir.

Q. When you saw your father, what was he doing? A. He was talking. I happened to glance in the window and he was talking.

1506

Q. He was talking? Was his face to you? A. No, sir.

Q. Was he standing still? A. Yes.

Q. Was his back to you? A. That is right.

Q. And you could see him talk, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. How many men was he talking to? A. Talking to one man.

Q. Where were the others? A. Right beside that one man, one on each side.

Q. Could you see the faces of the others? A. I could see them but I didn't know them.

Q. Could you see them, I asked? A. Yes, I could see them.

Q. How far from the door were those three men? A. I don't know the exact distance. I didn't think of distance at that time.

Q. Approximately? A. Maybe fifteen feet.

Q. From where you were? A. Where I was.

Q. Did your father ever turn around so that you could see his face? A. No, sir.

Q. All the time you observed your father his back was towards you? A. It was only a very 1508 short time.

Q. This conversation took a short time? A. That is right.

Q. But his face was never towards you? A. That is right.

Q. In that short time? A. That is right.

Q. Could you describe the other men who were there? A. One was a very tall fellow, husky build. The other fellow was ordinary, medium sized man.

Q. What was the tall fellow's height, if you can tell us? A. Six feet, probably.

Q. How about his weight? A. I don't know— 1509 heavy.

Q. Do you know how he was dressed? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the color of his hair? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know whether he had a hat? A. No, sir.

Q. The kind of a suit he wore? A. Don't remember.

Q. Did he wear a top coat? A. I don't remember.

Q. About the shorter man, about how tall would you say he was? A. I don't know exactly. I was a little agitated then.

Q. You were agitated before you knew what happened, were you? A. I certainly was.

Q. What was the color of his hair? A. I don't remember.

Q. How was he dressed? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you ever see any of those men before?

1511 A. I don't remember seeing them.

Q. Did you ever see them after? A. No, I don't remember seeing them afterwards.

Q. Was your father directly in front of you? A. I cannot remember that. He was in full view.

Q. Was his back in full view of you? A. Yes, I could see his whole back.

Q. Did he obstruct your vision? A. Not much.

Q. Could you see who was standing directly in front of him? A. Yes, I could.

Q. Did you know that man before? A. I had seen him just once or twice around that neighborhood, in the car.

1512 Q. What? A. I had seen him once or twice in that vicinity, in the car.

Q. You had seen him once or twice in that vicinity? A. That is around that section, clothing section.

Q. Once or twice before? A. That is right.

Q. When before this time at the Broadway Central Hotel was the last time that you had seen that other man? A. Around that time, maybe—

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. I am going to object because I want the record clear who the other man is that we speak of. There are three men who have been spoken of, two unidentified and one identified.

Mr. Barshay: That is the one we speak of.

Mr. Turkus: If we speak of the identified man, let the record show we do.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the word "identified". That is his contention. That is for the jury to say.

1514

Mr. Turkus: Let the record note then that he is talking about the defendant Lepke.

Q. You were speaking about the defendant Buchalter, were you not? A. That is right.

Q. You tell me when before that time did you see him before? A. I had seen him going to the Rifter Clothing Company. Somebody pointed him out to me.

Q. Who is that someone? A. Some individual around the office.

Q. What is his name? A. I don't remember. 1515

Q. Where is that company? A. Rifter Clothing Company.

Q. Where was it then? A. Just a block down but in that vicinity.

Q. A block down where? A. I believe it was Washington Place.

Q. A block down from where? A. A block further than where the office was.

Q. Which office? A. New York and New Jersey Transportation Company.

Q. What is the name of the individual who pointed him out to you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Who is the person? A. There were always tailors and contractors around there. I could not tell which one.

Q. Do you recall his name? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see him again? A. Probably. I don't remember who told me.

Q. How long before this alleged meeting at the Broadway Central did that take place? A. I don't know; maybe a month, maybe two or three weeks.

1517 Q. Do you know the day of the week? A. No, sir.

Q. How long was that person whom you described talking to you before this man came along? A. I don't remember that.

Q. What time of day was it? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Was it a rainy day? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it a sunny day? A. It was clear.

Q. Was it in the morning? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it in the afternoon? A. I don't remember.

1518 Q. Was it at night? A. No, sir.

Q. Is that the second time you had seen that man? A. I believe that was the first time.

Q. That was the very first time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was he doing? A. Walked out of a car.

Q. What kind of a car was it? A. It was a big car. I don't know the names of the cars.

Q. Was it chauffeur driven or not? A. Yes, it was chauffeur driven. The man did not have a chauffeur's uniform, but somebody else was driving it.

Q. Do you know who was driving it? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the color of the car? A. Probably black.

The Court: Don't guess.

Q. Probably? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Do you know whether it was a sedan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Four-door or two-door? A. I don't remember that. 1520

Q. Do you know the make of the car? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know how many people were in the car? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Do you know which side of the street the car parked? A. I don't recall that.

Q. Do you know whether anyone was sitting alongside the driver? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether the car had white-wall tires or not? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know the license plate? A. No, sir.

Q. How long did you have that man in view? 1521

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form of the question. That man has a name. He has been identified. Let the record show whom he speaks of.

Mr. Barshay: You mean he claims he identified him.

Mr. Turkus: I don't care whether you claim or not.

Mr. Barshay: Let us agree and we won't argue.

Mr. Turkus: We won't agree if it is a claim, as you say. I say he has been identified. I object to the form of the question.

1522 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Cross

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: You may answer, sir.

The Court: Have you any recollection as to how long you were looking in?

Mr. Turkus: No, that is not the question.

1523 Q. How long did you have him in view? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall how far you were from that man? A. Not very far.

Q. Do you recall whether you saw his full face or side view? A. I saw his full face.

Q. Did he just pass you by? A. I don't remember that.

Q. That is the first time you saw him? A. I think it was the first.

Q. And someone said something to you; is that correct? A. Someone told me who the individual was.

1524 Q. But you don't know who that someone is? A. I don't remember.

Q. When is the next time you saw that person? A. Saw him once again in the car. I don't remember how long afterwards. It was a short time.

Q. How long is a short time?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is how long is long or short.

Mr. Barshay: He understands the question, Mr. Turkus.

1525

Mr. Turkus: I do not care whether he does or not. It is objectionable.

The Court: What is the question?

Mr. Turkus: "How long is short?" is the question. I object to it.

Mr. Barshay: I did not ask him that. I asked him a perfectly proper question.

The Court: He said, "How long or short?"

Mr. Barshay: I will put the question as I said it before.

1526

Q. How long do you claim a short time to be? You said you saw him a short time thereafter. How long is that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Did you give any approximation in minutes?

Mr. Barshay: He does not mean minutes, sir; he did not say minutes.

1527

Q. How many days or weeks or months, can you tell me that? A. It probably was within the month.

Q. Where did you see him? A. I saw him go up to the Rifter Clothing Company.

Q. The— A. Rifter Clothing Company.

Q. Do you know the date? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the week? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the time of the day? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know how he was dressed? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know how he came there? A. By car.

Q. Was it the same car? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Same chauffeur? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Same time? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Someone else pointed him out to you? A. No, sir.

Q. How long did you see him? A. He walked right by.

1529 Q. What were you doing there? A. My father had an appointment with him. He told me he was going to meet him at Rifter's Clothing Company.

Q. Mr. Rosen— A. Yes, sir.

Q. You understand a simple question, don't you? A. You asked me; I answered you.

Q. All right, I asked you what were you doing there. I did not ask you what your father told you, did I? A. I was looking where he went.

Q. All right, you answer the question, that's all. That took only a second? A. I do not know how long.

1530 Q. Two seconds, three seconds? A. I do not know

Q. The third time you saw him was at this hotel? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Is there anyone else in this court-room whom you saw him with at the Broadway Central Hotel? A. No, sir.

Q. Sure about it? A. I have not looked over anybody.

Q. I want you to look over everybody and see. A I don't remember anyone else.

Q. You did not take much time to look, did you? A. No, I was looking at my father.

Q. I am talking about now, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. I take it there are over a hundred people in the court-room. I do not know.

Mr. Barshay: That is exactly my point. He answered very quickly.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of 1532
the question as argumentative.

The Court: Do you have any recollection of the looks of the other two—

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: —sufficient to enable you to make an identification should you see one of them now?

The Witness: I would not remember, sir.

The Court: The only one you noticed was Lepke?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

1533

Q. Since then did you see that man again? A. No, sir.

Q. Until you walked into the court-room? A. That is right, sir.

Q. You knew where he was going to sit? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know where a defendant sits in the court-room? A. The first time I have been in a court-room, that is for anything.

Q. Did you see the defendant as he was taken in from the stairs outside of the court-room into this court-room— A. No, sir.

Q. —at any time at all? A. No, sir.

Q. After you spoke to Mr. McCarthy sometime after your father was shot, did you speak to anyone else in official capacity? A. I don't remember whether I spoke to Mr. McCarthy first or Mr. Geoghan first. I don't remember that.

Q. After that some years passed. Did you speak to any other person in official capacity?

1535 A. Yes, sir.

Q. When? A. I spoke to Mr. Joseph.

Q. When did you speak to Mr. Joseph for the first time? A. He was out to see me.

Q. He was out to see you? A. Yes.

Q. In Reading, Pennsylvania? A. That is right.

Q. When was that, sir? A. I don't remember the exact date. It was before the trial opened.

Q. How long before the trial opened? A. I don't remember; maybe a week or two.

Q. Was it after Mr. Cuff and I visited you? A. No, sir, it was before.

1536 Q. It was before that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long before? A. Maybe a week. I can't remember the exact date. They would know it; I would not.

Q. Was a stenographer present? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you give him a statement? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he take it in longhand or was it just a conversation? A. No, he took it down.

Q. Did you sign it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you sign it yourself? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you next speak to any person from Judge O'Dwyer's office or the Police Department? A. I was down just a few weeks ago.

Q. Whom did you speak to, sir? A. Mr. Turkus.

Q. Anyone else? A. Beg pardon, sir?

Q. Anyone else? A. Mr. Klein was there.

Q. Now have you given us all the people you have spoken to? A. In reference to what?

Q. In reference to this case. A. Yes, sir, Mr. Joseph, Mr. Klein and Mr. Turkus.

Q. First Mr. Joseph asked you some questions—right? A. In Reading. 1538

Q. Then you came to New York and you were questioned again? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Once or more than once? A. Twice.

Q. And do you know how long elapsed between the first time and the second time? A. I don't remember.

Q. You did not testify in the Grand Jury here, did you? A. Again? No, sir.

Q. You do recall that Mr. Cuff and I visited you, to be exact, on July 8, 1941; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the testimony. 1539

The Court: I thought he said the 3rd.

Mr. Turkus: The date that I submitted to the witness for his consideration was July 7, 1941.

Mr. Barshay: You are right, Mr. Turkus.

Q. July 7th—

Mr. Turkus: And I suggested the date.

Mr. Barshay: I have July 8th.

1540

Mr. Turkus: You ought to know.

Mr. Barshay: Let me finish. —when I dictated our memorandum.

The Court: You have a record of it?

Mr. Barshay: Yes, I have a record when I dictated our memorandum, July 8th.

The Court: That is undoubtedly correct.

Mr. Barshay: No, it was the day before, sir. We came back very late.

1541

The Court: Whatever date you have on office records would be correct, naturally.

Q. How long before July 7, 1941, did Mr. Joseph visit you? A. I don't remember the date, Mr. Barshay.

Mr. Barshay: May we have the date from the District Attorney, if possible?

Mr. Turkus. After all, it is the recollection of a witness that should be in evidence.

1542

The Court: Correct.

Mr. Turkus: I oppose this indiscriminate calling upon the District Attorney.

Mr. Barshay: It is most discriminate. And if you cannot say so, just tell me, and I will pursue something else.

The Court: Neither side has a right to call upon the other side to give evidence without calling counsel on the stand.

Mr. Barshay: I know that.

The Court: And having the oath administered.

Mr. Turkus: I am advised by Mr. Joseph that the date that he went to Reading, Pennsylvania, to see this witness was April 28, 1941.

Q. Now, you recall that it is more than a week? A. I do not remember, Mr. Barshay.

Q. I just want to test your memory. That is exactly the point. In this hotel you did not hear a word of conversation? A. No, sir.

Q. You said you worked for your father in 1544
1931? A. That is right, sir.

Q. And that was the New York and New Jersey Corporation? A. Clothing Transportation Company

Q. Was it a corporation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know how it happened to be formed? A. What do you mean, how it happened to be formed?

Q. Well, was it an agreement between a few gentlemen to form a corporation? A. There was a corporation, papers drawn up.

Q. That is correct, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You went to some lawyer? A. That is 1545 right, sir.

Q. That lawyer was in Elizabeth, New Jersey? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Did you go? A. Beg pardon?

Q. Did you go? A. I think I did.

Q. Were the partners Martin Kelly, Mr. Bluestein, and Mr. Sobler? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know your father's agreed contribution to that company? A. Do I know what?

Q. Do you know what your father agreed to contribute to the formation of this corporation? A. No, sir.

Q. Or company? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't know? At that time did your father have any assets? A. He was in business with Kelly.

Q. He was in business with Martin Kelly and himself? A. That is right.

Q. Kelly & Rosen, wasn't it? A. That is right, sir.

Q. That was a non-union shop, wasn't it? A. What do you mean, non-union shop? They did not have a shop.

1547 Q. Well, perhaps I should say a non-union concern. It was a trucking outfit, wasn't it?

Mr. Turkus: I object, unless it is brought within the personal knowledge of the witness, if he knows.

Q. I am asking if you know it.

Mr. Turkus: You did not ask it. You suggested it was non-union.

Mr. Barshay: I will ask it now.

1548 Q Was it a non-union concern, Kelly & Rosen? A. I do not know what you mean by "non-union" in reference to Kelly & Rosen.

Q. Kelly & Rosen were in business how long? A. For a short time.

Q. How long, a month, two months, three months?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it unless it is shown to be within the knowledge of the witness.

Mr. Barshay: He is the bookkeeper.

and he knows everything about his father's business.

Mr. Turkus: You are not talking about that concern.

Mr. Barshay: I will bring it up to the new concern.

Mr. Turkus: Please, I have an objection before the Court.

The Court: The Court seems to have difficulty in ruling on objections.

Mr. Turkus: Well, you have not had 1550 before.

The Court: There is so much talking on every objection. The witness, I think, knows the meaning of the question. Go ahead.

Q. You knew something about your father's business, did you not? A. That is right.

Q. All right. Do you know how long Kelly & Rosen were together as partners? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know where their place of business 1551 was? A. They worked out of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Q. Do you know that their business consisted of carting merchandise for non-union shops in the clothing district? Do you know that or don't you? A. I don't remember; I don't know about that.

Q. Do you know that Kelly at that time had four trucks which he contributed to the partnership which he formed with himself and your father? Did you know that? A. I did not know that.

Q. Did you know that all your father contributed was his experience to Mr. Kelly? Did you know that? A. I do not know anything about the Kelly-Rosen thing, because I was not there.

Q. Do you know that the New York and New Jersey concern was already in existence for a considerable time and the owners were Mr. Bluestein and Mr. Sobler? A. I knew that.

Q. Did you know that both of these concerns, your father's and Sobler's, were competitors?
1553 Did you know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that they were covering the same routes or territories in New Jersey, or Pennsylvania, or wherever they were? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Max Rubin at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that it was agreed that your father and Mr. Kelly should enter the firm of the New York and New Jersey with Bluestein and Sobler as equal partners? A. I don't know anything about that negotiation.

1554 Q. You said you went to the lawyer's office, didn't you? A. I said I do not know. I do not know if I did or not.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Kelly agreed to contribute to this new firm all the trucks that he had and all the good will that he had?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness has indicated he does not know anything about the transaction. This could go on and on ad infinitum.

Mr. Barshay: I am sure it will not.

The Court: Mr. Barshay and you are entitled to equal liberality.

Q. Did you know that your father agreed to contribute the sum of $10,000 in cash, $10,000, to this new concern? A. I don't know anything about the negotiations.

Q. Did you know that your father was to contribute five thousand of it in cash— A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Please, just a second. —and the other 1556 five thousand was to come out of the operations of the new company? Did you know that? A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Did you learn it after you started to work for the company as bookkeeper? A. All I did as bookkeeper was take care of the books when they started.

Q. Did you post who were the record stockholders? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know how much each one had? A. I understood it was an equal share.

Q. Do you know with what balance they started in the bank? A. No, sir. 1557

Q. Did you know how the money was to be paid by your father—did you? A. I do not know anything about that.

Q. Did you know that your father had no money at all at the time he went into this partnership? A. I don't know about that.

Q. Did you keep those books personally? A. All I kept records of was the work going out and the bills that were supposed to be collected from the contractors.

Q. Did you have an accountant? A. They were supposed to have an accountant come in.

Q. Did you have one come in? A. They had it. I had nothing to do with it.

Q. Do you know his name? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know his address? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he ever audit your books? A. I believe he did.

Q. Did you ever see an audit? A. No, all I did was take care of the books the way I stipulated.

1559 Q. Did you ever see in any record just how much your father agreed to contribute? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see a balance sheet? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever deposit money in the bank? A. No, sir; they took care of that themselves.

Q. Did you ever draw checks yourself? A. Myself?

Q. Yes, not for yourself but for the purposes of the company? A. I wrote it out. They signed it.

1560 Q. I show you two checks here and ask you whether or not any portion of them is in your handwriting. A. No, sir.

Mr. Turkus: May those papers be marked for identification?

Mr. Barshay: Surely.

(Two papers marked Defendants' Exhibits D and E, for identification.)

Q. Do you recognize your father's signature on these checks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the name of the payee, Goldman?

Mr. Turkus: I object to counsel speaking of some record not in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection before the Court.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you know a Mr. Goldman? A. I don't recollect the name. 1562

Q. Did he work for your father in that concern where you were a bookkeeper, A. Goldman? A. The follow worked on the trucks, you mean?

Q. Yes. Is that so? A. I think that was his name.

Q. You drew money to his order every week for the pay that he earned, didn't you? A. No, sometimes he only drew one blank.

Q. Did you know any person by the name of Goldman? A. I think that was the gentleman's name that worked for my father.

Q. How long did he work for your father? 1563
A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know how long Mr. Kelly stayed in that corporation? A. I do not know how long it was.

Q. Was it a month? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it two months? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it three months? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether your father paid in any portion of his agreed contribution? A. I do not know anything about that negotiation.

Q. Did you ever see your father turn over to 1564 anybody in that corporation any money at all? A. I don't know what you are talking about.

Q. Did your father ever tell you that he paid his share of his contribution in this corporation? A. I don't know what you are talking about.

Q. You were with your father every day, were you not?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is argumentative.

1565 The Court: Overruled.

Q. Will you answer? A. I don't remember that negotiation.

Q. How long did you work for this New York and New Jersey corporation which you say was broken up? How long did you work for them? A. I didn't say anything of the kind.

Q. You didn't say it was broken up?

Mr. Turkus: No, because you objected and it was sustained by the court when I used the expression.

1566 Mr. Barshay: It was stricken out by the court and the Judge suggested the word "discontinued", sir.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, I have an objection to the form of the question.

The Court: It is a pretty hard burden to put on the court to remember every word of testimony. I think it was Mr. Turkus who put the question in that form and you objected.

Mr. Barshay: That is right.

The Court: And I suggested to change the word to "discontinued".

Mr. Barshay: All right, sir.

Q. Do you know whether after three months of this New York and New Jersey company's existence Mr. Kelly withdrew from the corporation by taking his contribution of the four trucks right out of it?

Mr. Turkus: I am going to object. The witness has indicated that he does not know of the situation. 1568

The Court: Do you remember that?

The Witness: I don't remember.

Q. Do you know how much each partner drew during those three months? A. How much each drew?

Q. Yes. A. Each had a weekly salary.

Q. How much? A. I don't remember, and they drew besides that themselves. I don't know.

Q. We will get to that, sir. How much did your father draw? A. I don't remember. 1569

Q. Was it $25.00 a week? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it $30.00 a week? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it $15.00 a week? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it $20.00 a week? A. I don't remember.

Q. There were weeks when the company did not earn enough money to pay even $5.00 a week to your father, were there? A. I don't remember anything like that.

1570 Q. Did the finance company replevin your trucks? A. I don't remember anything like that.

Q. Did you know where the company kept its trucks? Do you know that? A. No.

Q. Do you know Pink's garage in Passaic? A. I recall the name.

Q. Do you know whether your company stored these trucks in that garage at that time? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Do you know whether that garage retained
1571 possession of your company's trucks for failure to pay storage and gas? A. The trucks were on the street every day.

Q. Ultimately, do you know that? A. I do not know anything about that.

Q. That is what the company did. Do you know that the finance company replevined one of the automobiles, a Sterling truck, which your company bought, for failure to pay? A. I don't remember anything of the kind.

Q. You don't know about that? Do you know whether or not the company gave out two checks to Mr. A. Goldman dated August 25, 1932, and 1572 August 18, 1932, each in the sum of $30., which came back marked, "Insufficient funds", referring to Defendants' Exhibits for identification D and E? A. What was the date?

Q. August 18th and August 25th. A. What year?

Q. 1932. A. I don't believe I was working for them then.

Q. Do you know that there was an indebtedness due from that company to Mr. Goldman, an employe, in the sum of $700. for back wages? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Do you know that the business never made any money? Do you know that? A. How could we keep a family if we did not?

Q. You don't want me to answer that, sir. You answer my question. A. I answered I do not know anything of the kind. We lived very well.

Q. Do you know that your father was drawing a maximum of $30. a week? A. I do not know how much they drew.

Q. Did you ever see the bank balance of the company? A. No, they never showed it to me. 1574
All I did, as I stated before—

Q. Do you know that Mr. Kelly withdrew from the firm because he could not make a livlihood? A. I do not know why he withdrew from the firm.

Q. Do you know how long your father worked in that concern subsequent to Mr. Kelly's discontinuance with it? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember that? Do you know whether it was eight months? A. I don't remember how long Kelly was in the firm.

Q. Does three months refresh your recollec- 1575 tion? A. I don't remember.

Q. Does eight months after Mr. Kelly left refresh your recollection as to how long your dad stayed? A. I don't remember. It is eleven years ago.

Q. Do you know that your father in desperation told Mr. Sobler and Mr. Bluestein that he can no longer exist on $30. a week? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Were you present— A. No, sir.

Q. Wait a minute, please. When he came in 1576 and he said, "I can work for Garfield for $125. a week"? A. I don't remember.

Q. You know that he did go to work for Garfield? A. I do.

Q. And you know that Mr. Buchalter was an owner of Garfield at that time, don't you? Do you know that? A. I understood he was a silent partner.

Q. Silent or loud, do you know he was an owner of that concern? A. How would I know?

1577 Q. Do you know that the defendant Buchalter was the one who got your father that job for $125. a week? Do you? A. I don't know.

Q. Did your father tell you that? A. (No answer).

Q. Did he? A. I do not know anything what happened. I went back to college.

Q. Did you know that the very man whom you say was at the Broadway Central Hotel—withdrawn. Your father moved to Passaic, did he?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, unless the time be fixed.

1578

Q. When he went to work for Garfield after he left Sobler and Bluestein? Do you know or don't you? A. No.

Q. Do you know how long your father worked for the Garfield in which the defendant Buchalter was a partner after he left Sobler and Bluestein? A. I know he went to work for Louis Cooper.

Q. You knew Louis Cooper was Mr. Buchalter's partner, didn't you? A. How did I know?

Q. You did not know that then? A. I understood it to be. That is about all.

Q. Then he did not go to work for Louis Cooper; he went to work for the Garfield and every owner of the Garfield, didn't he? A. I don't know whether—

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He said he was a silent partner.

Mr. Barshay: He said he was a silent partner.

The Court: He said he understood so.

1580

Q. We will show you whether he was or he wasn't.

Mr. Turkus: Is that a question to the witness, your Honor? If it is, I ask that it be stricken from the record.

Q. How long did your father work for the Garfield? A. Approximately five or six months.

Q. Is that your best answer? A. When is the date? When is the time?

Q. I am now talking about after he discontinued his connection with the New York and 1581
New Jersey. You say some time in 1932. A. I was at school then.

Q. You communicated with your father, didn't you? A. I did not communicate.

Q. You saw your father? A. Just on holidays.

Q. You saw your mother, didn't you? A. I did not go home until the semester. It is almost five months already.

Q. No matter when. A. I was at school then.

Q. Do you know that your father worked for Garfield? A. That is all I know.

1582

Q. For about two years after he left Sobler and Bluestein? A. He certainly did not.

Q. Do you know that of your own knowledge? A. Yes.

Q. He didn't? A. That is right.

Mr. Turkus: Did not.

Mr. Barshay: Didn't.

1583

Q. Do you know now of your own knowledge when he commenced employment with Garfield after he left the New York and New Jersey and when he discontinued his connection with the Garfield? A. I know he approximately started in September of that year.

Q. September of 1932? A. I think.

Q. Do you know when his services ended with them? A. No, I was at school.

The Court: May the court interrupt?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

1584

The Court: For the edification of all concerned on the question of prior statements: The Walsh case was made the subject of discussion in the Schainuck case by the Court of Appeals last month. That opinion is in the Law Journal and in the advance sheets. I suggest that counsel read it.

Mr. Barshay: We will, sir.

The Court: Because the rule as brought up to date by the decision in the Schainuck case will have to be followed here.

Mr. Rosenthal: I happen to have argued that case in the Court of Appeals, your Honor.

The Court: Yes, you did.

Mr. Rosenthal: So, if I may—

The Court: Judge Desmond wrote the decision.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is correct, but the rule has been amplified, and if your Honor desires—

The Court: It seemed to me to be amplified when I read it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I would like to submit 1586
266 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and also Wigmore on Evidence on the question whether we are entitled to use them ourselves for our own edification in order to enable us to properly cross-examine.

The Court: The opinion, I think, cites those and also a provision of the New York City Charter in relation to the production of police reports.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is correct.

The Court: I will read the opinion 1587 carefully at the completion of this afternoon's session.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have here—

The Court: I won't interrupt to read it now.

Q. Do you know the exact date when your father discontinued his services for the New York and New Jersey Corporation? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know that that corporation continued to exist after your father went to work for Garfield? A. Are you telling me a question or are you asking me a question?

Q. You leave your rhetoric in your school. I am asking you a question.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, I object.
The Court: Will you read that again?
(Last question read by the reporter.)
The Court: Do you know or don't you?
The Witness: I do not know.

1589

Q. Did you know Louis Cooper of Garfield? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever talk to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many times? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know the first time your father worked for the Garfield, the very first time, some time in 1922 or 1923; do you recall that? A. I don't know what year it was. I was young. I remember he worked for him.

Q. About how old were you? A. If it is 1922, I was born in 1911, I was eleven years old.

1590

Q. Do you know or do you recollect, or did you learn, how long your father worked for the Garfield the very first time he worked? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know the cause of your father's ceasing his employment with the Garfield the second time? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever hear? A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Not a word? A. I don't know anything about it.

Q. Do you know whether Louis Cooper fired him? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. Do you know whether your father was fired from any other place of employment? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Do you know the firm of Epstein & Siegel? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of them? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know who obtained employment for your father with Larry Cooper after he quit or after his employment terminated with Garfield? Do you? A. I heard it mentioned.

Q. Wasn't it the defendant Buchalter who obtained— 1592

A. No, sir.

Q. Let me finish, please. Wasn't it the defendant Buchalter who obtained for your father employment with Larry Cooper in Brooklyn? A. I do not know anything about that.

Q. Did you know Larry Cooper? A. I probably do but—

Q. That is the last position your father held before he purchased the candy store. Do you know that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know how long he worked for Larry Cooper? A. A few months. I was not in New York at that time. 1593

Q. Do you know how your father happened to quit employment with Larry Cooper? A. No, sir, I was not in New York at that time.

Q. Do you know it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he tell you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he tell you he was suffering from a heart condition? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know he was suffering from a heart condition? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know your father was sick? A. Yes, from aggravation.

1594

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand.

Mr. Barshay: One motion at a time, Mr. Turkus.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Do you know Larry Cooper did not discharge your father? You know that? A. I do not know anything about that.

1595 Q. You know your father quit of his own volition with Larry Cooper?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness says he does not know.

Mr. Barshay: On direct examination he said, "I ought to know. I was the bookkeeper."

Mr. Turkus: That is twisting something else.

Mr. Barshay: We will see.

Q. All right, Mr. Witness.

1596

Mr. Turkus: Do what you want.

Q. Do you know that the defendant Buchalter was instrumental in getting your father his last employment with Larry Cooper by causing a transfer of Larry Cooper's employee, Mr. Kranes, transferring him to the Garfield in New Jersey so your father could have a job? Did you know that? A. I don't know.

Q. You never heard it? A. No, sir.

Q. Your father never told you that? A. Father never spoke much about that.

Q. Your mother never told you that? A. Did not speak much about that.

Q. Do you know where your father got the money to purchase the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do? A. He told me.

Q. Did he tell you that the fellow employees in the trucking, the employees chipped in to give him that money? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall the first time your father worked for Garfield in New Jersey, Mr. Witness, the defendant Buchalter had no connection with 1598 that concern? Do you know that? A. As far as I know.

Q. Do you know the second time that your father worked for the Garfield the defendant Buchalter did have an interest? A. I don't know much about that, Mr. Barshay, don't know anything about that.

Q. You lived in Passaic in 1924, didn't you? A. Yes, I went to high school.

Q. You know Mr. Bluestein paid all expenses to bring your family over when he was at that time connected with the Garfield, don't you? A. 1599
Maybe he did.

Q. Do you know the reason for the discharge of your father by Garfield at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know the condition upon which your father was reengaged with the Garfield? A. I didn't know he was discharged.

Q. Do you know that he was discharged by Mr. Louis Cooper of the Garfield in his last connection with the Garfield? Do you know that? A. I did not know anything about that.

Q. You don't know the reason for it either?

1600 Harold D. Rosen—For People—Cross

Do you know how many times the defendant Buchalter interceded with Louis Cooper on your father's behalf to reengage him and to keep him with the Garfield? A. I don't know anything about that.

Q. You are definite about the fact that you never testified before any Grand Jury since Judge O'Dwyer became the District Attorney? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And the only person and the first time that 1601 you were questioned was by Mr. Joseph since Judge O'Dwyer became the District Attorney, with respect to this case? A. That is right.

Mr. Barshay: I call upon your Honor to ask the District Attorney to produce for the Court, not to me, to the Court, both the original statement he made to Mr. McCarthy and his original testimony in the Grand Jury so that the Court can see for itself whether or not therein there are contradictions with respect to this witness' testimony now.

1602 The Court: All right.

Mr. Turkus: What is it that should be produced?

Mr. Barshay: Mr. McCarthy's statement or if you want to term it his statement to Mr. McCarthy and his original testimony before the Grand Jury then.

The Court: This gives no assurance by the Court that the Court will review the Grand Jury minutes. I will decide that later. The thing I have to consider is this: In a lengthy examination such as this, the Court may or may not follow all of the intricacies accurately. In reading over Grand Jury minutes the Court may or may not slip up on something that somebody else would notice. If the Court does and does not call attention of counsel to it, it places the integrity of the Court under challenge. The Court will not be placed in that position.

Mr. Barshay: Of course, the Court knows it is not intended to do it.

1604

The Court: I know it but it could before another tribunal in a certain eventuality and I cannot afford to have my own reputation risked. I will just see how far I have to go under the authorities to date and I will endeavor to comply with the law as now declared by the Court of Appeals.

Mr. Barshay: May we mark it for identification, sir?

The Court: Yes. Offhand I think that as far as statements taken, not Grand Jury minutes but statements, that you are entitled to see them with deletion of such parts as do not concern you—

1605

Mr. Barshay: That is correct.

The Court: Or are confidential to the inquiry.

Mr. Barshay: That is correct.

The Court: The paradox of the situation seems to be that while you can demand the District Attorney's statements under the rule the District Attorney cannot get hold of yours.

Mr. Barshay: Well, in this case he can.

1606

The Court: That is voluntary. I am talking about the law.

Mr. Turkus: I hand to the Court, subject to its direction—

The Court: Before you hand them to the Court, go over that statement yourself after court hours this afternoon and mark out such parts as you claim the defendant is not entitled to an inspection of. The Court will review those. As to the rest, counsel for defense will be entitled to see them.

1607

Mr. Barshay: Are we marking them for identification?

Mr. Turkus: These Grand Jury minutes of 1936 (Defendants' Exhibit F for identification) for the record it is more than the Grand Jury testimony of this witness. Now I offer for marking for identification statements of witnesses taken by the office of Mr. Geoghan in 1936, containing the statement made by the witness Harold E. Rosen.

1608

(Statement marked Defendants' Exhibit G for identification.)

Mr. Barshay: Now may we mark for identification the statement that this gentleman signed for Mr. Louis Joseph?

The Court: Yes.

(Statement marked Defendants' Exhibit H for identification.)

Mr. Turkus: That includes some memorandum in the handwriting of Mr. Joseph as well. I also have a memorandum of my own that I used to question the witness. Do you want that marked, too?

Mr. Barshay: When I will, I will ask you for it.

Mr. Turkus: I thought maybe you forgot it.

Mr. Cuff: Don't be smart like that, Mr. Turkus. We did not forget it and we do 1610 not want it and it is of no use to anybody but you. That is not a fair thing to say. We asked for what we are entitled to get.

Mr. Barshay: I have no further questions, your Honor. If necessary may we have this witness back?

The Court: Any other counsel?

Mr. Talley: No cross-examination on behalf of defendant Weiss.

The Court: In that event, I will take that matter up right now.

Mr. Talley: I move that the testimony 1611 of this witness be stricken out so far as it concerns the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: Do I understand your Honor denies it or reserves on that, subject to it being connected with a particular defendant other than the defendant Buchalter?

The Court: Denied at this time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

1612 Colloquy

The Court: May I have the papers now?

Mr. Turkus: I have not been able to read them.

The Court: The jury may go out for a few minutes while this is being read. Don't discuss the case, gentlemen.

I will now hand to counsel the statement given to Louis Joseph marked for identification Defendants' Exhibit H.

1613 As to Exhibit G for identification, that statement is intermingled with many matters which were not brought out here, which are not contradictory of anything the witness has testified to but which by their very nature are secret and may not be disclosed. The Court finds upon reading nothing which impresses the Court as in any way contradicting any of the testimony by the witness in this case. Therefore, Exhibit G for identification will be returned to the District Attorney.

1614 It is to be noted in this case that the witness has made no admission as having made previous inconsistent statements which was apparently the turning point in the Schainuck case. The Court will now read the Grand Jury minutes of 1936 of this witness' testimony.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: The same applies to the Grand Jury minutes. There is considerable matter which is purely supplemental which was not brought out on direct examination, for what reason the Court cannot question, but it is not contradictory and it does not amplify anything the man has testified to, so far as the Court can see. Returned to the District Attorney.

1615

Mr. Barshay: May we make a request upon the Court? Counsel would like to know whether or not the Grand Jury minutes that your Honor has just referred to contain any reference by this witness to any meeting in the Broadway Central Hotel in 1932?

1616

Mr. Turkus: I object to any disclosure.

Mr. Barshay: That is for the purpose to see whether or not there is any inconsistency, that is all.

The Court: Apparently he was not asked.

Mr. Barshay: Then I take it from that answer—

The Court: There is a reference in the other exhibit which was turned back to counsel.

Mr. Barshay: I know that.

1617

The Court: And that reference mentioned something that was not mentioned here but which is not contradictory. It mentions that he was alarmed because he saw Lepke during that conversation put his hand in his pocket and he thought that might be intended as a threat.

Mr. Barshay: Judge, that has reference to Mr. Joseph's statement.

Mr. Turkus: No, no, it has not. It has reference to the September 13th—

Mr. Barshay: I did not see that.

1618

Mr. Turkus: The statement taken by McCarthy was taken in advance of the Grand Jury testimony.

Mr. Barshay: I know that, Mr. Turkus, but I cannot speak of the statement. The judge did not allow me to look at it so I do not know what is in it.

The Court: No, you cannot see it.

Mr. Barshay: May we have an exception.

1619

Mr. Talley: If your Honor pleases, while we are on the subject, and I think your Honor has examined the law further since the session yesterday, I renew the motion I made for the inspection of the Grand Jury minutes with respect to the testimony of Mrs. Rosen.

The Court: Mrs. Rosen?

Mr. Talley: Who was on the day before yesterday.

Mr. Turkus: You read the Grand Jury minutes.

The Court: I thought I read it.

1620

Mr. Talley: My motion is for leave to inspect the testimony of Mrs. Rosen given before the Grand Jury with respect to matters about which she testified on Monday last.

The Court: You are not entitled to that under the authority. Denied.

Mr. Talley: I submit that I am. If your Honor holds differently, I will note my exception.

The Court: Bring back the jury.

When I spoke of supplemental matters in the Grand Jury minutes, in 1936, I said the Court could not question or conjecture as to why the witness was not asked about those matters. I have to assume that it may be held in reserve for some other applicable time in the trial of the case.

1621

Mr. Talley: It seems to me that the authorities are quite plain upon our right to those Grand Jury minutes. We cannot point our specific inconsistencies between the testimony on the trial—

1622

The Court: I have ruled on that with knowledge of what the Court of Appeals has written and what I have ruled I claim to be consistent. You have your exception.

Mr. Talley: May I finish my statement, your Honor?

The Court: I thought you had, Judge.

Mr. Talley: No, I have not. I say it is impossible for us to point out to the Court inconsistencies or contradictions or omissions between the testimony given upon the stand in the course of the trial and the testimony given before a Grand Jury unless those Grand Jury minutes are exhibited to us and until we can examine them. Your Honor has taken the burden. You have stated how difficult it was for the Court to follow all the statements given in the testimony and then check up on the Grand Jury minutes, but that is something we could do or at least we should be given an opportunity to do. As I understand the procedure, once that question is raised we are entitled to inspect so much of the Grand Jury minutes as relates to the testimony of a witness whose testimony is challenged. I want to make my position perfectly clear upon the record so that my exception to your Honor's ruling will be understood.

1623

1624 Colloquy

Mr. Rosenthal: I intend, your Honor, when anything affects me to enlarge upon the proposition because I feel sure that 1625 your Honor is in error in construing the case which I argued, and I know under what theory I argued it, and I know that one particular statement in the opinion in which they said—

Mr. Turkus: Here is the jury.

The Court: I have just read the entire opinion.

Mr. Rosenthal: I said I will wait.

(The jury returned to the court-room.)

Mr. Barshay: No further questions, your Honor.

1626 Mr. Talley: There is no cross-examination on behalf of defendant Weiss.

Mr. Rosenthal: No cross-examination.

Mr. Turkus: May it please the Court, the statement taken on the 28th day of April, 1941, at the home of this witness, Harold E. Rosen, by Louis Joseph, in his handwriting, and subscribed by the witness, marked Defendants' Exhibit H for identification, was pursuant to the direction of the Court turned over to the defendant Buchalter's counsel for reading.

The Court: This does not concern the jury, and the Court knows it.

Mr. Cuff: I object.

Mr. Turkus: I have not finished my motion.

Mr. Barshay: I object to Mr. Turkus finishing his motion.

The Court: I excused the jury because I did not want the jury to be confused by the procedural questions.

Mr. Turkus: It having been read by the 1628 defendants' counsel, I offer it in evidence for reading by the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I object to its being offered in evidence. That is an ex parte statement.

The Court: Sustained. Is that all with this witness?

Mr. Turkus: That is all of this witness.

Mr. Barshay: May the Court recall my motion? I objected to Mr. Turkus's statement and I ask for the withdrawal of a 1629 juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: What statement?

Mr. Barshay: That Mr. Turkus—

The Court: Was there any statement that I did not hear?

Mr. Barshay: No, your Honor, he offered something in evidence, and I want to preserve my record.

The Court: Oh, yes.

Mr. Barshay: Now I move for the withdrawal of a juror.

The Court: I thought there might have been another complication between counsel.

1630

Mr. Barshay: No, it is not complicated. I am trying to preserve my record.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: With the Court's permission, I will take a witness or two out of order, that will take a short time, in the regular order of proof, because the next witness's testimony could not be even completed on direct before the usual hour of adjournment.

1631

The Court: All right.

1632

 1633

HYMAN W. BARRON, residing at 135-21 229th Street, Laurelton, Long Island, New York, called as a witness on behalf of The People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Barron, what is your profession or occupation? A. I am a civil engineer.

Q. And by whom are you employed? A. The Police Department, City of New York. 1634

Q. And how many years—

Mr. Rosenthal: I concede his qualifications.

Mr. Barshay: On my behalf.

Mr. Turkus: And you, Judge Talley?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: All right, the qualifications of the witness are conceded by all counsel for defendants.

Q. Did you, in pursuance of your regular course of duties as a civil engineer for the Police 1635
Department of the City of New York, make a plan or a map of the candy store at 725 Sutter Avenue and the surrounding locale, indicating its position on Sutter Avenue in relation to Bradford Street and Wyona Street? A. I did.

Q. Prior to making the map or plan, did you consult the records of the Building Department and other departments, municipal departments, of the City of New York indicating the type of property, its location on the block, whether or not there had been any structural or other changes, and all pertinent facts in regard to the property? A. I did.

1636 Hyman W. Barron—For People—Direct

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this map be marked for identification.

Mr. Barshay: As far as we are concerned, you can mark it in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: The interior of the store he made from photographs.

Mr. Rosenthal: As far as counsel is 1637 concerned, if it is explained on the record the details alleged to be contained in the candy store are taken by a description having been given to the witness as to the location and from photographs, there is no objection to the picture going in evidence.

Q. You said before in the regular course—

Mr. Talley: I want to be sure that this sketch shows the store as it existed in September, 1936. If that cannot be shown, 1638 the map is incompetent.

(Map marked People's Exhibit P for identification.)

Q. Mr. Barron, will you look at People's Exhibit P for identification and tell us whether or not that is a plan or map that you have drawn? A. It is.

Q. Tell us what you did in connection with its drawing, where you got the material from and everything that you did in connection with drawing that plan.

Mr. Talley: May we have the date when it was drawn?

Q. Yes, tell the Judge the date and everything about it. A. This survey was made on May 12, 1941. We went into the store, took the actual dimensions of all things that are in the store, such as tables, chairs, soda fountain, and other counters. The dimensions of the store have not changed, because the Building Department has no record of any alterations being made in that 1640 store from that date.

Q. As to the physical layout of the counters, the chairs, and the tables, did you do that from photographs of the premises taken at the time of the homicide? A. We did.

Q. And is People's Exhibit 1 in evidence one of the photographs used by you in getting the placement of the various articles, including the tables and chairs and counters? A. It is.

Q. All right, Mr. Barron, continue and tell the Court and jury how you got that together and what it is all about. A. There is the entrance 1641 to 725 Sutter Avenue, the candy store, which is on the north side of Sutter Avenue. It is 26 foot 2 inches from the corner of Bradford Street and 157 foot 5 inches from Wyona Street. We took the surrounding buildings in that area over to Belmont Avenue. All these dimensions of the stools and tables are from the furniture in the store, and we were told by the owner of the store that that is the furniture that was there when he bought the place.

Q. You have stated a conversation that you had with the owner of that candy store. A. Yes, sir.

1642 Hyman W. Barron—For People—Direct

Q. Do you know when that owner took possession of the candy store? A. I do not.

Mr. Turkus: That portion of it which he recited as a conversation with the candy store proprietor is, of course, hearsay, and not admissible, so I ask that it be stricken out.

1643

Q. That is a rule of evidence that you are not acquainted with. That is all right. You continue and tell us what you did. A. From the photographs we laid out the chairs and the tables in the approximate location as shown on it by taking dimensions on the photograph and comparing it with actual dimensions taken in the store.

The Court: You mean People's Exhibit 1?

1644 Q. That photograph? A. That is right.

Q. Did you have more photographs than that? A. Yes, there were four of them all together.

The Court: Are they in evidence?

Mr. Turkus: No, they are different views.

The Court: Then what value has this? Has the furniture arrangement any relation to the crime? Does it concern this trial?

Mr. Turkus: There won't be a point in dispute about it.

The Court: Then we will just disregard it.

Mr. Turkus: All right, if you want to disregard it, we will disregard it. I went to the pains of rebuilding it.

The Court: I did not say what I want. Go ahead in your own way.

Q. Continue, Mr. Barron. Look at People's Exhibit 1, that is the small photograph. A. Yes, sir.

1646

Q. Did you use that People's Exhibit 1 in evidence in drawing your plan showing the interior of the store, to place the various articles, such as the ice cream fountain, the telephone booth, and the fixtures in the store, on that plan? A. We did.

Q. Now, does that plan truly reflect the set-up of those fixtures as they are portrayed on People's Exhibit 1 in evidence, the photograph in your hand? A. It does.

Q. Does the plan also show the true and correct position of the store, 725 Sutter Avenue, in relation to the corner of Bradford Street and in relation to the corner of Wyona Street? A. It does.

1647

Q. Does the plan also truly and accurately reflect conditions of September, 1936, with respect to the buildings that you have indicated on the plan, namely, the store at 725 Sutter Avenue and the other buildings down the street to Wyona Street, and the one building adjoining the grocery store on the Bradford Street side?

Mr. Talley: I object to that, if your Honor pleases. I distinctly object to trying to prove a diagram made in 1941, when we are concerned with the happenings in September, 1936.

1648 Hyman W. Barron—For People—Direct

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

This witness does not know the condition of those buildings in 1936.

Q. Will you continue, Mr. Barron? A. It does show the condition.

1649 Q. In 1936? A. That is correct.

The Court: How do you know 1936?

The Witness: I have been down to the Building Department and looked over their records, and they have no alterations shown on that block.

Q. Why, the plan merely shows the width of each lot all the way down, doesn't it? A. We do have the dimensions.

Q. Now look at People's Exhibit 2 in evidence.

1650 The Court: Are these all old buildings?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: More than five or six years old?

The Witness: Much more than that.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. With respect to these stores on each side of the candy store, will you look at People's Exhibit 2, in evidence, taken the very day of the homicide, and tell us if your map truly reflects the conditions on it as they were in September, 1936? A. It does.

Q. You have indicated a place across the street from 725 Sutter Avenue, a little indentation on your map, is that correct? A. We have.

Q. And what is the one down further? A. That is the entrance to number 720.

Q. 720 Sutter Avenue? A. That is correct.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 3, in evidence, and tell us whether or not that is not the building that that 720 refers to. A. It is. 1652

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 4, in evidence, the photograph taken through a window from those premises, 720, showing the view across the street to the candy store, and tell us whether you have marked that window on the diagram. A. We have.

Q. And will you indicate it with your finger? A. (Indicating) This window up here.

The Court: Indicating what?

Mr. Turkus: He is indicating, for the record, the first indentation on the right hand side of the plan nearest to the north mark on the plan. 1653

The Court: Directly opposite the doorway of the premises.

Mr. Turkus: Directly opposite the premises in question, 725 Sutter Avenue.

Q. Now, are each and every one of those measurements accurate measurements? A. They are.

Q. Were the measurements made under your personal supervision? A. They were.

1654 Hyman W. Barron—For People—Direct

Q. And with your personal cooperation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who worked with you on the plan? A. Mr. DeSario.

Q. What is his official title? A. He is a draftsman.

Q. Is he employed by the Police Department? A. He is.

Q. And is he a draftsman associated with you in the performance of duties for the Police De-1655 partment? A. Yes.

Q. Are you known as civilian employes of the Police Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does the map indicate a residence on Wyona Street? A. It does. It shows number 345 on the east side of the street and it shows a house number 320-322 on the west side of the street.

Q. And those numbers refer to houses on Wyona Street? A. That is correct.

Q. Are these measurements in all details correct and accurate? A. They are.

1656 Q. Have you drawn your plan to scale? A. We did.

Q. What is the scale? A. The location plan is drawn, one inch on the plan is actually ten feet on the street, while the view of the store, one and a half inch on the plan is actually one foot.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the plan in evidence.

Mr. Talley: I object to it as not being properly proved.

The Court: Any other counsel wish to object?

Mr. Turkus: They have consented.

The Court: Overruled. You conceded his qualifications, did you?

Mr. Talley: I concede this gentleman is qualified to make a plan and make measurements and draw the design from such measurements as he has made. My objection is that a plan of this kind, made in 1941, has not been sufficiently 1658 proven to show that the conditions set out on the proposed exhibit existed, as they are set out in that exhibit, in September, 1936.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

(People's Exhibit P, for identification, received and marked People's Exhibit 24, in evidence.)

Q. Now, does your plan, People's Exhibit 24, 1659 in evidence, show a bullet hole in the wall of the candy store entering near the edge of a mirror hanging on the west wall at a point forty-seven and a half inches up and ninety inches from the north wall?

Mr. Talley: I object to that as being too remote.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: I am going to take the testimony of the ballistics detective, Frederick W. Walsh, who accurately measured the bullet holes in the floor and the one in the wall, and I am going to ask this witness to put those bullet holes into that exhibit.

Mr. Talley: I object to that.

The Court: You will have to have the record of this trial.

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Talley: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

1661 The Court: Has it any bearing on the case?

Mr. Turkus: I might make it visual to the jury so they can see where they are.

The Court: A lot of shots were fired and one bullet went through the wall.

Mr. Turkus: The bullets that I am particularly concerned with are the four bullets in the floor underneath the body. Those are the bullet holes.

The Court: The detective testified to the precise number of feet and inches—

1662 Mr. Turkus: I am not going to pursue it.

The Court: The detective testified as to the precise number of feet and inches as each bullet hole appeared in the floor, measuring from a stated place. You will be entitled to take that testimony of the detective and have the marks put on here by this man, under this concession as to his qualifications, to show where each one of those bullet holes was.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, Judge.

The Court: Only I would suggest you take it up with him over the recess so that he won't waste time here trying to make his measurements.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: And he will be prepared to make them promptly and it will save considerable time. It is now six or seven minutes of 4:00.

Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case, let no one talk to you about it. Keep your minds open. The court will remain in session while the jury passes out. 1664

(Recess until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.)

(Defendants remanded.)

(Thereupon adjournment was taken to October 23, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.)

1665

1666 Hyman W. Barron—For People—Direct

Brooklyn, N. Y October 23, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

HYMAN W. BARRON, a witness on behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Mr. Turkus: May I respectfully refer your Honor to pages 153 et seq. in this 1667 regard in connection with the questions that I am about to put to this witness?

The Court: All right.

Mr. Turkus: And they will refer to People's Exhibits 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12 in evidence.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Barron, will you attend at People's Exhibit 24 in evidence with a crayon or other pencil? Will you be kind enough to make an 1668 appropriate notation on People's Exhibit 24 in evidence of a place which was described by Detective Walsh as being a bullet which he removed at a point 7 inches from the right shoulder of the deceased, 52 inches from the west wall and 74 inches from the north wall? A. (The witness marks on Exhibit 24.)

The Court: He should have white chalk for this.

Q. To identify that mark, since that corresponds with the place where People's Exhibit 8 in evidence was found by Detective Walsh, will you put a figure "8"? A. (The witness does as requested.)

Q. The next bullet was removed from a bullet hole in the floor at a point 85½ inches from the north wall and 53 inches from the west wall. Will you indicate that with an appropriate notation? A. (The witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. Alongside of that mark which you have just placed on People's Exhibit 24 in evidence, will you be kind enough to note the figure "9" 1670 which corresponds with People's Exhibit 9, the bullet which was removed from that point by Detective Walsh? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. In addition to Exhibit 9, there was removed from a point on the floor underneath the body another bullet by Detective Walsh, 82 inches from the north wall and 58 inches from the west wall. Will you be kind enough to make an appropriate notation thereof on People's Exhibit 24? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. Mr. Barron, will you be kind enough to 1671 place alongside of the mark which you have just made for the bullet, People's Exhibit 10, the figure "10" to indicate that that is the point where that People's Exhibit was removed from the floor by Detective Walsh? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. In addition to those two bullet holes, 9 and 10, there was a third bullet removed from another hole underneath the body at a point 78½ inches from the north wall and 57½ inches from the west wall. Will you be kind enough to make an appropriate notation on People's Exhibit 24 in evidence of that bullet hole? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. The bullet removed from that point which you have just notated on the diagram People's Exhibit 24, was received in evidence as People's Exhibit 11. Will you be kind enough to place the figure "11" alongside of that bullet hole? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. In addition to People's Exhibits 9, 10, and 11, there was a fourth bullet recovered from 1673 underneath the body at a point 84½ inches from the north wall and 61 inches from the west wall. Will you kindly mark that on the diagram, People's Exhibit 24 in evidence? A. (Witness marks.)

Q. The bullet hole which you have just indicated on People's Exhibit 24 in evidence, there was removed therefrom People's Exhibit 12 in evidence. Will you put the figure "12" alongside of that bullet hole? A. (Witness marks on exhibit.)

Q. Will you stand by People's Exhibit 24?
1674 Excluding the figure "8", indicating the bullet hole where People's Exhibit 8 was removed, which was 7 inches from the body, and specifically referring to People's Exhibits 9, 10, 11, and 12, which were the four bullets removed from the four bullet holes directly underneath the body, can you tell us approximately would those four bullet holes be within a 9-inch circle? A. They would fit into a 9-inch circle.

Q. Just one more point, Mr. Barron: When you made the drawing, People's Exhibit 24, and in preparation therefor, did you attend at premises 725 Sutter Avenue? A. I did.

1675

Q. Did you there examine the furniture and fixtures portrayed on People's Exhibit 1 in evidence, and compare it with the fixtures that you found in this store? A. I did.

Q. Were they the same? A. They were.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: No cross.

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley:

1676

Q. Mr. Barron, how wide on Sutter Avenue were these premises you just have been describing? A. The front of the store is 16 foot 5 inches.

Q. Is that it you just pointed to? A. This is the dimension here on the location plan.

Q. Those are the dimensions of the premises shown on the other side of the street; is that right? A. They are the dimensions of this candy store.

Q. Yes. Will you give me the frontage again? A. 16 foot 5 inches.

1677

Q. And is that 16 foot divided by the doorway? Is the door in the center?

Mr. Talley: May I have the photograph?

Mr. Turkus: It is the large photograph, People's Exhibit 2 in evidence.

Mr. Talley: Give me any pictures you have of the front of that store.

Mr. Turkus: That is People's Exhibit 2-A that I hand you.

Q. The door is approximately in the center? A. In the center.

Q. What are the dimensions of the two show windows, each? A. The windows are 4 foot 8 inches wide at the front.

Q. And how wide is the door? A. The door is 3 foot 4 inches wide.

Q. How deep is the store? A. From the back of the show-window to the north wall is 16 foot 7 inches.

1679 Q. Will you indicate where the north wall is? A. The extreme left of the drawing.

Q. What is that depth, please? A. 16 foot 7 inches.

Q. So that the store is approximately 16 by 16; isn't it? A. Approximately, right.

Q. 16 depth and 16 feet in width? A. The inside of the store is 14 foot 11¾ inches width.

Q. Then what is between the 14-foot line and the 16-foot line? A. It has a brick wall on either side.

Q. What is back of the brick wall? A. The 1680 next store.

Q. What is the depth of the store? 14 or 16? A. The depth is 16 foot 7 inches.

Q. From the inside of the show window? A. To the back wall, and the width is 14 foot 11¾ inches.

Q. The width is? A. 14 foot 11¾ inches.

Q. Are either of these windows open into the street? Is it the type of window that the customer can stand on the sidewalk and make a purchase? A. The easterly window can be opened.

Q. Point that out. A. (Witness indicates.)

Q. Does the opening extend the full length of that window? A. It does.

Q. And from the opening, if you know, can you see from the sidewalk the store, the interior of the store? A. You can.

Q. See all of it? A. Well, as much as would be visible through the window.

Q. That is practically all the store? A. Yes.

Q. And looking through the door, assuming it was open, you could see the entire store? A. You can. 1682

Q. And that would apply, what applied to the other window which you say is the open window, would apply to the remaining window? A. There is a partition in the back of the other window.

Q. Do you know whether that partition was there on the 13th of September, 1936? A. I do not.

Q. When you were there, there was a partition? A. There was.

Q. Was there any partition on the other window when you were there? A. No, there was not. 1683

Q. How high do you say the partition was? A. From the floor of the window up to the ceiling.

Mr. Talley: Have you any other picture that is large that shows the premises?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, the picture in back of Judge Taylor.

Mr. Talley: I want one of these smaller pictures. Have you got one?

Mr. Turkus: That is the only one taken

September 13, 1936, that I have. If you want a more recent one, I can show you that.

Mr. Talley: What are the other exhibits you have been directing this witness' attention to?

Mr. Turkus: People's Exhibits 1 and 2 in evidence.

Mr. Talley: I have no further questions.

Mr. Rosenthal: No questions.

Q. Before you go, Mr. Barron, the width of this store you said was 16 and a half inches—16 feet 5 inches? A. At the front of the store, yes.

Q. Will you indicate on that jury box the extent of 16 feet 5 inches? The railing for instance in front of where the jury sits, how long is that? A. It is about the width of the jury box.

Q. You mean the entire width of the jury box from the both rails? A. Correct.

Mr. Talley: That is all.

The Court: Any other cross?

Mr. Rosenthal: No cross by defendant Capone.

Mr. Barshay: No cross. I move, your Honor, to strike out the testimony in respect to my client on the ground it is irrelevant and has no tendency to connect the defendant with the commission of the crime.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Anthony O. DeSario—For People—Direct 1687

ANTHONY O. DESARIO, residing at 610 Ovington Avenue, Brooklyn, called as a witness on behalf of the People, being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. DeSario, by whom are you employed? A. Police Department, City of New York.

Q. In what capacity? A. Draftsman.

Q. And how many years have you been attached to the Police Department of the City of New York as a draftsman? A. Twelve years. 1688

Q. Are you what is known as a civilian employee of the Police Department? A. That is correct.

Q. Attached to the engineering office? A. That is correct.

Q. Will you turn around and look at People's Exhibit 24 in evidence and tell us whether you worked with Mr. Barron, an engineer, in the making of that diagram and map? A. I did.

Q. Will you state your qualifications to the jury, and by that I mean for twelve years have you been actively engaged as a civilian draftsman for the Police Department? A. I have. 1689

Q. In the twelve years that you have been with the Police Department, have you drawn many drawings and maps to scale?

Mr. Cuff: Qualifications conceded.

Q. What part did you take in the making of People's Exhibit 24? A. We left the office and went to the District Attorney's office, went out to 725 Sutter Avenue, surveyed the surrounding streets, the inside of the store, including all the furnishings, made our sketches, and went back to the office and prepared our drawings.

Mr. Talley: When was this?

Q. Do you recall the date? A. I do. May 12, 1941.

Q. And is the date indicated on People's Ex-
1691 hibit 24 in evidence? A. It is.

Q. Is People's Exhibit 24 in evidence a true and accurate drawing to scale of premises 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn, New York, and the surrounding locale thereon set forth? A. It is.

Mr. Turkus: You may inquire.

Mr. Barshay: No cross. Make the same motion with respect to this witness.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1692

SYLVIA GREENSPAN, residing at 401 Schenectady Avenue, Brooklyn, New York, called as a witness on behalf of The People, and being first duly sworn, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, are you married? A. Yes.

Q. And do you reside with your husband? A. Yes.

Q. At the address that you have listed with the stenographer? A. Yes.

Q. Before you were married, what was your maiden name? A. Sylvia Rosen.

Q. Are you a daughter of the late Joseph Rosen? A. Yes.

Q. Who was killed on September 13, 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Were you employed by your father and the other members of his firm during your father's lifetime, as a bookkeeper? A. Yes. 1694

Q. Was the firm then known as the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company? A. Yes.

Q. Where was its office, Mrs. Greenspan? A. It was either on Washington Place or 8th Street off Broadway.

Q. Are you a bookkeeper? A. Yes.

Q. And how long have you been a bookkeeper? A. About 13 years.

Q. Did you have preliminary training or study? A. I had high school training.

Q. Will you speak loudly, Mrs. Greenspan? A. I had high school training. 1695

Q. At what high school? A. Passaic.

Q. And did you have a course in bookkeeping? A. Yes.

Q. When your father went into the business of the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, who opened the books? A. I did.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have a general objection to all this line of testimony by this witness on the ground that it is not binding upon the defendant Capone?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: Subject to a motion to strike it out.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. After you opened the books for the firm, do you know who acted as bookkeeper? A. My 1697 brother.

Q. And what is your brother's name? A. Harold.

Q. When Harold Rosen left as bookkeeper, who took his position? A. I did.

Q. How long did you remain as bookkeeper? A. About six or seven months.

Q. I do not hear you? A. About six or seven months.

Q. Was that when the business terminated? A. Yes, it did.

1698 Mr. Barshay: I object to that as a conclusion.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. I want to direct your attention to the time when you had been in the employ of your father and his partners in the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company for about four months. Approximately when was that?

Will you fix that time? A. To the best of my recollection it was during the summer of 1932.

Q. Did you say during the summer of 1932, to the best of your recollection? A. That is right.

Q. Will you kindly, Mrs. Greenspan, keep your voice up so that everybody in the jury can hear what you have to say and so that defense counsel as well will have no difficulty. Respond to this question either yes or no only: Sometime during the summer of 1932 did you receive 1700 a telephone call from your father, the late Joseph Rosen?

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I object to even a yes or no answer on that question on the ground it is irrelevant, incompetent, not binding on the defendant, and has nothing to do with the issues in this case, and it is too remote to anything involved in this case.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception. 1701

Q. Have you that question? A. Yes, I did receive a telephone call.

The Court: What year was that?

Mr. Turkus: During the summer of the year 1932, to the best recollection of the witness.

Q. Where were you, Mrs. Greenspan, when you received that telephone call from your father?

1702

Mr. Climenko: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Climenko: Exception.

A. I was in the office of the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company.

Q. After you received that telephone call from your father, Mrs. Greenspan, what did you do?

Mr. Climenko: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
1703 Mr. Climenko: Exception.

A. My father asked me—

Mr. Barshay: Please— I move to strike out the answer.
Mr. Turkus: I consent to it.

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, listen to me a moment. These are technical questions that you must answer exactly as I ask them. After you received the telephone call—you cannot tell us what your 1704 father said to you, but you can tell us—what did you do after you received that call? What was the first thing you did, and then what did you do? A. I took the books of the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation to where my father told me to.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.
Mr. Turkus: "to where my father told me to" I consent be stricken from the record.
Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, I think this witness ought to be told now to adhere strictly to Mr. Turkus's suggestion not to volunteer anything at all because of the remoteness of the time she speaks of to the alleged commission of the crime.

The Court: Where did you take the books?

The Witness: I took the books to an office on 17th or 19th Street off Broadway.

The Court: Nobody can hear you. If the jury does not hear you testify, the jury does not know what the evidence is. Will you please repeat that loudly? 1706

The Witness: I took the books to an office on 17th or 19th Street off Broadway.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer on the ground set forth heretofore.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Let me see if I understand you correctly. Did you take the books of the firm in which your father was a partner, namely, the books of the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company, and bring those books some place? A. Yes. 1707

Q. Where was that place that you took those books to?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: She said 17th or 19th Street off Broadway.

Mr. Turkus: All right. I did not hear it.

Q. Was the place that you took the books to an office of a manufacturer?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is leading.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. And on the ground that I heretofore urged.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Same exception.

1709

Q. Have you followed the question? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what is your answer, you did? A. Yes.

Q. When you arrived in this office with the books of the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, whom did you see inside the office?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Same exception.

1710

A. Four men.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Who are the four men, Mrs. Greenspan, whom you saw in the office when you went there with the books?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Max Rubin, Danny Fields, Buchalter and Shapiro.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

Q. Point out Buchalter.

1712

Mr. Barshay: Move to strike out the answer.
The Court: Denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
The Court: Which Shapiro?
The Witness: He was commonly called Gurrah.
Mr. Barshay: We do not hear you.
Mr. Turkus: We do not hear you and the jury does not hear you.
The Witness: He was commonly called Gurrah.

1713

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out.
The Court: Denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Will you drink the water? Possibly that will help you. In order to insure that the jury has heard the names of the four men in this office when you arrived there with the books, was one man Max Rubin? A. Yes.

Q. Was the other man in your testimony Danny Fields? A. Yes.

Q. Was the third man Shapiro? A. Yes.

Q. Whom you say was also known as Gurrah? A. Yes.

Q. The fourth man you say was Buchalter? A. Yes.

Q. What name did you know Buchalter by besides Buchalter? A. Lepke.

Q. Where was your father? A. In that room.

Q. Where was this man Shapiro, whom you say is also known as Gurrah? What position did he have in the room?

Mr. Barshay: I make the objection as I made before.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. He was sitting behind a desk.

Q. While Gurrah was seated behind the desk in the office, where was this man Buchalter, also known as Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

A. He was standing—

Q. I did not hear you. A. May I answer?

Q. Yes.

Mr. Barshay: Please wait a minute.

Mr. Turkus: Excuse me. I thought the Court had ruled.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. Will you repeat the question?

Q. (Pending question read by the reporter.) A. He was standing behind Shapiro.

Q. You will have to speak up loudly. Is your answer that Lepke was standing behind Shapiro? A. Yes.

Q. Had you seen this individual Danny Fields before the time that you saw him in that office?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 1718

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where had you seen Danny Fields before that occasion?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I met him on 5th Avenue.

Q. In the clothing district? A. Yes.

Q. Was that during the time that you worked for your father and his concern? 1719

Mr. Barshay: Please. That may be an important question. Don't lead. I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. I met him previous to that and a number of times during that time.

Q. Had you seen this man Buchalter, also known as Lepke, before this occasion that you were in the office?

1720 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Where had you seen him?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1721

A. I met him on 5th Avenue.
Q. In the clothing district? A. Yes.
Q. Had you been introduced to this man Buchalter, also known as Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: Please. I object to it. And I ask your Honor to tell the District Attorney now the defendant has been identified by one name or the other, and there is no need for "Buchalter also known as Lepke."
The Court: Overruled.
1722 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, I met him once.
Q. The question is: Had you been introduced to him? A. Yes.
Q. Who introduced you to Lepke? A. My father and Max Rubin were standing there, and I don't remember which one introduced me.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, we move to strike out the answer as not binding on the defendants, not relevant to the issues in this case.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. I take it, then—and am I correct—that from your last answer you had met Max Rubin before this occasion in the office.

Mr. Climenko: I object to that upon the same ground. 1724

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

A. Yes, I met him on a number of occasions.

Q. In the clothing district? A. Yes.

Q. And when you were introduced to Lipke, was that in the clothing district? A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, when you stepped into that office with the books of the concern, what happened?

Mr. Climenko: Object to that, if your Honor pleases, on the ground that it calls for an answer not binding on the defendants, not relevant to the issues here. 1725

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

A. I put the books on the desk, and Gurrah took the ledger, that is, the accounts receivable ledger, opened it up, and went through the accounts.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

1726

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Your voice is very low, Mrs. Greenspan, and not quite audible to the jurors who sit in this part of the room. A. Sorry.

Q. Did you respond to that question and say that you brought the books into that office and put them on the desk? A. Yes, I did.

Q. And who picked up the ledger? A. Shapiro.

1727

Q. The man also known as Gurrah? A. Yes.

Q. At that time when Gurrah picked up the ledger, was the defendant Lepke in back of him?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

A. Yes.

Q. Directly in back of him?

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

1728

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. The question is: Directly in back of him? A. Yes.

Q. What did Gurrah do with the book that he opened up?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on the defendant, too remote.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He looked at the names of the accounts.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it unless she can say that of her own personal knowledge.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Will you continue, Mrs. Greenspan, and as loudly as you can talk, please? A. And he told my father that there were certain manufacturers that he could not go up to to take work from.

1730

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Lepke said that?

The Witness: No.

Mr. Turkus: Gurrah.

The Witness: Shapiro.

Mr. Barshay: I renew my motion, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1731

Q. When your father was told by Gurrah what you told this jury in substance, namely, that he could not go to certain manufacturers for business, what did your father say, if anything?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is not binding on this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. My father said he could not see why not, if the manufacturers were willing to give him 1732 the work; he was carrying on a legitimate business, and he was going to take it.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. When your father said that, did anybody in the room answer him; yes or no? A. Well,

1733 at certain intervals—

Mr. Barshay: Please. Yes or no.

The Witness: Yes.

Q. When Gurrah was talking to your father and said the things that you have told this Court and jury, what was Lepke doing?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1734 A. At certain intervals he would bend over and whisper into Shapiro's ear.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Directing your attention to a point of time, at those intervals when Lepke whispered into Gurrah's or Shapiro's ear, how soon after that was it before Shapiro spoke to your father?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

Q. Do you understand my question?

The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You may answer. A. Well, Shapiro would mention certain names of manufacturers and Buchalter would bend over and whisper in his ear, and then Shapiro would tell my father whether he could go up to that manufacturer or he couldn't. 1736

Q. You told this jury that your father said in substance that he did not see why he could not handle the business, he was doing a legitimate business; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. After your father said that, did anybody else in the room other than Shapiro enter into the conversation?

Mr. Barshay: Object to it.
The Court: Overruled. 1737
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, my father was becoming very excited—

Mr. Barshay: Please. I move to strike out the answer.
The Court: Strike it out.
Mr. Turkus: From "Yes" on I consent to. Does the Court permit the word "yes" to stand on the record?
The Court: Yes.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1738 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Direct

Q. Who entered and joined in the conversation?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Max Rubin interceded then and advised my father to take what he can get.

1739 Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out that part of the answer.

Mr. Turkus: Up to the point "interceded" I say should stand, and from there on I consent be stricken.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the whole answer.

The Court: Of course it is competent if made responsive.

Mr. Barshay: First I objected to the question. Your Honor has overruled the objection. I now move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

1740 The Court: The latter part is not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: Does the record indicate that the answer up to the word "interceded" stands on the record?

The Court: Yes.

Q. You said that Max Rubin interceded. What did Max Rubin say?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on this defendant, too remote.

The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. May I answer?
Q. You may. A. Max Rubin advised my father to take what he can get.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.
The Court: Denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 1742

Q. Did Danny Fields take any part in the conversation?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Not to my recollection.
Q. What happened after Rubin took a part in the conversation and gave your father he advice that you related to this Court and jury? A. My father was very excited. 1743

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out.
Mr. Turkus: It is responsive. I submit it should stand.
The Court: Let it stand.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Will you continue? You say your father was very excited. Continue. A. And he said that he does not see why he should take that advice, he had worked very hard to build that up.

1744 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Direct

Q. Continue.

Mr. Barshay: Are you finished?

Q. You continue with your answer. A. He had worked very hard to build that up and he was going to continue to do so and not stop for anybody.

1745

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Describe your father's appearance at that time.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

Q. And by "appearance," I mean his facial expression.

1746

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. My father was very excited. He was pacing up and down and he became very, very white.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1747

Q. At that point, Mrs. Greenspan, did you say something?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, I did.
Q. What did you say?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Same exception.

1748

A. I went over to my father and I told him he was getting too excited and would he please retur.. with me.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.
The Court: Denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

1749

Q. Did your father return with you? A. No.
Q. Did he send you out from the office? A. Yes, he told me he would be all right and I should go back and wait for him.
Q. Did the books go back with you or did they stay in the office when you left?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I left the books there. I went back myself.

1750

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you return to your father's place of business?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

1751

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, I did.

Mr. Barshay: Move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you see your father again after that? A. Yes, he returned in about an hour.

Q. Did he have with him the books that you had brought over to that office? A. I don't remember.

1752

Q. How long after that occurrence was it that your father's connection with the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company as a partner terminated?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About three months.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is offered for cross-examination.

Mr. Climenko: May it please the Court, the defendant Buchalter moves to strike out all of the testimony of this witness upon the ground that it refers to matters which are too remote to the issues involved in this case, upon the ground that the testimony is not binding on that defendant.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Climenko: And is irrelevant to 1754
the issue here. Exception.

Cross-examination by Mr. Climenko:

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, when did you start working for New York and New Jersey? A. During the summer of 1932.

Q. Well, could you give me a date better than that? A. No, I can't.

Q. Well, do you know what month it was in the summer of 1932? A. No, I could not tell you that.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I could not tell 1755 you that. I don't remember the exact month.

Q. Well, do you remember whether it was in June or July of 1932 that you started work there?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness has responded that she is unable to fix the month.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I don't remember the exact month.

1756 Q. I have heard that answer, and what I am now asking you is to please make an effort as you sit here now to think about it. After you make the effort, tell me whether you can remember the month. A. I cannot remember the month.

Q. So that, try as you may, at this moment you cannot recall the month when you started to work for New York and New Jersey? A. That is right.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

1757 Q. Would you tell me when it was that you ceased to work for New York and New Jersey? A. The only thing I can tell you is that I worked there for about six or seven months.

Q. I know that, Mrs. Greenspan, and I am trying to ask you to cooperate with me to the slight extent. As you sit here now, try to make that mental effort to think about it and tell me as best you can remember when it was you ceased to work for New York and New Jersey.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. The wit-

1758 ness's memory has been exhausted on that point, nine years ago.

Mr. Climenko: Your Honor, I will agree after that question is answered it may have been exhausted. It has not been yet.

The Court: She says she does not remember. That entitles you to ask any leading question that may prompt her memory, but of course if she fails to respond in answer to that, that is as far as you can go.

Mr. Climenko: I understand, your Honor. I merely put that as a conclusory question.

The Court: You may answer the question.

Q. Do you remember the question? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Having it in mind, can you make an answer to it? A. I cannot tell you any more than I did.

Q. So that you have no recollection as to what month you started work for New York and New Jersey and what month you quit work for New York and New Jersey, is that right? A. That is right. 1760

Q. Have you a recollection as to when, in month and year, your father first became associated with New York and New Jersey? A. To the best of my recollection, it must have been around April of that year of 1932.

Q. It was in April of 1932, you think, that your father first became connected with that firm? A. To the best of my recollection.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right. 1761

Q. Now do you remember when it was that your father's relationship with that firm ended? A. No, I don't.

Q. You have no recollection of that whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Have you any recollection as you sit here now as to whether that firm continued in business after your father's connection with it terminated? A. No, I had no interest in it after that.

Q. So that you don't know as a fact whether

1762 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

that firm continued in business after your father severed his connection with it? A. I know that it didn't continue, but whether it broke up at that particular moment or a month later, I don't know exactly.

Q. You know that it did not continue; is that your testimony? A. Yes.

Q. And do you know whether it continued for some time after your father severed his connection with it?

1763

Mr. Turkus: The witness has already said so.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you not know?

Mr. Turkus: To the best of her recollection, she said whether it broke up then or a month later she did not know.

The Court: That is what she said.

1764 Q. Do you know whether the firm may have continued for a year or five years after your father's connection with it was severed? A. I know it didn't continue that long.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I know that it didn't continue that long.

Q. Are you ready to say as to your own knowledge that it ceased in business less than a year after your father severed his connection with it? Are you ready to say that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. The witness has indicated she had lost interest with the concern after her father's interest terminated.

Mr. Climenko: I withdraw the word "ready," but I press the question.

The Court: Just repeat it in modified form.

Q. Do you say that the firm continued for at least a year after your father severed his connection with it? A. I cannot say exactly.

Q. You really don't know, do you? A. I know 1766 that there was no New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation for very long after my father severed his connections.

Q. And I am now asking you, Mrs. Greenspan, to define that period "very long." Can you tell me how long you mean by that phrase? A. As far as I can remember, it could not have been more than a few months at the most.

Q. And you are ready to leave us with that impression that you know as a fact that it did not continue for more than three months after your father severed his connection with it?

1767

Mr. Turkus: Object to it.

The Court: She said a few months.

The Witness: I said a few.

Q. What does "a few months" mean, if I may ask that question? A. I could not say.

Q. You don't know? A. No.

Q. Well, does it mean two or does it mean six?

1768

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained. It is obvious she cannot say.

Q. Do you mean more or less than a half a year? A. It might mean anything from two to six.

Q. Indeed it might mean anything. That is why I ask you this question.

1769

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. I object to the preamble: "indeed it might mean anything." That is why I ask the question, and ask it be stricken from the record.

The Court: Let the preamble stand.

Q. Will you answer the question?

Mr. Turkus: There is no question.

A. Will you repeat the question?

1770

Mr. Climenko (to reporter): Will you read it?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: That is a statement.

Q. Did you mean more or less than a half a year? A. I don't know.

Q. You really don't know, do you? A. No, I don't.

Q. What month in what year did your father sever his connection with New York and New Jersey? A. His connection was severed in 1932. I could not tell you the month exactly.

Q. And you don't know, as I understand your testimony now, how long New York and New Jersey continued in business after that time; is that correct? A. No, I don't.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. That is true. Who were your father's partners in New York and New Jersey? A. Morris Bluestein; there was a man by the name 1772 of Kelly—I don't remember his first name.

Q. And who else? A. I don't remember anybody else.

Q. You don't remember anybody else? A. No.

Q. So that your recollection is, as you sit here now, that your father had two partners in that firm? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. There were only these three interests; is that right? A. Yes.

Q. And you are the person who, as a book- 1773 keeper, opened a set of books for this firm? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now, at the time that you opened the set of books, were you acquainted with the persons who made up or who had the interests in the corporation? A. I was at that time.

Q. You were at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Are you presently able to remember who those people were who had an interest at that time? A. Only those that I mentioned.

1774 Q. You cannot tell me whether there were any more or less? A. No, I can't.

Q. No? A. No.

Mr. Turkus: It could not be less. She named three.

Mr. Climenko: She could be wrong as to that.

Mr. Turkus: Ask her.

1775 Q. Do you know what Kelly's first name was? A. I don't remember his first name.

Q. Do you remember the other man's first name? A. I said Morris Bluestein.

Q. You did say Morris Bluestein? A. Yes.

Q. When did Kelly enter into this association? A. Almost immediately, I believe.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. Almost immediately, I believe.

Q. "Almost immediately" means when, in point of time? That is what I am trying to get.

1776 Mr. Turkus: I object to it. The witness said, "Almost immediately, I believe," so that it is speculative at best.

The Court: The jury understands what it means. This is all practical language used in every-day life among people.

Mr. Climenko: I am not trying to quibble with anybody, your Honor. I am just trying to get the entry day of Kelly's association with this business.

The Court: Of course, you must realize, going back nine years—

Mr. Climenko: Indeed, I believe it.

The Court: —you cannot expect to get everything you are asking for unless the witness has a remarkable memory. Then there might be some doubt about it.

Mr. Climenko: I just want to ask her one question. If she cannot answer it I will go to something else.

The Court: That is all right.

Q. Do you remember when it was that Kelly came into that business? A. No, I could not 1778 give you the exact date.

Q. Do you remember when it was that your father went into that business? A. I believe I answered that before.

Q. Yes, what was your answer? A. I told you to the best of my recollection it was around March or April of 1932.

Q. Did Kelly go in there after your father did? A. My father started it.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. My father started it.

Q. Am I to understand you to tell us that 1779 your father started New York and New Jersey Transportation Corporation?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Climenko: I withdraw the question.

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, did your father start this business? A. You mean was it called the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company when my father went in? I am sorry I do not understand your question.

Mr. Climenko: (to the reporter) Will you read what she said?

Mr. Turkus: The witness responded.

Mr. Climenko: Do you mind if I get it verbatim from the stenographer?

(The testimony requested was read by the reporter.)

Q. Did your father start the business? A. I opened the books for the New York and New 1781 Jersey. As far as I was concerned, there was no concern before.

Q. So far as you know, there never had been a New York and New Jersey until that point when your father asked you to start that set of books? A. That is correct.

Q. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. You do not know whether there had been a New York and New Jersey Transportation Corporation in existence? A. No, I don't.

Q. For one year or ten years before that time? A. No, I don't.

1782 Q. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. And you don't know who the partners or other stockholders may have been in that corporation is that correct? A. Not before I opened the books.

Q. Do you know whether any books for such corporation had been in existence before the time— A. No, I don't.

Q. —that you opened the books that you did open? A. No, I don't.

Q. You have no knowledge of that? A. No.

Q. When you opened the books, did you speak to anyone about it other than your father? Answer that yes or no. A. No.

Q. The only person you spoke to in relation to opening of the books was your father? A. Yes.

Q. Did your father make a contribution to the assets of that corporation to your knowledge, or is that a subject on which you have no information? A. I don't know.

Q. You really do not know? A. No, I don't.

Q. In opening the books, were you appraised— 1784 and answer this yes or no—were you acquainted with the contribution of other persons to the corporation? A. No.

Q. Do you know anything about the capital contribution of anybody to the corporation? A. No.

Q. Nothing at all? A. No.

Q. When you opened the books, were you told anything about salaries of employees? A. No.

Q. Were you told who the employees were? I am not now referring to your father or people who were his associates. I am referring to em- 1785 ployees of the corporation. Were you told who the employees were? A. Yes, I was.

Q. You were? A. Yes.

Q. Can you remember the name of any of the employees? A. I might remember one or two.

Q. Did you speak to your brother last night after he left the witness stand? A. No, my brother left immediately.

Q. You have not seen your brother since he testified here yesterday? A. No.

Q. Is that correct? A That is correct.

Q. Did you talk to him before he took the witness stand? A. I have spoken to him a number of times before he took the witness stand.

Q. Did you speak to him yesterday morning before he took the witness stand? A. Yes.

Q. In relation to his testimony or your testimony as it might be given here? A. No.

Q. You did not discuss with your brother the matter which he might be called upon to testify in this court? A. No.

Q. Did you at any time discuss that with him?

1787 A. No.

Q. Did he ever discuss with you at any time the matters as to which you might be called on to testify in this court? A. No.

Q. It is clear that at no time yesterday did you discuss with your brother his testimony here? A. Yes.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. Yes.

Q. That is clear? A. Yes.

Q. That ~~such~~ a conversation did not take place between you and your brother? A. Yes.

Q. And it is also clear that at no time prior 1788 to your taking the stand today did you ever discuss with your brother the subject-matter of his proposed testimony and your proposed testimony? A. Yes.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. Yes. We did not know what we were going to be asked.

Q. Then you did discuss that with your brother? A. I said no. How could we discuss it? We did not know what we were going to be asked.

Q. Did you talk with anybody in the District Attorney's office before you took the stand? A. Yes, I did.

Q. With whom? A. I spoke to Mr. Klein.

Q. Anybody else? A. I spoke to Mr. Turkus.

Q. Anybody else? A. No, that is all.

Q. Were you present when your brother spoke to either of those gentlemen? A. No.

Q. How many times did you talk with Mr. Klein or Mr. Turkus? A. Once to Mr. Turkus and once to Mr. Klein.

Q. And those are the only occasions? A. Yes.

Q. That you have spoken with those gentlemen? A. Yes. 1790

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk with your brother about what you had discussed with Mr. Turkus or Mr. Klein? A. No.

Q. Never? A. No.

Q. And he never told you what he might have discussed with either of those gentlemen or any of those associates? A. He couldn't.

Q. Did Mr. Turkus or Mr. Klein in talking with you refer to what they might have said to your brother or what he might have said to them? A. No. 1791

Q. No reference whatsoever? A. No.

Q. In your talk with Mr. Turkus or Mr. Klein, did they refer to anything that they might have said with your mother, or what your mother may have said to them? A. No.

Q. No? A. No.

Q. And then you never discussed with your mother prior to your taking the stand the matters about what you might be interrogated by Mr. Turkus here this morning; is that correct? A. I have no idea of what she would be asked.

1792 Q. No, no. I am afraid you misunderstood my question. Did you ever discuss with your mother the matters as to which, following your conversation with Mr. Turkus or Mr. Klein, you had a notion you might be interrogated by Mr. Turkus here? Do you understand it now? A. Yes, but I never discussed it with her.

Q. Never? A. No.

Q. And she never asked you any questions about it? A. No.

1793 Q. Is that correct? A. No.

Q. So that you took the stand this morning without any prior notice on the part of any member of your family—

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the fact.

Mr. Climenko: I have not finished the question.

Mr. Turkus: Excuse me.

Mr. Climenko: Since you object to that phrase, I withdraw it.

1794 Q. You took the stand with morning without ever having mentioned to any member of your family the matters which you had discussed with Mr. Turkus or Mr. Klein?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That has been asnwered at least five times with a series of questions.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Now I should like to ask you again just once: Can you now tell me whether there were any other persons in New York and New Jersey other than the persons that you have mentioned?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases—

The Court: Overruled.

A. No, I can't.

Q. You cannot think of any other persons? A. No.

1796

Q. Did you ever hear the name Sobler? A. Yes.

Q. Who is he? A. I think he was one of the partners.

Q. Well, did he have an interest equal to that of your father? A. What would you call an equal interest?

The Court: Capital contribution.

The Witness: I do not know anything about the contributions.

1797

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I do not know anything about the contributions.

Q. Do you mean, then, that you don't know what the interests of the various partners were in this business? A. Yes.

Q. You do not know whether Sobler, whose name you now remember because I mentioned it to you, had a 50 per cent interest in this business, or less than a 50 per cent interest? A. I do not know.

Q. For all you knew then, or all you know now, he might have had a larger interest than everybody else in the business; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. Anything is possible, if you do not know.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Mr. Sobler was there every day that you worked in this business, was he not? A. He may have been.

1799 Q. I beg your pardon? A. He may have been.

Q. Of course, as Mr. Turkus informs us, anything might have happened. Was he there every day that you were at that business? A. I don't recall.

Q. Was Mr. Bluestein there every day? A. No, Mr. Bluestein came and went.

Q. How frequently did you see Mr. Sobler at the place of business in the months that you worked in that business? A. I saw him a number of times. I could not tell you exactly how many.

1800 Q. It is a fact, is it not, that whether or not you know the degree or nature of his interest, he certainly had an interest in that business, is that right? A. Yes, but we took orders from my father.

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike out everything after the word "but".

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. He was a partner in that business?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. How many times in all did you see Sobler in the premises of that business? A. I answered that. I told you I saw him a number of times. I could not tell you exactly how many.

Q. When you were first interrogated by me this morning, you had no recollection whatsoever that Sobler had an interest in that business, is that so? 1802

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. Already answered.

The Court: Sustained. The question of partnership is always a question of law. There has to be competent proof on which the Court can decide whether or not a man is a partner or not. The most that we can say in regard to this witness's testimony is that it apparently appeared to her, as a conclusion she drew from what she saw and heard, that he probably was a partner. That does not establish partnership. 1803

Mr. Climenko: I was not interested in that, if I may say so, your Honor; I was interested only in her recollection.

Q. When did Martin Keily enter into this business? I asked you that before. Do you remember? A. Yes, you asked me that before.

but I could not tell you whether he went in immediately or he came in a little bit later.

Q. He may have come in after you posted the books?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is already answered. She said he could have come in immediately or some time after.

The Court: Overruled.

1805 Q. Will you answer the question, please? A. He may.

The Court: Do you remember definitely?

The Witness: I don't remember definitely. I can't say definitely exactly when he came in.

Q. What was your father's business before his association with New York & New Jersey? A. I think he worked for the Garfield Express at 1806 that time.

Q. Before his association with New York & New Jersey? A. I think so. I am not sure.

Q. When do you think that was? A. I don't remember.

Q. You have no recollection of that? A. No.

Q. What was his business immediately before, immediately before his association with New York & New Jersey?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It has already been answered. The witness has speculated. She said "I think". This is more speculation. It is objectionable.

The Court: Do you know?

The Witness: No, not exactly.

Q. Well, now, wasn't your father in business immediately before his association with New York & New Jersey, wasn't he in business with Kelly, or don't you know? A. He was in business with Kelly. I don't remember whether that was exactly preceding or not. 1808

The Court: Exactly what?

The Witness: Whether that preceded the business of the New York & New Jersey.

Q. How long did that business last? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did it last one month or four, do you know? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know whether that was a successful business? A. I don't know.

Q You know nothing about that? Do you know as a fact that it was unsuccessful and that your father suggested that Mr. Kelly contribute his trucks to the existing corporation of New York & New Jersey Transportation Company? A. I said— 1809

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. The witness has just responded she does not know anything about it, she does not know if it was successful, so how could she possibly know that it was unsuccessful.

The Court: Were you the bookkeeper at that time?

The Witness: No.

The Court: You were just your father's daughter at that time?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Now don't you know as a fact that Kelly came into the business the same time that your father did? A. No, I don't.

Q. You don't know that? A. No.

Q. Do you know what Kelly's contribution to the business was? A. I don't know any of the contributions.

Q. You don't? A. No.

Q. Do you know when Kelly left the business? A. No.

Q. Did he leave while you were there? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, you were there for at least six months, were you not? A. Yes, I was.

Q. Is that your recollection? A. Yes.

Q. Did Kelly leave before or after you left?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

A. I could not tell you that.

Q. You have no notion of that at all? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether Kelly's trucks were ever withdrawn from the vehicles of the New York & New Jersey Transportation Corporation at a time when you were connected with that corporation? A. I don't remember that.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No.

Q. Did you receive a salary? A. Yes.

Q. Did you draw checks? A. Yes.

Q. Did you pay the other employees by drawing checks for them? A. Yes.

Q. You did? A. Yes.

Q. Were the employees paid regularly while you were there? A. For the first few months.

Q. Until what time? A. Until business started going bad.

Q. When would you say that business began 1814 starting going bad? A. After the meeting in the office that I spoke about.

Q. Business was good until that time? A. Yes.

Q. What was the date of that meeting? A. I could not tell you the exact date.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I could not tell you the exact date.

Q. Do you know what month it was in? A. No.

Q. Do you know that at the time that your father entered into this association with New York & New Jersey, New York & New Jersey was already in arrears in the payment of salaries 1815 to it's employees? Did you know that? A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you ever hear of a man by the name of Abe Goldman? A. I don't remember him.

Q. Don't you know that Goldman was one of the truck drivers for New York & New Jersey? A. I don't remember.

Q. Have you no recollection of that? A. No.

Q. Didn't you draw the checks which were given to him in payment of his salary when he was paid? A. Yes, but I cannot remember all the names of nine years ago.

1816

Q. Did you tell me about ten minutes ago that you did remember the name of Goldman? A. I did not.

Q. You did not? A. No.

Q. Of course, you recall that meeting nine years ago, do you not? A. Yes, I do.

Q. You remember all of the details of that? A. Yes, I do.

Q. Correct? A. Yes.

Q. Now at the time that your father first was 1817 connected with New York & New Jersey, were you told that New York & New Jersey could not pay the salary, the wages, of Goldman, one of its truck drivers? Were you told that?

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. I object to it. Counsel has brought out when business started to go bad, after the meeting in this office. That has been answered.

The Court: The question can be reframed. You will have to show who gave that information.

1818

Q. Did Goldman ever tell you that New York & New Jersey owed him seven hundred dollars in back salary from a time even before your father came in there? A. I told you I don't remember Goldman.

Q. So you do not remember whether such a demand was ever made on you for back salary? A. No.

Q. But you do not know that it did not happen, is that correct? A. I do not know anything about Goldman.

Q. It may have happened? A. I could not say.

Q. You do not know? A. No.

Q. You say business was good before that meeting? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? You had charge of the books? A. Yes.

Q. What did the corporation own? A. What do you mean by what they owned?

Q. What were its assets? You said business was good. What did they have? A. They had a few trucks.

Q. Yes. A. And the manufacturers from whom they took the work. 1820

Q. All right. Who owned those trucks? A. The New York & New Jersey.

Q. The corporation? A. Yes.

Q. Did they own them outright? A. No.

Q. They owned them subject to chattel mortgages or conditional bills of sale, is that right? A. They bought new trucks during the time I was there.

Q. And they bought them on time? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Where were those trucks stored? A. I don't remember. 1821

Q. Were they stored in New York or in New Jersey? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't know even that? A. No.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. I ask that that question be stricken "You don't know even that". The implication—

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Didn't you know that those trucks were stored at Pink's garage? A. No.

Q. In Passaic? A. No.

Q. Did you pay garage rent for the garage of those trucks by check? A. Yes, I did.

Q. You don't recall the name of the payee? A. No.

Q. Is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Now did a time come when those trucks were withdrawn by the finance company? A. Yes.

Q. That did come? A. Yes.

Q. Did a time come when Kelly withdrew his 1823 trucks or don't you remember that? A. I don't remember about his individual trucks but I do know that the finance company did take the trucks back.

Q. They did take those trucks back? A. Yes.

Q. After the finance company took those trucks back, did Sobler and Bluestein continue that business, do you know that? A. There was no business left. That is why the trucks—

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike out the answer.

1824 Mr. Turkus: I object to it and I ask the witness be permitted to continue with the rest of the answer.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Climenko: I take exception. The answer is not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: (To reporter) Will you read to the witness the point to which she got?

(Answer read by the reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: Continue.

The Witness: That is why the trucks were taken back.

1825

Q. Were you there at that time? A. I was there until that time.

Q. When was that? A. I don't remember the exact month.

Q. You have no recollection of it whatsoever? A. No.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: She did not say that.

Q. What did you say? Have you any recollection as to when it happened? 1826

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as just answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. At the time the business started, did it have a bank account? A. Yes.

Q. How much money did it hav in the account? A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember whether it had ten dollars or a thousand dollars? A. I could not tell you exactly. 1827

Q. You say that business was good?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. At the end of the first week that you were there, how much did the corporation have in its bank account? A. I cannot answer that. I don't remember anything like that.

1828 Q. Well, do you remember whether it had a thousand dollars or less than a thousand dollars?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained. She said she did not know.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. At the end of each week, did you draw a check to your father? A. Salaries were paid.

1829 Q. Did you draw a salary check for your father? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall how much that was? A. No.

Q. Do you remember whether it was $25 more or less? A. I don't know.

Q. You do not know whether your father drew more or less than $25 from this prosperous business?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form of the question.

1830 The Court: You asked about salaries. Now you say how much did he draw. That is different. In a corporation, on account of income tax, it is customary, and I think we can take notice of it, for the officers to draw salaries and that is charged against the expenses of the business. The profits are over and above and the profits may be split.

Mr. Climenko: Has your Honor concluded?

The Court: I am just calling your attention to the confusion between the two questions.

Mr. Climenko: Thank you, sir. I take exception to your Honor's remarks. I understand the spirit in which they were made.

Q. Let me ask you, Mrs. Greenspan, did your father have both a salary and some other account in the corporation? A. What do you mean by that? 1832

The Court: Do you know if there were any dividends paid?

The Witness: The business was not in existence long enough for dividends.

The Court: Just yes or no, do you remember?

The Witness: No.

Q. Your father did not draw any dividends?

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. She said she did not remember, as I understand it. 1833

Mr. Climenko: I think you are wrong too, Mr. Turkus.

By the Court:

Q. Did you attend any stockholders' meetings? A. No.

Q. Did you attend any meetings of the board of directors? A. No.

Q. Did you prepare any minutes of the meetings of either directors or stockholders? A. No.

1834

By Mr. Climenko:

Q. Did your father draw any dividends? A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know what your father drew as his salary?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Overruled.

1835

A. No, I don't.

Q. You have no idea at all, have you? A. No.

Q. Do you know that it was $25 a week? A. I don't know.

Q. You do not know that? A. No.

Q. You do not know that that is not true?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to in that form. If she does not know if it was twenty-five she does not know if it is not twenty-five.

The Court: She says she does not know. Sustained.

1836

Q. Do you know whether he ever drew as much as $30 a week as a salary from this business? A. I don't remember any figures on it.

Q. No, but you have a general impression as to what your father was drawing?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form of the question.

Mr. Climenko: All right, I will withdraw it.

1837

Q. Do you have some general recollection as to what your father drew from the fact that you drew the checks of the corporation?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Do you have any recollection now as to what your father's salary was?

1838

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: She has answered it. Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Did your father ever draw as much as $30 a week as a salary from this business?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained as answered.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1839

Q. Did your father ever make a capital contribution, a contribution of money, to the assets of this business?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered on a number of occasions.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Did your father ever put any money into this business?

1840

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. At the time that you posted the books of this corporation, did you make any note as to any money put into the business by your father?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

1841

Mr. Climenko: A different question.

Mr. Turkus: It is the same thing.

The Court: Overruled.

By the Court:

Q. In these books that you opened, did you have capital account? A. No.

Q. Were they just the charges and credits? A. That is right.

Q. For trucking? A. That is right.

Q. And did they also keep a record of the bank deposits? A. Yes. I made deposits, entered in the charges, moneys received, bills purchased and everything in regard to the bookkeeping end of it, but no capital account at all.

1842

Q. The books were not as complete as that? A. No.

By Mr. Climenko:

Q. Did you make any note about your father putting any money into the business?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

A. No.
Q. You never did? A. No.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the answers be stricken because she did not keep this kind of book. How could she make that kind of entries?

The Court: Yes, she said she only had a high school education. Apparently there 1844 was no business college.

Mr. Climenko: I know, your Honor, but she was the only person, she was her father's daughter, who was keeping books of any contribution he might have made and I want to know if he made any.

The Court: The witness has given quite a few answers which light up that situation fairly. In small businesses, how many times are books kept according to the course of the New York University School of Commerce? Just usually a rather low grade of bookkeeping. 1845

Mr. Climenko: I know, your Honor.

The Court: In small businesses.

Mr. Climenko: My questions are pointed only as to her recollection. I take exception to your Honor's remarks only for that reason, that they don't touch on the point of my question.

Q. Don't you know that Kelly withdrew from this business because your father did not put into the business the money he was supposed to? Don't you know that that is a fact? A. No, I don't.

Q. Don't you know that your father had an agreement with Sobler and Bluestein that your father would put in a certain amount of money and that he never did that? Don't you know that? A. I had nothing to do with any agreement.

Q. Don't you know that your father was supposed to put $10,000 into the business, of which 1847 $5,000 he was to put in in cash, and he could not do that? Don't you know that? A. No, I don't.

Q. Don't you know that Sobler and Bluestein said to him, "Even though you cannot put in any part of what you are supposed to put in, we will let you stay here, and if the business makes money, we will let you put your share in from profits"? Don't you know that that happened? A. No, I don't.

Q. Don't you know that as a matter of fact the business never made any money and your father left the business because of that fact? Don't you know that? A. No, I don't.

1848

Q. You do not know that? A. No.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that he asked for and obtained a job at a much higher salary than any salary he had ever got from New York and New Jersey? A. That is not so.

Q. Don't you know that? A. No, that is not so.

Q. You lived—

Mr. Turkus: Don't shut off the answer. What was the answer?

The Witness: I say that is not so because the business was progressing.

1849

Q. Because what? A. Because the business was progressing.

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike that out.

Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. If the business progressed, as you say, was its bank account larger one month after you had opened the books than three weeks before that time?

1850

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not an indication of whether a business is progressing.

Mr. Climenko: That is one indication.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. How much money did the business have on deposit the first week after you opened the books?

1851

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Did it have a larger sum of money on deposit three weeks later?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1852 Q. How much money did the business have on deposit two months after you started work for the business?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I don't remember.

Q. You have no recollection of that at all? A.

1853 No.

By the Court:

Q. Do you remember how large a bank balance there was at any time when you were there? A. Your Honor, I cannot answer that because they kept investing money in new trucks. If they did make money, they invested it.

Q. How much was left in the bank from day to day? A. I cannot remember that.

Q. A thousand, two thousand? A. I cannot remember the exact figure.

1854

By Mr. Climenko:

Q. Do you remember if anything was left in the bank from day to day? A. There must have been something left. Bills had to be met.

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike that out.

By the Court:

Q. What bank was the account in? A. I don't know.

1855

Q. You don't remember? A. I don't remember that, no.

Q. Some banks require minimum average bank balances, but others make a charge for bank balances under a certain amount. Others don't care how large the bank balance is, but carry the account anyway. That is why I asked what bank, if you can remember, the account was in. A. I don't remember.

By Mr. Climenko:

1856

Q. You say you do not remember the names of the banks where the accounts were kept? A. That is right.

Q. Suppose that you take a look at Defendants' Exhibit E for identification and tell me whether after looking at that your recollection is refreshed as to the name of the bank. Does that refresh your recollection? A. No. To the best of my recollection it was a New York bank.

Q. It was a New York bank? A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize your father's signature on that photostatic copy of a check?

1857

The Court: What bank is that?

Mr. Climenko: A Passaic bank, your Honor.

A. I believe that is his signature.

Q. You believe that is his signature? A. Yes.

Mr. Climenko: May I have it?

The Court: Let me see it. Is this an exhibit?

Mr. Turkus: No, that is only marked for identification.

Q. You recall the other signature that is on this check, N. Sobler? A. Yes.

Q. Is that the man whose identity you could not remember this morning? Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever make deposits for this corporation? A. Yes, I did.

1859 Q. Where? A. I don't remember the bank. It was a New York bank.

Q. Are you the only person who made the deposits?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is something she could not tell.

Q. So far as you know, was anybody else requested to make deposits for this corporation?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. If there are four partners or less partners, anybody 1860 can make deposits. How would she know? Speculative. Objectionable.

The Court: It seems to have been assumed that this was a corporation, and of course it is still an open question whether it was a corporation or a partnership. There is no legal proof on either point. Overruled.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor will take another look at that exhibit which was just handed to you, you will get some indication.

The Court: Yes, but it is not proof.

Mr. Climenko: I don't submit it as such.

The Court: Furthermore, it is not in evidence.

Mr. Climenko: I am reminded, your Honor, that the son testified yesterday that he attended a meeting in a lawyer's office in connection with the corporation.

Mr. Turkus: That is certainly proof of a corporation.

The Court: I recall that now. 1862

Mr. Climenko: It is not proof of anything, and I said it, if your Honor please, not to produce a sarcastic rejoinder from my adversary, but only in support of the request made by your Honor.

The Court: There has to be a certain amount of that.

Mr. Climenko: I do not know why there need be any.

The Court: Go ahead.

By Mr. Climenko: 1863

Q. Were you the only person, so far as you know, who made deposits in the bank for the corporation?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: I did not hear the question.

Mr. Climenko: Your Honor, I asked her if, so far as she knew, she was the only person who made deposits in the bank for the corporation.

Mr. Turkus: Objection withdrawn.

1864

The Court: Do you know of anybody else who made deposits?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. Who else? A. Anyone that collected a very large check after I had made a morning deposit would deposit it.

Q. I see. But it was your habit to make a morning deposit? A. Yes.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

1865 Q. So that you made the deposit at least once a day during business days? A. Yes.

Q. Where did you go to make those deposits?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Climenko: That question has never been asked.

Mr. Turkus: It has been asked three times.

The Court: Overruled. She has said that she went to a New York bank; she does not recall what bank. Do you recall 1866 the street the bank was on?

The Witness: I think it was on Broadway.

The Court: Near where?

The Witness: I don't know.

Q. Do you know the name of that bank that you went to at least once every day? A. No, I don't.

Q. You have no recollection of that whatsoever? A. No.

Q. Can you think about it, see whether your memory will be refreshed on that point? A. I could not tell you. I have been in so many banks since.

Q. But you worked for this business for at least six months, did you not?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. And each day of those six months you went to that particular bank? 1868

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as already answered. The witness has said she has gone to many banks since. It is nine years ago.

The Court: She did not say each and every day. Were there any days that you skipped, had no money to deposit?

The Witness: There might have been.

Q. I am asking you, with that recollection that you made the daily bank deposit yourself, will you make an effort as you sit here now to think 1869 of the name of the bank?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: She has answered it. Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Did you at one time live in Passaic, New Jersey? A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember what years those were? A. I lived there twice.

1870

Q. Yes, when was the first time that you lived there? A. That was about eighteen years ago.

Q. Do you know whom your father was working for at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Whom? A. Louis Cooper.

Q. And under what name was he conducting his business at that time, do you know? A. Garfield Express.

Q. Was he your father's only boss then?

1871

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. How in the world could this witness know that?

Mr. Climenko: If she does not, she will say so, Mr. Turkus.

The Court: It is a conclusion. Sustained.

Q. Do you know whether anybody had an interest in Garfield with Mr. Louis Cooper at that time, eighteen years ago, when so far as you recall your father was working for Garfield?

1872

The Court: There is no evidence here, Counsellor, that she herself worked for the Garfield Express.

Mr. Climenko: I don't make any such claim, your Honor.

The Court: So anything that she would have in the way of information would be information in the home.

Mr. Climenko: Right.

The Court: Not in the place of business. She would not know who bossed her father.

Mr. Climenko: I understand, but she lived there. I just want to know whether she was then acquainted with a certain person.

The Court: You can ask that.

Q. Did you then know Mr. Bluestein, in those years? A. Morris Bluestein?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I knew him.

Q. And didn't he then have an interest with Louis Cooper in Garfield Express?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. Eighteen years ago this witness obviously was a child. 1874

Mr. Climenko: You have been explaining matters in this court-room for two days now as to what happened nine years ago.

Mr. Turkus: Yes. She will never forget that.

Mr. Climenko: They have nothing to do with this case.

Mr. Turkus: That is what you think.

Mr. Cuff: Judge, I object to the District Attorney making statements in connection with any objection. If he makes an objection, he should make it in a legal fashion and not a speech. 1875

Mr. Turkus: Will the Court instruct associate counsel and Mr. Cuff to be civil?

The Court: This acts as an inhibition on the part of the Court when it tries to think. Do I understand she is being questioned now as to something that happened eighteen years ago? Is that accurate?

1876

Mr. Climenko: I beg pardon, your Honor. I first want to know whether eighteen year ago she was acquainted with Bluestein, that is all.

The Court: (to witness) How old are you now, if you do not mind telling us?

The Witness: Twenty-eight.

The Court: When you were ten years old, do you know if he was associated with Bluestein?

1877

The Witness: I know Bluestein, but I do not know anything about the business of the Garfield Express.

Q. You do not know whether he had an interest in Garfield Express? A. No, I do not.

Q. How long ago eighteen years ago did your father remain in the employ of Garfield? A. I don't remember.

Q. You have no recollection?

The Court: At that age were you in primary school?

1878

The Witness: Yes.

Q. Then did your father start work for Garfield again in 1933? A. He went to work again. I do not know exactly when.

Q. Did he go to work for Louis Cooper and Garfield? A. Yes.

Q. In 1933? A. I do not know exactly when.

Q. Do you know how long he remained in their employ? A. I don't remember.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. I don't know.

Q. You do not know whether it was six months or two years? A. No, I don't.

1879

Q. You do not know what his salary was? A. I never knew what my father's salary was.

Q. You never knew what it was even in New York and New Jersey; is that correct? A. I did at that time because I made out the checks.

Q. But you have no recollection of it now? A. No.

Q. Do you say that on a particular occasion you went to a place where you saw, among other people, a Mr. Shapiro? A. Yes.

1880

Q. And that he looked at certain books that you had brought with you? A. Yes.

Q. And he read those books? A. Yes.

Q. And he read names from them? A. Yes.

Q. Are you sure that he was the person who did that? A. Yes.

Q. At that time was part of the business of New York and New Jersey in connection with houses in Pennsylvania, do you know? A. Yes.

Q. Yes? A. Yes.

Q. Were those non-union shops? A. I don't know.

1881

Q. Do you know whether they were union or non-union? A. No, I don't.

Q. You never knew anything about them? A. No.

Q. Was the subject of whether they were union or non-union discussed on the occasion when you were at that particular place? Yes or no? A. I cannot answer that yes or no.

Q. You don't know? A. I don't know.

Q. You were there listening to this conversation? A. Yes.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. You say that those books were not returned to you after you left that place? A. I didn't bring them back.

Q. You did not bring them back? A. That is right.

Q. Were they returned at the office of New York and New Jersey at any other time? A. Yes.

Q. When? A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, was it more than a day or two days, do you know? A. My father may have brought 1883 them back. I do not remember exactly.

Q. May he have brought them back on that same day? A. He may.

Q. Yes? A. I said, "He may."

Q. How long did your father continue his association with New York and New Jersey after the date of that meeting, whenever it may have been? A. About two or three months.

Q. Did you remain in New York and New Jersey for that same period of time? A. I remained until the time when it was evident that there was no more business left.

1884

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike the answer out.

Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand. That is the way the witness fixes her recollection.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Did you testify before the Grand Jury in this case? A. Yes, I did.

Q. When? A. After the murder of my father.

Q. Will you give me a date, please? A. I cannot give you a date.

Q. Do you remember what year it occurred in? A. Yes, 1936.

Q. Did you testify at any time after 1936? A. No, not until the time I saw Mr. Turkus and Mr. Klein.

Q. Did you testify before a Grand Jury after you saw Mr. Turkus and Mr. Klein? A. No.

Q. So that the only time that you testified before a Grand Jury was in 1936? A. Yes. 1886

Mr. Climenko: I respectfully request Mr. Turkus, through the Court, to submit to the Court—

Mr. Turkus: You can have the minutes.

Mr. Climenko: —a transcript of the Grand Jury testimony of this witness for inspection, pursuant to the same request made yesterday.

Mr. Turkus: I hand to your Honor the exhibit that you received yesterday, People's Exhibit F. The index indicates 1887 where that testimony is.

The Court: The Court proceeds to read the minutes.

Mr. Turkus: May I say this: I offer the Grand Jury minutes in evidence of this witness.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I ask your Honor—

The Court: The Court is trying to read the minutes. Make your motions later.

The Court having completed the reading of minutes of testimony before the Grand Jury of this county by Sylvia Rosen, under date October 16, 1936, finds that apparently there are no contradictions therein with any of the testimony given here, but there are certain amplifications which the Court is prepared to call attention to if counsel for defense wishes. There is also supplemental testimony covering a point not brought out here, concerning an alleged 1889 meeting in a candy store several years later, what was said there and who was present. The Court cannot go into that. That is a matter for the District Attorney. And also an alleged communication sent by this witness to someone else concerning the latter alleged meeting.

Mr. Barshay: We enter an objection to the Court's saying to this jury and for the record what was in the Grand Jury minutes.

The Court: The Court has not revealed
1890 anything prejudicial.

Mr. Barshay: I know that. I did not say you revealed anything.

The Court: The Court will be very glad, so far as the amplifications of testimony concerning the subject-matter of the witness's testimony here today are concerned, to reveal them if counsel for defense wishes.

Mr. Barshay: We would like to have it.

The Court: Very well. I will put it in the form of questions.

Mr. Barshay: I do not want any bundle of Grand Jury minutes.

(To Mr. Turkus) You stop those side remarks audible to the jury. You know better.

Mr. Turkus: I am offering them in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: You know they have no right in evidence. A law student knows it. You ought to know it.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you for the compliment. 1892

The Court: The Court sustains objection to the Grand Jury minutes going into evidence.

In the conversation in this place of business on what you have described as 17th or 19th Street off of Broadway, do you recall if anything was said in relation to your father's trucks running into Pennsylvania?

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I object to that question, not binding on the defendants. The issue is remote in the matter before the Court. 1893

The Court: This is the amplification. It is more specific than what the witness said here.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I lodge my objection to your Honor's question in connection with our application. That was an application to permit us, if I may say so ever so respectfully, your Honor, to look at those minutes in the assistance of our cross-examination.

1894

The Court: You cannot do it unless the Court finds contradictions.

Mr. Climenko: I respectfully except to your Honor's remark. I press my objection to your Honor's question.

The Court: It is not a remark. The Court was requested by counsel for defense to go into this. Now you get up and object.

Mr. Climenko: No, if your Honor pleases, we have been misconstrued. We did not ask your Honor—

1895

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, within the principles of the law—

The Court: The Court would like to know what is what.

Mr. Barshay: I would like to see the Grand Jury minutes or that part thereof, with the Court's permission, which shows any inconsistency with respect to this witness's testimony. That is all I want.

The Court: The Court finds none.

1896

That is the third time I said it, and I shall not be involved in any wrangle with counsel causing the Court to make repetitions of statements.

Mr. Barshay: I will abide by your Honor's ruling. This is the first time, unfortunately, that I have heard it.

The Court: If you do not want the Court to ask questions concerning the supplemental matters, the amplifications, I should say—

Mr. Barshay: I do not want the Court to ask any questions contained therein unless they show inconsistencies with her present testimony.

The Court: There are no inconsistencies.

Mr. Barshay: Now may I ask the Court whether or not there is any mention of this meeting at the so-called Broadway address, or whatever the address was, in the Grand Jury minutes?

The Court: There is.

Mr. Barshay: That is what I would like 1898 to see.

The Court: That is precisely what I am asking about.

Mr. Barshay: I would like to see them, sir.

The Court: I know you would, and you will not, because that is covered by the Court's ruling, to which you have exception.

Mr. Barshay: Then I take an exception, that's all.

The Court: Now you have got a lot of 1899 exceptions. We will call it a day on that.

Mr. Climenko: May we have those minutes marked for identification?

Mr. Turkus? They were marked yesterday.

The Court: They are court records.

Mr. Turkus: They bear Exhibit—Defendants' Exhibit F.

Mr. Climenko: What part of F is made up by her examination?

Mr. Turkus: The index is on the outside.

The Court: The Court has put pencil

1900 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

marks against each one of the points of amplification. They concern the Pennsylvania business and also as to who was the alleged owner of the place of business where the alleged meeting occurred.

Mr. Climenko: Now, if your Honor pleases, for the record, we respectfully request that that portion of Exhibit F for identification which is made up of a transcript of this witness's testimony before 1901 the Grand Jury, be separately marked as an exhibit for identification only.

Mr. Turkus: The whole thing is marked as Exhibit F. It was marked yesterday.

Mr. Climenko: I made myself very clear to your Honor. My application is merely that portion which is a transcript of her testimony be separately marked as a separate exhibit for identification, merely for the clarification of the record.

The Court: The Court should not be obliged to repeat. You have the ruling.

1902 Mr. Climenko: Exception.

By Mr. Climenko:

Q. Did you make a statement to anybody in the District Attorney's office in 1936? A. What kind of a statement?

Q. Did you sign a paper? A. I don't remember if I signed a paper.

Q. Did you speak to someone who made a report of what you said, either in writing or in typing? A. Yes.

Q. Which you thereafter signed? Is that right? Did you do such a thing? A. You are adding something that I don't remember.

Q. What is it that you do remember? A. I made a statement. Whether that statement was signed at that time or not, I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember the person to whom you made the statement? A. Yes.

Q. What was his name? A. Assistant District Attorney McCarthy, I believe.

Mr. Climenko: I respectfully request 1904 the Assistant District Attorney to submit to your Honor the statement referred to by the witness. I make the same request as to that statement heretofore made as to the Grand Jury minutes.

Mr. Turkus: I tender to the Court the same exhibit as was marked yesterday Defendants' Exhibit G. The index indicates the statement of this witness.

The Court: You mean G for identification?

Mr. Turkus: G for identification.

The Court: The Court proceeds to 1905 read.

The Court has read the statement and finds nothing in it concerning the alleged meeting and production of books. Nothing was asked and nothing answered concerning that meeting. Questions and answers relate to something that is alleged to have happened in the candy store in 1936 and to writing of a letter.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases,

we make a request to your Honor for those papers.

The Court: There is nothing contradictory.

Mr. Climenko: In order to assist us in our cross-examination—

The Court: Please. There is nothing contradictory of any of the testimony given here today.

Mr. Climenko: As to that, I merely 1907 have two things to say: One was we did not request a description of it from your Honor, but we did request an opportunity to look at it to determine for ourselves whether the matter would be of assistance to us in our cross-examination.

The Court: So there will be no confusion on the part of people who are listening in at the trial as well as the jurors, the purpose of the Court's reading this, as you know perfectly well, is to see if there is any basis for your application.
1908 There Court finds there is no legal basis under the authorities for your application and denies it.

Mr. Climenko: Exception. May we have it on the record as to the date of the statement given?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Climenko: Which is referred to by your Honor?

Mr. Turkus: People's Exhibit F, Grand Jury testimony, was given October 16, 1936.

1909

The Court: Give me back the statement.

Mr. Turkus: Defendants' Exhibit G for identification—

The Court: The date?

Mr. Turkus: I was just looking at it.

The Court: October 5, 1936.

Mr. Climenko: Is that the date of the statement? May we have the date of the record of the testimony before the Grand Jury?

1910

Mr. Turkus: I did place it on the record—October 16, 1936. That is just exactly a month after the murder.

Q. Did you make any other statement at any other time to anybody else in the District Attorney's office? A. Not until recently, when Mr. Turkus called upon me.

Q. When was that? A. A few months ago.

Q. So that from October 16, 1936, to a few months ago, 1941, you did not communicate with anybody connected with the office of the District Attorney in relation to this matter?

1911

Mr. Turkus: Objected to—pointless.

Mr. Climenko: I do not know whether he has to pass on whether it is pointless, your Honor.

The Court: Overruled.

A. No, I did not.

Q. And you did not testify before any Grand Jury in 1940 or in 1941; is that correct? A. Yes.

1912

Q. Now, referring to this meeting which you say took place sometime in 1932, did you go to this particular place alone? A. Yes.

Q. Had you been given an address before you went there? A. On the telephone.

Q. I beg your pardon? A. On the telephone.

Q. Had you ever been to that particular office before? A. No.

Q. Did you go there at the request of your father? A. Yes.

1913

Q. When you went there did you find your father in that room? A. Yes.

Q. He was already engaged in a discussion? A. Yes.

Q. Did you hear an argument between your father and other people who were there? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. And this argument proceeded in your presence; is that right? A. Well, it stopped momentarily when I walked in.

Q. When you walked in, it stopped momentarily? And then it was resumed, if it stopped only momentarily? A. Yes.

1914

Q. Is that right? A. Yes.

Q. You walked in, and you were then how old? A. About nineteen.

Q. And you walked into this room, the argument stopped momentarily, and then it started over again? A. Yes.

Q. And it was a heated discussion; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Did anybody ask you to leave the room while this argument was going on? A. No, not until the time I told my father—

Q. Pardon me.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. The witness has been foreclosed in answering.

Mr. Climenko: Nobody is foreclosing anybody and you know that.

Mr. Turkus: I have an application before the Court to permit the answer to be continued.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, the objection was interposed at a point, only at a point, when Mr. Turkus knows she was reporting hearsay matter not re- 1916 sponsive to the question.

The Court: I would like to hear the answer before I can entertain a motion to strike out any part of it. Finish the answer.

The Witness: He asked me if anybody asked me—

Mr. Climenko: I take exception to your Honor's ruling.

Mr. Cuff: Let us have the answer read, Judge, and the question.

(Question and answer read by the re- 1917 porter).

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I object to that question.

Mr. Turkus: That is your question.

Mr. Climenko: I object to that portion of the answer which is obviously hearsay.

The Court: Are you repeating all of this? That is all behind us.

Mr. Turkus: I want the witness to continue the rest of the answer.

The Court: This simply interrupts and prevents the witness from having a trend of thought. The Court is going to hear the rest of that answer in order to rule. There will be no further interruption.

1918

(The answer was again read by the reporter).

The Witness: —that he was getting too excited and to leave with me.

The Court: Then were you told to leave?

The Witness: Then my father told me

1919 to leave.

By Mr. Climenko:

Q. So that none of the other people in that room asked you to leave? A. No.

Q. Mr. Fields did not ask you to leave? A. No, nobody.

Q. Mr. Shapiro did not ask you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered that no one except her father.

The Court: Sustained.

1920 Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. That finished their conversation with your father in your presence? A. Yes.

Q. How long were you there altogether? A. About twenty minutes.

Q. Did you take part in the conversation? A. No.

Q. At any point? A. No.

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Max Rubin before that day? A. I answered that, yes.

Q. You had? How many times? A. A number of times.

Q. At your place of business? A. Yes, and also around the garment district.

Q. Do you know what his job was at that time? A. From hearsay, I understood he was a delegate.

Q. Did you know of your own knowledge? Did you know of your own knowledge what his business was? A. How could I know of my own knowledge?

Q. Did he ever tell you? A. No.

Q. Had you ever been to this particular office before? A. No. 1922

Q. Did it have a name on it? A. It did.

Q. Do you recall what the name was? Yes or no. A. No.

The Court: What office was that?

Mr. Climenko: The office where this alleged meeting took place, your Honor.

The Court: Why don't you ask her the name of the business?

Mr. Climenko: I beg your pardon?

The Court: Whose place of business was it? 1923

The Witness: I understood it was—

Mr. Climenko: Now—

The Witness: I cannot answer it any other way.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, my objection is only to anything which, from the preface of the answer, is obviously incompetent.

The Court: What she understood may be hearsay. Did you see any name on it?

The Witness: Yes, I did.

The Court: What was it?

1924 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

The Witness: It was some canvas company but I don't remember the full name.

The Court: Did any one of the group of the men who were in the place of business then other than your father tell you whose business it was?

The Witness: Nobody spoke to me while I was there.

Q. You do not remember the name, do you?
1925 A. No, I don't.

Q. And you had never been there before? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that Mr. Shapiro could not read or write? A. I do not know anything about Mr. Shapiro.

Q. You said that Shapiro read from a book, one of your books? A. You asked me I knew whether he could read or write. I said I do not know anything about him.

Q. I said to you, don't you know as a matter of fact that he cannot read or write? A. No, 1926 I do not.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Don't you know that Mr. Shapiro could not read or write? A. No.

Q. Did you see him read on that occasion from your book?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is something you cannot tell.

1927

The Court: All you can judge is by appearance.

Mr. Turkus: There was somebody in back of him, too.

Q. Did you see him read from that book on that day?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1928

Q. Did you say before that Shapiro read from a book? A. I said he opened the book and looked at it.

Q. Did you say this morning, when Mr. Turkus was asking you questions, that Mr. Shapiro read from a book and that book you described as a ledger with accounts receivable?

The Court: That is what she stated.

Mr. Climenko: That is what she said.

1929

Q. Did you say that this morning? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know that Mr. Shapiro cannot read from a book? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do I understand you to say now that he did read from that book?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it.

A. To make myself clear—

Q. No.

The Court: Let her answer.

1930

Q. Did you say that this morning?

The Court: Let her answer. (To witness) Finish your answer.

The Witness: He opened the book and looked at it and manufacturers' names were called out.

The Court: By him?

The Witness: By him. Now whether they were mentioned to him or not, I don't 1931 know.

Q. So that you do not know whether he was reading that book? A. Of course I don't know.

Q. Where was Mr. Buchalter standing? A. Right in back of him.

Q. Was he looking over Mr. Shapiro's shoulder? A. Yes, he was.

Q. Did you see Mr. Buchalter's lips move? A. Yes. I said that he had held whispered consultations with him.

Q. So you want me to understand that it was 1932 Mr. Buchalter that was reading?

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute.

A. I do not know.

Mr. Turkus: I want the word stricken from the question.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Who was reading these names?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness has already testified in detail. Now the jury draws the conclusion what went on.

The Court: The jury can figure it out.

Mr. Climenko: Did your Honor rule?

The Court: Yes. We will have to take a recess for this reason. There is a large accumulation of sentences. For practical reasons that must interrupt this trial. These sentences cannot be delayed until the end of the trial. There are too many people in the jail. The sentence calendar 1934 has been made up for this afternoon at two o'clock of part of these cases. That will be the work of the afternoon. We will take a recess now until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock.

Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case, let nobody talk to you about it, keep your minds open. Remember the other admonitions that you heretofore received.

The jury will pass out.

Defendants are remanded.

1935

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to Friday, October 24, 1941, at ten a.m.)

1936 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 24, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

SYLVIA GREENSPAN, a witness for the People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Climenko (continued):

1937 Q. When you left here yesterday where did you go? A. I went to my place of business.

Q. Did you at any time since you left the stand yesterday discuss your testimony with anyone connected with the District Attorney's office? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you tell me, when was the last time you saw Max Rubin? A. You mean to speak to?

Q. When was the last time you saw him?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless counsel makes it clear to the witness what he refers to.

1938 The Court: The language could not be clearer. When you saw him, not to speak to necessarily.

A. I saw him about four months ago.

Q. How long ago? A. About four months ago.

Q. Where? A. On the Boardwalk in Coney Island.

Q. Did you talk to him on that occasion? A. No, sir.

Q. When was the last time before that you had seen him? A. I saw him once before; the last time before that, in the store my father owned.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Max Rubin the subject-matter of your testimony here? A. No.

Q. You are certain of that? A. Yes, sir. When could I? I have not seen him since.

Q. You did not discuss your testimony of yesterday with anybody since you left the stand yesterday? A. No, sir, except with my husband.

Q. But not with your mother? A. I have not seen my mother.

Q. In 1931 were you living with your family? A. Yes, sir. 1940

Q. In Brooklyn or in Passaic? A. In Brooklyn.

Q. Was your brother Harold living with you at that time? A. I believe my brother was married at that time—no, he was not married then.

Q. In 1931 your brother was married? A. Well, no, my brother was living in 1931—he went to school.

Q. Was he attending school in 1931? A. Yes, sir, I believe he was.

Q. Did he go to school in September of 1931? A. I believe he did. 1941

Q. What was the name of the school? A. He went to Albright College.

Q. When did he return from Albright College? A. What do you mean, when did he return? You mean when did he graduate?

Q. When did he come home from Albright College? A. He came home at the end of the semester, in the summer.

Q. That would be sometime in June, 1932? A. There was a year interval there he did not go to school.

Q. In 1931 did he go to college? A. I could not tell you exactly what year he missed up on; there was one year he was out of school; I do not remember whether it was 1931 or 1932.

1942 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Q. So you do not know whether or not your brother was at Albright College in the year from September, 1931, to June, 1932?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as having been already answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

1943 Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Was your brother a student at Albright College in the year beginning September, 1931?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Where was your brother in September of 1931?

1944 Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Climenko. Exception.

Q. Did your brother live with your family in September of 1931?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

The Court: He could live there and still be at school, or he could be a roomer some place else.

The Witness: If he went to school that year he would not be living at home; he would be in Pennsylvania. And if that is the year he missed, he was at home with us.

Q. Did he go to school that year? A. I said I do not remember whether that is the year he missed or not.

Q. Did he go to school or college in the year beginning September, 1939, to the end of June, 1946 1931?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: She can say if she remembers.

A. Yes, in 1930 I believe he was in school.

Q. Where is Albright College? A. In Reading, Pennsylvania.

Q. Now, where was the office of the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company? A. On Washington Place off 8th Street—off Broadway. 1947

Q. What is the distance between Washington Place and 8th Street? A. You mean how many blocks?

Q. Yes. A. They are very close together; there may be one or two blocks difference.

Q. Do you know the distance? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. During the time you worked at the New York and New Jersey, at its office, did that company ever move its office? A. No, sir.

Q. So during the period you worked there it had only the one office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not remember whether that office was located at Washington Place earlier? A. No, sir.

Q. You have no recollection of that whatever? A. I know it was on either one or the other.

Q. But you do not remember which one it was? A. That is right.

Q. And that is the office you went to daily for a period of about six months; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

1949 Q. Now, when did you open the books for that corporation?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitions; we went over that yesterday.

Mr. Climenko: No, not that question.

The Court: I do not recall whether it was in direct or cross.

Q. Do you remember when you opened the books? A. Yes, sir, I answered that yesterday: I said I believed it was in March or April.

Q. Of what year? A. 1932.

1950 Q. Was you brother living, physically, with your family at that time? A. Yes, sir, he was home.

Q. He was at home? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did your brother work for the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For how long? A. For about three or four months.

Q. Now, during that time you worked for the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company? A. No, sir.

Q. Did your brother receive a salary when he worked there? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know that of your own knowledge? A. Yes.

Q. You do? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you receive a salary when you worked there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your salary? A. I do not remember.

Q. Have you no recollection of what you were paid? A. To the best of my recollection when I 1952 started to work there I drew $15 a week.

Q. How long did you continue to draw $15 a week as your salary? A. Well, I believe there was one time there when my father told me to take more, but I refused it.

Q. How long did you continue to draw $15 a week as your salary? A. As long as I was there.

Q. You never spent a week there when you were working there, when you did not receive at least $15 a week; is that correct? A. That is correct.

Q. Were you paid by cash or by check? A. 1953
Both.

Q. Did you draw the checks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Don't you know, as a matter of fact, that you never received $15 a week as your salary? A. No, sir, I do not.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that this concern could not afford to pay you a regular salary and did not pay you any regular salary? A. That is not true.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact, you worked there on a part time basis and took whatever they offered you, and that was usually $5 or $6 a week? A. No, sir, that is not so.

Q. You do not recall that? A. I was not on part time.

Q. Your connection with this firm was to open the books, and that is all you did, and you left your brother working there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So, while he was working there you were not there? A. That is right.

Q. You had nothing to do with the books from 1955 the time he was working there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You do not know anything about the financial condition of the company during that period he was there? A. That is correct.

Q. He was there for at least six months; is that correct? A. I did not say that.

Q. What did you say? A. I said he was there for about three or four months.

Q. When did he start work there? A. When the firm opened, during March or April of 1932.

Q. About four months after April would be the beginning of July, isn't that correct? A.
1956 Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. So you came back to work there sometime in July of 1932? A. That is right.

Q. Now, when, after you started working, did this meeting take place you referred to yesterday—how much later after you began to work there?

Mr. Turkus: I object. There were two meetings.

Q. Did you say you received a telephone call from your father sometime and then you went somewhere? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the address of the place to which you went? A. I don't know; I said on 17th or 19th Street, off Broadway.

Q. You are sure it was either 17th or 19th Street? A. It could be 18th—it was somewhere in the district between 17th and 19th.

Q. You said yesterday it was 17th or 19th. A. Yes, sir, to the best of my recollection, I said. I know it was somewhere in the vicinity.

Q. Did you father give you the address to go to? A. Yes, sir, at that time he did. 1958

Q. You had never been to that particular place before? A. No.

Q. You do not recall the address? A. No.

Q. You have no idea whether it was 17th, 18th, or 19th?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Turkus. Exception.

Q. Might it have been 14th Street? A. No, sir. 1959

Q. Might it have been 34th Street? A. No, sir, definitely no.

Q. You are sure it was one of those three streets? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it one of those two streets or one of those three streets?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as having been already answered by the witness; she has gone over it in detail.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1960 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Q. How did you travel from the place of business of the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company, wherever that may have been, to the place you went to?

Mr. Turkus: I object. This witness cannot with certainty fix that.

Mr. Climenko: The witness has not said anything about what she did or did not do. I object to this remark of Mr.
1961 Turkus. There is no excuse for this interruption of cross-examination, and I ask the jury be instructed to disregard it.

The Court: You might inform the Court why it is necessary nine years after an alleged meeting to find out the manner of travel.

Mr. Climenko: I object to your Honor's question.

The Court: I am asking you a question. The Court asked the question and is entitled to an answer, and demands an 1962 answer.

Mr. Climenko: In view of the fact it is demanded, I will answer it, but I object to the question and I object to the fact of a demand I take exception.

The Court: This is disorderly. The Court withdraws the request. Your conduct is impertinent.

Mr. Climenko: I take an exception to your Honor's remarks.

The Court: It is disrespectful to the dignity of the Court. The objection to the question is sustained upon the ground the question is frivolous.

Mr. Climenko: Exception to the ruling; exception to the Court's comment.

Q. Now, how long did it take you to go from the office of the New York and New Jersey to the place where you did go on that day? A. About ten minutes.

Q. Did you travel by foot? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you recall how you traveled? 1964

The Court: The Court sustained objection to that; it is utterly frivolous.

Mr. Climenko: Exception to the Court's comment.

The Court: You will not repeat questions when the Court sustains objection, unless you are willing to be accountable to the Court for that disobedience.

Mr. Climenko: I did not hear that. I ask it be repeated. I take exception.

The Court: The remark was perfectly audible. The Court will take fifteen minutes' recess until counsel thinks over his proper court demeanor. 1965

The jury is excused.

Mr. Climenko: I except. I submit to your Honor there has been nothing wrong with my demeanor.

The Court: The defendants are remanded.

(The jury retired from the court-room, after being admonished not to talk about the case among themselves nor to anyone else, nor allow anyone to talk to them about it during the recess.)

(A short recess was then taken, during which the following occurred:)

The Court: The incident which just occurred calls for comment here and now by the Court to the end there be a continuation of orderly sequence and conduct in the trial. There cannot be an orderly trial unless counsel and the Court are in 1967 accord in their respective attitudes toward one another. It is very easy for the trial of any case to become disorderly unless both sides use proper restraint. Now, it is fundamental in trying a case—I learned it through twenty years practicing law as a trial lawyer—that to hope to be successful before a jury the attitude of counsel must at all times be one of respect in relation to the judge. I know that from experience. The Judge is not taking sides in the issue now being tried on either side.
1968 The jury is quick to sense if the Judge's dignity, which means the Court, is not respected. I say this not as censure; I say this as food for thought, because I am talking to experienced and distinguished trial counsel. What I am about to say particularly is not said in tone of censure. There has grown up in the last few years a tendency to do what is known as "baiting the Court" in an attempt to impair the judicial poise, and in a manner to get some sort of display, emotionally, from the Court, to which exception is taken.

which may be for the hope of disapproval upon review of the record in the event of conviction. This is not ethical and I do not want it indulged in here. I am giving my attention exclusively to the trial of this case, and this is the seventh week. So far we have been able to get along very nicely. I want it to continue. When the Court makes a ruling, that is its judgment. The ruling may not be acceptable to counsel, and an exception may be taken, 1970 but it does not call for argument or dispute. There must not, under any circumstances, be a repetition in persistently plying a question to any witness once the Court has ruled. That settles the point. I have said this and I must ask there be no comment by counsel on it. Just drink it in. I think, with proper understanding, we will be able to get along very nicely together. It will help the trial of this case.

Take note on the record the jury was 1971 not present during the Court's remarks to counsel.

Mr. Climenko: I do not want to comment, but I would like to reserve an exception to your Honor's comment.

The Court: Do not start in again.

Mr. Climenko: May I simply note my exception?

The Court: Yes, I will tell you now, as long as you have shown an indication to start in again, that you will not sue-

1972 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

ceed in getting the Court's goat, if I may use that expression—

Mr. Climenko: (interrupting) May I note an exception—

The Court: Sit down until the Court is finished. Do not bring the jury down. I may have to deal with counsel. The Court will be firm enough to deal with you, sir, if you disregard what the Court has endeavored in a courteous manner to 1973 bring to your attention, and if, by any chance, you succeed in your effort, which is now obvious, of throwing the Court out of judicial poise, I doubt if any appellate tribunal would do other than condemn you for the practice. I will deal with you at the proper time, if necessary.

Mr. Climenko: May I take an exception to—

The Court: Pardon me. You will sit down until I am through. I will deal with you at the proper time, if necessary, be-1974 cause now I have your number. I thought I had straightened this out in a proper manner.

Mr. Climenko: May I have an exception to your Honor's remarks?

The Court: As long as you are the lone sheep in the line of defense counsel in this attitude—

Mr. Climenko: (interrupting) May I take an exception simply to that remark? I think your Honor's comment is improper.

The Court: This is simply a disorderly interruption for which the Court now censures you.

1975

Mr. Talley: Before the jury come in I desire, as one of defense counsel, to take exception to your Honor's remarks and observation and direction to defense counsel, particularly in your reference to the fact that Mr. Barshay is the lone sheep amongst defense counsel.

The Court: I did not say Mr. Barshay.

Mr. Talley: Mr. Climenko. We are at 1976 a loss to understand why the episode has been created, causing a delay in the trial, with the comment of the Court.

The Court: Now you will have until 1:30 to think it over, because, obviously, the purpose of taking exception would be utterly worthless and possess nothing for review.

Mr. Talley: However, we have to protest against your Honor's remarks.

The Court: Pardon me. The obvious purpose of it is to throw the Court further 1977 out of poise, for which you are censured.

We will take a recess now until 1:30.

Mr. Talley: I object to the trial being interrupted while the witness is under cross-examination.

The Court: Defendants are remanded.

Mr. Talley: Note my exception.

(Recess taken until 1:30 P. M.)

1978 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

AFTERNOON SESSION

TRIAL RESUMED

SYLVIA GREENSPAN, a witness on behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Climenko (continued):

1979 Q. Now, Mrs. Greenspan, did this meeting take place four months after you opened the books or four months after you began work for the company? A. The meeting took place about two months after I started work there.

Q. You said yesterday, in answer to a question by Mr. Turkus, that it was four months after you started work. Do you recall saying that? A. I don't know. I know it was a few months after.

Q. If I may refer to what you said yesterday and call your attention to page 359, to what would be the final part of the page of the minutes where this appears, and I invite your attention to this question which was put to you by Mr. Turkus: "I want to direct your attention to the time when you had been in the employ of your father and his partners in the New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company for about four months. Approximately when was that? Will you fix that time? A. To the best of my recollection it was during the summer of 1932.

1980

"Q. Did you say during the summer of 1932, to the best of your recollection? A. That is right."

Do you remember those questions and your answers? A. Yes.

Q. That was yesterday? A. Yes.

Q. So that yesterday you said that you thought that this meeting took place four months after you began working.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. That is not—

Mr. Climenko: I have not finished the question. 1982

Mr. Turkus: I am sorry.

(to witness) Will you refrain from answering until I register an objection?

The Court: Finish the question.

Q. Did you say yesterday this meeting took place four months after you had begun work?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. That is not the tenor of those questions and answers.

The Court: Sustained. That is not the answer 1983

Q. All right. I call your attention to another portion of your testimony yesterday:

"Q. Sometime during the summer of—"

Mr. Turkus: What page?

Mr. Climenko: Same page. I am skipping the preamble to the next question, so that you may follow.

Q. "Sometime during the summer of 1932 did you receive a telephone call from your father, the late Joseph Rosen?" Have you that question? "A. Yes, I did receive a telephone call."

1984

Mr. Climenko: And then, if I may say so, there is the testimony, Mr. Turkus, with respect to the taking the books to a certain place.

Q. Do you recall that testimony yesterday? A. Yes.

1985

Mr. Turkus: You have not read it.

Mr. Climenko: Do you want me to read all of it?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Climenko: If your Honor pleases, I am trying to read this record. If, on the other hand, there is objection—

Mr. Turkus: I have no desire that he read the record made yesterday, but the next question was—

The Court: That was simply a side remark of counsel. That was not an objection.

1986

Q. Was it two or four months after you started work that this meeting took place?

Mr. Turkus: That has been answered yesterday and answered today.

The Court: Yes. Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Will you tell me how long after you started work this meeting took place? A. A few months.

Q. A few months? A. Yes.

1987

Q. You do not remember whether it was two or four?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That has been answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. You started work there in August, did you not? A. No.

Q. Did you not say to me this morning that you started work four months after you opened the books? A. Yes, and I believe you approximately set the date as the middle of July, approximately.

1988

Q. So that this meeting, if it took place two months after you started work there, took place in September; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is obvious if.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

1989

Q. Did the meeting take place before September, 1932.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: She can say if she remembers.

A. The best I can answer to that is that it took place about that time.

Q. About September of 1932? A. Yes.

Q. When you reached the place where the meeting occurred, did you know on what floor the office was? A. No. As I came in there was a freight elevator there, and it seemed as though he was waiting for me, because he said, "I will take you right up."

Q. Somebody in the freight elevator? A. Yes.

Q. What floor did you go to? A. I don't know. He took me right up, and I did not bother to take notice.

Q You don't remember what floor you went to? A. No.

1991 Q. As you entered this place of business, did you come into an office? A. As I entered the place of business there was a blank wall facing me, and I noticed a small office to my right.

Q. And is that where you went? A. Yes.

Q. And in that office you met these four men? A. Yes.

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Shapiro before that day? A. No.

Q. Was he introduced to you on that day? A. No.

Q. He was not? A. No.

1992 Q. Have you ever seen him since that time? A. No.

Q. Can you describe him? A. No.

Q. You don't recall what he looks like? A. No. That was the only time I ever saw him.

Q. I say, you do not remember what he looked like? A. No.

Q. He is the man who participated in this conversation? A. Yes.

Q. And whom you heard talk? A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Did you see the name of any concern on the door of this place as you entered?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That was answered yesterday. My recollection is that the witness responded something with the word "canvas" in it.

The Court: That was on the direct.

Mr. Turkus: Excuse me?

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes, I saw a name there.

Q. Do you recall what the name is? A. I repeat that I remember the name "canvas," but I 1994 cannot give you the full name.

Q. You are sure that the name "canvas" was included? A. To the best of my recollection.

Q. Had you been given that name before you went there? A. Well, I was told where to go.

Q. Yes, so that you were given a name?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

A. No.

Mr. Turkus: It has been answered. Objection is withdrawn. 1995

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Do you remember the name "Century Canvas"? A. I only remember the name "canvas." I could not give you a better answer than that.

Q. You do not know whether it was "Century Canvas"? A. No, I don't.

Q. Will you describe the furnishings of this room that you entered? How was the room furnished? A. What do you mean by "how"? The usual way an office is furnished. It had a desk as I walked in, and some filing cabinets. That is all I can recall.

1996 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Q. How many chairs? A. I do not know.

Q. Were there any chairs there? A. There was a chair behind the desk, that Mr. Shapiro was sitting on.

Q. Were there any other chairs? A. I don't recall.

Q. Don't you know whether the other people were seated or standing? A. They were stand-

1997 ing.

Q. Was your father standing? A. Yes.

Q. And you were standing? A. Yes.

Q. So that there was only one chair in this room?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not proper.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Was there more than one chair in the room, as best you can remember? A. I don't know.

1998

Q. You do not know now whether there were five chairs or two chairs, do you? A. No.

Q. Was there a window in this room? A. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember whether this room had any windows, do you? A. No, I don't.

Q. It might have had? A. It might.

Q. You have no recollection on that subject at all? A. No.

Q. You were there for about twenty minutes? A. About.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes.

Q. Who was the president of New York and New Jersey Trucking Corporation? A. I don't know if they had a president.

Q. Don't you know that Mr. Bluestein was the president? A. No.

Q. Even now you don't know that? A. No. I don't.

Q. What office did your father hold in the corporation? A. I don't know anything about the officers.

Q. Well, you drew the checks, didn't you? A. 2000
Yes.

Q. The checks had places for officers to sign? A. I don't believe it had.

Q. You think not? A. I think not.

Q. Your recollection is that there was no reference to the name of an officer or a blank or a line for which an officer was to sign the check of the corporation?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Overruled. 2001

A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. Have no recollection of it? A. No.

Q. When you returned to the place of business of the New York and New Jersey Trucking Corporation, did you mention this meeting to Mr. Bluestein? A. I don't remember if I saw him there at the time.

Q. Well, did you see him the next day? A. I may have. I don't know.

Q. Well, you stayed on at work there for four months after this incident, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. You saw Mr. Bluestein at some time after that occurrence? A. Yes, but I don't know if it was the next day or not.

Q. Whenever it was, did you at any time mention to Mr. Bluestein, the president of this corporation, this incident?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Turkus: Is your Honor aware of the fact there is the inclusion of "Mr.
2003 Bluestein, the president of this corporation", with no testimony at all that he was?

The Court: I did not notice that. Just reframe it.

Mr. Climenko: All right.

Q. Did you ever at any time mention this incident to Mr. Bluestein? A. I don't believe I did.

Q. And did you ever at any time mention this incident to Mr. Sobler? A. I don't believe I 2004 discussed it with anybody but my father.

Q. Would you be good enough to answer my question?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to.

Q. Did you ever mention it to Mr. Sobler?

Mr. Turkus: The witness has just responded she does not believe she discussed it with anyone except her father. That excludes Mr. Sobler and excludes everybody else.

Mr. Climenko: With that explanation, I am glad to accept the answer.

Mr. Turkus: That is English.

Q. Before you started work for New York and New Jersey, were you yourself employed in some other place? A. You mean at the time I took that job?

Q. Immediately before, did you have another job? A. No, I don't believe I was working at the time. 2006

Q. For how long had you not been working before you took the job with New York and New Jersey? A. Probably a few months.

Q. When your brother left and you came in there, did he take a job anywhere? A. No.

Q. You continued to live with your family in 1932, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did your brother go back to college? A. In 1932?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know exactly what year he went back.

Q. Did he go back to college in 1931? 2007

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. We went over that this morning, about the college.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Do you remember now whether he went back to college in 1932?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

2008 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Q. While you were working at New York and New Jersey, were you looking for other employment? A. No.

Q. You were not? A. No.

Q. How many hours a day did you work at New York and New Jersey while you were there? A. A full day, from 9 to 5:30.

Q. You are sure about that? A. Yes.

Q. You opened these books in March or April of 1932, according to your present recollection?

2009 A. Yes.

Q. And you came back to the corporation, as you said this afternoon, perhaps sometime about the middle of July, is that correct? A. About June or July.

Q. You are not sure which? A. No; I believe my brother worked there about three or four months, which would mean that I had to work about June or July.

Q. Did your brother find other employment after he quit working there?

2010 Mr. Turkus: I object to it as incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. While you were working there, was there a strike affecting this industry? A. I think there was a strike.

Q. When did it occur? A. Shortly before the business broke up.

Q. Did it occur while you were working there? A. I don't know if I was working there at the time. I know of a strike. I do not know whether I left already or I was still there at the time.

Q. Wasn't there a strike in progress during the summer of 1932 while you were there? Don't you know that to be a fact? A. I don't remember whether I was there at the time or not. I know there was a strike.

Q. You have no recollection of that? A. No.

Q. Did the strike hurt the business? A. Definitely.

Q. It did? A. Yes. 2012

Q. By the time that you returned after you had opened the books and you had been out of there for three or four months and you came back, was Kelly still in that corporation? A. I believe he was.

Q. You think that he was there in July or August, 1932? A. I think so. I am not sure. I know he was in the business at some time, but exactly what time that included, I don't know.

Q. Well, at the time that you opened the books of the corporation, did he have an interest in the business? 2013

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. We went over that yesterday, about the interest of the various partners in the corporation, where the witness made it clear she had access to none of those books.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. At the time that you began work, was Kelly there in that place of business, working there?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as answered yesterday.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I believe I answered that. As far as I could remember, I know he was there at some time. Exactly what time that was I don't know.

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that Kelly withdrew and took with him his trucks two months or three months at the most after 2015 the business started? A. No, I don't know that.

Q. You don't recall that? A. No.

Q. You do not know whether it is a fact or not a fact? A. No.

Q. And you do not remember whether when you came back to work there as a bookkeeper Kelly was there or he was not there? A. That is right.

Q. Don't you know that during the time that you were not there that business was so bad that this corporation could not pay its garage bill?

2016

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. How possibly could anybody know something when she was not there?

The Court: Overruled. Do you know anything about that?

The Witness: Yes, that is not so. I came to work there because business was progressing and my brother could not handle it.

Mr. Climenko: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: Now I move that it stand as responsive to the question.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. As a matter of fact didn't you go to work there because you had nothing else to do and your brother had an argument with Sobler? Isn't that the fact? A. On the contrary, I did not want to work for my father. My father asked me to do him a favor—

Mr. Turkus: He has shut off an answer. 2018

Mr. Climenko: I do not want to shut off any answer.

(Answer read by the reporter.)

Q. He wanted you to do him a favor at a time when you were unemployed and had been unemployed for some months? A. That is right.

Q. And he wanted you to do him a favor because that concern could not afford a regular bookkeeper? A. No, why not?

Mr. Turkus: Will you continue, why not? 2019

The Witness: They paid me a salary. They could just as well have paid somebody else.

Q. They paid you $15 a week as you recall it? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know that the concern did not pay its rent during the time that you were working there? A. No.

Q. You don't recall it? A. No. They paid.

2020

Q. Don't you know that it is a fact that they did not pay their electric light bill? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that they did not pay their telephone bill? A. Why didn't they pay? The business was going along all right.

Q. Don't you know that it is a fact that they did not pay it? A. No, I don't know that.

Q. Don't you know it is a fact that they did not pay their chauffeurs? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that employees of that 2021 concern as of 1932 are still unpaid as of the time when you were working there as a bookkeeper? Don't you know that to be the fact? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that it is a fact that those telephone bills are still unpaid to this day? A. No, I don't know.

Q. After your father left the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company, do you remember what day of the week it was that he did leave? A. No, I cannot remember that.

Q. Do you know that he left on a Saturday and on the following Monday started work for 2022 Garfield Trucking Company? A. No.

Q. Do you know that he got that job when he requested Mr. Buchalter to help him get a job? A. I don't believe it.

Q. I say don't you know that that is the fact? A. No.

Q. Don't you know that he continued to work for Garfield thereafter for two years? A. I know he worked for Garfield Express.

Q. Yes. A. But not as the result of that.

Q. Well, whether you know it as the result of that or not, do you know that after he had been working there for six months Mr. Louis Cooper discharged him and he asked Mr. Buchalter to have him reinstated and at Mr. Buchalter's request he was reinstated? Did you know that? A. No.

Q. Did you know what he was receiving as a salary from Garfield Express? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you know that he was receiving at least $125 a week while he was working there as against practically nothing that he was ever able to draw out of New York and New Jersey?

2024

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That was answered yesterday.

The Court: She has answered on both propositions. Sustained.

Q. Don't you know that your brother returned to college in the fall of 1932? A. He returned to college. I don't know exactly when.

Q. Do you know that your father was finally discharged by Louis Cooper at the end of two years of employment by Garfield? A. Yes.

Q. You do know that? A. Yes.

2025

Q. Do you know that after that he obtained another job with another man by the name of Larry Cooper? Did you know that? A. He obtained another job. I don't know who he was working for.

Q. Don't you know that he got that job when he requested Mr. Louis Buchalter to help him find employment? A. No.

Q. You don't know that? A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear the name of Krames? A. No.

Q. Do you know that in order to find a position for him, it became necessary to transfer a 2026 man from the business of Larry Cooper to Louis Cooper's business, the Garfield Express, and that that was the way in which a job was made for your father? Don't you know that? A. No, I don't.

Q. You never heard that before? A. No.

Q. Were you living at home all this time? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know that your father left Larry Cooper because he suffered a heart attack? A.
2027 No, definitely not.

Q. Well, did you know that your father was sick? A. Yes, I knew my father was sick later.

Q. Did you know that he gave up his employment with Larry Cooper because he was suffering from a heart attack? A. No, definitely not.

Q. Do you know that he suffered from a heart condition and that that was the reason that he gave up his job with Larry Cooper? A. No.

Q. Do you know that he voluntarily gave up his position with Larry Cooper? A. He did not.

Q. You say he was discharged by Larry
2028 Cooper? A. I don't know, but he did not voluntarily give it up.

Q. Which way did it happen, do you know? A. I don't know.

Q. You say that he did not voluntarily give it up? A. Of course not.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as just answered.

Q. You also—

Mr. Turkus: Please, sir. It is argumentative, been answered.

2029

The Court: Sustained as argumentative.

Q. Do you know that this company could not afford to pay for the repair of its tru ks while you were there? A. The company could afford to pay everything until the business went bad.

Q. Do you know that the company did not pay for the repair of its trucks while you were there?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as just answered.

2030

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: Exception.

Q. Do you know that this company could not afford an accountant?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. The witness has given an omnibus answer that the company paid for everything until business went bad. That answers it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Climenko: I object to comment of Mr. Turkus and I move to strike it out and I respectfully request your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard it.

2031

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. Do you know that this company never made enough money so it was ever obligated to pay an income tax?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to on the same ground.

2032

The Court: Overruled. Do you know if it paid its income tax or not?

The Witness: No, I don't.

Mr. Climenko: That is all.

Mr. Turkus: Any further cross?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: Not by Capone.

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley:

2033

Q. Madam, you testified you saw Max Rubin on the boardwalk at Coney Island? A. Yes.

Q. You say that was about four weeks ago? A. No, that was in August of this year.

Q. In August of this year? A. Yes.

Q. Was he pointed out to you by some one? A. No, I know him.

Q. You did know him? A. Yes.

Q. Were you in company with your mother at the time you saw him? A. I believe I was walking with my mother.

Q. Was your mother stopping then at the Half Moon Hotel? A. Yes.

2034

Q. Did she tell you that Max Rubin was stopping at the Half Moon Hotel?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you know that Max Rubin was stopping at the Half Moon Hotel? A. Yes.

Q. At the same time that your mother was? A. I did not know whether he was still there or not. I had heard that he was there.

Q. Was he there during the time that your mother was a guest at the Half Moon Hotel in Coney Island? A. I don't know.

Q. How long was your mother staying at the Half Moon Hotel? A. During the summer.

Q. This past summer? A. Yes.

Q. Do you know for how long? A. No.

Q. Do you know how many weeks or months? A. No, I don't know.

Q. How many times did you visit her there? A. About three times. 2036

Q. And do you remember what interval of time it was between your visits? A. Yes.

Q. How long a time elapsed between each of the three visits that you made? A. My vacation was during the month of August. I visited my mother a week before my vacation and twice during my vacation.

Q. That would be in July? A. In August.

Q. Were your three visits in August? A. Well, the first one might have been before August.

Q. Yes, I asked you was it in July? A. Probably. 2037

Q. Was it in June? A. No.

Q. Were you working last summer? A. Yes.

Q. Where?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Talley: Proper cross-examination. I have a right to inquire about this witness' whereabouts.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Where? A. Do you want me to give the name of the concern?

2038 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Cross

Q. I want you to give me the name and the address. A. Majestic Rayon Corporation, 116 West 23rd.

Q. Are you there now employed? A. Yes.

Q. How long before July and August of last year were you employed there? A. I have been there for five years.

Q. You did not give up your employment when you were married? A. No.

Q. Did you speak to Max Rubin when you saw 2039 him on the boardwalk? A. No.

Q. Did you speak to your mother about Max Rubin?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did your mother tell you that she had talked with Max Rubin while she was a guest at the Half Moon Hotel?

2040

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you ever see Rubin and your mother talking together? A. No.

Q. Was this occasion that you speak of the only time when you saw Max Rubin?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is an ambiguous question. I do not know what occasion he is talking about.

Mr. Talley: Nothing could possibly be plainer than that.

Mr. Turkus: There is an objection before the Court.

The Court: I think she said, in answer to a previous question, that she knew Max Rubin by sight and that she did not have to have her mother tell her that that was Max Rubin, so it is a fair inference she met him before.

Mr. Talley: Does your Honor sustain 2042
the objection?

The Court: I am just calling that to your attention. She may answer.

Mr. Talley: I ask for a ruling.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Will you answer, please? A. I met Max Rubin previously on a number of occasions.

Q. A number of occasions? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever meet him in the Half Moon Hotel? A. No.

Q. Was your mother stopping at any other 2043 hotel? A. No.

Q. Than the Half Moon Hotel since 1936?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you ever visit your mother in any other hotel than the Half Moon Hotel since your father's death?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Do you know a restaurant across the street from the store that your father had? A. I don't believe there was a restaurant there.

Q. Did you ever hear of a restaurant named Ardie's? A. Yes, but that is not a restaurant.

Q. What is it? A. Call it a candy store.

Q. A candy store? A. Yes.

Q. Where was that? A. That was on the corner of Sutter and Bradford.

Q. Is that near where your father's office was?

2045

Mr. Turkus: Ardie's luncheonette is on the corner, right there, Bradford and Sutter.

Mr. Talley: I want it on the record, please.

Q. How near was it to your father's store on Sutter Avenue? A. Across the street.

Q. That is what I asked you, wasn't it, madam, in the beginning.

2046

Mr. Turkus: You asked about the office. Objected to.

Mr. Talley: I object to any comment from the District Attorney.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection before the Court.

Mr. Talley: Then make the objection without comment while I am cross-examining.

Mr. Turkus: I am talking to Judge Taylor who presides at the trial.

The Court: I think the jury understands both answers. It was across the street but not directly across.

2047

Q. Did you know a brother of Abe Reles? A. Yes.

Q. Did you know that he was carrying on a shylock business in this store that we have described as Ardie's?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, and insulting to the witness.

The Court: Overruled.

2048

Q. Did you? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Abe Reles' brother? A. Yes, I saw him.

Q. Did you see him in Ardie's? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see your father there? A. No.

Q. You never saw your father and Reles' brother speaking together? A. He may have passed the time of day, said hello.

Q. Did you see them speaking together? Never mind what he may or may not have done. Did you see them speaking together? A. Not that I know of.

2049

Q. Did you ever see Abe Reles in your father's store? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Abe Reles' brother in your father's store? A. No, I don't believe I have.

Q. The only place then you saw Abe Reles' brother was in Ardie's, is that right? A. In or standing outside.

Q. Did you ever see your father in Ardies' restaurant?

2050 Sylvia Greenspan—For People—Redirect

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered. The witness said no.

The Court: Overruled.

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see him standing outside of Ardies' store— A. No.

Q. With Reles' brother? A. No.

Q. Do you know Abe Reles? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see him? A. No.

2051

Mr. Talley: I have no further questions.

Mr. Rosenthal: Defendant Capone has no cross-examination.

Mr. Turkus: (To court officer) Will you bring in that other exhibit? Will you remove the one on the easel and put on this picture in the back. There is one showing the corner intersection.

(To reporter) Be kind enough to mark that exhibit for identification.

2052 (Picture marked People's Exhibit Q for identification).

Redirect examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, Judge Talley spoke to you about Ardies which you described as a soda or candy store. Will you turn around and look at People's Exhibit Q for identification and see if you see a picture of Ardies' soda, candy and luncheonette?

Mr. Cuff: I object to it. Why don't you put it in evidence?

Mr. Turkus. Why don't you be patient?

The Court: Overruled.

A. May I answer?

Q. Yes, you may get up and look at it.

(Witness indicates on exhibit).

Q. Indicating the corner store to the left of the exhibit? A. Yes. 2054

Q. That was on the corner of Bradford and Sutter, is that correct? A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: That is all.

Recross examination by Mr. Talley:

Q. Mrs. Greenspan, this brother of Abe Reles that I asked you about, what is his first name? A. I knew him as Sandy.

Q. You do not know him by any other name? A. No. 2055

The Court: This chart is not in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: I will have it in evidence by the next witness.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Cuff: What is that street?

Mr. Turkus: You are looking down the direction from which Cappadora came. You are looking at Sutter as the picture faces you.

Mr. Cuff: Looking east on Sutter?

2056

Mr. Turkus: I don't think it is east. You are looking in the direction of Wyona Street. You will remember Cappadora's testimony.

Mr. Barshay: We consent it be offered in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: Offered in evidence.

(People's Exhibit Q for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 25 in evidence).

2057

Mr. Turkus: The next witness I will call, your Honor, I doubt whether his testimony will be completed today.

The Court: Call him anyway.

SOL BERNSTEIN, called as a witness on behalf of the People, after being duly sworn, testified as follows:

2058

By the Court:

Q. Where are you stopping at present? A. In a hotel.

Q. What hotel? A. Half Moon.

Mr. Barshay: With your Honor's permission, may the record show that when this witness, Mr. Bernstein, came into the court room from your right he was preceded by a court attendant and he was followed by three men who I know to be detectives.

The Court: All right.

2059

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor note my objection to that proceeding?

The Court: I did not see it. I take your word for it.

Mr. Cuff: Two of them have their badges on now.

Mr. Turkus: Mr. McDonough is one of them; Mr. Harrington is another one standing to your Honor's left.

Mr. Cuff: May I have the name of the other gentleman who followed?

2060

Mr. Turkus: Detective James Bell.

Mr. Cuff: And the court officer, to whom I have no objection, Mr. Meek.

Mr. Turkus: Is the objection to the protection of the witness?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the comment of Mr. Turkus. That was an unfair comment, and I ask the court to direct the jury now to disregard that and admonish Mr. Turkus not to repeat any such thing. There is no intimation that this witness in this court room or in any other place in this world needs any protection.

2061

Mr. Turkus: You will know that before the case is over.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that comment.

The Court: The jury will disregard all side play.

Mr. Barshay: Side play on the part of the District Attorney, sir.

The Court: Please—

Mr. Barshay: May you say that, please?

2062 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

The Court: Whichever side it comes from. The matter calls for no ruling.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor—

The Court: You are dictating to the record. That is your right, but there is nothing that calls for a ruling. I do not know what it means, so please do not argue. Just proceed.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have a ruling?

2063 In view of the atmosphere created insofar as the defendant Capone is concerned by having two police officers standing in an unusual position next to the jury box while the witness is testifying and the two court officers, one standing directly behind the witness and the other to his left, I ask for a mistrial upon the ground of prejudicial conduct against the defendant Capone.

Mr. Cuff: Defendant Weiss joins in that motion.

2064 The Court: To get the record absolutely straight, let us have a survey of relative locations.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, sir, I will take your Honor's statement as to where they are.

The Court: In the court room, behind or at the end of one of the rear corners of the jury box, are two men with badges whom I assume to be detectives. One is against the side window and one is directly in the corner. There are two court officers in their proper places, one directly behind the witness, another one to his left, at the steps. You have your record. It calls for no ruling. Of course, I deny the motion for a mistrial.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Mr. Cuff: I except.

Mr. Barshay: May I make a motion for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground that Mr. Turkus made a prejudicial remark? 2066

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I ask for the removal of the court officer that has been stationed directly behind the witness-

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: —as he sits in the witness chair. He has not been there during the testimony of any other witness, and I object to this stage setting upon the entrance of this witness. I do not know what he is going to testify to, if anything, but I object to this display that has been occasioned 2067 because I regard it all as prejudicial to the defendant whom I represent and as unnecessary and unprecedented.

The Court: The court officer, George Meek, who is personally assigned to me as a judge of this court, in my chambers only, his place is right there or any place else that the court sees fit to put him, and it is nobody else's affair. Motion denied.

Mr. Talley: Does your Honor contend his place is directly behind the witness chair while the witness is testifying or about to testify?

2068 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's refusal to grant my request.

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. How old are you, Bernstein? A. Thirty years of age.

2069 Q. Are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go to public school in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what section or district of Brooklyn did you go to public school? A. I went to Junior High School 178, Dean and Saratoga Avenue, Brooklyn.

Q. How old were you when you quit school? A. Fifteen years of age.

Q. Did you go to work after you quit school? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember what your first job was? A. Yes, sir.

2079

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Tell the court and jury what your first job was. A. I was a messenger boy in the telegraph office.

Q. Do you know how long you held that job? A. One month.

Q. Did you get a job after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the next job? A. An errand boy in a hat factory.

Q. Do you remember where that hat factory was? A. I think it was on Waverly Place.

Q. In Manhattan? A. Yes.

Q. How long did you hold the job as errand boy? A. Three months.

Q. Did you then get some other work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that job? A. A leather goods factory, as as a cutter.

Q. Did you work on a machine? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the name of the company? A. Yes. 2072

Q. What is its name? A. Majestic Briefcase Company.

Q. Were they employed in the manufacture of briefcases? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you work on a machine in the Briefcase Company? A. Three years.

Q. During all this time while you had these jobs, where were you living, Bernstein? A. In Brooklyn, Brownsville section.

Q. And did you associate with the people living in that district? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were working for the Briefcase Company on the machine, did you do any gambling? A. Yes, sir, lots of it. 2073

Q. And you became involved in debt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you then start to borrow money? A. Yes, from shylocks.

Q. From shylocks operating where? A. Sackman and Livonia Avenue, Brooklyn, Brownsville section, in the Coffee Pot.

Q. From gambling did you go into some other kind of business? A. Yes, myself in shylocking.

2074 Q. And were you after that . professional loan shark? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, your Honor. This is a matter proper for cross-examination.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, while you were a professional loan
2075 shark, did you engage in any other occupation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were you? A. Gambler and a bookmaker.

Q. Where did you operate from, Bernstein? A. Amboy and Sutter Avenue, Brownsville section.

Q. When you say from Amboy and Sutter Avenue, do you mean from the corner there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On February 13, 1930, were you convicted of crime? A. I don't remember what year it was, but I was convicted of a crime.

2076 Q. I suggest to you the date of February 13, 1930, and the crime of unlawful entry. Does that refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you convicted of that crime on that day? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your sentence? A. Suspended sentence.

Q. Were you convicted of crime after that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I suggest the date of May 22, 1934, and the crime of petit larceny. Does that refresh your recollection? A. I don't remember what year, but I remember petit larceny.

Q. What was your sentence? A. Suspended sentence.

Q. Three years probation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On both of the convictions were they on your plea of guilty to the court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you were a professional loan shark, bookmaker and gambler, did you make the acquaintance of various people in the Brownsville district of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I direct your attention to in or about the year of 1932 and ask you whether you made 2078
the acquaintance of one Harry Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on the defendant Buchalter.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it upon the ground it is leading and suggestive. The witness may state when he remembers meeting particular people but not have his attention directed by the District Attorney to a specific case. I object to the 2079 question as leading and suggestive.

The Court: It is already answered, and objection is untimely.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken. I could not get up any faster. Mr. Barshay was on his feet.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you know Strauss by any name other than Harry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the name?

2080 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to.

Q. Or names?

The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. Pep, Big Harry, and Pittsburg Phil Strauss.

Q. Where did you meet him for the first time, if you can recall?

2081

Mr. Barshay: Objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. On Sackman and Livonia Avenue, Coffee Pot, in the Brownsville section.

Q. I did not hear what you said. A. On Sackman and Livonia Avenue, in the Brownsville section, in the Coffee Pot.

Q. Was the Coffee Pot a hangout? A. Yes, sir.

2082

Mr. Barshay: Object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
The Court: It is all collateral.
Mr. Barshay: Will you give me one exception to all this kind of questions?
The Court: Yes.

Q. Did you frequent or hangout in that Coffee Pot? A. No, sir. I used to borrow money off them.

Q. Do you include Pittsburg Phil Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At or about the time when you met Strauss, otherwise known as Pep, Big Harry and Pittsberg Phil, did you meet anyone else who is now present in this court room? A. Louis Capone.

Q. Point him out. A. Right over there (indicating defendant Capone).

Q. Where did you meet him? A. On Sackman and Livonia. 2084

Q. The Coffee Pot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, without mentioning the nature of the work, did you do any work for Louis Capone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you do many jobs, without telling what the jobs were?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: Same objection. 2085

A. Can I hear it again?

(Question read by reporter.)

A. Many times.

Q. Did you ever receive any money from him for the work you did, for Capone? A. No, sir, I obeyed orders.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken, the latter part of it.

The Court: Strike out the latter part.

2086 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the jury be admonished to disregard it.

The Court: Disregard it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that this witness be informed that he should not volunteer anything that is not asked of him, sir.

The Court: So instructed.

Q. Do you remember when one Joseph Rosen
2087 was murdered in a candy store at 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the Friday before the Rosen murder, where were you? A. On Sackman and Livonia, having a general conversation with Harry Strauss, in my automobile.

Q. Where was your automobile? A. On Sackman and Livonia Avenue.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit
2088 R, for identification.)

Q. Bernstein, I show you People's Exhibit R, for identification, and I ask you whether you can identify the picture. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does the picture show?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

Mr. Turkus: It is withdrawn in that form.

Q. Does that truly and accurately show Sackman Street near where your car was parked? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.
The Court: As it was at that time?
The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Sackman and Livonia Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

(People's Exhibit R, for identification, received and marked People's Exhibit 26, in evidence.)

Mr. Barshay: I object to the introduction. 2090

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit 26, in evidence, and tell us where on that photograph you had your automobile parked. A. Right near this ash can.

Q. When you say, "Right near this ash can," do you refer to the ash can nearest the telegraph pole on the left hand side of the picture? A. Can I take a look at it again?

(Exhibit handed to witness.)

The Witness: Yes, this here ash can 2091 over here.

Q. Is that the one in the photograph nearest to the telegraph pole? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you are referring to which side of the picture? A. This here side, the left.

Mr. Turkus: Now, may People's Exhibit 26, in evidence, be submitted to the jury for examination?
The Court: All right.

2092 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. Bernstein, in what kind of an automobile were you seated which was parked near that ash can on People's Exhibit 26, in evidence? A. A Buick, four door, car, black.

Q. In relation to the Coffee Pot, where was your automobile—by that I mean where was the Coffee Pot located at that time? A. That was located on Livonia Avenue near Sackman.

Q. In connection with the position of where your car was, where was the Coffee Pot? A.
2093 Across the street.

Q. Were you waiting for somebody in your car? A. Yes, sir, I was waiting for Mike Sickoff (?).

Mr. Barshay: I object to anything but "Yes".

Mr. Turkus: That is all. I consent that anything, if it came out, be stricken.

Q. Who else frequented that Coffee Pot or hangout on the corner of Sackman and Livonia Avenue?

2094

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. Louis Capone, Harry Strauss, Mike Sickoff, Buggsy Goldstein, Harry Maione, Abbendando, at that time.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as in no wise connected with this issue.

The Court: Overruled.

2095

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: On the further ground that no relevancy or competency with respect to the defendant Buchalter, his name not having been mentioned.

Mr. Cuff: The same with respect to the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

2096

Q. Without disclosing at this time the identity of the individual for whom you were waiting, were you waiting for somebody? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were in your car waiting for that person, did somebody approach you or come to where your car was? A. Along came Louis Capone, Mendy Weiss and Farvel Cohen.

Q. At that time who was in the car with you? A. Harry Strauss was in the car with me.

Q. You say Mendy Weiss. Point him out. A. Right over there, but he didn't have no glasses at that time.

2097

Mr. Turkus: Indicating the defendant Weiss.

Q. What name did you know Weiss under? A. As Mendy Weiss.

Q. And this man Cohen, what name did you know him by? A. Farvel Cohen.

Q. When Mendy Weiss, Farvel Cohen and Louis Capone came along, what happened? A. They called Harry Strauss out of the car.

2098 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: May the record show an objection on the part of the defendant Buchalter?

Mr. Turkus: I thought you had a continuing—

Mr. Barshay: It is getting now to details. The defendant Buchalter not being there, I object to any testimony with respect to him.

The Court: Overruled.

2099 Mr. Barshay: Not binding upon him. Exception, sir.

(Question read by reporter.)

A. I did not finish it yet.

Q. Continue. A. Before getting out of the car—

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the word "they".

The Court: Be more specific.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that it be stricken, sir.

2100

The Court: Try to be more specific.

Mr. Turkus: It is consented to, and I will reframe the question.

Q. As I understand it, you were seated in your car with Harry Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Along came Capone, Farvel Cohen and Mendy Weiss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did one of the three—and answer this yes or no—say something to Harry (Pittsburg Phil) Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know which one said it? A. Mendy Weiss.

Q. What did Mendy Weiss say to Strauss, if you can remember?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Before he called him out of the car, before Harry Strauss went out of the car, he told me to hang around, don't go away.

Q. Who told you to hang around, not go away? A. Harry Strauss. 2102

Q. Had you known Mendy Weiss from before that occasion? A. Yes, sir, a year before.

Q. Had you known Farvel Cohen from before the occasion when they called Strauss out of the car? A. Yes, sir, a year before.

Q. Who introduced you to Farvel Cohen and Mendy Weiss? A. Louis Capone.

Q. When Harry (Pittsburg Phil) Strauss told you to stick around, in words or substance, did you remain in your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did some period of time elapse? A. Yes, sir. 2103

Q. How long, can you remember? A. About three-quarters of an hour.

Q. What happened then? A. They all came back, Mendy Weiss—

Q. Yes. A. Harry Strauss, Louis Capone and Farvel Cohen.

Q. When those four came back, did one of the four speak to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were the other three when one of the four spoke to you? A. They were all together.

2104 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. Who did the speaking? A. Harry Strauss.
Q. What did he say?

Mr. Barshay: May the record show that the defendant Buchalter, not being there, this testimony is not binding upon him, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: The court makes that ruling because it is not confronted with the necessity of ruling at this time.

2105

Mr. Barshay: All right. Then I won't interrupt and I will have a general objection on that ground.

The Court: It stands to reason that Buchalter has to be connected up by subsequent evidence.

Mr. Barshay: All right, sir.

The Court: Or the case against him will fall.

Mr. Barshay: As long as the jury heard that, sir, I won't interfere with a general objection.

2106

Q. While Capone, Weiss and Farvel Cohen were standing, as you have told the jury, what did Strauss say to you? A. Harry Strauss said to me, "Steal a car and get a drop."

The Court: What?

The Witness: "Steal a car and get a drop."

Q. The jury does not know what "a drop" is. What is "a drop"? A. A garage.

Q. A garage for what purpose? A. To put away something stolen.

Q. Did you tell the jury that a drop in that particular case was a garage in which to place a stolen car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is a drop known to you and your associates as a place where you hide or conceal stolen property? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Strauss ask you in the form of a question or was it in the form of an order?

2108

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Tell us as best you can recall what Strauss said to you when he asked you to get that car and drop.

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to, on the ground it is already answered and repetitious.

The Court: Anything in addition?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is not the question. 2109

The Court: I am asking Mr. Turkus, do you mean anything further?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

The Court: Overruled. Did he say anything else?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Tell us what he said. A. He asked me if I could get a drop. I said to him, "Yes." Then he said to me, "After you get that, come over tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock on Sackman and Livonia Avenue. I want to see you."

Q. Did he say anything else about the car?

2110

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that, if the court pleases, as leading and suggestive. The witness' memory has not been exhausted upon the conversation, if any. The directing of his attention to something while in the midst of a conversation is highly improper.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor to direct the District Attorney not to lead or 2111 suggest to the witness.

The Court: So instructed.

Q. Have you related all the conversation in the presence of Capone and Weiss and Farvel Cohen that you remember? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you had with Strauss? A. Yes, sir. They were all over there together.

Q. What did you say? They were all together.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike out all except, "Yes".

2112 Mr. Turkus: No, he said they were all together. I ask that it stand.

The Court: I have a note that he has testified all four returned together, and they stood together.

Mr. Cuff: Judge, I am asking to have the portion of that answer stricken—I am not referring to the entire part of his testimony—as not responsive to the question.

Mr. Turkus: Obviously, the witness did not understand the question , because he said, "Yes, they were all together."

The Court: The part which counsel moves to strike out has already been testified to.

Mr. Cuff: No, I do not make it on that ground. I make it on the ground that it is not responsive to the question just put and answered.

The Court: I will strike it out as not responsive.

Q. What I want to know, Bernstein, is this: Have you told the court and jury everything 2114 that was said about the car and drop?

Mr. Cuff: I object to that as already answered, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: He says so.

Mr. Turkus: I did not hear him say that.

A. Yes, they were all together.

Q. You said they were all together, but I want to know this—

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike that out, if 2115 your Honor pleases.

Mr. Turkus: Will you keep quiet a minute?

The Court: I think I see what the trouble is.

Mr. Turkus: Certainly.

The Court: You may answer the question. Repeat it and listen carefully.

Q. Did you tell the Judge and jury here everything that was said by Strauss in connection with the automobile and the drop? A. Yes, sir.

2116 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. What did you do after Strauss told you that?

Mr. Cuff: That is objected to.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

A. I went right away.

Q. I don't hear you. A. I went right away to rent out a drop.

2117 Q. Where did you go to rent the drop? A. Lincoln and Ralph.

Q. Would you recognize a picture of the premises? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit S, for identification.)

Q. Bernstein, I show you People's Exhibit S, for identification, and ask you if you can recog-2118 nize and identify it. Yes or no. A. This is the house and this is the alleyway.

Q. Just say yes or no. A. Yes.

Q. And does that truly show the house and alley thereon portrayed as it was when you went to rent the drop; substantially does it show? A. At that time I think there was a fence over here, inside the alley.

Q. Substantially, is the picture the way the situation looked at that time with the exception of the fence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

(People's Exhibit S, for identification, received and marked People's Exhibit 27, in evidence.)

Q. Look at the photograph with the numbers over the doorway and see if it refreshes your recollection as to the address of the house to the right of the driveway on People's Exhibit 27, in evidence. (Handing exhibit to witness.) A. Will you repeat that question again?

Q. Do you remember 1611-1613 Lincoln Place 2120 over the doorway of the house to the right of the driveway as you look at the picture, People's Exhibit 27? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the place where you went to rent the drop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that on Lincoln Place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know between what streets? A. I know it was near Ralph.

Q. When you walk through the driveway of those premises set forth on the picture, Exhibit 27 in evidence for the People, are those garages in the back? A. Yes, lots of them. 2121

Mr. Turkus: May I show People's Exhibit 27 to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus (To reporter): Mark this for identification.

(Photograph marked People's Exhibit T, for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit T, for identification, and ask you if you recognize and can identify the garages thereon pictured. A. Yes, sir.

2122 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. Are those the series of garages in back of the driveway shown on People's Exhibit 27, in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that substantially the way those garages looked the day you went out to hire a garage for a drop? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: It is offered in evidence.

2123

(People's Exhibit T, for identification, received and marked People's Exhibit 28, in evidence.)

Mr. Barshay: We object.

Mr. Cuff: We all object.

Mr. Rosenthal: We object.

Mr. Talley: All counsel object, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

Defense Counsel: Exception.

2124 Q. Bernstein, did you hire one of the garages shown on People's Exhibit 28, in evidence, as a drop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 28, in evidence, and directing your attention specifically to the tops of the doors of the garages, see if you can indicate which garage you hired for the drop. A. The second garage.

Q. Has it got something on top of the doorway? A. Yes, a little "2".

Q. A metal figure, "2"? A. Yes, it is right on top.

2125

Mr. Turkus: May that exhibit, People's Exhibit 28, be exhibited to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Do you remember from whom you hired that garage? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you seen that person at the District Attorney's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you hire the garage for? A. One month.

Q. How much did you pay? A. About eight dollars. 2126

Q. Was there some talk about the price, some haggling or bargaining? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that? A. At first she showed me a different garage that she wanted about six dollars—

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any conversation with any owner of a garage not in the presence of any of the defendants.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that so much of the answer as has been given be stricken. 2127

The Court: It does not mean anything. Sustained.

Q. Well, at any rate, was it the garage with the metal "2" on it that you finally hired—

Mr. Cuff: That is already testified to.

Mr. Turkus: I have not finished the question.

Q. —for approximately eight dollars a month?

Mr. Cuff: I object to it.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, that you had the drop what was the next thing you did?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the preamble to the question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2129 A. The next thing I done, I went to buy a lock because the superintendent told me—

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to anything the superintendent told him.

Mr. Turkus: I consent to it.

Q. You went to buy a lock? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you buy a lock? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you put the lock on the garage doors? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you got the lock for the drop, what 2130 did you do next? A. I went to Amboy and Sutter.

Q. About what time was that? A. It must have been about three o'clock.

Q. When you say three o'clock, do you mean three o'clock Saturday morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Or Friday morning? A. Three o'clock Friday morning—it was in the afternoon, three o'clock in the afternoon; three o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. I was confused myself as to the time. This is three o'clock in the afternoon? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do? A. Where?

Q. Where you went at three o'clock in the afternoon? A. I seen Mugsy Cohen.

Q. Who is Mugsy Cohen? A. A car thief and a radio crook.

Q. Did you talk with Mugsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you and Mugsy Cohen do? A. I asked him—

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any conversation.

2132

Mr. Turkus: I consent to it.

Q. Bernstein, there are rules of evidence and you cannot tell us under the rules what you and Muggsy said to each other, but you can tell us what you did. You tell us what you and Mugsy Cohen, this car and radio thief, did?

Mr. Talley: I object to testimony as to what they did in the absence of any of these defendants as remote, as immaterial and irrelevant, just as immaterial and irrelevant as what they said, as not binding upon any of these defendants.

2133

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Do you understand the question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now tell us. A. About one o'clock in the morning I went with Mugsy to steal a car.

Mr. Talley: Just a minute. Went to Mugsy?

Mr. Turkus: Went with Mugsy.

2134

The Witness: Went in the morning.

Q. Where did you go looking for a car? A. Around the East Flatbush section.

Q. What kind of a car were you looking for? A. Any kind of car as long as it had a radio and a good running car.

Q. After looking for that kind of a car, did you finally come across one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that? A. Around Lefferts Ave-

2135 nue.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 20 in evidence, and ask you if you recognize and can identify the area set forth on that picture? A. Yes, around here somewhere was an empty lot at that time, too.

Q. You recognize the picture? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Hold the picture in your hand and tell us when you and Mugsy were looking for the car where you found the car? A. Somewhere near this here lamppost.

Q. When you say the lamppost, do you mean

2136 across the way from the apartment house shown on that exhibit, People's Exhibit 20 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Talley: May I look at that photograph, please?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Talley: Where did he point out?

Mr. Turkus: The lamppost on People's Exhibit 20, the one put in evidence by Mr. Kaufman.

Q. About what time was this that you were with Mugsy when you saw the particular car? A. About two o'clock in the morning.

Q. What morning? A. Saturday morning.

Q. What kind of a car was it that you saw parked there on People's Exhibit 20 as you told the jury? A. A Chevrolet car, two door, black.

Q. Describe to the jury the manner in which the car was stolen and how the doors were opened? A. Mugsy Cohen broke first the window. Then he opened up the door. Then he took a jump-box and picked up the hood. Then he started it. I don't know how he started it but he started it.

2138

Q. The jury don't know about a jump-box. What is that? A. That is to start a car up, a hot box.

Q. To start a car up when you have not got what? A. A key.

Q. Who started the Chevrolet now? A. Mugsy Cohen.

Q. Now that Mugsy Cohen has got the stolen car started, what happened? A. I told him to follow me to the drop.

Q. Did you drive over to the drop? A. Yes, sir.

2139

Q. The garage "2" on People's Exhibit 28 in evidence? A. Let's take a look at it. (Looking at exhibit.) Yes, sir.

Q. What was done with the stolen Chevrolet car? A. Mugsy Cohen took the radio out of the car.

Q. When the radio was removed from the car, where was the car put? A. The car was in the garage when Mugsy Cohen took the radio out of the car.

Q. Was it in the garage, People's Exhibit 28 you just looked at? A. Yes, sir.

2140 Q. The place you called the "drop"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After Mugsy removed the radio from the car what was done? A. I drove him off.

Q. Did he have the radio with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you lock the garage with the lock that you had put on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now that you had the stolen car in the "drop," what was the next thing you did with 2141 regard to the car? A. The next morning I went back to the garage. I took the handle off the car and went—

Q. When you say "the next morning," are you still talking about Saturday morning? A. No, sir, that was Sunday morning.

Q. Are you sure? A. Saturday morning.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

Q. Now that you had the handle removed off the stolen Chevrolet, what did you do? A. I 2142 went to a locksmith on Rockaway between Livonia and Dumont Avenue to make up a key.

Q. Did you have a key made? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After the key was made, did you return to the "drop"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do with the key? A. I put first the handle back and then I tried with the key to see if it fit the ignition to start the car.

Q. Did the key you had made fit the handle, fit the ignition switch? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you had a key for the stolen car in the drop; what was the next thing you did? A. I had an appointment for four o'clock with Louis

Capone and Harry Strauss at Sackman and Livonia.

Q. Did you keep the appointment with Louis Capone and Harry Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they keep the appointment with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you meet them there? A. Yes, sir, in the coffee pot.

Q. Did you talk together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the jury what was said. A. Louis Capone asked me if I got the car in the "drop." 2144
I said, "Yes, sir." Then he asked me—

Q. Did you say "Yes, sir," to Louis Capone? A. Yes, sir. Then he asked me what kind of a car it was. I told him a two-door Chevrolet, black car. He gave me an argument, saying, "Why did you get a two-door car?"

Q. What did he say when you say he gave you an argument? A. He said, "What the hell is the matter with you? Why did you get a two-door car?"

Q. What was the matter with a two-door car?

2145

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. After the argument ended about you getting a two-door car, what else was said? A. Louis Capone said, "Come on, I will show you the job you have got to do."

Q. Then what happened? A. Louis Capone drove my car and showed me the route.

Q. Let me ask you this: Where did Louis Capone drive your car? A. He drove—

Q Where to, first. A. First he showed me—first he drove to Bradford and Blake, near the park.

Q. What was the name of that park? A. I don't know the name of the park.

Q. When he got you to the park at Bradford and Blake, what did he say to you? A. At Bradford and Blake he said, "Now watch,—this is going to be your job,—what to do."

Q. Now, when he said that to you, what did Capone do? A. He drove my car and started 2147 showing me Rosen's candy store.

Q. I show you Exhibit 2-A in evidence and ask you— A. (Interrupting) Pardon me, Mr. Turkus, I did not know at that time his name was Rosen.

Q. He just showed you the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. I want to get this straight. What was the rest of that answer? A. "Watch, this is going to be your job, what to do, how to drive."

2148 Q. When you got to Bradford and Blake? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he say there? A. He said, "Now watch, this is the job what you are going to do; I am going to show you the route."

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Let us go with this slowly, so we are sure we understand each other. After he told you what you have just related to the Judge and the jury, did he keep on driving your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he drive your car into Sutter Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to anything leading or suggestive.

Q. Tell us the street into which he drove your car. A. On Bradford and Blake he made a left turn.

Q. A left turn into where? A. Into Sutter Avenue, that was a left turn.

2150

Q. Turn around and look at that big picture in back of you. Look at it carefully and see if you recognize it. A. Yes, here (indicating).

Q. First, tell us, do you recognize that picture? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it a picture of? A. It is the street where the candy store is.

Q. What is the number of that exhibit? A. (Court Attendant) People's 25 in evidence.

Q. Does People's Exhibit 25 in evidence show the corner around which Capone drove the car and passed the candy store? A. This way (indicating); he made a left turn.

2151

Mr. Turkus: Indicating, facing the photograph, from the left-hand side past the luncheonette or soda store down Sutter in a westerly direction, the direction of Wyona Street.

Q. When Capone was driving your car down Sutter Avenue and past the candy store, did he say anything to you? A. He said, "Now, watch very good, because this is the way you got to drive." When he showed me the candy store he said, "Here is where somebody is going to be killed."

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 25 in evidence first, the one in back of you, and show us where that store was that he was at. A. The candy store here (indicating).

Mr. Turkus: Indicating the candy store 725 Sutter Avenue.

2153 Q. Take a look at this picture, People's Exhibit 2-A in evidence, the one of handy size for handling, and see if you recognize the store. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after Capone drove you past that candy store on Sutter Avenue which you have just identified, where did he drive your car? A. He made a left turn on Wyona and Sutter.

Q. Yes, and from there where did he go? A. A left turn on Wyona and Sutter—Wyona and Blake.

2154 Q. Continue with the route. A. On Wyona and Blake he made a right turn into Pennsylvania Avenue to Blake. Pennsylvania and Blake I made a left turn to Pennsylvania and Dumont. On Pennsylvania and Dumont I made a right turn on Dumont Avenue and went straight down to Snediker and Dumont. On Snediker and Dumont I made a left turn into Snediker and Livonia. On Snediker and Livonia I made a right turn straight to Livonia, and on Livonia I made a right turn at VanSinderen and Livonia, where the station is.

Q. How far up VanSinderen Avenue was the car driven on this route you were being instructed in? A. What do you mean?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Turkus: I will withdraw it, your Honor, so there will be no dispute.

Q. Who was driving the car at that time you are talking about? A. All the time, Louis Capone was driving my car. 2156

Q. Where did he bring that car to a stop? A. About 15 or 20 feet from Livonia Avenue, VanSinderen and Livonia.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 15 in evidence and I ask you if you recognize and identify that exhibit. A. Yes, sir, I remember this here news stand, but the car was parked a little further.

Q. According to your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 13 in evidence and ask you if you recognize and can identify that exhibit. A. Yes, sir. 2157

Q. Now, does that show approximately where Louis Capone stopped your car? A. Around there some place.

Q. Now, when you got to that point on VanSinderen Avenue off Livonia, what if anything did Louis Capone say to you? A. He showed me the route seven or eight times; he went back again.

Q. Before he went over the route with you again and again, what did he tell you the first time you came to VanSinderen and Livonia? A. "Now, are you sure—"

2158 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Mr. Rosenthal (interrupting): I object to it—leading and suggestive. This witness said nothing about him saying anything, and he directed his attention after the witness said he went over this route seven or eight times. Then Mr. Turkus said, "What did he say to you the first time you arrived there?" That is leading and suggestive.

Mr. Turkus: How else can you ask that 2159 question?

Mr. Rosenthal: I will tell you if you want to know the proper way.

The Court: You can ask him whether or not Capone did say anything to him.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor rule on my objection?

Mr. Talley: I object to this entire line as having no bearing whatever on the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley and Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2160

Q. Have you followed the Judge's question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you understand what he asked you? A. Yes, sir. He said, "Are you sure you know the route?"

Q. I want to ask you this: You told us that Capone stopped your car at a point near where the car is on People's Exhibit 13 in evidence when you first went over the route. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When he stopped your car there the first time you went over the route, did he say anything to you? A. He said, "This is the place where you drop the car off."

Mr. Turkus: That is all I wanted to hear.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is an improper observation, and I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: If it is improper, I move that it be stricken out.

The Court: Proceed.

2162

Q. How many times did you and Capone go over the route? A. About seven or eight times.

Q. Did you learn the route by heart? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After that where did you go? Where did you and Capone go? A. Went back to Sackman and Livonia Avenues.

Q. What was done with your car? A. Louis Capone held my car all the time.

Q. When you got back to Sackman and Livonia, was there any talk between you and Capone? A. Harry Strauss came over, then Louis Capone told me—

2163

Mr. Talley: I object, if your Honor please, as far as the defendant Weiss is concerned, to any conversation.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Continue with your answer. Harry Strauss came over and Louis Capone told you what? A. He told me to go over and steal plates, to make sure to take plates where the car will not be missed.

Q. Did he say anything else? A. Yes.

Q. What else? A. He said, "After you get the plates from the car to put it on the hot car and drive the car over about 10:30 at night to Sackman and Livonia Avenue."

Q. After Capone told you to steal the plates as you told the jury, did he keep your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you got that direction from Capone, what did you do?

2165

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. I took a flashlight out of the car, a screw driver, and a pair of pliers.

Q. Out of which car? A. Out of my own car, and a pair of gloves.

Q. When you had the equipment in your possession, what did you do? A. I went to go to steal plates.

2166 Q. Where did you go? A. I went around somewhere, around East Flatbush neighborhood.

Q. Would you recognize a picture of the neighborhood where you went? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you this exhibit, People's Exhibit 21 in evidence, and ask you if you can recognize and identify it. A. Yes, sir. I remember the lot in Newport Street here (indicating).

Q. Is that where you went to steal the plates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you walked through Newport Street, as shown on People's Exhibit 21, in what part did you walk? A. Let me have the picture, please.

Q. Hold it up there. A. I walked this here way (indicating).

Q. When you say "This here way," what do you mean? A. This way (indicating). Across the sidewalk, in the center of the picture, on Newport Street.

Q. Did you walk in behind the houses where there are a row of garages on that photograph? A. Lots of garages; more than where I had the 2168
"drop." More garages than the "drop" had.

Q. When you got back there what did you do? A. I broke the lock and I went into the garage. I took off a pair of plates from a car.

Q. After you removed the plates from the car in the garage, the private garage indicated by you in People's Exhibit 21 in evidence, what did you do with the plates? A. I took the plates and I went over to the "drop" to put it on the hot car. Then I took off—

Q. (interrupting) Before that—Just a minute. When you took the plates off, how did you get 2169 them over to the "drop"? A. I put them in a paper and took a cab.

Q. Did you drive to the "drop"? A. Yes, sir, with a taxicab, a block away from there.

Q. From the place where the taxicab left you off, did you walk with the plates to the "drop"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got— A. (interrupting) It was packed up in a newspaper.

Q. When you got to the "drop" what did you do? A. I went into the garage and took off the plates from the car that was on and put on the 2170 plates what I stole. Then I broke up the plates. I went out and broke up the old plates from the car and threw them in some sewer or ash can, I don't remember.

Q. So you switched, then, the plates you had stolen from around Newport Street onto the stolen car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You broke up the plates that were originally on the stolen car when you stole it with Mugsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

2171 Q. Now, putting the stolen plates that had been secured from Newport Street onto the stolen car, what did you do after that? A. I hung around until about a quarter after ten, because I had an appointment to bring the car on Sackman and Livonia Avenue.

Q. Who did you have the appointment with? A. I had the appointment with Louis Capone and Harry Strauss.

Q. Did you drive the stolen car to the place of appointment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you park it? A. Between Sackman and Livonia, near Riverdale.

2172

Mr. Talley: Do you mean the night or the morning?

Mr. Turkus: He just told you ten o'clock at night.

Mr. Klein: A quarter after ten at night.

Q. After you parked this stolen car, what did you do? A. What did I do? I got out of the car.

Q. Where did you go? A. I went near the coal store.

Q. Where was that? A. Sackman and Livonia.

Q. Did you see anybody you knew on the corner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you see? A. Mendy Weiss, Louis Capone, Farvel Cohen, Harry Strauss, and Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. When you saw them, what were they doing? A. They were talking.

Q. Did you walk over to them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened then? A. I went to Mendy Weiss, and Harry Strauss went over to take a look at the car with me. 2174

Q. How far from that corner had you parked the stolen car? A. About—there were a lot of stores, about two or three houses, I don't know how far that is.

Q. Who went with you to inspect the stolen car? A. Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, and Louis Capone.

Q. What do you and your associates call a stolen car? What other name do you call it?

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to.
The Witness: A hot car. 2175
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you say a hot car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened when the car was being inspected? A. Mendy Weiss started hollering at me. He said, "What the hell is the matter with you? Why did you get a two-door car for?" He said, "You know for a job like this you need a four-door car." He said, "The next job you get orders you steal a four-door car."

Q. Did you answer him? A. I kept quiet.

Q. What happened after that? A. After that Mendy Weiss told me to take— Oh, after that somebody brought a package over to Harry Strauss and Harry Strauss, when he brought the package over to Harry Strauss, Harry Strauss gave it to me and said to me, "There are the guns in that. Put them in the compartment of the car."

Q. Did you put that package in the glove com-
2177 partment of the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the package that Strauss told you had the guns in it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After the package of guns had been put into this hot car, what happened? A. Mendy Weiss told me to take the car and bring it where Louis Capone showed me where, on Bradford and Blake, in the middle of the block.

Q. That is not quite clear as you say it. Tell us what was said. A. Mendy Weiss told me to take the stolen car and park it on Bradford and Blake near Sutter in the middle of the block; put the car there and leave him in the little 2178 park on Blake and Bradford.

Q. How far away was the little park from the candy store? A. That was Blake Avenue, and the candy store was on Sutter.

Q. How far apart are they? A. A block and a half.

Q. How far from the candy store were you directed to park the hot car? A. In the center of the block on Bradford Street.

Q. Look at that picture in back of you, People's Exhibit 25 in evidence, and show us which direction on the picture that block is where you parked the car? A. It is here (indicating); Blake goes all the way down.

Q. Down from Artie's? A. The ice cream parlor.

Q. Is that also the direction in which that little park is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you park the car where you were told? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go to meet them in the little park? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you meet in the little park? A. 2180
I met Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Louis Capone, Jimmy Ferraco, and Farvel Cohen,—no, not Louis Capone.

Q. Louis Capone was not there? A. No, sir.

Q. So you met Weiss, Strauss, Farvel Cohen, and Jimmy Ferraco? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got there, what did they do? That is, Weiss, Strauss, Farvel Cohen, and Jimmy Ferraco? A. They were talking, and Mendy Weiss told me to bring the package of guns into the park.

Q. Did you return to the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take the package of guns out of 2181
the glove compartment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you bring them back to the little park? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do with the package? A. I gave it to Mendy Weiss.

Q. What was done with the package? A. Mendy Weiss opened up the package and I seen the guns in the package. He gave one to Harry Strauss and Jimmy Ferraco and he took one for himself with extra pills. The bullets were not in the gun, and I saw him put in the pills in the gun.

Q. What do you mean by "pills," bullets? A. Bullets were not in the gun.

Q. Who filled the guns with pills or bullets? A. Mendy Weiss.

Q. After he got through putting the pills in the gun what did he do? A. He gave Harry Strauss one gun, Jimmy Ferraco one gun, and he took one for himself, and he held the extra 2183 bullets with it.

Q. Then what happened? A. Then what happened? Mendy Weiss said he is going over to take a look at the store and see how things are, and if it looks good.

Q. Which way did he walk? A. He walked straight down Bradford Street.

Q. In what direction? A. Toward Sutter Avenue.

Q. How long did he stay away? A. About 15 to 20 minutes.

Q. Did he come back? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When he came back, what did Mendy Weiss
2184 do? A. He said to Harry Strauss, "Come on, you take a look. You take a walk and see how you like it," and both of them left, going in the same direction.

Q. Walking in the same direction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long was Mendy Weiss gone that time? A. Fifteen to twenty minutes also.

Q. Did Weiss and Pittsburgh Phil Strauss come back together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When they came back to the little park, did they talk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did they say? A. Mendy Weiss said to Harry Strauss, "How do you like it?" and Harry Strauss said, "I am afraid of that ice cream parlor on Sutter Avenue; I am liable to be made."

Q. What does "being made" indicate? A. Recognized.

Q. Is that an expression, "being made," is that the expression you and your associates use for identification? A. Yes, sir.

Q. If you are identified, that is being "made?" 2186
A. Yes, sir.

Q. You got to the point when I stopped you where you said that Strauss said he was afraid of being "made" in the ice cream parlor. Now what else was said? A. Then Mendy Weiss said to Harry Strauss, "I will tell you what we will do, we will grab him in the morning when he opens up the store and make a good job out of it so you don't have to worry."

Q. After that was said, what was done in reference to the guns? A. Mendy Weiss told him —gave me orders to hold the guns and put them 2187 in the car.

Q. Did he say anything else, Mendy Weiss? A. Yes, sir, he gave me the address of a house, and then he told me to pull the car back into the garage and meet him up at this house. He wrote the address on a piece of paper.

Q. Mendy Weiss himself wrote that address on a piece of paper? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after you got the address from Mendy Weiss, what did you do? A. I took the car.

2188 Q. What car are you talking about? A. The hot car. I took the car and pulled it into the garage where the drop was. Then I took a cab and went where the address was that he told me, Mendy Weiss.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit U for identification.)

2189 Q. Can you remember where that house was, the address of which you had on a piece of paper, which Mendy Weiss gave you, where was that house? A. On Eastern Parkway.

Q. Take a look at People's Exhibit U for identification and see if you can recognize and identify that exhibit. A. Yes, sir.

Q. What does it show? A. That is the house where it was written the number down where Mendy Weiss told me to come to.

2190 Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it on behalf of the defendant Capone.

Mr. Talley: I object to it on behalf of defendant Weiss.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to on behalf of defendant Buchalter.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Defense Counsel: Exception.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 29 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May that be passed to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Did you go to that apartment house on People's Exhibit 29 in evidence? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where in the apartment house did you go, if you remember? A. Oh, I don't remember.

Q. Was it some apartment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go into the apartment? A. Yes, sir.

2192

Q. Who did you find in the apartment? A. I found Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Farvel Cohen, and Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. When you found them there what were they doing? A. They were eating.

Q. What did you do, did you eat with them? A. They gave me a sandwich.

Q. Do you know whose apartment it was? A. When I got up there I knew; I did not know at first.

Q. Whose apartment was it? A. Farvel Cohen's.

2193

Q. After you got through eating the sandwich they gave you, were you told anything? A. Yes, sir, they told me to get some sleep, because "You will have to get up at five in the morning."

Q. Where did you sleep? A. In Farvel's house.

Q. What part of the house or apartment? A. In the living room, there were rugs there.

Q. Where did you sleep? A. On the rugs.

Q. Who woke you up? A. Mendy Weiss.

Q. At what time? A. I think it was about five o'clock in the morning.

Q. When Mendy Weiss woke you up what did he tell you? A. He told me to go and get the car and meet them at the same place in the park and take out the guns out of the car and bring them into the park.

Q. After Mendy Weiss told you that, what did you do? A. I done what he told me.

Q. Did you go to the drop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you get the hot car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you drive it? A. I drove it to 2195 Bradford between Blake and Sutter.

Q. You mean Bradford between Blake and Sutter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you park the hot car there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do after you parked the hot car? A. I took the guns out of the car and brought them into the park.

Q. Who did you meet in the park? A. Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. Did you at that time see either Farvel Cohen or Louis Capone? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you do with the guns? A. I
2196 gave them to Mendy Weiss, and the extra bullets.

Q. What did Weiss do with the guns? A. He gave one to Harry Strauss and Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. What about the third one? A. He took it himself.

Q. After the guns were parceled out that way, what happened? A. Mendy Weiss said, "Come on."

Q. Who did he say "come on" to? A. To all of us.

Q. After Mendy Weiss said, "Come on," where did all of you go? A. We went to Wyona and Belmont, an apartment house, in the hallway.

Mr. Turkus: I ask this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit V for identification.)

2198

Q. You say Mendy Weiss said, "Come on" to all of you and you all went to an apartment house on Wyona Street? A. Wyona Street near Belmont.

Q. How far away was that from Sutter Avenue? A. About a block.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit V for identification and tell us, can you recognize and identify that exhibit? A. Yes, sir, there was another house like that. That is the house.

Q. Is that substantially the way that house and the rest of the houses pictured on People's Exhibit V for identification looked at that time? 2199
A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer the photo in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to its materiality.

Mr. Cuff: Same objection on behalf of Weiss.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is not necessary and has no evidentiary value.

2200

The Court: Objection overruled.

Defense Counsel: Exception.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 30.)

Q. Now, point out the house that Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Ferraco, and yourself walked to, on People's Exhibit 30 in evidence. A. This one here (indicating).

2201

Mr. Turkus: Indicating apartment house on the right-hand side of People's Exhibit 30 as you look at the exhibit.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: May it be exhibited to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. When the four of you got to that apartment house you have indicated to the jury on People's Exhibit 30, where did the four of you go when you got to that house? A. We all stood in the house; we all stood in the hallway.

2202

Q. In the hallway of that apartment building? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While standing in the hallway of the apartment building did Mendy Weiss say anything? A. Yes, sir. Mendy Weiss said, "Over here we can see when Rosen comes out of the house." At that time I did not know it was Rosen's name.

Q. Is that the first time you hear dRosen's name? A. I never heard of Rosen's name.

Q. Tell us what he said when you were standing in the hallway. A. He said, "Look, it is here, if that rat should come out of the house."

Q. If the "rat" should come out of the house where? A. He looked out and said, "This is where we can see the rat coming out of the house."

Q. How long did the four of you wait in the house, the vestibule of that apartment house? A. About an hour.

Q. During that hour what were the four of you doing? A. Smoking cigarettes, and Mendy 2204
Weiss was looking out.

Q. In which direction was he looking out? A. I can show you on the picture.

Q. All right, show us on the picture which way he was looking. A. Through this first door (indicating).

Q. He was looking into the little row of houses on the left-hand side? A. He was looking at this house over here (indicating).

Mr. Turkus: It will be impossible for me to conclude the testimony of this witness within the time prescribed for recess. 2205

Mr. Rosenthal: May I suggest we complete the direct examination? We lost considerable time today.

Mr. Turkus: I have as much testimony to put in as I have put in already.

Mr. Rosenthal: We will stay with you.

Mr. Turkus: I expected that.

Mr. Rosenthal: Then you are not disappointed.

2206

Mr. Turkus: You asked for a recess at four o'clock, and now I am asking.

Mr. Cuff: We have not asked for any recess at four o'clock.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, that was the arrangement you made with the Court.

Mr. Cuff: I did not.

Mr. Turkus: So you could confer with your client.

Mr. Cuff: We did not.

2207

The Court: We will look at the record. That arrangement was made in the Judge's chambers in the absence of the press and the jury. When counsel says it was not made, the Court states it was made, and that a stenographer was there and made a record of it. It was made to enable counsel for defense to have an interview with their clients in the pen daily before removal to the House of Detention, and that it would give time for the defendants to arrive at their respective institutions in time for their meal.

2208

Mr. Cuff: That was the Court's own suggestion, I think.

The Court: The record speaks for itself. When the Court speaks, there will be no contradiction in matters which occurred, even when the press was not present. The Court under the circumstances thinks it advisable to take a recess now.

(Addressing the jury) Gentlemen, please do not discuss the case nor let anybody talk to you about it; keep your minds open; remember the other instructions. First, the witness will be taken away.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I, before you take him away, ask the Court to instruct this witness he is not to be interviewed by anybody, or speak about the case in the recess until Monday.

The Court: The Court has no jurisdiction to do that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: Now the jury may leave. 2210

Recess until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Now the defendants are remanded.

(Recess taken until Monday, October 27, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.)

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 27, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

2211

SOL BERNSTEIN, a witness for the People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Mr. Turkus: At this time I respectfully offer to be marked as Exhibit 25-A, the original small-sized photograph which corresponds to and is an exact duplicate of People's 25 in evidence, except for its size. This is for convenience in handling by the jury.

2212

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 25-A in evidence.)

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus (continued):

Q. Just before recess on Friday you spoke of certain transactions that took place in the small park a short distance from the candy store at 725 Sutter Avenue, do you remember? A. Yes, sir.

2213

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit W for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit W for identification and ask you if that indicates the corner of the park at Bradford and Blake Avenues. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the park you spoke about in your testimony on Friday? A. Yes, sir.

2214

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 31.)

Mr. Turkus: May People's Exhibit 31 be exhibited to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. How far away is that park on People's Exhibit 31 from the candy store, 725 Sutter Avenue? A. One block away.

Q. At recess, Friday, Bernstein, you told the jury at the concluding portion of it, that you, Weiss, and others were waiting at an apartment house set forth on People's Exhibit 30 in evidence. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is where you said Weiss said, "This is where I can see the rat coming out of the house"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you wait at that apartment house with Weiss and the others? A. For about three-quarters of an hour.

2216

Q. Now, after that wait— Question withdrawn.

Q. During that wait, what were you doing there, you and the others? A. Smoking cigarettes.

Q. After that wait of approximately three-quarters of an hour, what happened? A. Mendy Weiss went out.

Q. Where did he go? A. I don't know where he went, I think across the street from the house.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike out all except, "I don't know where he went." 2217

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. How long was he gone? A. A few minutes.

Q. When he came back what took place? A. He said, "That rat just came out of the house, and I think he is going to open up the store."

Q. What happened after that, or what was said? A. For a few minutes he stood in the hallway and then he said, "I am going over to take a look and see how everything is."

Q. What did he do after that, after he said,

"I am going to take a look," where did he go? A. He went toward the store.

Q. How far away from that apartment house in which you, Weiss, and the others were laying in wait for the person whom Weiss described as a "rat," was the candy store?

Mr. Cuff: I object to the form of the question.

The Witness: I don't know what he means.

2219 The Court: I did not understand the question.

Mr. Turkus: Question withdrawn.

Q. You said you were waiting with Weiss and the others at People's Exhibit 30. That is correct? A. Yes.

Q. That Weiss was looking across the street, at a little row of houses opposite. A. I don't know which house he was looking at; he was looking across the street.

Q. In the direction of these little houses? A. Towards Sutter.

2220

Q. How far away is that location from the candy store at No. 725 Sutter Avenue? A. Around the corner.

Q. After Weiss said, in substance, that he was going to take a look, did he walk down Wyona Street in the direction of the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he come back? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After how long an interval of time? A. About five or ten minutes, I am not sure.

Q. When he came back to the group did he say anything? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did he say? A. He said to me, "Go over, get the car, and stop it in front of Rosen's store, and make sure the motor is running."

Q. At that time where was the car parked, that is, that hot car? A. Bradford and Blake, near Sutter.

Q. How far away from the candy store was the car parked? A. Around the corner.

Q. Did you go for the hot car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did Weiss and the others go? A. They were in the hallway when I left.

2222

Q. Who remained in the hallway when you left? A. Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, and Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. Did you go to the place where you had left the hot car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find it there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the jury what you did. A. I then took the car, pulled it in front of Rosen's store, like he told me, with the motor running.

Q. When you were behind the wheel of this hot car with the motor running, in front of Rosen's store, what did you see happen? A. Before I pulled over with the car I saw Mendy 2223
Weiss, Harry Strauss, and Jimmy Ferraco walk toward the store.

Q. When they walked toward the store, did you stay behind the wheel of that hot car with the engine running? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What happened next? A. I saw Mendy Weiss and Harry Strauss walk in the store and Jimmy Ferraco stood outside.

Q. Then what happened? A. I heard a lot of shots; Mendy Weiss and Harry Strauss came running out of the store and they ran into the car with Jimmy Ferraco.

2224 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. Tell us how they got into this two-door hot car. A. I opened up the door, picked up the seat, because it was a two-door car.

Q. Now, you picked up the front seat? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that to make it easier for the three of them to climb in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After the three climbed in this hot car, with you behind the wheel, with the engine running, what happened? A. I started on the route Lou Capone showed me to.

2225

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you were in the car, did Weiss and Strauss say anything while you were driving it on that route? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was it? A. They started hollering, "Turn here," "Turn there." I did not pay any attention to that because Louis Capone showed me the route seven or eight times.

2226

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

Mr. Turkus: I consent that after "because" be stricken out.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object and move that all after "because" be stricken out.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Rosenthal: If your Honor please, I ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard that statement.

The Court: Members of the jury, throughout the trial, when the Court strikes out any part of an answer, that is because the rules of evidence require it. It is then your duty to disregard the part that the Court strikes out.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Answer these questions yes or no: When Weiss and Strauss were hollering, "Turn this way," "Turn that way,"— yes or no—did you do it? A. No, sir.

Q. Which course or route did you follow in the get-away from the store; which way did you go on the get-away; what route did you follow? A. I made a left turn on Wyona— 2228

Q. Do not describe it that way. I do not want to go all through that route.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any interruption of the witness when he is answering a question.

Q. Continue. A. I made a left turn on Wyona Street—

2229

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the sardonic grin on Mr. Klein's face when counsel for the defendant gets up and objects. It may be humorous to him, but it is not to me. I consider it my duty to get up when I consider a question asked is being answered and interrupted by the District Attorney. I ask your Honor to admonish counsel not to be continually grinning when counsel for the defense gets up to make an objection.

Mr. Turkus: I remember Mr. Rosenthal telling us once before that he could not control the facial expressions of counsel, or counsel's expression on his face. Mr. Klein is not here to be sardonic.

The Court: Just a minute. I do not like to break into this narrative. I did not notice the grin because I was busy. I hope it did not happen. Now, please proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Did you then pursue the route that Capone had shown you the day before?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the question.

The Court: He has already said so.

Mr. Turkus: I will not continue it then.

Q. Now, where was this hot car stopped? A. Right in front of the store.

Q. No, no. I am talking now after you got away. A. Van Sinderen and Livonia Avenues.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 13 in evidence and ask you if you can indicate thereon, approximately, where you stopped the hot car. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. Over here (indicating).

Mr. Turkus: Indicating the car on that picture.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. In going around, stopping the car at that point, did you go around the intersection indicated on People's Exhibit 15 in evidence, also showing the candy stand, the I.R.T., the B.M.T., and the railroad bridge? A. Yes, sir, I went this way, (indicating); we passed the stairway.

Q. When you brought the hot car to a stop at the point you have indicated, namely, as set forth on People's Exhibit 13 in evidence, what happened at that point? A. I took the key out of the car, and they all walked out.

Q. When you say, "They all walked out," who walked out? A. Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Jimmy Ferraco, and myself. 2234

Q. Where did you walk to, Bernstein? A. We walked past the subway station.

Q. Is that subway station indicated on the exhibit, People's Exhibit 15? A. Yes, sir, over here to the right (indicating).

Q. Did the four of you walk past the stand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Up where? A. Up the steps and on the trestle.

Q. Up the steps to what? A. To the bridge, all the way up the steps and up to the bridge.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit 16 in evidence and ask you if you recognize that photograph. A. Yes, sir. 2235

Q. Tell the jury if that is the bridge you walked over with those men. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Take a look at People's Exhibit 17 in evidence and tell us if you recognize that. A. Yes, sir, that is going down to Junius Street.

Q. Is that where you and Weiss and Strauss and Ferraco walked down? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit 17 and tell us, when you walked down with these four men, if anything occurred while you were going down the stairs going to Junius Street side of this railroad track. A. This is 17. Yes, sir, I saw Louis Capone in my car and Farvel Cohen with his car.

Q. Where did you see Louis Capone with your car, where on People's Exhibit 17 are you? A. Across the street, over here (indicating); I will show you on the picture. Right over here (indicating).

2237 Q. What is on that side of the picture? A. The subway station, I think, going up.

Q. Now, there is a hydrant in that photograph to the left side, the side that has the houses portrayed on it. In reference to the hydrant and the pole near it, there is a telegraph pole, can you estimate or describe to us, approximately where your car was with Louis Capone in it? A. Somewhere around there, but I did not take notice of any pumps at that time.

Q. In relation to where your car with Capone was, where was the car with Farvel Cohen in it?

2238 A. Back of my car.

Q. On the way over that trestle or railroad bridge which you have identified as People's Exhibit 16, and when you were coming down the stairway leading to that exhibit which you have in your hand, People's Exhibit 17, did Weiss say anything to you? A. Yes, sir, Mendy Weiss gave me his gun and told me to break it up and throw it away.

Q. Did you take possession of that gun? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you saw the two cars, your car with Capone in it and the other car with Farvel

Cohen in, what did Strauss, Weiss, and Ferraco do? A. Louis Capone told me to take Jimmy Ferraco and drop him off. Then Louis Capone, Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, and Jimmy Ferraco went away in Farvel's car.

Q. When you got down there, what did Capone say you should do? A. He told me to take Jimmy Ferraco.

Mr. Talley: I object to that as repetition. We all heard it. The jury heard it. 2240
It is simply endeavoring to have it repeated, what he has already testified to.

The Court: There is an apparent mix-up. Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: I take exception. There is no mix-up in the question at all.

The Court: I thought there was.

Mr. Talley: No, not in the slightest. It is simply repeating the answer he gave before.

The Court: I thought he had Ferraco in both cars. 2241

Mr. Turkus: He did, that is why I am going over it, to clear it up.

The Court: Clear it up.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. As to what happened, just before the objection was made you said Capone, in substance, said: "Take Ferraco with you"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time you told us Capone had possession of your car. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he then release the car to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you get in your car? A. I did not get in yet, but I seen Mendy Weiss, Farvel Cohen, Louis Capone, and Harry Strauss go into Farvel's car, and Jimmy Ferraco went with my car.

Q. Where did the men who went with Farvel Cohen drive off, in which direction? A. They went up straight with Junius Street.

Q. At that time did Weiss and Ferraco have their respective guns, do you know? A. Mendy 2243 Weiss gave me his gun, and Jimmy Ferraco had his gun.

Q. Did Strauss have his own gun? A. I don't know about that.

Q. At the time you got in your car did you have Weiss's gun then in your possession? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you and Ferraco drove off in your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you drive with Ferraco? A. I rode to first the Kenwood Garage, on Portland Street and East New York Avenue, and dropped off the gun that Mendy Weiss gave me.

2244 Q. On the route to the Kenwood Garage did you do anything with the ignition key? A. I threw the key away while riding.

Q. I am referring to the ignition key of the hot car,—is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this photograph be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit X for identification.)

Q. When you got to the Kenwood Garage in your car, was Ferraco still with you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got to this Kenwood Garage what did you do? A. I took the gun and put it in the cellar. I hid it.

Q. Where is the Kenwood Garage located? A. Portland Street and East New York Avenue.

Q. You say you hid the gun in the cellar of the garage? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you People's Exhibit X for identification and ask you if you can identify that exhibit? A. Yes, sir. 2246

Q. What is it? A. That is the garage where I hid the gun in the cellar.

Q. In the cellar door leading to the cellar? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer this photograph in evidence.

(Received without objection and marked People's Exhibit 32 in evidence.)

2247

Mr. Turkus: May People's Exhibit 32, the garage photograph, be exhibited to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Now, is that garage on People's Exhibit 32 a garage that you had been familiar with? A. Yes, sir; I kept my car there all the time.

Q. Do the cellar doors on the right-hand side of the photograph, leading into the garage, indicate the place where you walked into the cellar? A. Yes, sir.

2248 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. When you got into the cellar what did you do with the gun that Weiss had given you for destruction? A. I hid the gun.

Q. At that time where was Ferraco? A. In my car.

Q. After you hid the gun, Bernstein, what did you do? A. I went into my car to drop off Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. Where did you drop Ferraco off? A. I think it was on Franklin Avenue station and 2249 the Eastern Parkway, I am not sure.

Q. After you let Ferraco out of your car, as you say, what did you do then? A. I went to the Baths.

Q. What baths? A. Shumer's Baths, on East New York Avenue and Douglass Street.

Q. How long did you stay at Shumer's Baths? A. A couple of hours.

Q. When you left the Baths, what did you do? A. I went to look for Mugsy Cohen.

Q. Where did you look for Mugsy Cohen? A. Somewhere in the Brownsville section.

2250 Q. Is that the same Mugsy Cohen who helped you steal the car and who got possession of the radio? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you find Mugsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have a talk with him—yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After you got through talking with Mugsy, did you get anything from him?

Mr. Talley: I object. This happening, if it ever occurred, has nothing to do with the apparent conspiracy the District Attorney, as I assume, is trying to present, and what he does or what Mugsy Cohen or anybody else did in the absence of these defendants has no bearing upon this indictment whatever. I object to it.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You may answer. A. I asked him if he got the radio.

Mr. Talley: I object to it and move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: I consent it be stricken out. 2252

Q. After you talked with Mugsy, did you get something? A. I got the radio off him.

Q. What radio are you talking about? A. The one that was taken out of the stolen car.

Q. What did you do with the radio that you got back from Mugsy? A. I went to Canarsie and threw the radio into the Bay, broke it up.

Q. After you threw the radio into the Bay, in Canarsie, what did you do? A. I went back to the garage, in the Kenwood Garage, and broke 2253 up the gun.

Q. Where did you break up the gun? A. In the cellar.

Q. What did you break it up with? A. A sledge hammer.

Q. What did you do with the pieces of the gun? A. Threw it in the sewers.

Q. Did you get any money from anybody for driving the car?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Witness: I obey orders.

2254 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Answer the question yes or no.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2255 Q. Did you get any money for driving the car? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you get any money for stealing the car? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you get any money for stealing the plates? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you promised any money? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know who was going to be killed? A. No, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: Wait a minute. I ob-
2256 ject to the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. What was your answer? A. I knew somebody was going to be killed, but I did not know who.

Q. When for the first time did you learn the name of the victim of that killing?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

A. When I picked up the paper, Sunday night.

Mr. Rosenthal: Just a moment: I objected.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. What was your answer? A. When I picked up the paper Sunday night I seen on the front page a pictu of the Rosen killing.

Q. Did you ever know that man, Joseph Rosen? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, after the killing of Rosen, did you continue to stay in Brooklyn for some time? A. Yes, sir. 2258

Q. Did you continue operating as a loan shark? A. Gambler and bookmaker, yes, sir.

Q. In what section? A. The Brownsville section.

Q. Where did you continue to operate from? A. Amboy and Sutter.

Q. How long did you operate there? A Until I got arrested—until I gave myself up.

Q. Let me direct your attention to January 1, 1940. Did a new District Attorney come into office then, to your knowledge? A. Yes, sir. 2259

Mr. Talley: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Talley: I take exception.

Will your Honor admonish the witness when an objection is made not to too quickly give his answer before your Honor rules on it?

2260

Mr. Turkus: I object to the implication contained in that statement.

Th Court: (addressing witness) You just be on the alert—

Mr. Turkus: I object to the sardonic look on Judge Talley's face.

Mr. Talley. Go ahead with your case.

Mr. Rosenthal: You and your associates have been looking toward the jury all the time.

2261

The Court: Now that the interruption of the Court is over, will the stenographer repeat what the Court started to say before?

(The reporter read as directed.)

The Court: (addressing witness) You just be on the alert. When you see counsel arise, you will know he intends making an objection. Do not give your answer until the Court has ruled on that objection.

The Witness: It will not happen again, your Honor.

2262

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. In or about February of 1940 was there activity by the law enforcement agent, in the Brownsville district which you knew about?

Mr. Talley: I object to that.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What happened in February, 1940, in the Brownsville district?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained, too indefinite. The other ruling was because it was too leading.

Q. Answer this question yes or no: In February of 1940 did you see certain things happen in Brownsville?

Mr. Cuff: I object to anything this man saw or did or said in January, 1940, or thereafter. 2264

Mr. Turkus: This is preliminary, your Honor.

The Court: It is indefinite. The answer would, if given, involve guesswork by the jury, because, being as he says, a gambler and bookmaker in Brownsville, he would constantly see things happen in Brownsville that have no relation to this case. I don't think you need that.

Mr. Turkus: I withdraw the question in that form.

2265

Q. In or about February of 1940, after there was a new District Attorney, what did you do?

Mr. Cuff: I object to that on the ground it is incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant what he did.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2266 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

The Witness: When District Attorney O'Dwyer declared war on the mob, I ran to Florida.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer to be stricken out.

The Court: Strike out the first part. Leave stand, "I ran to Florida."

Q. How long did you reside in Florida? A. A couple of weeks.

2267 Q. Where did you stay in Florida? A. The Commodore Hotel.

Q. What city? A. In Miami Beach.

Q. After you were there for a period of time, in Miami, Florida, where did you go? A. I went to Brooklyn.

Mr. Talley: I object. This has no bearing on anything. We are not concerned with what he did in 1940.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

2268 Q. Have you followed the question? A. Before, I seen somebody; that is the reason I went to Brooklyn.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to his volunteering an answer without a question.

The Court: It is unresponsive; strike it out.

Q. Down in Florida did you see somebody? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that as in no wise binding these defendants.

The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Who did you see in Florida?

Mr. Rosenthal: The same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. I saw a lot of people there.
Q. Did you see any detectives you knew? 2270

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to as leading and suggestive.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you stay in Brooklyn after you came back from Florida? A. I left right away for California, Los Angeles.

Q. When you went to Los Angeles, California, where did you stop? A. I stopped in the Hotel Olympic, a hotel on Olympic Avenue between 2271 7th and 8th, in Los Angeles.

Q. How many days did you stay in Los Angeles? A. A few days.

Q. Where did you go after you left Los Angeles? A. I went to San Francisco.

Q. How long did you stay in San Francisco? A. I stood a few days.

Q. Where did you stop in San Francisco? A. In The President Hotel; then I sold my car for $550.

Q. After you sold your car for $550, where did you go from San Francisco? A. I took a bus and I went to Dallas, Texas, around Commerce Street.

Q. Where did you stop in Dallas, Texas? A. I stopped there about eight or nine hours.

Q. Where did you go from Dallas, Texas? A. I then took a bus and I went to St. Louis.

Q. Where did you stop in St. Louis? A. Some cheap hotel, not far from the Greyhound Bus station.

Q. How long did you stay in St. Louis? A.
2273 About two days.

Q. Where did you go from St. Louis? A. To Chicago.

Q. Where did you stop in Chicago? A. The Paramount Hotel, Winthrop Avenue.

Q. How long did you stay there in Chicago? A. Two weeks—about two weeks.

Q. After you were in Chicago a couple of weeks where did you go? A. I came in to Brooklyn.

Q. When you came in to Brooklyn where did you go? A. I gave myself up to Detective John McDonough.

2274 Q. Where did Detective John McDonough take you? A. He brought me to District Attorney O'Dwyer and Captain Bals. There I became a rat and told everything.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the latter part.

The Court: Strike out after "Captain Bals."

Q. We were to the point where Detective McDonough took you to see District Attorney

O'Dwyer and Captain Bals; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the day you were brought in or that you gave yourself up as you have indicated to the jury? A. I think it was sometime in April; I don't remember no dates.

The Court: What year?

The Witness: 1940.

Q. When you were running from city to city as you told the jury, were you what is known in your language as "hot?" 2276

Mr. Talley: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. What were you running from?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. I knew the combination was looking for me. 2277

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that that answer be stricken out.

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move for a mistrial and the withdrawal of a juror.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

I ask your Honor to admonish the jury to disregard it.

Mr. Cuff: I make the same motion on behalf of the defendant Weiss.

The Court: The Court has already given instructions during the whole trial on matters that are stricken out, and further instructions are denied at this time.

Mr. Rosenthal: I take an exception.

Mr. Cuff: I make the same motion on behalf of the defendant Weiss.

The Court: I just ruled on both motions.

2279

Q. Do you remember the day you surrendered yourself to Detective McDonough and were brought to the District Attorney's office? A. I don't remember no dates.

Q. Was it sometime in April of 1940, can you remember that? A. Yes, sir, I know it was in April, 1940.

Q. Have you another name besides Sol? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is it? A. Sholem.

Q. Is Sholem a Hebrew word? A. Yes, sir, a Jewish name.

2280 Q. Is that the name which you were given at the time of circumcision? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is the English equivalent of Sholem? A. Peace.

Q. When you were brought in to see Judge O'Dwyer—just answer this yes or no—did Judge O'Dwyer talk to you? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Cuff: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. And did you talk with Judge O'Dwyer? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Talley: I made the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. After you talked to Judge O'Dwyer were you brought before the Grand Jury in Brooklyn sometime later? A. Yes, sir.

2282

Q. Did you testify before a Grand Jury up in Sullivan County? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you testify in the court-room up in Sullivan County? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you cross-examined there by a lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where are you looking? A. Looking at that lawyer (indicating).

Q. Who do you mean, Mr. Saul Price? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that in the Gangy Cohen case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you taken to the State of California 2283 and there did you testify before a Grand Jury? A. No, sir.

Mr. Cuff: I object to it.

The Court: What is your answer?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you testify—yes or no—before the Brooklyn Grand Jury before you went up to Sullivan County? A. A long time before.

Q. Since the time of your surrender to Detective McDonough, under the circumstances you have related to the jury, have you been kept confined in various hotels? A. Yes, sir.

2284 Sol Bernstein—For People—Direct

Q. Have you been confined with others? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who are the people you have been locked up with? A. Do you mean in the hotel?

Q. Yes. A. Abie Reles, Syckoff, and Ai Panama.

Q. Are there police in the hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it a separate suite? A. What do you
2285 mean by a separate suite?

Q. Are there a separate series of rooms there, so you can gain access only through certain methods? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Talley: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Are the doors barricaded? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are detectives there, heavily armed? A. Yes, sir, machine guns, shot guns, and what else they have.

2286

Mr. Cuff: I object to it.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.
I move on behalf of the defendant Weiss for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge about an arrangement of mirrors which command a view of the corridor?

Mr. Cuff: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. (continuing) —that the detectives have whereby they can see anybody coming up on that floor through the corridor? A. Yes, sir; there is a big mirror in the hallway right near the door.

Q. Is there a peep-hole in the door behind which you and these other men are kept? 2288

Mr. Cuff: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: Before the examination, your Honor recalls that I had a general objection to this man's testimony with respect to our defendant, Buchalter, and with respect to the reception of any exhibits in evidence, as not binding upon 2289
Buchalter. I now renew my motion to strike out each and every piece of testimony and each and every exhibit on the grounds set forth when I originally made my motion.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: If it is agreeable, I would rather take cross-examination in the order in which the names appear, so there will be no confusion. First, cross-examination by the defendant Buchalter.

What is the answer?

2290 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Barshay: I shall not cross-examine this witness at this time.

The Court: I do not understand the answer.

Mr. Barshay: The answer is that this man has in no wise connected the defendant Buchalter, and I have nothing to cross-examine him on.

The Court: I did not mean that. You say "at this time."

2291 Mr. Barshay: If anything develops later on in which my client may be connected, then I will have something to cross-examine about. I have nothing to cross-examine him about now.

The Court: The Court cannot accept a qualification.

Mr. Barshay: No cross-examination.

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley:

2292 Mr. Talley: Before I commence to examine this witness, I request your Honor to remove the court officer who stands within six inches behind the chair of the witness. I ask your Honor to remove from the sight of the jury the two detectives who escorted this witness to the witness chair. There is another officer standing, in uniform, immediately alongside of the witness chair. I have no objection to his standing in that general vicinity, but the other display I ask to be removed, as prejudicial to these defendants and interfering with proper cross-examination and prejudicial to the defendants in this court-room. There are plenty of detectives in this court-room and there are other uniformed policemen who are kept outside of the court-room. These three defendants are brought in here, in sight of the jury, in chains, literally in chains. There are three or four officers sitting alongside of these defendants, and I object to this display as unnecessary, unprecedented, and here for no other reason than to prejudice the jury against these defendants. I ask that they be removed, and that we proceed in a legal, judicial manner in the conduct of this trial from now on, and that we take away this theatrical display. 2294

Mr. Rosenthal: I join in that motion.

The Court: Anything by the defendant Buchalter?

Mr. Barshay: We join in the motion.

The Court: All right, for the purpose of the record—the set-up is the usual one which is followed in this court in all cases so far as the Court can recall. When witnesses are brought in, in custody, detectives who are charged with the custody—that is, detectives or other officers or jailers who are charged with the custody, stand back in the corner, substantially out of sight of the jury, but close enough not to lose technical custody. Then the two attendants of this court stand, first the Judge's personal attendant, directly behind the prisoner witness, and next an- 2295 other one, in a position where he can guard the door, which is directly to the left of the witness stand and which opens into the Judge's chambers, and provides a means of escape. There is nothing unusual about this, so that is not considered seriously, and it is denied.

Did I understand you to say the defendants are brought in in chains?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

2297 The Court: You mean they are manacled?

Mr. Talley: Yes, sir, manacled with these officers who are with them.

The Court: At the present time?

Mr. Talley. No, the manacles are removed when they come in the court-room, but not before; when they are seated and not before; and your Honor requires the jury to be in their seats so they can see this spectacle of how these men are brought in.

2298 The Court: Do you impugn the Court's honor? The Court does not require the jury to be in their seats in order to see "the spectacle" because the Court is not aware of it; and the Court has not been aware of it until you just informed the Court to that effect. This compels, being before the jury, a ruling in the presence of the jury, and that is, so far as the custodianship is concerned, until the defendants enter the court-room and are seated it is not within the Court's jurisdiction, and is not under the Court's direction. That is a responsibility that is elsewhere charged. But at no time during the trial will the Court permit any defendant to sit here menacled, and, so far as the Court is informed by you, the defendants have not sat here manacled. That is overruled.

Mr. Talley: My objection is to their being brought into your court-room menacled, and as soon as they enter the court-room the manacle or manacles are 2300 kept on them until they are seated. Then they are removed. As soon as recess is declared the manacles are then put on and they are taken out, not merely with these three detectives who are sitting alongside of them now, but also preceded and followed by uniformed court attendants. Your Honor has direction of what happens in this court-room, and it is what happens here that I object to, not what they do outside the court-room and not in the presence of the jury. 2301

The Court: These defendants have been brought into this court-room for trial in a court which is not adapted to the trial of criminal cases. They have to be brought through the public corridor, down a public staircase, and through a door which leads into the Judge's chambers, shocking as this may seem, in order to come into this room. The Court has ruled on this and has said all it is going to say. Denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception. I take an exception to your ruling and also to your comment, as being prejudicial to these defendants.

I am now asking for my own information and not for any other reason, I beg to assure the Court: Are you going to continue to permit these defendants to be brought into this court-room manacled, the manacles being kept on them until they are seated in their chairs?

2303 The Court: The Court is not under examination as a witness and declines to answer the question. Please proceed with your examination.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Bernstein, you referred to Mugsy in your testimony as being an automobile thief and a radio crook; do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is Mugsy Cohen is his name? A. Yes, 2304 sir.

Q. An automobile thief and a radio crook, that is how you designated him? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Q. What kind of a thief are you? A. Whenever I get orders from the mob.

Q. That is, you do any kind of a theft or any kind of criminal work so long as you are told to do so? A. Never, unless I get orders from the mob.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion granted. Answer the question yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had considerable experience as an automobile thief before August of 1936, or the time you have testified about?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He testified to no such crime; it was September. 2306

Q. September, 1936, or the time you referred to—you had stolen automobiles before that? A. Not to steal, with a hot box.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out as not responsive.

The Court: Strike it out; just say yes or no.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. How many automobiles had you stolen before September, 1936? A. Whenever I got orders. 2307

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken out as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I say it is responsive.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. My question was, how many? A. Before 1936?

Q. Yes. A. About four or five.

Q. Where were they stolen, in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were they stolen in Brownsville? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You always stole them when you got orders, as you say, from somebody, is that right?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. From the mob.

2309 Q. When you stole cars, you would get orders to steal them? A. Until I got arrested; I stopped stealing them. Whenever I got orders from the mob I stole them.

Mr. Barshay: I don't want to interrupt, but may I have, on behalf of the defendant Buchalter, a general objection?

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: The answer is partly responsive, but obviously objectionable and stricken out. The question may be repeated and the witness try to answer it more clearly.

2310

The Witness: I stopped stealing when I was arrested.

Q. What? A. I stopped stealing when I was arrested.

Q. When you were arrested when? A. For the car I stole—the plea I took to.

Q. You stopped stealing after you were arrested? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were arrested seven or eight times, weren't you? A. What do you mean, I was arrested seven or eight times?

Q. Just listen to what I say. A. I was picked up a lot of times.

Q. You were arrested? A. Yes, sir, I was arrested.

Q. Was each of these arrests for stealing an automobile? A. No, sir.

Q. You said you were thirty years old now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were arrested and indicted for the crime of burglary in 1933? A. In 1930? 2312

Q. Weren't you? A. I don't remember no years.

Q. You don't remember the years? A. I don't remember, that was a long time ago.

Q. It would be eleven years ago, February 13, 1930, you were arrested and charged and indicted for burglary, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. As a former Judge of the Court of General Sessions he should know that arrests are not the subject-matter of cross-examination. 2313

Mr. Talley: He was indicted and pleaded guilty to the charge I am speaking of.

Mr. Turkus: Well, say so.

Mr. Talley: Don't you give me any instructions.

Mr. Turkus: It might do you some good.

Mr. Talley: You have a long way to go for that.

Q. May I have an answer to my question? A. What is that?

Q. (The Court:) Were you convicted in General Sessions? A. No, sir.

The Court: Then the objection is sustained.

By Mr. Talley:

2315 Q. In 1930 did you plead guilty to the charge of unlawful entry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you guilty of the crime to which you pleaded guilty? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was a burglary, wasn't it?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He just said it was unlawful entry.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were indicted for burglary? A. Yes, sir.

2316 Q. You took a plea to a lesser crime than burglary, which was unlawful entry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you acting under orders from anybody when you committed that crime? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, in 1933, you again committed a burglary for which you were arrested, didn't you? A. Yes, sir. I don't know what year it is: I cannot tell you that. I know I was convicted of stealing a car.

Q. I am speaking of your arrest on March 2,

1933, that was for burglary, wasn't it? A. I don't remember that, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained, unless there was a conviction.

Q. You were arrested again in 1933 and charged with petit larceny?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained. 2318

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. May Judge Talley be admonished that he is not to discuss arrests?

The Court: The attitude of the Court is not to admonish counsel on either side. Neither side can be admonished, because the law is elementary. The witness may not be cross-examined or examined as to arrests unless there was a conviction.

Q. You pleaded guilty in 1933 to the crime of 2319 stealing an automobile, didn't you? A. I don't remember what year it was, but I took a plea, yes, sir.

Q. Was it 1940? A. Not near that time.

Q. Was it 1938? A. No, sir, not that time.

Q. Was it 1935? A. No, sir.

Q. Before? A. I don't think—I don't remember that.

Q. You don't remember being charged with stealing an automobile? A. Yes, sir, I do remember.

Q. You don't remember the circumstances of your having plead guilty to that crime? A. Yes, sir, I do remember.

Q. Wasn't that in 1933? A. I don't remember that date.

Q. December 19, 1933, to be correct. A. I don't remember the year.

Q. You mean you do not remember the date, but you do remember the charge and the arrest and your plea? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were put on probation for three years, weren't you, by a judge in this court, Judge 2321 Martin? A. I don't remember; I know I was in front of Judge Martin and Vause on those two cases; that is all I can remember.

Q. Weren't you sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, and the sentence suspended while you were on probation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Your probation, then, was for three years, wasn't it? A. I don't know how long it was.

Q. Do you remember being on probation at all? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember the time for which you were on probation? A. What do you mean, the 2322 time?

Q. You know what I mean. A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. Were you put on probation for six months or for a year? A. For the whole term, whenever I might have probation.

Q. Wasn't it three years? A. I don't recall it, sir.

Q. You had to report to a parole officer, didn't you, while you were on probation? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his name? A. I only believe it was Higgins, I am not sure.

Q. How many times did you report to him? A. Every time I was to make a report, I reported.

Q. How many times? A. Whenever I was to make a report.

Q. How often did you have to make a report? A. I think once a month, I think, I am not sure.

Q. How many months did you report to him? A. Whenever I had to.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer as unresponsive. I now ask the Court to direct the witness to answer these questions. 2324

The Witness: Whatever my probation was.

Q. (The Court) Was it about once a month for the entire period of your probation? A. Oh, no, every time I had to report was once a month or once in two weeks.

Q. (The Court) It varied? A. Yes, sir, continuously.

Q. For how long a time were you required to report once a month or once every two weeks, how often did you have to report? A. I don't understand. 2325

Q. Was it for a year, two years, or three years? A. It might have been.

Q. Might have been what? A. Might have been one year, might have been two years, might have been three years.

Q. I am asking you how long it was. A. I don't recall it.

Q. Did you steal the car that was the subject

2326 of that charge against you? Did you steal that because somebody ordered you to? A. No, sir.

Q. So that the two times when you pleaded guilty to crimes they were crimes which were committed by you yourself and not under orders? A. Excuse me, let me get this right; let me get this right. I didn't hear you.

Q. It is perfectly plain. A. No, sir, that car was stolen under orders.

Q. Didn't you just, two minutes ago, tell me
2327 it was not under orders? A. I refreshed my memory.

Q. You've refreshed your memory lately on a lot of things, haven't you? A. What do you mean by a lot of things?

Q. Don't you understand English? A. No, sir. I don't understand what you are saying about it.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the sarcastic observation, "You have had your memory refreshed on a lot of things," be stricken 2328 out and the jury told to disregard it.

The Court: The objection is untimely. He has answered. An objection of that kind should be made promptly.

Q. In addition to being a burglar and an automobile thief, what other crimes have you committed?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the preamble.

Mr. Talley: He has stated he was a burglar and he pleaded guilty to it, and he stated he was an automobile thief and pleaded guilty to that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(At the request of Mr. Talley, the reporter reads the question.)

The Witness: Whenever I got orders from the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object and move that be stricken out.

The Court: The question is what other other kinds of crimes.

2330

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor to admonish the witness to answer the question if it is physically possible, and not to volunteer the same answer each time he is asked a question.

The Court: That is not necessary.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception to your Honor's refusal.

The Witness: Murders, schlammin jobs, and whenever the mob needed tires for their cars.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike it out as not responsive. The latter part is not responsive.

2331

The Court: Strike it out.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Are you finished? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many murders did you commit or take part in? A. This is the only one. I took part in one in the mountains. I don't know what you mean by "part."

Q. You don't know the expression "take part in"? A. I know they brought a dead man there; that is all I can tell you.

2332 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. So you say you took part, participated in, and had something to do with two murders; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

2333 Q. What did you say about two murders? A. What do you mean, what I said?

Q. Just repeat to me what you said.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Talley: I have a right, on cross-examination, to have any such repetition—that is one of the purposes of cross-examination.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

2334 Q. Do you say you took part in or committed one murder other than this one; is that what you said?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. What do you mean? I don't understand you.

Q. That murder in the mountains, did you take part in the murder itself? A. I know they brought a dead body there; I was not there when it was killed.

Q. What did you do? A. I helped them bury the body.

By the Court:

Q. You helped dispose of it after death, that would be the most you recall? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. You know that was a man who was murdered in Sullivan County? A. When they brought the man over I didn't know anything about it. 2336

Q. You knew a man named Yuran had been murdered? A. I never knew his name until I read the papers, when I gave myself up.

Q. You say you did not know his name? I am asking you, didn't you know the man in Sullivan County, in the murder you referred to, that his name was Yuran? A. I didn't know his name at that time.

Q. Do you know it now? A. Now I do, yes, sir. 2337

Q. You were one who took the police in Sullivan County, whether they came from New York or belonged up there, to the place where the body of this man Yuran, who had been murdered, was buried? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. What else did you show them? A. What do you mean, what else? You will have to explain better.

Q. You don't understand English at all? A. I understand English, but you have to explain.

Q. You did not have a bit of trouble answering the District Attorney's questions? A. That was the first murder I ever was on; I cannot forget that.

Q. That was the first murder you ever were on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the Yuran murder? A. I just said the Rosen murder.

Q. Was the Yuran murder after the Rosen murder? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, then you don't deny taking part in the Rosen murder, do you? A. No, sir.

2339 Q. You have not been indicted for your part in the Rosen murder, have you? A. No, sir.

Q. You were not indicted for anything you had to do with the Yuran murder in Sullivan County? A. No, sir.

Q. You have never served time for any of your crimes, have you? A. No, sir.

Q. And you are taking good care now not to serve any time for this Rosen murder if you can help it? A. What do you mean? I don't understand you.

Q. You went to public school in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

2340 Q. Were you born here? A. In Brownsville, yes, sir.

Q. I think you said you went to junior high school. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you still say you don't understand my language? A. I did not finish public school; I went to 8-A. I understand, too.

Q. Didn't you tell us you went to junior high school? A. Well, it was junior high school, the 9-B.

Q. You went to a junior high school? A. Yes, sir, that is what they called the school.

Q. You don't speak any language other than the English language? A. I can speak Jewish very good.

Q. Now, you tell us that you worked, when you left school, one month as a messenger boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you lose your job in the messenger company at the end of the month? A. I quit.

Q. Did you go right to work then? A. Later, a little later on.

Q. How much? A. About a month or so later.

Q. Then you went to work for another concern, didn't you? A. A hat factory. 2342

Q. You told us you worked three months there. A. A couple of months.

Q. You told us on Friday three months, do you remember? A. It could be three months.

Q. Or it could be two months? A. It could be two months.

Q. Then you told us you got a job as a cutter in leather goods? A. Yes, sir, Majestic Brief Case Company on Spring Street and Broadway.

Q. Are they still in business, do you know? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You told us you worked in that place for three years. A. Yes, sir, about three years. 2343

Q. You said three years. Do you mean to change it? A. About three years.

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Witness: I am not accurate at years.

Mr. Turkus: I am trying to make a formal objection, but these are all rapid-fire questions and answers.

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Turkus: My objection was as to the form of the question, but it has been answered; an objection is worthless, so I withdraw it.

Q. As a matter of fact, you only worked two years for the leather factory, didn't you? A. I worked about three years.

Q. Didn't you testify under oath in another case you worked there for two years? A. Maybe I did, sir.

2345 Q. You testified here that you worked there three years. A. I am not accurate at years; I know the facts; just ask me the facts, and I will tell you.

Q. Which was right, two years or three years? A. Listen, sir, I am not accurate at years.

Q. You don't know a year contains twelve months? A. I know that.

Q. I am asking you now which was the correct testimony you gave, that you worked for this leather place two years or that which you gave on a previous occasion, under oath, or the testimony that you gave here Friday, that you 2346 worked for three years?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative and repetitious; already fully answered.

The Court: It is immaterial, too, because it applies to when he was a messenger boy. Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: I take an exception. I want to correct your Honor's impression that this has to do with his service as a messenger boy. He said he worked in a leather factory. One was for a month and the other was three months, then he said he worked three years subsequent to being a messenger boy. He testified on another occasion that he only worked there two years.

The Court: I recall the witness used the word "about." Objection sustained. This is all a matter of background and has no direct or indirect relation to the alleged crime.

Mr. Talley: Exception. 2348

It has very much more relation to the alleged crime than has the larger part of the testimony he gave.

Mr. Turkus: I object to his going over every period of this witness's life without restriction.

The Court: The Court is most liberal.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that remark. These are all matters that have been brought out on direct examination by the District Attorney, and defense counsel certainly has a right to prove and cross-examine on matters which the District Attorney brought out to this jury on direct examination in this case. 2349

The Court: Is that a speech or an objection?

Mr. Rosenthal: I am making an objection.

The Court: The Court strikes it out because it constitutes a speech and is not for the edification of the Court but the edification of the gallery. Now proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except.

2350 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By Mr. Talley:

Q. In the trial in which you testified in Monticello, Sullivan County, in the month of June, 1940, were you asked these questions and did you make these answers:

"Q. Where did you work? A. I worked for a leather company's place.

"Q. Right after you left public school? A. The Majestic Leather Company.

2351 "Q. What is their address? A. I don't remember.

"Q. Are they in business now? A. I don't know.

"Q. How long did you work for them? A. Two years." Were you asked those questions and did you make those answers that I have just read? A. If it is in the book I said it.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer and ask for a responsive answer to my question.

The Court: Motion denied.

2352 Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. How old were you when you went to work for the Majestic Leather Company? A. How old I was?

Q. Yes. A. About sixteen, close to sixteen.

Q. Sixteen? A. I think so; I am not sure.

Q. Would you be eighteen when you left their employ? A. I might have been eighteen or nineteen, sir.

Q. Whether it was eighteen or nineteen, were you then heavily in debt? A. When I worked in the leather company I started getting in debt.

2353

Q. When you went to the leather goods company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which you say was when you were about sixteen? A. Now wait a minute—eighteen or nineteen—something like that.

Q. You were eighteen or nineteen when you left? A. Yes, sir. Not when I was sixteen. I did not graduate until then.

Q. If you were sixteen when you left there— A. I don't remember saying it is—I will let you know.

2354

Q. I am trying my best to give you an opportunity to let me know. A. I will let you know. When I graduated—

Q. Answer my question. A. What is it?

Q. Did you say you went to work for the leather goods concern when you were about sixteen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say that when you went to work for the leather goods people you began to get into debt? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then by the time you left there, whether it was two or three years,—you would be eighteen or nineteen,—you were very heavily in debt, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

2355

Q. And who did you owe money to, shylocks in Brownsville? A. Yes, sir, the mob on Sackman and Livonia Avenue, and if you want me to tell you, I will tell you.

Q. I will give you a chance to tell everything you want to tell before I get through with you, don't worry about telling me.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the criticism of the offer in his answer.

Mr. Talley: Will you kindly take your seat?

2356

Mr. Turkus: Will you kindly take yours? As a former judge, you should know how to conduct yourself.

Mr. Talley: Sit down.

Mr. Turkus: No matter whom you represent—

Mr. Talley: I told you before I did not need any admonition from you, and don't make it necessary for me to say it again.

The Court: The Court's gavel is in 2357 chambers, locked up in the desk. I did not anticipate having use for it in this trial. I have not, so far. Now, let us try to get along nicely. We all know how to try a case.

Q. So that after you left the leather goods place you became a shylock on your own account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And a gambler? A. On my own account, yes, sir.

Q. And a bookmaker? A. On my own account.

2358 Q. And a thief? A. Whenever I got orders from the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move that be stricken out.

The Court: Strike it out.

The Witness: Now wait a minute, sir —not at that time; until I got the arrest, then I started; but I don't know. When they told me to steal that car, I was working for that mob then.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive to any question.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. After you left the leather goods place you did not do any honest work, did you? A. Shylocks—how can I do any honest work.

Q. Is your answer no? A. What do you mean, "No"? I just answered you.

Q. Do you know what "No" means in the English language? A. Yes, sir. I was shylocking, I just answered you. 2360

Q. And also a thief? A. Yes, sir, for the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object and ask the latter part be stricken out.

The Witness: Listen, Counsellor—

Mr. Rosenthal: Just a minute, Mr. Witness; I am addressing the Court. I move the latter part of the answer be stricken out.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor to admonish this witness,—he has been admonished by your Honor twice,—to answer questions and not volunteer. 2361

The Court: (addressing witness) Stop saying "for the mob."

The Witness: I was not an angel. Does that satisfy you?

The Court: Do not quarrel. Just keep your head and answer questions.

Q. Instead of being an angel, you were a safe burglar, weren't you? A. No, sir.

Q. You have broken open many safes right here in this Borough of Brooklyn, haven't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you mean to say you never opened or cracked a safe? A. No, sir.

Q. That is what you mean to say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Weren't you known throughout Brooklyn amongst your crowd, as a safe burglar? A. You are telling me something new.

Q. Weren't you? A. I don't know, sir.

2363 Q. You told us all the jobs you had before you became a criminal. Do you know what— A. What do you mean, before I became a murderer? I don't get you.

Q. Well, did you become a shylock? A. When I started being a shylock, then I didn't become an angel. I was not a good citizen, if that is more clear.

Q. I don't understand that language at all. A. Well, I don't know.

Q. You say when you started to become a shylock you became an angel?

2364 Mr. Turkus: He said he did not become an angel.

Q. Now my question is, and I will repeat it—you listen to it: After you left the leather goods concern you went into the shylock business; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told us the only job you had since you were a school boy was a messenger boy, the other job which you worked three months at, and the leather goods concern. That is all the legitimate business experience you had, wasn't it? A. Legitimate?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

2365

Q. Now, you are not confused about that, are you? A. What do you mean, I am not confused?

Q. You understand what I am saying to you, don't you? A. When I worked it was a legiti- matter matter. I did steal. I got arrested,—I think so, I am not sure,—for trying to break into a store. I am not sure I was working at that time.

Q. You told us three place where you worked. A. I am not sure; if I am not positively sure I will tell you.

2366

By the Court:

Q. In the burglary, in 1930, were you working then? A. I know when I was working—I think I got arrested for trying to break into a store, but I cannot remember just when,—I think so; I am not sure.

By Mr. Talley:

2367

Q. Now, you are not sure whether, when you broke into the store in 1930, you were working for the leather goods company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are not sure about it? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure you worked for a messenger company? A. What did you say? I worked as a messenger boy, yes.

Q. You did hear me? A. I worked in a radiogram, too, on Wall Street.

Q. Radiograms? A. Radiograms, not Western Union or not Postal Telegraph.

Q. As a messenger boy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you worked where? A. On Wall Street.

Q. Then you worked in a hat factory? A. Then a brief case place.

Q. Then after that where did you work? A. After the brief case place I began as a shylock.

Q. You did not go in any other business than that of crime? A. As a bookmaker and a gambler. Whenever I was told to do something—if you want me to tell you who, I will tell you who.

Q. You are not basting to tell a whole lot,
2369 Bernstein—you certainly are anxious.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that. If you want to take up his invitation, accept it. If you don't, I object to the comment.

Mr. Talley: We are not taking any invitation from this witness, I will tell you that.

The Court: That does not require any ruling, the comments.

Q. Have you told us all the businesses you were engaged in from the time you left high 2370 school? A. I was not so smart, I did not go to high school.

Q. You said you went to junior high school. I will change it.

Mr. Turkus: I object. He has answered.

The Witness: A junior high school is not a high school by me; it is a junior high school.

Mr. Talley: At page 481 of his testimony—and I am addressing the Court—this witness said, "I went to Junior High School 178, Dean and Saratoga Avenue, Brooklyn."

2371

Q. My question is: Were you in any other business besides the three you have told us about? A. Three what?

Q. Three places of employment which you had. A. I told you what I was: shylock, a bookmaker, and a gambler, and what else I told you before. If you want me to tell you it, I will tell you it.

2372

Q. That is what you call yourself? A. What do you mean? Yes, when I was shylocking, a bookmaker, and a gambler, that was my business.

Q. Why didn't you tell us about operating a candy store here in Brooklyn when you were being asked what business you were engaged in? A. I forgot to tell you.

Q. Ah—you forget that? A. Yes, sir. You asked me, and I am telling you.

Q. Now, have you forgotten any other line of business you were in besides operating a candy store? A. Maybe you can tell me, I don't know.

2373

Q. I am asking you. A. I don't know.

Q. How tall are you? A. 5 foot 8, I think, or 8½.

Q. How much do you weigh? A. 165 pounds when I was on the outside. I don't know now because I have not got a scale to weigh myself.

Q. We will have to get you one and make you comfortable. You are living in the Half Moon Hotel, aren't you?

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. May we have some d'gnity in the conduct of this case?

The Witness: Do you want me to answer that question?

Q. You are living at the Half Moon Hotel, aren't you? A. Yes, sir, heavily guarded, with plenty of machine guns and shot guns.

Q. Is that at your request you are heavily guarded? A. I thought you meant that.

Q. Is it at your request you are heavily guarded? A. What do you mean, at my re-2375 quest?

By the Court:

Q. Did you ask for it? A. (no answer.)

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Do you speak Yiddish better than you do English? A. To say what?

Q. You heard what I said. A. English I talk better.

Q. You don't need an interpreter, do you?

2376

Mr. Turkus: I object. This is sarcastic.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You told the District Attorney many times about your being in what you said was "My automobile." Do you remember using that expression? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of an automobile was that? A. A Buick.

Q. What kind of a Buick? A. A '36—a '35, four-door sedan.

Q. Was it your automobile? A. Yes, sir.

2377

Q. Who did you buy it from? A. Who did I buy it from? I think Litvin got that for me, East New York Avenue.

Q. Who is he? A. A dealer who sells cars, on East New York Avenue.

Q. Was it a new car or a second-hand? A. A new car.

Q. A new Buick car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it registered in your name? A. No, sir.

2378

Q. How long did you have it before this time in September, 1936, we have been talking about? A. I owed money to shylocks and I had to sell it.

Q. How long did you have it? A. I am telling you when, when I had to pay money to shylocks I sold it.

Q. How many weeks, days, or months? A. I am telling you when.

Q. Did you have this car before September 13, 1936? A. Not when I had to pay the shylocks, I sold that car.

2379

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: Consented to.

Mr. Talley: I ask your Honor to have the witness answer the question.

By the Court:

Q. Do you remember about how long you had it? A. I really cannot tell you.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. In whose name was the registration? A. Al Glass.

Q. Who is Al Glass? A. He was my partner in shylocking.

2380 Q. Why didn't you have it in your name? A. Why didn't I have it in my name?

Q. You heard what I said. Answer the question without repeating. A. Because one of the mob who like to borrow my car took it for a couple of hours and kept it for weeks; that is the reason why.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

Mr. Turkus: It is a fair question and invited the answer.

2381 Mr. Rosenthal: I object to a speech by the District Attorney when I make an objection.

Mr. Turkus: When the District Attorney objects he calls it a speech. That is an objection.

The Court: The objection is dilatory. It can be viewed as a motion, and the Court denies the motion.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. So the registration was in the name of 2382 Al Glass, who was a partner of yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it at his request that the car was put in his name?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Q. Did you pay for the car with your money? A. I paid for it in cash.

Q. With your money? A. Yes, sir, about $1,200.

Q. How much? A. About $1,200.

2383

Q. Where did you get the $1,200 to buy this car? A. I won it in gambling.

Q. And stealing? A. No, sir.

Q. And murdering? A. Whenever I got orders from the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer be stricken out.

The Court: Strike out the latter part.

2384

Q. Then, you committed or participated in more murders than these two you have spoken of? A. That is not what I told you.

Q. How many murders did you take part in or commit besides those two you say you know about?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony.

Mr. Talley: Never mind what the testimony is. I am cross-examining.

Objection overruled.

2385

A. None.

Q. This trial that you testified to before the grand jury in the court-room in Monticello, that was a trial of a man named Gangy Cohen, wasn't it?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The question is not intelligible; "this trial" he "testified before the Grand Jury."

Mr. Talley: In answer to your question, he testified—

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection to that question as not intelligible.

2386 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Talley: In answer to the District Attorney's question, this witness stated that he testified in Monticello before the Grand Jury and in the trial. I am pursuing that inquiry that was brought into this case by the District Attorney.

By the Court:

Q. Did you testify at the trial of Gangy Cohen?
2387 A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you tell the truth there? A. All the truth, no, because I did not want to give the mob any information before; they were not picked up yet.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out all after "No."

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2388

Q. You took an oath to tell the truth when you took the witness chair? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just the same oath as you took in this court-room on Friday last? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after taking that oath to tell the truth you testified falsely in Sullivan County? A. Whatever Gangy told me, I said the truth, but I did not want to give no information to the mob because they were not picked up yet, and he was a lawyer.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike it out.

A. (continuing) But I told the Grand Jury the truth about this case.

The Court: The latter part is not responsive. Strike it out.

Q. You testified falsely, didn't you? A. About some matters in this trial in Monticello, because I did not want to give information.

Q. Did you or didn't you? A. Because I did not want to give information. 2390

Q. Did you or didn't you? A. I told the Grand Jury the truth about everything in this case long before I was a witness.

Q. Did you testify falsely when you appeared in court in the case in Monticello?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: Yes or no.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have a motion to make. My motion is to strike out the voluntary statement that this witness is repeating right now. It is not responsive to the question asked by Judge Talley. 2391

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Rosenthal: In view of the fact of continued repetition by this witness, I ask your Honor to admonish the jury to disregard the statements which your Honor has stricken out.

The Court: The jury has already been instructed on that.

By the Court:

Q. Did you testify in the trial of Gangy Cohen

2392 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

to anything that was not true? A. Yes, sir, I knew I was doing wrong.

Q. Did you fail to testify to some things that were true? A. Yes, sir, I knew I was doing wrong.

The Court: At this time we will require only direct answers and no explanations. The District Attorney will examine at the conclusion of the cross.

2393 Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out everything after "Yes."

The Court: Strike it out.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. In this trial of Gangy Cohen, you testified on behalf of the District Attorney then? A. I don't understand what you mean, "behalf."

Q. You testified for The People? A. I am a stool pigeon, sir.

Q. You were a stool pigeon? A. I am a stool pigeon, in other words, a rat. Does that satisfy you?

2394

Q. Oh, no, I am not nearly satisfied with you yet. I am not nearly satisfied. When you say "rat", you mean one who squeals on his friends? A. What am I to do now?

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike that out.

Q. What did you say you are doing?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it.

The Court: The whole colloquy is wrong.

2395

Q. What did you say you are doing? A. I am telling the truth about everything.

The Court: Let us proceed with question and answer; do not quarrel.

Mr. Turkus: Mr. Talley continues on the repetition of a fair question and answer of the witness, and then we have another counsel object to it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am representing one of the defendants, and I have a right to object whenever I feel like it. 2396

The Court: What is your objection?

Mr. Rosenthal: My objection was to the question of Judge Talley, and now my motion is to strike out the answer. The objection was on the record before the answer was given.

The Court: Objection overruled. Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You testified against Gangy Cohen, didn't you? A. Yes, sir. You tell me for what. 2397

Q. What? A. You tell me that.

Q. You did testify against him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You testified as to a statement that you said Gangy Cohen made to you, in Florida. A. What, sir? You are making a mistake.

Q. Where was it? A. In California, Los Angeles.

Q. You testified that Cohen had admitted killing the victim of the Monticello crime? A. Yes, sir, Walter Sage, he told me he had something to do with it.

Q. You testified that Gangy Cohen told you

2398 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

he had killed Walter Sage? A. With other people, yes, sir.

Q. And the jury acquitted Gangy after hearing your testimony, didn't they?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Very reluctantly, the Court is required to censure Mr. Talley for asking a question which he knows is incompetent, and the jury is instructed to utterly disregard it. The decision of this 2399 case has no relation to the decision in any trial of any other case, gentlemen. This case is being decided in this court-room, not in Sullivan County.

We will take a recess now.

Mr. Talley: Just before you do that, you have got to give me an opportunity to note my exception to your Honor's statement as well as to your Honor's ruling. Now I am ready to adjourn if your Honor sees fit.

The Court: (addressing the jury) We 2460 will resume at 1:30 o'clock. That will give you an opportunity to go around and be seated together before the crowd comes in the restaurant.

Please do not discuss the case nor let anybody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open.

First the witness will leave.

(Witness leaves the witness stand.)

The Court: Now the jury may go out. The defendants are remanded.

(Whereupon a recess was taken until 1:30 P. M.)

(Continued in Volume II)

Vol. II

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1942

No. 606

LOUIS BUCHALTER, PETITIONER

vs

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 610

EMANUEL WEISS, PETITIONER

vs

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COURT OF APPEALS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 619

LOUIS CAPONE, PETITIONER

vs

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

PETITIONS FOR CERTIORARI FILED DECEMBER 30, 1942
JANUARY 2, 1943.
JANUARY 4, 1943.

CERTIORARI GRANTED MARCH 15, 1943.

INDEX

	PAGE
Statement Under Rule 234	1
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	3
Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	6
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	9
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone	11
Minutes of Presentment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	14
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Buchalter	16
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	18
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Capone	20
Indictment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	21
Endorsements on Indictment	22
Pedigrees	26
Order of Brancato, C. J., Denying Capone's Application of Severance	29
Notice of Motion for Severance (Capone)	31

PAGE

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 33

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 45

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 55

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 60

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone) 65

Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone) 72

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 76

Affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 110

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 112

Exhibit A—Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter 116

Exhibit B—Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter, questioned in a different manner 121

PAGE

Copy of Indictment 122

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 123

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 125

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 139

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 155

Copy of Indictment 164

Opinion of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 165

Order of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 167

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 169

Order of Mr. Justice Brennan Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 175

Memorandum Opinion of Taylor, C. J., Adjourning Trial 177

Minutes of Trial 178

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Buchalter 214

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Buchalter 216

PAGE

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 218

Death Warrant against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 220

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Capone 222

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Capone 224

Case and Exceptions 226

Opening Statement on Behalf of People 227

Opening Statements Waived as to Defendants 244

Motions to Dismiss Indictment 243, 2712

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Buchalter.... 3525

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Weiss..... 3532

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Capone 3538

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Buchalter 3543

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Weiss 3647

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Capone 3699

Summation on Behalf of People..... 3782

Exceptions to Court's Refusal to Permit Objections During People's Summation 3860

The Charge of the Court..... 3871

PAGE

Requests to Charge and Exceptions.... 3932

Verdict 3993

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Buchalter 3994

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Weiss 3995

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Capone 3996

Stipulation as to Exhibits 4022

Clerk's Certificate 4029

Testimony

Witnesses for People

Estelle Rosen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 245
Cross by Mr. Barshay 263, 310
Cross by Mr. Talley 265, 312

Harry Regenbogen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 314

Louis Stamler:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 322

Guglielmo Cappadora:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 331

M. Edward Marten, M.D.:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 339

Frederick W. Walsh:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 361

George V. Dumont:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 376

PAGE

Emil Schaefer:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 378

Herman Schiesser:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 379

Hirsh Merlis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 384

John J. McGowan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 394

Samuel Pearl:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 397

Henry G. Nelson:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 403

William S. King:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 408

Henry F. Butts:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 411

Max Kaufman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 435
Cross by Mr. Talley 444

William R. Jarvis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 445

Simon P. Ambraz:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 449

Abraham Waxman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 455

Harold D. Rosen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 465
Cross by Mr. Barshay 487

Hyman W. Barron:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 545
Cross by Mr. Talley 559

PAGE

Anthony O. DeSario:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 563

Sylvia Greenspan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 564
Cross by Mr. Climenko 585
Cross by Mr. Talley 678
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 684
Recross by Mr. Talley 685

Sol Bernstein:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 690
Cross by Mr. Talley 764, 1263
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 937
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1274

Max Rubin:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1284
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1492
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 1749
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1754
Recross by Mr. Barshay 1755
Recross by Mr. Talley 1755
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2371
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2391
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2402

Edward C. Maguire:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1757
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1763

Paul Berger:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1776
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1883
Cross by Mr. Talley 2042
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2191
Recross by Mr. Talley 2201

PAGE

Albert Tannenbaum:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2203
Cross by Mr. Barshay 2245
Cross by Mr. Talley 2341
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2353
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2368

Seymour Magoon:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2421
Cross by Mr. Talley 2472
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 2486
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2603

Albert E. Aman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2607, 2618
Cross by Mr. Talley 2614, 2684
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2686

Joseph Bell:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2687
Cross by Mr. Talley 2691

James C. Ryan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2699
Cross by Mr. Talley 2702

Thomas J. Winne:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2704
Cross by Mr. Talley 2706

Witnesses for Defendants

John J. Fegan:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2716

Henry H. Eisenberg:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2740

Larry H. Cooper:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2776

PAGE

Michael J. Monz:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2780

Nat Sobler:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2784
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2825
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 2889
Recross by Mr. Turkus 2894

Ellsworth Baker:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2897

Carl Shapiro:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2901
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2921
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 2991
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 3000
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 3014, 3022, 3030, 3037
Recross by Mr. Turkus....3016, 3023, 3035

Major William W. Kleinman:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3003
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3012
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3014

John J. Canevari:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 3039
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3043

Harry Cohen:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3047
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3063
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3067

Sidney Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3070
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3076
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3224

PAGE

Samuel Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3239
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3242

Dorothy Isaacson:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3259
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3268
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3320
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3321

Blanche Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3322
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3329
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3445
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3445

Helen A. Hazley:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3446

Lena Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3447

Rebuttal

Witnesses for People

James P. Malone:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3493
Cross by Mr. Talley 3506
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3508

John J. Whalen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3509
Cross by Mr. Talley 3514
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3517

Vance Newman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3518

Exhibits

People's Exhibits

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*1.—Photograph showing body of Joseph Rosen	321	.....
*2.—Photograph of Rosen Candy Store	326	.....
*2-A.—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 2	327	.....
*3.—Photograph of Louis Stamler's house	327	.....
*4.—Photograph showing Rosen Candy Store as viewed from a window of Louis Stamler's house	330	.....
*5.—Bullet labeled "M.M."	353	.....
*6.—Bullet labeled "M.R."	354	.....
*7.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 2"	366	.....
*8.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 1"	369	.....
*9.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 3"	370	.....
*10.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 4"	371	.....
*11.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 5"	372	.....
*12.—Bullet labeled "F.W. 6"	372	.....
*13.—Photograph showing plate number L-16-67, N.Y., 1936, of automobile	382	.....
*14.—Photograph of automobile	383	.....
*15.—Photograph of candy store	385	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*16.—Photograph showing walk across the railroad leading from Livonia and Van Sinderen side to Junius Street side of tracks	389	.....
*17.—Photograph showing Junius Street side of walk over connecting up from the entrance to the stand	390	.....
*18.—Photograph showing place where Samuel Pearl was walking	399	.....
*19.—Gun found by Samuel Pearl in a lot and initialed "WK" in presence of the policeman	402	.....
*20.—Photograph showing premises in which Max Kaufman lived, and the surrounding locale	437	.....
*21.—Photograph showing locale as it was in September 1936	458	.....
*22.—Photograph showing garages including the one in which the Ford automobile was stored	460	.....
*23.—Photograph of car of Abraham Waxman	464	.....
*24.—Diagram showing the candy store as it existed in September, 1936	553	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*25.—Photograph of Ardies' Soda, Candy and Luncheonette Store	686	.....
*25-A.—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 25	738	.....
*26.—Photograph showing Sackman Street near where the car was parked	697	.....
*27.—Photograph showing house and alley as it were when the drop was rented by Sol Bernstein	707	.....
*28.—Photograph of garage	708	.....
*29.—Photograph of house to which Mendy Weiss told Sol Bernstein to go	730	.....
*30.—Photograph of an apartment house at Wyona and Belmont Streets	734	.....
*31.—Photograph showing corner of the park at Bradford and Blake Avenues	738
*32.—Photograph showing garage where the gun was hidden in the cellar	749
*33.—Order of Appointment of Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court, etc.	1376
*34.—Appointment and Oath of Thomas E. Dewey	1370	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

		ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*35.	Bank account of Max Rubin in the Bank for Savings, 4th Avenue	1403
*36.	Registration record of Max R.. n in the Hotel New Orleans	1418
*37.	Registration record of Max Rubin in the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn	1435
*38.	Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin	1451
*39.	Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, dated Nov. 13, 1936	1453
*40.	Thirty two checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & He'pers Union, etc. to Esthe Rubin, various dates	1458
*41.	Eight checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, various dates	1459
*42.	Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2620
*43.	Two sheets consisting of check and stub	2627
*44.	Bank book of Security National Bank, Kansas City, Kansas, in name of James W. Bell; deposits, Oct. 1, 1940, $1080	2629

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

		OMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*45.	Card taken from Mendy Weiss	2631	.....
*46.	Social Security Card No. 500-14-1906 bearing name of James William Bell	2633	.....
*47.	Registration Certificate for Selective Service issued to James William Bell	2634	.....
*48.	Motor Vehicle License Receipt No. 35629	2642	.....
*49.	Prescription blank of Dr. Geo. Wm. Bancroft	2646	.....
*50.	Copy of Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2656	.....
*51.	Driver's License No. 1078237 bearing name of James W. Bell	2659	.....
*52.	Motor Vehicle Driver's License, Kansas City, Mo., No. 153827 bearing name of James W. Bell	2661	.....
*53.	State of Colorado, Application for a Title for a Motor Vehicle, made by Rose Bell	2664	.....
*54.	Receipt for $40.00 from Geo. W. Bancroft, M.D. to James Bell, dated Sept. 23, 1940	2668	.....
*55.	Receipted Bill from St. Francis Hospital and Sanatorium to James Bell, dated Aug. 29, 1940	2669	.....

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

		ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*56.	Receipt for $11, from Standard Finance Company to Rose Bell, dated July 24, 1940	2670	.....
*57.	Card of Martin's Indoor Poultry Farm	2672	.....
	Defendants' Exhibits
*1.	Envelope in the handwriting of Sol Bernstein	1246	.....
*2.	Affidavit of Albert Tannenbaum, sworn to April 3, 1940	2327	.....
*3.	Affidavit of William J. Kennedy	2493	.....
4.	Agreement between Morris Bluestein and Nathan Sobler, and Martin F. Kelly Inc. and Joseph Rosen, dated Oct. 28, 1931	2793	3998
5.	Agreement between Morris Bluestein, Nathan Sobler and Joseph Rosen, and New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, Inc., and Martin F. Kelly, Inc. and Martin F. Kelly, dated April 27, 1932	2807	4007
6.	(Admitted in Evidence as Ex. 7) Original lease between The Fifth Avenue Building Company and Raleigh Manufacturing Inc., dated Jan. 29, 1936, together with diagram	2903	4016

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*7.—Ten Checks	2995	.....
8.—Two green blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 9568 and 9569, respectively	3033	4018
9.—Two pink blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 1121 and 1122, respectively	3033	4020
*10.—Copy of birth certificate of Sidney Weiss, certified June 12, 1941	3238	.....
*11.—Map showing layout of streets in connection with Rosen Candy Store, Rosen Residence, Long Island Railroad, etc.	3489	.....

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross 2401

(Afternoon Session. Trial Resumed.)

SOL BERNSTEIN, resumed the stand:

By Mr. Talley:

Q. You told the District Attorney about your middle name being Sholem?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the statement. 2402

Q. Is that your first name, Sholem? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. It is my Jewish name.

Q. What is your first name, Sol, isn't it? A. Solomon.

Q. Solomon Sholem Bernstein? A. Yes, ir.

Mr. Talley: What is wrong with that?

Q. What other names have you been known by other than Sholem Bernstein and Solomon Bernstein? A. That is all. 2403

Q. You used the name Berman, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell us what other names you used besides Berman. A. The only time when I was running, sir.

Q. Is your testimony now that you never used any other name than Sholem besides your own and Berman?

Mr. Turkus: I object. His testimony "now", carrying an implication that it might have been something else some other time.

2404 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You were known in Brownsville as The Chief, weren't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard yourself called The Chief? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard yourself referred to as The 2405 Chief? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't mean that, do you? A. No, sir.

Q. I suppose you mean by that answer, yes, sir. My question is, you don't mean that. Do you want to say that you do mean it or that you don't mean it? A. No, sir.

Q. I will ask you again, to straighten out the record, so as not to take any advantage of that answer. Were you known as The Chief? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear of the Ali Baba gang? A. No, sir.

2406 Q. Your answer is that you never hear of it? A. No, sir.

Q. And weren't you called the Chief of that gang? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't that a gang, or to use your expression, a mob, around Brownsville of which you were the head? A. I know nothing about it, sir.

Q. You know nothing about it? Were you in Florida in 1897, or 1937?

Mr. Turkus: What is the first part of the question?

2407

Q. Were you in Florida in 1937? A. I might have been, sir.

Q. What? A. I might have been, sir.

Q. You might have been any place. My question is were you there? A. I think so, but I am not sure.

Q. Were you there in 1939? A. I am not sure. I might have been.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. I am not sure, sir.

2408

Q. Have you any recollection as to whether you were in Florida in 1939? A. 1939?

Q. Yes. A. I think I was, sir, but I am not sure.

Q. You were working there, weren't you? A. Yes, as a shylock.

Q. You were working as a bouncer, weren't you? A. I don't know what year it was, but I was working in a gambling joint, sir.

Q. Doing what? A. Stopping people they shouldn't cheat.

Q. Stopping the people who would cheat? A. Shouldn't cheat.

2409

Q. What did you call yourself, a spotter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the name of the place in which you were working? A. I don't know what year it was, but I know I was working in the Frolics Club in Miami Beach, a gambling place.

Q. Did you fix that as 1939? A. I don't recall the year. I know I was working there.

Q. Have you any recollection as to when it was? A. Counsellor Barshay can tell you that, sir.

2410 Q. I am not asking them; I am asking you. A. I can't remember, sir.

Q. Do you remember who it was that got you the job there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who? A. Mendy Weiss.

Q. And who introduced you to Mendy Weiss? A. Louis Capone and Harry Strauss.

Q. They are the ones that introduced you to him? A. A long time ago. I think it was 1935, sir, when I first met him.

2411 Q. Isn't it a fact that you never knew Mendy Weiss until 1939 when he helped you to get a job in Miami, Florida? A. No, sir.

Q. That is not true? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see Mendy Weiss at or about the time you got the job in the Frolics Club in Miami? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you asked him to get you the job, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he get it for you without your asking him? A. What did you say, sir?

2412 (Question read by reporter.)

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You went down there and he put you to work without your asking him to get you a job; is that what you want us to believe? A. I was down there?

Q. Wern't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you asked Mendy Weiss to get you a job? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he ask these people to put you to work there? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You told us, didn't you, that he helped you to get the job, or got the job for you? A. I found out later, sir.

Q. How much later? A. When I went to work there, sir.

Q. You did not know that it was he who got you the job there until after you went to work? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named Barney Cutler? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Wasn't it Barney Cutler who introduced you and Mendy Weiss in 1939 in Florida? A. 2414 No, sir.

Q. Did you see Barney Cutler there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he there at the time you got the job in this gambling house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have a talk with Barney Cutler and Mendy Weiss about that job? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you say that it was not in the winter of 1939—

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. 2415

The Court: Finish the question.

Mr. Turkus: I am sorry. I thought it was finished.

Mr. Talley: How could it be finished?

Q. Do you say that it was not—I would like the District Attorney to be seated while I am asking the question—do you say it was not in the winter of 1939, in Florida, Miami, that you were first introduced to Mendy Weiss?

2416

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to as already answered.

Mr. Talley: I have a right to repeat a dozen different times in cross examination.

The Court: You do not have to argue the point.

Mr. Turkus: That is more than I have been taught.

The Court: Objection overruled.

2417 Q. Will you answer, please? A. He did not introduce me, sir.

Q. What? A. He did not introduce me to him, sir.

The Court: Where is the Frolics?

The Witness: It is off the Causeway in Miami.

The Court: Miami City or Miami Beach?

The Witness: Miami City.

2418 Q. Who was running it at the time you worked there? A. Game Boy, Moey Dimples and Tommy Cutty.

The Court: You mean around that circle where Sears, Roebuck is?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. Did you ever hear of a man named Lefty Clark connected with that Frolics? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was the real owner of it, wasn't he? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. What was his connection with it? A. He was running the game there.

Q. Why didn't you tell the jury when we asked you who was there; why did you omit his name? A. There was a lot of people over there, sir.

Q. But Lefty Clark was running the game, wasn't he? A. The New York game. There was all kind of craps up there.

Q. He was running one game? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you working for him? A. No, 2420
sir.

Q. Were you working in connection with his game? A. I don't know if it was his game.

Q. Didn't you just tell me it was his game? A. I didn't mean that. I was working for the house over there.

Q. Who else was in that gambling house besides the ones you mentioned? A. There was a lot of peoples over there I don't remember.

Q. You tell us all you do recollect. A. I told you.

Q. We are asking for names. Have you told 2421 us all that you recall? A. I just don't recall, sir.

Q. You just don't recall? A. A lot of people.

By the Court:

Q. Were there quite a few tables there? A. Lots of tables there.

Q. Did they have roulette? A. Roulette and western craps. Lefty Clark had a New York game.

Q. Cage game? A. No, sir, that is New York craps. No, there will be most of them playing western craps, different from a New York game.

Q. Not Cuban? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. Silver dollars? A. They all played with silver dollars—not the New York game.

Q. Wheels of fortune? A. They called that the table game.

Q. Squared off? A. Yes, sir, there is two games; one you call the line and one the New York game.

2423

Q. How many tables all told? A. There was only one New York crap game and the rest were called field games.

Q. How many tables all told? I want to get some idea of the place. A. About five or six besides the New York game.

Q. And how many table men? A. They had about three on each field game, that is the western game.

Q. How many in all? A. About 20 or 22 men all told.

2424

Q. Twenty or 22 table men? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many inside guards? A. Oh, there was a lot of spotters there like me.

Q. I mean with guns? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. How many outside guards? A. There was no outside guards. It was wide open.

Q. Anybody could go in? A. Yes, sir, women, children and everything.

Q. How many guards to protect the house bank roll? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. How long were you working there? A. About a week.

2425

Q. The spotter's job is to find out who can be cheated? A. No, sir, to find out like, for instance, they got people working in the game as a shill that I should see they didn't put no money in their pockets. That was my job.

Q. The shill is the phoney player? A. That's right, to try to get customers.

Q. The shill, not being allowed to win, might stick money in his pocket and get away? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The shill is employed by the house? A. Yes, sir.

2426

Q. And he has to lead others into the game like an auction sale? A. Yes, sir, start the game.

Q. Until legitimate players come in to lose their money? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Tailey:

Q. In other words, he is the come-on, the shill? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: The decoy duck?

The Witness: I don't understand you, sir.

2427

Q. Did you know a man named Willie Shapiro? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew him before 1936, September, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Irving Shapiro, did you know him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Meyer Shapiro? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They were three brothers, weren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were friendly with them before 1936, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the three of them were murdered, weren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Leon Goldstein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was known as Ear Bender, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a friend of yours, too, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

2429 Q. You knew him before 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew a man named Sammy Silverman, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they both were killed, weren't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before 1936? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You don't know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Weren't they killed before this Rosen killing that you told us about? A. I know the Shapiros were killed. That I know.

Q. What? A. I know the Shapiros were killed in 1936 and the Ear Bender was killed in 1936 and I don't think Sam Silverman was killed 2430 before that.

Q. You don't know when he was killed? A. Yes.

Q. Don't you know he was killed before then? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know a man named Fat Cooperman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a friend of yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he was killed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Killed in his doorway? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you drove him there, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, you put Fat Cooperman on the spot, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you witness Cooperman being killed? A. No, sir.

Q. In his own doorway? A. No, sir.

Q. After you left him there, what did you do with your car? A. I went home, sir.

Q. Did you drive away? A. I didn't know he was killed.

Q. You did not know Fat Cooperman was killed? A. Until I drove home. The next day 2432
I found out. I read in the papers.

Q. You knew the next day he was killed, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew that he was killed immediately after you deposited him at his doorway? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. You cannot tell me? Bernstein, in April, 1933, April 2, 1933, together with a man named Hirshel Bernstein—you know Hirshel Bernstein, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you know a man named Harold Kepner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Together with those two men, you broke 2433 into a poolroom at 1516 Pitkin Avenue, in Brooklyn, through a skylight, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. And you took from a safe there some $600, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you say you had nothing to do with the burglary and theft in that address at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. You mean by that answer, you mean to say that you did not have anything to do with it; is that what you mean? A. No, sir.

Q. On February 24, 1934, did you, with a man named Joseph Gordon and another man known as Cherry, who was Al Glass, and a Max Rozinsky, didn't you steal from a night watchman named Walter Ellis, on Adams Street, Brooklyn, a truck containing 1,014 suits of clothing which were the property of the Howard Clothes Company? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have nothing to do with that theft? A. No, sir.

2435 Q. You knew nothing about it? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure about that? A. No, sir.

Q. And you are telling the truth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Al Glass was a partner of yours, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he was a partner in February, 1934, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you receive some $3,000 as your share of the kidnapping of a man named Batisto Salvo in the Bronx? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure of that now, are you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the 2436 Batisto Salvo kidnapping? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know anything about it? A. No, sir.

Q. How long did you say you worked in this night club in Florida, Miami is it? A. About a week, sir.

Q. Did you commit any burglaries in Florida? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you commit burglaries in Florida from the time you went down there? A. No, sir.

Q. Before 1936, the month of September, and 1930 or 1933 we will make it when you left this leather factory, how many times had you been in Florida? A. You will have to repeat that question again, sir.

2437

Q. How many times were you in Florida between the years 1933 and 1936? A. Maybe once.

Q. Once? Weren't you there every year? A. I really can't tell you, sir.

Q. Well, how many times? Go back to 1930. How many times were you in Florida between 1930 and 1936? A. Once or twice, sir.

Q. Is that all? A. I think so.

2438

Q. How long did you remain in 1939 at the time you worked for a week in the gambling house? A. How long? About a month, sir.

Q. How long? A. About a month.

Q. You were married at that time, weren't you, 1939? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was your wife with you that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever take your wife to Florida on any of these trips you made? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you say you never committed any burglaries or crimes in Florida? A. No, sir.

2439

Mr. Turkus: May the record indicate that the witness means no, that he did not. That has been answered before.

The Court: The answer has to speak for itself.

Q. From 1930 to 1939, to 1940, during that ten years how many times were you in California? A. 1940, you say?

Q. From 1930 to 1940, that ten year period. I want to make the dates easy for you. A. About six or seven times.

2440 Q. In California, weren't you a thief there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you commit any crimes in California on any of the trips you made there? A. No, sir.

Q. Was your wife with you on any of those trips to California? A. No, sir.

Q. How many times did you go to Monticello, in New York State? A. In Monticello, sir?

Q. To Monticello, or Sullivan County, some-2441 where in that location? A. About eight or ten times, sir.

Q. Did you take your wife with you on any of those trips? A. Just once, sir.

Q. Once? A. To Monticello.

Q. In what year? A. 1937.

Q. You did commit some crimes in Monticello, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Weren't you mixed up with the Yuran murder in Monticello? A. I don't know what you mean, sir.

Q. Do you know what the words "mixed up"
2442 mean? A. I told you what I had to do, sir. I helped them bury the body. That's all I know.

Q. You took the police to where the body was buried, didn't you? A. I don't know what you mean by "mixed up".

Q. Do you know what the word "involved" means? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Ah! I will be more careful.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the "Ah!" be stricken from the record.

The Court: Let it stand.

Q. Were you involved in the Yuran murder? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that crime was committed up in Sullivan County, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were in Los Angeles, weren't you, when you were on the trips to the West? A. What do you mean?

Q. What do I mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us see how much plainer that could be made. Were you in Los Angeles on any of the trips which you made to California? It cannot 2444 be any plainer in language than that, can it? A. Will you repeat that again, sir?

The Court: Have you ever been to Los Angeles?

The Witness: Plenty of times; about eight to ten times.

Q. What was difficult about understanding in that question? A. I just didn't get it clear, sir.

Q. In 1937 were you in Los Angeles? A. I think so.

Q. Was Hershel Bernstein with you? A. No, 2445
sir.

Q. No? A. No, sir.

Q. Sure about that? A. Some year I met Hershel Bernstein over that, that's right, sir. One year, I don't know what year it was.

Q. You say it was 1937 or wasn't 1937? A. I don't remember the year, but I met him out there.

Q. He was a thief, wasn't he? A. I don't know, sir.

2446

Q. In 1937, in company with Hershel Bernstein, didn't you commit a burglary in Los Angeles? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that Hershel Bernstein was sent away for a year to jail in Los Angeles? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You sent him money there, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were in Los Angeles at the time the burglary for which Hershel Bernstein was 2447 sent to jail was committed, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long after the commission of that burglary did you get away from Los Angeles? A. What do you mean, get away?

Q. Go away, depart, scram. You know what I mean by get away.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Talley: I am trying to speak in words of one syllable.

2448 Mr. Turkus: The words are not synonymous.

The Court: How long did you remain in Los Angeles after Hershel was arrested for burglary?

The Witness: About a month, sir.

Q. Did you remain there for his trial? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you away before he was put on trial? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he put in jail after his arrest for the burglary? A. Yes, sir.

2449

Q. Was he kept in jail? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he in jail while you still remained in Los Angeles? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Is he related to you?

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. You hired the lawyer for Hershel Bernstein in 1937, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you commit burglary, Bernstein, in a store known as Shimmy's Clothing Store on Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn? A. No, sir.

2450

Q. Didn't you commit a burglary in the Finance Company's premises on Pitkin Avenue and Douglas Street? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you commit a burglary in Nokel's Cigar Store here in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you commit a burglary in the Parkway Restaurant? A. No, sir.

Q. On Pitkin Avenue? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you not commit a burglary in Dubrow's Restaurant? A. No, sir.

2451

Q. Did you not commit a burglary or theft in a bus terminal in Queens County? A. No, sir.

Q. In 1934? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you not commit a burglary in a hotel up in the mountains, around Monticello, in Sullivan County? A. No, sir.

Q. In the shylocking business you had to borrow a lot of money to finance yourself, didn't you? A. Borrow? I gambled, sir, and I won some money.

Q. To get money to loan to other people? A. What?

2452

Q. You had to get money to loan to other people, didn't you? A. What do you mean get? I had it—

Q. Where did you get it? A. I gambled.

Q. You did not borrow any money from anybody in order to carry on the shylock business, did you? A. Sometimes I was short, I took it from different shylocks.

Q. Where did you get it from when you were short? A. Louis Capone, Harry Strauss and 2453 Mike Sycoff.

Q. Not Mendy Weiss? You forgot him, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not forget him? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not get any money from him, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever borrow any money from Food Dealers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was to carry on your shylock business, wasn't it? A. That was when I got stuck.

Q. That was to carry on your shylock business, wasn't not? A. Whenever I got stuck and 2454 I could not pay the shylocks, I had that ace in the hole.

Q. Why didn't you mention that when I was asking you the people from whom you had borrowed money? A. I borrowed from a lot of banks.

Q. You borrowed as much as $50,000., didn't you, from the Food Dealers? A. I don't keep no figures.

Q. You don't keep no figures? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you keep any figures of the moneys that you loaned other people? A. Yes, sir.

2455

Q. Then you did keep some figures, didn't you? A. Not in the banks.

Q. Did you keep any record of the moneys that people borrowed from you that they did not pay back? A. Did I keep any records? Yes, sir.

Q. You kept records on cards, didn't you? A. What do you mean? I don't understand you, sir.

Q. You don't understand what the word "cards" is? A. I know what the cards mean.

2456

Q. You know what the word "record" is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. My question is, did you not keep records of these shylock transactions on cards, memorandum cards, not playing cards? A. On cards?

Q. C-a-r-d-s? A. On the customers, you mean, sir?

Q. Did you not keep records of your transactions in the shylocking business on cards, memorandum cards? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So your statement that you kept no records was not true, was it? You did keep records?

2457

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He made it clear what records he referred to.

Mr. Talley: I am cross-examining, your Honor.

Mr. Turkus: That does not permit an improper statement of fact to be offered to the witness.

Mr. Talley: He said, "I keep no records." That is what he said. I have now brought out that he has kept records.

2458 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.

The Court: I think his previous answer related to moneys which he borrowed for the purpose of loan. I thought I understood you to ask him if he had borrowed $50,000 from certain banks.

Mr. Talley: Relating to his records of the shylocking business.

The Court: Do you mean you did not keep records of what you loaned?

2459 The Witness: I did keep records of the loaned shylock money, yes, but I did not keep records in the banks.

The Court: You did not keep any books?

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. You borrowed as much as $50,000, didn't you, from the Food Dealers?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, unless he fixes the period of time in which it was borrowed.

2460 The Court: Overruled. All told.

Q. We are waiting for your answer. A. I did not keep no figures.

Q. Don't you know without the figures? A. It might have been, sir.

Q. Was it? A. It might have been close to that, or maybe more.

Q. Is that your best answer, it might have been? A. It might have been, maybe more. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. So you had quite an extensive business as a shylock, didn't you? A. No, sir, gambling, sir.

Q. You borrowed the money from the Food Dealers Association, if it was that, or bank, for your shylocking, not your gambling business, isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That was not the testimony. It was to re-pay the shylocks whom he enumerated. He said it was an ace in the hole. 2462

Mr. Talley: I object to the statement of the District Attorney.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.

The Court: Overruled.

(Question read by reporter.)

A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. What did you do, borrow that on demand notes? A. I had some man who made good for me all the time. 2463

Q. Was it on demand notes or I.O.U.'s? A. I don't know, because he had a big property on Pitkin Avenue and he was good for a lot of money there.

Q. Was it secured loans? A. I suppose so.

Q. You must have paid a pretty good rate for it? A. Thousand dollar loans, five hundred dollar loans, something like that.

Q. How much did you pay? A. I think it was $72.50 for $1,000.

Mr. Turkus: May I have the first part of the answer, from whom he borrowed this money?

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Who was the man that had property on Pitkin Avenue? A. Charles Meyers of 171 Herzl Street, and I will give you some more if you want to know.

2465 Q. And he used to endorse your notes, didn't he? Meyers endorsed your notes? A. What did you say?

Q. Meyers was one of those who would endorse your notes? A. Yes.

Q. Sign his name on the back? A. And if you want to also know who gave me loans of this bank, I will tell you, too.

Q. I will ask you at the proper time, if you will just answer the questions you are asked.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I move to strike out the voluntary answer of the witness?

2466 The voluntary statement of the witness I ask to strike out.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: I ask it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor, in view of the fact that we had a morning recess and the witness has forgotten, that your Honor admonish this witness to answer questions and not volunteer.

The Court: So admonished.

Mr. Talley: Will you tell the witness that? I am sure he will say he did not understand what you meant by the words, "So admonished".

2467

The Court: Yes. You put your mind on the questions; then you will understand them better and simply answer them. There are enough lawyers in court to take care of everything.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. There came a time when Charley Meyers refused to endorse any more of your notes, 2468 didn't there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you struck his daughter, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Never touched her? A. No, sir.

Q. Why, didn't she have you arrested and weren't you arraigned in court?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. On her charge of assault?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. I thought your Honor had admonished Judge Talley 2469 that an arrest is not proper evidence.

Mr. Talley: I am asking about an act here.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I take an exception.

Q. The fact is that you got Charlie Meyers to pull his daughter off the charge she made against you, isn't that right?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I take an exception.

2470 Q. And didn't you threaten Meyers and threaten his daughter that if they testified in court against you that harm would come to them? A. No, sir.

Q. Why, didn't you pay $200 to the Meyers girl or to her father to have them pull off the charge against you of assault? A. No, sir.

Q. In 1934 you stole $7,000 worth of merchandise from Abe Stark's store, didn't you? A. No, sir.

2471 Q. Did you know anything about that burglary? A. No, sir.

Q. Or theft? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of a store kept by Abe Stark or known as Abe Stark's store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean by that you never heard of it, is that what you mean?

Mr. Turkus: Object to that. That is not the meaning at all.

Q. Then you did hear of Abe Stark's store, did you? A. Yes, sir.

2472 Q. Where was it? A. On Pitkin Avenue.

Q. Was it in 1934 broken into? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Was there a burglary there? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear that there was a burglary in Abe Stark's store in which he claimed to have lost $7,000 worth of merchandise? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of that? A. No, sir.

Q. How well did you know Abe Stark? A. I knew him like this, buy clothes there.

2473

Q. You used to buy clothes there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you buy them in 1934? A. I am buying them for a good many years there. I don't know how long, sir.

Q. Well, can you tell us whether 1934 was one of the years you were buying them?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

2474

Q. Do you mean to say that Abe Stark never told you that he had been robbed of $7,000 worth of merchandise?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: That is the leading clothing store in Brownsville, is it not?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Has been for years?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

2475

Q. How many automobiles do you say that you have stolen? A. Close to 75 cars.

Q. 75 cars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the truth now?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form of the question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Turkus: The word "now" is what I objected to.

2476 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Is it the truth you are telling us here about those cars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was not more than 75 or a hundred, was it? A. I don't know, sir. Close to 75.

Q. And do you say that you never used what you described as a hot-box in any of your thefts of these 75 cars? A. No, sir, except what Muggsy used.

Q. Excepting what? A. No, sir, except that Muggsy used in this here case.

2477 Q. This one case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the only time that a hot-box, which is an appliance to start a car, was used, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your method of starting the cars that you stole? A. Stole them out of garages.

Q. You never stole a car from the sidewalk until you stole this car that you used in the Rosen case, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how was it that you, with a record as an automobile thief, having stolen 75, why did you have to get Muggsy Cohen or anybody else to help you steal a car? A. Because I didn't know there was going to be a murder, sir.

2473

Q. When did you learn that there was going to be a murder? A. When I seen Louis Capone, four o'clock, on Sackman and Livonia.

Q. What time was it that you say you saw Louis Capone? A. About four o'clock.

Q. And that he told you? A. Saturday.

Q. Four o'clock in the afternoon or morning? A. In the afternoon, when he showed me the route, he came to the store.

2479

Q. He pointed out the store and said, "Somebody is going to be killed there"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you knew that you were to drive the car for the men that were doing the killing, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When he told you that somebody was going to be killed in that candy store, you did not tell the police? A. I was not a stool pigeon then.

2480

Q. Did you?

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand. It is responsive to Judge Talley's question.

Mr. Rosenthal: The answer to that is yes or no.

The Court: Strike it out. Say yes or no. Did you tell the police?

The Witness: No.

2481

Q. You did nothing to prevent the killing in this candy store that you were told about, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. In the trial of Gangi Cohen in Monticello, in June term of the County Court, Sullivan County, 1940, you were sworn to tell the truth, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were you asked this question and did you make this reply (page 70 of the minutes of that trial):

"Q. Did you ever steal a car? A. Yes.

Q. How many times did you steal cars? A. Once or twice."

2482

The Witness: I mean in two cases, sir.

Q. You mean in two cases? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive. The question was, was he asked that question and did he make that reply.

The Court: Strike out the answer.

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said it.

2483

Q. It is in the book. A. I said it.

Q. That was not true, was it? A. No, sir.

Q. Instead of stealing a car once or twice before June, 1940, you had stolen between 75 and a hundred, hadn't you? A. Before when, sir?

Q. June, 1940, when you testified in Monticello? A. Yes.

Q. Have not stolen any since then, have you? A. Since when?

Q. Since June, 1940? June of last year? A. I was arrested, sir.

2484

Q. I say you have not stolen any since that time, have you? A. I was under police protection, sir.

Q. All right. When did you get under police protection? A. Some time in April, 1940.

Q. April, 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you went under police protection because you gave yourself up, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were not arrested; you walked into Captain McDonough's or Detective McDonough's office? A. Who?

2485

Q. You walked into Detective McDonough and gave yourself up, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you give yourself up? A. I gave myself up to Detective John McDonough and he brought me to the District Attorney's office where District Attorney O'Dwyer and Captain Bals were.

Q. Didn't you do that, give yourself up to Detective McDonough? A. There he is right there (indicating).

2486

Q. Did you give yourself up to Detective McDonough? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And he has been with you ever since, hasn't he? A. What do you mean he is with me ever since?

Q. Had you in custody ever since? A. No, sir.

Q. Is he down in the Half Moon Hotel with you? A. No, sir.

Q. By the way, did you ever have any talk with Mrs. Rosen in the Half Moon Hotel? A. I don't know if she was there, sir.

2487

Q. Did you have any talk with her? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see her there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any talk with Abe Reles in the Half Moon Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Many times? A. Yes, sir, about baseball, football, radio.

Q. Nothing about crime in Brooklyn? A. We are not allowed to talk about any case, sir, because the cops are always there.

Q. The cops are always there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So all you talked about with Abe Reles was baseball and football? A. Yes, sir.

2488 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. And horse racing? A. Very seldom I talked with that mouse.

Q. Referring to Abe Reles as a mouse? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you tell us how many times you talked with him? A. I very seldom talked up there, sir.

Q. How many times did you tell us you talked with him? A. I said I very seldom talked with him, sir.

2489 Q. How many times I asked you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is answered three times in a row "very seldom" and the reason must be quite obvious even to Judge Talley.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any statement.

Mr. Turkus: Why didn't you make a statement and sit down?

Mr. Talley: What difference does it make what statement he makes?

2490 By the Court:

Q. Do you remember how many times you talked to Reles in the Half Moon? Just yes or no. A. About a year, sir.

Q. How many times, ten, twelve, fifteen, twenty? A. About 366 or 367, something like that.

Q. Several hundred times?

Mr. Talley: 366 or 370 times you talked with Abe Reles.

2491

Q. It is a daily matter, isn't it? A. No, sir, it isn't; I don't go around talking; I only look.

Q. Have you ever talked with him about the case? A. No, sir; we are not allowed to talk about any case, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you live in the same room with Abe Reles? A. What do you mean, I lived in the same room, sir?

2492

Q. Oh, you know what "live in the same room" means. Answer the question. Did you live in the same room with Abe Reles? A. I saw him there but I slept in a different room with two detectives guarding me.

Q. In the Half Moon Hotel did you occupy the same room as Reles? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: To sleep?

The Witness: I do not sleep with him.

The Court: Have you ever slept in the same room?

The Witness: No, sir.

2493

Q. Since you have been living in the Half Moon Hotel, you received visits from your wife, didn't you? A. Yes, once a week and there are always detectives with us.

Q. You never were left alone with your wife in the Half Moon Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. I am positive.

Q. And what time were the visits that your wife was allowed to make to you? A. She comes from two to six, sir, just Sundays because she works, sir.

Q. And at all times when your wife was with you in the room, there was a detective in the room with you; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the last time she called to see you? A. Sunday, sir.

Q. Last Sunday? A. This here Sunday coming.

Q. What detective was in the room while she was visiting you? A. Brennan, sir.

Q. Has he been there before? A. What do you mean? Yes, sir.

2495

Q. Brennan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has he been there at frequent times in the 365 days that you were talking to Reles in the Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He has been almost constantly there, hasn't he? A. There is a lot of detectives there, sir.

Q. He is Brennan? A. I don't understand you, sir.

Q. Was District Attorney O'Dwyer in the court room in Monticello when you were testifying? A. I don't know, sir. I didn't take notice.

Q. Will you say that he was or was not? A.

2496

I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Can you remember? Did you see District Attorney O'Dwyer in Monticello while that trial was on? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not talk with Judge O'Dwyer in Monticello at any time when you were there, did you? A. At the trial, sir?

Q. At the trial or at the time of the trial, before court opened, after it closed, during recess, any time during that period? A. Yes, sir, did not see him.

Q. You did talk with him? A. No, sir. I didn't.

Q. You mean by "Yes, sir" no, sir?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He said "I did not see him." I have an objection to the statement made by Judge Talley that "Yes, sir" means "No, sir."

The Court: I think Judge Talley did not hear the latter part of the answer. He said "Yes, sir, I did not see him."

Q. Did you see District Attorney O'Dwyer while you were in Monticello in connection with the trial of the Gangi Cohen case? A. No, sir.

2498

Q. Was District Attorney O'Dwyer before the Grand Jury in this case, the Rosen case, when you testified? A. No, sir.

Q. Who examined you there, Mr. Turkus? A. In the Grand Jury room?

Q. Yes. A. Mr. Heffernan and Mr. Hanley, sir.

Q. And did you tell the truth before the Grand Jury of this county? A. Yes, everything.

Q. All of it? A. All of it, yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell the Grand Jury that you had stolen 75 to a hundred automobiles? A. No, sir.

2499

Mr. Turkus: He first has to be asked it. I object to it.

Mr. Talley: I object to the statement made by the District Attorney. If he wants to be examined on these things, I will take great pleasure in putting some questions to him if he takes the stand.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: I do not know who is overruled. Don't be so quick with your exception. I take objection to the form of the question because the Grand Jury proceeding is conducted with Q. and A. and the witness in order to answer must be questioned.

The Court: The questions that are answered are the questions that are asked. I take it when he said he told everything, he means everything in response to the questions that were asked.

2501 Q. Bernstein, why did you testify falsely in this murder case in Monticello about your stealing 75 or a hundred automobiles?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the question itself. Exception.

A. Because the whole mob was not picked up yet. I didn't want to give no information.

2502 Q. Therefore you testified under oath falsely, is that right? A. Yes, sir, not to give any information.

Q. Did you tell the District Attorney that you were going to testify falsely because all the mob were not picked up? A. What did you say, sir?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I was told not to talk about any other case.

Q. Who told you that? A. Somebody in the District Attorney's office. I don't recall who. I didn't tell all of the truth up there, sir.

Q. What? A. I didn't tell all of the truth up there, sir, but just the truth about Gangi, sir, mostly.

The Court: When you say some one in the District Attorney's office, that case up there was not tried by District Attorney O'Dwyer's office; it was tried by the local District Attorney?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Do you mean somebody connected with the local District Attorney's office or somebody from District Attorney O'Dwyer's office? 2504

The Witness: I don't know who they were, sir.

The Court: Was it somebody connected with that trial?

The Witness: I really can't tell you, sir. I don't know who is who.

Mr. Rosenthal: I cannot hear the answer.

The Court: He said he does not know who was who. 2505

You understand the District Attorney of Kings County did not try that case?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: That was tried by the local District Attorney at Monticello?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. It was not the local District Attorney or any Assistant District Attorney in Sullivan County that told you not to tell all the truth, was it?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that. That is not the testimony. That is a scurrilous and scandalous attack on a public official without warrant or justification.

2506 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Yes, that is not a fair inference. He said that he was told not to talk about any other case. It is apparent that this was his interpretation of that instruction from the person whom he cannot identify.

2507 Q. What were you told about not telling all of the facts in your testimony in Monticello?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. There is no such testimony in the record. It carries with it an implication unfounded in any of the testimony.

The Court: He has already answered it. Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Was the man who spoke to you about your testimony part of the District Attorney's office 2508 in Brooklyn? A. I didn't know who was who, sir.

Q. You don't know who was who? A. No, sir.

Q. Would you take a statement from anybody without knowing who he was?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

The Court: Sustained as argumentative.

Mr. Talley: Exception. It is not argumentative. I respectfully except to your Honor's ruling.

Q. Do you know whether the man was part of the District Attorney's office in Sullivan County that told you that? A. Can't tell you that, sir. I don't know.

Q. But following the direction of whoever it was that told you, whom you now don't know, you did conceal some of the truth in the trial in Monticello, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, please the Court: I object to the preamble. It is 2510 not consistent with the testimony already given.

The Court: I am just trying to think. It is a close question. The question as to how many automobiles were stolen is not connected with the prosecution of any murder case. The only reason it may be gone into is on the question if impeaching the credibility of the witness by showing his criminal tendencies. He has abundantly admitted plenty of that.

Mr. Talley: I don't think we have 2511 scratched the surface of it, Judge.

Mr. Turkus: I ask—

Mr. Talley: I intend to pursue it as far as I can.

The Court: The Court is going to give you liberal latitude. I think you better re-frame that question because it is a little puzzling in its form.

Q. You swore falsely in your trial in Monticello, didn't you?

2512 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I have got to pick up. In view of the objection that has been made, I have got to ask these preliminary questions. I except to your Honor's ruling.

Q. This testimony that you gave that I have read to you, in which you were asked how many 2513 times did you steal cars, and you said once or twice, was false, wasn't it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Talley: Exception. I insist that on cross examination I have a right to repeat.

The Court: I have here on my notes that he admits the theft of about seventy-five cars.

2514 Mr. Talley: I am proceeding on another line.

The Court: That stands.

Mr. Talley: I am proceeding on another line.

The Court: Go ahead, then, Judge.

Q. In what other respects did you testify falsely in this trial in Monticello? A. The lawyer started asking me about different cases. I got confused in the blizzard. I didn't know what to say. I said that, knowing I was doing wrong that lawyer over there (indicating).

Q. You knew you were doing wrong when you gave this testimony? A. Because he wanted to get information out of me.

Q. Did you? A. About different cases.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as voluntary and not an answer to the question.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand—responsive and it explains a whole line of questioning.

The Court: Let it stand. 2516

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. In what other matters did you testify falsely in this trial in Monticello?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Talley: I have not the answer.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, you have.

Mr. Talley: No, I have not.

Mr. Turkus: He has just given an answer which Mr. Rosenthal wanted stricken out and the court let it stand. That is the 2517 answer.

The Court: I don't think it is an answer.

The Court: Do you recall in any other respects that you gave false testimony in Monticello? Search your memory and see if you can remember any points.

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said it, but I can explain about that.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Do you at this time remember in what respects you gave otherwise false testimony?

The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I cannot hear.

The Court: The court tried at the outset of this trial to get amplifiers but the cost is prohibitive and there is no fund out of which to make the purchase, so we have to accept the acoustic properties of this room for what they are.

2519 Mr. Rosenthal: I am not complaining about that. All I am complaining of is that I did not hear the question. May I have the privilege of having it repeated, plus the answer?

The Court: Much of the difficulty in hearing in this room is due to street noise and also at certain times there is an undercurrent of room noise that has to be overcome.

2520 Q. When you say you were in a blizzard, do you mean you were all befogged? You do not mean there was actually a blizzard in Sullivan County in June, 1940? A. I was in a blizzard.

By the Court:

Q. Explain what you mean by that. A. I was in a fog.

Q. You mean mental? A. I don't know what he was saying.

Q. Do you mean you were confused? A. Yes, sir, I was confused.

Q. You do not mean snow was falling? A. No, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. And were you confused on the question of whether you had been the thief in the case of seventy-five or a hundred automobiles and one or two? Do you mean to say you answered that way because you were confused?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Yes, he has testified he had a different reason for answering that question untruthfully. He has told us what that reason is. Sustained. 2522

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Most of these seventy-five or hundred cars that you stole were before 1936, weren't they? A. No, sir.

Q. Were most of them after September 13, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many had you stolen before September 13, 1936? A. About ten or twelve, sir.

Q. Then you did not extensively go into the automobile stealing business until after the Rosen killing, is that right? A. Yes, I got graduated, sir. 2523

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand as responsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that it be stricken.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. You never were once put in jail for stealing these seventy-five or a hundred cars, were you? A. I got arrested once for a stolen car.

2524 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. That is the time you pleaded guilty, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the only time out of seventy-five or a hundred times you stole cars that you were arrested? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And on that occasion when you were arrested for stealing the car, there was a gun found in the car, wasn't there? A. No, sir.

Q. You don't mean that, do you? A. No, sir—yes, sir.

2525 Q. Do you mean that you heard no talk about a gun being found in that car when you pleaded guilty to having stolen the car?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the question—

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: That he answered no.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. When the car was picked up, don't you know that a gun was found in it?

2526

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered in the negative.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Were any of these cars that you stole used in a murder case other than this Rosen case? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You don't know? A. No, sir.

Q. At the time you were arrested for the crime for which you later pleaded guilty, that is, stealing an automobile, when the car was picked up there was powder inside the car and cartridges there, were there not?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as already answered.

Mr. Talley: He has not answered that.

Mr. Turkus: Then it would be impossible to answer because if he was arrested he could not see what went on in the car.

The Court: Did you see any?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: Did you know of any? 2528

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Did you hear any officers testify on your trial or at your plea of guilty what the condition of the car was when it was picked up?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is elementary.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. So your testimony now is—and you are not in any blizzard now, are you? 2529

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute.

Q. Your testimony now is that in respect to the car that you pleaded guilty to stealing, you never heard until now, when I spoke that a gun was found in that car, that there was evidence of gunpowder inside the car, and that there were some bullets in the same car? Is that your answer?

2530

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: That is worse than elementary.

Mr. Cuff: That is highly reprehensible

Mr. Turkus: It is a wonder he would not know it. He was a Judge. You should know it. You were an assistant.

Mr. Talley: I am trying to speak in words of one syllable so that the witness will understand it.

2531

Q. Did you know a man named Red Rabiner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he an automobile thief? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. What was he? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Was he a friend of yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he steal the car that was used in the killing of Thomas Hitter, the fireman, here in the Borough of Brooklyn?

2532

Mr. Turkus: I object to dragging in any other case in which this witness has no part.

Mr. Cuff: I object to that statement.

Mr. Turkus: He asked if a man named Red Rabiner stole the car used in the Hitter murder.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the theft of that car? A. No, sir. Counsellor Barshay can tell you about that case. He questioned me two days.

2533

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike the answer out.

Q. I am asking you. A. He questioned me when he was District Attorney.

Mr. Barshay: May I move to strike out any information that that man may think I have, has nothing to do with this case.

The Court: Strike it out.

2534

Mr. Turkus: Consented to.

Q. Did you send any money to Rabiner while he was in jail on that charge?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the killing of Fireman Hitter?

2535

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered in the negative.

The Court: Overruled. Yes or no.

A. No, sir.

Q. That is not one of the murders that you were identified with here in the Borough of Brooklyn, was it?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That carries with it an implication.

Mr. Talley: Why, he said he is a mur-

2536 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

derer. He testified he was in the murder business.

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor tell Judge Talley to reserve whatever summation he has for the proper time.

Mr. Talley: This man has said that he was a murderer. He said it from that witness chair.

Mr. Turkus: He said your client was, too. That is something you are not talk-2537 ing about.

Mr. Cuff: If your Honor pleases, I think the statement of Mr. Turkus is improper and should be stricken from the record, and your Honor should reprimand him for making it.

The Court: He has said that he was a participant in the Rosen murder. He has said that he assisted in the illegal disposition of a body alleged to have been the subject of a murder which he himself was not a participant in, in Sullivan County.
2538 That is as far as the evidence on that point goes. The objection is sustained.

Q. Bernstein, aren't you the man that killed Fireman Hitter? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember when Fireman Hitter was killed?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, not the subject matter of this inquiry.

The Court: Overruled. Within reasonable limitations inquiry may be made directly along that line, although the issue itself may not be tried. This comes under the specific impeachment rule.

2539

(Question read by reporter.)

A. I was in the bank, sir. I was told about that—Modern Industrial Bank.

Mr. Rosenthal: I do not hear.

The Witness: I was in the bank, the Modern Industrial Bank. I was told about 2540 it by the president. The special officer and the Litvins were there. Counsellor Barshay questioned me on that case.

Q. When you were told about the killing of Fireman Hitter, you were in a bank? A. Yes, sir, to get a $5,000 loan.

Q. For your shylocking business? A. To pay different shylocks. No, I made good for Joe Litvin, the Litvin brothers.

Q. Were you visiting or being attended by some doctor for some trouble with your leg on 2541 the day that Fireman Hitter was killed? A. No, sir. I don't know nothing about that case, sir.

Q. What? A. I don't know nothing about that case, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not you ever were attended by a physician for something that was wrong with your leg?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered in the negative.

The Court: Overruled. Do you remember that?

2542 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Witness: What is that again, sir?

(Question read by reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: He was ever attended by a physician, that is incompetent, irrelevant—

The Court: He means by that—

Mr. Turkus: He stated he was in a bank, making a $5,000 loan.

The Court: Around that time were you being attended for your leg?

2543 The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Do you know a doctor named Wiener? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you being attended by Doctor Wiener? A. About what, sir?

Q. About something that was wrong with one of your legs? A. No, sir.

Q. He never attended you for that? A. No, sir.

Q. Was there a time when you were lame from some affliction in one of your legs, something the matter with one of your legs?

2544

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, having nothing to do with this homicide that we are trying.

The Court: Overruled.

A. What did you say?

Q. Why didn't you listen?

Mr. Turkus: I object to this gratuitous statement made by Mr. Talley.

Mr. Talley: Perfectly natural question.

2545

Mr. Turkus: Perfectly natural for any witness to lose the question.

The Court: It is quite a common ailment. Even counsel may ask a question and in the ensuing discussion lose track of the question.

Mr. Talley: There has not been any discussion on this question, none whatever.

(Question read by reporter.)

2546

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember when the Fireman Hitter murder occurred here?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He has gone over that.

Mr. Talley: Going over it again.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. I was in the Modern Industrial Bank, sir.

Q. When? A. The time the president told all of us.

2547

Q. When was the time of the Hitter, Fireman Hitter, killing? A. You can check up on that loan, that $5,000 loan. Mr. Barshay checked up on that, sir.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.

Mr. Barshay: Lest anybody misunderstand, I was in the D. A.'s office.

The Court: I was just about to clear that up.

Mr. Barshay: I was investigating that case.

2548

The Court: You had charge of the initial investigation.

Mr. Barshay: Positively. I investigated this man, but that has nothing to do with this case, and I object to my name being brought in.

The Court: You can interrupt, Judge Talley, if you do not want this question asked—

Mr. Barshay: I am speaking for my-

2549 self.

Mr. Turkus: There is something going on at the foot of the jury box by way of stage whispers.

Mr. Rosenthal: There are stage whispers in front of the jury box continuously.

The Court: Stage whispers cannot be heard in this room. When the Judge talks in an audible tone it cannot be heard. Just listen to this, please.

By the Court:

2550

Q. Was the Modern Industrial Bank the bank where Fireman Hitter had cashed the payroll checks? A. Yes, sir, the president said so.

Q. Just before the murder? A. Yes, sir, the president said so, and there was a special cop over there and I think the lawyer was there and the five Litvin brothers and Charles Meyer was there.

Q. And that is the way you got the news. When he was carrying the money back from the bank to the firehouse he was shot and killed? A. Yes, sir, and he got the records, and everything.

Q. Your alibi is in the fact that you were in the bank when the news came after? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were negotiating a $5,000 loan? A. Yes, sir, it was a $5,000 loan, or a renewal for that $5,000.

Mr. Barshay: Now, your Honor, may I ask as a favor to me, please, so that nobody will misunderstand, let the record show that I have nothing to do with this 2552 part of this examination and I have a general objection to it and I don't want to have my name drawn into it so that anybody may misunderstand.

The Court: You were the public official who investigated it.

Mr. Barshay: That is right, sir.

The Court: But at that time the case did not break. It was later on investigated. The investigation was reopened upon other evidence being obtained.

Mr Barshay: I did that, too. I re- 2553 opened that myself.

The Court: And you were not in the office when the case was tried?

Mr. Barshay: Positively, sir.

The Court: And this man was not the defendant in that case.

Mr. Barshay: That is right, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you know a man named Sandy Reles? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of him? A. No, sir.

2554

Q. Didn't you know that a man named Sandy Reles— A. Excuse me, sir.

Q. What? A. I heard of Reles.

Q. You talked 365 days or 366 days to Abe Reles, didn't you? A. That name I will never forget, sir, never.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.

The Witness: When you say Reles, I will never forget that name, sir.

2555

Q. Didn't you just tell us that you have spoken as many as 365 times to a man named Abe Reles? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And now you tell us that you heard that name, didn't you? A. Reles.

Q. Now I am asking you if you know a man named Sandy Reles? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of Sandy Reles, is that right? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't Sandy Reles the shylock that carried on business right in the neighborhood of this Rosen candy store? A. No, sir; don't even know him, sir.

2556

Q. The first thing that Strauss said to you when you say you were sitting in your car on the Friday before the Sunday upon which Rosen was killed, was to go out and get a car; is that right? A. In the presence of all of them Friday at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. He said that to you privately, didn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. And then you immediately went out to get a car, didn't you? A. No, sir; I went to get a drop first.

Q. Went to get a drop? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew exactly where to go to get a drop, didn't you? A. I cruised around, sir, first. Q. Cruised around? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that neighborhood thoroughly, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had lived there as a boy, hadn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had driven through every street in Brownsville, hadn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you raised your eyes up and looked at the ceiling, giving us this route that 2558 you say you drove about, you had driven over those streets maybe a hundred times, had you not?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the testimony at all.

Mr. Talley: I still insist, if your Honor please, I am cross-examining this witness and I should be allowed to continue.

Mr. Turkus: But that is no license to misquote testimony.

Mr. Talley: The District Attorney 2559 seems to forget, if he ever knew—

The Court: He said he was familiar with the locality.

Mr. Talley: I want to press it further than that.

The Court: You may.

Mr. Talley: Thank you.

Q. You knew every one of these streets that you testified to as the route that you were told to take by Capone? A. Never forget that.

2560 Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.

The Witness: Louis Capone made sure of that.

Mr. Talley: And I ask for a direct answer to my question.

The Witness: Louis Capone made sure of that and I never forgot it.

Mr. Talley: I move that that be stricken as not responsive.

The Court: Yes. Yes or no?

2561 Mr. Rosenthal: Your Honor has admonished this witness several times. Evidently he does not understand what the word "admonish" means. I am going to ask your Honor to tell this witness, not admonish him, that it is improper for him to make statements unless he is asked a question and to tell him to refrain from doing it, just as you would any other witness that you would tell that you would punish him for contempt if he disobeys the orders of the Court. I ask you to tell this witness in plain language that he 2562 should not volunteer any infomation here without a question being asked.

Mr. Turkus: May I say to your Honor that there is a rapid fire between the questioner and the witness and those kind of responses are invited by that type of repartee. I consent that he be admonished and I consent that he be instructed.

The Court: One of the favorite duties that a Judge has to perform in the course of a trial is to admonish a lot of people, the ones who answer the questions and the ones who ask them, and every once in a whole there is a slip-up by everybody and, regardless of who it is, the Judge has to repeat the admonition.

2563

(To witness) Do not volunteer evidence. Simply answer the questions. Pay strict attention to the questions.

Q. Do you understand what the Judge has just said to you, Bernstein? A. Yes, sir.

2564

Mr. Rosenthal: Did your Honor strike that out, before I sit down?

The Court: Yes.

Q. Had you ever hired one of these garages where you hired this particular one, before? A. No, sir.

Q. Is this the first time you hired one of these small garages as a drop? A. Before that, sir? Past 1936 I got plenty of drops, sir, but this was the first one, sir.

Q. This is the first time you ever hired a drop? A. Yes, sir, but I had a different drop, sir. 2565

Q. You had what? A. Had a different drop.

Q. You mean you had a drop that was already engaged or rented by you? A. No, sir, where I used to keep my car, sir.

Q. In a drop? A. That is what you call a drop, too, because I used to keep sometimes stolen cars there.

Q. You used to keep stolen cars in your drops? A. Yes, sir, whenever I got orders.

Q. What? A. Whenever I got orders.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.
Mr. Turkus: I move that it stand.
The Court: Strike it out.
Mr. Talley: It cannot stand.

Q. You stole automobiles and put them in drops long before 1936, didn't you? A. Whenever I got orders, sir.
Q. What? A. Whenever I got orders, sir.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike it out and 2567 I ask for a response to my question.
The Court: Just say yes or no.
The Witness: Yes.

Q. And you stole cars and put them in drops long before 1935, didn't you? A. Might have been, sir.
Q. What is your answer? Is it a fact or isn't it? A. Might have been, sir.
Q. Is that your best answer, that it might have been? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Don't you know? A. Yes, yes, about ten 2568 or twelve cars in that time.
Q. You what? A. About ten to twelve cars.
Q. Ten to twelve cars before 1935? Up to 1936.
Q. Before 1935 you had stolen ten to twelve cars, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He just said 1936. Why quibble about it?
Mr. Talley: I object to the District Attorney's comment and statement as to my quibbling about anything. This is serious business.

Mr. Turkus: Not the way you go about it. I object to it.

The Court: He did say 1936. Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you steal cars in 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you steal cars in 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you steal cars in 1933? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that you were an automobile thief two or three years before you ever met the defendant Weiss, weren't you? 2570

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. So those automobiles were not stolen because Weiss gave you any orders, were they? A. Wait a minute, sir.

Q. Answer my question. A. Wait a minute.

Mr. Turkus: The witness is trying to make an explanation and he stops him. 2571

Mr. Talley: I want an answer to my question without any statement.

Mr. Turkus: The witness has a right to answer.

The Court: What is your answer?

The Witness: I knew Weiss to 1935.

The Court: You began to know him then?

The Witness: 1935.

Q. And before 1935 you have told us that you stole cars? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that you stole cars in 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You stole cars in 1933, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1935, when you say you met the defendant Weiss, where did you meet him? A. I met him on Amboy and Pitkin, in a rental station, rent out cars.

2573 Q. In a renting station at Amboy and Pitkin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time of day did you meet him? A. Don't remember, sir.

Q. What month was it that you met him there? A. Can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Who introduced you to him? A. Louis Capone and Harry Strauss.

Q. Those two were in that station and introduced you in 1935, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You don't know what month it was? A. No, sir.

2574 Q. Don't know whether it was winter- or summer-time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Was it in the spring of 1935? A. Can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Was it in the summer? A. I don't remember, sir.

Q. Was it in the fall? A. Can't tell you.

Q. Was it in the winter of 1935? A. Can't tell you that. It might be one of them.

Q. What were you doing in this automobile rental place? A. What was I doing? I passed. I used to hang around Amboy and Sutter, and I passed up to Pitkin Avenue and Louis Capone called me in, into the store. That was my shylock, Amboy and Sutter, and the store was a block away, Amboy and Pitkin.

2575

Q. And you found Mendy Weiss there, did you? A. Yes, sir, with Louis Capone and Harry Strauss.

Q. And how long did you stay with them? A. About fifteen minutes.

Q. Did you talk with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he talk to you? A. Yes, sir.

2576

Q. How was he dressed? A. That I can't tell you, sir.

Q. That you don't remember? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember any date in 1935, such as Election Day? A. I know. What did you say? I know there is twelve months, that's all I can tell you. I know every month, but I don't know what month it was.

Q. Don't know one from another?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not his testimony. He says he does know one from another.

2577

Q. Do you know the difference between winter and summer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the 4th of July, that in the twelve months that you know about there comes a day that is known as the 4th of July? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, was this meeting that you speak about, was that before the 4th of July or after the 4th of July? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Do you know the holiday called Labor Day that comes in September of these twelve months that you are familiar with? A. Yes, sir.

2578 Q. Was this meeting before or after Labor Day of 1935?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. I think it is quite clear the witness is not able to fix the time after these extended questions.

Mr. Talley: That is for the jury.

The Court: He may be able to if he uses a different method, that is, tries to remember the circumstances of the meeting.

2579

Mr. Turkus: But he is not asked that.

The Court: Whether it was indoors or outdoors.

Mr. Talley: Is there a question pending?

The Court: I did not ask a question; I was suggesting. Overruled. Do you remember.

The Witness: I don't remember, sir. It was in a store.

2580 Q. Do you remember whether you had an overcoat on or that you didn't? A. I can't tell you that, sir. Don't remember.

By the Court:

Q. Do you remember any of the circumstances of the meeting? A. That is the only time I seen Mendy Weiss there.

Q. Where was it? A. This was on Amboy and Pitkin, in a rental station.

Q. Was there anything about the circumstances of the meeting that would give any key as to what time of the year it was? A. Yes, I was supposed to do something for them, sir.

Q. Had it any relation, to do with any of the seasons of the year? A. I don't know what you mean, sir.

Q. What were you supposed to do? A. I was supposed to finger somebody.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that.

The Court: I don't mean that. Strike that out. The jury disregard it. 2582

By the Court:

Q. Have you in your mind now a picture of that meeting at the service station or gasoline station? A. It was not a service station. It was a store where they rent out cars.

Q. The meeting was not outside? A. No, in the store, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you see Mendy Weiss after that meeting? 2583 A. After that here?

Q. After the meeting in 1935 that you say you were introduced to him at. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see him frequently? A. No, sir.

Q. How frequently did you see him between that meeting in 1935 and the meeting that you say took place in 1936, in September? A. Just a few times, sir.

Q. How many do you call a few, two? A. Maybe about two or three, sir.

Q. About two or three, you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never knew him very well, did you?

2584 A. Just on account of that, when I got the contract to finger somebody, sir.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out, and I ask an answer to my question.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: I do not think the jury heard it.

The Court: Say nothing more about that.

2585 Q. (Pending question read.) A. I must know him real well now.

Q. Did you know him very well between the meeting in 1935 and the meeting which you say took place in September, 1936?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as already answered, and it is dangerous territory. I do not want anything to happen.

The Court: He can answer it yes or no.

A. Yes.

2586 Q. You did know him very well? A. Yes.

Q. But you only saw him two or three times, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He was a taller man than you, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How tall was he? A. I don't know. I think he is taller than me, sir.

Q. And you are what, 5 foot 7, did you say? A. I am 5 foot 8 or 9.

Q. And he was a heavier man than you, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Always much heavier? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you say he was around 6 feet tall? A. I think so, sir.

Q. Would you say he weighed about 200 pounds? A. I don't know how much he weighed; I never weighed him.

Q. How much did you think when you saw him in 1935 or 1936?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

Mr. Talley: I want him to describe this man he says he knew very well. 2588

The Court: Did you notice him, and, if you noticed, do you remember?

The Witness: He was fatter than that.

The Court: Fatter or thinner?

The Witness: Fatter.

Q. Fatter than he is now? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: In the face or in the body?

The Witness: All over.

Q. After you got the drop, or found the drop, what was the next thing you did in September, 1936? 2589 A. After what, sir?

Q. After you went out and found the drop, what did you next do? A. I went and got in touch with Mugsy Cohen.

Q. Where did you get in touch with Mugsy Cohen? A. On Amboy and Sutter.

Q. Where? A. On Amboy and Sutter.

Q. Amboy and Sutter Avenues in the Borough of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir, Brownsville section.

Q. And what time did you get in touch with him? A. About eight o'clock at night, sir.

Q. Eight o'clock at night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was Friday night, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sure about that? A. Positively, sir.

Q. And it was Friday afternoon when you started out to get your drop, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that eight o'clock you met Mugsy Cohen and you and he started out to steal an automobile; is that right? A. No, sir.

Q. What did you do after you met him? A. I
2591 seen him; I told him to do me a favor, twelve o'clock to come around on Amboy and Sutter, I need a car.

Q. Come down at twelve o'clock at night? A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. Amboy and Sutter.

Q. The same place you were talking? A. Yes, and told him to get a jump box, a hot box; said, "Bring around your hot box."

Q. To bring around a hot box? A. Yes, I told him that I need a car, sir.

Q. You already had stolen up to this time seventy-five or a hundred cars. You say that 2592 you had to get Mugsy Cohen to help you steal this one; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the testimony. He said before 1936 it was ten or twelve; after 1936 was the majority. Consequently, it has been answered.

Q. You had stolen a good many automobiles before this talk with Mugsy Cohen, hadn't you? A. Yes, ten to twelve.

Q. Still you had to go to Mugsy Cohen to help you steal this particular car; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time did you meet Mugsy Cohen? A. Twelve o'clock at night, on Amboy and Sutter.

Q. You are sure it was eight o'clock on Friday night that you saw Mugsy Cohen and talked to him about this car that was going to be stolen, is that right? A. About eight o'clock at night, sir.

Q. You are sure about that, are you? A. Yes, 2594
sir.

Q. And you are sure it was eight o'clock on Friday night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you asked these questions and did you make these answers here in this court-room on last Friday (page 507):

"Q. After you got the lock for the drop, what did you do next? A. I went to Amboy and Sutter.

"Q. About what time was that? A. It must have been about three o'clock.

"Q. When you say three o'clock, do you mean 2595 three o'clock Saturday morning? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Or Friday morning? A. Three o'clock Friday morning—it was in the afternoon, three o'clock in the afternoon; three o'clock in the afternoon."

That is repeated three times in the testimony.

"Q. I was confused myself as to the time. This is three o'clock in the afternoon?" and then you said, "Yes, sir."

"Q. What did you do? A. Where?

"Q. Where you went at three o'clock in the afternoon. A. I seen Mugsy Cohen.

2596 "Q. Who is Mugsy Cohen? A. A car thief and a radio crook."

Were you asked those questions and did you answer as I have read to you, on last Friday when you were testifying in answer to the District Attorney? A. What you read?

Q. What? A. I seen Louis Capone about one o'clock on Sackman and Livonia.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out that 2597 answer as not responsive.

The Witness: I really don't know what you mean.

Mr. Talley: The question is a simple one, I submit to the Court: Was he asked those questions and did he make those answers? I want the answer yes or no.

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said it.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike the answer out.

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said
2598 it.

Q. Do you remember now that you testified that it was three o'clock in the afternoon that you met Mugsy Cohen? A. That is the time I got the drop, sir.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out.

Mr. Turkus: I move it stand. Now he is pressing him for his recollection.

Mr. Talley: I press him for his recollection of his own testimony forty-eight hours ago.

2599

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, I have an objection, that is, request, that the answer stand as responsive to the question, on his present recollection.

Mr. Talley: I ask your Honor to direct this witness to answer my simple question yes or no, was he asked these questions and did he make these answers?

Mr. Turkus: You have gone beyond that now.

2600

The Court: Mr. Witness, you testified on Friday that after you bought the cheap padlock for the drop, that you then, at about three o'clock in the afternoon of Friday, went and saw Mugsy Cohen; that thereafter, about two o'clock on Saturday morning, you and Mugsy stole the car on Lefferts Avenue. Do you remember that?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Is that true or isn't it?

The Witness: I am a little tangled up, sir. I got out of the drop was three o'clock, sir.

2601

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike the answer out.

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said it.

Mr. Talley: What?

The Witness: If it is in the book, I said it.

Mr. Talley: It is in the book. I ask you again: Did you say it?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question, has not taken in all the testimony. There is page 598 in the record, too.

Mr. Talley: What is that, Mr. Turkus?

Mr. Turkus: I said you did not read all the Q and A.

Mr. Cuff: I object to the statement of the District Attorney.

The Court: What page is this read from?

Mr. Cuff: 507.

Mr. Talley: I read everything, without 2603 passing a line or a word, and Mr. Turkus knew it because he was following me as I read it.

Mr. Turkus: And I turned the page. You did not.

Mr. Talley: What part didn't I read?

Mr. Turkus: I turned the page. Turn the page.

Mr. Talley: I object to the District Attorney's statement. I began at the top of page 507 of the minutes of this trial and I read every question and every an-2604 swer down to where I concluded my questioning to him.

Mr. Turkus: Nobody said you didn't.

Mr. Talley: "Where you went at three o'clock in the afternoon."

The next is: "Who is Mugsy Cohen? A. A car thief and radio crook." I read that.

Then there is another question: "Did you talk with Mugsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir." That I did not read because I was not at the moment interested.

"Q. What did you and Mugsy Cohen do? A. I asked him—" That takes in the entire page.

2605

I will not have any insinuations in this case that I am not reading properly and correctly anything that I attempt to read. I won't permit this District Attorney to do what no other District Attorney in this state would assume to do, and if I have to appeal to this Court for protection against that kind of tactics, I will do it, but I can, fortunately, take care of myself.

2606

Mr. Turkus: Nobody said he did not read page 507.

Mr. Talley: You did say that I did not read all that was on that page. Now don't do it again.

Mr. Turkus: Now don't be getting so sensitive. You know your integrity was not challenged.

The Court: If this continues, the Court will have to send out for its gavel.

Mr. Turkus: I am sorry.

2607

Mr. Talley: Send out for it and use it against the District Attorney. It is increasingly necessary. You won't need it as far as the defense is concerned.

The Court: There has been so much disturbance the Court does not know what it has to rule on. Will you read it?

By the Court:

Q. What is your best recollection as to what time you met Mugsy and talked to him about 2608 stealing the car? A. I think it was about eight o'clock, sir.

Q. What time? A. Eight o'clock at night.

Q. Eight, not three? A. That is right.

Mr. Talley: That was not my question. I am questioning him on the very simple fact as to whether he testified it was three o'clock in the afternoon or eight o'clock at night, and I am entitled to an 2609 answer on whether he testified to that or not. Now he gives us his usual stock reply: "If it is in the book, I said it," which is not good enough for me. I want his recollection as to whether he said it or whether he did not. If he does not recollect what he testified to here in this courtroom on last Friday, it is a pretty serious strain upon the credulity of the jury and everybody else as to what happened in 1936.

Mr. Turkus: He could not remember, the counsel.

2610

The Court: If even counsel in the court can get confused in a discussion such as this, the witness may or may not be right in saying he was confused about that.

Mr. Talley: He does not say he was confused. He will not answer whether he testified, irrespective of the fact I am asking him did he testify to this.

The Court: He does not have to answer he testified; that is the record.

Mr. Talley: I think he does have to testify on the question either of credibility or his recollection, particularly where he is testifying about a crime that happened in 1936, five years ago.

The Court: The Court rules that this is the record, that it is established that he so said. Please let it go at that.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I except to the Court's ruling?

The Court: Certainly.

Mr. Cuff: May we except, too?

The Court: Certainly. 2612

By Mr. Talley:

Q. What do you say now, Bernstein, was it eight o'clock or was it three o'clock? A. Eight o'clock, sir.

Q. Eight o'clock? A. Yes, sir. I can explain you how, sir, if you want me to.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike out the witness's voluntary statement.

The Witness: I just got mixed up, that's all. 2613

The Court: Let that stand.

Mr. Cuff: I take exception. No question to the witness at that time at all.

Q. Do you want to explain why you said three o'clock— A. Yes, sir.

Q. —Friday afternoon, and repeated it four or five times on one page of testimony? Is that what you want to explain, when you now come in here—this is Monday—you testified the last court day, Friday—now you come in and say the meeting was at eight o'clock? Do you 2614 want to explain something in connection with that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Go ahead and explain it. A. Because I met them at one o'clock, sir, at Sackman and Livonia. Then I had to go and get the drop. It took me at least two hours, cruising around, to find that.

The Court: Then what?

The Witness: I hung around at Amboy and Sutter until Mugsy Cohen came around, because he used to borrow money 2615 off me.

The Court: Did you time yourself at any time by watch or clock?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: Is the estimate of time that you are now giving based upon figuring the length of time that you did one thing or another?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: In the course of that procedure?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

2616 Mr. Cuff: Object to that, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. Now, having answered the Court's questions the way you did, do you say that you were confused between the time of three o'clock in the afternoon and eight o'clock in the evening? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before you took the stand here on Friday, you had had many conferences with somebody in the District Attorney's office about your testimony, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. When before Friday was the last time you went over, with any representative of the District Attorney's office, your testimony? A. Never did, sir.

Q. You never did? A. No, sir, not since this case.

Q. You never went over with Mr. Turkus what you were going to testify when you were called in this trial? A. You mean before, sir? Before? 2618

The Court: At any time?

Q. Before Friday? A. Before Friday.

Q. Before last Friday? A. District Attorney Turkus asked me questions and I answered them, sir. That was about a week ago, sir.

Q. About a week ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You testified on Friday. What day did you go over your questions and answers with Mr. Turkus? 2619

Mr. Turkus: I object to that. He did not say he went over his questions and answers.

A. He asked me questions. I answered them. That is all.

Mr. Talley: I did not think you were so sensitive about your investigation. I do not see much difference in what I said and what the witness said.

2620 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Mr. Tarkus asked you questions, didn't he? A. And I answered them.

Q. And that were the answers that you told him you would make to his questions when you were called as a witness in this room, is that true? A. I do not understand what you mean. I was talking about this here case, sir.

By the Court:

2621 Q. Where did this conference occur? A. In the District Attorney's office.

Q. In this building or in the other building? A. In the other building, sir.

Mr. Talley: When?

Q. What day of the week, do you remember? A. I think it was about two weeks ago.

Q. Do you remember the day of the week? A. It was on a Tuesday, sir, something like that.

By Mr. Talley:

2622

Q. When do you say it was? A. On a Tuesday, sir.

Q. On Tuesday of last week? A. It might have been in the hotel, sir, too.

Q. It might have been when? A. In the hotel.

The Court: About how long ago was it?

The Witness: About two weeks ago.

Q. Why, you remember the last time you went over your testimony in the District Attorney's office, don't you?

2623

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained. He said so.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Don't you remember when you last talked with Mr. Turkus or his associate, Mr. Klein, or Mr. Joseph, about this case? You remember that, don't you? A. Yes; about two weeks ago, sir.

Q. How many times did you go over it with them, or any of them? 2624

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Overruled.

A. How many times, you mean, sir?

The Court: How many times were you questioned?

The Witness: About two or three times, si..

2625

Q. You have been in custody since early last year, haven't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Some time in April, 1946, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the time you gave yourself up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you say you have only been questioned two or three times about this case by anybody from the District Attorney's office? A. Asking me questions?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. Two or three times by Mr. Turkus.

The Court: So I understood.

Mr. Talley: I said Turkus, Klein, Joseph.

Mr. Turkus: That is the same thing. We did not get this file until the summer of 1941.

Mr. Cuff: I object to that statement, if your Honor pleases.

2627

The Court: The jury, disregard it. It is not evidence.

Mr. Talley: I am still waiting for the witness' answer.

The Court: You say you had only two or three sessions of questions and answers?

The Witness: Yes, sir, and District Attorney O'Dwyer asked me questions, too, and I answered them, sir.

The Court: How many times?

The Witness: Five or six times, sir.

2628

Q. So, now you say you were interrogated or asked questions four or five times, or five or six times, since the early part of 1940, when you gave yourself up? Is that your answer now?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question, "now", carrying with it an implication.

The Court: Overruled. Is that substantially correct?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. And before you appeared here on Friday last and testified, when was the last time that you went over your testimony with any member of the District Attorney's staff? A. I don't get you, sir. Nobody asked me questions until two weeks ago, sir. That was the last time, if that is what you mean, sir.

Q. Which is it, two or three weeks ago, or a week ago? A. About two weeks ago.

Q. Didn't you say a week ago just a few minutes ago when I asked you? A. Yes, sir. 2630

Q. Now you make it two weeks? A. I am not sure. It was a week or two.

Q. Two or three weeks, is that it? A. I stopped counting days, sir.

Q. You do not care what you say on the witness stand, do you? A. Telling the truth about everything in this case, everything.

Q. You did not tell the truth in Monticello, did you? A. Because I don't want to give no information.

Q. Did you tell the truth?

2631

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: I consent to it, and I object to the question as repetitious. We have been over it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr Talley: Exception.

Q. You say you are telling the truth on this trial? A. All of the truth, and I told the Grand Jury the truth, too.

Q. You are expecting some consideration for your testimony, aren't you? A. No, sir

Q. None whatsoever? A. No, sir.

2632 Q. You know that you took part in the Rosen murder, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that you were not indicted for this crime, were you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By the answer you mean that you know that, is that what you mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were called before the Grand Jury considering this Rosen killing, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that you did not sign any 2633 waiver of immunity, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that you were not asked to sign any waiver of immunity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you know that when you are called before a Grand Jury and do not waive immunity, you cannot be indicted? A. I don't know that.

Q. You don't know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Never heard of that before? A. What is that, sir?

Mr. Turkus: That is a legal question.

2634 Q. In all your criminal career, did you never hear that if you are brought to testify before a Grand Jury you cannot be indicted for the crime upon which you testify?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. It is a legal question.

Mr. Talley: This is a crook. He knows more about that phase of the law than even you do.

Mr. Turkus: Do not include yourself. You are very bright.

A. I do not know, sir.

2635

Q. You testified before the Grand Jury in the Yuran case, didn't you? A. That is right.

Q. And did you tell all of the truth there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was only on the trial that you did not tell the truth?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Is that right?

2636

Mr. Turkus: That is not his testimony.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. You did not sign a waiver of immunity in the Yuran case, did you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. You got immunity in that case, didn't you? A. What do you mean by immunity?

Q. You were not indicted in that case, were you? A. No, sir.

2637

Q. So the only two cases of murder which you have admitted taking part in both cases you have been given immunity from punishment, haven't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is not his testimony.

The Court: Sustained. He has not admitted taking part in the Yuran murder.

Q. Didn't you take part in the Yuran killing? A. I told you what I done, sir.

2638 Q. Didn't you take part in it? A. I was not there when they killed him, sir.

Q. Weren't you the man that led the police up there to where a pickaxe or some other tool was buried by the people who did the murder? A. Pickaxe?

Q. Yes, some implement that was used? A. No, sir

Q. Were you the man who took the police to where the body was buried? A. Yes, sir.

2639 Q. How did you know where it was buried? A. How did I know?

Q. You heard my question. A. Because I was there.

Q. How did you know it was there? A. I was there.

Q. What? A. I was there when they buried him.

Q. Did you assist in the burial? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Helped put the body in the ground? A. Yes, sir—no, sir.

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not do that? A. No, sir.

2640 Q. What did you do in connection with burying this man? A. I was watching, sir.

Q. You were watching? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is, you were there to give warning in case anybody came and saw them burying this murdered man, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were a lookout? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Yuran shot? Is that how he was killed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you pointed out to the police where the .32 calibre gun with which Yuran was killed was hid, didn't you? A. I pointed out where he threw the gun.

Q. Where what? A. Where the gun was thrown. I did not have it.

Q. How did you know where the gun was thrown? A. Because I was there with Harry Strauss, sir.

Q. When the killing happened? A. No, sir.

Q. How soon after the killing? A. After he was hid, sir.

Q. After what? A. The body was hid.

Q. You saw where the gun was thrown? A. Yes, sir. 2642

Q. By Harry Strauss? A. Right in the field.

Q. And then you showed a pickaxe where that was buried or hidden? A. No, sir.

Q. Stop and think a minute. A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't you show the police where the .32 calibre gun was and also where a pickaxe was? A. No, sir.

Q. Where was Yuran buried? What kind of a place? A. Near the Loch Sheldrake Inn.

Q. Near the Loch Sheldrake Inn? That is a hotel, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was he carried from to that place near the Loch Sheldrake Inn? A. From Fallsburg, sir. 2643

Q. Did you drive the car? A. Wait a minute. Let me get this straight.

Q. Yes, get it straight by all means. A. Will you repeat it, sir?

The Court: Did you drive the car from Fallsburg?

The Witness: Fallsburg? They drove a truck, sir.

The Court: Did you drive it?

The Witness: No, sir.

2644 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Were you in the truck? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they have the body of Yuran in the truck they drove? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you drove on the truck that carried the body of Yuran who had just been murdered, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you when he was murdered? A. Where was I? I was taking a walk with somebody, sir.

Q. Taking a walk where? A. Around Falls-

2645 burg, sir.

Q. In Fallsburg? A. I think so. It was Fallsburg.

Q. And did you see Yuran alive there? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. I didn't even know, sir.

Q. You don't even know?

Mr. Turkus: He did not say that. Objected to. Judge Talley repeats an answer differently than the witness gave it. I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

2646

Q. Bernstein, you knew that Yuran was going to be killed, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir.

Q. You just happened to be there? A. I took a walk with somebody, sir, and then came along a car with a body.

Q. And they came along with a truck, did they, with his body in it? A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you first see the body? A. In Hymie Yuran's car.

Q. In a garage? A. No, sir, in the field.

Q. The first time you saw the body was in the fields? A. Yes, in the car first. They threw out his body.

Mr. Talley: I cannot understand that talk.

The Court: His body was in an automobile; it was thrown into a field and then picked up and put into a truck?

The Witness: No, sir.

2648

Q. Is the answer yes, sir? Did you help to put the body in the truck? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You mean the shooting must have been in the automobile?

The Witness: Yes, sir, but I was not there, sir.

The Court: You came up afterwards?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. What kind of a truck was this that you drove from Fallsburg to Loch Sheldrake Inn? A. I think it was a bakery truck. 2649

Q. Did you ride inside the truck or on the seat? A. Inside the truck, sir.

Q. With the body? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This man had been shot, hadn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the pickaxe for? A. To bury him, sir.

Q. What time of the day or night was he buried? A. I think about twelve o'clock, sir.

Q. At night, midnight? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you acted as a lookout while they were digging the grave for him and throwing him in, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your purpose was to give warning if anybody came along that they were to be on their guard against, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you do not deny that you are an accomplice in the Yuran murder, do you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained. That is not an accomplice.

2651

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: According to law.

Mr. Talley: He assisted them in disposing of the corpus delicti, of the evidence of the crime. Certainly it makes him an accomplice.

Mr. Turkus: That makes him an accessory after the fact.

Mr. Talley: It is both.

Mr. Turkus: First year criminal court book.

Mr. Talley: Thank you for the education I got before you even started in. Don't attempt that with me, Turkus. You are making a grave mistake.

2652

The Court: The Court has been three times interrupted while attempting to speak. This is an exhibition of bad manners.

Mr. Turkus: I am sorry. I apologize to the Court.

Q. After the body of Yuran was buried, what did you do? A. After Yuran's body was buried?

Q. You heard the question. Answer it.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, argumentative.

Mr. Talley: I object to this constant repetition by this witness of questions so that he will get time to think.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the advance summation in addition.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Answer the question, please. A. I went back to the hotel where I was staying, sir.

Q. The hotel where? A. Oliver Hill in Woodbridge. 2654

Q. Not in Fallsburg? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go back to Fallsburg where you brought the body from? A. What did you say, sir?

Q. Did you go back after you buried this body at midnight? A. I told you.

Q. Did you go back to Fallsburg where you had brought it from? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. You do not? I am certainly using simple language. After the body of Yuran was buried, 2655 did you leave this field it was buried in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it wrapped up at all or was it just thrown in the gave? A. Was it wrapped up?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You saw it being taken out of the truck, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You helped them to take it out of the truck, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You helped them to carry it over to a hole in the ground? A. Yes, sir.

2656 Q. And you helped them put it in the grave? A. No, sir.

Q. Well, just where did you lay off? You took the body out of the truck; you carried it over to the grave. What did you do then? A. I was watching, sir.

Q. Did you leave the body? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you went some place to watch? A. Where they told me to watch.

Q. Where did you go to watch? A. Near the 2657 swimming pool.

Q. How far was that from this grave that they dug? A. About fifty feet I think, sir.

Q. Not much further than from where you are sitting to where I stand, is that right? A. I think further than that, sir.

Q. Was it as far as this table here where these distinguished newspaper men are sitting? A. A little further than that.

Q. Was it further than that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it as far back as the wall of this court room? A. No, sir.

Q. It was not quite as far as that? A. I
2658 don't know about that. I am just giving you an idea.

Q. You just said it was fifty feet. Are you as far wrong on distance as you are on dates? A. I think where the dark fellow is, the curly haired fellow.

The Court: This room is supposed to be 45 feet deep.

Mr. Talley: From wall to wall?

The Court: I doubt if it is that. But I have been told it is 45.

Mr. Talley: What does your Honor estimate the distance from the witness chair to where this gentleman is sitting?

The Court: The Court does not qualify as an expert.

Mr. Talley: I will take your Honor's statement it is 45. Mr. Foreman, what do you say the distance is from the witness chair

Mr. Turkus: This is Talley law.

The Court: This is grossly wrong and Court is reluctantly caused to repri- 2660
mand—

Mr. Talley: Judge, it has been done thousands of times, to have a foreman of a—

The Court: You will not interrupt the Judge.

Mr. Talley: I did not know the Court was continuing to speak.

The Court: Will you please sit down until the Judge is finished and I tell you?

Mr. Talley: I will be delighted to get the opportunity.

The Court: It is elementary that this 2661 is a departure from what the law permits. The Judge knows better than that. Now proceed.

Mr. Talley: I request that the foreman of the jury be permitted to estimate for the record what he regards as the distance between the witness chair, where the witness is testifying, and the point which he pointed out in the court room.

The Court: The Court reluctantly has been obliged to reprimand you for the 2662 previous question. You are doubly reprimanded for this. This is disorderly. It is nine minutes to four now and I am not going to permit the closing part of this session to become a staged brawl by counsel, so we are going to take a recess.

Mr. Talley: I take exception.

The Court: Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case, let nobody talk to you about it and keep your minds 2663 open. We will resume tomorrow at ten o'clock. Everybody be in order while the witness is remanded.

Mr. Talley: Note my exception to your Honor's statement, your Honor's ruling, your Honor's observations.

The Court: Also, gentlemen, please remember the other admonition of the Court as contained in the instructions previously given. The jury may leave. The defendants are remanded.

2664 (Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Tuesday, October 28, 1941, at ten a.m.)

2665

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 28, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

SOL BERNSTEIN, a witness for The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Talley (continued):

2666

Q. Mr. Bernstein, what did you do with the radio you said you took from the car that was stolen by you and Mugsy Cohen? A. I took the radio and threw it in the Bay; I broke it up.

Q. You threw it in Canarsie Bay? A. Yes, sir.

Q. First you say that Cohen took it out of the car, or you took it out of the car? A. Cohen took it out of the car.

Q. What did Cohen do with it? Did he take it away from the drop or did you take it away? A. I rode him away with it.

Q. You rode him away with it? A. Yes, sir.

2667

Q. When you parted, did he have the radio or did you? A. What do you mean?

Q. You rode him away with it. To what place did you ride him? A. Around the Brownsville section.

Q. Whereabouts in the Brownsville section? A. Amboy and Sutter.

Q. Did he get out of the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he take the radio with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did he take it? A. He took it out into a house.

Q. What house? A. I don't know; he went into the house.

Q. Not his house? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You don't know what he did with it? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you get it again? A. How did I get it again? I went looking for him.

Q. Did you tell him you wanted the radio? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then how did he get it back into your hands? A. He gave it to me.

Q. Where? A. In the same place where I 2669 brought him to.

Q. In the same place where you took him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he give it to you on the street or on the sidewalk? A. No, sir, I went in the hallway; he told me to wait in the hallway.

Q. Of what house? A. Amboy and Sutter Avenue.

Q. What number? A. I do not recall, sir. I did not take notice to the number.

Q. Whose house was it? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Did you know that Cohen did not live there? A. I cannot tell you that.

2670 Q. Where in the house did Cohen go to get the radio? A. I cannot tell you that, sir.

Q. Why did you take the radio out of the car? A. After I knew there was a murder I wanted nobody to get into any trouble, sir.

Q. You took the radio out of the car after you knew there was a murder, is that what you say? Will you repeat that? A. I did not want him to get in trouble; I did not want to get in any trouble myself.

Q. What did the radio have to do with getting in any more trouble than you were already in?

2671

A. If you sell the radio they were liable to get the numbers.

Q. That is what you wanted to avoid, anybody selling the radio? A. Yes, sir, he was a radio thief.

Q. You told us he was a radio crook, an automobile thief, that is how you designated him. A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you were the one who took the radio out of the car, weren't you? A. No, sir, Mugsy Cohen took it out.

2672

Q. When did you see Mugsy Cohen last, if there is such a person, where did you see him last?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question, "if there is such a person," carrying with it an implication or characterization that is improper.

Mr. Talley: I am cross-examining him.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question, the objectionable portion being the part that starts with, "if there is such a person."

2673

The Court: No harm done. Objection overruled.

A. Sunday.

Q. The day before yesterday? A. I don't mean that day.

Q. That is what you said. A. I did not mean that, sir.

Q. When did you see him last. You know what "last" means. When was the last occasion? I cannot think of any other way of putting it. When did you last see him? There is a limit to my vocabulary. A. Before I gave myself up.

Q. You gave yourself up in April of 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have not seen Mugsy Cohen since? A. No, sir.

Q. That is sure? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you see Mugsy Cohen the last time you saw him? A. In Brownsville.

Q. Whereabouts in Brownsville? A. Amboy
2675 and Pitkin.

Q. Where is that? What place is that? A. A bar and grill, sir.

Q. What is the name of the bar and grill? A. Weiner's.

Q. Will you speak up so we can hear you? A. Weiner's.

Q. How do you spell that? A. (Spelling) W-e-i-n-e-r-s.

Q. Did you talk about this case when you saw him? A. I never talked with anybody, sir.

Q. You never talked with anybody? A. No, sir.

2676

Q. You do not mean that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked to the District Attorney's office, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked with Captain Bals of the Police Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You talked with Mr. McDonough, the detective? A. No, sir, he was not there.

Q. At any time did you talk about this case with Captain McDonough? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir.

Q. Even when you gave yourself up to Detective McDonough you did not talk to him about the case? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that what you want us to understand? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where is Mugsy Cohen now, do you know? A. I don't know what is doing in the outside world, sir; the only time I know what is doing is when I read the papers or listen to the radio. In other words, I don't know what is doing on the outside.

Q. Well, since you have been living at the Half Moon Hotel—it must be a good place, the Half Moon Hotel—since you have been living at the Half Moon Hotel at Coney Island you have been taken out for walks on the Boardwalk? 2678

Mr. Turkus: I object to a remark about the Half Moon Hotel accompanied by a smile of derision, which I think makes the question objectionable. I object to it.

Mr. Talley: You cannot stop me from smiling. I say this is some hotel.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.

Mr. Talley: Stop your smiling. It would be a crime to make me stop it. 2679

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection; I do not want to discuss personalities.

The Court: It would be a help to this trial if there was more smiling.

Mr. Turkus: Well, I will withdraw the objection.

The Court: The Half Moon Hotel is quite a place. I have stopped there.

Mr. Talley: You were in good company, Judge, if you want the record of 2680 this case to disclose it. But I would recommend you get another hotel.

Q. You were taken out on the Boardwalk, weren't you? A. No, sir.

Q. You had baseball games down there, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you say you were or were not taken out on the Boardwalk? A. No, sir.

Q. You never were? A. Yes, sir.

2681 Q. Do you mean by that you have not been taken out on the Boardwalk for walks? A. No, sir.

Q. I will have to put it in your language: Were you taken out on the Boardwalk for walks at any time since you have been living in the Half Moon Hotel? A. No, sir.

Q. You were not—given any exercise at all down there; is that right? A. In the hotel, sir?

The Court: Outside of the hotel.

A. Yes, sir.

2682 Q. What does that mean? What do you mean by "Yes, sir"? A. Explain to me and I will tell you.

Q. You will have to speak up louder. I cannot be persistently asking this witness to raise his voice. We know he can. It is too much of a strain here to try to get this muttering.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor put the question to the witness did he have exercise outside of the hotel, and to that question he responded in the affirmative, "Yes, sir."

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: It is not clear to me, and I am sure it is not clear to the jury.

Q. You understand what I am saying to you? A. You will have to explain me, sir.

Q. I will have to explain to you?

The Court: Speak louder; the jury has to hear.

The Witness: You will have to explain to me, sir. 2684

Q. How long have you been living at the Half Moon Hotel? A. On and off, sir.

Q. That helps us a lot. How long have you been living there, how many days, weeks, months, or years,—how long have you been living there? A. About thirteen months, sir.

Q. During those thirteen months have you been taken out of the Half Moon Hotel for exercise? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you taken for exercise? A. In Long Island, sir.

Q. Long Island? A. Yes, sir. 2685

Q. Whereabouts on Long Island? A. Some park—

Mr. Turkus: I object to the identity of the place.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: In the objection I want it clearly understood that all I want—

The Court: I understand. The record may not state your grounds.

Mr. Turkus: I only object—I don't 2686 care what facts are gone into, but I do object to divulging the specific place where the witnesses were taken.

Mr. Talley: I object to the statement by the District Attorney and ask it be stricken from the record and the jury be instructed to disregard it.

The Court: Objection overruled; motion denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception. I insist I have 2687 a right to inquire.

The Court: The jury is instructed that these remarks are addressed to the Court and call for no ruling by the Court.

Mr. Talley: I insist I have a right to inquire as to the details of any place this man says he has been at, whether the District Attorney likes it or not. The responsibility here is on the Court.

Q. Did you ever go to a baseball game since you have been in custody in the Half Moon 2688 Hotel? A. Did I ever go? What do you mean, did I ever go?

Q. (The Court) Have you been taken to baseball games? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you sure about that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever go to the movies since you have been in custody? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever play baseball? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you play baseball? A. On Long Island, sir.

Q. Was that at Heckscher Park?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the location of the place.

The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. That is, since you have been in custody you played ball? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were with detectives who were guarding you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Anybody else? A. Yes, sir.

Q. With whom else? A. The other witnesses.

Q. How many times did you do that? A. About four times, sir. 2690

Q. Where is Mugsy Cohen now? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You have not seen him or heard from him in over a year and a half, is that your testimony? A. Since I am over here.

Q. What? A. Since I gave myself up.

Q. You first got into this Rosen case about four o'clock on the Friday afternoon before the killing, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question; that is not my recollection of the testimony. 2691

Mr. Talley: It is not what your recollection is. I am asking him a question. Your recollection has nothing whatever to do with my question.

Mr. Turkus: Judge Talley seems to think that when I am addressing your Honor I am indulging in personalities. My purpose in addressing the Court is to register an objection. The witness has testified to the Rosen killing but has not mentioned he had any knowledge of it at four o'clock on Friday.

2692 The Court: The Court suggests that when an objection is made there be no discussion between counsel. The Court is prepared to rule promptly on objections. It will save a lot of time if this is kept in mind. The objection is overruled. However, the other question is indefinite. I do not know quite what you mean when you say, "You got into."

Mr. Talley: First got into this case; when he was first told about this case; when he was first told to go out and steal a car, change the plates, and deliver it to some drop. I want to know when that was. And he testified—

2693 The Court: The Court will not indulge in controversy with counsel; I am suggesting to you that you make your question more clear.

Mr. Talley: I am answering your question as to it not being clear.

The Court: I have overruled the objection.

2694 The Witness: There was no Friday afternoon at four o'clock.

Q. When were you first spoken to about stealing this car? A. Saturday, when Louis Capone showed me the route.

Q. Saturday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was it you say you were sitting in your automobile when you say Strauss came up to you? A. Four o'clock.

Q. Four o'clock Friday or Saturday? A. Saturday.

Q. Saturday afternoon? A. Yes, sir.

2695

Q. Then you were told to steal the car, is that right? A. No, sir.

Q. No? A. No, sir.

Q. When were you told to steal the car? A. Friday.

Q. Didn't you say a minute ago, "There was no Friday afternoon," that it was Saturday when this thing happened? A. Friday he told me to steal the car.

Q. You now say that Capone told you to steal the car? A. Louis Capone and Harry Strauss.

2696

Q. Didn't you tell us on your direct examination that it was Harry Strauss that told you to steal the car? A. They were all there, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Talley and Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2697

Q. You have told us, haven't you, when you were examined by the District Attorney that you were told to steal this car by a man named Strauss, isn't that the fact? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now do you tell us that you were told to steal the car by Capone? A. They were all there together.

Q. Is that what you tell us now, that it was Capone that told you to steal the car? A. Harry Strauss told me to steal the car, but they were all together there.

Q. Are we now to understand it was Strauss

2698 that told you to steal the car? A. Yes, sir, Harry told me to steal the car.

Mr. Turkus: Will you instruct the witness to speak a little louder so everyone can hear his testimony at the end of the jury box?

The Court: The witness testified on direct examination that on that Friday, at Sackman and Livonia, he had a conversation with Strauss; he was sitting in 2699 his own car; Strauss got into the car with him; that while waiting in the car with Strauss, along came Weiss, Farvel Cohen, and Capone. I think you will find that is correct, Judge (addressing Mr. Talley).

Mr. Talley: Of course I will find it correct. I want this witness to admit it is correct. He just definitely and deliberately says, "There was no Friday afternoon," that it was Saturday afternoon. Now, your Honor bears out the recollection of the testimony by reading your notes.

2700 The Court: I understood you to be under the impression that Capone is now mentioned for the first time in connection with the incident.

Mr. Talley: He is mentioned for the first time with the direction of stealing the car. Up to now he has said it was Harry Strauss that told him to steal the car.

The Court: I have just read from my notes of the direct testimony in connection with instructions to steal the car: that Capone, according to the direct testimony of this witness, was there, in addition to Strauss, Weiss, and Farvel Cohen.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. What were you and Harry Strauss talking about before you say the others came along? A. A general conversation.

Q. It had nothing to do with this proposed killing of Rosen? A. No, sir.

Q. Nothing at all, until they came along? A. Yes, sir. 2702

Q. As soon as they came into sight, then Strauss said to you, "You go steal a car," is that correct? A. After he came back.

Q. After who came back? A. Harry Strauss, Mendy Weiss, Louis Capone, and Farvel Cohen.

Q. After they came back from where? A. I don't know where they walked to.

Q. Did they walk away and leave you alone in the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then they came back? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After how long a time? A. About three-quarters of an hour, I am not sure. 2703

Q. Then Strauss told you to steal a car, is that right? A. When they were all together, sir.

Q. Is that the time that Strauss told you to steal the car? A. Yes, sir, they were together, sir.

Q. You told us that at least four times, but they did not all together scream at you, "Go out and steal a car," did they? A. They were together, sir.

Q. Did they all at the same time tell you to steal a car? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did tell you to steal a car? A. Harry Strauss, sir.

Q. Is that on Friday or Saturday afternoon? A. On Friday, sir.

Q. Why did you tell me a few minutes ago that there was no Friday in this matter?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That was not the testimony. He was saying there was no Friday at four o'clock, whatever that means.

2705

The Court: I call your attention to the fact that it seems to me to be indefinite here as to when he got into the Rosen case. Apparently the witness understood it the same way. There was no Friday, so far as the testimony is concerned, involving knowledge by him of the killing of Rosen, but simply of stealing the car.

Q. You were told to steal the car on Friday afternoon, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When were you told that a murder was to be done in this candy store on Sutter Avenue? A. When Louis Capone showed me the route.

2706

Q. When was that? A. Saturday, sir.

Q. What were you told about stealing the car on Friday afternoon? A. Just told me to steal the car and get a "drop".

Q. And that you did, Friday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you leave at about four o'clock to go out and steal the car? A. I left when they told me, sir.

Q. Was that around four, between four and five? A. About one o'clock, 1:15 or something.

Q. What happened between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 1 or 1:15, so far as they were concerned? A. What happened when?

Q. Between 4 o'clock or thereabouts, when you say that they told you to steal the car—or Strauss told you to, and one o'clock.

Mr. Turkus: I object. That was not the testimony.

The Court: The witness testified under direct that after waiting around, pursuant to instructions, Friday afternoon, for 2708
three-quarters of an hour, about, the four returned and Strauss then said, "Steal a car and get a drop," and that after he was told, "Come over tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock on Sackman and Livonia Avenue."

Is that what your question has relation to?

Mr. Talley: Yes, that is my question. It is perfectly simple: what he did between four o'clock on that afternoon of Friday, when he says Strauss told him to steal a car, and when he stole the car and 2709 again saw Strauss.

The Witness: I went looking for Mugsy after I got the drop.

Q. Did you see any of these defendants on Friday night? A. No, sir.

Q. You got Mugsy to steal the car about one o'clock in the morning, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You stood there alongside of the car while you say Mugsy was getting it started? A. Yes, sir.

2710 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Then you drove away in your car and told Mugsy to follow you in the stolen car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you led Mugsy to the garage? A. He followed me.

Q. You led him there; he followed you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You told him where to put the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you went into this drop you took out
2711 the radio, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did that? A. Mugsy Cohen.

Q. Were you standing looking at him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say you did not know how to take a radio out of a car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In all the cars that you had stolen before that time, you never took a radio out of one? A. No, sir.

Q. The radio was taken out of this car in order to sell the radio, wasn't it, to get something for it? A. Yes, sir.

2712 Q. You did not sell it? A. No, sir.

Q. You threw it into Canarsie Bay? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To destroy it as evidence, to get rid of it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at what time did you go out of the garage with the radio? A. About a quarter after two.

Q. A quarter after two in the morning? A. I am not sure of the time.

Q. About what time would you say it was, two or three o'clock in the morning? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. Four o'clock? A. No, not so late as that.

Q. It was between two and four? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not start out until after one? A. I did not have a watch; I cannot tell you.

Q. Haven't you testified you had an appointment with Mugsy for one o'clock? A. No, sir.

Q. Haven't you told us that it was one o'clock when you went out to get the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you stole the car at one o'clock? And it must have been pretty close to two o'clock 2714 when you got it back into the drop and removed the radio, and closed up the garage again? A. I did not clock it.

Q. When you left the garage with the radio taken out of the stolen car in your possession, it must have been pretty close to two o'clock wasn't it? A. I did not have no watch.

Q. It was after one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was before four o'clock, you say? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What is your best estimate of the time you got out of the drop with the stolen radio? A. 2715
About two or half past two or a quarter after two.

Q. At what time did you get back to Amboy and Sutter, where you say you had to go?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not a proper chronology of this.

Mr. Talley: Must I follow it chronologically?

Mr Turkus: I have an objection pending before the Court.

The Court: What is the day, Saturday?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

2716 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: It is now past one o'clock Saturday morning when they stole that car, and I am trying to follow up his activity in connection with this Rosen murder from one o'clock, when he stole the car, Friday night or Saturday morning, up to Sunday morning when Rosen was killed.

The Court: Go ahead.

2717

Q. (Last question repeated by reporter.) A. About 20 minutes or 25 minutes; I am not sure; I did not have no watch; it is not far from Amboy and Sutter.

Q. When did you get the lock, go out and buy the lock for the drop? A. When I rented the garage the woman told me to get a lock.

Q. When was that, Friday afternoon or evening? A. Friday afternoon, sir.

Q. When did you come back to the place where you say you met Strauss and the others after having stolen the car and taken out and given to Mugsy Cohen the radio, what time did you get back? A. To where?

2718

Q. To wherever you went after stealing the car and putting it in the drop. A. I don't know what you mean; I had an appointment four o'clock the next day.

Q. Where did you have the appointment? A. Sackman and Livonia.

Q. That would be four o'clock Saturday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you in their company from four o'clock Saturday until the killing on Sunday morning? A. No, sir.

Q. You were with them that night, weren't you? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. Were you with them on Saturday night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time did you pick them up on Saturday night? A. 10 to 10:30.

Q. Was it after 10 o'clock? A. I said 10 to 10:30.

Q. And I said, I am asking you, was it after 2720
10 o'clock? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you see them then? A. Sackman and Livonia.

Q. Was Weiss there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you in your car? A. I got out of the car.

Q. Did you have a car there? A. The hot car, yes, sir.

Q. The stolen car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sackman and Livonia Streets, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that the time the guns were handed 2721
out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who brought the package that you say contained the guns? A. I think it was Joe Pileh, I am not sure.

Q. How do you spell that? A. (Spelling) P-i-l-e-h, I think.

Q. You say you are not sure whether it was him or not? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Joe Pileh before this night? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you seen him since that night? A. Since that night?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you see him last? A. I seen him in the Brownsville section lots of times.

Q. Have you seen him since you have been in custody? A. No, sir.

Q. Where were you standing when the guns were handed out? A. By the car, sir.

Q. By what? A. By the hot car.

Q. By your car? A. The hot car.

Q. On the sidewalk? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was everybody out of the car? A. There
2723 was nobody in the car.

Q. That is another way of saying that everybody was out of the car, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who handed the guns around? A. What do you mean, who handed the guns?

Q. You don't know what that means? A. I don't understand you, sir.

Q. Did anybody give anybody else a gun? A. It was a package, sir.

Q. Was the package opened? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you know there were guns in the 2724 package if you did not see it opened? A. Harry Strauss said, "The package of guns, put in the car."

Q. What was done with the package? A. He gave it to me to put in the car.

Q. And did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see it opened? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was it opened? A. In the park.

Q. In this little park you have described? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You went into the park? A. What do you mean, we all went in.

2725

Q. That is exactly what I say. What did you think I meant? A. We were all in the park.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the repartee.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. At what time? A. About 11 o'clock.

Q. Did you see the package opened then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who passed the guns out? A. I gave the package to Mendy Weiss.

2726

Q. You gave the package to Mendy Weiss? A. Yes, sir, and Mendy Weiss passed the guns.

Q. Did he open it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he take the guns out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many? A. Three.

Q. Did he hand the guns around to two of the others? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He took one himself, you testified to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say Ferraco got a gun? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did he put it? A. I did not take notice.

2727

Q. Who else did you see get a gun? A. Harry Strauss.

Q. Where did Harry Strauss put his gun? A. I don't know, but he must have put it in his pocket somewhere.

Q. What pocket? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Where did Weiss put his gun? A. I cannot tell you that. He must have put it in his pocket.

Q. What pocket?

The Court: (interrupting) We are not asking you what you think, but only what you know.

Q. What pocket? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. His pants pocket? A. I could not tell you that.

Q. His coat pocket? A. Might have been his pants, might have been his coat pocket.

Q. You were standing right alongside of him, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

2729 Q. As close as that officer is standing behind your chair? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you did not see what they did with their guns? A. They put them in their pocket; I don't know which pocket.

Q. Now, did they put it in the right-hand pocket or the left-hand pocket?

Mr. Turkus: I object.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Talley: Exception.

2730 Q. Can't you tell us whether they put it in their pants or coat pocket, any of the three of them?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.
The Court: Sustained as repetitious.
Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. How were they dressed? A. Just with suits and hats on.

Q. When you say suits, do you mean pants and coat? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the way Harry Strauss was dressed? A. They were all dressed the same way.

Q. Did they have hats or caps on? A. Hats.

Q. Were they soft hats, federas? A. Felt hats.

Q. Not derbies? A. No, sir.

Q. What color hat did the defendant Weiss have on? A. I think it was grey.

Q. What kind did Strauss have on? A. I think they all had grey.

Q. All grey, according to your recollection? 2732
A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did they have their hats and coats on for the remainder of that evening? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say that Weiss went away from you during part of that Saturday night with one of the others, do you remember that? A. He went alone first.

Q. Did he have his hat and coat on when he went then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the second time he went, did he have his coat on then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw Weiss go alone once, and then 2733
Weiss go with somebody else the second time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You saw him come back alone and you saw him come back with this other person? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who do you say he went with, Strauss? A. Yes, sir

Q. When they came back they both had their hats and coats on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When he came back alone the first time he had his hat and coat on? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is Weiss I am speaking about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you told us that Weiss gave you a slip of paper with an address on, that you were to go to. That was Saturday night, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir, in the morning.

Q. What time in the morning? A. I mean Saturday night.

Q. Now what do you mean? A. Yes, sir. Saturday night.

2735 Q. At what time Saturday night, as long as you know? A. About 11 o'clock or half past 11, something like that.

Q. Did he write the name and address? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was on that slip of paper? A. There was an address on it.

Q. Was there a name on it? A. No, sir.

Q. Just the address? A. Yes, sir, an apartment number.

Q. Do you remember what the address was? A. No, sir.

2736 Q. Have you got that slip? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. Did you hear what I said?

The Court: Did you keep the slip?

A. They gave it to me, yes, sir.

Q. (The Court) Have you got it now? A. No sir.

Q. What did you do with it? A. I ripped it up.

Q. You say you what? A. Ripped it.

Q. When did you rip it up? A. When I got to the apartment house.

2737

Q. You threw the slips away, the pieces away? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have not seen that since? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What? A. I did not see that since.

Q. Did you know whose apartment you were going to? A. No, sir.

Q. When did you find out? A. When I got up to the apartment.

Q. You did not have the name on the slip? A. No, sir.

2738

Q. How did you know what apartment to go to? A. Because it was written on the paper.

Q. The number of the floor was written on the paper? A. The apartment number.

Q. When you got in there you told us these friends were eating? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they invited you to have a sandwich? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said that was Cohen's house, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Farvel Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Cohen before that? A. Yes, sir.

2739

Q. Did you know he had a wife and two children? A. I did not know, sir.

Q. Do you know now he has, in 1936? A. I don't understand what you mean.

Q. Did you know in 1936 that he had a wife and two children? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see his wife or any child in the apartment when you went in that night? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not see anybody except these men you say you saw? A. Yes, sir.

2740 Q. No woman around there at all? A. No, sir.

Q. No child around there? A. No, sir.

Q. You say that you slept on rugs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever been in that apartment since? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see a diagram of that apartment? A. A diagram?

Q. A drawing? A. I seen a picture of it.

2741 Q. You saw a picture of the apartment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that? A. I pointed it out.

Q. You pointed what out? A. The apartment house.

Q. On this picture? A. Yes, sir, the apartment house, sir.

Q. I am talking about the interior or the living part of the room there inside the building. A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever see a picture of the rooms you say you were in? A. No, sir.

2742 Q. Did you ever see a diagram or drawing of that apartment you say you were in? A. No, sir.

Q. You got there about what time, 11 o'clock? A. 11 or 11:15, or something like that.

Q. Eleven or 11:15? A. No, sir, it was later than that. I don't know how long it took me to get there, because I had to drop the car and then I took a cab; I don't know how long. I did not have a watch.

Q. What time would you say you got there? A. Maybe half past 12.

Q. And was the defendant Weiss there when you came in? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he remain there during all the time you were there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You went to sleep in a room and you did not go out again after you went in? A. What do you mean?

Q. You went to sleep in a room in which a rug was on which you say you slept? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You slept there until, you say, five o'clock in the morning? A. About five o'clock.

Q. That would be Sunday morning? A. When 2744
Mendy Weiss woke me up.

Q. Mendy Weiss was there and he woke you at five o'clock? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you went out to get the car, didn't you? A. They told me to get the car.

Q. The stolen car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew when you went out to get the stolen car at five o'clock on Sunday morning that there was going to me a murder committed, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that that car that you had stolen for them and for which you had stolen plates to put on— A. I did not know at first. 2745

Q. You knew when you took that car upon which you had put plates which you had stolen, and from which you had taken the plates that were on it when you and Cohen did steal the car, as you say, was to be used to kill somebody in Rosen's candy store?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. The time element is bad.

The Court: The time element is not clear. Sustained.

2746

Mr. Talley: Exception. I will make it clearer.

Q. This car that you were told at five o'clock in the morning to go out and get, was the car that was stolen by you? A. Me and Mugsy, yes, sir.

Q. And this car bore on it at five o'clock on this Sunday afternoon the plates which you had stolen from another car?

2747

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Talley: Sunday morning, I mean.

Q. (The Court) When you went for the car at five o'clock on Sunday morning you knew it was for a killing, didn't you? A. What is that?

The Court: Repeat the question, Mr. Stenographer.

Q. (Question repeated by the reporter.) A. Yes, sir.

2748

By Mr. Talley:

Q. And on that car were plates you had stolen from another car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had broken up the plates that you took from the stolen or original car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And threw them into the sewer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had taken a radio out of this stolen car so as to help you to avoid detection; you did not want to get yourself in trouble or anybody else?

2749

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. The testimony was that was in Canarsie. He said the radio was taken out by Mugsie, who was a radio thief, and he got the radio later from Mugsie.

Mr. Talley: He said it was taken out so nobody would get in trouble.

The Court: He said he got it back. He took it away from Mugsie and destroyed it so nobody would get in trouble.

2750

Q. Why did you take the radio out of the car?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time is fixed.

Mr. Talley: You don't dispute the radio was taken out of the car; your own witness says so.

Mr. Turkus: "Taken out of the car" is ambiguous. The radio was taken out of the car several times.

Mr. Talley: Once it was taken out by this witness and Mugsie Cohen. I am sorry I have to go into that, but apparently I must, although it interrupts the line I was on. 2751

Q. Bernstein, when you got the car which you say you and Mugsie stole together, and you led him by driving your car ahead of him into this drop, you and he took the radio out of the car, didn't you? A. Mugsie took the radio out of the car.

Q. You were standing there looking at him, weren't you? You were ready to assist him if he needed any assistance? A. What do you mean?

2752 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. You were ready to help him to get the radio out if he needed any help? A. He did not need any help; he was a good man for it.

Q. You were ready to help him if he needed that help? A. I don't understand you.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

2753 The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Were you there waiting for him to take the radio out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How close to him? A. How close to him?

Q. Yes. A. Right from here to here. (indicating)

Q. Indicating about a foot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then you drove Mugsy away, he carrying the radio? A. In the car, yes, sir.

Q. In the car. You drove the car? A. Yes, sir.

2754 Q. Mugsy holding the radio? A. He did not hold it; he put it in the car.

Q. You are quite particular now, aren't you? A. It was in the car.

Mr. Turkus: I object to Judge Talley saying to the witness, "You are quite particular now." It is not a question, but it is a sarcastic remark, and the jury should be admonished to disregard it.

The Court: I don't think that calls for a ruling.

Q. Did you have a light on the car when you stole the radio out of it? A. A flashlight, yes, sir.

Q. That flashlight was provided by you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you hold the flashlight while you say Mugsy was taking the radio out of the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that taken out with a pair or pliers which you brought along? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And also the screw driver which you brought along? Was that also used? A. Yes, sir. 2756

Q. How many rooms were in this apartment you went into, in which you slept on a rug? A. I did not take notice.

Q. What room did you sleep in? A. The living room.

Q. Was it furnished? A. No, sir.

Q. Nothing there but rugs? A. Yes, sir.

Q. No chairs? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. When you say it was not furnished, you must mean there were not chairs or tables there. A. I did not see— What do you call that again? I don't know what to call that. I did not see any living room suite, just rugs. I don't know if there were any chairs in the corner; I did not take notice. 2757

Q. Were you there from one o'clock in the morning until five? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You ate there and you slept there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you cannot tell us whether there were any chairs or tables in the room which you slept in? A. I did not go looking around.

2758 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross.

Q. Where were the other men sleeping? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. Did they sleep on the rug with you? A. I left them in the kitchen.

Q. Did they sleep in the room with you? A. I cannot tell you that, sir.

Q. Did any of them sleep on the rug which you say you slept on? A. I did not see them, sir.

Q. Were you the first to leave the kitchen? A. Yes, sir.

2759 Q. You went out and went and threw yourself on the rug and went to sleep; is that right? A. Not sleep, just laying around.

Q. You did not sleep? A. No, sir.

Q. You knew that these men were in the apartment all that night and they had not left and you did not leave? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Between the time you left them in the kitchen and when you awakened at about five o'clock in the morning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you got to the Rosen candy store it was broad daylight, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

2760 Q. At what time do you say it was when you got there? A. I could not tell you that, sir.

Q. It was after five o'clock, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the store open for business? A. When I pulled over the car it was open.

Q. You pulled over directly in front of the store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that these men you say went in, when they came out they could go right into your car by crossing the sidewalk? A. What do you mean by crossing the sidewalk?

Q. Just exactly what I say, crossing the sidewalk, from the entrance of the store to the curb where your car was. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is all they had to do? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were sitting at the wheel of the car? A. Yes, sir, with the motor running.

Q. And with the motor running? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you say you did not see Rosen that morning at all? A. No, sir.

Q. This is not a wide sidewalk there, is it? A. What do you mean by wide sidewalk?

Q. Don't you know what I mean by wide sidewalk? A. Like every street in Brooklyn that I know. 2762

Q. Can you estimate the width of the sidewalk from the front of Rosen's store to the curb? A. I did not have a ruler, I did not measure it.

Q. You did not have a ruler and you did not have a watch; all you had was a pliers and a flashlight and a screwdriver to steal the car and steal the plates with; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative, inducing the witness to engage in repartee and discussion, not seemly in a court-room. 2763

Mr. Talley: This is serious business for me.

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor direct counsel to address the Court without an incessant barrage from Judge Talley? I have an objection.

Mr. Talley: Has what I said called for comment?

Mr. Turkus: Will you kindly conduct yourself with proper deportment?

2764 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Talley: Don't tell me anything about proper department.

Mr. Turkus: Nobody can tell you anything.

Mr. Talley: Don't dare tell me anything about that. Don't dare tell me how to conduct myself in the courtroom. That is one thing I will not take from you. That is one thing you cannot talk to me about.

The Court: I will have to send for the 2765 gavel. The witness has already testified to these matters. The objection is sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. When you went down from that apartment, you went out to get the car, didn't you? A. What apartment do you mean?

Q. What apartment do you think I mean? A. You will have to explain me more clearly.

Q. Then I will be clearer.

By the Court:

2766

Q. When you were called up at five o'clock in the morning you went to get the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go? A. Where did I go? I went to get the car and bring it up to the park, where they told me.

By Mr. Haley:

Q. Did you do that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You brought it over to the little park you spoke of? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were those men there when you got to the little park? A. Mendy Weiss was there, Harry Strauss was there, and Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. In the park? A. Yes, sir, in the park.

Q. What part of the park? A. The park at Blake and Bradford.

Q. What part of the park? A. I beg your pardon?

Q. What part of the park? A. There was a fence around; I can show it on the picture if you want me to.

2768

Q. Just tell me. A. I cannot tell you, the portion I know.

Q. Was it in the center of the park or at the entrance of the park? A. Where the entrance is you just make a right turn. If you show me a picture I wil show you where.

Mr. Talley: You can see the pictures. The District Attorney has quite a string of pictures. He has got a collection.

The Court: Judge Talley wants to see the picture.

2769

Mr. Talley: The District Attorney declines to hand me the picture. His witness has asked me to look at it. When I ask for it this young gentleman declines to hand it to me. What kind of conduct is that in a serious trial?

The Court: In the exhibit which has the corner of the park where this witness previously testified as to the meeting, hand it to Mr. Talley.

Mr. Turkus: There are two pictures.

The Court: Let him see both.

2770

Mr. Turkus: In addition to that I have a diagram about six feet long. I will bring in the diagram.

Mr. Talley: We did not ask for the diagram.

Mr. Turkus: May the record indicate two photographs have been handed to Judge Talley by the District Attorney? They are not in evidence as yet. And I will ask to have them marked for identification.

2771

(Received and marked People's Exhibits Y and Z for identification.)

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Was it after you met these men in this little park you stood in the hallway of this apartment house? A. Which apartment house?

Q. The apartment house which you have described as all standing in.

2772

The Court: He told you in the lobby.

The Witness: We all were there, yes, sir.

Q. Did you drive them over in the car you were driving, the hot car, as you described it? A. No, sir.

Q. How did you get to this apartment house? A. We all walked.

Q. Where did you leave the car? A. Bradford and Blake.

Q. That is where the park is? A. Yes.

Q. How far did you walk from there to get to this apartment? A. Up to the corner of Sutter Avenue, and the next block is Belmont, and we made a left turn on Belmont to Wyona; on Wyona and Belmont, that is where it was.

Q. How long did you stay in the lobby? A. I didn't have a watch.

Q. You told us that at least five times. We will take your word for that, at least, that you did not have a watch. A. It might have been three-quarters of an hour.

Q. The four of you stood in the hallway? A. 2774
Mendy Weiss, Harry Strauss, Jimmy Ferraco, and myself.

Q. Inside of the doorway? A. In the hallway, sir. Right near the door.

Q. What time in the morning would you say that was? A. I don't know how long; five o'clock they called me up. I don't know how long I got there.

Q. You had to go out and get the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had to go up to this little park? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had to meet those four men? A. I did not clock it; I did not have any watch. 2775

Q. You had to do all those things? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time do you say it was when you got to this apartment house?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The witness cannot fix the time limit. He has been exhausted.

By the Court:

Q. How much after five was it according to your estimate? A. It might have been seven o'clock. I cannot tell you.

2776 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. (Mr. Talley) Might have been seven? A. What do you mean, in the house?

Q. How long did it take you to get to the lobby and look out? A. From where I walked to?

Q. Yes. A. About ten minutes.

By Mr. Talley:

2777

Q. Was the door open or shut when you were standing in this hallway? A. Shut.

Q. Will you look at the photograph which is marked People's Exhibit 30, and will you tell us exactly where you were standing when you say you were standing in the hallway? A. We were all in the hallway over here, inside (indicating).

Q. With the door shut? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you look at the door on that photograph? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is not a door you can see through, is it? A. Yes, sir.

2778 Q. Is there a glass in that door? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me see the photograph again, please. All right, you stood in the hallway with the door shut looking out through the glass that may or may not be there. I think it is there.

Mr. Talley: I have no objection to the jury looking at it, to see if it is.

Q. You stood there for three-quarters of an hour? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did anybody come down from the apartment house while you were standing there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody go up in the apartment house while you were standing there? A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody pass on the sidewalk while you were standing there? A. I could not tell you that.

Q. Do you mean by that answer you do not remember? A. I do not recollect.

Q. You didn't see any policeman walking along there who saw you four men in the place, did you? A. I don't understand what you mean. 2780

Q. You don't understand? Did a policeman walk along in front of that house while you were standing there that Sunday morning? A. I did not take notice.

Q. Did you see Rosen leave his house while you were standing in the hallway? A. No, sir. I did not even know who Rosen was.

Q. When did you know the identity of Rosen? A. When I picked up the paper on Sunday night.

Q. Not before? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did not take the trouble to ask Harry 2781 Strauss or anybody else who the man was that was going to be killed in the candy store? A. I did not ask questions; I just obeyed them.

Q. You did not care who was being killed, did you? A. It would be more healthier for me.

Q. You did not care who was being killed, did you? A. I could not back down.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I move the answer stand. It is responsive.

2782 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Will you answer my question? You did not care who it was that was being killed that morning, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: The Court accepted the answer as being an answer to the question.

2783 Mr. Talley: I did not accept it, sir. I take an exception to your Honor. The answer, I contend, is clearly unresponsive and voluntary and not an answer to my question.

By the Court:

Q. We will put it this way: Were you interested in who was going to be killed? A. No, sir.

Q. Did it make any difference to you who was 2784 going to be killed? A. I could not help myself.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike it out.

Q. Yes or no? A. What could I have done.

Q. Was it a matter of interest to you who it was that was to be killed? A. I cannot answer that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have objected to the answer, which was not responsive to the Court's question, and my motion was to strike out the answer.

2785

The Court: Strike out, "What could I have done?"

Q. Did you look into the store during the shooting? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you look in the store at any time after the others went in? A. Just looked, yes, sir, not into the store.

Q. That is what I want to find out: Did you look in the store at the time? A. I just looked at the store, but I did not look inside.

2786

Q. Not inside? A. No, sir.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. Did you see anybody in the store while you were waiting outside with the car, directly at the door? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not see these men inside the store at all? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not see what they did? A. No, sir.

Q. You heard shots? A. A lot of shots.

2787

Q. When you heard a lot of shots did you look in the direction from which they came? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see anything then? A. Mendy Weiss and Harry Strauss ran out of the store.

Q. Before they ran out of the store did you see anything happen inside the store? A. No, sir.

Q. Was the window of the store open from the street when you got there and parked your car directly in front of the store? A. I did not take notice of the store then.

2788 Q. Of course, you knew where you were going to park when you went there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew you were going to park directly in front of the candy store, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You held back the seat and held the door open for these men to get into the car? A. Yes, sir, after the shooting.

Q. So you knew a lot about this killing, didn't you? A. I did not deny it, sir.

2789 Mr. Turkus: I object to the question. It is ambiguous, argumentative, and repetitious.

The Court: Sustained as ambiguous.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You stole the car that was used in this murder, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

2790 Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You stole the plates from another car and put them onto the car which was used in the murder, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. You were shown the route that you were to take the killers away from the scene of the killing, weren't you? A. Yes, sir, by Louis Capone.

2791

Q. Yes, you told us that before, but were you told there was going to be a killing in that store on that morning, I asked you.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious and improper in form: that was not the testimony given.

The Court: We have been all over that.

2792

Q. And you drove—after you heard the shots in this store in which you were told there was going to be somebody killed—you drove some men away from the scene of the killing? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, under oath, Bernstein, you swore that you did not know what this Rosen killing was all about, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as to form.

The Court: Objection overruled.

2793

A. You want me to answer.

Q. Yes. A. I did not know, sir.

Q. What? A. I did not know.

Q. You did not know what? A. What it was all about.

Q. You knew there was to be a killing, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew it was to be on a Sunday morning, September 13, 1936, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object, that is not the testimony: it is repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

2794 Mr. Talley: Exception. Your Honor heard this witness say he did not know what it was all about. Are you going to prevent me from bringing back to his memory things he did in connection with it and in furtherance of it, which make him an accomplice? Are you going to prevent me from proving that?

The Court: Don't forget yourself.

Mr. Talley: I never do, nor do I over-
2795 look, your Honor, the necessity for preserving dignity in this court, but I do want my rights in cross-examination protected by you. You are the only one who can protect them, and I say I am entirely, definitely, and manifestly within my rights when I am asking this principal witness for the People the questions I am now asking.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the summation. He is not here as the People's principal witness.

2796 Mr. Talley: He is your principal witness, and do not attempt to deny it.

Mr. Turkus: You may think so.

The Court: The Court tries to rule fairly, and counsel should rest on their exceptions. I would rather you asked the question and the Court would then rule.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. You say you did not know anything about this killing?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained. He has not said so.

Mr. Talley: Exception. He has testified he does not know anything about this killing. He testified to that within the last five minutes.

The Court: No, he has not.

Mr. Talley: Exception. I did not ask him anything about the Rosen—I asked 2798 him about if he had not sworn before a Court and jury he knew nothing about it.

Mr. Turkus: That was not your question.

The Court: I will not indulge in altercations.

By the Court:

Q. Did anybody at or about the time of this occurrence tell you the reason why it was to be done? A. No, sir.

Q. And after the alleged killing did anybody 2799 tell you, in the group, tell you the reason why it was done? A. No, sir.

Mr. Talley: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. In the case of People v. Irving Cohen, in which you testified as a witness for the prosecution, which was tried in the June term of 1940,

2800 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

in Monticello, New York, were you asked these questions and did you make these replies:

"Q. You aren't (meaning are not)—You aren't accessory or accomplice to any murder? A. That is right."

Mr. Turkus: There were other lawyers who tried that case. If that question was asked in this court I would have objected to it as a legal question.

2801 The Court: There is nothing to call for a ruling now. I am not interested in what you would have done if you were there.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question.

The Court: Sustained. It is a legal point.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

I don't think your Honor understood the situation.

The Court: What is an accessory as defined by Section 2 of the Penal Code?

2802 Mr. Talley: I am asking you to bear with me. If on a certain occasion which I have called his attention to he was asked this question and whether he made a certain reply it matters not whether the question has any significance or sense or legal meaning. I am entitled to know whether he was asked that question and whether he made that answer.

The Court: The Court has said you are not. It has nothing to do with this case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except.

Mr. Talley: I except.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you make this reply: "I must get this question and answer on the record, if your Honor please.

The Court: Certainly. Otherwise your exception is no good, although in this case no exceptions are needed; the entire record is subject to review without exceptions."

By Mr. Talley: 2804

Q. On the trial in Monticello were you asked these questions and did you make these replies:

"Q. You aren't an accessory or accomplice to any murder? A. That is right.

"Q. And that is true? A. Yes.

"Q. And you have had nothing to do with any murder on any occasion? A. That is right."

Were you asked those questions and did you make those replies on the trial of Irvin Cohen in Monticello, New York?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The additional ground of my objection is there is nothing inconsistent between that and his admission which he has made in this courtroom, that he told the truth about Cohen and that he withheld other information. I will not go into the explanation he made. There is nothing inconsistent in that testimony and the present testimony. 2805

Mr. Talley: I object to this statement. It is a summation. It is not time to sum up to the jury, and it is not the basis of an objection.

2806

The Court: The last part, that is, the last question and answer, are competent. The rest is ruled out.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. "Q. And you had nothing to do with any murder on any occasion? A. That is right."

Were you asked that question and did you make that reply under oath?

2807

The Court: Yes or no?

A. I can explain about that.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Were you asked that question and did you make that answer? A. If it is in the book, I said it.

Q. It is in the book. A. I said it, but I can explain.

2808

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out all except, "I said it."

Mr. Turkus: He can further explain anything.

The Court: It is stricken out.

Mr. Rosenthal: And I ask the latter part of this last answer be stricken out, about explaining.

The Court: The question of explaining can be attended to at the proper time by examination.

2809

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor strike it out?

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. In the same trial, when you were under oath, were you asked this question about the Rosen murder:

"Q. Did you have any part in that murder? A. I don't know what it was all about."

Were you asked that question and did you make that reply? A. If it is in the book I said it.

2810

Q. It is in the book. A. I said it.

Q. And that testimony was given by you under oath in June, 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is four years after Rosen was killed, which was in September of 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Talley: I have no further questions.

Cross-examination by Mr. Rosenthal:

2811

Q. Now, Bernstein, so will understand one another,— A. (interrupting) You can come out with it. Go ahead.

The Court: Just listen to the questions and give direct answers.

Q. If you don't understand the question, you tell me, will you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You testified that in 1930 you pleaded guilty before Judge Vause in this court? A. I don't remember what year it was, but I pleaded guilty.

2812 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. You pleaded guilty to that crime before you ever knew Louis Capone, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You pleaded guilty to unlawful entry, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But that was not the crime you were charged with, was it? A. No, sir.

Q. You were charged with a felony, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were permitted by the courtesy of 2813 the Court and the District Attorney to take a lesser plea? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. You don't know what a lesser plea is? A. I took a plea.

Q. Do you know what a lesser plea is? A. A lower plea, yes, sir.

Q. By courtesy of the Court and the District Attorney you were given—

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not finished my question. Will you please sit down until I do so?

2814

Q. Don't answer it. Mr. Turkus wants to object. And when you see him get on his feet do not answer any question that I ask you—is that clear? A. Yes, sir. Tell me the question.

Q. Is that clear to you? A. Very clear.

Q. By courtesy of the Court and the District Attorney you were permitted to take a plea to a misdemeanor, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Sustained. He does not know whether it was a courtesy or what the reason was.

Q. You did take a plea to a misdemeanor?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am representing the defendant Capone. I don't care what he said to Mr. Turkus and I don't care what he said to Judge Talley. This is an in- 2816 dependent cross-examination conducted on behalf of the defendant I represent. If your Honor intends to restrict it I will change my course of examination and take exception to your Honor's ruling.

The Court: That is entirely uncalled for and done for the obvious purpose of provoking the Court.

Mr. Rosenthal: And to that I respectfully except. I ask for a ruling on the question.

The Court: You have it.

Mr. Rosenthal: Is the objection sus- 2817 tained?

The Court: It is sustained as repetitious. He told you a few moments ago.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you were asked by Mr. Turkus regarding this conviction you were asked the question on page 488 of these minutes:

"Q. I suggest to you the date of February 13, 1930, and the crime of unlawful entry. Does that refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

2818 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

"Q. Were you convicted of that crime on that day? A. Yes, sir."

Do you remember being asked those questions and giving those answers?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. There is nothing inconsistent with his testimony.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will show he was not convicted on that date, but he answered you with all alacrity that he was, because you suggested the date.

2819

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you say you were convicted on the 13th day of February, or pleaded guilty on the 13th day of February in that case?

Q. (The Court) Do you remember the date? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that you pleaded guilty on April 21st in respect to that crime? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Now, the second conviction which you testified to, you said that you also took a plea to a misdemeanor; is that right? A. I took two pleas, misdemeanors.

2820

Q. I am talking about the second conviction; we have passed the first one. Is that clear, Bernstein?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not spoken about the second conviction.

The Court: He said he pleaded twice to misdemeanors.

Q. You were not charged with committing a misdemeanor on the second offense, were you? A. No, sir.

Q. You were accused of a felony, stealing an automobile worth five hundred some odd dollars, weren't you? A. I don't know how much it was worth.

Q. In respect to that crime that you pleaded guilty to, you were accused of grand larceny in the first degree, weren't you?

2822

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He said it was a felony and he pleaded to a misdemeanor.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am showing the degree of crime.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The Court: You can ask him what he did. He is bound by his plea. That constitutes an admission of guilt to the extent of the plea. He cannot be examined as to the nature of the charge, because by the plea he does not admit the full extent 2823 of the charge, but you may examine him ad lib as to what he did, in order to ascertain the gravamen and to what extent it affects his credibility, if you think that is important.

Mr. Rosenthal: Thank you. From the standpoint of credibility I think it is very important.

The Court: It probably is. Go ahead.

Q. Now, on the 14th of October, 1933, did you

2824 steal a Ford Victoria sedan? A. I cannot tell you that, sir.

Q. Well, can you tell us whether or not the subject matter of the charge that was made against you, that you were permitted to plead to a misdemeanor on, involved the theft of a Ford Victoria sedan automobile stolen in October, 1933? A. I don't know what it was. I took a plea for the car. I don't know the year.

2825 By the Court:

Q. In brief, did you steal a Ford? Is that what you were convicted of? A. I don't know what car it was.

Q. You have forgotten the make? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Do you remember whether the subject-matter of conviction was theft of an automobile from a garage, a public garage situated at 1479 St. Marks Avenue in this Borough? A. Yes, sir.

2826 Q. Did you, in company with one Moe Cohen and Meyer Halperin, steal an automobile? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you with Meyer Halperin when the automobile was stolen? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you with Moe Cohen when the automobile was stolen?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know a Moe Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know him on the 14th of October, 1933, when you stole that automobile? A. When I got arrested, yes.

Q. Do you know Meyer Halperin? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know him at the time you stole the automobile in October of 1933? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you steal that automobile alone, without the assistance of anybody? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that neither Cohen nor Halperin as- 2828 sisted you in the theft of the automobile; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That automobile that you stole was practically a new automobile, wasn't it? A. I do not remember, sir. No, sir, an old car, sir.

Q. Weren't you apprehended in an automobile together with Moe Cohen and Meyer Halperin by Detective William Cassidy of the 69th Precinct, while you were driving the car at Linden Boulevard and Kings Highway? A. Not Detective Cassidy, but Patrolman Cassidy.

Q. You remember he was a patrolman? A. 2829
Patrolman Cassidy.

Q. With the exception of the change in words, "Detective" to "Patrolman", are the facts which I just stated to you substantially correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were the other two men in the car with you when you were apprehended by Patrolman Cassidy? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, at that time, the Patrolman arrested you together with Halperin and Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was the complaint which was made against 2830 you read to you at the time in the County Court before your plea was entered?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Didn't you first enter a plea of a greater degree of crime before you were permitted to withdraw it and plead to a lesser degree? A. Yes, sir.

2831

Q. So that in respect to the charge which I have now related, in which you took a plea of misdemeanor, you first took a plea of a felony, didn't you, before Judge Martin, in this court? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now then, in 1933, did you know a man named Herschel Bernstein? A. No, sir—yes, sir.

Q. Now, which is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In 1933 did you know a man named Hal Kempner? A. What is his name?

Q. Did you know any Kempner, never mind the first name? A. Yes, sir.

2832

Q. What was the Kempner's first name whom you knew? A. Harold.

Q. In 1933 did you know an Aaron Smith? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know a man named Smith in 1933? A. No, sir.

Q. In 1933, in the month of February, or the 26th of February— A. Excuse me, sir. Did you say a man named Smith?

Q. That is a pretty common name, isn't it? A. I know a man named Smith, yes, sir. When you said Aaron Smith—I know I know somebody by the name of Smith.

Q. You just remembered that, Bernstein, didn't you? A. I was a little tangled up.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the sarcastic language.

Mr. Rosenthal: There is nothing sarcastic. I just asked him if he remembered.

The Court: Objection overruled. 2834

Q. You just remembered it? A. No, sir, it just slipped, that is all.

Q. Slipped your mind? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well now, you did know a Smith in 1933, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetition.

Mr. Rosenthal: No, it is not.

Q. Did you know an Aaron Smith? A. No, sir.

Q. What is the first name of the Smith you 2835 know? A. Milton Smith.

Q. (The Court) He is a lawyer, isn't he? A. He was a lawyer, yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Bald headed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Known as Baldy Smith? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. A lawyer with a nickname of Baldy Smith?

2836 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: Maybe we had better have a recess now.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. Were you on the 26th of February, 1933, in the company of Herschel Bernstein, Hal Kempner, and a man named Smith, or any one of them, at or about one o'clock in the morning?

Mr. Turkus: What year?

2837 Mr. Rosenthal: February 26, 1933. I would ask that you ask the question after we get an answer.

A. I don't know what you are talking about.

Q. Did you break into a pool room located at 1516 Pitkin Avenue in the Borough of Brooklyn through a skylight and take from a safe therein the sum of $600, you accompanied by one Bernstein, Kempner, and Smith? A. No, sir.

Q. Milton Smith? A. Aaron Smith.

2838 The Court: Let the record be cleared. That would be unjust to Milton Smith, who has practiced in this court, and he also represented Herschel Bernstein.

Mr. Rosenthal: Your Honor knows more about that than I do. We will make it clear. Aaron Smith.

Q. Did you in February, 1934, know a man named Joseph Gordon? A. No, sir.

Q. You never heard the name of Joseph Gordon before—just think. A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know Al Glass? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the man who was your partner, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir, in shylocking.

Q. Shylocking and other things, wasn't he? A. No, sir.

Q. Just shylocking? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are sure of that, aren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he known by any nickname? A. Cherry.

Q. (Spelling) C-h-e-r-r-y? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know Max Richinski? A. Yes, sir. 2840

Q. Did you know him in 1934? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you together with Joseph Gordon, Al Glass, and Max Richinski, on the 24th of February, 1934, take from the possession of one Walter Ellis, a night watchman in a garage at Adams Street, a truck containing 1,014 suits of clothes, which truck belonged to the Howard Clothing Manufacturing Company and the Howard Clothes, Incorporated? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know anything about that theft? A. No, sir.

Q. You never heard about it until I asked you on the stand? A. Yes, sir. 2841

Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The first time you ever heard about that is when I asked you on the stand today or when Judge Talley asked you yesterday, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that you were arrested and charged with that crime in 1934?

Mr. Turkus: That has gone far enough.

Mr. Rosenthal: No, it has not. I want to finish the question.

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor instruct Mr. Rosenthal, who has been appearing as a lawyer nearly as many years as I have been living, that he should know better than to ask such a question?

The Court: It is obvious at this point that counsel, who knows this to be incompetent, is just trying to get it before the jury. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

2843 This man said he never heard of it until today, and this is to attack his credibility as to whether he did or not, and this jury is entitled to know whether he is telling the truth when he said on this stand that this is the first time he ever heard of that theft.

The Court: All right, Mr. Rosenthal, when the Court is tired of sitting here and presiding, it will turn over the gavel to you. In the meantime take your exception by obeying the ruling.

2844 Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling.

Q. On the 24th of February or thereabouts, in 1934, did you have three $1,000 bills concealed in one of your shoes? A. No, sir.

Q. On any day in the year 1934 did you have three $1,000 bills concealed in your shoes?

Mr. Turkus: I object. What is the difference where he kept his money?

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir.

2845

Q. At no time, in any year, did you have three $1,000 bills concealed in your shoe? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have three $1,000 bills at any time, in any year, concealed on your person, on any part of your person?

Mr. Turkus: I object. I don't understand what you mean by concealing money on his person. I object to the form of the question as incompetent and immaterial and irrelevant.

2846

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

Mr. Turkus: We are trying everything but the case.

The Court: There is nothing illegal about it.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you know Jean Glick? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She was a daughter of Charles Meyer, the man you mentioned yesterday? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me ask you this: Were you ever a bond salesman? A. A what?

2847

Q. A bond salesman, b-o-n-d. A. Yes, sir, what do you mean by a bond salesman?

The Court: Bail bonds?

Q. Any kind of a bond. Did you ever sell any kind of a bond? A. I don't know what you are trying to bring out.

Q. You will find out soon enough, as Mr. Turkus used that expression.

Mr. Turkus: May that be stricken from 2848 the record and the jury told to disregard it?

The Court: Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case. Let nobody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open.

The recess will be for lunch until 1:30 o'clock.

First the witness will be taken out.

(The witness leaves the court-room.)

2849 The Court: Now the jury may leave.

(The jury leaves the court-room.)

The Court: Now the defendants are remanded.

(Whereupon a recess was taken until 1:30 P. M.)

AFTERNOON SESSION. TRIAL RESUMED.

2850 SOL. BERNSTEIN, (resumes the stand for further cross-examination):

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Were you ever a salesman, any kind of salesman? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever in the real estate business? A. No, sir.

Q. At any time in your life? A. No, sir.

Q. When did you get married? A. 1937.

Q. And you are still married, are you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever represent yourself in the bank to be in the real estate business? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Did you ever represent yourself to be single when you were married, when you were trying to get money from a bank? A. Might have been. I don't recall.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. Don't recall, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that these be marked for identification. 2852

(Papers marked Defendants' Exhibits I, J, K, L and M for identification).

Q. I show you this paper marked Defendants' Exhibit, Capone's exhibit, M for identification, and ask you whether at the bottom of that page is your handwriting and signature (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you Defendants' Exhibit L for identification, and ask you whether at the bottom of the page is your handwriting and signature (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes, sir. 2853

Q. I show you Defendants' Exhibit K for identification, and ask you whether at the bottom of the page is your handwriting and signature (handing exhibit to witness)? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I show you Defendants' Exhibit I for identification, and ask you whether at the bottom of the page is your handwriting and signature, and, in addition thereto, whether or not it is not your handwriting, starting at the top of the page, where it says "Full name" and so forth, "Residence" and so forth. A. Yes, sir.

2854 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. I show you Defendants' Exhibit J for identification, and ask you whether on the back of that is not your handwriting and signature? A. That is my handwriting, sir.

Q. And is it your signature also? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then in the year 1939 were you in the real estate business? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you represent to the Food Dealers Industrial Bank, in order to procure a loan, that you were in the real estate business? A. Yes,
2855 sir.

Q. That was not true, was it? A. That is right, sir.

Q. In the year 1938, tenth month, that is October 17th, were you single? A. I beg your pardon. Read that again over.

Q. Were you single in October of 1938? A. Married, sir.

Q. Did you represent to the Food Dealers Industrial Bank that you were single at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true either was it? A. Yes,
2856 sir—no, sir, it was not true, sir.

Q. Did you represent to the Food Dealers Industrial Bank that you were a salesman at that time with a fixed salary of $100 a week? A. I don't recall that but it is not true, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection? Did you tell them that you were a salesman? A. I did tell them, yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell them that you were earning $100 a week? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Neither of those things was true? A. That is right, sir.

Q. In the year 1938, the month of May, did you represent to the Food Dealers Industrial Bank that you were single? A. If it is there I said it, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. I can't recall, sir.

Q. Were you in business in the year 1938, in the month of May? A. Yes, shylocking and bookmaking and gambling.

Q. It was not true that you were single, was it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered. 2858

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on a different application, a different time.

Mr. Turkus: What's the difference? He said he was married in 1937 so he is married up to today.

Q. At the time of making these representations you also signed your name at the bottom of the statement, did you not? A. I don't get you, sir.

Q. At the time of making these representations to the bank, you signed your name at the bottom of these statements, did you not? A. Yes, sir. 2859

Q. Where did you live in 1938? A. 1938?

Q. Yes. A. In Bensonhurst, sir.

Q. Where, what address? A. 60th Street.

Q. What address? A. 2161 60th Street.

Q. How long had you lived there? A. About two years, sir. I am not sure. I lived a lot of places. I am just giving you an idea.

Q. What was the answer? A. I am just giving you an idea.

Q. Let us put it this way. What was the last address that you had in Brooklyn before you went to Miami? A. 99 East 96th Street.

2860 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. How long did you live there? A. About a year, sir.

Q. Where did you live prior to then? A. Bensonhurst, sir.

Q. What address? A. 2161 60th Street.

Q. How long did you live there? A. About three years, sir.

Q. And where did you live before that? A. On 71st Street.

Q. In Bensonhurst? A. Yes, sir.

2861 Q. How long did you live there? A. About two years, sir—a year or two years.

Q. That would bring you down to around 1936, is that right? A. I don't understand. I am just telling you where I lived, sir.

Q. Where did you live in the year 1936?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Do you remember?

A. I lived in 60th Street; I lived in 62nd Street; I lived near 71st Street.

2862 Q. Where did you live in September, 1936? A. On Bay Parkway, 2161 60th Street. Wait a minute, sir. I don't know if this is 60th Street, or 62nd Street, or 71st Street—around there.

Q. It was any one of three places, is that it? A. I think so.

Q. Don't you recall where you came from when you came from home to meet Muggsy Cohen on the Friday before— A. I think it was 60th Street, sir.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. I am not sure.

Q. It might have been 62nd Street? A. It might have been 62nd Street.

Q. It might have been 71st Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In December of 1938 did you represent to the Food Dealers Industrial Bank of 89 Osborne Street, Brooklyn, that you were single? A. If it is on there, I said it, sir.

Q. What is your recollection? Did you tell them? A. If it is on there, I said it.

Q. Have you any recollection, independent of this paper which I hold in my hand and which you see me holding in my hand, as to whether 2864 you represented to the bank in December of 1938 that you were single? A. If it is on there I said it. A lot of loans.

Q. Did you always tell them you were single? A. Yes, sir, I think so. I am not sure.

Q. Was there any reason why you hid from the bank the fact that you were married? A. I think I would not have gotten so much of a loan.

Q. What? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. I am asking you for your mind. Was there any reason that you had in your mind to hide from the bank the fact that you were married? 2865
A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

The Court: Did you have any reason for stating you were not married?

The Witness: Yes, I think that is the only way I could get the loan, sir.

The Court: You did that in order to get the loan?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Were you told by somebody that if you were married the bank would not loan you money?

2866 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Tarkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: That was his reason. He stated that.

Q. Isn't it a fact that this man, Charles Meyers, always endorsed these notes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Up until a certain time when he refused to 2867 endorse, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And after he refused to endorse these notes, you went to his home, didn't you, to see him? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not go to his home? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see Charles Meyers—did Meyers live at 171 Herzl Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did his daughter, Jean Glick, live there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. She lived with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go to the home of Charles Meyers on July 8, 1939? A. I went a lot of times there, sir.

2868 Q. Prior to July 8, 1939, did Meyers refuse to further endorse your notes for you? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know what the word "prior" means? A. Before, yes.

Q. He was still endorsing your notes in July of 1939, is that correct? A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. You just said "No, sir," didn't you? A. Yes, sir. You asked me things, I got so many loans I don't remember, sir.

Q. I will ask you the question again. Isn't it a fact that before July of 1939, Charles Meyers refused to endorse any more loans for you or notes for you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is repetitious, already answered.

The Court: Do you remember one way or the other?

The Witness: I did not ask him, sir.

The Court: About that date?

The Witness: I don't recall the date, sir.

The Court: Do you recall the date when he refused to endorse further loans?

The Witness: Yes, that was over that, 2870
I think, $5,000, loan. I don't know when it was.

The Court: Will you try to figure when that was, if you have any recollection of it?

The Witness: That is the time counsellor Barshay came in. That is with the loan in the bank, the $5,000. loan.

Q. You mean that Mr. Barshay was an Assistant District Attorney? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that what you mean? That was in 1939 2871 wasn't it? A. I think so.

Q. Didn't you go into Meyer's home on one night, around one o'clock in the morning, and there hit his daughter in the eye? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you in any court, particularly, the Tenth District Magistrate's Court in Brooklyn, and did you admit at that time that you had hit his daughter in the eye but said it was an accident? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you in the Tenth District Magistrate's Court? A. Yes, sir.

2872 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. In Brooklyn, in A. Pennsylvania Avenue Court. I can tell you.

Q. What? A. I can tell you, Pennsylvania Avenue Court.

Q. Pennsylvania Avenue Court, when? A. The time you are talking about, sir.

Q. Yes, July, 1939. A. I don't recall the date, sir.

Q. Was the name of Meyer's daughter Jean Glick?

2873

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. What is your answer? A. Yes.

Q. Did she, in your presence, say that you had accidentally hit her in the eye and that she wanted to withdraw the complaint because it was an accident? A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. What? A. I don't recall it.

Q. When you were first asked regarding your second conviction on this trial by Judge Talley, you recall telling Judge Talley that nobody ordered you to steal that automobile,—when you were first asked,—that was the subject of your first conviction. Do you remember saying that the second conviction, I should say? Let me withdraw it, so that you understand my question and put it a little more plainly for you. Do you remember Judge Talley examining you about your second conviction which related to a stolen automobile? Do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

2874

Q. Do you remember him asking you questions about it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember, in answer to his questions, your first stating to him that nobody ordered you to steal that car? Do you remember saying that to him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember then saying, "Well, I just thought it over and now I want to correct myself. Somebody ordered me to steal the car." Do you remember saying that? A. I don't recall it, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you did tell Judge Talley that you were ordered to steal that car or not by somebody? The car that I have 2876 reference to, sir, is the car which is the subject matter of your second conviction, namely, the Ford Victoria coupe. Do you remember saying that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. The testimony adduced by Mr. Rosenthal was that this witness could not remember the type of the car.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw the type of the car. Let me re-frame the question.

2877

Q. Whatever the type of car it was that you stole from this public garage—you know the car I mean, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the car I am referring to. A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the one you were arrested on? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. That is the one you pleaded guilty on, isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

2878 Q. In reference to that car, did you first tell Judge Talley that no one ordered you to steal that car? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not say that? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you asked these questions and did you give these answers, in answer to Judge Talley's questions, at page 575 of these minutes:

"Q. Did you steal the car that was the subject of that charge against you? Did you steal that because somebody ordered you to? A. No,

2879 sir."

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You just told me that you did not answer the question put by Judge Talley, "No, sir". Didn't you just say that to me a minute ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was, not true, was it?

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, he has not read all.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am going to read the 2880 rest. I have already said to the witness the first answer which he gave, and then he subsequently changed it.

Mr. Turkus: The witness has a right to correct his testimony.

Mr. Rosenthal: We will find out about it, and, as you say, we will progress slowly but surely.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you.

Q. You said a minute ago to me that you never told Judge Talley when you were under cross examination by him that nobody had ordered you to steal that car. Did you just say that a minute ago?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Now, which is correct, that you did tell Judge Talley when he asked you whether or not you had stolen this car under orders and said "No" A. No, not that car. 2882

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection to the question. Will you be patient, please?

Q. Let me ask you this. Let me withdraw the question now and let me put it this way. Did anybody order you to steal the car that was the subject matter of your arrest and conviction? A. No, sir.

Q. That question is plain to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You understand the car I am referring to is the car which you stole out of the public garage at 1479 St. Marks Avenue on the 14th day of October, 1933? That is plain to you? A. Yes, sir. 2883

Q. Nobody ordered you to steal that car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us understand one another. It is a fact that nobody did order you to steal that car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You stole that car of your own volition, on your own hook, without any orders from anybody? A. That is right, sir.

Q. Didn't you on your cross-examination—let me read the question to you—weren't you asked 2884 those questions by Judge Talley and didn't you give these answers:

"Q. (Page 575) Did you steal the car that was the subject of that charge against you? Did you steal that because somebody ordered you to? A. No, sir.

"Q. So that the two times when you pleaded guilty to crimes they were crimes which were committed by you yourself and not under orders? A. Excuse me, let me get this right, I 2885 didn't hear you.

"Q. It is perfectly plain. A. No, sir, that car was stolen under orders.

"Q. Didn't you just, two minutes ago, tell me it was not under orders? A. I refreshed my memory."

Were you asked those questions by Judge Talley and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They were not true, were they?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the characteri-2886 zation.

A. No, sir.

Q. It is definite, Mr. Bernstein, that two charges that you were arrested on, pleaded guilty to and were convicted for, nobody ordered you to commit either of those two crimes; isn't that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much money did you get out of the Modern Industrial Bank? A. Modern Industrial Bank?

Q. Yes. A. A thousand dollars, sir.

Q. Is that all? A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. You borrowed, you told Judge Talley, $50,000., or maybe more, through the endorsement of Charles Meyers in the Food Industrial Bank. Did you not say that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the testimony.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will get you the verbatim testimony. 2888

Mr. Turkus: The testimony was brought out by your Honor that in all the loans were $50,000. or more.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal, you don't mean $50,000. in one loan?

Mr. Rosenthal: I am going to have it explained, Judge. We can only ask one question at a time.

The Court: Do you really mean that?

Mr. Rosenthal: No, I do not mean one loan. I am going to find out from him in how many loans.

2889

Q. It is a fact that you were asked by someone in this court room respecting loans that you made from the Food Dealers Bank, that you borrowed up to $50,000. or more from them? Isn't that true? A. Not for myself, sir.

Q. Did you say in answer either to Mr. Talley's question or Judge Taylor's question that through the endorsement of Meyers you had borrowed from the Food Dealers Bank up to or upwards of $50,000.? Did you say that, yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was true, was it? A. Yes.

2890 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Covering what period of time did you borrow from the Food Bank, or the Food Dealers Bank, this sum of money? A. I don't recall, sir. I don't mean this bank—

Q. Well, starting, when was the first loan that you made at the Food Dealers Bank?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, having nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

2891 The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: It is collateral.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. In addition to borrowing money from the Food Dealers Bank, did you borrow sums of money from the Modern Industrial Bank?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Sustained.

2892 Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Was this a large shylock business you had? A. No, sir.

Q. About how many customers did you have? A. Twenty, thirty, forty— I don't know how many.

Q. I do not hear you. A. I do not know how many.

Q. Can you approximate?

Mr. Turkus: I object, unless the time be fixed. The business was conducted over a period of year. I suppose customers varied.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. What is your answer? A. Twenty, thirty, forty— I don't know how many there was, sir.

Q. You were very familier with the shylock business, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, repetitious.

The Court: Overruled. 2894

Q. Weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do, loan five dollars to somebody and get six back for it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Within a week? A. I beg your pardon, sir?

Q. That is, you loaned five and got a dollar profit for the week's loan, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In this shylock business that you conducted —let me withdraw that.

Q. Out in Florida, you said you were a spotter, didn't you? A. Yes, sir. 2895

Q. You mean a strong arm man, don't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were a strong arm man in a gambling place in Florida weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know, in the conducting of the shylock business, that strong arm methods were used in order to collect from the unfortunates that borrowed money?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the question.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

2896

Q. If you did not get back the six dollars within a week, you beat it out of the man, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you conduct your shylock business different than the other shylocks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What methods did you use to get back your money if it was not paid by the individual who borrowed it? A. Charged somebody more interest, sir.

Q. I don't get that. A. Charged somebody

2897 more interest, sir; different customers, make up on them.

Q. Oh, you just let the loan go and charged an additional amount to the other suckers that borrowed from you, is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us get that straight. In other words, instead of beating the person that borrowed from you, you charged the other man two dollars a week instead of one; is that the way? A. Sometimes behind, sir. I did not charge interest on top of interest, if that is what you are trying to bring out. Of course, if a man did not pay, I 2898 would threaten him. That is a known fact, sir, I would threaten him, yes.

Q. If a man did not pay, you would threaten him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By that you mean you would threaten to beat him up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You just told me, did you not, that you would let the sucker go that had borrowed from you and would charge a different one an additional amount to make up the loss. Didn't you just say that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that by that do you mean that if someone other than the man that owed you and did not pay, borrowed five dollars, you would charge him seven dollars at the end of the week instead of six? Is that what you mean? A. No, sir.

2899

Q. What did you mean that you charged an additional amount to the other man to make up the loss for the man that did not pay? What did you mean by that? A. Sometimes a man takes ten. Let me explain you, sir.

Q. Yes, I am waiting for you to explain. A. Sometimes a man takes ten. If he stays away 2900 twelve weeks, sir, I am not going to charge him two dollars every week interest. I make a settlement with him and sometimes if a man can't pay, whether he can afford, a dollar a week, two dollars a week, that is the only way you can get your money out. It is no sense of hitting him like, that's why.

Q. You use only threats? A. Yes, money never got the best of me.

Q. In other words, you would say "I am going to beat your head off if you don't pay"? A. Yes, sir.

2901

Q. But if he did not pay, you did not beat his head off. Is that the way you did? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are sure, however, that you did use threats? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you testify in the mountains that you did not threaten anybody in the Gangi Cohen case? A. I did not say I threatened anybody, sir.

Q. What? A. I did not say I threatened anybody, sir, in the mountains.

Q. You said you did not threaten? A. Yes, sir.

2902

Q. Now you remember that you did threaten people? A. I am telling the truth about everything in this case.

Q. Now you remember that you did threaten people, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you did not tell the truth in the mountains, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

2903

The Court: That is what he said.

Q. You were under oath in the mountains, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute, Mr. Rosenthal, if you are going to shout.

Mr. Rosenthal: But you told Judge Taylor he did not speak loud enough. Now you complain I speak too loud.

Mr. Turkus: You are shouting in my ear. I will appreciate it if you step back.

2904

Mr. Rosenthal: I will stand in the rear of the court room if you want. Anything to please you. You won't get me into any argument. If the Judge says "smile" I am going to smile.

Q. You were under oath in the Gangi trial, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Swore the same way as you did in this court room, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. To tell the truth? A. Yes, sir.

Q. A man's life was at stake, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

2905

Q. And you had a jury similar to this, sitting there listening to your story? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in the court you told the jury, I am telling you the truth? A. About the case.

Q. Did you— A. About the case.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute, don't shut o' the answer.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not shutting off the answer.

2906

Q. Did you tell that jury that you were telling the truth?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. When you testified?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, withdrawn. I will give you his exact testimony in a minute.

2907

Q. Did you ever have a bank account? A. Bank account?

Q. Yes, bank account. You know what a bank account is, don't you? A. Yes, I did, sir.

Q. You did have a bank account? A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. Manufacturers Trust Company, sir.

Q. Was there any reason to secrete that fact when you were up in the mountains, that you had a bank account?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

2908 Mr. Rosenthal: Let me withdraw it and put it this way.

Q. Were you asked this question in the mountains and did you give this answer (page 15, starting on page 14):

"Q. And what money did you use to go there? Was it the loan shark money? A. Yes.

"Q. Did you keep a bank account? A. No, sir.

2909 "Q. Never? A. No, sir."

Were you asked those questions in the mountains and did you give those answers? A. If it is in the book, I said it.

Q. Did anybody tell you to say "If it is in the book, I said it"? A. I myself, sir.

Q. You thought of that yourself, did you? A. What do you mean, I thought of it myself?

Q. Did you think of that expression "If it is in the book, I said it" by yourself or were you told by somebody to say "If it is in the book, I said it"? A. Nobody told me anything.

2910 Q. So you thought of it yourself, did you? Did you think of it yourself? A. I myself, sir.

Q. How did you know there was a book? A. You are reading a book, aren't you, sir?

Q. So that you thought of it when you got on the stand, is that it? A. You are reading a book.

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute.

Mr. Rosenthal: Withdraw and put it this way—

Mr. Turkus: Wait, please.

Mr. Rosenthal: I withdraw it.

2911

Mr. Turkus: Don't be shouting and withdrawing. Let us be a little friendly with the situation.

Mr. Rosenthal: We are going to be very friendly.

Mr. Turkus: The matter has been answered. He saw him read from the book. I ask the answer stand. Any further answer I object as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have no objection to the answer standing.

2912

Q. When was it that you first thought of the expression "If it is in the book it must be so"?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: That is just quarreling with the witness.

Q. Did you say in the trial, in the mountains, under oath, in answer to the question, "Do you keep a bank account" contained on page 15, "No, sir.

2913

"Q. Never? A. No, sir."

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is repetitious. He has just said so.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except. He said "If it is in the book it is so."

Q. If you said under oath in the mountains

2914 that you never had a bank account, that was not the truth, was it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was the truth? A. It was not the truth, sir.

Q. You told Judge Talley that since you were confined you have been out playing baseball on Long Island with some detectives; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Give me the name of the baseball team that you were on. Who were the men that played 2915 with you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit that I have a right to find out whether he played with men who may or may not appear as witnesses in this trial, which we have no knowledge of at this present time, which we are entitled to know.

Mr. Turkus: I have no objection to the identity of the people who played baseball but I object to part of the question, the preamble, the name of the team.

2916 Mr. Rosenthal: Excuse me. Let me withdraw it then.

Q. Were there nine men playing on one side in the baseball game you were in? A. I don't know how many men. There was plenty of detectives there.

Q. Were there nine men on one side, and nine on the other? A. There might have been twelve men on one side sometimes.

Q. Did you ever play baseball? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I mean were there more than nine playing at one time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the lineup? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Nine on each side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So there would be sometimes twelve on each side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell me the names of the twelve that were on your side? A. Tell you the names?

Q. Yes, the names. A. There was a lot of detectives over there. There was only four wit- 2918 nesses.

Q. Tell me the names of the witnesses that were on your side, playing baseball? A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. You don't know what I mean?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is ambiguous because he said there were four witnesses playing with detectives so they may not have been on the same side.

A. I didn't play on their sides. I played on 2919
the cops' side.

Q. Oh, you played on the cops' side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the other witnesses played on the cops' side, too, didn't they? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you were both playing on the cops' side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the cops' side that you were on, what other witnesses were on it? A. Sometimes was another witness and sometimes there was none, sir.

Q. Give me the names of the men that were 2920 out there playing baseball with you? A. You mean the detectives, sir?

Q. Yes, I will take the detectives first if you want it that way. Give me the names of the detectives?

The Court: We can get quickly to this. Pass on to something else. If you will just tell Mr. Rosenthal the names of the various witnesses who on either side 2921 played ball with you at any time since you have been.

The Witness: Mike Sycoff, Abe Reles, Al Tannenbaum.

Q. What were the names of the detectives?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: Played baseball with whom?

The Witness: Abe Reles, Mike Sycoff, 2922 Al Tannenbaum.

Q. Before you said there were four witnesses that you played baseball with. Who was the fourth? You mentioned Sycoff, Tannenbaum and Reles? A. Myself.

Q. Was Magoon there? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Levine? A. No, sir.

Q. Dukey Maffetore? A. No, sir.

Q. Just the four that you mentioned were in this ball game that you had with these detectives? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How often would you go out to these ball games? A. I went out exactly four times, sir.

Q. Covering what period of time did you go out and play ball? A. This was in the summer time, sir.

Q. How did you get to Long Island?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: That has nothing to do with the Rosca killing.

2924

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir. I believe I have a right to show that these men rode in conveyances and the type of conveyances and where they were taken.

Mr. Turkus: If it is for the purpose of showing a contract—

The Court: I know the purpose.

Mr. Turkus: If it is, I withdraw the objection.

The Court: The Court has ruled and will permit no discussion.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. 2925

Q. Did you ever walk on the boardwalk at Long Beach? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever walk on any boardwalk since you have been in custody? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever go in swimming down in Coney Island or Long Beach? A. No, sir.

Q. You say that you were always under guard? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you write any letters while you were under guard? A. No, sir.

2926

Q. At no time did you write letters or send them out to anybody? A. No, sir.

Q. That is positive, is it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had no communication whatsoever with the outside world, is I think your expression? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You never wrote a letter to anybody while you were in custody and gave it to your wife or to any detectives or any person to mail? A. No, sir.

2927

Q. That is right? A. Yes, sir

Q. Were you permitted to write letters? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you permitted to send out mail? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever left alone with your wife at any time so that you could give her a letter? A. No, sir.

Q. At all times there was always a detective there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At no time did you ever write to anybody while you have been incarcerated, or kept, I should say, in the Half Moon Hotel or any of the hotels that you have been kept in while you were a material witness; is that right?

2928

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I want a definite reply to that

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. You mentioned a man by the name of Muggsy Cohen. Was he a close friend of yours? A. What do you mean by close friend?

Q. Well, did you pal together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Go on trips together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Out or town together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. California? A. No, sir.

Q. What? A. No, sir.

Q. Any state other than New York State? A. I beg your pardon, sir.

Q Did you go to any other state outside of New York State with Muggsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What state? A. Florida. 2930

Q. When did you go to Florida with Muggsy Cohen? A. When District Attorney O'Dwyer declared war on the mob, I ran to Florida.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Turkus: It fixes the time all right.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Was it in 1940 that you went with Mr. Cohen to Florida? A. Yes, sir. 2931

Q. Who else did you go to Florida with? A. Glass.

Q. Glass is the man you call "Cherry", isn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the three of you go together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you go down? A. By car, sir.

Q. Whose car? A. Some friend's of mine, sir.

Q. What is his name? A. Theodore Feleher.

Q. Where does he live? A. He worked for Litvins. I don't know where he lived.

Q. He worked for Litvins? A. Yes, sir.

2932 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Is that the automobile place that you bought the car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he related to you, Litvin? A. No, sir.

Q. You do not know where Felcher lives?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

Mr. Rosenthal: I do not know whether it has or not. There are certain things not brought out here that I intend to bring 2933 out.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.

The Court: It seems to bring fishing to Florida. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't get the significance of that.

The Court: Think it over.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am thinking, but, Judge, I still don't get the significance.

Q. Did you stop with Cohen en route to Florida? A. Yes, sir.

2934 Q. Where did you stop? A. Commodore Hotel.

Q. While you were on the way to Florida did you stop any place?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, having nothing to do with the issue of the murder.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. When you were first asked by Judge Tally as to whether you used any other names outside of your own, you said no, didn't you, on this trial?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. At that time the question was ambiguous.

Mr. Rosenthal: Was it?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, it was.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will read the minutes.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Turkus: Don't do me any favors.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will do you a favor. 2936

Q. What is you answer? A. Repeat that question again, sir.

Q. When you were first asked by Judge Talley whether you ever had used any fictitious name in your life, you said no, didn't you? A. I said yes, sir.

Q. When you were first asked you said— A. I don't know if Talley asked me or Mr. Turkus asked me. I said yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you tell Judge Talley if he tells you, you will answer him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in the mountains did you have any reason to secrete the fact that you had used a fictitious name in Florida, the name of Jackie Berman? Did you have any reason in the mountains of secreting that fact? 2937

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is preliminary to confronting him with the mountain minutes.

The Court: Overruled.

2938 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. What is your answer? A. What is that, sir?

The Court: Read it.
(Question read by reporter.)

A. I think he has got a mistake. I think that is the name I went under in Florida.

Q. I am asking you this. I will make it very plain. In the mountains you were asked whether 2939 you had ever used any fictitious names, names other than Bernstein, and you told them that you hadn't. Do you remember that? A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. Well, in the mountains did you have any reason to hide from the jury that was hearing the Cohen case the fact that you had used the name Jackie Berman, in Florida? Did you have any reason to hide that fact?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is the same question, only put more plainly, that the court 2940 overruled.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Do you understand that question? A. In the mountains, sir?

The Court: Did you have any reason for concealing that when you testified in the Cohen case?

The Witness: I did not want to give no information, sir.

The Court: All right, that is an answer.

Q. The name Jackie Berman was your name, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you say you did not want to give out any information, do you mean information about yourself and the aliases that you had used? Is that what you mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that when you told the untruth in the mountains it was because you did not want to give any information to the court or the jury in the Cohen case about your aliases, is that it?

2942

Mr. Turkus: Objected to—

A. Because—

Mr. Turkus: Continue. You started.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, withdrawn.

Q. Who is Louis Glass? A. Al Glass.

Q. He has got a name "Cherry", and he has also got his first name, Louis? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Which is his right first name, Louis or Al? A. Al Glass. 2943

Q. Do you know that he registered with you in the Commodore Hotel as Louis Glass?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. This has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

Mr. Rosenthal: This was all brought out on direct in the history of this man by Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: It was not.

Mr. Rosenthal: Although we objected on the ground that it was proper cross-examination. You took him through a tour of the country.

Mr. Turkus: Sure, after Judge O'Dwyer became District Attorney.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, yes, we have heard that so often now—

Mr. Turkus: You certainly have, Mr. Rosenthal.

Mr. Rosenthal: And you will hear some things, too. You will hear some things, too, Mr. Turkus.

2945

The Court (To officer): Will you get the court's gavel?

Mr. Turkus: All right. I am sorry, Judge. Don't send for the gavel. I have an objection.

The Court: I have not the least recollection of what the question was.

Mr. Turkus: I can understand that.

The Court: Read it again.

(Question read by reporter.)

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

2946

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. So much time has elapsed, if I may, with the permission of the court, recall the fact that Mr. Turkus—

The Court: Don't argue.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not arguing.

The Court: When the gavel comes, I don't want to use it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I hope you don't have to use it on me. I don't think anybody has yet.

The Court: I intend to keep it right in the drawer.

Q. Was Harry Cohen a partner of yours? A. No, sir.

Q. Was he one of the people from East New York? A. What do you mean, from East New York, sir?

Q. Do you know Harry Cohen? A. That is Muggsy Cohen.

Q. That is Muggsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did I understand you to say that since you are in jail, or since you have been held as a material witness, no one of Judge O'Dwyer's 2948 office has ever confronted you with Muggsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Muggsy Cohen has never been in the District Attorney's office in Kings County here or in the hotel where you were, in your presence, since you are in jail. A. No, sir.

Q. That is positive, is it? A. Positive, sir.

Q. About this man "Cherry" Al Glass—let me withdraw that. Of course, you mentioned to the District Attorney, did you not, that Mugsy Cohen is the man that went with you to steal the car?

2949

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is obvious from the record.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: He did not say that he mentioned it to the Distrtct Attorney at all. I am asking whether he did, when he was originally arrested. I will re-frame the question.

Q. When you were originally arrested or gave yourself up, did you mention to the District Attorney that the man who aided you in stealing this automobile was Muggsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

2950

Q. And at that time Muggsy Cohen was in Brooklyn, wasn't he? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. You had seen him only just a little while before you gave yourself up, hadn't you? A. I was away for a while, when I was running.

Q. Wasn't he with you while you were running? A. No, sir.

2951

Q. Wasn't he in Florida with you? Isn't that what you just told me a couple of minutes ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't he leave Brooklyn with you to go to Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is when you said you were running because District Attorney O'Dwyer had started a war on the mob? A. I was running.

Q. Yes. A. I.

Q. He was running with you, wasn't he? A. I was running.

Q. Was he running with you? A. He went with his own car, sir.

2952

Q. Didn't you tell us a little while ago that you borrowed a car from a man by the name of Felcher whose address you do not know and that you, Muggsy Cohen and Al Glass, otherwise known as Louis Glass, and otherwise known as Cherry, went along with you in Felcher's car? A. He went in his own car.

Q. Did you tell us a little while ago—

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is repetitious. It never happened.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Did you tell us that a little while ago? A. I got mixed up. I didn't understand you.

Q. You got mixed up? Let us start over again if you are mixed up. You recall my asking you a little while ago about your using the name of Jackie Berman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you remember my asking you about Harry Cohen, otherwise Muggsy Cohen, and Louis Glass, otherwise Al Glass, otherwise Cherry, being with you in Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember my asking you how you 2954 got to Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you remember your saying, "We took an automobile to go to Florida."? A. I didn't understand you then, sir, clear.

Q. Do you remember my asking you whose automobile it was, and you said a man by the name of Fetcher who works with Litvin, but you don't know Fetcher's address; do you remember saying that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Not having understood me, Muggsy Cohen did or did not go with you to Florida? Which is it?

2955

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said he did not understand me. Now I want to get it straight

Mr. Turkus: This has nothing to do with the Rosen killing. Whether they went in one or two cars to Florida, what difference does it make? I object to it.

The Court: I do not recall that he said that Cohen went in the same car, but I fail to see its relevancy.

2956 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: The relevancy, sir, is the fact that he has now said on the stand here that Cohen is the man who, in the Rosen murder, stole the car with him, and this man Cohen, he is now saying he knows nothing about, and I am showing that he was in his company continuously up to the time practically that he gave himself up.

2957 Mr. Turkus: What has that got to do with it? How would that even—

Mr. Rosenthal: Don't—

Mr. Turkus: Please— How would that even be binding on the defendants?

Mr. Rosenthal: Leave that to me, Mr. Turkus. Do you want to know? You are not so stupid as you pretend to be.

Mr. Turkus: Thanks for the compliment.

Mr. Rosenthal: Where is Cohen? Why isn't he arrested? Why isn't he in jail? Why isn't he questioned? If you want 2958 to know the materiality of it, I will tell it to you very quickly.

The Court: When this is all over, let me know.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is all over now, Judge.

The Court: The witness testified that he went to Florida with Muggsy Cohen and was in Florida with Muggsy Cohen at the Commodore Hotel. Whether or not that is relevant to the issue, I don't know. I cannot say. Whether or not they went in the same car seems to me to be quite far afield from the trial of this issue. Sustained.

2959

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir.

Q. Did you remain in Florida with Muggsy Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you remain there? A. About three weeks, sir.

Q. Did you leave Florida with Muggsy Cohen —withdraw.

2960

Q. Did you check in the same room with Muggsy Cohen while you were in Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you remain in the same room with him for the three weeks that you were in Florida? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. That is a high class hotel, isn't it? A. I don't know. Yes, sir.

Q. On the ocean front? A. It is on Collins Avenue.

2961

Q. Collins Avenue near 23rd? A. No, I think near 15th Street or 16th Street.

Q. Down near Lincoln Road? A. Lincoln Road is further down, sir. Lincoln Road, I think, starts at 23rd Street.

Q. This was in 1940? A. Yes. All the detectives stopped in the Commodore Hotel, sir.

Q. Wasn't Harry Strauss down there at the time you were there? A. No, sir.

Q. Sure? A. Not at the time, at the Commodore, sir.

Q. Did you meet him there? A. No, sir.

2962

Q. Did you meet him in Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What hotel was he stopping at? A. The Nassau Hotel.

Q. That is down— A. Across the street, on Collins Avenue.

Q. That is Collins near Lincoln Road? A. What do you mean, sir.

Q. Is that near Lincoln Road? A. That is blocks away, sir.

Q. Is that an oceanfront hotel? A. No, sir.

2963 Counsellor Rosenberg stopped in the Nassau Hotel.

Q. You were not asked that. Strike that out. A. That's it. I want to just refresh a little bit.

Q. I am trying to figure the month. Do you remember the month in 1940 you were in Florida? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What month was it? A. About February, sir.

Q. That was the heart of the racing season? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Harry Strauss have a woman with

2964 him?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that as immaterial to this issue, whether he did or did not.

A. That time I was in February, 1940, sir.—

The Court: I withdraw that. I asked that for information only. It does not belong in this trial.

The Witness: He was not there.

Mr. Cuff: I move to strike the answer out.

The Witness: He was not there at that time.

Mr. Turkus: Consented to.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You and Cohen and Glass were partners, weren't you? A. What do you mean, partners?

Q. Do you know what the word "partners" means? A. What do you mean? Explain it, sir. 2966

Q. Do you know what the word "partners" means? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you partners? A. No, sir.

Q. In any line of business? A. Just with Glass, shylocking, sir.

Q. Were you partners with Cohen, too? A. No, sir.

Q. At any time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean no, sir. You don't mean yes, sir. A. What say? I was never partners with him, sir.

Q. Wasn't Dapper Dan Siegel down there when you were there? A. Yes, sir. 2967

Q. That is the man that ran the candy store at Saratoga and Livonia Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he stopping with you? A. Yes, sir, he lived in the same hotel, sir.

Q. Did he go down with you, too? A. I beg pardon, sir?

Q. Did he go down with you, too? A. What do you mean, did he go down with me, sir?

Q. Isn't that a plain question? A. I don't understand you. He was there.

Q. You are now telling us that you had two cars going down instead of one, didn't you? A. Yes, sir; Muggsy Cohen had his own car, sir.

Q. Did he go down in either of the two cars? A. I beg your pardon. I can't understand you, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Did who go down? I don't know whom you are talking about. I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, far from the Rosen 2969 killing, nothing to do with the issue.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir. Your Honor has asked whether Strauss was there.

The Court: I withdraw it.

Q. Was there another man there with you by the name of Alli Abramson? A. He was living with Counselor Rosenberg and his brother and a friend of his in the same room.

Q. Whose brother? A. Maanie Rosenberg's brother

2970 Q. What is his name? A. I don't know his name.

Q. You are sure of that now? A. Positively sure, in the Drake Hotel.

Q. This is in the Drake Hotel? A. In the Drake Hotel.

Q. And you were in the Commodor.? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Strauss was in the Nassau? A. I beg your pardon. At the time Strauss was not there.

Q. Didn't the Judge ask you just a little while ago whether Strauss was there when you were there and didn't you say yes, he was stopping at the Nassau? A. I said not at that time. That's what I said.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is just what he said to the Judge.

The Court: He corrected that.

Mr. Rosenthal: Who is to be the witness, Mr. Turkus or the witness?

The Court: The witness corrected that. That is on the record. At the end of that 2972 inquiry, he said not at that time.

Mr. Turkus: I object to this. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing; it is far afield. He was down in Miami and what hotel. What has that got to do with the case we are trying? I object to it.

The Court: It is irrelevant although in some respects interesting.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's remarks. All of this matter was brought out by Mr. Turkus on direct examination.

2973

The Court: The jury will disregard it.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor mean the jury will disregard your remark or what I have to say?

The Court: The colloquy.

Q. Did you leave Miami with Muggsy Cohen? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he remain there when you left?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

2974

Mr. Rosenthal: This is February, 1940, just before he gave himself up. It is on the question of this man's credibility.

Mr. Turkus: It is withdrawn.

The Court: The Court can see nothing bearing on credibility in whether Cohen went home or stayed in Miami Beach.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not exposing the entire thing at this time, your Honor, and I can only ask one question at a time and 2975 I don't intend to permit this witness to know what is in my mind when I am asking the questions.

The Court: That is proper.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have in mind that this witness says that Mr. Cohen was never in the District Attorney's office when he was there.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. After you left Miami, when did you come back to New York? A. What do you mean, when?

2976 Q. What does the word "when" mean, do you know? A. Coming in February.

The Court: Was it about February?

The Witness: Latter part of February or the early part of March, sir.

Q. Did you remain in New York after you got here, before you surrendered yourself? A. No. I went to see somebody, sir.

Q. Did you go out of town or did you remain in New York, is my question to you? A. I went to see somebody.

Q. Did you leave town or did you remain in New York? A. When I seen somebody then I left—

Q. Did you leave town is the question. A. When I seen somebody I left.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive and this witness directed to answer whether he left town or he did not leave town. It is a simple question. 2978

Mr. Turkus: I object and ask that it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask it be stricken.

Mr. Turkus: It shows why he left town now. You brought that out.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the statement of Mr. Turkus also.

Mr. Turkus: I have the first objection that it stand as an answer. Then we will get rid of the second objection.

The Court: These colloquies give the Court a great time to relax. Let us find out what the question is. 2979

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

The Court: Do you mean before he went to Florida?

Mr. Rosenthal: No. I said after he came back to New York did he then leave town again.

The Court: And before he surrendered?

Mr. Rosenthal: Before he surrendered. The answer to that is yes or not, not voluntary statements such as this witness has been in the habit of giving.

2980

The Court: Overruled. It is overruled because that is covered by the direct examination: therefore Mr. Rosenthal is entitled to go into it on cross.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out his answer on the ground it is not responsive.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor at this time to admonish this witness not to 2981 volunteer any information and merely to answer questions, where he can, yes or no or he does not know.

The Court: The witness is so admonished.

Q. Is that clear to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you leave town: yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you go when you left town? A. Los Angles.

Q. When did you leave town? After you re-

2982 turned to New York from Miami, when did you leave town, February, March April or when, what month? A. I think it was in March, sir.

Q. Did you go to Los Angles alone or were you accompanied by anybody? A. With somebody.

Q. Were you accompanied by Glass? A. No, sir.

Q. What is the name of the person that went to Los Angles with you? A. Joe Bernstein, sir.

Q. Is that the man known as Herschel Bernstein? A. No, sir.

Q. That is a different Bernstein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where does he live? A. Near Flatbush Avenue somewheres.

Q. Was he engaged in business with you in any of your businesses? A. He worked for the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken out, not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: It is responsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: I asked whether he was in any business with him. 2984

Mr. Turkus: That invites the answer what business he was in.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not ask any such question.

The Court: The witness has previously said he worked for something which he describes as the mob. Now he say that Herschel Bernstein worked for the mob.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is Joe Bernstein, not Herschel Bernstein. I asked whether he was in business with him.

The Court: I thought you said Her- 2985 schel.

Mr. Rosenthal: No. I asked whether it was the same Bernstein, and he said no, this is a different Bernstein.

Mr. Turkus: What difference is it what Bernstein it is? He was with the mob, he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am addressing myself to the Court.

Mr. Turkus: That is all I am doing.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken.

The Court: Denied.

2986 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except.

Q. When was it that you left to go to Los Angeles? A. I think it was March.

Q. Anybody else go with you except Bernstein? A. Just Joe Bernstein.

Q. How did you go, by what method? A. By car, sir.

Q. Whose car did you use? A. My car, sir.

2987 Q. When you say your car, do you mean a car that is registered in your name? A. No, sir.

Q. Or registered in somebody else's name? A. No, sir.

Q. "No, sir" what? Registered in your name? A. Somebody else's name.

Q. What name was the car registered in? A. Al Felcher.

Q. Is that the name of the man that you said owned the car that you went to Florida in also? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that when you said you borrowed Fel-
2988 cher's car to go to Florida, you mean you borrowed your own car: is that what you mean? A. What do you mean, sir?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on his credibility. A minute ago he said he borrowed a car from a man by the name of Felcher, whose address he did not know, in order to go to Florida. Now he said his car was registered in the name of Felcher.

Mr. Turkus: What has that got to do with the Rosen killing? I object to it.

2989

The Court: It is too far afield.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on the question of this witness's own testimony given a couple of minutes ago, on his credibility as to anything.

The Court: The Court has allowed great latitude on collateral impeachment, but there are certain discretions which the Court must at some time exercise; otherwise there will be no end to the case and there will be confusion to the jury.

2990

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor sustain the objection?

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Rosenthal: If your Honor sustained it, I will take an exception and go on.

The Court: The stenographer will read.

(The remarks of the Court were read.)

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

2991

Q. How long did you remain in Los Angeles before you came back? A. What do you mean, how long did I remain?

Q. You said you took an automobile in the month of March or the end of February, with a man by the name of Joe Bernstein, left New York and went to Los Angeles. A. I went to San Francisco then. I started going. I don't know what you mean, sir.

Q. How yong were you away from New York before you returned to New York? A. I gave myself us, sir. I was running.

2992 Q. How long a time elapsed between the time you left New York and went to California, and you returned to New York? A. I left in March and I came back in April.

The Court: Will you pardon me just a moment?

By the Court:

2993 Q. Isn't Meyer Bernstein the same person as Herschel Bernstein? A. I knew him as Herschel Bernstein.

Q. But in Long Breach, when he had this conviction and was sent up for a year, he went under the name of Meyer, is that it? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. The reason, in your direct examination yesterday you referred to him throughout as Herschel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now Mr. Rosenthal refers to him as Meyer, as though he were a different person.

2994 Mr. Rosenthal: May I respectfully state to the Court that I do not refer to him as Meyer? The complaint which I read from refers to him as Meyer. I do not know the difference.

The Court: The Court does.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't.

The Court: Pardon me, but there is no more colloquy. Just forget there is anybody else in the room and be just as courteous as if you were talking to me alone in chambers.

Mr. Rosenthal: I always try to.

The Court: Unfortunately not.

By the Court:

Q. When you spoke of Joe Bernstein, do you mean the man who went out with this witness to Long Beach and was there convicted and sent to jail for one year? A. No, sir.

The Court: I am asking Mr. Rosenthal.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did you speak of Joe Bernstein, your Honor; he spoke of Joe Bernstein.

2996

The Court: Whom are you talking about, Herschel, or Joe, or Meyer?

Mr. Rosenthal: I am only mentioning the names that he mentioned. I am not talking about anybody. He has mentioned three names and said one Herschel, one Meyer, and one Joe.

The Court: The Court won't press this because it only tends to confuse the proceedings.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not use the names; he has used the names of different Bernsteins.

2997

The Court: Don't argue.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you use the name "Herschel Bernstein"?

The Court: Don't answer. Proceed with the next question.

Q. Are the persons, the Bernsteins whom you mentioned to me, the three different first names, 2998 different people, or are they all the same people, Joe, Meyer and Herschel? Are they all the same person? A. I did not mention Meyer.

Q. You mentioned "Herschel," didn't you? A. Yes.

Q. And you mentioned Joe as the man that you went to Los Angeles with? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a different man than Herschel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On the question of Meyer, do you say you
2999 do not know Meyer Bernstein? A. No, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact that Meyer Bernstein is Herschel Bernstein? A. I didn't know that, sir.

Q. How long had you known Herschel Bernstein, how many years? A. I met him in—

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. This is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal, I think I see where the confusion arose. It arose through a coincidence which I cannot amplify on the record in the presence of this jury.

3000 Mr. Rosenthal: I did not want your Honor to in any wise infer—

The Court: It is straightened out in my own mind now.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not want your Honor to infer there was anything I had done in respect to it.

The Court: I was simply confused and puzzled. I see the point now, but I cannot tell you how it came up.

Mr. Rosenthal: As long as your Honor exonerates me on the proposition.

The Court: You do not require exoneration, now or at any other time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Thank you.

Q. You returned to New York in the month of April? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you in New York—by that I mean any part of it, including Brooklyn—before you gave yourself up? A. I gave myself up right away, sir.

Q. Did you see Muggsy Cohen before you gave 3002 yourself up? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see Al Glass before you gave yourself up? A. No, sir.

Q. W n was the last time before you gave yoursel up that you saw Muggsy Cohen? A. Never saw him, sir.

Q. You saw him in Florida, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the last time you saw him, then, isn't it? A. I don't understand you, sir. That is the time I seen him, that's right, and then I never saw him again, sir.

Q. So the last time you saw him was in 3003
Florida in February, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. When was the last time you saw Al Glass before you gave yourself up?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

3004 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Did you tell the District Attorney when you surrendered, either Mr. McDonough or Judge O'Dwyer or Captain Bals or anybody else, that Muggsy Cohen was the man who aided you in the theft of the automobile that was used in the Rosen murder? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell that to the District Attorney? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whom did you tell it to and when did you tell it for the first time? A. The time I gave 3005 myself up, sir.

Q. That would be in April, 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And whom did you tell it to? A. Captain Bals and District Attorney O'Dwyer, sir.

Q. When you were telling them about it, was there a stenographer there? A. No, sir.

Q. Was anybody present taking down what you were saying? A. No, sir.

Q. Did anybody take it down? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you asked to write out what you were saying? A. No, sir.

Q. So that, in the presence of District Attor-
3006 ney O'Dwyer and Captain Bals, you then stated, in April of 1940, that Muggsy Cohen was the man who aided on—

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. —in stealing the car? I want this plain and understood.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When for the next time did you repeat to anybody— A. I beg your pardon, sir.

Q. When for the next time did you repeat the fact—I have not asked you anything yet—when for the next time did you repeat to anybody the fact that Muggsy Cohen was the man who aided you in stealing the car used in the Rosen murder?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained. 3008

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Did you ever repeat to any other person the fact that Muggsy Cohen was involved in the theft of this car, while you have been in custody? A. I told the Grand Jury.

Q. That was when? A. A couple of weeks later, sir.

Q. Were you ever asked to put in writing before you went before the Grand Jury the statement as to what you knew about the theft of this car? A. No, sir. 3009

Q. Were you ever asked to put it in writing any place? A. No, sir.

Q. Was ever a stenographer present when you were relating to any person what you knew about the theft of this car? A. In the Grand Jury I seen a stenographer.

Q. With the exception of the Grand Jury, was there ever a stenographer present either when the police questioned you or the District Attorney questioned you or any of his Assistants questioned you? A. No, sir.

Q. Regarding Cherry or Al Glass, have you

3010 ever seen him in the District Attorney's office or in the Half Moon Hotel?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Since the time you have been arrested?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Or in custody?

3011 Mr. Turkus: Incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. What is your answer? A. No, sir.

Q. You have never been confronted with him at any time or place since your arrest?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Q. Or since you gave yourself up?

3012 Mr. Turkus: That is repetitious now.

Mr. Rosenthal: Before I confine it to a particular place, now I want the general answer as to everything, so he cannot say afterwards that it was confined to a different place and that he saw him some other place.

The Court: What is the question?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: This is referring to Glass?

Mr. Rosenthal: I first directed his attention to a specific place. Now I want to know any time and any place so it cannot be a different place he saw him and that is why he answered in the negative.

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, nothing to do with the issue in the case.

The Court: I cannot see it but he can answer.

A. No, sir.

Q. When and where were you born, Bernstein? 3014
A. Brooklyn, sir.

Q. When? A. October 10, 1911.

Q. Can you read and write? A. Can I read and write?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you pleaded guilty the first time, were you asked by the Court whether you could read and write and did you say no?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on his credibility. These are all statements made in public places, to courts and to juries, that I am questioning on. 3015

Mr. Turkus: Withdrawn.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Did you? A. I did not get you, sir.

Q. I will repeat the question. The time that you pleaded guilty in this court before Judge Vause and received a suspended sentence, did you say in answer to the question as to whether you could read and write "No"? A. I don't recall, sir.

3016 Q. I did not get your answer. A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. The time before your first conviction, sir, you were out of employment? You were not working any more, isn't that right? A. What did you say, sir?

Q. Before you started to burglarize this place that you said you burglarized, you had already lost your job and were in the shylocking business, weren't you? A. I think I was working.

3017 Q. You think you were still working when you committed this burglary? A. What year was this? I don't recall so far back, years like that, sir.

Q. Don't you recall what year? Just try and think. What is your best recollection? A. I think I was working, sir.

Q. But weren't you asked by Judge Talley when he was examining you as to the time of your first conviction and didn't you say it was after you had lost your job or left your job in the leather goods where you had gotten into a 3018 great deal of debt due to the fact that you had been gambling and went into the shylock business? Didn't you say that when Judge Talley was questioning you? A. I think that was about the car, sir.

Q. You say you did not say that?

Mr. Turkus: He says he thinks it was about the car.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am asking another question.

Mr. Turkus: Object to it as repetitious and answered. He said he thought he said at a different time, in reference to the car. Repetitious.

The Court: My recollection may be right and may be wrong but I thought he was uncertain on that examination at one point as to whether he was working at the time of that burglary or not.

The Witness: I think I was working, sir.

The Court: He says now he thinks he was working but a few minutes ago he 3020 said he could not remember that far back. Has it any relevancy to the issue, whether he was working or not?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, it has, your Honor, in view of a certain statement that he made at the time to the Court when he took his plea. And on the question of his credibility at all times from the time he was eighteen, the question of his credibility, I have a right to bring to this jury.

The Court: You mean when his pedigree was taken? 3021

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes.

The Court: Have you got it there?

Mr. Rosenthal: I have a copy of it, an extract.

The Court: May I see it?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, surely. I have not got the original, Judge.

The Court: This is prepared by the clerk's office?

Mr. Rosenthal: Somebody in Mr. Fischbein's office prepared it.

The Court: It goes to a question of memory rather than credibility.

3022 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: It also goes to the question of credibility if he told an untruth even at that time when he was arraigned.

The Court: According to this, at the time of your conviction, when your pedigree was taken, you gave your occupation as leather goods?

The Witness: That is right.

The Court: Would that refresh your recollection?

3023 The Witness: Yes, I was working.

The Court: I assume you lost your job when you were arrested?

The Witness: No, I went back to work again.

The Court: You remember that?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: That refreshes your recollection?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. You remember that the leather goods was 3024 the last place that you ever worked, is that right? A. Yes.

Q. That you worked as an errand boy before you worked in the leather goods?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked a thing about this.

Q. Was your memory just as good in the mountains when you testified then?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it as argumentative.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Was it? Was your memory just as good in the mountains? What is your answer? Have you given an answer? A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. Was there anything the matter with your memory when you were testifying under oath in the mountains, in the Cohen trial? A. I was confused, sir.

Q. You were confused? A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked in the mountains in regard to your employment (on page 25) these questions and did you give these answers: "Q. Where did you go to work?"—withdrawn. I will start so that you get the connecting thought. 3026

"Q. What grade did you leave public school? A. Eighth grade.

"Q. How old were you? A. Sixteen or fifteen.

"Q. Go to work? A. That's right.

"Q. Where did you go to work? A. I worked for a leather goods place.

"Q. Right after you left public school? A. Majestic Leather Goods.

"Q. What is their address? A. I don't remember." 3027

A. I will tell you now, sir, if you want to know.

Q. Wait a minute, listen to the question. I will ask you a question when I am finished reading this to you. You just wait.

"Q. Are they in business now? A. I don't know.

"Q. How long did you work for them? A. Two years.

"Q. Give me the name of your employer? A. I think Moskowitz.

"Q. First name? A. I don't remember.

3028 "Q. What work did you do? A. Cutter.

"Q. What did you cut? A. Leather.

"Q. When you were fifteen years old you went to work as a leather cutter? A. At fifteen or sixteen.

"Q. What was your next job? A. As an errand boy in some hat place.

"Q. Give me the name? A. I don't remember.

"Q. How long did you work? A. A few months."

3029 Q. Do you recall being asked those questions in the mountains regarding your employment from the time you left school and giving those answers? Do you remember? A. If it is in the book, I said it, sir.

Q. Was your memory foggy then when you testified in the mountains? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were not secreting from the jury the fact that you worked in the Majestic Leather concern after you were an errand boy and telling them that you worked there before you were an errand boy, were you?

3030

Mr. Turkus: I object. The testimony speaks for itself.

Mr. Rosenthal: No, because he has given a motive for his testifying to part of the truth.

Mr. Turkus: All right, withdrawn.

The Court: Wait a minute. I want to find out something.

Mr. Turkus: I don't know what it is all about.

The Court: I don't either and for that reason I do not propose to have—

Mr. Rosenthal: Let me put it this way—

The Court: Please don't interrupt the Court. I cannot sit here and have objections made and just as the Court is ready to rule, have them withdrawn.

Mr. Turkus: I did not understand what he was driving at. I still don't.

The Court: I do not either. For that reason I consider it remotely. The man, so far as the record reveals, there could 3032 be no argument to base for concealing matters of infantile employment long antecedent to the crime.

Mr. Turkus: That is right.

The Court: But possible confusion in narration. I sustain the objection as irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Were you telling the truth in the mountains when you said that the first employment that you got after you left school was with the 3033
Majestic Leather Company and you only worked for two years there?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Mr. Rosenthal: This was brought out on direct, if your Honor pleases, by Mr. Turkus.

The Court: The Court should not be involved in argument of counsel on rulings of law. A great deal of preliminary work done when a witness is put on the stand may be irrelevant and have no bearing on the issues at all and that is only because the law allows latitude in showing the background of the witness but it does not raise an issue on things that happened years before the alleged crime and have no relation to it whatever.

3034 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's statement.

Mr. Talley: May I say a word, if your Honor pleases?

The Court: No. I am giving you the 3035 benefit of it although I do not attach any importance to it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the Court's remark as to the importance that he places. The question, as I understand it, is as to what importance a jury will place on it.

The Court: For the purpose of ruling, the Court must depend upon its own judgment. Those issues, as you know, are not submitted to the jury. You go ahead.

Mr. Talley: The Court says "No" so
3036 I have subsided, so I will say it later.

Mr. Turkus: I object to this colloquy between the lawyers, in the presence of the jury, advance summations, break up the trial at any cost.

The Court: We are losing a great deal of time which tends to have the jury lose the thread of the narrative and of the cross-examination and confuses the Court and confuses everybody.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling.

The Court: Now will you pease stop the colloquy and proceed with the cross-examination?

Mr. Rosenthal: I merely took an exception, sir.

The Court: I have been patient with these colloquies.

Mr. Rosenthal: Shall I proceed?

The Court: Yes, I wish you would.

Q. Did you tell the truth in the mountains when you told the jury there that the first job 3038 you ever had was in a leather goods factory and you had only worked there two years and subsequently your job was an errand boy for a couple of months and those were the only two jobs you had? Did you tell them the truth then?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is a characterization. He has already answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: The Court just overruled the objection.

Mr. Turkus: I renew it.

The Court: Which is the fact? 3039

The Witness: I worked first in the telegram office. Then I worked in a hat factory. Then I worked in the brief case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not get his answer.

The Court: Read it.

(Answer read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Leather goods.

Q. While you were working for this brief case concern, you say you did a lot of gambling; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

3040 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. On the horses? A. Horses, shooting crap.
Q. Dice? A. Yes, sir.
Q. While you were doing this gambling, what was your salary a week?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. I call the Court's attention—
3041 The Court: No, don't.
Mr. Rosenthal: This is all matter of direct examination brought out by Mr. Turkus.
The Court: Please!
Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling.

Q. What year was it to your recollection that you left—let me withdraw that.
Did you leave or were you discharged from the place of employment in the Majestic Leather Company?
3042

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir.

Q. What year was it that you started in as a shylock? A. After I quit the job, sir.
Q. What year—

The Court: What year, if you recall?
The Witness: I don't recall the year.

3043

Q. How old were you when you started in as a shylock? A. Nineteen, twenty, eighteen—I don't know. I can't recall so far back, sir.

Q. Can you tell us approximately how old you were, whether you were eighteen years of age when you became a shylock?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as just answered, repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: He has not answered.

The Court: About how old were you? 3044

The Witness: Nineteen, twenty, eighteen.

Q. How long either before or after your first conviction did you become a shylock? Let us put it that way.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Mr. Rosenthal: If he can fix the date.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

By the Court:

3045

Q. Was it after? A. What is that again, sir?

Q. Was it after your conviction for unlawful entry that you became a shylock, or was it before? A. It was after.

Q. How long, counsellor wants to know, if you remember? A. After the stolen car. That's all I remember, not before breaking into the store.

Mr. Rosenthal: I cannot hear a word he is saying.

The Court: Speak out loud.

Q. You say it was after the stolen car? A. Stolen car or the burglary.

Q. It was after the burglary? A. I think so, sir.

Q. Do you remember precisely how long after? A. A couple of years. I don't know, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: We cannot hear him.

The Court: A couple of years. He does not know.

3047

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did he say a couple of years after the burglary? A. I don't recall, sir. I know the judge was Vause and the other judge was Martin.

Q. I am not asking you about the judges. The Judge asked you and I ask you, can you approximate either how long before or how long after your conviction or plea of guilty of petty larceny based on the burglary charge it was that you started in as a shylock?

3048

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial. It is repetitious. He stated his background.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you become a professional loan shark at the time that you started shylocking? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when did you become a gambler and bookmaker? A. Gambler and bookmaker? When I was shylocking, at the same time.

Q. You started in the three occupations at one time? A. Yes, but when I was working I was gambling, sir.

Q. I am not asking you about what you were doing when you were working. I am now asking you when did you become a bookmaker?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He has just responded.

Mr. Rosenthal: His response was irresponsive by saying when he was working he was gambling. 3050

Q. When did you become a bookmaker? A. When I was shylocking.

Mr. Turkus: There is an objection.

The Court: Do you remember what year?

The Witness: I don't remember.

The Court: Do you remember how old you were?

The Witness: Nineteen, twenty—something like that. 3051

The Court: Speak out loud.

The Witness: I think I was nineteen or twenty, sir.

Q. You are thirty years old now, are you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that if it was 1920, you were then about nineteen years of age when you became a bookmaker and a shylock, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is confusing. 1920 is twenty-one years ago.

3052 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Sustained on the ground he has already answered. He said nineteen or twenty.

Q. Where did you conduct your bookmaking from? A. Amboy and Sutter.

Q. On the street or in some house or on the corner or in a place of business or where? A. In a store, sir.

3053 Q. What store did you conduct your gambling or bookmaking business from? A. Candy store, sir.

Q. What is the name of the candy store? A. At that time the name was Proppers.

Q. Do you know where he is?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

3054 Q. In 1932 you say you met Harry Strauss, is that right? A. About 1932 or 1933, sometime like that.

Q. Can you give use your best estimate of when it was that you met Harry Strauss?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He has just given it. It is repetitious.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said, "Something like that."

Q. Is that the nearest you can come, 1932 or 1933, something like that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Is it?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. So as far as you recall it may have been 1934 that you met Strauss? A. No, sir, I don't think so.

Q. When you were asked by Mr. Turkus as to when you met Strauss—

3056

The Court: He said 1932.

Mr. Rosenthal: I know what he said, Judge. I am just getting the minutes here.

Q. You were asked this question and you gave this answer, didn't you (on page 489):

"Q. I direct your attention to in or about the year of 1932 and ask you whether you made the acquaintance of one Harry Strauss? A. Yes, sir."

Mr. Turkus: "In or about." 3057

Q. Do you remember being asked that question and giving that answer? A. Yes, sir. If it is in the book I said it. I don't know, sir.

Q. I did not hear you. A. If it is in the book, I said it. If you read it in the book, I said it.

Q. You then were asked by Mr. Turkus as to a number of people who visited this Coffee Pot, were you, at which you had met Harry Strauss? Do you remember being asked by Mr. Turkus that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On your direct examination? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you remember mentioning a number of names among which was Buggsy Goldstein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Buggsy Goldstein at that time, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were asked up in the mountains these questions and you gave these answers, didn't you (page 21):

3059 "Q. Do you know Buggsy Goldstein? A. No."

Were you asked that question in the mountains and did you give that answer? A. That is a mistake, sir.

Q. Were you asked that question and did you give that answer in the mountains, yes or no? A. If it is in the book, I said it, but that must be a mistake, sir.

Q. The question which I am asking you is whether or not you recall now having been asked the question under oath in the mountains, "Do you know Buggsy Goldstein?," and whether under oath your answer to that question was, 3060 "No"? That is the question that I am asking you.

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. He has just answered it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. You say that is a mistake. Do you mean you made a mistake when you testified in the mountains? Is that what you mean? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you mean that the stenographer made a mistake and put "No" down when you said "Yes", is that what you mean? A. I can't tell you that, sir. That is a mistake, sir.

The Court: How can he say that? Stenographers are human, as every lawyer knows.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to your Honor's statement.

Q. When you said that there was a mistake, in answer to my question, did you mean to infer that you made the mistake or somebody else made the mistake? 3062

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Whose mistake was it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 3063

Q. When was it that you say that you met the defendant Capone? A. '32 or 1933, sir.

Q. And where was it that you say that you met Capone for the first time? A. Sackman and Livonia, in the Coffee Pot.

Q. Who introduced you, did you say, to Capone? A. What do you mean? I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. You don't know what the word "introduced" means? A. What do you mean, "introduced"?

3064 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Do you know what the word "introduced" means? A. I was first borrowing money over there, sir, from the shylocks.

Q. Do you know what the word "introduced" means? A. Yes, but I can't understand you.

Q. Did anybody introduce you to the defendant Capone at any time? A. Yes, Mike Sycoff, who worked for them, worked for the mob shylocking. He was their shylock.

3065 Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that all but the words, "Mike Sycoff", be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: That was invited. He pursued this witness as to what he meant by an introduction and the witness has indicated how he met Capone, through one of the employees, and what the transaction was.

Mr. Rosenthal: Now that you have that speech over, my question was merely did anybody introduce him.

3066 Mr. Turkus: I ask that the answer stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have the question read?

The Court: The latter part of the answer is stricken out as irresponsive. The first part will stand.

Q. You mentioned Mike Sycoff. Is that who you mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is he one of the men that are in jail with you, or in the Luna Park Hotel, or Half Moon, or whatever you call it? A. Yes, sir.

3067

Q. How long has he been down in the Half Moon with you? A. How long?

Q. Yes, how long? Is there anything difficult about that question?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial whether there is anything difficult with his question or not.

The Court: Sustained.

3068

Q. How long has Mike Sycoff been down in the Half Moon Hotel with you? A. He come a month after me, 'sir.

Q. So he has been there practically a year and a half with you, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he one of the men that played baseball with you out on Long Island?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: Four witnesses. His name was given. Repetitious.

3069

The Court: I think it was Judge Talley who asked that.

Mr. Turkus: No, Mr. Rosenthal brought it out himself. He had the four names. This will go on ad infinitum.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I certainly object to Mr. Turkus' continual interjections. Nobody interjected when he led this man all over the map of the United States which he now complains of as immaterial because I am leading him over the same map.

3070 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Proceed.

Q. Were you in the same suite with him down in the Half Moon? A. What do you mean?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered. Repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Never asked him about any association that he remembered.

3071 The Court: Why can't we leave out these discussions?

Mr. Rosenthal: If Mr. Turkus does, I will, your Honor.

Mr. Turkus: I have made legal objections, if it please your Honor. I cannot stop him from arguing every point.

Mr. Rosenthal: And we cannot stop you.

The Court: The gavel is in the drawer. I am afraid to trust it on the desk. You must avoid these discussions. Time is be-3072 ing consumed. It means this man has got to come back here tomorrow for another session and the court had hoped to finish today. The court cannot, in an important matter of this kind, and with a witness of such importance, press counsel too much. Please proceed. I don't know what it is all about now, there has been so much discussion.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will repeat the question, your Honor, and withdraw the other to save time and put it in as nearly the same form as I can.

3073

Q. Were you and Mike Sycoff in the same suite in the Half Moon Hotel for the last year and a half that you and he have been in custody?

The Court: He may answer.

A. Answer that, sir?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

3074

Q. Did you eat together? A. With the detectives.

Q. Did you and he eat at the same table?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: It makes no difference whether it was a table or they were standing up.

Mr. Rosenthal: Wherever it was. I did not use the word "table" before.

Mr. Turkus: He said they ate together with detectives. It is repetitious.

3075

Q. Did you sleep in the same room? A. No, sir.

Q. How far was his room removed from yours? A. What do you mean? I don't understand what you mean.

By the Court:

Q. How far was his room from yours? A. The other side of the building, sir.

Q. The other side of the building? A. Yes.

Q. The other end of the hotel? A. Yes, sir.

3076 a big suite and on the other side. I am away from all of them, sir.

Q. How many hours a day were you in his company? A. I don't understand you, sir.

Q. How long each day would you be with him? A. I go to sleep nine o'clock, sir.

Q. When you are awake, how long are you with Sycoff? A. About thirteen hours, sir.

Q. That is daily routine? A. Yes, sir.

3077 By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. This man Tannenbaum, he was the other man that you mentioned as playing baseball, Al Tannenbaum? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you eat with him? A. Yes, sir, with the detectives, sir.

Q. How many hours a day with him? A. Same time, sir.

Q. Do you sleep in the same room with him? A. No, sir.

Q. Who sleeps in the room with you? A. Nobody, sir, except the detectives guarding me, sir.

3078 Q. You and the detectives sleep in one room? A. They don't sleep there. They guard me. They stay up. They sit next to me.

Q. They sit next to your bed while you are sleeping, is that it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are there any other People's witnesses that are together there with you— A. I do not understand, sir.

Q. Wait until I finish the question and maybe you will—outside of Sycoff and Tannenbaum, are there any other witnesses who are in this room with you for thirteen hours a day? A. Abe Reles.

Q. Anybody else? A. That's all, sir, and the detectives.

Q. Reles, you, Tannenbaum and Sycoff, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Mike Sycoff in business with you at any time, working for you any time? A. Working for me?

Q. I am asking you the question, did he ever work for you. That is plain, isn't it? A. No, 3080
sir.

Mr. Turkus: What is the answer? "Is it plain? No, sir." Or he didn't work for him?

Mr. Rosenthal: You ask him. I will ask him for you, if you want me to.

Mr. Turkus: I think he told you who Sycoff worked for.

Mr. Rosenthal: Judge, you do not hear the side remarks and you object when I make statements. It is like a continuous barrage from Mr. Turkus every time the 3081 witness says something.

Mr. Turkus: That is not true. You have something now, but not a continuous barrage.

The Court: Please, both sides go according to Hoyle.

Q. Did you know Reles very well? A. I knew him since—No, not so well, sir, but I knew him, sir.

Q. Weren't you asked in the mountains, under 3082 oath, this question (on page 21) and didn't you give this answer:

"Q. You knew Abie Reles very well? A. Yes."

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer? A. He asked me how many years. I told him, sir.

Q. Were you asked in the mountains that question and did you give that answer? A. If it is in the book, I said it.

3083 Q. If it is in the book, it is so; is that your answer? A. Yes.

Q. It is in the book. Is that so? A. You ask me how many years and I tell you, sir.

Q. It is in the book.

Mr. Turkus: I object.

A. I know, but I never bothered with him, sir. That is what I am trying to bring out.

Q. It is in the book that you said you knew Abie Reles very well. Is that so? A. You ask me how many years.

3084 Q. Will you please answer the question, if you can, and if you cannot understand it, say so. It is in the book. I will repeat the question. It is in the book. A. And I said it.

Q. Wait, you do not know what I am going to ask you. It is in the book that you said you knew Abie Reles very well. Being in the book, is it so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever have anything to do with Abie Reles at any time? A. What do you mean, sir?

Q. You. A. What do you mean?

3085

Q. Did you ever hang out with Abie Reles? A. What do you mean, hang out?

By the Court:

Q. How long have you known him? A. I know him, I think, since '37, sir, the early part of '37, but I seen him around before that.

Q. How many years have you been seeing him? A. Since the time I used to come around to the corner to borrow money.

3086

Q. Was he one of the people that you used to see at the corners? A. Yes, sir, but I never spoke to him until 1937.

Q. In 1937 you became personally acquainted with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before that you knew him by sight? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you know him as "Kid Twist"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know him by any other names?

3087

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: It may become very competent.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Did you know him by any other names besides Kid Twist? A. That's all I know of.

Q. Did you know him by the name of Glick or Gliss? A. No, sir.

3088 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. You knew him before he went to jail in '34, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you ever seen Abie Reles before 1934?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: That has not been asked by me.

Mr. Turkus: He has answered the Court that he saw him around before that.

3089 Mr. Rosenthal: I cannot hear his answers when he turns his face to the Court. I am sorry, and I do not want to have it continuously repeated. He drops his voice every time he speaks to your Honor.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. May I have read, then, whatever he said to your Honor? I did not hear it, I confess.

The Court: He not only said it audibly, but the Court repeated it audibly. The Court's questions were audible; his answers were audible.

3090

Mr. Talley: Judge, we could not hear down here either the questions or answers.

Mr. Rosenthal: I could not hear them.

The Court: As I recollect, he knew him by sight, contact, up to about '37, did you say, or '38?

The Witness: '37.

The Court: Beginning with 1937 he did business with him, knew him.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not hear anything about that, Judge.

The Court: He may not have said "did business," but he knew him personally.

Q. Did you know him before 1932? A. No, sir.
Q. Did you know him in 1932?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Did you know him by sight in 1932? 3092

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Did you know him by sight in 1933? A. I don't think so.

Q. Did you ever see him at this Coffee Pot that you spoke about? A. Yes, sir, lots of times, sir.

Q. You did not mention his name when you were asked, as one of the men that you saw at the Coffee Pot— Withdrawn.

Q. When you were asked by Mr. Turkus as to the names of people that you had seen at the Coffee Pot, you did not mention Abie Reles as 3093 one of them, did you? Yes or no. A. No.

Q. You had seen Abie Reles often at the Coffee Pot before the time that he went to jail, hadn't you? Yes or no.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He just answered it.

Mr. Rosenthal: He just admits that he saw him there, but he did not say how often. I am pursuing the question further.

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to as repe-

3094 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

titious, no time limit fixed, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial and nothing to do with the Rosen case.

The Court: I will sustain it as to form.

Q. Did you see Abie Reles many times at the Coffee Pot prior to 1936; yes or no? A. What do you mean, "prior to 1936?" I seen him about '33, I think. I think it was '33, not '34.

Q. Didn't you tell me before, when I asked 3095 you whether you knew what the word "prior" meant, that "prior" meant "before?" A. You are mixing me up with the years. I think it was 1933.

Q. Before I asked you whether you had seen him in '33, and you said no, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Was it '33 that you saw Abie Reles in the Coffee Pot? A. Yes, sir.

3096

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, there are little side remarks going on between counsel for Buchalter and counsel for Capone.

Mr. Wegman: That is not so. Not a single remark has been made. I laughed at Mr. Turkus because he objected to something as repetitious where the witness contradicted himself. I could not restrain my laughter. I apologize for it.

Mr. Turkus: At the Court's ruling which sustained the objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: And what happened was Mr. Turkus usurped the Court's rights and wanted to admonish him and that is the only part I took in it, that he should not take the Court's duties upon himself. He has got enough to do to be an Assistant District Attorney. (To Mr. Turkkus) Yes, and you will find it so before you are finished with the case.

The Court: It is now ten minutes of four. If things like this happened in school among children, they would be kept 3098 in after school.

Mr. Rosenthal: Fortunately, we have grown up, Judge.

The Court: Please proceed with the trial.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have the question read?

(Question and answer read by the reporter).

Q. How often did you see him in the Coffee Pot in 1933? 3099

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. How often did you go to the Coffee Pot in 1933?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except.

3100 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

This goes to the question of his alleged acquaintanceship with the defendant Capone, sir, and is absolutely material to the issue here.

The Court: How? Will you tell me how?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, sir. He says that he met this defendant at that particular place and has been permitted on direct examination to describe an alleged asso-
3101 ciation with him. That is direct examination by Mr. Turkus. I will accept the Court's ruling if I am precluded from showing anything that happened—

The Court: I am asking you the question.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have already answered the question, your Honor.

The Court: The Court cannot think when it is confused by all this bickering. I don't recall that Reles was mixed up in the People's case, I mean People'e ex-
3102 amination of this witness, with this crime. I am utterly at a loss to know what difference it makes how many times he met Reles in the Coffee Pot several years before the crime. You say it has a bearing on the introduction to Capone. I don't recall that. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. When Mr. Turkus asked you on direct examination regarding whom you had seen at the Coffee Pot in the year 1933, did you then have in your mind the fact that Abe Reles was one of the men that hung out in that Coffee Pot?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Did you wilfully conceal from this jury, when you were questioned on direct examination by Mr. Turkus, the fact that Abe Reles had hung out in this Coffee Pot in the year 1933, when you 3104 were asked by Mr. Turkus as to who were the people that hung out in that Coffee Pot? Do you understand the question? A. Just forgot, sir.

Q. You just forgot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is your answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever steal a typewriter for Abie Reles? A. No, sir.

Q. What is the answer? A. No, sir.

The Court: You stole one for Strauss?

The Witness: Stole for Louis Capone 3105 and Strauss.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that that be stricken.

The Court: Strike out the answer as irresponsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: And not only that, I now ask for a mistrial on the ground that the answer is prejudicial, has no foundation in fact whatsoever, is not in anywise allegedly connected with this or any other case. I ask that your Honor rule on the motion.

The Court: The Court's question about

3106 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Strauss was to straighten you out on the typewriter incident because you had the names mixed. The irresponsive part of the witness' answer was stricken. It was not called for by the Court. The jury is instructed to disregard it and I think the jury is old enough and mature enough and intelligent enough to do that. The motion for mistrial is denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception, sir.

3107 Q. Did you bring a stolen typewriter into the home of Abe Reles? Did you physically carry a stolen typewriter into the home of Abe Reles? A. No, sir.

Q. At no time? A. Brought a typewriter over, yes.

Q. Do you know what the word "carry" means? A. You said if I stole it, didn't you?

Q. Do you know what I said when you answered the question? A. I thought you meant if I stole it.

3108 Q. Do you know what I said when you answered the question?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as answered. It is repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I want to know if this man is making answers without knowing what I am talking about.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The Court: It is only quarreling.

Q. Did you bring a stolen typewriter into the home of Abie Reles?

3109

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Q. Yes or no.

The Court: Knowing the same to be stolen?

The Witness: I bought it.

The Court: You bought it?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Did you know it to be stolen?

3110

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. Where did you buy this typewriter? A. In a junk shop.

Q. What junk shop? A. On Osborne and Blake.

Q. Give me the name and address. A. I don't know the name of the address. I think it was on Osborne and Blake, a couple of junk shops over there.

Q. Which side of the street and which street is it on? A. There is a couple of them over there.

3111

Q. Which one is it that you say that you bought the typewriter in? A. There is lots of them over there.

Q What? A. Lot of junk shops.

Q. You just said there was a couple of them over there?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, argumentative.

The Court: Sustained.

3112 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Which is the one, if you can tell us, that you bought it from? Where is it located? What side of the street is it on? Between what streets is it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. And what does it look like?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, has nothing to do with the Rosen killing. Objectionable further that no time is fixed.

3113 The Court: This has no direct relation to the issue. It is allowed by the Court with a considerable degree of latitude under the collateral impeachment rule. Under the collateral impeachment rule, you are bound by the witness' answer. You may not try a collateral issue.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I discuss this matter in the absence of the jury with this Court, in the interest of justice?

3114 The Court: The Court is familiar with the rule of law.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am now going further, sir, on a question of the interests of justice to discuss with the Court, in the absence of the jury, the question in respect to my pursuing this line of inquiry with this man.

The Court: If it has anything to do with any case other than this, it is a matter for chambers.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is what I asked your Honor. May I discuss it in chambers with your Honor?

3115

The Court: Not directly after adjournment because I am tied up with appointments.

Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case, let nobody talk to you about it, keep your minds open and please remember and follow any and all admonitions heretofore given. Recess until tomorrow morning.

3116

Mr. Talley: If your Honor pleases, may it be understood that all of the exceptions taken by the examining counsel, Mr. Rosenthal, apply to the defendant Weiss?

The Court: That applies throughout the trial for all counsel. That is the understanding.

Mr. Talley: I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding.

The Court: It will not be forgotten. It is on the record.

3117

The court will be in order. First the witness is taken out.

(The witness leaves the court room.)

Now the jury.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken until Wednesday, October 29, 1941, at ten a.m.)

3118 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 29, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

(Mr. Rosenthal confers with the Judge before the bench, without the hearing of the jury.)

Mr. Rosenthal: (within the hearing of the jury) Before proceeding further, if 3119 the Court please: Just before recess yesterday your Honor made a statement concerning a matter which I then referred to with a view of wanting the matter discussed in chambers. In view of the fact that you want to proceed with the trial, I now make a formal motion for a mistrial and the withdrawal of a juror, based upon the matter stated by this witness.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The Court: There having been a discussion quietly between counsel and the 3120 Court at the bench, not within the hearing of the jury.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is correct.

The Court: The Judge understands the situation.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes. That is the only reason why I do not discuss at length now, because of the fact we have had a discussion at the bench.

The Court: I understand.

SOL BERNSTEIN, a witness in behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Rosenthal (Continued):

Q. Do you recall answering Judge Talley when he was questioning you in respect to a gun being found in the car, in the automobile which you admitted stealing, which was the subject-matter of your plea of guilty in 1933—do you remember Judge Talley questioning you about that? 3122
A. I saw lots of guns, sir.

Q. (The Court) The question is: Do you remember Judge Talley questioning you about that. A. I think he did, sir. I have seen lots of guns.

Q. I am not asking you whether or not you saw lots of guns; we will come to that afterwards. I am now asking you a specific question: Do you remember Judge Talley questioning you about the car that you were in at the time of your arrest, and that you admitted to the Court 3123 you had stolen in 1933 from a garage?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious; the witness has responded.

The Court: He said so.

Q. I am trying to draw his attention to a specific car—do you know the car I mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell Judge Talley there was no gun in that car? A. I did not understand him, sir. I seen lots of guns.

3124 Q. I am referring to that particular car in 1933 that you attempted to steal. Did you tell Judge Talley you did not see any gun in that car? A. I did not understand him, sir. I seen lots of guns, sir.

Q. Did you see lots of guns in that car? A. There were a few guns there, yes, sir.

Q. The man who was with you at the time that you were in that car was a man named Moe Cohen, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

3125 Q. What was Moe Cohen's business, a burglar?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is showing association, sir, at the time of the arrest, prior to the time he says he had met any of these defendants.

The Court: The question is not whether he knows now that Moe Cohen was a burglar.

3126 Mr. Rosenthal: Yes.

The Court: But whether at the time of his association in 1933 he knew Moe Cohen's business?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, I will put it your Honor's way. I withdraw the question.

Q. When Moe Cohen was riding in the car with you at that time did you know that he had a roll of insulated wire in his pocket? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Did you know what his business was when he was riding in the car with you that you had stolen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was Moe Cohen's business? A. A stick-up fellow.

Q. Did you know he had a gun on his person at that time when he was riding in this stolen car with you? A. No, sir, it was in the car, sir.

Q. Where in the car was the gun? A. I think it was in the back seat or the front seat; I do not recall. I know there were guns there.

Q. You knew there were guns there? A. Yes, sir; I did not understand Talley before.

Q. Were you asked this question by Judge 3128
Talley on page 646, and did you give this answer:

"Q. And that is the only time out of seventy-five or a hundred times you stole cars that you were arrested? A. Yes, sir."

"Q. And on that occasion when you were arrested for stealing the cars, there was a gun found—"

I withdraw the question.

"Q. And on that occasion when you were arrested for stealing the cars, there was a gun found in the car, wasn't there? A. No, sir." 3129

Mr. Turkus: I object. He said that he did not understand the question.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have a right to see whether or not he made that answer and find out what he did not understand about it.

Mr. Turkus: You have not read the next question and answer.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will read all the questions you want.

3130 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. "Q. You don't mean that, do you? A. No, sir—yes, sir."

Mr. Turkus: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Were you asked those questions by Judge Talley? A. I did not understand him; I seen lots of guns.

Q. Will you please let me finish the question? Were you asked those questions by Judge Talley 3131 and did you give those answers only yesterday in this court-room? A. Yes, sir. I did not understand him, sir.

Q. So that when you answered the question that there was no gun in that car in which you were riding when it was stolen, you did not understand the question that Judge Talley was asking; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He just said that.
The Court: Sustained as repetitious.
3132 Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Who else was in the car with you? A. Meyer Halperin.

Q. Did you know Meyer Halperin's business at that time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was Meyer Halperin's business? A. He was also a stick-up fellow.

Q. Were there just the three of you in that car, the two stick-up men and you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now I ask you again: Did you know or did you see a roll of insulated wire in that car either just before you were arrested or at the time you were arrested?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is not repetitious. I asked him whether he saw it in Cohen's pocket—

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection that it is incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and repetitious. 3134

The Court: It is not material whether he saw it at the time of his arrest or whether he saw it before.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is what I want to know.

The Court: And he continued the association; what his knowledge of the guns was at the time of the arrest when the police found him—that is different.

Mr. Rosenthal: I understand what your Honor has in mind, and I will pursue it that way. 3135

Q. Before these men entered the car with you, did you know they were both stick-up men? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew there were guns in that car too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew one of them had a roll of insulated wire with him, didn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. That you did not know? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were there ropes in that car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All of this you knew before your arrest? A. Yes, sir.

3136 Q. Did you know the ropes were going to be used to tie up somebody in a stick-up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know the guns were going to be used by one of these men, or by you or somebody else in your company, in a stick-up on that man in the event he resisted you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that in reality, when you were arrested for stealing the automobile, you were out on a stick-up with two stick-up men, weren't you? A.
3137 Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as already answered.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. (The Court) What judge took the plea? A. I believe it was Martin, sir.

Q. Were you ever charged with robbery in that case, or attempted robbery? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever disclose to the Court or to the probation officer that you were with two stick-up men and were going to hold up some-3138 body and kill him if necessary in order to get his money?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: In view of the fact that the Judge brought out there was a plea taken in a degree by another judge in this court, I want to show that this man at that time concealed these facts from the court.

The Court: I don't think this is a matter of impeachment, because he had no obligation to make disclosures.

3139

Mr. Rosenthal: If he was asked by the probation man whether or not he was on a stick-up.

The Court: The Court has made inquiry and received an answer. We will let it rest there.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Now, you continued to be a thief up until the time that you gave yourself up, did you not? A. No, sir, only when I got orders, sir.

3140

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that "only when I got orders" be stricken out.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. You continued to steal automobiles up to the time of your arrest or your giving yourself up in 1940, didn't you? A. Before I gave myself up.

Q. Up until 1940 you continued to steal automobiles, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you continue to associate with these two stick-up men you had been out with in 1933? A. No, sir.

3141

Q. Is it not a fact that in California you and others held up the Victor Hugo Restaurant in Los Angeles? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you testified as a witness in any other case except the Gangy Cohen case, up to this case? A. The Yuran case, sir.

Q. By that you mean in the Grand Jury? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But the only two times you have been in court testifying before a jury similar to this is the time you testified now and the time you testified in the Gangy Cohen trial in the mountains, in June of 1940; is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in the Gangy Cohen trial, in Monticello, were you asked these questions regarding whether you were a thief, and did you give these answers— Let me start two questions before that.

I withdraw the question I asked. You were questioned by Mr. Price on cross-examination:

"Q. You are very anxious to let the jury hear 3143 everything you have to say?" and you answered: "Yes."

"Q. You want to make sure every word you say is heard? A. I am telling the truth."

Do you remember those questions and those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. "Q. Were you coached to answer? A. Telling the truth."

Do you remember that question and answer? A. If it is in the book I said it.

Q. Do you recall saying it? A. If it is in the book I said it.

3144 Q. Have you any independent recollection, whether it is in the book or not, that you told the jury in the Gangy Cohen trial that you were telling the truth?

Mr. Turkus: I object. It is a waste of time. The answer is responsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: The next question will show it.

Mr. Turkus: Read it. Now this is becoming a filibuster. I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the statement of Mr. Turkus. It is not an objection; it is a statement. Now, your Honor asked that we conduct ourselves orderly. I ask you to ask the District Attorney to make objections without speeches, and counsel for the defense will be under no necessity to answer those speeches.

The Court: You are right.

Mr. Turkus: There is an objection pending.

The Court: If the accuracy of the minutes is conceded, it will avoid this.

Mr. Turkus: I have no objection to 3146 concede it.

Mr. Rosenthal: May it appear then on the record that the questions I am reading—and I trust Mr. Joseph will follow and see that I am reading correctly—the questions which I am reading and the answers which I am reading are taken from this witness's testimony under oath in the trial in the County Court, Sullivan County, of the People of the State of New York against Irving Cohen, in June of 1940.

3147

Mr. Turkus: And one thing further: That the direct testimony was three pages and the cross-examination began at page 4 and ended at page 78, showing that the direct examination was three pages and the cross-examination was twenty-five times that, or seventy-five pages.

Mr. Rosenthal: You see, Judge. Again he—

Mr. Turkus: That is a concession I will make as to the authenticity of the minutes.

Mr. Rosenthal: You see, again we have statements which form no part of the concession and only call for retaliation by counsel for the defendants. I want to desist from that, but I do not intend to let Mr. Turkus get away with continuous statements in the presence of this jury, without answering.

I ask your Honor to tell Mr. Turkus to make proper objections and orderly objections, and not to make statements.

Mr. Turkus: That was not an objection; that was a concession.

The Court: What was stated after the concession has no bearing upon the case and should not have been said.

Mr. Talley: With respect to the concession made by the District Attorney as to the accuracy of these minutes in the trial in the Sullivan County Court, may we have that concession as to the entire minutes that are here, rather than simply as to the questions that are being asked now of the witness by Mr. Rosenthal, and the answers made? Can we have a concession on the record that the record we have here is an accurate stenographic record of the trial?

The Court: That needs no answer.

Mr. Talley: So as to preclude the necessity of bringing down the court stenographer?

The Court: You mean so as to foreclose either side from disputing the stenographic accuracy on any specific point, because such inaccuracies may occur, and either attorney at the proper place will have a right to challenge the accuracy.

Mr. Turkus: You need only one concession. There are two counsel for the defendants.

The Court: Suppose we forget all this and proceed in an orderly manner.

Mr. Talley: Will your Honor pass upon this?

The Court: I cannot, because that 3152 would be to shut the windows to the truth; if an error has been made by the stenographer, either side may challenge it.

Mr. Talley: We have the stenographic record.

The Court: Please do not argue it now. We will proceed in an orderly manner.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's refusal to allow me to make a statement to this Court.

Mr. Rosenthal: May we have stricken 3153 from the concession—

The Court: Please proceed with the examination. Please proceed as if no concession had been made.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right.

Q. Now then, do you recall now at this time whether or not you were not directly asked the question in the mountains, in the Gangy Cohen trial:

"Q. You want to make sure every word you say is heard? A. I am telling the truth.

3154 "Q. You were coached to answer? A. Telling the truth."

Have you any recollection of whether or not you did not make, in form or substance, that statement in the presence of the Court and the jury in the Gangy Cohen trial? A. About Gangy, yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

3155 By the Court:

Q. Do you remember those questions and answers—yes or no? A. If it is in the book.

Q. No, the evidence. Do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have his first answer stricken from the record?

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3156 Q. In the very next question after that:

"Q. You are a thief, aren't you? A. No, sir.

"Q. When you committed petit larceny"—Question withdrawn. I jumped a question, I want to put it in. Let me start over again.

"Q. You are a thief, aren't you? A. No.

"Q. You are not? A. No, sir.

"Q. When you committed petit larceny? A. Yes.

"Q. Is a man who steals a thief or angel? A. That was years ago."

A. I told you—

Q. Now wait a minute.

"Q. You were a thief years ago?"

3157

"The Court: Let us modulate our voices; there is no use of this loud talking. Talk in a reasonable tone.

Q. "Q. You don't mean to answer you were not a thief? A. Years ago.

"Q. You did not mean to answer you were not a thief? A. Yes.

"Q. You know you are a reformed thief, is that what you mean? A. What do you mean by 'reformed thief'?

3158

"Q. You don't know what I mean? A. I am a loan shark now."

Do you remember being asked that? A. Yes, sir. I told the lawyer I had two convictions.

Q. You told the lawyer you were a reformed thief? A. I meant—

Q. Listen to me, sir. You told the lawyer you had been a reformed thief for years, didn't you, that you were only in the loan shark business—

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. It speaks for itself.

3159

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. (The Court) Do you remember it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when was the last, approximately the last, of the seventy-five or one hundred cars you stole—the year and approximately the month, if 3160 you can remember, when you stole the last car. Do you remember that? Can you answer that correctly? A. The last car?

Q. Yes. When, approximately, was the year —I will ask you that first—1939 or 1940? A. 1940.

Q. How long before you surrendered yourself in 1940 was it that you had stolen the last car, a week or two weeks? A. I don't think it was in 1940.

3161 Q. You are the only one who can tell me. I just asked you. You said 1940. Was it 1939? A. I think it was 1939.

Q. Might it have been 1940? A. Might have been 1940, too, I cannot remember, sir.

Q. Can you remember it this way: How long after Judge O'Dwyer came into office and started a war, as Mr. Turkus called it, on the mob, was it that you stole your last car?

Mr. Turkus: I object, it is what the witness called it "war on the mob."

3162 Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it.

Q. How long after Judge O'Dwyer came in office did you steal your last car? A. I think it was in 1939, sir.

Q. But you are not sure? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you give me your best estimate— Let me withdraw that and I will put it this way: It was only a very short period before you surrendered yourself? A. I think it was 1939, sir.

Q. Will you listen to my question? A. I did not keep a diary.

Q. Are you finished? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now listen to the next question. It was not very long before your surrender that you stole your last car, was it?

3163

Mr. Turkus: I object. It is repetitious. He has already answered. There have been a half dozen questions as between 1940 and 1939.

Mr. Rosenthal: I haven't got a direct answer.

Mr. Turkus: It is repetitious. It is an endless cross-examination.

3164

The Court: Please do not argue. The objection is sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You volunteered to me just a little while ago that you had seen guns on many occasions. Didn't you say that when I asked you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. It is repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is a preamble to the question on impeachment.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form and as repetitious.

3165

The Court: We know he said it. Objection sustained.

Q. Now then, in the mountains, in the Gangy Cohen trial, when you told the jury that you were telling the truth, were you asked this question and did you give this answer—

Mr. Turkus: I am going to object to the form of the question, to the form of the preamble, so we might as well save time.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will do anything you want within reason. I will withdraw the question and leave the preamble out if it hurts you.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that "if it hurts you" be stricken out.

Mr. Rosenthal: Let us get along.

Mr. Turkus: I will if you act properly.

3167 Mr. Rosenthal: You conduct yourself properly and you will have no trouble with me.

Mr. Turkus: You do so, and we will get along all right.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't know which one of us will be accused of being a woman for wanting the last word.

Q. In the Gangy Cohen trial in the mountains, in Monticello, in 1940, were you asked these questions and did you give these answers:

3168 "Q. Are you a one-man finance company, with muscles and gun?

"Mr. Dickerman: I object to that on the ground already stated.

"Q. You know what muscles are? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. You know what guns are? A. Yes.

"Q. You have seen a gun many times? A. No, sir.

"Q. You have never in your life seen a gun? A. Yes.

"Q. Why did you say at first, 'No, sir?' A. I just reminded myself.

"Q. How many times did you see a gun? A. Once.

"Q. What year was it? A. I don't know what year it was. I seen it."

Were you asked those questions in the mountains and did you give those answers? A. I can explain about that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move the answer be stricken out as not responsive.

3170

Q. (The Court) Yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true, that you had only seen a gun once in your life when you told that to the jury in the Gangy Cohen trial? A. No, sir.

Q. The fact is, you had seen guns as early as 1933 when you went out with a couple of stick-up men?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious?

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you seen them prior—I will use the word "before"— Let me withdraw it. 3171

Q. You had seen guns before 1933 when you were caught in company of these stick-up men, hadn't you? A. No, sir.

Q. How long had you known these two stick-up men?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked him how long he had been associated with them. I am trying to find out previous association with these men.

The Court: Objection overruled.

3172 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. How long had you known these two stick-up men? A. A few months, sir.

Q. Had you been with them on other occasions during the three months? A. No, sir.

Q. Did they tell you when you met them three months before that they were stick-up men? A. No, sir, I knew it.

Q. Did you go out in a car with knowledge that you were going to stick up somebody?

3173 Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetition and as already answered.

The Court: He has already said it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it. I think you are right.

Q. Continuing, after the questions I just asked you: Were you asked these questions in the mountains—the very next question on page 8:

"Q. What year was it?"—so you will get the connected thought, we are now talking about the gun you had seen before once in your lifetime; is that clear to you?

3174 "Q. What year was it? A. I don't recall the year.

"Q. Do you want me to refresh your recollection? A. Maybe you can.

"Q. Who was with you when you saw that gun? A. Harry Strauss.

"Q. Where was that? A. That was in Brownsville." Do you remember being asked those questions and giving those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you forgotten, when you were in the mountains in the Gangy Cohen trial, that you saw guns when you went out on a stick-up in 1933, when you told the jury you had only seen a gun once in your life? Had you forgotten about that?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on his credibility.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Do you understand the question? A. Repeat it again. 3176

Q. I will repeat it. When you were under oath in the Gangy Cohen trial in the mountains, in Monticello, and you were asked about guns, and when you had ever seen them, while you were on the stand had you forgotten all about the fact that in 1933, while out with a couple of stick-up men, you saw guns? Had you forgotten about that when you testified? A. No, sir.

Q. You had it in your mind? A. What do you mean, I had it in my mind? 3177

Mr. Turkus: I object. If he hadn't forgotten it, it must have been in his mind.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said he didn't know what I meant. I will make it plain. I want to make sure that this man understands everything I say, if I have to repeat it twenty times. I don't want him to say, as he now says, to Judge Talley's question, that he did not understand it.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the speech.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is not a speech,

3178 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

but just a statement addressed to the Court.

Mr. Turkus: Mr. Rosenthal addresses your Honor and he terms it an objection, although it is a speech. If I try to make an objection it becomes a speech. I have an objection. He said he had not forgotten.

Q. Did you deliberately conceal from the jury
3179 in the Gangy Cohen case the fact that you had been out with two stick-up men with guns in 1933?

Mr. Turkus: I object

The Court: Sustained. He was not asked that.

Q. Did you deliberately conceal from the jury in the Gangy Cohen case the fact that you had seen guns while you were out with a couple of stick-up men in 1933?

3180 Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: I think this is a matter of argument for the jury. You have his admission.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will accept your Honor's ruling. I think it is a perfectly proper question, but if your Honor—

The Court: I think it goes into the realm of argument. He has admitted he did not tell the truth. He had seen lots of guns, had been out on stick-ups, or in stick-up cars.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will not press it further. I have other matters of equal importance.

Q. You were shown a gun by Harry Strauss in 1937, weren't you? A. I don't know what year it was—yes.

Q. You were asked by Harry Strauss to go out and kill the very man that you testified about—to go to California to kill the very man you were testifying against, weren't you? A. Yes, sir.

3182

Q. (The Court) What man is that? A. Gangy Cohen.

Q. In 1937— Question withdrawn.

Q. Didn't you tell the jury in the mountains that the only time you saw a gun was at the time with Harry Strauss—the year you think was 1937 although you cannot recall it—that Harry Strauss showed it to you and asked you to go to California and kill Gangy Cohen—didn't you tell that to the jury in the mountains? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it your testimony— Were you asked these questions and did you give these answers in the Cohen trial in Monticello, starting at page 13:

3183

"Q. That was the time that Harry Strauss told you to go there to kill Cohen? A. That is right.

"Q. Did he give you a gun? A. No, sir.

"Q. What"—I will read it just as it is here. It is a typographical error— "Q. What is that time?"

Mr. Turkus: The word should be "was."

Mr. Rosenthal: That does not appear in the question.

Mr. Turkus: Read it so as it makes sense.

Q. "Q. Was that the time, in 1937, that you saw a gun? A. What do you say?"

Question repeated. "Do you want to think about it? A. I don't know when it was.

"Q. Didn't you say before you thought it 3185 was in 1937? A. I don't know.

"Q. Could it have been in 1937? A. Maybe.

"Q. Didn't Strauss give you a gun when you went to California in 1937? A. I seen a gun. He did not give me a gun.

"Q. Who had the gun when you saw it? A. Harry Strauss." Do you remember being asked those questions and giving those answers?

Mr. Turkus: I object. It had nothing to do with the Rosen case. There is nothing inconsistent between that testimony and what he said here in response to Mr.
3186 Rosenthal's question.

Mr. Rosenthal: He just answered the question before I read this testimony that he—

The Court: (interrupting) Do not argue. There is no harm to it. Objection overruled.

Q. Did you give these answers to these questions in the mountains? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you just tell me before I asked you these questions that you did not say to the jury in the mountains that the time you had seen the gun, which you said was once in your life, was the time it was shown to you by Harry Strauss before he sent you out to kill Gangy Cohen? Didn't you say that to me a minute ago.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Sustained on that ground.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Whenever it was, whether it was 1937 or whatever year, that Harry Strauss asked you 3188 to go out and kill Gangy Cohen in California, did you leave New York and go to California? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see Cohen in California? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Is that the time that Herschel Bernstein was out there? A. I really cannot tell you the year.

Q. You told us it in this way: That Herschel 3189 got in trouble out there and that he was convicted and sent up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the place, whether or not it was on that occasion, that you met Herschel Bernstein in California? A. I really cannot tell you; I think it was in 1937 or 1938.

Q. It was 1937, wasn't it? A. I think so, your Honor.

Q. Now, supposing I ask you this—I don't know whether or not this has any bearing on this case, but we will find out—When you put up the money to defend Herschel Bernstein at the time of his arrest in California and his con-

3190 viction in California, did you have any particular reason for putting up the money? A. He got himself in trouble.

Q. You mean it was just a matter of friendship? A. Yes, sir.

Q. It was not that you were out there on a matter of mutual interest? A. No, sir.

Q. You were not both out there to kill Gangy Cohen? A. No, sir.

3191 By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Didn't you go out to California with Bernstein?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: There are two Bernsteins. One was in 1940 and the other was in 1937. These are two different persons. In the examination by Judge Talley there is considerable space in the record given over to contact with Herschel Bernstein. In your examination yesterday you re-

3192 ferred to another Bernstein.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, a Joe Bernstein he referred to.

The Court: That is a different man, isn't it?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, sir.

The Court: I know that Herschel was also known as "Meyer"—that was the name on his conviction in California. That is why I made inquiry as to whether or not the one you were questioning about was the same one that Judge Talley was questioning about.

3193

Mr. Rosenthal: He volunteered the name "Joe." I don't know the difference between either.

The Witness: We did go out together.

Q. You both went out together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember going out to kill anybody? A. No, sir. Joseph Bernstein went alone, about a year after that.

Q. I am talking about 1937, about Herschel. A. No, sir.

3194

Q. You did not go out with him? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you just meet him there? A. No, sir, one year I went down with him; I do not know what year it was.

Q. That was in 1937, the conviction? A. That must be that year then.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Just try to think. Didn't you leave Brooklyn with Herschel Bernstein after you had a conversation with Harry Strauss in which he asked you to go to California to kill Gangy Cohen?

3195

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: I have just sent for the record, and it will be here in a moment.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am pursuing the line your Honor was; I am trying to refresh this man's memory.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. What is your answer? A. What is that?

3196 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By the Court:

Q. Have you any memory that you went out with Herschel Bernstein, the both of you, to kill Gangy Cohen? A. Oh, no, sir.

Q. Cohen was in the movies? A. I got him the job.

Q. He was quite a shot in the movies? A. No, sir, he was working as an extra. I got him the job.

3197

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You got Cohen a job in California? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had connections in California that enabled you to get Cohen a job in the movies?

The Court: Pardon me, Mr. Rosenthal; I will show you this record. I was in error as to the year. It is 1936.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I see the record, Judge?

3198

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: May we have an answer to the question Mr. Rosenthal just put to the witness about his connection in the moving pictures and who the connection was with?

Mr. Rosenthal: There goes a speech again, Judge, while you are not looking.

The Court: If you come up here, Mr. Rosenthal, I will show you the record, the fingerprints. I cannot show you the report.

(Mr. Rosenthal confers with the Judge without the hearing of the jury.)

3199

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. I have asked you a question and I will repeat it. You answer this yes or no: You had connections in the movie world, you say, which enabled you to get Cohen a job in the movies?

Mr. Turkus: I object to him reframing the question. I want an answer to the question Mr. Rosenthal first asked.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it.

3200

Mr. Turkus: Let the stenographer read it word for word.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it as long as you are telling me what to do. I with withdraw it entirely. I am withdrawing the question, so the objection fails.

Q. Did you know in 1937 that Herschel Bernstein was a burglar and a crook? A. What do you mean?

Q. You don't knew what a burglar and a crook is? A. (Witness remains mute.)

3201

Q. Do you know what a burglar or a crook is? A. I heard of it.

Q. Why, you associated with him, didn't you? You rode in the same car with him in California, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was the first time you rode to California with Herschel Bernstein?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: You were unable to get an answer from him, Judge. I will try to get one.

3202

The Court: The question was only as to the year. I just showed you the record.

Mr. Rosenthal: I want to find out a number of things about Herschel Bernstein.

The Court: I think that is satisfactory as placing the time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes.

By the Court:

3203

Q. How long did you know Herschel? A. From the time I met him in Raymond Street.

Q. Many years ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know he was a notorious Brownsville burglar? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew that right along? A. Yes, sir, but I never seen him or heard of him.

Q. That he was what you call an "ace"? A. A thief.

Q. I mean as a burglar also. A. An "ace", yes, sir.

3204 By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you follow carnivals all over the country with him? A. No.

Q. Do you remember following carnivals? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you first start to follow carnivals? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. So long ago you cannot remember? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Away back in 1932 or '3 wasn't it, when you were only 18 or 19 years of age, you started to follow carnivals all over the country, didn't you? A. What do you mean, all over the country; the furthest I went was Philadelphia or Maryland at the furthest.

3205

Q. You had no job with the carnival, did you? A. I was a "schil."

Q. You mean you were one that was employed by the carnival itself to bring on people to play certain games; is that what you mean? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that while the farmers were attending the carnival you would attend their homes and burglarize them? Wasn't that the way you would follow carnivals ever since you were eighteen years of age? A. No, sir. 3206

Q. Did you ever enter farmers' homes to burglarize them while they were attending the carnivals? A. No, sir.

Q. At any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Herschel Bernstein go traveling with carnivals with you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. 3207

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. How long did you continue to follow carnivals, up until when? A. The season, sir.

Q. Every year up to 1940? A. No, sir.

Q. What year did you stop following carnivals? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. Can you give us any idea? A. I cannot tell you the year. I might have gone whenever there was a fair, like over in Newark.

Q. I want you tell me as near as you recall when you stopped following carnivals.

3208

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative between the witness and the lawyer. The preamble is improper and objectionable.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will put it in a different form.

Q. You understand, I am not asking you what you might have done, Bernstein—do you understand that? A. Yes, sir.

3209 Q. I am asking you to give this jury your best recollection of when you stopped following carnivals.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Objection overruled.

By the Court:

Q. When did you stop? How many years ago? A. I think it is 1935.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3210

Q. It may have been 1939? A. No, sir.
Q. 1938? A. No, sir, I don't think so.
Q. Which is it, "No, sir," or you don't think so?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Overruled.

Q. Which is it, Bernstein? A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. Now do you recall the year you took your trip in an automobile with Herschel Bernstein, whether or not you stopped off at different principal cities on your way to California?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent and immaterial and irrelevant, nothing to do with this matter.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will show you association with criminals of every type that this man had from the time—

Mr. Turkus: I can show you some associations myself that he had that are 3212 foreign to this issue.

Mr. Rosenthal: Not the angel you depict him.

Mr. Turkus: I don't depict him as an angel; I have him associated with your clients.

Mr. Rosenthal: If you are going to make remarks, you will get answers, Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: I am satisfied.

Mr. Rosenthal: (to the Court) Again I ask you to ask this man not to make 3213 remarks. I do not want to be drawn into an argument with him, but I am not going to sit idly by and let him get away with anything in this court-room. If your Honor will tell him to make proper objections and not make side remarks—I don't want to make them, but I will make them every time he does.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Did you understand the question? A. Will you repeat it again?

3214 Q. Did you stop on your ride with Herschel Bernstein throughout the country in different cities of the United States, on your way to California? A. I had to.

Q. Did you go by automobile? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he, with your knowledge, commit thefts in each of the states or cities or counties you stopped in?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompe-
3215 tent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir.

Q. The only burglary or theft he committed to your knowledge was the one he committed in California, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: You mean on that trip?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes.

The Court: Objection overruled.

3216 Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were with him when he committed that burglary, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. (The Court) Were you in on that job? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you in that town at the time he committed the job?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: He has already stated that.

Q. Weren't you living with him at the time he committed that job?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. (The Court) Rooming with him? A. No, sir. 3218

Q. Were you in the same hotel together, rooming? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when you went to California—before you left for California with him you knew he was a notorious crook, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He told the Court he was an ace thief.

The Court: He knew it for years; he could not have lived in Brownsville without knowing him.

3219

Q. The different times you went to California you paid your own expenses, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

I want to show that this man had no means of livelihood; that these supposed-to-be vacations he took throughout the United States in all those different years at that time, paying his own expenses, without any income, the jury has a right to infer whether he is telling them the truth or not. He said he was shylocking, gambling, etc., and who he associated with.

3220

Mr. Turkus: That has nothing to do with the Rosen murder, you forget.

The Court: You can inquire whether or not he had any funds when he went there, and if not how he paid his expenses.

3221

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. When you left New York what funds did you have with you, any? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How much money did you have with you when you left New York to go to California?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to unless the time is fixed.

Q. When you went with Herschel Bernstein, we will take that one, that was in 1936. A. I won some money.

3222

Q. I did not ask you whether you won. I asked you how much money you had. A. I know I won a lot of money; I don't know how much.

The Court: Hundreds, thousands, or what?

The Witness: It must have been about a thousand dollars.

Q. Who did you win it from? A. Shooting crap. I won lots of it shooting crap, lots.

Q. So that each time you took a trip to California you took it on money you won shooting crap; is that so?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. He did not say that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am asking him, so as to shorten it.

The Witness: No, sir, I had a reason for it.

Q. You went, you said, to California, five or 3224 six times? A. Yes, sir, I had a reason for it.

Q. Didn't you go there on a vacation each time? A. To avoid murder, sir, that is the qualification; to avoid murders. That is what I call a vacation. Don't you think so?

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike that out.

The Court: Strike it out as unresponsive.

Q. Weren't you asked in the mountains, in the Cohen trial, these questions, and didn't you give 3225 these answers:

"Q. You went to California many times? A. Yes.

"Q. Pursuant to request of Harry Strauss? A. That is right.

"Q. Who paid your expenses? A. Nobody paid my expenses.

"Q. How many times, tell us exactly, did you go to California? A. Maybe ten times.

"Q. How many times did you go between 1937 and the time you were taken into custody? A. About five or six times.

3226 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

"Q. And on every one of these five or six times you went for a vacation? A. That is right.

"Q. And you paid your own expenses? A. That is right."

Were you asked those questions and did you make those answers? A. Don't you think it is a vaca: on—

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer in view of the fact your Honor 3227 has admonished this individual to answer questions and not to volunteer anything.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: You wait. I am addressing the Court. Do not talk to me when I am addressing the Court. Do you understand that? I don't want you to talk to me unless I am addressing a question to you.

I ask your Honor to admonish this man to answer questions.

The Court: I am busy thinking what you have in mind. The court understood 3228 the previous answer of the witness as meaning he was away for reasons stated, that it did not mean he went there to do business, but he did go there on a vacation. Therefore, when he asked if that means a vacation, he meant you would accept it in the affirmative. This does not appear to contradict; but at least it clarifies the meaning. Let it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Will your Honor advise this man that he should answer questions and not volunteer anything?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it in view of your Honor's ruling that the answer was proper. He needs no admonition for making a proper answer.

The Court: Admonished.

Q. You had a candy store, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where was that candy store located? A. Amboy and Sutter, in the Brownsville section.

Q. Before going to that, you had a lot of 3230 friends in California, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you made your trip there, you made your trip to go to see your friends in California, didn't you, because you had a lot of friends there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you made those trips you made them out of moneys you had won at dice games, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact you told the jury in the Cohen trial—

"Q. You just went there for a vacation? A. Yes, I met a lot of friends there.

"Q. And what money did you use to go there, 3231 was it loan shark money? A. Yes."

Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you use loan shark money to go on your vacation or did you use dice money you won?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Does that refer to this specific vacation?

Mr. Rosenthal: To the vacation: he had lots of friends there.

3232 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: He said more than one vacation. It does not appear which one this refers to. Objection sustained.

Q. This candy store, where was that located? A. Amboy and Sutter Avenue.

Q. Did you have a partner? A. I beg your pardon, sir.

Q. Did you have a partner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his name? A. Glass, sir.

3233 Q. Is that Al Glass, otherwise known as Louis Glass, otherwise known as Cherry? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that the one? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was it you had this candy store? A. In 1938 or 1939, sir.

Q. Are you sure of the year? A. I think so.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to an incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Did Harry Strauss ever visit that store? A. No, sir.

3234 Q. That store was a blind, wasn't it? You know what a blind is? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that a blind for your loan shark business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did any of these stick-up men hang out in your candy store? A. No, sir.

Q. Any of these ace burglars hang out in your candy store? A. What do you mean by ace burglars?

Q. You told the Judge, didn't you, what an ace burglar was, I mean the same thing that the Judge means?

3235

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said it was a blind. I want to find out.

Mr. Turkus: For the shylock business.

Mr. Rosenthal: It may have been a blind for a lot of other things.

By the Court:

Q. Well, did burglars hang out there? A. Yes, sir. 3236

Q. It was a big hangout? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you and Strauss used to go to Miami, you say he stopped at the Nassau Hotel and you stopped at the Commodore? A. That year he was not there, but the year before.

Q. He was not there in February? A. No, sir. I know when he was there, but the year before. I can tell you who was there. Counsellor Rosenberg was there. I was there.

Q. I am not asking you that, but both of these hotels are in the same locality, aren't they, 15th Street and Collins Avenue? A. I 3237 can explain it. Here is the Nassau on this side, and across the street is the Commodore.

Q. Directly facing each other? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is about 16th Street and Collins Avenue? A. Yes, sir, I think so.

Q. Isn't that on the ocean side of the street? A. No, sir, that is Collins Avenue.

Q. I mean towards the ocean? A. Yes, sir, Ocean Drive, Collins and Ocean Drive.

Q. Then the ocean? A. Yes, sir, the beach.

Q. There is a park right along the ocean drive and buildings only on one side? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is seven blocks from 23rd Street and Collins Avenue? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Manny's Coffee House is there, isn't it? A. Mammy's.

Q. That was a hangout? A. Yes, and Dempsey's place also was a hangout.

Q. Little Augie Pisano used to hang out there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Mammy's? A. I don't know about Mammy's; he hung around the Continental on 3239 23rd Street and Lincoln Road, or something.

Q. Did they hang out at the Roney-Plaza pool? A. I don't know about that—the Roney-Plaza, yes.

Q. The finest pool in Miami Beach? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All swam there? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. I just want to go back. When you told the jury in the Gangi Cohen case that you had only seen a gun once in your life, did you have 3240 in mind, while you were in the chair, under oath, that you had seen three guns in 1936 in the Rosen murder? Did you have that in your mind? A. I don't understand you, sir.

Q. I will make it plain for you. Do you remember you were a witness in the Gangi Cohen trial in the mountains? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Monticello? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember you were asked a question as to how many times in your life you had ever seen a gun—do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You remember that you told the jury sitting in the box in the court at that time that you had only seen a gun once in your life, do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, then, I am asking you this— While sitting there, under oath, testifying, did you have in your mind present at the time the knowledge or the thought that you had seen three guns in 1936 in the Rosen murder, when you gave the answer you had only seen one gun once in your life? 3242

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already testified.

The Court: You have been all over that.

Mr. Turkus: I will recall it to your Honor. He said he testified—

Mr. Rosenthal: You don't have to recall it. Please don't May I call your Honor's attention to this, that the thing that I asked him before was did he have in mind—I do not want to argue this, I just want to recall it to your mind—the only thing I asked him then was did he have in mind guns used in the stick-up. I had not come to any question on this particular murder. That was where my question was directed. Now I am asking did he also have in mind when he answered that question the guns he saw at the Rosen murder. 3243

The Court: I have your recollection. Do not argue any further.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor sustain the objection?

3244 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Yes, it is repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Now, was Al Glass, or Cherry, or Louis Glass, they are all the same, aren't they?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. Did he have anything to do with you in any of these stolen cars which you stole?

3245 Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I ask, so that I do not pursue it further, is it sustained on the repetitious ground? Because I have not asked anything on that independently.

The Court: Sustained because it is irrelevant and because it impresses the 3246 court as fishing. The court referred to that yesterday. You said you did not know what the court meant.

Mr. Rosenthal: I still don't see.

The Court: The court cannot permit collateral advantage to be taken in cross-examination.

Mr. Rosenthal: Any question I ask, I have a reason which will develop as the trial goes on and which becomes fruitless if I ask this man ahead of time, because it is evidenced by his answers that he will change it as soon as he sees what I am after.

Mr. Turkus: That is reprehensible.

The Court: The court has ruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you have any other partner besides Al Glass? A. Max Lachinsky was working for us.

Q. Was he a partner? A. He worked for us.

Q. Was he a partner? 3248

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is a foundation for impeachment on further testimony.

The Court: That is always a question of law. Objection sustained.

Q. Did Al Glass run away when you had a candy store, with your money?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: I don't know what it means. Objection overruled. 3249

Q. Did Al Glass ever run away with your money? A. No, sir.

Q. He was the only partner you had at that time, wasn't he?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3250 Q. Did you testify this way in the mountains, in the Cohen trial:

"Q. Does anybody owe you any money? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Weren't you interested in finding out who owed you? A. I had a partner; he ran away.

"Q. What happened to him? A. I don't know.

"Q. Do you know where he is now? A. No, sir.

3251 "Q. Is he still alive? A. I don't know."

Were you asked those questions in the mountains and did you give those answers?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as incompetent.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you were questioned in the mountains about your partner, did you mean Al Glass was your partner?

3252 Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained. Too far afield.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is all on the question of credibility, your Honor.

The Court: You can go on from now until Doomsday, but the Court must reasonably restrain. In this case a great deal of latitude is allowed as a matter of Court policy, but not without limit.

Q. Do you know Al Tannenbaum? A. Yes, sir.

 3253

Q. How long do you know him? A. Seven or eight years, sir.

Q. Did you ever go out with him any place?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Overruled. It may be preliminary to something.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever steal automobiles with him? 3254
A. I beg pardon?

Q. Did you hear what I said? A. I did not understand you, sir.

Q. You don't understand what it means, what the question means when I ask you did you ever steal any automobiles with him?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative.

Mr. Rosenthal: I asked him did he ever steal automobiles with Tannenbaum and he says he doesn't understand what I mean. 3255

The Court: We will take the evidence. He may have said he did not understand what you said.

Mr. Rosenthal: I wish I could stop Mr. Turkus. Before he said I yelled too loud. Now he says I drop my voice. I wish I could strike a happy medium.

Mr. Turkus: I wish you would. One minute you holler in my ear and the next minute I cannot hear you—one extreme to the other.

Mr. Rosenthal: Am I supposed to stand here and let him talk like a woman and not make an answer? I suppose it is in all men's homes, though, with the husband, anyway.

Mr. Turkus: You ought to know; I am a bachelor.

Mr. Rosenthal: Maybe if you were a married man you would behave yourself.

Mr. Turkus: I feel sorry for you.

The Court: I don't know whether a
3257 record is made of all this, but I think it should be, in view of the fact that the Court is compelled to admonish from time to time. Otherwise the record will look queer unless it is explained. Now, what is the question.

(Last question repeated by the reporter.)

Q. (The Court) Did you and Tannenbaum steal automobiles together? A. No, sir.

3258 By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you ever go out with Tannenbaum on any criminal job, together? A. What do you mean, "criminal job"? Explain. I don't understand. That is a question I don't know how to answer. I really don't know how to answer.

Q. I will put it plainer to you: Were you ever in the company of Tannenbaum at any time that either he or you were committing any type of crime whatever, whether it is from disorderly conduct up to murder in the first degree? Is that clear to you?

3259

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said he did not understand. Now I am making it plain to him.

By the Court:

Q. Did you ever commit crimes together with Tannenbaum—yes or no? A. I don't know how to say, your Honor.

3260

Q. Did you go on any jobs with him? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Yes or no?

The Court: He says "Yes."

Q. You and Tannenbaum were in the same automobile or truck, or whatever it was that you testified to was the conveyance that carried away Yuran's body in nineteen hundred and whatever year it was? A. Yes, sir.

3261

Mr. Rosenthal: What is the year of Yuran's murder? Have you got it?

Mr. Turkus: I have a list of all of them.

Mr. Rosenthal: There he goes again.

The Court: What is the point?

Mr. Rosenthal: I simply asked him as a gentleman for the year of Yuran's murder, and he then makes a highly improper 3262 statement which has no connection with this case.

He can step up before your Honor and see whether he is admonished.

Mr. Turkus: I will accept the invitation.

Mr. Rosenthal: Then, all right, let us go up with the court's permission.

The Court: Now, wait a minute. Please listen to the court at this time. The trial 3263 of a case is very difficult for a Judge because the Judge is human, and this situation tends to wear down anybody. The court has to maintain patience and poise at every moment of this trial. Therefore, it will certainly be indebted to both sides if the trial, from now on, will be conducted with some semblance of order.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw the request.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3264 Q. When was the Yuran murder, I am asking you? A. 1937 or 1938.

Q. You are not sure of the year? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were up in the mountains when the Yuran murder was committed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where were you stopping in the mountains? A. The Oliver Hill Hotel.

Q. Where was that located? A. Woodbourne.

Q. How far is Woodbourne from Fallsburg? A. About eight miles.

Q. And did you have your automobile with you at the time? A. Yes, sir.

3265

Q. Were you accompanied by anybody in the mountains at the Oliver Hotel, is that it? A. The Oliver Hill Hotel.

Q. Were you stopping with anybody at the Oliver Hill Hotel? A. No, sir.

Q. Was anybody stopping at that hotel with you from Brooklyn? A. The owner of the hotel.

Q. What is the owner's name? A. Max Resnikoff.

Q. Who did you see at the time you got in the truck to dispose of the Yuran body, who 3266 were the people that were there? A. You mean all in the truck?

Q. Yes, I want to know the names of all the men in the truck. A. Al Tannenbaum, Jack Drucker, myself and Harry Strauss.

Q. The Al Tannenbaum you refer to is the one that we just spoke about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Before you got into the truck did you know that Al Tannenbaum was staying any place in the vicinity? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long before the actual murder did you know that Al Tannenbaum was in that vicinity? 3267
A. What do you mean, I cannot understand you?

Q. You cannot understand that? A. No, sir.

Q. You know the day Yuran was murdered? A. What do you mean, do I know the day?

By the Court:

Q. You were there when the body was still warm? A. Yes, sir, but I was not there when they murdered him.

3268

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You know the day he was murdered, don't you?

By the Court:

Q. Was that truck the same one connected with the Druckman murder, in Brooklyn? A. I could not tell you that.

3269

The Court: According to reports—I understood the name Drucker was mixed up in that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't know.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. How long before you saw this dead body did you know that Tannenbaum was up in the mountains, days, hours or weeks? A. I don't understand you, sir, I really don't understand you.

3270 Q. I will make it very plain so you do understand it.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the preamble, and I ask that it be stricken from the record.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am only replying to him. I will consent, to save the time of your Honor in ruling.

Q. You met Al Tannenbaum when you were carrying this dead body? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long before you started to carry the dead body, either in hours or days, did you know that Al Tannenbaum was in the mountains? A. I cannot explain it; I don't know what you mean.

By the Court:

Q. Before you found Tannenbaum on the truck did you know he was in the mountains? A. Oh, yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal: 3272

Q. How long did you know he was in the mountains on that occasion? A. I understand what you mean now. They came over to my hotel, sir.

Q. Who is "they"? A. Al Strauss—I mean Harry Strauss, Jack Drucker, Al Tannenbaum; they came over to my hotel.

Q. When did they come over to your hotel, how long before the murder? A. I think about three days, sir.

Q. That is—I do not remember the names—it may be quicker to ask you—did Drucker, 3273
Strauss and Tannenbaum, the three came over? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And they had a conversation with you in your hotel? A. No, sir, they just told me something.

Q. Did they have a talk with you in your hotel about this Yuran murder? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you told either Tannenbaum or Strauss or Drucker that you were over in the Oliver Hill Hotel before they came over to interview you there? A. They knew where I was.

Q. Had you told them? A. Oh, no, sir.

3274 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Were they stopping in the same town, Woodbourne, that you were stopping in? A. No, sir.

Q. Where were they stopping? A. In the Plaza Hotel.

Q. In the same town? A. No, sir.

Q. Where is the Plaza Hotel? A. I think it is in Fallsburg.

Q. You know it is in Fallsburg, don't you? A. I think it is Fallsburg.

3275 Q. Eight miles away from where you were stopping, is that true? A. I think so, sir.

Q. Did you see them between the time they had this conference with you three days before in the—

Mr. Rosenthal: Do not answer this question, Mr. Turkus is going to get up. But I now ask the court to tell him to sit down until I finish.

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor instruct Mr. Rosenthal to not repeat anything to him that starts any discussion.

3276

The Court: Yes, forget that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw the question.

Q. How long after this conference or talk that you had with them in your hotel was it before you next saw any one of these three men?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question, with the use of the word "conference". It contains a statement of facts not testified to by this witness.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it. I don't want your Honor to rule on it. I will put it in a different form.

The Court: It is not permissible on the trial of this issue to re-try the Gangi Cohen case. The most you can do with regard to the Gangi Cohen case is to impeach credibility by contradictions.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is in reference to the Yuran murder. I want to show this man is an accomplice to that murder. 3278
That is my purpose in asking this question.

The Court: I understand Gangi Cohen is the man who was tried for the Yuran murder.

Mr. Rosenthal: No, it is a different murder entirely.

The Court: Who was tried for that?

Mr. Turkus: That indictment is pending. There is a fugitive there.

The Court: Then the court cannot allow any fishing.

3279

Mr. Rosenthal: I am trying to show—there is no fishing about names exposed here. He has exposed the names of three people in the truck and I am going to show that this man is an accomplice, and not, as he says, an undertaker burying a body after he was murdered, but that he was an accomplice.

The Court: For the court's information, let me have this—what was the name of the corpus delicti in the Cohen murder case?

3280

Mr. Turkus: Walter Sage, alias Walter the Polack.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you see either Drucker, Tannenbaum or Harry Strauss, after they visited your hotel in Woodbourne, three days before the murder of Yuran, in between that time—the time of the murder and the first conversation you had with them, did you see them again? A. Yes, sir, they told me to go over some place, sir.

3281

Q. Where was the next place you saw either Harry Strauss, Drucker or Tannenbaum, prior to the murder of Yuran? A. The Plaza Hotel.

Q. Is the Plaza Hotel their hotel, where they stopped? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When were you told to come over to the Plaza Hotel, where they stopped, how long before the murder of Yuran? A. That was the same day, I think; I think that was the same day, sir.

3282

The Court: Although no objection is made—this is what the court has reference to—I cannot rule because there is no objection, but it strikes me as having no legitimate purpose in this cross-examination, but as being in a sense, fishing for information concerning entirely different matters.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's statement. May I state on the record that the only purpose in my mind that I have of all these names are public matters I am speaking about now.

He has already spoken about them under oath. I am impeaching his credibility on the question of whether or not he had ever been connected with or took any part in any other murder, other than the Rosen murder. This jury has a right to know whether or not he did or aided in the commission of any murders either prior or subsequent, in order to appraise what weight, if any, they will give his testimony. I am not bound by his statement. 3284

The Court: If the jury were not present, you would not address the Court in an angry tone.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not angry.

The Court: Your attitude is surely such. Otherwise you are talking for the benefit of the jury. I call you to order for that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except.

The Court: Next question.

Q. Did you see either Drucker, Strauss or Tannenbaum prior to the murder of Yuran? A. 3285 What do you mean, "prior to"? I don't know what you mean, sir.

Q. (The Court) Before. A. No, sir. I met them over there the same day I stood at the hotel. They told me to hang around. That is all I know.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You were asked to come over to the hotel at what time of the day, to be there at what time of the day? A. I think it was about five or six o'clock at night.

Q. Were you asked to take your car along? A. Yes, sir, I had to go with my car. It is about eight miles to get there.

Q. When you arrived there did you see them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they tell you that you should wait around? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They just told you to wait there? A. Yes,
3287 sir.

Q. Didn't you say before, in answer to Judge Talley, that you were accidentally walking along in Fallsburgh, accidentally walking along the street in Fallsburgh, when you met these men? Isn't that what your testimony was on this stand in answer to Judge Talley when you were questioned about the Yuran murder? A. You don't understand me, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer be stricken out as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

3288 The Witness: You don't understand.

Q. You don't understand. A. I said you don't understand.

The Court: What he said before, Counsellor, when Judge Talley was questioning him is that when the alleged victim was murdered, he came up after the murder. I don't recall whether he said, "accidentally." Maybe he did and maybe he did not. For goodness' sake, don't let that delay things. Proceed with your examination.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I press the question?

The Court: I withdraw the last part of the remark to save time.

Q. Didn't you tell Judge Talley you knew nothing about the Yuran murder, but were accidentally walking along the street in Fallsburg when you met those men? A. Yes, sir. 3290

Q. And that was true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What time were you "accidentally" walking along the street in Fallsburg when you met these men? A. I was walking with somebody.

Q. Who were you walking with? A. Jack Drucker, sir. You are getting off the line—I cannot explain it to you—I can explain it to you, but what you are telling me is wrong.

By the Court:

Q. What time of day did that happen? A. This it at night. 3291

Q. What time? A. Say about eleven or twelve o'clock at night.

Q. How far from the village of Fallsburg did you find them in this lot or field? A. I took a ride and then he told me to take a walk.

Q. Go ahead, please. A. Sometime at night, it was in the Plaza Hotel, Jack Drucker told me to take a ride with him. I took a ride with him. He told me to come and take a walk with him. I took a walk with him. On the road there was an alleyway and along came a car and inside was the dead body.

3292 Q. Before that did you know about it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Drucker tell you? A. No, sir, he just told me to take a walk.

Q. Then you went, accompanied with Drucker, to assist in burying the body? A. No, sir, that was the next day.

Q. You acted as a lookout at the burial? A. No, sir. They dropped off the body. They went away with the car, with the dead man's car.

3293 Q. They left the body there? A. Yes, sir, me and Harry Strauss stood there all alone until they came back.

Q. The next day? A. That same night we took the body and hid it in the bushes and then that same night they started digging, but they could not make a hole.

Q. You had to get a pick? A. There was a pick there already. And the next day they came with the truck and then we took the body to the grave.

Q. How far away? A. That was in Loch Sheldrake.

3294 Q. How far away? A. I cannot tell you, because I was riding in the truck, I could not see it. It took about ten or fifteen minutes, maybe more.

Q. It was a short distance? A. Yes, sir, but I was riding in the truck and I could not see.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Is it your testimony you came with Drucker to a certain spot in your automobile? A. Oh, no, sir.

Q. In his automobile? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then when you got to a certain spot

3295

Drucker said, "Let us get out and take a walk"? A. What do you mean, "Let us get out and take a walk"? He stopped the car and said, "Come on, take a walk."

Q. Then while you were walking you saw Strauss come along with Drucker? A. Wait a minute. Just take it easy, sir. We got to the spot there. We stood a few minutes, and then came along the car.

Q. And in the car you discovered who? A. Who did I discover? What do you mean?

3296

Q. Who did you see? A. They pulled over the car.

Q. Who is "they" that pulled over the car? A. Al Tannenbaum, Harry Strauss, and another fellow was Simey, and the dead man.

Q. Then you, together with them, took the body and hid it in the bushes? A. Wait a minute, you are going too fast. When they dropped off the body they started digging, fixing a hole. Then when he could not dig to make a hole he hid it in the bushes.

3297

By the Court:

Q. You mean it was too rocky? A. I don't know what it is, but weeds or something.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you just tell Judge Taylor, when you were reciting it now, as to what happened, that "we" hid the body, using the words "we hid the body in the bushes"?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

3298 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By the Court:

Q. Who did hide it? A. We all did hide it; we all had a part.

Q. You were then in on the job? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. But you had not been told by Drucker that the purpose you and he were to be there 3299 for was for the purpose of aiding the get-away and the murder, had you? A. No, sir.

Q. But after you hid the body you went with Strauss? A. I beg your pardon, sir?

Q. You went with Strauss, didn't you, after you hid the body? A. Wait a minute; either Jack Drucker came back with his car or Alie Tannenbaum came back with his car and they picked us up. I will tell you the whole thing. I will tell you everything. I will tell you what happened first.

Q. Go ahead. A. When they dropped off the body and they could not dig a hole, I think that 3300 is when Harry Strauss went through his pockets and he found a lot of money there—I don't know how much, and then either Jack Drucker or Allie Tannenbaum came back with his car to pick us up there.

Q. Are you sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you just tell the Judge when you were reciting the story to him that when you found you could not dig you went away with Strauss, and Drucker and Tannenbaum drove the dead man's car away, didn't you say that to the Judge only three minutes ago?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on the question of impeachment; he has changed his story within thr.e minutes after he told it to your Honor.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the summation in advance.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit I am entitled to an answer to the question.

Mr. Turkus: I submit the witness has 3302
a right to tell the whole story.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not stopping him, but I am stopping him from telling a different story within three minutes of one another.

The Court: It is very easy for counsel and the Court to get confused. My own mind is clear as to what he did say. We are very far afield. The most you are entitled to in collateral impeachment is to get an admission of somebody else present, but you may not try the other 3303 issue in all its details. I mean to say it is within reason for the Court not to permit cross-examination on collateral details. I know examination on collateral details is permissible on the main issue within certain limitations, but not on collateral impeachment. I have got to put a stop to this somewhere, or there will be no end to the trial.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to your Honor's statement.

The Court: You have your admission of the unlawful disposition of the body.

3304 Mr. Rosenthal: May we come back ten minutes earlier? I would like the stenographer over recess to transcribe that for me.

The Court: No, I will stop you right here and now on that. I think it is reasonable and the Court will be sustained on it. It is too far afield.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling. Now that my pur-

3305 pose is clear I am now asking this question—

The Court: Do not argue it, please. Take your exception and proceed with your examination.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will take exception.

The Court: Because today I will proceed until one o'clock. I have a long sentence calendar at two o'clock, and that work will take all afternoon, so we must now cover all the ground possible between now and one o'clock.

3306 Mr. Rosenthal: I have every desire to do so, but I have a duty to perform for my client.

The Court: Do not make speeches, then.

Q. Did you tell Judge Talley—

Mr. Barshay: I don't want to repeat it, but all this is subject to our objection which your Honor gave me from the moment this man started testifying.

The Court: Surely.

Q. You admitted using the name of Jackie Berman?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious and also as to the form of the question.

Q. In answer to a question by Judge Talley you admitted using the name of Jackie Berman, when you were in Miami?

3308

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is preliminary to an impeachment question.

Q. (The Court) Do you remember? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In the mountains, in the Gangi Cohen trial, were you asked these questions in respect to that proposition, and did you give these answers:

"Q. Did you ever use any name other than you own on any occasion? A. My own name. 3309

"Q. You were never afraid as to hiding your identity? A. No.

"Q. Never afraid? A. No.

"Q. That is the fact? A. Yes, sir."

Were those questions asked you in the trial of Gangi Cohen and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true, either? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What? A. It was not true, sir, yes, sir.

Q. In respect to Tannenbaum, were you asked in the trial of Gangi Cohen, in the mountains, these questions and did you give these answers:

3310 "Q. You knew him well, you knew Tannenbaum, and you passed him by—"

Well, I will repeat for you before that. This is in respect to meeting Tannenbaum in Miami. Do you recall testifying in the mountains about meeting him in Miami? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in respect to that situation, were you asked these questions and did you give these answers:

"Q. You knew him well, you knew Tannen-3311 baum, and you passed him by? A. I did not know him so well.

"Q. You have known Tannenbaum for years? A. Never do business with him.

"Q. Then it is a passing acquaintance? A. That is right."

Do you remember those questions being asked of you and those answers given? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you mean when you told the jury in the Gangi Cohen case that you had a passing acquaintance with Tannenbaum that—I will withdraw it. Do you call a "passing acquaintance"
3312 with a man being with him right after a murder is committed and carting the body and burying it, et cetera, do you call that a "passing acquaintance"?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as summation.

The Court: Sustained as argumentative.

Q. You told Judge Talley in this trial, at page 682, that when you went with the police to point out where the body of Yuran was buried, that you did not point out anything about the pick or the axe, do you remember being asked by Judge Talley about that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The fact is you did not point out to the police where the pick or the axe were buried, isn't that right? A. No, sir.

Q. In the trial in the mountains, in the Gangi Cohen trial at Monticello, were you asked these questions and did you make these answers:

"Q. Did you point out to the officers the place where the 32 calibre pistol and the axe and the pick were thrown and buried in connection with 3314
the Yuran murder?"

Mr. Turkus: Read the objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, I will read it, even though it is not material.

Mr. Turkus: It is very material.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you make this answer in the mountains in the Gangi Cohen trial:

"Q. Did you point out to the officers the place where the 32 calibre pistol and the axe and the pick were thrown and buried in connection with 3315
the Yuran murder?

"Mr. Dickerman: I object as an attempt to disclose evidence in another indictment now pending in this court.

"The Court: You may answer.

"Q. Did you or didn't you? A. I did."

A. Oh, you don't understand. I will explain if you want me to bring it out.

3316

By the Court:

Q. Were those questions asked and those answers made? A. Yes, sir, but I did not understand them, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. That was not true, was it? A. You don't let me explain.

3317

By the Court:

Q. Yes or no? A. You don't let me explain, sir. If it is in the book, I said it.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. In your mind did you have— In June of 1940, before you were a witness in the Gangi Cohen trial in the mountains, did you have an idea of your own as to what the word "accomplice" to a murder meant?

3318

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you were questioned— Let me withdraw that. You told Judge Talley, didn't you, that Judge O'Dwyer and Captain Bals questioned you about five or six times, asked you questions, and you gave them answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You told Judge Talley when he asked you questions that those questions and answers that were asked of you by Judge O'Dwyer and Captain Bals were asked before you became a witness in the Gangi Cohen trial. You have not been interviewed by them since? A. What do you mean, sir?

3319

Q. All of the six interviews, or the five or six interviews in which questions were asked of you by Judge O'Dwyer and Captain Bals, and you made answers, were questions which were had before you took the stand as a witness in the 3320 mountains, is that right? A. No, sir.

Q. Did they ask you questions since then? A. After the trial?

Q. Yes. A. Oh, sure, sir.

Q. Judge O'Dwyer asked you questions after? A. Yes, sir, Captain Bals, District Attorney Turkus, Mr. Klein.

Q. All of them asked questions? A. Not all at one time. They asked me questions and I answered them.

Q. Did you in the mountains, in 1940, in the Gangi Cohen trial, when you were asked— Let 3321 me withdraw that question. When you were first questioned by the District Attorney, after you had surrendered yourself, did you immediately tell him what you knew about the murder of Walter Sage; did you tell him that along with the other things you told him? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not tell him a word about it? A. Nothing about Walter Sage, no, sir.

Q. How long after you had surrendered yourself was the first time you mentioned you knew something about Walter Sage, or you had helped—3322 Mr. Turkus (Interrupting): I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained as being too far afield.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is all preliminary to testimony under oath for the purpose of impeachment.

The Court: Do not argue, please.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3323 Q. Now, in June, when you were asked on the stand in the Gangi Cohen trial, in respect to whether the District Attorney had ever questioned you or not, were you asked these questions and did you give these answers:

"Q. And how many times were you questioned by the District Attorney in Brooklyn? A. How many times?

"Q. Can't you hear me? A. Just once I told him all I knew.

"Q. On that one occasion did you tell them everything you knew?

3324 "The Court: In Brooklyn?

"A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Was a stenographer present? A. No, sir.

"Q. You were talking to the District Attorney what you knew about murders, and there was not a stenographer present taking down what you were saying?"

We will neave the next question out, because it is subsequently sustained.

Mr. Turkus: Read the record right.

3325

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any statement or inference from Mr. Turkus that I have not read the record right, and I defy him to tell me where at any time I did not read the record right. I am not taking any accusation from this man.

The Court: Won't you complete your question?

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that his statement be stricken from the record.

The Court: All right, strike it out. Let us proceed. Finish your question. I am trying to follow it. 3326

Q. I will continue the question. Did you understand it as far as I have read? A. Very clearly, sir.

Q. "Q. How long did they question you in Brooklyn?"

Mr. Turkus: I object. There is something omitted.

Mr. Rosenthal: There is nothing omitted. There is an objection sustained, and when it is sustained the question is stricken out, as I understand the rulings of the Court. If the Court wants me to read it I will read it, but I will take the Court's ruling and not Mr. Turkus's. 3327

Mr. Turkus: You read the question but did not read on.

Mr. Rosenthal: I said it was sustained and stricken out and therefore I omitted the question; that is exactly what I said.

The Court: This all tends to confusion. Go ahead with the question.

3328 Q. "Q. How long did they question you in Brooklyn? A. They did question me. I told them what I knew.

"Q. "The Court: How long?

"A. "The Witness: An hour, I told them.

"Q. Who asked you the questions, Judge O'Dwyer? A. Captain Bals and Judge O'Dwyer.

"Q. And you told them everything you knew? A. Yes.

"Q. You mean you went in and volunteered to 3329 give them everything you knew about murders, and you told them everything you knew? A. Yes."

Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now then, let me ask you, is it a fact that you were only spoken to— Question withdrawn.

Q. Isn't it a fact you were only spoken to once before June of 1940 by Captain Bals or Judge O'Dwyer about any murders?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

3330 The Court: Repetitious; also too far afield. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Now, do you remember you were questioned about your knowledge of the Rosen murder while you were a witness in the Gangy Cohen trial in Monticello in June, 1940? Do you remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell the jury in Monticello the truth in respect to your testimony regarding the Rosen murder—yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious and as already answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: I never even questioned him on this yet.

The Court: Objection overruled.

The Witness: What do you mean?

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer.

The Witness: I do not undestand what you mean.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal, what in the 3332 world has the trial in Monticello got to do with the Rosen case?

Mr. Rosenthal: He said under oath what he knows about the Rosen case there, and I am quoting from his testimony as to his supposed knowledge of the Rosen case, in which he denied he had any complicity, in the mountains.

The Court: Come down to the point.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is the reason, I asked him first—I read to him and asked him whether he told the jury the truth 3333 in the Rosen case.

Mr. Turkus: That is what I object to. It is repetition.

The Court: You have objected once and the Court has ruled. Let it go at that. The objection is sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Were you asked these questions in the Gangi Cohen trial in Monticello:

"Q. You never killed anybody, did you? A. No, sir.

3334 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

"Q. You never were a witness to a killing, were you? A. Witness to a killing? No, sir.

"Q. You never saw anyone killed? A. What do you mean, see?

"Q. Don't you know what "see" means? A. Means actually seeing a person get killed?

"Q. What did you see? A. I know something about it.

3335 "Mr. Dickerman: I object to any question of any other killing, as this witness may be a witness.

"Mr. Price: There is such a thing as credibility.

"The Court: You can ask as to any act that was his."

Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. After having given those answers, were you then asked these questions:

"Q. You are not an accessory or accomplice to any murder? A. That is right."

3336

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: Will you please sit down until I am finished with my question?

The Court: Let him finish it.

Q. Were you asked these questions and did you give these answers? A. My mind is very clear. Go ahead.

Q. "Q. You are not an accessory or accomplice to another murder? A. That is right.

"Q. And that is true? A. Yes.

"Q. And you have had nothing to do with any murder on any occasion? A. That is right."

Did you answer those questions that way?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is a legal question. "Accessory or accomplice."

The Court: Sustained as to all except the last question and answer.

Q. Under the Court's ruling I will repeat just this question:

"Q. And you have had nothing to do with any murder on any occasion? A. That is right." 3338

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true, was it? A. I can explain it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer be stricken out as not responsive.

The Court: It is really arguing with the witness because the actual killing, according to his testimony here, he did not participate in, but he did participate, according to his admissions, in sitting in the car and in acting as an outside principal. 3339

Mr. Rosenthal: And in stealing the car and in taking the plates, and in getting them there, bringing them there and bringing them away.

The Court: Pardon me. The answer given to the question you have just read in the other trial could be viewed as being meant to be true by the witness if he considered it referred to taking part in the actual shooting. It would be untrue in relation to his being a principal under Section 2 of the Penal Law, in the other work than killing. Therefore it is a matter of argument for the jury.

3340 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the Court's interpretation and its statement in the presence of this jury. My interpretation, without mentioning it, is entirely different.

Mr. Talley: I wish to put on the record at this time our objection to your Honor's 3341 statement, our exception to the statement which you made, and for the withdrawal of a juror, and I move for a mistrial in view of your Honor's statement made at this point in the case.

The Court: I can see no sense in that, no sense whatever. The statement by the Court was fair; the man legally was a principal of his own admission in the Rosen murder, if the Rosen murder occurred as he testified. There is no prejudice about it.

Mr. Talley: He testified.

3342 The Court: Do not argue. The motion for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial is denied.

Mr. Talley: I respectfully except to your Honor's refusal to allow me to reply to your Honor's statement.

The Court: Proceed, please.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Regarding the Rosen murder, were you asked these questions—page 61 of the minutes in the Gangy Cohen trial in Monticello, and did you give these answers:

"Q. Did you know a man named Joseph Rosen? A. No, sir.

"Q. Did you ever hear that name? A. I know something about it.

"Q. About what? A. About Rosen.

"By the Court:

"Q. Did you say you did not know him personally? A. (The Witness) Yes. 3344

"Q. Did you know this man Rosen had a candy store? A. Did I know?

"Q. Yes, sir. A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Was that located at 725 Sutter Avenue, Brooklyn? A. I don't know the number, but I know it was on Sutter Avenue.

"Q. You know he was murdered in the candy store on September 13, 1936? A. I don't remember the date.

"Q. But you know that was the time, around that time? A. It could be.

"Q. Was it in 1936 he was murdered? A. I 3345 do not remember the year.

"Q. Did you see him murdered? A. No.

"Q. Did you have any part in that murder? A. I don't know what it was all about.

"Q. Did you testify in the Grand Jury about that murder? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. The District Attorney put you in the Grand Jury as a witness in the Joseph Rosen murder, and you tell this jury now you don't know what it was all about? A. Yes, I know now about it.

3346

"Q. Were you with Rosen at the time he was killed? A. No, sir."

Were you asked those questions and did you make those answers?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that, there being nothing inconsistent.

The Court: Sustained. No contradiction.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling and the statement of the Court there is no contradiction.

3347

The Court: The statement is withdrawn. The jury will disregard it.

Q. When you were in California in 1940 did anybody know you were there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who knew you were there? A. Louis and Al.

Q. What is the name of Al, the last name? A. Do I have to tell that, your Honor?

The Court: If there is any objection—

3348

For some reason the witness does not wish to answer the question. I cannot rule because there is no objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: Question withdrawn.

Q. Were you asked in respect to these supposed friends of yours in the trial of Gangy Cohen? A. They asked me who knew I was in California.

Q. You said you did not know the names of the men that knew—did you say that?

3349

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not inconsistent with anything here.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it.

Q. When you had this candy store, wasn't that a blind for the Ali Baba gang?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That was asked by Judge Talley.

A. Ali Baga gang?

3350

Q. Well, let us see. Did you know a man named Jacob Eisman (?), otherwise known as Baby Face?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is on the question of his credibility.

The Court: Overruled. It may lead to something.

A. I knew Eisman, yes, sir.

3351

Q. You knew him as Baby Face, didn't you? A. I don't know what you mean.

Q. (The Court) Yes or no? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know a man named Abie Goldberg, with an alias of Whitey? A. No, sir.

Q. You never heard of that name, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question, whether he ever heard.

The Court: Objection sustained.

3352 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Did you know Willie Rosenson? A. I have heard that name.

Q. You heard of that name, didn't you, you know who Willie Rosenson is? A. I heard of that name.

Q. Do you know him, beside hearing of him by name? A. I must have.

Q. Did you hear of Willie Rosenson, outside of hearing his name? A. Yes, sir.

3353 Mr. Turkus: I object.

Q. Was he known by the alias, by the name of Punchy Willie, or something like that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will show the competency—that this man is not telling the truth in anything he says here, that his purpose—

Mr. Turkus: I object to Mr. Rosenthal making an advance summation to the jury, 3354 injecting improper and reprehensible remarks.

The Court: This means nothing at the present time, but it may mean something later. Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the speech, making those voluntary remarks.

Mr. Turkus: I am always asked to be admonished if I make any form of an objection. Yet we have defense counsel doing the most reprehensible things. Now, I ask that they be admonished.

3355

The Court: I am always admonishing both sides.

Mr. Rosenthal: I accept the admonition of the court.

The Court: It is understood that throughout the rest of the trial all admonitions apply to all counsel.

Q. Both of those men were confirmed criminals, weren't they?

3356

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: I withdraw the question.

By the Court:

Q. At the time of your association, if you had any, did you know that they were crooks? A. I don't know what he is talking about, Judge.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3357

Q. Do you know Irving Shenker, otherwise known as Faker? A. I know there is a Shenker.

Q. Did you associate with him? A. He came around the store.

Q. The store you kept as a blind? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Sam Nagur, also known as Mitch? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know Max Moskowitz? A. Yes, sir.

3358 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Did he come around the store, too? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Eisman?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. The Eisman I mean is the man who was arrested for killing a policeman and convicted: did you know him?

3359 Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will show his association whether he likes it or not.

The Court: The court will now take a recess. On account of sentencing this afternoon, and I have quite a calendar, the court will recess until tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. Gentlemen of the jury, let no one talk to you about the case, keep your minds open, remember the admonition given you previously, which follows throughout the trial.

3360 The Court: The witness may pass out first. Now, the jury may retire. Defendants remanded.

(Recess until 10:00 A. M., October 30, 1941.)

3361

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 30, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

SOL BERNSTEIN, a witness for the People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Rosenthal (continued):

3362

Q. Just before recess yesterday I was asking you about the names of certain individuals and whether they hung out in this store you kept as a blind; do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Eiseman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he known as "Baby Face"? A. No, sir.

Q. Was his first name Jake Eiseman? A. No, sir.

Q. What was his first name? A. Nat Eiseman.

Q. Did he hang out in this store of yours? A. Yes, sir.

3363

Q. Was he a professional burglar? A. No, sir.

Q. Was he a thief? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know a man named Harry Stein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he hang out in your store? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he a thief? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named Red Rabiner? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he hang out in your store? A. No, sir.

3364 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. How long have you known him? A. I went to school with him.

Q. Was he a thief also? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a man called Big Dick? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he hang out in your store? A. No, sir.

Q. How long had you known him? A. I went to school with him, sir.

Q. Is he another thief? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a man called Ridge? A. No,

3365 sir.

Q. Do you know a man named Wick Horowitz, otherwise known as "Wick"? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that these men that hung out in your store, whom you say were thieves, were known as the Ali Baba gang? A. No, sir.

Q. You never heard of the name "Ali Baba Gang" before you got on the stand?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Judge Talley asked about that; I did not.

The Court: He may answer.

3366

Q. (The Court) Did you ever hear of them? A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know you were known as The Chief?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Q. Were you known as— Or were you known by any other name besides the names you gave, Jake Berman and Sol. Scholem, Bernstein? A. There might have been some other names too.

Q. Don't you know you were known by other names?

Mr. Turitus: I object unless the time is fixed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I can only ask one question at a time. I will ask him that.

The Court: You might ask him specifically as to some other names.

Q. Can you give this jury any other name you were known by, and the times you were known by other names? A. I don't understand what you mean. 3368

Q. You said you might have been known by other names besides Bernstein, Scholem, and Jacky Berman. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now what other names, can you give us any of them that you were known by, and can you tell us during what years you were known by those names? A. When I checked in sometimes to a hotel, sir.

Q. When you were traveling the country, you mean, with carnivals? A. No, sir. 3369

Q. When you were traveling around the country in those years you went on a vacation, you mean? A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. You say you checked in a hotel sometimes and gave fictitious names. Did you say that just now? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you do that in 1936? A. No, sir.

Q. Or in 1937? A. I cannot recall, sir.

Q. In 1938? A. It might have been, sir.

Q. And in 1939? A. It might have been, sir.

Q. What is your best recollection? Is that the best you can tell us, "It might have been"? A. I went under, maybe once or twice in a hotel, under different names, but I do not recollect, sir.

Q. Frank Cooperman was another friend of yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a man named Arkie Cohen? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you know him? A. About ten years, sir.

Q. Is he another thief? A. No, sir.

3371 Q. Is he a loan shark man? A. He is an electrician, sir.

Q. Is he a friend of yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you see Arkie Cohen while you were with Fat Cooperman the night that Fat Cooperman was killed in his doorway?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant; we have gone over that; this is repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked a question about this. I am now cross-examining in behalf of the defendant Capone.

3372 The Court: Do not argue. Objection overruled.

Q. Did you understand the question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Answer it. A. I may have.

Q. Didn't you have a talk with Arkie Cohen—Question withdrawn.

Q. Didn't Arkie Cohen want to go in a car with you and Fat Cooperman that night, and didn't you tell him not to go in the car with you because Fat Cooperman was going to be killed? A. No, sir.

Q. You did pick up Fat Cooperman and drive him to his doorway? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long after you deposited him at his doorway was it before you heard that Fat Cooperman had been killed in that doorway? A. The next day, sir.

By the Court:

Q. How long ago was that? A. A good many years ago, sir.

Q. Did that have some connection with the Kauffman chicken market murder? A. No, sir. 3374

Q. In Sullivan County? A. No, sir. Explain again, sir.

Q. Was that a chicken market murder? A. No, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you accidentally meet Fat Cooperman?

Mr. Turkus: Will you wait just a minute, sir? 3375

(Mr. Turkus appears before the bench and talks privately to the Judge, without the hearing of the jury.)

(Mr. Turkus resumes his place in the court-room.)

Q. Did you accidentally meet Fat Cooperman that night and take him home? A. No, sir. I met him in the cafeteria. If you want to know who killed him I can tell you, if you want to know who killed him, if you want to know that.

3376 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that be stricken out.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Rosenthal: Now, for about the eighth time I ask your Honor, in view of the fact we had another recess, that this individual be told to answer questions only.

The Court: Yes.

3377 Q. Did you understand what the Judge told you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You have been told that now seven times, haven't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object. Just a minute. Admonitions come from Judge Taylor and are satisfactory.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have a right to question this man as to whether he understood what he has been told seven times in the last few days.

Mr. Turkus: He is willing to tell you
3378 everything.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that that be stricken out. If it is to be a repetition of what we have had on other days, he is going to have his answer. I ask your Honor to tell Mr. Turkus that he has no more right than this man has to make statements in the presence of this jury.

Mr. Turkus: That goes for Mr. Rosenthal.

Mr. Rosenthal: It goes for everybody in this court-room.

Mr. Turkus: But this time I am addressing my remark to you.

The Court: Well, that is all over.

Mr. Turkus: As far as I am concerned it has subsided.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have an instruction made to Mr. Turkus not to make statements in the presence of the jury?

The Court: All right.

Q. Did you understand the Court's—I am talking to you, Bernstein— 3380

The Court: Don't quiz him about the Court's admonition.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will accept the Court's ruling as to that, but I respectfully except.

Q. Did you accidentally meet Fat Cooperman that night in a cafeteria, when you took him home—yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious. He has just answered. 3381

Mr. Rosenthal: The answer has been stricken by the Court as not responsive.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. No, sir, he was in Witty's cafeteria on Pitkin and Douglass.

By the Court:

Q. He was killed on Snyder Avenue, wasn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Around East 59th Street? A. Yes, sir.

3382 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. That is the place where you let him off? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. And if the District Attorney wants to find out who did it— A. (interrupting) I will tell him, sir.

3383 The Court: All right, there is plenty of time.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You told Judge Talley that you did not know anything about the fact of the Cooperman murder whatever until the next morning, didn't you, when he asked you the question yesterday when he was examining you—yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: I object, that is just what 3384 he said today. This is not inconsistent.

Mr. Rosenthal: If we accept Mr. Turkus's answer, I withdraw the question.

Q. How long did you know Seymour Magoon? A. About eight or nine years, sir.

Q. Did he frequent the store you ran as a blind? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he frequent the Coffee Pot that you mentioned at Amboy and Sutter? A. I seen him lots of times there, sir.

Q. Did Mugsy Cohen visit your store? A.

Yes, sir, hung around in the store, in the same store.

Q. At the time that Muggsy Cohen was hanging around in your store you knew him as a first class radio and automobile thief?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious; we have had his accomplishments related already.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked any questions on anything I am asking today. 3386
What Judge Talley or Mr. Turkus may have asked him—

The Court: (interrupting) Please do not argue. The objection is overruled.

Q. Do you remember the question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is your answer "Yes, sir"? A. He was the best in the business, sir.

Q. When you testified in Monticello, it was in June of 1940, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had previously testified in Kings County before the Grand Jury in the Rosen case, 3387 hadn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And subsequent or after your testimony in Monticello did you ever testify before the Grand Jury again in Brooklyn about the Rosen case? A. Just once, sir.

Q. That once was prior to the time you swore as a witness in the Cohen trial in Monticello, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, you told Judge Talley that you were told by someone in the District Attorney's office not to give any information— I will withdraw 3388 that and give your exact words—you told Judge Talley that (on page 682) you did not tell the truth in Monticello because you did not want to give any information? A. All of it, no, sir. I told the truth about the Gangy case; everything was the truth, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike that out as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand; it is 3389 most responsive.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Were you asked this question and did you give this answer (page 682):

"Q. You did not tell the truth in Monticello, did you? A. Because I don't want to give no information."

Were you asked that question and did you give that answer?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious

3390 and not inconsistent with his testimony in response to Mr. Rosenthal's questions.

Q. Were you asked that question and did you give that answer? A. I went to testify in the Gangy case and not in the other case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike that out as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: Consented to.

The Court: Of course, Mr. Rosenthal, you know that is part of the record in this case.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, I know that.

The Court: It is not customary, after the witness has been asked a question and given an answer, to later on take time to ask him if that question were true and that answer given in the same case unless he makes a contradiction.

Mr. Rosenthal: That was not asked by me. And it is preliminary.

The Court: Just the same, it is part of the record. Go ahead with your next 3392 question and we will avoid loss of time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor strike the answer out.

The Court: I am making it as a suggestion. Every time the Court makes a suggestion it is time lost and the Court means to save that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I accept the suggestion, but there is an answer which I ask the Court to strike out before I continue.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 3393

Q. Where was the conversation you had with the man in the District Attorney's office who spoke to you about giving no information? Where was that had?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not testimony.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Didn't you tell Judge Talley you had been told by a man in the District Attorney's office not to give any information? Did you tell that to Judge Talley?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That has just been sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked that before.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3395 Q. Can you tell this jury the name of any individual attached to either the Brooklyn District Attorney's office or the District Attorney's office in Monticello who told you what you related to Judge Talley regarding not giving information?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You were asked by Judge Talley at page 638, these questions:

"Q. Did you tell the District Attorney that 3396 you were going to testify falsely because all the mob were not picked up? A. What did you say, sir?"

Then the question was repeated, and your answer: "A. I was told not to talk about any other case.

"Q. Who told you that? A. Somebody in the District Attorney's office. I don't recall who. I didn't tell all of the truth up there, sir."

Do you recall those questions being asked you and your giving those answers?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is preliminary to my asking another question.

The Court: It is just a waste of time; it is already part of the record in this case.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is preliminary.

The Court: Don't argue that. This is elementary and I am surprised you do this.

3398

Q. Can you tell me in which District Attorney's office this conversation which you told Judge Talley about took place?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered and repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is not contained in the record, if your Honor will look. Judge Talley did not ask in which District Attorney's office the conversation took place or where it took place, and that is what I am asking him.

3399

Mr. Turkus: The answer, he said, was "I don't recall."

The Court: The rule as to impeachment entitles you to inquire as to whether or not any witness who goes on the stand has committed perjury on another occasion. There it stops. You are not permitted to go on a fishing excursion along the lines of an admission. The record is complete then on that point and it may not be pursued any further than to get the admission. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to your Honor's remarks.

The Court: It is elementary law; it is not a remark. It is a ruling, and I am telling you the law because you do not seem to know it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to that remark.

Q. Did you know Abie Reles's brother? A.
3401 No, sir.

Q. You never knew a man named Sandy Reles? A. No, sir.

Q. You are sure of that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, in 1938, when you applied for a loan, did you give the name of a man, Herman Schact as your employer, residing at 365 East 98th Street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever work for Schact? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you also at that time say you worked for Schact as a salesman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true either? A. No, sir.

Q. Schact is a brother-in-law of your partner
3402 Cherry, isn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object. What difference does it make?

The Court: Objection sustained.

The Witness: I paid him off the loans.

Q. Are you finished? Didn't you go out to California— Question withdrawn.

Q. Didn't Meyers, the man who was endorser on your note or notes, leave and go to California in 1938?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: He has made responses. They are on the record, and I will show it is not a fact.

Mr. Turkus: I ask Mr. Rosenthal's remarks not only be stricker from the record but the jury instructed to disregard them. They are not testimony.

The Court: I do not think the jury needs instruction.

3404

Q. Didn't you on one of your trips to California go to see this man Meyers who had previously endorsed the notes for you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Didn't you and Cherry, your partner, kill a man named Silverman? A. What do you say?

Q. You heard me, didn't you? A. I did not hear you, sir.

3405

Q. I will repeat it. Didn't you and your partner Cherry kill a man named Silverman? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know a man named Silverman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he a stick-up man? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long had you known Mr. Silverman? A. Six or seven years, sir.

Q. Was Silverman killed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was he killed? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. Approximately, was he killed after you knew him or before you knew him?

Mr. Turkus: I object. How could he be killed before he knew him? That is ridiculous.

Mr. Rosenthal: He might have heard of it.

Mr. Turkus: I object on the ground it is ridiculous to know a man after he was killed.

The Court: Objection sustained.

3407 Q. How long before he was killed did you know Silverman? A. I knew him seven or eight years.

Q. Was he out on stick-ups with you? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you owned an automobile in 1936, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

I have not touched anything about 1936 your Honor.

3409 The Court: It is on the record that he did. Why waste time.

Q. You said you sold that automobile in order to pay loan sharks; is that what you testified to?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is preliminary to questions that have not been touched upon for the purpose of impeachment. I can only bring his attention by asking certain questions that have been previously asked so as to obtain a contradiction.

The Court: I cannot see it. It is very far afield. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Is it not a fact that you had your car stolen in 1936, this car you owned? A. Yes, sir, I think so, yes, sir. It was stolen, yes, sir.

The Court: Now, counsel did not ask you that. He asked you did you have it stolen.

3410

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. It was insured, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You hired a lawyer by the name of—Aaron Babrow? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And sued the insurance company? A. I don't know what you mean by to sue the insurance company.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant; nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Do not argue. Objection sustained. 3411

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Is it a fact, as you testified when asked by Judge Talley, that your 1936 car was sold by you to pay loan sharks off, or is it a fact it was stolen away from you by somebody?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3412 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Was this car of 1936 registered in your name? A. No, sir.

Q. In whose name was it registered? A. I think it was under Al Glass, sir.

Q. You had the car registered subsequently in somebody else's name, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, having nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

3413 The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Now, I am speaking, Mr. Bernstein. Do you mind looking in my direction when I address you? A. I am sorry, sir.

Q. Didn't you see Al Glass in the District Attorney's office in Brooklyn only a couple of weeks ago? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen him in the District Attorney's office since you have been in jail?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompe-

3414 tent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You testified in answer to Mr. Turkus that you left Brooklyn when Judge O'Dwyer became District Attorney, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object, that was not the answer. He said when Judge O'Dwyer did something he left town. I don't want to repeat it.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3415

Q. Did you leave Brooklyn when certain men were arrested for disorderly conduct? A. When he declared war on the mob he kept pinching everybody, and I ran to Florida.

Q. You mean by "pinching," arresting for disorderly conduct, isn't that what you mean?

Mr. Turkus: I object. It speaks for itself.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3416

Q. You had gone to Florida every year at the same time, hadn't you, for the last six years?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That does not take anything away from why he left on that trip.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

May I direct the Court's attention to the fact that these are matters brought out by the District Attorney?

3417

The Court: We are wasting time. Proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Were you in Florida in 1937 around the month of February?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3418 Q. Did you stop at the Hotel Nassau around the beginning of the year 1938—1939, in Florida?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, and incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You said you were in Miami in 1940, in answer to Mr. Turkus, and then left in the month 3419 of March to go some other place. A. I went in to Brooklyn to see a lawyer, Manny Rosenberg and Fischbein was there, too, in Brooklyn.

By the Court:

Q. You mean Mr. Rosenberg? A. And Mr. Fischbein was there too, in Manny Rosenberg's house.

Q. You mean Mr. Rosenberg who is Mr. Rosenthal's associate? A. Yes, sir, Fischbein was there too.

3420 Q. He was your lawyer then? A. Yes, sir, both.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Look at Mr. Fischbein—you saw Mr. Fischbein in 1940? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that what you say? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Was he your regular lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many years?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

A. Quite many years, sir.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

I am waiting for the witness to turn toward me.

The Court: He does not have to.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit, when I am asking a question I am entitled to all of 3422 the witness' attention.

The Court: There is no law on that point.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Wasn't Detective Laurie, of the District Attorney's office, and Detective Joseph, of the District Attorney's office, right there in the same hotel with you, in February—yes or no? A. In the Commodore Hotel, yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you often see them and take sun 3423 baths with them in the Commodore Hotel in February of 1940? A. Take it easy.

Q. You take it easy. A. No, sir. Take it easy, sir.

Q. Did you see them in the hotel?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: I don't see what it has to do with the case.

Mr. Turkus: That was just venomous.

Mr. Rosenthal: What it has to do with the case is the statement of this witness, which I ask be stricken out, in response to your Honor's question.

The Court: All right, maybe I made a mistake, but I don't recall what you are talking about.

Q. Did you see Detective Walter Laurie of the District Attorney's office in the Commodore Hotel in February or March of 1940 before you left and came to New York—yes or no?

3425

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: It has nothing to do with the case. Objection sustained. It makes no difference what hotels the detectives went to or whether they took sun baths or whether they even dined or swam in the luxurious Rooney Plaza.

Mr. Turkus: Detectives have business to be mingling with certain people.

Mr. Rosenthal: Again we have a statement.

3426

Mr. Turkus: I don't want any detective venomously assailed in a court-room if I can stop it.

The Court: It has no bearing on anything. Every Miami hotel usually has a couple of New York detectives during the season. That has been going on for a good many years. It is a matter of common knowledge.

Mr. Rosenthal: May we have Mr. Turkus's statement stricken from the record and the jury instructed to disregard it?

3427

The Court: There is no such law as that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the jury be instructed to disregard it.

The Court: If the Court's jurisdiction is controlling, counsel should use different methods. Proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to your Honor's refusal to advise the jury to disregard it.

3428

Q. Before you gave yourself up had you learned that Mr. Abie Reles had spoken to the District Attorney from newspapers or any source —I will withdraw that.

Q. Had you read in the newspapers before you walked into the District Attorney's office about Abie Reles having spoken to the District Attorney—yes or no? A. Yes, sir, the papers were filled with the story.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask your Honor to instruct this man when he answers yes or no not to continue and volunteer information.

3429

The Court: Yes.

By the Court:

Q. Did you read the Miami Herald when you were there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it carry stories of Judge O'Dwyer's investigation in Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Large, first-page stories? A. Yes, sir. That was about Dukey Maffetore, sir.

3430 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Is that a daily paper? A. Yes, an out standing paper.

Mr. Rosenthal: Will your Honor again instruct this witness not to volunteer after he has finished an answer?

The Court: Yes.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3431 Q. Did you speak to anybody attached to the District Attorney's office since you left the stand yesterday? A. The District Attorney's office?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Has your wife been receiving any money since you are in jail?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. From the City of New York, has your wife been receiving $50 every two months since the time you are in jail?

3422

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you have any other visitors outside of your wife coming into the hotel or wherever you were kept, to see you? A. I am here close to twenty months.

Q. Did you have other visitors coming to see you? A. No, sir.

Q. Are you now charged with any crime, as you are sitting on this stand? Is there any charge against you outside of being held as a material witness as you are sitting here in this court? A. No, sir.

3433

Q. Do you know what the word "immunity" means? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You know that that means, then, that you cannot be prosecuted for a particular crime where you are permitted to testify—do you know that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you known that? A. A long time.

3431

Q. You knew it before you gave yourself up, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So at the time you went to the District Attorney's office in 1940, you knew that if you were permitted to testify in any proceeding of which you were a part, that you could not be prosecuted unless you would sign a paper waiving immunity? A. I did not know what was going to happen to me.

Q. I will repeat the question. You say you knew what the word "immunity" meant for a long period of time? A. Yes, sir.

3435

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, as fully covered.

The Court: That is what he said.

Q. You knew what immunity was before you testified in the mountains, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Turkus: If he knew it before he was arrested he knew it subsequent.

3436 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Did you know it before the Gangy Cohen trial? A. I knew the meaning of immunity, but I did not know what was going to happen to me.

Mr. Rosenthal: To save time I will come back to that.

Q. You did not sign any waiver in this case here, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not sign any waiver in the Yuran
3437 murder, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, he was not a party to that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I again submit that Mr. Turkus is again injecting, and as long as he is I have a right to say this—that it is for this jury to determine from his testimony whether he was a party to it or not, and not for Mr. Turkus to tell them.

The Court: As far as the Yuran murder is concerned, the Court holds that 3438 this is too far afield and not retriable. Objection sustained. You are permitted to go into the question as to whether or not this man committed perjury in the Yuran murder, and there it stops.

Mr. Turkus: That case nas not been tried

The Court: I got that mixed up with the Gangy Cohen case.

Mr. Rosenthal: Therefore I asked him whether he procured immunity or whether he signed a waiver when he testified before the Grand Jury.

3439

The Court: That has nothing to do with this case. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: On the question of promises held out to him on anything he may have done.

The Court: You are not entitled to go into a fishing excursion for prospective trials. This is only manufacturing material for the purpose of the trial of other cases.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except 3440 to your Honor's statement, and I ask your Honor to instruct the jury to disregard that statement.

The Court: The jury knows that they are to listen only to evidence. They will have to disregard a whole lot of things in this case that do not concern them.

Q. Did you testify before the Grand Jury—now wait for the objection—I am going to make this my record—that is why I ask the question. Did you testify before the Grand Jury in whatever county the Yuran murder took place—yes 3441 or no? A. I don't understand what he means.

Q. (The Court) Concerning the Yuran murder case, did you testify before some Grand Jury? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you sign any waiver of immunity before you went in before that Grand Jury—yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant and incompetent.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exc ption.

3442 Q. Did you ever go to a race track?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

Mr. Rosenthal: This has a direct bearing on association, connected with this case.

Mr. Turkus: Then it is withdrawn.

The Witness: What do you mean, did I go to a race track.

3443 Q. Did you ever visit a race track in the year 1936? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever go to the races when they were in Queens County or up in Westchester at any time?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

Mr. Rosenthal: We will find out about that.

Mr. Turkus: It certainly does not affect credibility if a man goes to a race track.

3444 The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I argue this proposition in the absence of the jury?

The Court: No, you may not. Make your question specific so that the Court may see whether it has anything to do with the case.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you ever see the defendant Louis Capone at any race track in or about Long Island or Westchester? A. What do you mean—a lot of times.

Q. In Jamaica, Belmont, anywhere? A. I don't understand what you mean.

Mr. Rosenthal: Being told by your Honor I must ask my questions specifically, after this man has denied he has ever been to a race track—

The Witness: (interrupting) I have been to race track lots of times, with him.

The Court: Now you have your answer. He says he met Capone many times 3446 at the race track.

The Witness: I went with him, too.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. What race tracks did you go with Capone to? A. Jamaica, Belmont, those two tracks.

Q. In 1936? A. I don't recall what year it was.

Q. In 1937? A. It might have been 1937.

Q. Might it have been 1938? A. Might have been.

3447

Mr. Turkus: I object to speculation about visiting race tracks. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing. After two and a half days of cross-examination I persist in my objection.

The Court: It is of no consequence. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. And I also except to the statement of two and a half days. He had this man on direct for a day. I have not had him on the stand for three hours, and I am entitled to a cross-examination as long as his direct, if not more.

Mr. Turkus: Is that statement for the record that he is making?

The Court: Please let it go.

Q. Did you know that Capone owned a restaurant? A. What do you mean by restaurant, sir?

Q. Do you know what the meaning of the word "restaurant" is? A. I understand what you 3449 mean, but if you explain it to me better I will tell you, sir. I know what you mean, very good.

Q. Then answer it. A. A cabaret. He had a piece of it, a partner of the mob.

Q. (The Court) Which one? A. The Rendezvous, on Ralph and Sutter.

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3450

Q. Where was this cabaret? A. Ralph and Sutter.

Q. What was the name? A. Rendezvous.

Q. When was this? A. I don't recall the year.

Q. Do you know whether Capone owned a baker shop at any time? A. I cannot recall, sir.

Q. Do you know he had a restaurant on Stone Avenue—yes or no? A. I cannot recall, sir.

Q. Were you ever in a restaurant that had the name "Capone" on it, at Stone Avenue, at No. 220?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Were you, at any time? A. I cannot recall.
Q. You cannot recall whether you were in a restaurant at 220 Stone Avenue?

Mr. Turkus: I object, that is just what he said.

3452

Q. Is that your answer?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as argumentative.
The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you were first arrested were you confronted with Reles? A. No, sir.
Q. At any time before you made the statement to Captain Bals and Mr. O'Dwyer, or Judge O'Dwyer, were you confronted with Reles?

3453

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He said no.
The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. What is your answer? A. No, sir.
Q. Did you immediately upon your arrest, or your giving yourself up, talk about the Rosen murder, immediately upon your giving yourself up?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. This was discussed yesterday.

Mr. Rosenthal: Not by me at any time.

The Court: It is repetitious, but, technically speaking, you are entitled to an answer the same as Judge Talley.

Mr. Rosenthal: Judge Talley did not ask about it. The District Attorney rehearsed it—it was brought out on examination by Mr. Turkus.

The Court: If it is on the record, it is there. Let us have it again, though.

3455 Q. May we have an answer to the question? A. What did you say?

By the Court:

Q. Did you talk right away about the Rosen case? A. Yes, sir, right away.

Mr. Rosenthal: If you will pardon me for a moment, Judge, while I look over these papers.

The Court: Can't you let your associate turn over those numerous papers while you proceed on something else?

3456

Mr. Rosenthal: All right.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Is it not a fact that in this trial, before I asked you today, in the trial in the mountains, you said you did not know what the word "immunity" meant?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

A. You had better look good, sir, look good, look in your book good.

Q. Are you now finished? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When after September 13, 1936, did you next see Louis Capone, how long after? A. About a couple of weeks, sir.

Q. I want to get this straight, now, so that after you say the car left in which you and Ferraco were, you did not see Capone again for a couple of weeks, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long have you lived in Brownsville? 3458

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Do you know the Brownsville neighborhood thoroughly? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you lived there practically all of your life?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked anything on that, sir. 3459

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Prior to 1936, did you know Blake Avenue, in the Brownsville section? A. I passed it, yes, sir.

Q. Had you traveled through it thousands of times before 1936?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

3460 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is in connection with his statement as to Capone having told him about a particular route. I want to show familiarity on his own part for years before with those particular streets.

Q. Well, I will put it in a different form. Prior to 1936, had you driven through Blake Avenue on innumerable occasions?

3461

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant; further, it is repetitious and it does not go to the point urged.

Q. (The Court) Were you thoroughly familiar with Blake Avenue and have you been on it many times? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you thoroughly familiar with Pennsylvania Avenue? A. I passed it, yes, sir; I passed around there. That is East New York. You are talking about Brownsville. That is East 3462 New York. You are talking about Brownsville, sir.

Q. Are you through? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you thoroughly familiar with Van Sinderen Avenue?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant; it does not go to the point urged.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I passed it, sir, yes, sir.

Q. Had you driven through Van Sinderen Avenue on innumerable occasions prior to 1936?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: I don't see what bearing it has, because there is no legitimate deduction that the alleged purpose of the rehearsal as to the route was to familiarize him with Brownsville or take a particular course at a certain time.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the court's statement and say that is for the jury to determine based upon this man's knowledge of a particular locality, it was necessary to go over it seven or eight times, streets that he knew by heart. 3464

The Court: You are not talking to the court, you are talking to the gallery and to the jury. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: If you were talking to the court, you would be respectful in your manner.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except. 3465

The Court: You are not looking at the Judge, you are looking at the jury, so as to create a feigned attitude in relation to the court, which the court disapproves.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except. I am looking directly at your Honor.

The Court: Now, please proceed with your examination.

Mr. Rosenthal: I take exception to your Honor's remarks.

3466 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. You are thoroughly familiar for years with each one of the streets which you say you went over with Louis Capone in 1936? A. What do you mean, familiar?

The Court: Is there an objection?
Mr. Turkus: I object.
The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3467 Q. I am going to show you a paper and ask you whether that correctly describes the route which you were told by Louis Capone to take, according to your statement.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.
The Court: Let me see it.
(Paper handed to court.)
The Court: This is a chart. I don't know whether it is correct or not.
Mr. Rosenthal: I am asking the witness if he knows.
The Court: The record sets the route.
3468 All this requires is a check-up against the route.
Mr. Turkus: I have something much better than that. There will not be any question about it. If you have any, I will give it to you now.
The Court: The reason I am going to sustain it is that while it states the route, it also contains something else which is very nice from the viewpoint of the defense but which the court considers improper, and if seen by the jury might create confusion.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that it be marked for identification, and respectfully except to your Honor's remark.

(Received and marked Defendants' Exhibit N, for identification.)

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask for a ruling on the question as to whether the witness on the stand can see this and say whether it correctly or does not correctly depicts the route. I will ask the question. 3470

The Court: You will not ask the question. The court has ruled, it is on the record. The stenographer will read the ruling of the court.

(Stenographer reads.)

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to your Honor's ruling. May it appear on the record the witness did not see the paper at all?

Q. When was it you first met Strauss? 3471

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Finish the question.

Q. (Continuing) Before the 13th of September, at which time you say you had a talk with him?

Mr Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled. I think you went over that.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not even touched anything regarding this. This is between

3472 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Friday and Sunday. I have not even asked a question on it.

Mr. Turkus: That is true; there was nothing touched on it in the cross-examination about the killing, that is true.

The Court: You are right, that was Judge Talley.

The Court: Is it your intention, Mr. Rosenthal, to go over that?

Mr. Rosenthal: It is my intention to 3473 go over any part of that that in anywise allegedly affects my client, whether Judge Talley, Mr. Turkus, or any other attorney in this case, goes over it in behalf of his own defendant.

The Court: You are not adopting any part of Judge Talley's cross-examination as your own?

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't say that. Any part of his examination which may in anywise affect my client and has any bearing on it, I will not even dwell upon to any 3474 extent, or I may not even touch.

The Court: This was all gone over by Judge Talley. What this court means is, you do not accept the answers of the witness. All right, go ahead.

Mr. Rosenthal: I intend to show there was a difference in his answers to Judge Talley as compared to Mr. Turkus in this trial, and there also may be a difference when I question him. That is what I am cross-examining him for.

The Court: I know what you are cross-examining for. I do not have to be told.

Mr. Rosenthal: I say that with all respect. That was the reason and necessity for repetition.

The Court: There is too much talk to the gallery and not to the court.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to that. All my remarks are addressed to you, and you alone, and for no other purpose.

The Court: A great many are for other purposes.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I proceed? 3476

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw the question and start over again.

Q. When was it you say you met Strauss prior to the 13th of September in respect to the Rosen matter?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. This witness is not testifying according to dates.

The Court: The 13th of September was Sunday, the day of the alleged killing. 3477
Do you mean in relation to this particular killing?

Mr. Rosenthal: I do not know of any other killing. Yes, I directed his attention to Mr. Rosen.

The Court: He knew Strauss for years, it is claimed. Do you want him to tell you each and every time he met Strauss?

Mr. Rosenthal: I mentioned the Rosen killing in my question.

3478

The Court: That is what I am asking you.

By the Court:

Q. When did you first see Strauss in relation to the Rosen killing? A. After I came back from the route with Louis Capone.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3479

Q. Were you waiting for a party on Friday to come along while you were seated in your automobile? A. No, sir, I was in the Coffee Pot first. I left word there that I would be sitting in the car.

Q. I just asked you whether you were waiting in your automobile for somebody to come along on Friday, and you said, "No, sir." A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, who was it that you were waiting for to come along? A. Mike Sycoff, who works for Louis Capone and Harry Strauss, a shylock.

3480

Mr. Rosenthal: May I ask it be stricken, all after "Mike Sycoff"?

The Court: Strike that part out.

Q. How long had you been waiting for Mike Sycoff? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. What time of the day were you waiting for Mike Sycoff? A. Must have been 12 o'clock or 12:30, something like that. I did not have any watch; I did not time it.

Q. When you were under direct examination by Mr. Turkus you were asked the time, but you did not tell him you did not have any watch, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Turkus: I did not ask him the time, the way you did. I withdraw that. I apologize to the Court. I did not mean to wrangle.

The Court: The objection is sustained. 3482

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. About what time, to the best of your recollection, was it that you were waiting in your automobile for Mike Sycoff to come along?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, he has stated that.

By the Court:

Q. Was it on Friday morning? A. About 12:45 in the afternoon. 3483

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. How long had you been wating before you saw Strauss? A. About 15 minutes, sir.

Q. Were you in the car when you first saw Strauss? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was this an accidental meeting between you and Strauss?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

3484 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. What do you mean?

By the Court:

Q. Was it an appointment or did he just happen to come along? A. Just happened to come along, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3485

Q. When he came along where was your car parked? A. On Sackman and Livonia; if you give me a picture I will show you where.

Mr. Rosenthal: Never mind, Mr. Turkus, if I want the information I will ask for it.

Q. How near the Coffee Pot was it you were parked with this car? A. Across the street, on Sackman Street, sir, away from the movies; the movies on the corner of Sackman and Livonia, away from that, a little bit back. Show me the picture and I will show you it good.

3486

Mr. Turkus: May the record show at the time Mr. Rosenthal stated he did not want my assistance, that if he wanted anything he would ask for it, I took hold of People's exhibits in the case and had them in my hand?

Mr. Rosenthal: You started to hand them back toward me, but I told you when I needed your assistance I would ask you for them.

Mr. Turkus: That is true.

Q. What type of car were you in? A. My own car, a Buick.

Q. What type of car? You understand the question. A. A Buick.

Q. Was it a closed Buick? A. A four-door Buick.

Q. A sedan? A. What do you mean by "sedan"? A sedan, yes, sir. 3488

Q. You have stolen 75 automobiles, haven't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained. This is just a waste of time.

Mr. Rosenthal: When the man asked me what I meant by a sedan—

The Court: This is a waste of time. You are only quarreling with the witness, all calculated to lose the attention of the jury, and the Court wants the jury to pay strict attention to the case. 3489

Mr. Rosenthal: There is no such calculation on my part.

The Court: That is the way it works out. If you keep to the point you will hold interest.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Were you seated behind the wheel of the car? A. Yes.

Q. Was the motor running? A. No, sir.

Q. You had been parked there for about 15 minutes waiting, when Strauss came along?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

3490 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. (The Court) Do you know how long it was before he came? A. About 15 minutes.

The Court: It is immaterial anyway.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did Strauss then come over to your car? A. Yes sir.

Q. Get into your car? A. Yes, sir.

3491 Q. And you sat down, having a general conversation, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, how long had you been talking before anybody else came along? A. 15 minutes, 20 minutes, 25 minutes, something like that.

By the Court:

Q. Did you time it? A. No, sir, I had no watch.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to your Honor interrupting my cross-ex-3492 amination.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal, sensibly, in 1936 if you sat in an automobile talking to somebody about nothing in particular, would you at this late day be able to tell how many minutes you sat there?

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor wish me to answer that?

The Court: I am just calling your attention to it.

Mr. Rosenthal: My credibility is not at stake; his is.

The Court: It is not a question of credibility; it is a question of whether this man has a super-brain, beyond yours or mine or anybody else's.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is for the jury to determine, whether he has or whether he is making believe he has, or not.

The Court: Keep to the point.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Who came along? A. Louis Capone, Mendy Weiss, and Farvel Cohen. 3494

Q. Before they came along nothing was said by Strauss to you regarding getting a drop, was there? A. No, sir.

Q. Now, when they came along who was it that approached the car? A. What do you mean, when they came along? I don't understand what you mean. When they came back?

Q. I am up to the point where you say three men came along. A. Yes, sir.

Q. As you are sitting in the car with Strauss. A. Yes sir. 3495

Q. Now, then, did Strauss call out of the car to these men or did these men walk directly over to the car without being accosted by anybody? A. They walked over to the car, and Pep, they called him, "Come on outside." Before he went outside he said to me, "Hang around, don't go away."

Q. So, without Strauss calling them, they came over to the car where you and Strauss were seated, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He just said it.

3496 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. (The Court) Do you recall whether one of them called him out of the car? A. They all called over to the car together.

Q. Then they left the car, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Strauss, while he was waiting in the car with you, say anything about having an appointment with these three men? A. No, sir.

Q. After they left the car, how long were they gone before they returned? A. Might have been 3497 three-quarters of an hour, sir.

Q. During that time did Sycoff come along? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Sycoff ever come along that day while you were waiting for them? A. No, sir.

Q. Had you made an appointment with Sycoff to meet you that day? A. No, sir.

Q. When they returned, in about three-quarters of an hour, who was the first one that spoke to you? A. Harry Strauss, sir.

Q. When he spoke to you the three other men were standing right there? A. Together, sir.

3498 Q. You had previously gone away on trips with Strauss, had you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked him about that. I want to show association between him and Strauss, if any.

The Court: That has been shown. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. When Strauss came back what was it he said to you in the presence of these men? A. He said to me, "Steal a car and get a drop to put the car." Then he said to me if I can get a drop. I said, "Yes."

Q. Have you read over the minutes of your testimony since you have been on the stand? A. No, sir.

Q. Will you just repeat what he said to you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit I am entitled to that. I take exception. 3500

Q. Didn't he only tell you at that time merely to get a drop, and saying nothing about stealing a car?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. This witness just answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Is it not a fact he merely told you to get a drop and said nothing about stealing a car?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. 3501

The Court: The Court has ruled on that. The last question should not have been put.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to to the Court's ruling.

Q. Weren't you told to steal a car on the following day? A. No, sir.

Q. After he told you to steal a car and get the drop, and then he changed it and said, "Can you get a drop?" Is that it?

3502 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did they leave you? A. What do you mean?

Q. Did the people leave you and you stay alone then? A. They told me to come back at Sackman and Livonia at four o'clock on Saturday.

Q. Is that all that was said? A. That is all 3503 that was said.

Q. That was all said by Strauss, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir, they were together, sir.

Q. Strauss was the only one that was doing the talking, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they then leave? A. Yes, sir.

Q. All of them together? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did they walk away? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you remained there, waiting, with your car? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you leave with your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you left with your car, where was it you went to? A. Lincoln and Ralph, to get a 3504 drop.

Q. Were you familiar with the locality, Lincoln and Ralph? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know the owner of the place where you went to get the drop? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you go to get this drop without being directed in what vicinity you were to get the drop? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you told by anybody where you were to get the drop? A. No, sir.

Q. Well then, you went to this particular vicinity without instructions as to where you were to get a drop? A. I went cruising until I came to that spot.

Q. Cruising? A. Yes, sir, looking around for a place.

Q. But you cruised around for this place without any direction from anybody as to where the drop you were after was to be located?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious and answered twice.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 3506

Q. How many times had you been to the locality where this drop was located? A. What do you mean? I don't understand what you mean.

Q. I will put it a little more plainly. How many times had you been in this neighborhood or block where you say this drop was located? A. Jesus, I passed around there lots of times.

Q. Were you very familiar with that particular locality?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He says he went over it many times. 3507

The Court: Sustained. It makes no difference. You do not have to be familiar with a locality to get a drop.

Mr. Rosenthal: These are all matters brought out on direct.

The Court: It is all irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: They were brought out on direct.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant, a waste of time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3508

Q. Do you know the name of the person from whom you rented the drop? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it a man or a woman? A. A woman, sir.

Q. Did you see the woman in the District Attorney's office? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you were asked by Mr. Turkus, didn't you say you saw a man, the owner, in the District Attorney's office? A. No, sir.

Q. It was a woman you saw? A. Yes, sir.

3509

Q. When was the last time you saw this woman in the District Attorney's office? A. Four or five months ago, I think.

Q. Did you go over the route or place where the drop is located since you gave yourself up? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you go over the place, and with whom, where the drop was located? A. At first I went with Captain Bals.

Q. How long after you gave yourself up, about, if you remember? A. About three or four weeks, I think.

Q. About three or four weeks?

3510

The Court: He said, "I think."

Q. Did you go over more than once the place where it is located? A. Yes, sir, with District Attorney Turkus, Mr. Klein, and plenty of detectives.

Q. How many times did you go over there? A. I went once, then once taking pictures, pointing out the spot.

Q. How many times did you go up there? A. About three times all told, with Captain Bals, maybe four times.

Q. You led them to the place where the drop was located? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long before you surrendered yourself was it you had last seen the drop? A. What do you mean, how long?

Q. Had you ever seen it after September 13, 1936, had you ever gone there again? A. No, sir, only when I went with them, sir.

Q. Up until the time you gave yourself up and went with them, had you ever gone to this place since September, 1936? 3512

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He just answered it.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. At what time was it, approximately, that you got the drop? A. I would say close to three o'clock.

Q. Then where did you go? A. I went looking for Muggsy—oh, I went to get a lock first by the locksmith; then I went looking for Muggsy—Muggsy Cohen.

Q. What time was it you went looking for Muggsy? A. After I got done getting the lock. 3513

Q. Three o'clock? A. I got done about three o'clock.

Q. Four o'clock?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He has just answered.

Q. (The Court) Did you time yourself by a watch or a clock? A. No, sir, I didn't have no watch.

3514 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the court's question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Approximately at what time was it you then went to get Muggsy? A. I found him at eight o'clock at night.

Q. Did you state in answer to—

Q. (The Court) Did you take any pains to jog your memory all these years with the time of 3515 day that each one of these events happened?

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have an exception to your Honor's question?

The Witness: I could never forget.

By the Court:

Q. Did you pay any attention to the particular time? A. No, sir, I did not have no watch. I did not have no diary.

Q. Did you keep any record of the hours or 3516 minutes? A. I did not have a diary.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the court's questions, interrupting my cross-examination.

The Court: I am not interrupting. You have been turning pages and asking no questions for some time.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You just testified when Mr. Turkus asked you the question and when Judge Talley asked you the question first, that you met Muggsy at two o'clock. Did you say that in this very trial?

Mr. Turkus: I object That is not the testimony.

The Court: The previous testimony speaks for itself.. Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. What did you do between the time you say you got the drop and you went looking for Muggsy—just look for him some place? A. I looked for him some time, and I hung around Amboy and Sutter, that is where he comes around. 3518

Q. You hung around there for five hours? A. Wait a minute—no, I cruised around maybe for two hours. For two hours I was looking for him, sir.

Q. Which is it, you hung around Amboy and Sutter, or you cruised around for a couple of hours looking for him first?

3519

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained. He has answered it.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. How long did you hang around the corner of Amboy and Sutter waiting for Muggsy Cohen? A. About three hours.

Q. Then he finally came along, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

3520

Q. Now, you took him or wanted to take him along because you knew there was going to be a murder, isn't that right, you wanted him to help you? A. No, sir; if I knew there was going to be a murder, I would not let him take out the radio, I would not have made up a key, and I would not have gotten a two door car.

Q. If you knew there was going to be a murder, you would not have made any key? A. No, sir.

3521

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He has answered.

(By direction of the court, the last answer of the witness was read.)

Q. Why, you were told when there was going to be a murder? A. Saturday, when I came back with Louis Capone from the route, Saturday at four. I met Louis Capone at four o'clock. He took me over the route and he told me there was going to be a murder.

Q. You remember that time specifically? A. I cannot forget it. I never will forget it, sir.

3522

Q. Are you finished?

Mr. Rosenthal: I move to strike that out, his exclamation. I will withdraw it.

Q. You did forget, Mr. Bernstein, that when you were eighteen of age you went out to kill a man in a stick-up if he resisted, you with two other professional stick-up men, that you forgot until I directed your attention to it on this trial?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as repetition.

The Court: Objection sustained. This is simply a quarrel.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You had always stolen cars from garages, hadn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained. 3524

Mr. Rosenthal: I never touched on any of this examination, sir.

The Court: The record accommodates you with that information, unless you want to prove that he did not.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit, if I can get a ruling from the court—

The Court: If you want testimony that he did not steal a great many, I will let you proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is not the purpose of my question at all.

The Court: Then the Court sustains 3525
the objection.

Q. Of the 75 cars which you admit having stolen, with the exception of this one, you stole alone, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. (The Court) Were you always alone? A. Always alone, except this car.

3526 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. And the 75 cars, with the exception of this one that you stole, were stolen from garages and not from the street, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, already gone over; he has been over two days on cross-examination as to the theft of cars, the make of cars, where they were stolen from.

The Court: Please do not argue. The 3527 objection is sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you steal any other car other than this one in question, from the street?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Always in garages, sir.

Q. Now, when you met Muggsy that night at eight o'clock you asked him to do you a favor, to come along with you, didn't you? A. Told 3528 him to get the hot box and meet me at 12 or 1 o'clock at night, do me that favor, yes, yes, if that is what you mean.

Q. (The Court) By "hot box" do you mean jumper? A. Yes, sir, a jumper to start the car.

Q. In the 74 other cars, approximately, that you had stolen, no jump box was ever used? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious; he said there was—

The Court: No argument.

Q. Were you asked these questions at page 670:

"Q. What did you do? A. Where?

"Q. Where you went at three o'clock in the afternoon. A. I seen Muggsy Cohen.

"Q. Who is Muggsy Cohen? A. A car thief and radio—"

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor read the next question and you will see that is the fourth time they were asked?

3530

Mr. Rosenthal: Again that is improper for the District Attorney to state. If there is anything about the testimony that he wants to read he has a right after I get finished to read such part as he desires.

Mr. Turkus: I know the law. I am making objection it is repetitious.

The Court: Sustained as incompetent for the simple reason it is already in the record and before the jury. But it is noted that from a strict construction of the text it is not inconsistent with what he has testified to in answer to you. He does not say he saw Muggsy Cohen at that hour.

3531

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the Court's interpretation of the testimony instead of leaving it to the jury to determine.

The Court: You may argue that to the jury.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am making a legal objection.

The Court: At the right time. The Court has ruled. Proceed.

3532 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

If we can hold this examination down to relevant matters and avoid incompetent matters, it is possible another witness may be able to testify before we recess this afternoon. Now please proceed with that argument.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not going to argue, but I am going to—

The Court: This is simply a waste of time. The Court is through. Now proceed with the witness.

3533

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit I have a right to put an exception on the record.

The Court: I know your rights, and I know the Court's rights very well, and I am quite confident the Court is right. Proceed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's statement, since this man has not been under my cross-examination—

The Court: (interrupting) No speeches. You have your exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, I except to the Court's statement.

3534

Q. When was it you went with Muggsy to get the car? A. About 12 or 1 o'clock.

Q. Did you just cruise around until you found a car? A. What do you mean, sir? We were looking for a car, yes, sir.

Q. You used the word "cruise" didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you cruise around looking for a car?

Mr. Tarkus: Objected to as repetitious. He has just answered.

3535

Mr. Rosenthal: He asked me what I meant. I want a direct answer from this man as to what I do mean and his understanding of what I mean.

The Court: This is splitting hairs on verbiage. Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Had you ever been in the particular locality where you stole this car before?

3536

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When for the next time after you stole this car was it that you went back to that particular location with anybody to show them where the car had been stolen from?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

3537

By the Court:

Q. When did you take Captain Bals or anybody else to Lefferts Avenue, do you remember how long after? A. Three weeks after I told them everything I done, then I went with Turkus, Mr. Klein, and plenty of detectives. I showed them everything. That is how they got those pictures.

Q. Did you keep a diary of any of those times? A. No, sir.

3538 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you, from the day you stole the car until the day you returned after delivering yourself up, ever go back to that particular spot where that car had been stolen from?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Sustained as irrelevant.

3539 Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. That is all on the question of this man's credibility, on the testimony given on direct.

The Court: The court knows your purpose without any explanation.

Q. You had no difficulty recognizing the exact spot that you stole this car from when you went back four or more years afterwards with Captain Bals, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as argumentative.

3540 The Court: Objection overruled.

A. There was an empty lot there.

Q. (The Court) Did you have any difficulty in finding or recognizing it? A. No, sir.

Q. What time was the car stolen? A. About one o'clock.

Q. Was it stolen at two o'clock? A. Maybe two o'clock I didn't have a watch; I didn't keep this in any books, whatever I done.

Q. Are you finished?

3541

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question, "Are you finished?", when it is apparent the witness said nothing for seconds.

The Court: Proceed with the next question.

Q. Why was it you wanted Muggsy Cohen with you on this particular theft when you stole seventy-five cars alone, why did you want him to do you a favor on this particular car?

3542

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is a double question.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will withdraw it.

Q. Why did you take Muggsy Cohen? A. Because it didn't make anything to me; he was a radio crook, just take the car and take the radio out; it didn't mean anything to me after he takes the radio out.

By the Court:

Q. Then the impression was, if the car was found, it was stolen for the purpose of stripping? A. Yes, sir. 3543

Q. And not for the purpose of committing any other crime? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You understood the Judge's question? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What were you trying to conceal, if the car was found, so as to make it look as if it was only for stripping and not for any other purpose?

3544 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By the Court:

Q. (Interrupting) Just answer the next question yes or no— Did you have a suspicion as to what Strauss wanted the car for?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

The Court: The objection is sustained. I thought you wanted that evidence.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't want words put in the witness' mouth. I wanted him 3545 to tell me, not have your Honor ask him a question which would call for yes or no— I want him to tell the jury the reason. I don't want the reason furnished.

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

The Court: It does not penetrate the Court's skin. Go ahead.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have no desire to penetrate your skin any more than you have to penetrate mine. We are both practicing law after this case is over, you on the Bench, and me at the Bar, I hope.

3546 The Court: Please proceed with the trial.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You understood the court's original question to you as to the fact that the reason why you wanted Buggsy Cohen was that if the car was found with the radio out, it would look as though the car was merely taken to be stripped and not for any other purpose? You understood that when you answered the court's question?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Did you understand that? A. What is that again?

(Question repeated by reporter.)
The Witness: No, sir.

Q. You did not understand the court's question? A. No, sir.
Q. Do you understand what I am asking you now? A. Yes, sir. 3548
Q. I am asking you whether you understood the court's question that the court asked you, when you answered the court in the affirmative, "Yes", regarding— A. Did you understand—
Q. I can. A. Yes.

Mr. Turkus: I object, and ask that that be stricken out. When it is obvious, I will register an objection. You cannot by any other way get an answer in over an impending objection. That is why I stood 3549 up.

The Court: It is also obvious that by the time all this confusion is over the witness will not have the least idea what he is expected to answer.

Q. What I asked you when you just answered was this— Do you remember that Judge Taylor asked you a question about taking Muggsy Cohen along?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

3550 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. Yes.

Q. You remember in that question he asked you—the Judge—whether or not the real purpose of taking Muggsy Cohen along and taking the radio out of the car was so that when the car would be found it would appear that the car had merely been stolen for stripping and for nothing else. I think I have substantially stated it.

3551

The Court: That is correct.

By the Court:

Q. Was that the reason? A. I did not know there was to be a murder or I would never have him take out the radio of the car.

Mr. Turkus: He did not understand your Honor's question. That is clear.

The Court: You may, if you wish, make inquiry as to why he took Muggsy Cohen.

3552

Mr. Rosenthal: May I pursue once more whether he definitely says now he did not understand what your Honor meant.

The Court: That is clear. Put the next question.

Q. Why, then, did you ask Muggsy Cohen at eight o'clock in the evening of Friday to do you a favor and go along with you at twelve o'clock and help you steal the car—why was it you asked Muggsy Cohen to do this when you stole every other car you ever stole in your life alone? Tell the jury why it was. A. I thought it was to be a slamming job. I didn't figure it was to be murder.

By the Court:

Q. For what? A. To break somebody's head.
Q. How do you spell that—s-c-h-l-a-m? A. I really cannot tell you.
Q. What is the Yiddish meaning of schlam?

3554

Mr. Turkus: I think it is a cut, a slam.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will take your definition.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. What is it slam? A. Yes, sir.
Q. Not slumming? A. No, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object; that is intended to be semi-comic, I take it.

The Court: Objection sustained.

3555

Q. So you say when Muggsy Cohen—when you took Muggsy Cohen along, you felt that somebody's head was going to be broken, is that it?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is very important in view of the previous statement in respect to this particular thing.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: While we are at it, may the record also indicate, in view of Mr. Resen-

3556 thal's objection to where the witness was looking, that half the time Mr. Rosenthal himself looks in the direction of the jury when he questions the witness.

Mr. Rosenthal: I followed Mr. Turkus' habit since this case started, and Mr. Klein's also. That is all they have been doing since this case started.

Mr. Turkus: It might be up to him to take a look at fourteen good looking men.

3557 Mr. Rosenthal: Of course, this is an obvious attempt to curry favor.

The Court: I think it would curry favor with the jury if we would get down to the point.

Mr. Rosenthal: I know that, but I will not let Mr. Turkus get away with it.

The Court: Because they want to get through and get back to their work. The case should be tried with reasonable expedition.

3558 Q. Is it definite that the reason why you wanted Muggsy to steal this car was that you did think a crime was going to be committed with that car?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He has explained it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. If you thought, as you just testified now, that somebody was going to be beaten up with this car, then why did you allow Muggsy to take the radio out?

Mr. Turkus: I object. We can go on ad infinitum, why, why, why.

Mr. Rosenthal: Again we have another speech. This is taking more time than all of my examination.

Mr. Turkus: That is as true as anything else you say.

Q. Why did you let Muggsy take the radio if you thought a crime was going to be committed? A. It was not a murder, sir.

Q. Murder is more serious? A. Yes, sir. 3560

Q. This definition of crime—what do you mean by schlam, beating with the fists, beating with a blackjack, beating with the hands, beating with a blackjack over the head, or with a gun, or with a pipe; what does it mean? A. A pipe.

Q. A lead pipe? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You mean—I want to get a definition of this—that people take a lead pipe and hit the other man over the head with the lead pipe?

The Court: That is a known custom.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is not known by me. 3561
This is the first time I ever heard the name in my life.

Mr. Turkus: I congratulate you, Mr. Rosenthal.

Mr. Rosenthal: May we have again on the record the Chesterfieldian bow of Mr. Turkus. We have the hands—

The Court: Will you please proceed with the trial of the case?

Mr. Rosenthal: I think I have a right when my integrity is impugned.

The Court: The man has told you in answer to your question that he meant slugging with a lead pipe. Now, please proceed with your next question. Let all this nonsense stop. By nonsense, I mean constant interruption by both counsel to the orderly conduct of this cross-examination along competent and relevant lines.

3562 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. After you stole this car with Muggsy Cohen, who drove the car? A. Muggsy Cohen, sir.

3563

Q. Did you at that time have your own car with you? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Did he wear gloves? A. Yes, sir, so as not to get any fingerprints.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you carry gloves in your car for that purpose?

3564

The Court: He said he got them from his own before he went on the job. He testified he got the gloves before he went to take the plates.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is the automobile.

Mr. Turkus: Further, there was not a single fingerprint.

By the Court:

Q. Did Muggsy use gloves? A. Yes, sir, he had his own gloves.

Q. He is an old time thief? A. Yes, sir, a radio thief and a car thief.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. And you used the gloves? A. Yes, sir.
Q. While the car was being stolen? A. Yes, sir, I held the flashlight, sir—oh, no, no, sir—wait a minute—no, sir.
Q. Do you just recall that you did not have anything to do with stealing the car at all? A. 3566
In the garage I had the gloves.
Q. We will come to the garage afterwards. The Judge asked you, Judge Taylor, whether you wore gloves, and you said, "Yes", and I asked you whether you wore gloves when you were stealing the car, and you said, "Yes," didn't you?

Mr Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Sustained. He corrected that.

Q. When was it you put the gloves on? A. 3567
When we pulled the car from the garage—when the car was in the garage we were taking out the radio and I had to hold the flashlight.
Q. That was your flashlight? A. Yes, sir.
Q. You carried that flashlight in the car with you? A. It was in my own car. I took it out of the car.
Q. And brought it there, wearing gloves, while he was taking the radio out, is that right? A. Yes sir, I was holding the flashlight when he took out the radio.
Q. You did not touch this car all that time?

A. What do you mean, I had to touch the car with the flashlight; I had to touch the door, to hold the door open, and give him light to take the radio out underneath.

Q. Up until the time the car had gotten to the garage you had not touched it, had you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant. He has told us what he did.

3569 Mr. Rosenthal: There goes another speech.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When the radio was taken out of the car, what did you do? A. Took Muggsy in my own car.

Q. Where did you drop him off at? A. Amboy and Sutter.

Q. In the street, with the radio? A. He went into some house.

Q. How long had you known Muggsy Cohen
3570 before that? A. Ten or twelve years.

Q. You had been very friendly, very close to him, hadn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. You even asked him if he went to Florida with him.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

The Court: Gentlemen of the jury, please remember the previous admonition and follow it in all details. The witness is first remanded.

Mr. Talley: May I speak to your Honor before you leave the Bench, privately, with the District Attorney?

The Court: I will let the jury go out now. Gentlemen, we will adjourn until one-thirty P. M.

The Court: Now, counsel may come up.

(Mr. Turkus, Mr. Klein and Mr. Talley confer with the Judge privately before the Bench.)

(The jury leaves the court room.) 3572

(Defendants remanded.)

(Recess until 1:30 P. M.)

Afternoon Session. Trial Resumed.

SOL BERNSTEIN, resumes the stand for further cross-examination:

By Mr. Rosenthal:

3573

Q. You say on Saturday, at four o'clock, you met the defendant Capone and Strauss, did you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where? A. Sackman and Livonia, sir.

Q. On the street? A. Coffee Pot, sir.

Q. In the Coffee Pot? A. Called me out, sir. We went out, sir, right outside.

Q. Which is it, they called you out or you went out?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is argumentative "Which is it?". The answer is clear.

The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Rosenthl: Exception.

Q. Did they come after you or were you there waiting for them? A. They were there, sir.

Q. And then you went into the Coffee Pot? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you all left? A. Went outside, sir.

Q. Did Harry Strauss say anything at all? A.
3575 He was there, sir.

Q. Did he say anything at all? A. No, sir.

Q. The only one that spoke was the defendant Capone, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just what did the defendant Capone say to you then at that time? A. I told him I got a two-door car and he started hollering at me.

Q. Did Strauss say anything at all? A. He was there, sir.

Q. Did he say anything? A. No, sir.

Q. What next was said? A. Louis Capone told me to take a ride with him, sir.

Q. What did he say, "Get in the car and take 3576 a ride"? A. I had my car, sir. He drove my car.

Q. Did you have the other car there, too? A. No, sir.

Q. At that time where was the other car? A. In the drop, sir.

Q. Had you driven up in your car? A. To the Coffee Pot, sir?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you drove to the Coffee Pot, were you alone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then when he told you, "Come on, take a ride", he got in and started to drive your car? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he drive it over streets that you were familiar with? A. At Bradford and Blake he started to show me the route, sir.

Q. I ask you did he drive it through streets that you were familiar with?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: He did not answer.

Mr. Turkus: He did. 3578

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer be stricken as not responsive.

The Court: He said before he was familiar with all of those streets.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not talking about the streets of the alleged route now. I am talking, from the Coffee Pot to where they drove.

The Court: From the Coffee Pot? Do you remember the route?

The Witness: Yes, sir; went straight down with Sackman Street, made a left turn until we came to Blake Avenue because you can't go through Vermont or Livonia because there is a trestle. The only way is Blake Avenue, the only entrance. Blake Avenue and Sutter Avenue, there is entrances there. 3579

Q. You were familiar with that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: It has not been answered.

3580 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Yes or no.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Was there any street in Brownsville you are not familiar with?

The Witness: I lived in Brownsville. I was born in Brownsville.

The Court: Were you familiar with all of the Brownsville Streets?

The Witness: Yes, sir, not East New York but I know how to get around, sir.

3581

Q. Are you familiar with the points of the compass, north, east, south and west? A. No, sir.

Q. From the Coffee Pot you drove through Sackman Street?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Where did you stop, if you stopped at all, after you left the Coffee Pot and got to Bradford 3582 and Blake? A. What do you mean, sir?

Q. Did the car stop any place? A. When we came to Bradford and Blake, he slowed up, sir.

Q. Did it come to a stop? A. No, sir.

Q. So that from the time that you started from the Coffee Pot, you did not stop until you returned back to Van Sinderen Avenue, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. I have not even questioned on that.

Q. Did you ever stop on the route from the time you left the Coffee Pot until you arrived at Van Sinderen Avenue and the railroad station? A. No, sir.

Q. When you slowed up at Bradford and Blake, was there any conversation between you and Capone? A. He says, "Now watch. This is the route you are going to take", sir.

Q. Is that all? A. When we came to the candy store, he told me, "This is where a guy is going to get killed." That is on Sutter Avenue and 3584
Bradford.

Q. We will come to the candy store in a minute. At Bradford and Blake, did you tell us all the conversation that you had?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is repetitious.

The Court: Is that all the conversation, do you recall?

The Witness: I don't recall. That's what he told me. I remember very good — can't forget it, sir.

3585

Q. So that as far as you remember, you have now related to me the entire conversation that was had at Bradford and Blake, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He has just said so.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. You continued going slowly then until you got to where the candy store was on Sutter Avenue, is that right? A. What do you mean, slowly?

Q. Did you go slowly? A. You got to make a left turn. You got to go slow.

Q. Did you go slowly? A. When you made a left turn, sure, you got to go slow. There is lights over there, sir. I think there was lights —I ain't sure—but when you make a left turn you got to go slow.

3387 The Court: Did you go slow?

The Witness: Yes.

Q. At that time were there lights on Sutter Avenue?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: Nothing to do with the case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except 3388 to that, your Honor.

Q. While you were passing the candy store, you just told us that Capone said something to you. Did he say anything else excepting what you have already stated in answer to the previous question just a couple of minutes ago? A. When we come to the store, that's all he said, sir.

Q. As you left the store,—the store was on Sutter Avenue between Bradford and Wyona; is that right? A. More to Bradford Street.

Q. Did you continue down Sutter Avenue as you left the store? A. Made a left turn on Sutter and Wyona.

Q. That is the first corner that you come to? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then how many blocks did you go on Wyona? A. I went one block, sir, into Wyona and Blake.

Q. That is Blake? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then how did you turn? A. I went straight ahead with Blake into Pennsylvania.

Q. You made a turn into Blake, did you? A. 3590
A right turn, yes, sir.

Q. And then when you turned into Blake you went on Vermont? A. Wait a minute—I said Pennsylvania, sir.

Q. How many blocks down from Wyona is Pennsylvania Avenue? A. That I did not count, sir.

Q. You know that between Wyona and Vermont are New Jersey and then Pennsylvania Avenue, don't you? A. I went the way he told me, sir. I didn't count.

3591

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand. It is responsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am asking for his knowledge now, sir.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Do you know that from Wyona Avenue to Pennsylvania Avenue there were two intervening streets, Vermont Street and New Jersey Avenue? A. Can't tell you that, sir. I done the way he told me, sir.

3392 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the latter part be stricken as not responsive.

The Court: No harm done. Strike it out.

Q. Were you familiar with Vermont Street at that time? A. I said I was not so familiar with East New York. Brownsville I said I was familiar.

Q. You turned where on Pennsylvania Avenue, what turn left or right? A. Left.

3393

Q. How many blocks did you go then? A. One block, sir, to Dumont, made a right turn on Dumont.

Q. And then you went straight down Dumont, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. For six blocks? A. I don't know how many blocks. I went to Snediker Avenue, sir.

Q. You knew Snediker Avenue— A. Yes, couldn't miss that because it was a one way street.

Q. Will you please wait until I finish the question? You knew where Snediker Avenue lay 3394 from Pennsylvania Avenue, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. Just answered it was a one way street.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is not an answer to my question.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection that it is answered.

The Court: Let it stand.

Q. Did you know where Snediker Avenue lay from Pennsylvania Avenue, going down on Dumont Street?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked it yet.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you got to Snediker Avenue, what did you do? A. Made a left turn.

Q. For how many blocks? A. One block. That is Livonia Avenue, sir. That is where the elevator is.

Q. And then what did you do? A. Made a right turn, sir. 3596

Q. For how many blocks? A. Just one block, sir.

Q. Then what did you do? A. Made a right turn and stopped, sir.

Q. Right off the corner? A. Right off the corner, yes, sir.

Q. All told, the entire distance that you traveled from the store to where you stopped at Van Sinderin Avenue was approximately how far, in mileage? A. I didn't check it, sir.

Q. Have you any idea? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you tell us how long it took, approxi- 3597 mately? A. I didn't have no watch, sir. I didn't clock it, sir.

Q. Did you go slowly over the route? A. What do you mean slowly? I came from the store and the turns, that's where I had to watch myself, sir, them turns—the only thing I had really to know, sir, them turns.

Q. As you were coming from the store, going to Van Sinderen, on this Saturday, did you slow up at each turn? A. Yes, sir. Louis Capone drove the car, sir. He drove my car all the time, sir.

Q. Did he drive slowly over the route?

3598 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir.

Q. Was anything said, after you left the candy store, up until the time that you arrived at the Van Sinderen Avenue station? A. What time is it?

Q. While you were driving along. A. He kept 3599 on talking. He said, "Watch", "Make sure", "Don't forget."

Q. This is on the first trip I am talking about now. A. I can't remember that. We went over it seven or eight times.

Q. Yes, you said that to Mr. Turkus. I am asking you on your first trip was anything said after you left the candy store up until the time that you arrived at Van Sinderen Avenue?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: You mean at the time he arrived?

3600 Mr. Turkus: On the first trip.

Mr. Rosenthal: On the first trip, between the time he left the candy store and up until the time he arrived.

Mr. Turkus: This will go on for seven or eight trips.

The Court: Inclusive of the time that he arrived?

Mr. Rosenthal: No, sir, I said up until the time he arrived.

The Court: You mean while on the way to the destination?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: He has answered that, your Honor.

The Court: He has answered it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I submit there is no answer to that question, but I will accept the Court's ruling on it. Does your Honor overrule or sustain the objection?

The Court: Oh, let him answer again.

A. When we came to Bradford and Blake, he says to me, "Watch."

3602

Q. I said, after you left the candy store—is that clear? A. Yes.

Q. And up until the time and just prior to the time that you stopped at Van Sinderen Avenue, on your first trip, was anything said by Louis Capone to you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question. It is misleading in its form because Capone was driving.

The Court: I know what it means.

Mr. Turkus: It is repetitious.

3603

The Court: It is a little bit of a net. I asked you, sir, if you meant inclusive of the time of stopping. You said no.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is right, sir.

The Court: And now you make it up to practically the same moment. That is confusing.

Mr. Rosenthal: I said up to and prior to the time that it stopped, is my question, sir—prior to the time it stopped and while en route from the candy store to Van Sinderen Avenue. I cannot make it any plainer than that.

Mr. Turkus: That is repetitious.

The Court: He has answered that. You can ask him, if you wish, what, if anything, was said when the car was stopped.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. There is no answer to the question, as I recall it. I take it then your Honor sustains the objection?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

3605 Q. After you had come to a stop at Van Sinderen Avenue, was there any talk between you and Capone? A. While riding in the car, he told me, "Watch."

The Court: No, did he say anything?

The Witness: He says, "This is the route you are going to take."

The Court: —when the car arrived at its destination?

The Witness: He said, "Here is where you dump the car."

3606 Q. Is that all he said? A. Then he went over the route again and showed me, to make sure.

Q. I first asked you is that all he said while you were at that point. Is that all he said? A. I didn't have a book and wrote down everything what he said to me, sir.

Q. Is that all you remember he said?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Now, then, you started on the same route again, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you get back to Bradford and Blake? What route did you take? A. Made a right—

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, may it please the Court, ' is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. Besides the question is misleading because so far it has been indicated Capone was driving. 3608

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: Again we have an interjection by the District Attorney which I object to.

The Court: It is one of the questions that this man might readily answer without noticing the joker, "What route did you take?"

The Witness: Louis Capone was driving the car all the time, sir. I was not driving. All the time he was driving my car. After he left Sackman and Livonia, he had my car all the time, sir. 3609

The Court: These rehearsals that were held, did you go back and forth the same route?

The Witness: Same route, sir.

The Court: Each time?

The Witness: Each time same route.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. You had not started on the first occasion from Van Sinderen, had you? A. What do you mean?

Q. You left from the Coffee Pot, didn't you? A. Wait a minute, wait a minute. I got him now, sir. I got him very clear now, very clear, very clear now.

The Court: When the Court speaks, everybody stop. The Court is not trying to appear superior but that is the Court's position it has to maintain.

(To witness) Some of these streets are 36.. one way streets. How did you go back, do you remember?

The Witness: Oh, we went about twice to Van Sinderen and Livonia. Then we turned in and then when it came to Snediker and Livonia he said to me, "You know where the spot is." You see we did not make a right turn all the time on Livonia.

The Court: Mr. Rosenthal wants to know whether, when you went back to resume the rehearsal from the point of starti , you went back over it each time 3612 by the same or other streets?

The Witness: Other streets until we got to Bradford and Blake and there is where we had to watch all the time, sir. I know what he means.

Q. Did you take a different route from Van Sinderen each of the seven times until you got to Bradford and Blake and then take the same route back to Van Sinderen? Is that what you mean? A. Look, sir, I just had to watch from Bradford and Blake.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that the answer be stricken as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

The Court: Did you pay attention and do you remember now how you went back each time?

The Witness: Back each time, I don't recall, but I know how I was supposed to drop that car off on Bradford and Blake. That's what I had to watch and make them turns.

3614

The Court: That you say you remember?

The Witness: Very good—can't forget that, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not Louis Capone owned his own car at that time?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling.

3615

Q. At or about that time, did you see Louis Capone drive in an automobile other than the one which you say you owned? A. What do you mean, sir? He had a car, sir. Yes, he had a car.

Q. Did you ever see him drive any other car? Yes or no. A. Yes, sir.

Q. In that year and at about that time? A. Yes, sir, he had a big car, sir.

Q. What was the make of the big car that you saw him drive? A. I don't recall, sir. He had a big car.

3616 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Was it a Chevrolet?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial. Once I have been sustained on that line of questioning.

The Court: Every time you object, I am going to continue to sustain it. Sustained.

3617

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. After you had gone over this route, as you claim, seven or eight times, then where did you go to? A. After that here? Went back to Sackman and Livonia, sir.

Q. And who was there when you got to Sackman and Livonia? A. Harry Strauss, sir.

Q. Did Harry Strauss, when you got back there, say anything at all to you? A. He come out. He was talking with Louis Capone, sir.

Q. Did he say anything to you? A. No, sir.

3618

Q. Did Capone say anything to you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Capone say at that time? A. He says, "Go and get plates from a place where it won't be noticeable" meaning a place in a garage where nobody would take out a car—in other words, that it be legitimate.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the meaning be stricken as not responsive. I asked for conversation, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it stand.

The Court: Let the conversation part stand. Strike out the rest.

Q. When Capone said that to you, did Strauss say anything at all? A. He was there, sir.

Q. Did he say anything, is my question? A. I don't recall, sir. I know what I was told, sir.

Q. Is that all the conversation that was had at that spot at that time? A. When I get the plates, put it back on the car and he said "bring the car back to Sackman and Livonia." I will 3620 show you a place on the picture. He says, "About ten to half past ten," sir. If you get the picture I will show you where.

Q. Are you finished?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. An interval of time has elapsed between the witness's answer and that sarcastic question. I ask it be stricken from the record.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. After Capone told you to steal the plates, did you leave Sackman and Livonia Avenue? A. 3621
I took the flashlight out of my car, the screw driver and the pair of pliers and the glove, sir, and Louis Capone had my car all the time, sir.

Q. Louis Capone had your car all the time; is that what you said? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By "all the time," do you mean all the time that night or all the time— A. Until after the murder, sir.

Q. All the time until after the murder, is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. But you had your car when you went out to steal the other car, didn't you?

3622 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That has already been answered. Repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you walk away from Sackman and Livonia? A. Yes.

Q. And did you walk around, looking for a place to steal plates? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you get a car to go around? A. No, sir.

3623 Q. How did you get to the place where you say you stole the plates? A. I waited until it gets dark and I took a cab to drop me off around East Flatbush section. I think you call that East Flatbush.

Q. You waited until it got dark? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where did you wait until it got dark? A. On Rockaway and Livonia, sir.

Q. And then took a cab that happened to be passing? A. No, sir, there is plenty of cabs on that corner, sir.

Q. Do you recall who drove you there? A. No, sir.

3624 Q. Then you got off and started to look around the neighborhood?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked him that, sir.

Mr. Turkus: It is repetitious.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does your Honor sustain the objection?

The Court: This is so trivial. Let him answer.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. All of this has been gone over in detail on direct examination. If it is trivial, your Honor, now, it was trivial then.

The Court: It is obvious there is no cooperation. It is in the interest of all concerned to be reasonably expeditious, not to deliberately stall the trial of the case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to that remark.

3626

The Court: Every time the Court opens its mouth, there is a leisurely, slow, measured movement of action on the part of counsel to involve the Court in argument. At any and every place, everything is done to prolong the trial. I know how to try a case.

Mr. Rosenthal: I certainly except to your Honor's remark, if it is addressed to me.

The Court: I ought to know how they should be tried, and I know what stalling is. Now proceed.

3627

Q. How did you know, in this particular garage, that the person who owned the car with the plates would not miss the plates the next morning? A. How did I know?

Q. Yes. A. I knew at that time nobody would take out a car, sir, because I was told to go into a private garage and take it.

Q. And did you at that time, when you stole the plates, know that the murder was going to be committed that night? Did you—yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you ever been in the particular neighborhood from which you stole these plates prior to the time that you stole them? A. I rode through, around the neighborhood, sir.

Q. When was the next time, after you stole them, that you went to this particular garage from which these plates were stolen? After you surrendered?

3629

Mr. Turkus: Obected to as incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except.

Q. What time, then, did you next see the defendant Capone? A. When I brought the car around.

Q. When was that? A. Ten, between half past ten, sir, on Sackman and Livonia Avenue.

Q. And who was there at that time? A. Louis Capone, Mendy Weiss, Farvel Cohen, Harry 3630 Strauss, Jimmy Ferraco.

Q. Did these men have a conversation in your presence at that time? A. What do you mean, conversation?

Q. Was there any talk in your presence by any of those men at that time? A. They came over to the car and Mendy Weiss started hollering at me why I got a two-door car, sir.

Q. Did he say anything else? A. He says, "What the hell is the matter with you? What the hell did you get a two-door car for for a job like this?"—something like that. I kept quiet, sir.

Q. Is that all that was said by any of the men at that time? A. He told me to take the car and drive it up Bradford and Blake near Sutter and meet him in the park.

Q. Who told you that? A. Mendy Weiss, sir.

Q. Had Capone left before you started to go away with the car? A. I didn't take notice, sir—wait a minute, sir—but I know I gave him back the screw-driver—wait a minute—

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask all but "I didn't take notice" be stricken— 3632

The Witness: Wait a minute.

Mr. Rosenthal: —as not responsive.

Mr. Turkus: I ask it stand and the witness be permitted to finish the rest of his answer.

The Court: Finish.

A. (continued) Louis Capone was there with my car. I gave him back the screw-driver, the flashlight, and the pair of pliers to put back in my car, and I held the gloves.

3633

By the Court:

Q. Did you see whether or not he did leave? A. I can't tell you. I went away first.

Q. Did he have your car then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He could have put them in the car without leaving the scene? A. I went away first, sir.

Q. You went and left him there? A. I went away first.

Mr. Rosenthal: I had a motion to strike out. May I have a ruling?

3634 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Denied.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Was that the time when Capone, Weiss, Cohen, Ferraco and Strauss were all there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you were two or three doors away from the address? A. Yes, sir. On the picture I can show you where I was around, sir.

3635 Mr. Rosenthal: I object and ask that it be stricken. There is no such testimony about an address about two or three doors away. His testimony is in regard to the coal store.

The Court: I beg pardon. In his direct examination he testified that at the appointed time he took the car to Sackman and Livonia and there were Cohen, Weiss, Ferraco, and Strauss, and he parked the car two or three doors away. They then inspected the car.

3636 By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. That is from a coal store? A. What do you mean, "from a coal store"? Yes, sir, the coal store was around there, but I did not have the car parked over there, sir.

Q. How far from the coal store was the car parked?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. We have gone over the location.

The Court: There has been enough of that. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. While you were standing there didn't somebody deliver a package of guns? A. Yes, sir; I think it was Joe Pilch (phonetic spelling).

Q. Is there any question in your mind that maybe it was not Joe Pilch? A. I was excited, but I am not sure, with Mendy Weiss hollering at me. I was excited. I think it was.

Q. I asked you whether or not you are sure it was Joe Pilch, or is there a question or doubt in your mind?

3638

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectully except.

The Court: Who gave the package to you?

The Witness: Harry Strauss, sir.

Q. Then you took the car over to the park, is that right? A. Did I tell you the park, sir? Bradford and Blake and Sutter, in the middle of the block.

Q. Was there a park there where you took it? 3639
A. Yes, sir.

Q. How far from the park did you park the car? A. Between Bradford and Blake and Sutter, in the center of the block.

Q. How near to the park were you? A. You got to show me the picture and I can tell you, sir.

Q. Have you any idea without a picture how near you parked to the entrance to the park? A. A half a block, sir.

Q. Now, have you fully described to the District Attorney from that point on everything that was done and said in your presence when you were questioned by the District Attorney, from the time that you arrived at the park until the following morning when you were in front of the store of Rosen with the motor running?

3640 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as to form.

Mr. Rosenthal: Now he objects to my abbreviating.

Mr. Turkus: There is an objection as to form.

3641 The Court: Overruled. (to the reporter) Read the question again.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

The Court: That is improper. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. You were asked by the District Attorney relating to your entering into the park and seeing certain people there after you arrived there with the car. Do you recall that? A. Yes, sir.

3642 Q. The defendant Capone was not one of those people, was he? A. No, sir.

Q. You related also about the defendant Weiss and Strauss leaving at intervals, one at one time and then two at the other time, and returning? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what was said to you by them and the directions that were given to you? A. I stood in the park there.

Q. You have already told that to Mr. Turkus, haven't you, how you went to Cohen's house in pursuance of havi. the address written out? A. That was after, when they came back together, sir. Said, "Let's make a good job out of it," when Harry Strauss said he was afraid of the store. That is on Sutter Avenue and Bradford.

Q. You told the District Attorney, when he asked you questions, all you knew about those episodes, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also told the District Attorney all you knew about what happened while you were up in Cohen's apartment, as you described it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You also told the District Attorney all 3644 you knew about in the morning going for the car and coming and standing in a hallway: is that right? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, from the place where you left the defendant Weiss and them on Saturday night, after Strauss had returned to the park, to where the so-called drop was, was a distance of how far?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Will you read it again? 3645

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Rosenthal: Let me withdraw it and put it this way:

Q. Where were you when Strauss and Weiss, as you say, went around or left you and then came back? Where were you at that time? A. I was in the park with Jimmy Ferraco, and Farvel Cohen was there, sir.

Q. And the car was where? A. In Bradford and Blake, and Sutter.

Q. How far was that from the park? A. A half a block, sir.

Q. From the place where the car was parked to the place where you say the drop was was how far in distance? A. I didn't take no mileage, sir.

Q. Can you give us any idea: was it a short distance? A. I didn't take no mileage, sir.

Q. Well, you drove that car to the drop, didn't you?

3647

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as answered.

Q. From Bradford Street?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, and in that form argumentative.

The Court: It is too far afield. Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. How long a time elapsed from the time that you left these men at Bradford and the time you 3648 got to Cohen's apartment? A. What do you mean, sir?

Q. How long a time elapsed— Do you know what the word "elapsed" means? A. Yes.

Q. —between the time that you left Weiss, Strauss and Ferraco at Bradford, after they had returned in the evening of Saturday, and your going to the drop and to the apartment; how long a time took place?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as complicated, unintelligible.

The Court: Did you time it?

The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Can you give us any approximation of time that elapsed between the time you last saw them at Bradford and next saw them at Cohen's apartment? A. I didn't have a watch, sir.

Q. In the morning, when you were standing in front of—sitting in front of this candy store with the motor running, you then knew that the purpose of the men in going into that store was 3650 to shoot and kill Rosen, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That has already been answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked anything regarding that.

Mr. Turkus: It is in the record.

The Court: Did you know who they were going to kill?

The Witness: I knew somebody was going to be killed, but I didn't know his name was Rosen. 3651

The Court: Had anybody told you it was Rosen?

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. But you knew they were in that store to kill someone?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious. He has just said so.

Q. Did you purposely keep your head away from the front of the store while you had the motor running, with the door open and the seat folded back?

3652 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Did you purposely keep your face averted from the store itself? Yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.

3653 A. What do you mean, purposely?

The Court: Did you look inside of the store to see what went on?

The Witness: No, I didn't take notice of that store.

The Court: Do you remember what you were looking at?

The Witness: Looking in the front and happened to turn a little bit to see what was going on—you know what I mean—it took seconds to me: 1, 2, 3, and out, when 3654 they walked into the store.

Mr. Rosenthal: Now, on the question of the Grand Jury minutes, I would like to make a motion to the Court, which is a legal question, in the absence of the jury.

The Court: What is the motion?

Mr. Rosenthal: The motion is in respect to having the District Attorney turn over to the Court the Grand Jury minutes, the testimony of this man before the Grand Jury.

The Court: Let me see it, please.

Mr. Turkus: Let them be marked for identification first.

The Court: Don't have to.

Mr. Turkus: I want them marked.

Mr. Rosenthal: So do I. want them marked.

Mr. Turkus: I will offer them in evidence.

Mr. Rosenthal: Again, because of the highly improper statement, I ask for the withdrawal of a juror and a mistrial. The 3656
District Attorney knows it is one of the elementary principles of law that that is the most reprehensible thing that he can say in a court-room.

Mr. Turkus: He just said he wanted them marked.

The Court: He said he wanted them marked for identification, not in evidence. They cannot go into evidence, of course.

Mr. Turkus: I did not understand that—

Mr. Rosenthal: You said it three times. 3657

Mr. Turkus: —when he said he wanted them marked. I was contented that they go in.

Mr. Rosenthal: With that grin of yours.

The Court: I don't think you did.

Mr. Rosenthal: No, I don't think he did either.

Mr. Cuff: We join in the motion.

Mr. Barshay: All counsel join in that motion.

The Court: Motion is denied.

3658 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: After the reading of the minutes by the Court, I would respectfully request the Court to give counsel the opportunity of reading these minutes for the purpose of further aiding counsel in the cross-examination of this witness on any matters that may have been either omitted, or any matters in which there may be statements other than that of the witness on the witness stand.

3659 The Court: I will reserve on that until I read the minutes.

(Minutes marked People's Exhibit Z-1 for identification.)

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully request the Court, at the time of any argument or ruling on the subject, that the argument be in the absence of the jury. It is a legal question.

3660 The Court: I am going to ask all counsel to remain seated and quiet and the court-room in order, so that I will be able to read these minutes and know what is in them. There is no index on here. Is this all of the witness's testimony?

Mr. Turkus: That is all of this witness's testimony.

The Court: The entire 46 pages?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, and been compared.

The Court: Have I got to read these entire 46 pages, I am asking?

Mr. Turkus: I don't know how many pages there are, but you have to read everything in your hand.

The Court: Is this that you have handed me all of this witness's testimony?

Mr. Turkus: It is, your Honor.

The Court: And not the testimony of other witnesses?

Mr. Turkus: No other witness, only this witness.

The Court: All right. It took a long time to get that. Everybody kindly re- 3662 main in order.

I am handing over up to and including page 24 for the perusal of counsel. The rest will be handed over after the Court reviews them and sees that everything is all right. I want to see if there is anything that should not be turned over, that is, something foreign to this case.

(Minutes handed to Mr. Rosenthal.)

The Court: The rest are handed over with the exception of pages 32 and 43. There seems to be a mistake here, sud- 3663 denly jumping from 32 to 43.

Mr. Turkus: That was where the witness had been recalled. I took that out of the bundle. That is an exact copy of the testimony of Bernstein, 10 to 32—

The Court: These pages that I mentioned, 32 and 43, contain the beginning and the ending of the testimony of another witness or witnesses?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, this witness Bernstein testified on pages 10 to 32—

The Court: Pardon me. These two pages will have to be deleted because they contain, as to this witness, no contradictions or amplifications of testimony given here. The rest are handed over.

3664 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have a few minutes to read it, Judge?

The Court: Yes, it won't take long. It took the Court 12 minutes.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will try to do it in five, Judge. Judge, if I can have a five-minute recess, I want to refer to his testimony. There are certain particular contradictions that I want to take from his testimony here.

3665

The Court: I noticed no contradictions, according to my recollection.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did, sir, and I want to have it from these minutes.

The Court: If you did, you don't have to look it up; you know it. Let us find out what they are.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right. I would also request after recess that I have an opportunity to again review these minutes. It is very disconcerting to me to have to look at around forty pages right in the presence of the jury, knowing that everybody is impatient.

3666

The Court: I think you are just as smart as the Court. The Court read them in twelve. You have had twelve. Now proceed.

Mr. Turkus: It is not forty pages; it is twenty-three pages. He was the fourth witness before the Grand Jury and started at page 16.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. The only time that Muggsy Cohen was with you was the night that you drove the car and he took the radio out and you delivered him to his home; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have got to ask this now in order to form a basis for this contradiction. 3668

Mr. Turkus: That is the testimony. If there is any alleged contradiction, he can go right to it. We all have memories.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I ask the question, your Honor, or does your Honor sustain the objection?

The Court: It is much easier to let you have your own way.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am only asking for a ruling.

The Court: Let him answer it. Get it over with. 3669

Q. Do you understand the question? A. What did you say, sir?

The Court: Repeat it.

Q. (Pending question read by the reporter.) A. Yes, sir.

Q. Didn't you tell the Grand Jury—Weren't you asked these questions and didn't you give these answers:

"Q. After having placed the car in the garage, what did you do next? A. The next morning we went back, me and Muggsy Cohen, and we took off the handle from the car and brought it to a locksmith to make up a key for the car.

"Q. A handle of the door? A. That's right."

Were you asked those questions in the Grand Jury and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that true? A. I refreshed my memory—

Q. Or was it true what you said in this trial?

3671 A. I refreshed by memory a lot of things.

The Court: Does that refresh your recollection?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Is it true?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: That was a mistake?

The Witness: That's right, that is what it is, a mistake, sir.

Q. Now then, you told the Court and jury on this trial that at four o'clock in the afternoon 3672 Louis Capone had told you to come, he wanted to show you a route, and went in your car, and Louis Capone continuously drove your car. Do you remember telling the jury that here? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, were you asked (on page 50)—or, before I come to that, there is another thing. All right, I have got that question.

"Q. But at this time Louis Capone said, 'Come on, I want to show you the route'? A. That's right.

"Q. What route did he mean? A. How to go to the Rosen store and leave the car at Van Sinderen and Livonia, drop the car off over there.

"Q. Did you go with him for that purpose? A. Correct.

"Q. Who drove? A. I did.

"Q. And he rode with you? A. That's right."

The Witness: That is a mistake, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: Wait a minute. I am asking you whether you were asked that in the Grand Jury and whether those are 3674 the answers that you gave to the Grand Jury.

Mr. Turkus: He has just answered.

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: It is responsive.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is not responsive.

The Court: He did not say whose mistake, so Mr. Rosenthal is entitled to know if he recalls having said that.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

Q. Did you say that? A. Yes, but it is a mistake, sir. 3675

Q. Did you say that to the Grand Jury? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was not true, was it?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form.

A. It is a mistake, sir.

Q. When you say it is a mistake, do you mean it was your mistake when you told the Grand Jury under oath that that is what happened, or do you mean that it was the stenographer in the Grand Jury room made the mistake? What 3676 mistake do you mean, or whose mistake do you mean? A. I made the mistake, sir.

Q. You made it. All right. And the mistake which you made was in reference to who drove the car, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It has already been answered.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

3677 Q. Was the time a mistake that you told the Grand Jury also, that it was in the evening at seven o'clock? Was that a mistake also?

Mr. Turkus: What page is this?

Mr. Rosenthal: The same page. If I could mark these out, your Honor—

Mr. Turkus: That is an exhibit. The part that you want is on page 16, in the middle.

Mr. Rosenthal: I think it is 14.

Mr. Turkus: Look at 16. It is in the 3678 middle. It does say seven o'clock, like you just said, so that is one for nothing.

Mr. Rosenthal: You mean you are helping me for nothing?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: Thanks very much.

Mr. Turkus: I am trying to save time.

Mr. Rosenthal: Beware of Greeks bearing gifts.

Mr. Turkus: I am not a Greek.

Mr. Rosenthal: Your Honor will have to pardon me a second. I have got to get the connecting questions.

Q. What time was it that you say that you went back to Sackman and Livonia and met Strauss and told him that you had stolen the car?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: This is preliminary, as a foundation for these questions.

Mr. Turkus: It is not needed. If there is any inconsistency he can bring it right out. Wasting time.

By the Court: 3680

Q. Do you remember what time? Did you time it when you kept the appointment to go over the route? A. What do you mean?

Q. Did you time it? Did you make any note of the time that you went over the route? A. No, sir.

Q. Can you approximate, according to your best recollection? A. I really can't tell you, sir. I didn't clock it.

Q. And you were told, you say, to go back there at four o'clock? A. Four o'clock I went 3681 back, yes.

Q. Do you recall what time you went out on the route? A. Four o'clock, a quarter after four, something like that.

Q. Do you remember you were promptly on the job? A. Yes.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. It was daylight, wasn't it, four o'clock? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And it was dark at seven o'clock, wasn't it?

3682 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not asked him that.

The Court: That is a matter of calendar. Daylight saving was still in effect on September 15th.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Were you asked before the Grand Jury these questions and did you give these answers—before I ask you these questions, you told this 3683 jury that Louis Capone told you to steal the plates, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that Harry Strauss said nothing when Louis Capone told you that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. Now, on page 14.

"Q. After that what did you do? A. After that I went back to Sackman and Livonia and told Harry Strauss I had the car.

"Q. Was anybody with him when you had that 3684 conversation? A. Louis Capone.

"Q. What time of day was that? A. It must have been about seven o'clock at night."

Were you asked those questions by the Grand Jury and did you give those answers? A. Yes, sir; it was a mistake, sir.

Q. That was a mistake? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: It does not say when this testimony was taken.

Mr. Turkus: May 20, 1940.

Mr. Rosenthal: May it appear on the record that the exhibit Z-1 for identification was testimony taken on May 20, 1940?

Mr. Turkus: Lillian R. Cohen, stenographer of Grand Jury; Edward A. Heffernan, Esq., Assistant District Attorney.

Q. Did you tell this jury that Louis Capone told you to steal the plates before you went out on this route to be shown the route that you were to take? 3686

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Well, the Court can say that he didn't. The record is that after the seven or eight rehearsals, they returned to Sackman and Livonia and Strauss came over and Capone then told him to steal the plates, with further instructions which are on the record.

Mr. Rosenthal: I take your Honor's statement.

The Court: That is the record.

Mr. Rosenthal: All right, sir, if that is 3687 the record.

Q. Were you again asked before the Grand Jury (on page 16 and 17) as follows:

"Q. When you got back to Sackman and Livonia Louis Capone was still with you? A. That's right.

"Q. Did you meet somebody there? A. Harry Strauss.

"Q. Anybody else? A. No.

"Q. Was there a conversation there then? A. That is correct.

3688 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

"Q. Please tell me what the conversation was? A. Harry told me to go and steal license plates for the car.

"Q. Was Capone there when that was said? A. That is right.

"Q. Is that the full conversation at that time? A. That is right.

"Q. Then what did you do? A. He said steal license plates and come back eleven o'clock with the car on Sackman and Livonia."

3689 Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers?

Mr. Turkus: I don't think there is any inconsistency.

Mr. Rosenthal: Why, on this trial he said that Harry Strauss stood by and said nothing and Capone asked him to go and steal the plates.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Were you asked those questions before the Grand Jury and did you give those answers? A.

3690 Yes, sir; it was a mistake.

Q. On this trial you say that a man whom you believe was Joe Pileh came up while you were standing with Strauss and others and handed Strauss a package which you subsequently found to contain guns and that you were delivered the package by Strauss and that you put the package in your car. Did you not, insubstance, say that on this trial?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is repetitious and not a correct version of what the witness has said, in that summary.

3691

The Court: What is the fact: who put them in the glove box?

The Witness: I did. Harry Strauss gave them to me.

The Court: Is your memory now clear on that?

The Witness: Very good now, sir.

The Court: Any doubt whatever?

The Witness: No doubt. My memory is very refreshed now, sir.

3692

Q. Did you also tell this jury that there was a doubt in your mind as to whether the man who came up and gave the package was a man by the name of Joe Pilch? Did you tell that to this jury?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is not a correct version. He said, "I think it was Joe Pilch."

Mr. Rosenthal: This is cross-examination.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is a repetition that will go on endlessly. 3693

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Now I ask you—

Mr. Turkus: Page 18.

Mr. Rosenthal: Thanks.

Q. "Q. (On page 18) Having seen this group go, was there a conversation? A. That's right.

"Q. Tell me what the conversation was? A. The conversation was at first Harry Strauss told some fellow by the name of Joe Pilch to bring the guns over to the car.

"Q. Did you know Joe Pilch up to this time? A. That is right.

"Q. And Joe was there at the time? A. That is right.

"Q. And what did Joe Pilch do? A. He brought the guns in a package and gave it to Harry Strauss and he put the package in the car, in the little box.

3695 "Q. Is that the glove compartment? A. That's right."

Were you asked those questions by the Grand Jury and did you give those answers?

Mr. Turkus: That is trivial.

Mr. Rosenthal: I again except to the statement of Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: That is an objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: Is it an objection? Well, I have one to make also.

The Court: Overruled. Is that what you testified to in the Grand Jury?

3696 The Witness: Yes; that is a mistake, sir.

The Court: Was that your belief at that time?

The Witness: Yes, sir, at that time, sir. Now my memory is refreshed because they hollered at me, sir. I got a two-door car. That's the time Mendy Weiss hollered at me.

The Court: You mean since then it has come more clearly to your mind?

The Witness: Yes, sir, very clear, very clear.

 3697

Q. How long had you known Joe Pilch before 1936?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, repetitious.

Mr. Rosenthal: He said it is very clear now, Judge, so I want to now find out whether when he told this jury he thinks it is Joe Pilch—

The Court: I am not quibbling on questions whether he thinks or whether he thought before the Grand Jury. It is substantially the same, or on the item of whether or not Strauss handed him the guns and he put them in the glove box or whether Strauss put them in the glove box, if that is of any importance whatever. He says now he is clear that Strauss put them in the glove box. Objection sustained. 3698

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's remarks and the sustaining of the objection.

3699

By the Court:

Q. You say now that you are sure you put them in the glove box? A. Yes, sir, positively.

Q. You handled them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That has become clear since you testified before the Grand Jury? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor—

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Had there been any conversation concerning Louis Capone being at the scene prior to the time that you went over to the store? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I object to this. I do not know what it means.

The Court: You mean on Sunday morning?

Mr. Rosenthal: I mean Saturday or Sunday.

3701 The Court: Sustained as indefinite.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except, sir. May I have noted on the record that at the time this question was asked, I had the Grand Jury minutes?

The Court: If you will put the question and answer that appeared in the Grand Jury minutes to the witness, I may be able to call your attention to where the testimony is on that point as given in this trial.

Q. On page 28 were you asked this question: "Q. Had there been any conversation concern-3702 ing Louis Capone being at that scene prior to the time you went over to the store? A. I didn't hear nothing."

Were you asked that question in the Grand Jury and did you give that answer?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. What is inconsistent?

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. Do you know a Kingsway Garage? A. Kingsway?

Q. Yes. A. What do you mean a Kingsway Garage?

Q. Do you know a garage by the name of Kingsway? A. I don't recall it, sir.

Q. Were you asked in the Grand Jury this question (page 28) and did you give this answer:

"Q. Where did you go with Jimmy? A. Jimmy? At first I drove to a garage, Kingsway Garage, took the gun from Jimmy and brought it down to a cellar that Mendy gave Jimmy."

3704

Mr. Turkus: May I call your Honor's attention that the testimony here was the Kenwood Garage? Kingsway and Kenwood in stenographic notes may have been confused by the stenographer.

Mr. Rosenthal: Again we have Mr. Turkus testifying on the record, again not under oath, and I again except to his statement made to the Court and ask that it be stricken.

The Court: Isn't that the same location precisely?

3705

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't know. I know there is a Kingsway Garage.

The Court: You are not confusing it with the Kingsway Theatre, by any chance?

Mr. Rosenthal: No; there may be a Kingsway Theatre. I think your Honor is more acquainted with that than I would be.

The Court: The picture is there. What street do you say that is, Mr. Turkus?

Mr. Turkus: Portal Street and East

3706 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

New York Avenue. It is the Kenwood Garage.

The Court: That is a stenographic error or slip of the tongue?

The Witness: I said Kenwood. It must be a mistake, sir.

Mr. Turkus: There is other misspelling of names in testimony.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I request of the Court that if there is anything overnight
3707 that I be given a copy of these for my perusal overnight, if there should be—

The Court: I am not going to have this witness brought here again.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am not going to ask that. I merely ask if there is anything that I have a copy of these in my possession overnight so that I can call the attention—

The Court: Don't worry now. We are no way near closing, according to the rate of your cross-examination.

3708 Mr. Rosenthal: I am nearly closing with this witness.

The Court: Suppose you go right ahead.

Mr. Talley: I suppose that on behalf of the defendant Weiss, my examination of this witness, together with the minutes which your Honor withheld, if they have any reference to Weiss—

The Court: What other minutes? At this moment I do not know what other minutes you refer to.

Mr. Talley: I assume, sir, that I may have an opportunity—

The Court: I am not deaf. I heard what you said but I do not understand you.

Mr. Talley: I thought I spoke pretty plainly. I will try it again.

The Court: You wish to see the minutes. I handed them over to counsel. You are entitled to see them, of course.

Mr. Talley: That is all I want to know. Now I will go a step further. Your 'onor said you were withholding certain pages 3710 of the testimony of this witness—

The Court: Two pages.

Mr. Talley: I ask they be delivered to me.

The Court: I said I had deleted two pages which related to the testimony of a different witness, that there was a small amount of testimony given by this witness on each one of those pages which contained no contradiction or variance of any kind.

Mr. Talley: I ask nevertheless, if your 3711
Honor pleases, if they are part of the testimony of this witness that I now see them.

The Court: The Court will show them to you at the bench, at the proper time, and you will be satisfied.

Mr. Turkus: Four questions and answers.

The Court: Don't have any more delay. Everybody's rights will be preserved.

3712 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Now, Mr. Bernstein, do you know a man by the name of Ben Warshinsky?

The Court: Are you through with the Grand Jury minutes?

Mr. Rosenthal: I am through with them temporarily.

The Court: Will you pass them on to Judge Talley?

3713 Mr. Rosenthal: I have not had a proper opportunity to see whether or not there are other contradictions that I might consider important.

Mr. Turkus: May the record show how long he has had those Grand Jury minutes?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, and if you want to make it longer, but I cannot digest those minutes, go over those minutes properly with a jury which I know will get impatient and with the Court having the 3714 jury in session here.

The Court: Yes, you have had lots of time. You have had fifteen minutes.

Mr. Talley: I cannot follow the cross-examination as I should and examine these minutes at the same time. I ask to be given these minutes overnight so I can examine them.

The Court: I will not rule on that now.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Ben Warshinsky? A. Yes, sir.

Q. 306 Osborne Street?

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask the Court to permit this witness to have a paper and pencil and to write the name Ben Warshinsky, 306 Osborne Street.

The Court: First mark a paper for identification.

(Blank paper marked Defendants' Exhibit O for identification.)

(Witness writes.)

Q. I now ask you to write Ben Glass Schatz (phonetic spelling). You know how to spell it, don't you? 3716

(Witness writes.)

Q. 39 East 92nd Street, Bklyn., N. Y. Have you got it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I want you to write the word "Sunday". A. Sunday?

Q. Yes, Sunday. A. (Witness writes.)

Q. And I want you to write the word "Ben". A. (Witness writes.)

3717

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that it be marked in evidence. The materiality will be shown in two minutes.

Mr. Turkus: Not at this point it is not admissible.

The Court: Is there an objection?

Mr. Turkus: There is.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. You told this jury that you have been kept incommunicado—I withdraw that. You told this jury that you never were allowed to write a letter, you never were allowed to be alone with a pencil or paper, that you never sent out a letter, and that you never communicated with the outside world since you gave yourself up to Judge O'Dwyer?

3718 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. Is that right, sir?

3719

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is not a correct version. If it is, even at that, it is repetitious.

The Court: I don't recall whether it is or not. Did you say so?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Is that your best recollection? Just put your memory on that and see if you remember any time when you wrote to anybody.

The Witness: Yes, I did, sir.

The Court: When was that?

3720 The Witness: About four or five letters, sir.

Q. Keep your voice up so that the jury can hear you. A. About four or five letters, sir.

Q. You sent out four or five letters? Let me call your attention to whether or not to this jury, when I started to cross-examine you, you were asked these questions and you gave these answers—

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is reptitious.

3721

Mr. Rosenthal: I have not finished the question yet, sir.

Mr. Turkus: That does not give him license—

Mr. Rosenthal: Why, when Mr. Turkus goes that it gives him the privilege—

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, I have an objection before the court.

The Court: What is it?

Mr. Turkus: I object to him reading the record that was taken earlier of this witness. It is repetitious. He has admitted he said those things.

3722

Mr. Rosenthal: He has not. Page 785, sir. Now I am in the midst of a question. May I, with the court's permission, continue the question?

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection to reading the record. The jury heard it.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Now, listen to this. Were you asked these questions when I first started to cross-examine you (page 785 of this record):

3723

"Q. You say you were always under guard? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did you write any letters while you were under guard? A. No, sir.

"Q. At no time did you write letters or send them out to anybody? A. No, sir.

"Q. That is positive, is it? A. Yes, sir."

Mr. Turkus: Will you modulate your tone, please?

Mr. Rosenthal: Excuse me. Before I did not talk. I will get over where it won't annoy you. You are not going to disconcert me.

"Q. You had no communication whatsoever with the outside world, is I think your expression? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. You never wrote a letter to anybody while you were in custody and gave it to your wife or to any detectives or any person to mail? A. No, sir.

3725

"Q. That is right? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. (On next page) Were you permitted to write letters? A. No, sir.

"Q. Were you permitted to send out mail? A. No, sir.

"Q. Were you ever left alone with your wife at any time so that you could give her a letter? A. No, sir.

"Q. At all times there was always a detective there? A. Yes, sir.

"Q. At no time did you ever write to anybody while you have been incarcerated, or kept, I should say, in the Half Moon Hotel, or any other hotel that you have been kept in while you were a material witness, is that right?"

3726

That was sustained. I withdraw that last question.

Mr. Turkus: Now, just a minute.

Q. You were asked those questions, were you not, and do you remember giving this jury and this court those answers?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He has not said he did not.

The Court: That is the record.

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: The question is whether he did, Judge, before I submit certain documentary evidence which I have and—

The Court: I never heard of such a thing in the orderly process of a trial as having to prove the record of the present trial by the testimony of the witness all 3728 over again.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

The Court: Everything the witness has testified to is a part of the record.

Q. Did you threaten anybody in letters that you wrote out of the Half Moon Hotel while you were under guard there? Did you threaten any people on the outside?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is repetitious. 3729

Mr. Rosenthal: Oh, no.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Turkus: It is incompetent.

Q. Did you? A. What do you mean, threaten?

Q. Did you write letters to individuals on the outside on the stationery of the Half Moon Hotel, get them out with the mail, the United States mail, in which you had threats against individuals contained in it, individuals other than these defendants? A. Wait a minute.

3730

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. That is a tricky question.

Mr. Rosenthal: Is it?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Rosenthal: We will see how tricky it is in a minute.

Mr. Turkus: That is tricky enough to appear as if he threatened the defendants.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am going to show to the court, if your Honor wishes—

3731

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection and I do not want any more theatrical reading of records and Mr. Rosenthal prancing from one end of the court room to the other, shouting in counsel's ear.

The Court: The witness asked you what you mean by threats. That is a matter—

Mr. Rosenthal: Well, all right.

The Court: Are you interrupting the court?

Mr. Rosenthal: Excuse me, your 3732

Honor.

The Court: That is a matter of debate. One person may say that something written is a threat and another may not. You may direct his attention to what he is alleged to have written. The jury can say whether it is a threat.

Q. I will show you this letter—

Mr. Turkus: First mark it for identification. Do it orderly; take it easy.

Mr. Rosenthal: If I was as old as you when you were young. I would have you on my knee.

Mr. Turkus: That is old stuff. I will outgrow my youth in time.

Mr. Rosenthal: You will never outgrow your ignorance.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you.

Mr. Rosenthal: I am just showing him that to ask if it is his handwriting. I ask the court to instruct him not to read it but merely to identify whether or not he 3734 wrote that letter while he was in the Half Moon Hotel.

The Court: How can he tell without reading it?

Mr. Rosenthal: He can tell whether it is his handwriting.

Mr. Turkus: Without reading it?

Mr. Rosenthal: He has to read the letter?

Mr. Turkus: That happens to be a photostat.

Mr. Rosenthal: Does it? 3735

The Court: What is the question?

Mr. Turkus: He wants to know if it is in his handwriting.

Mr. Rosenthal: Thanks, Mr. Turkus.

The Court: There is no question before the court.

(Two papers marked Defendants' Exhibits P and Q, for identification.)

Q. I show you this envelope first, marked Defendants' Exhibit Q, for identification, and ask you if that envelope is in your handwriting, a photostatic copy of an envelope in your handwriting. A. Yes, sir.

3736 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Rosenthal: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: May I see it?

The Witness: I can explain why I did not want to tell you.

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that this witness be instructed not to answer anything unless he is asked, your Honor.

3737 Mr. Turkus: I consent to it.

The Court: The District Attorney is entitled to ask for explanations at the proper time. Until then nothing can be volunteered.

Mr. Turkus: Is there another photostat of this available? No objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I show it to the jury?

The Court: Mark it in evidence.

(Defendants' Exhibit Q, for identification, received and marked Defendants' Exhibit 1, in evidence.)

3738

Q. Was that envelope addressed by you in the Half Moon Hotel and a letter enclosed in it and sent out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is Ben? A. That is Cherry's brother.

Q. And Cherry is the man, Al Glass, your partner, isn't he? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you write a letter—read this letter.

The Court: Mark it for identification.

Mr. Rosenthal: It has been marked Defendants' Exhibit P, for identification.

3739

The Witness: What is so terrible about this letter?

Mr. Turkus: Let me read it.

The Court: What?

Mr. Rosenthal: He said, "What is so terrible about this letter." That is his answer.

The Court: Did you write it?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

3740

Q. Did you send that out from the Half Moon Hotel while you were under guard; yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: Let me read it. This has nothing to do with the Rosen case.

The Court: Is there objection, or what?

Mr. Turkus: There is an objection. It has nothing to do with this killing we are trying.

The Court: Where is the rest of it? The court cannot judge as to the relevancy or competency of the letter without the rest of it. There are only two pages and it is not signed and does not appear to be a complete letter.

3741

Mr. Turkus: It is a photostat.

Mr. Rosenthal: That has no materiality, whether it is or not. This witness has identified it as a letter sent out by him in the ordinary course of the mail from the Half Moon Hotel.

The Court: Don't tell the court what the court already knows. I am asking for the rest of the letter so I can tell whether it is relevant or competent.

3742

Mr. Rosenthal: That is all of that letter.

The Court: There is some more of it. It is only two pages of a letter which is not signed and which stops abruptly and there is no termination of the letter to indicate anything that the court can base judgment on. Frankly, I don't know what the two pages, in the absence of the rest of the letter, mean. Objection sustained.

3743

Mr. Talley: May I be heard on that?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: This letter is introduced for the purpose of impeaching this witness' testimony on this trial, to wit, that he never sent out any communications while he was in custody in the Half Moon Hotel. This paper which you are now examining has been identified by this witness as having been written by him and as having been sent in the envelope that he has identified, and which he said is in his handwriting. On the question of the impeachment of the witness and the question of his credibility, if that was only one line of a letter instead of a complete letter, it would be competent to attack his credibility and show that he testified to one thing on this trial whereas the fact, as he now admits, is quite the contrary, to wit, he testified he sent out no letter and had no communication with the outside world, and here is a paper in his handwriting which he did send out through the United States mail. That is the purpose of impeachment.

3744

The Court: That impeachment is already established. Supplemental to that impeachment, Mr. Rosenthal has offered this part of a letter.

Mr. Rosenthal: May I further urge the proposition that this man on the stand, as appears by the record has admitted that this is a letter which he wrote.

The Court: You are putting in a part, 3746 and I cannot tell from reading that part whether it relates to this case or not.

Mr. Talley: If your Honor pleases, it would not mak a bit of difference.

The Court: The rest of the letter must be submitted before the court can pass on it. He has admitted now that he lied. You do not have to establish that. Now, don't put the court in a false position. You are not going to put in, in order to create an inference which may be misleading to the jury, a piece of a letter and 3747 have the jury devour its contents. It is established that the witness testified under previous cross that he did not send out a letter and now he admits that he did.

Mr. Turkus: Why not let the witness complete the letter and tell the jury what the balance of it was, if there was any? It may have been a complete letter.

The Court: It is up to counsel to produce it. Objection sustained.

Mr. Talley: I except.

Mr. Rosenthal: And at this particular time I am asking now—it is a quarter to four—for a recess. I intend to attempt to produce other letters of this man.

The Court: You proceed. I am going to sit late today. You are not entitled to ask for an early adjournment because there has been too much time wasted.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the court's ruling, insofar as this matter is concerned.

3749 The Court: The tempo has been largo minus.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not hear that.

The Court: The stenographer will repeat it.

(The remark of the court was read by the stenographer.)

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that this sample of handwriting, Defendants' Exhibit O, for identification, be marked in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He has already admitted that he wrote a letter, although early in his testimony he denied 3750 he did, so that this exhibit has no relevancy or competency.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. I show you this paper, Defendants' Exhibit P, and ask you, Mr. Witness, whether that was not the end of that particular letter, those two pages.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is incomplete on its face.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to any statement—

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute—

Mr. Rosenthal: By the District Attorney.

Mr. Turkus: And it is intended as a slight to the court, which said it is incomplete on its face. That is reprehensible. That is not the way I was taught to practice law.

Mr. Rosenthal: You stoop too low— 3752

The Court: Did you send the letter without signing, Mr. Witness?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: Look at the bottom of page two. You notice it is not signed?

The Witness: My name is not there, sir.

Q. Did you put your name on that particular letter? A. I can't tell you that, sir.

Q. Is that the complete letter— Read it through—that you sent out at that particular time? A. Yes, sir. 3753

Mr. Rosenthal: Now, I offer it in evidence.

The Court: Why didn't you sign it?

The Witness: I did sign it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that, if the Court pleases.

The Court: Obviously, this is a part of a letter. Now he says he did sign it, but his signature is not there.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except to the statement of the court.

3754 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: Where is the signature?

The Witness: It is supposed to be here. I don't see it.

The Court: It is not there, is it?

The Witness: No, sir.

The Court: On what do you base your statement that that is a full letter?

The Witness: I cannot tell you that, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I renew the offer, sir.

3755 Mr. Turkus: I object to it. There was a matter of collateral impeachment first.

The Court: Please don't argue so much.

Mr. Turkus: All right, I have an objection.

The Court: The court is quite competent to rule on questions of law involving matters of mediocre intelligence on the part of the court without having counsel get into a brawl and argue every point to the court. That only confuses and delays the situation.

3756

By the Court:

Q. Mr. Witness—

The Court: Will you kindly sit down?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, sir.

Q. Do you remember that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you see if you can find your signature on it? A. No, there is no signature, sir.

Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross 3757

Q. Did you ever send a letter to this party unsigned? A. Always signed, sir.

Q. Always signed? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you said a few minutes ago this was the entire letter, were you right or were you wrong? A. This is not the letter, sir.

Q. Is that or is that not the entire letter? A. No, sir.

The Court: The ruling stands.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 3758

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. Did you say a minute ago it was the entire letter?

The Court: I know what he said a minute ago, and the incident is closed.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except—

Mr. Talley: I except.

Mr. Rosenthal: —to the Court's ruling on the subject and the Court's interrogation of this witness after he had stated it was the letter. 3759

Q. Did you ever, in the letter that you sent out while under guard, threaten, if you did not get $200, that you would cause trouble for individuals?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is an indirect way of trying to put in evidence something not able to be done by direct—

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

3760 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: The word "threaten" is a conclusion.

Q. Look at the bottom of this paper.

Mr. Rosenthal: First mark it for identification.

(Paper marked Defendants' Exhibit R for identification.)

3761 Mr. Rosenthal: I am asking that the witness see it.

Mr. Turkus: Let me see it.

Q. Look at the last part and see whether you signed it with your signature.

Mr. Turkus: I object to, by indirection, putting anything into evidence that cannot go in directly.

The Court: Overruled. Where are the originals of these letters?

3762 Mr. Rosenthal: I have not got them, sir.

The Court: That means nothing. I asked you a question; I ask for the courtesy of an answer.

Mr. Rosenthal: I don't know, sir.

The Court: Under the rules of evidence the originals must be produced or their absence accounted for as unproducible, in order to enable the copy to go into evidence, even though fully authenticated otherwise.

Mr. Rosenthal: I know of no rule, your Honor, which prevents a photostatic—

The Court: I am not obliged to be responsible for what you do know or do not know.

Mr. Talley: Your Honor, these photostats are admitted to be correct by this witness, the writer of them.

The Court: The Court is aware of the record. What is your question?

3764

Q. (Pending question read by the reporter.) A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that a complete photostatic copy of a letter which you sent out while you say you were under guard in the Half Moon Hotel, to a person to whom it is addressed?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: How can he tell unless he reads it? Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I did not ask him not to read it, sir.

3765

Q. Read it first. A. I am not sure, sir.

The Court: Read it.

The Witness: I am not sure, sir.

By the Court:

Q. Did you read this over? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Surely you ought to be able to remember whether you wrote that. A. I don't recall, sir. That is my signature there.

3766 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. Read the context. You cannot fail to know. Can you see it? A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.

Q. You wrote that letter? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: Now I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Turkus: Let me see it.

Q. You wrote that from the Half Moon Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

3767 Q. Do you remember how long ago? A. I really cannot tell you, sir.

Q. Is it while you were in custody? A. Yes, sir, a detective beside me, sir. He seen it, sir.

Mr. Turkus: It is objectionable on the grounds urged in connection with the other exhibit, and further it is not an original document.

The Court: Sustained as having nothing to do with this case, incompetent and irrelevant.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to 3768 the Court's ruling.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that these photostatic copies be impounded by the Court.

The Court: You cannot—

Mr. Rosenthal: You can impound them by putting them in evidence.

Mr. Klein: That is not impounding them.

Q. How many more letters did you write while in custody and under guard to different people, from the Half Moon Hotel?

Mr. Turkus: Objection, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

A. About four or five letters all told, sir.

Q. To how many different people did you write letters? A. Just two, sir.

Q. Who were the two that you wrote letters to?

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial. 3770

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except.

Q. Did you demand money in letters that were sent out while you were under guard, from people that you wrote to?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That by indirection is attempting to put something in that is improper.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 3771

(to Mr. Turkus) Will you turn around?

Mr. Turkus: No, I want to watch you. I do not like to have my back turned to you.

Mr. Rosenthal: Your back is better than your face.

Mr. Turkus: Thank you.

Mr. Rosenthal: If I had to look at your face all day, I would not be able to cross-examine. I will stand over here where you can see me and I do not have to look at you.

3772 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: That ought to be pleasurable.

Q. Did the detectives that were guarding you in the same room see you writing letters that were sent out?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

Mr. Rosenthal: It is on impeachment now.

3773 The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except.

Q. Were those letters which you mailed out from the Half Moon Hotel and while you were under guard, given to detectives to mail?

Mr. Turkus: I think that is insulting and venomous, and I object to it.

The Court: It is immaterial.

Mr. Turkus: Incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

3774 The Court: He had a right to write letters.

Mr. Turkus: Of course he did.

The Court: There is no law against it, no expression against it.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the Court's remark and to the District Attorney's remark.

The Court: It would be a funny kind of house of detention if you could not write a letter and if you were not entitled to have them mailed.

Mr. Rosenthal: That is not the issue here, sir.

The Court: No.

Mr. Rosenthal: I will mark another letter for identification.

(Paper marked Defendants' Exhibit S for identification.)

Q. I show you that letter and ask you whether you sent that out while you were under guard, in the presence of detectives. 3776

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Rosenthal: Asking the question—

The Court: Wait.

A. I don't recall the letter, but my signature is on there, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection to the question first.

3777

By the Court:

Q. Is the letter in your handwriting? A. But I don't recall the letter.

Q. Did you read it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Does it bring back to mind in its contents whether you wrote it? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Rosenthal:

Q. And is it a complete letter?

The Court: This is signed and has a "P. S."

3778

Mr. Rosenthal: I want it for the record, your Honor, with your permission.

Q. Is that a complete letter? A. I don't recall it, sir.

Mr. Turkus: May it also be noted on the record it is a photostat, not the original.

The Court: Photostat, yes.

Mr. Turkus: May I see it?

3779

The Court: Is it offered in evidence?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, I am offering it.

The Court: That is, the photostat?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, I am offering the photostat of a letter which he identifies to be in his handwriting and a complete letter.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except. May I have that on the record? I am going to ask your Honor to admonish this individual not to be so free with his language, because of the fact that he now happens to be an Assistant District Attorney, whereas formerly he practiced on this side of the bar. We have more courtesy from men in the District Attorney's office than he will ever give to anybody, and it is about time he is taught manners.

3780

Mr. Turkus: It seems I have been on the receiving end of all abuse.

Mr. Rosenthal: Vile and low and abusive. That is all he says. Let him stick to the case.

Mr. Turkus: Now I am down to a correspondence course.

Mr. Rosenthal: And insulting everybody that opposes you.

The Court: This sounds like an up-to-date political speech. The Court will disregard it. It is out of order.

Mr. Rosenthal: I have no further questions to ask this man.

The Court: Judge Talley?

Mr. Talley: Before I proceed any fur- 3782 ther—

Mr. Rosenthal: I ask that Mr. Klein be asked to face toward the front of the room.

Mr. Klein: I will face where I have a right to.

The Court: The Court is hearing Judge Talley Kindly come to order.

Mr. Talley: Your Honor has stated from the bench that this witness has testified falsely with regard to sending the letters?

3783

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Talley: Your Honor stated—I think the language was—that he has lied before this jury.

The Court: Yes. That is obvious.

Mr. Talley: It is therefore incumbent upon me, it is obvious to the Court, and I now not only request, but in the politest manner possible demand that your Honor sit as a committing magistrate and commit this witness to jail, not to the Half Moon Hotel, but to jail, on the charge of perjury or at least false swearing, which your Honor has heard himself in the presence of the Court, in the presence of this jury, which is a crime committed in your presence, and I demand, as I say, that your Honor act according to the circumstances and commit this witness to jail for false swearing.

3784 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

The Court: You would like him moved from the Half Moon down to Raymond 3785 Street?

Mr. Talley: I would like him committed for the perjury that he has committed in this case. I do not care where your Honor commits him.

The Court: I think you'd better not do any worrying about perjury. The Court is able to attend to its own business without advice. You confine yourself to the trial of this case.

Mr. Talley: I move that this witness be committed for perjury.

3786 The Court: The motion will not be entertained because you have no business to make it. It is none of your concern.

Mr. Talley: I am an officer of this court just as much as your Honor is.

The Court: As an officer of the court, proceed with the Court's instructions. Proceed with the case. This is grandstand play, and utterly cheap.

Mr. Talley: I must take an exception to that remark of your Honor.

The Court: Please proceed with the case.

Mr. Talley: I am not given to grandstand plays and I think nobody in this building knows it better than you do.

The Court: Do you wish to continue the examination?

Mr. Talley: Yes, I do.

The Court: Proceed.

By Mr. Talley:

Q. You remember testifying, Bernstein, in this case, in this room, that you got the address of Farvel Cohen's apartment where you went and slept on the rugs the night before Rosen was killed? A. Yes, sir. 3788

Q. And you remember that you testified that that name and address, or at least the address of Cohen's apartment house was written down on a slip of paper by the defendant Weiss and handed to you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Mr. Talley: I have got to lay a foundation for my question or the question would be ridiculous without it. 3789

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Did you so testify? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And of course that testimony given before this jury was true, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On your testimony before the Grand Jury were you asked this question and did you make this reply, at page 21 of the copy of the Grand Jury minutes marked People's Exhibit Z-1—I will ask you the question ahead of it so as to get the connection:

3790 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

"Q. What other conversation was there? A. Mendy said we will leave it for the morning when he opens the store and we will do the job right."

Were you asked that question and did you make that reply before the Grand Jury? A. What did you say, sir?

The Court: Listen to it. Read it again.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

3791

Q. "Q. Then what happened after that? A. After that Harry Strauss told me to take the car and bring it into the private garage and he gave me Farvel's address where he lived and I should meet him there." Were you asked that question and did you make that reply? A. It is a mistake, sir; yes, sir.

Q. Another mistake? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You made a great many mistakes in your testimony before the Grand Jury, didn't you?

3792

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is not the proof.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: He made very few mistakes.

Mr. Talley: It is his testimony. He has answered at least five questions where he testified differently before the Grand Jury than he did here by saying "It is a mistake."

Mr. Turkus: Trivialities.

The Court: That will be argued to the jury at the proper time—

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: Whether these are trifling discrepancies which are reconcilable with essential truth or whether they are wilful falsifications on material points.

Mr. Talley: I take an exception.

Q. Do you remember testifying upon this trial that the defendant Weiss distributed the guns?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless he fixes the time. 3794

The Court: There were two distributions testified to.

Mr. Talley: I did not hear your Honor.

The Court: Repeat it.

(The remarks of the Court were read by the reporter).

Q. Do you remember the second distribution of guns, the second time the guns were distributed? A. I don't understand what you mean, sir.

Q. Do you know what "second" means, first, second? A. Yes, sir. 3795

Q. Do you know what that means? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why do you tell me you do not know what it means? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to— there are other words in the sentence besides first and second.

Q. How many times—

Mr. Turkus: Just a moment. I have an

3796 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

objection to the argumentation with the witness.

The Court: Avoid arguing.

Q. How many times do you say you saw guns distributed—

Mr. Turkus: Object to it.

Q. —on the night before or the morning of the Rosen killing?

3797

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: The testimony on direct is that Weiss distributed the guns the night before but after the inspection of premises the guns were returned; that the following morning he gave Weiss the guns and the extra bullets and Weiss gave one each to Strauss and Ferraco and said "Come on."

Q. You testified that on both occasions, the night before and the morning of the killing, that 3798 Weiss distributed the guns? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That was true, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now were you asked these questions in your testimony before the Grand Jury and did you make these answers:

"Q. What was taken from the package"—referring I said to the package which you said contained guns—

"Q. What was taken from the package? A. Three guns taken out of the package.

"Q. When you say guns, were they revolvers? A. Revolvers.

"Q. Or automatics? A. I don't know what they were. I know they were revolvers."

Q. Were you asked those questions and did you make those replies? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you asked these questions and did you make these replies:

"Q. What did you do with the guns when you opened the package? A. Harry opened the package and gave Mendy a gun, Jimmy a gun, and he took one himself."

Were you asked those questions and did you 3800 make those answers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the Harry that you referred to in your testimony was not Weiss; it was Harry Strauss, wasn't it? A. It is a mistake, sir.

Q. Another mistake?

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the observation "Another mistake" be stricken from the record.

The Court: It is for the jury to say.

Q. Were you in California in March of 1939? 3801
A. 1939? Yes, sir.

Q. And you told us yesterday about the number of friends you had in California, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you visit some of your friends there?

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

Mr. Talley: Preliminary foundation. I am entitled to it.

3802 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: This is recross examination now.

The Court: Has it any reference to the Grand Jury minutes?

Mr. Talley: No, it has not.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you visit any of your friends in California in March of 1939 who were in jail?

3803 Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Court: Sustained upon the ground that it is not new matter and you had your cross-examination of this witness.

Mr. Talley: I am asking leave now of your Honor to continue my cross-examination on a matter that I did not call this witness' attention to.

The Court: That, of course, rests in the discretion of the Court. I will let you 3804 go on for the present and see what it means.

Mr. Talley: Thank you.

Q. When you were in California in March of 1939, did you visit any of your friends that you spoke about who were in jail? A. I don't know what year it was but it was, sir.

Q. What? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: You say you do not know what year?

The Witness: I do not know what year, but I visited somebody in jail.

The Court: Mr. Talley wants to know specifically 1939. Do you remember that?

The Witness: I don't know what year it was but I did visit somebody in jail. I do not know what year it was.

Q. Whom did you visit in jail?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. 3806

The Court: Let him answer.

A. Nati Katz.

Q. Is that name Nathan Katz? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In what jail did you visit him? A. San Quentin, San Francisco.

Q. Did you have a talk with him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you there with Nati Katz in San Quentin prison? A. An hour or so.

Q. Don't you remember that that was in March of 1939?

Mr. Turkus: That is objectionable. 3807

Mr. Talley: I have a right to fix the time.

The Court: Overruled.

A. I don't recall what month it was, sir.

Q. Can't you recall it was in the year 1939? A. It might have been, sir.

The Court: No, not what it might have been. If you do not know, say so.

The Witness: Don't recall, sir.

3808 Sol Bernstein—For People—Cross

Q. On the first day of March, 1939, in San Quentin prison, California, did you not tell Nathan Katz, a prisoner in San Quentin jail, on a visit which you made to him there, that you had killed Rosen because Rosen owed you several hundred dollars and that you got Strauss to help you out with the job? A. No, sir.

Q. To help you out? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not tell him that? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you tell him anything like that? A. No, sir.

3809

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. These letters that Mr. Rosenthal has shown to you, you say are correct photostats of letters which you wrote in the Half Moon Hotel, is that right?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetition.

Mr. Talley: I have not asked him anything about it. My position is precisely 3810 the same as though the defendant Weiss was the only one on trial in this case. You seem to think that word "repetitious" has a charm and every time you object on that ground the Court must sustain it. You don't understand the elementary principles of cross-examination which is based upon repetition.

Mr. Turkus: Some duet, Talley and Rosenthal—a pipperoo.

Mr. Talley: "Repetitious", that is the only objection you seem to know.

Mr. Turkus: It seems to be pretty good.

Mr. Rosenthal: Some duet and he is the whole orchestra. You blow your own horn.

The Court: Is the speechmaking over?

Mr. Talley: I had no speech.

Mr. Turkus: I had an objection.

The Court: That certainly was a speech and was unnecessary. The objection is overruled. 3812

Q. Answer the question. A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you don't deny having written those letters, do you? A. No, sir.

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable.

The Court: He has not denied it.

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: But Mr. Talley is entitled to cross-examine and impeach him on that point to show that he did not write that. It adds nothing to the fund of knowledge in the court room to have more lawyers prove that he did when he admits to one that he did. 3813

Mr. Talley: Do I get an answer to the question?

Mr. Turkus: He said yes.

Q. When you write do you write fast or slowly?

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Talley: I submit it is proper cross-examination and should be permitted. I except to your Honor's ruling.

Q. How long did it take you to write any of these three letters?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

3815 Q. When they were written, was anybody present in the room in which you wrote them?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I take an exception.

Q. Were any of the detectives that you say are constantly with you and have been constantly with you in the Half Moon Hotel, or whatever other hotels you have been a guest at, were any 3816 of the detectives present when you wrote those letters?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you mail those letters personally? A. No, sir.

Q. Who did?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Talley: Exception. May I state that your Honor remembers that this witness denied that he ever did mail or send any letters through his wife or anybody else?

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Talley: I take an exception to your Honor's ruling, your Honor's failure to permit me to conduct my cross-examination in a proper, legal manner— 3818

The Court: Make no speeches.

Mr. Talley: I am making no speeches. I note for the record that I except to your Honor's ruling which I regard as highly erroneous and highly prejudicial to the defendant, if you call that a speech but it is not.

The Court: When you were a judge, if any lawyer appeared before you, surely you were not more patient than I.

Mr. Talley: I never made rulings on cross-examination such as I have been compelled to here during this trial. 3819

The Court: Well, now you heard them.

Mr. Talley: I say I am entitled to cross-examine this witness at length.

The Court: Will you kindly come to order and ask your questions?

Mr. Talley: No, sir, I have no further questions to ask. I note my exception to your Honor's interference with proper cross-examination.

The Court: You interrupted the Court. You have interrupted the Court so that I forgot what I was saying. What was I saying when I was interrupted?

(The last remark of the Court was read by the reporter.)

The Court: Ask the questions, state your exception, and let it go at that. That is the proper court decorum.

Mr. Talley: I have done that.

The Court: Any more cross from anybody, or redirect?

3821 Mr. Rosenthal: With the exception of what I stated to your Honor regarding these Grand Jury minutes which I have not had time to properly digest—

The Court: You have. You certainly cannot take Grand Jury minutes home with you.

Mr. Rosenthal: These are only a copy.

The Court: You have had plenty of time. The Court is against you on it.

Any redirect?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, very brief.

The Court: Proceed.

3822 Mr. Turkus: I am waiting for someone to be brought in.

(A man enters the court-room.)

Mr. Turkus: Bring him down here where he can be seen.

The Court: Put the other lights on.

Redirect examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Who is that (indicating man who entered the courtroom)? A. Muggsy Cohen.

Mr. Turkus: Before he is removed, let him give his name to the stenographer.

(Name given: Harry Cohen, of 85 Bristol Street.)

Q. Is that the Harry Cohen that you referred to in your testimony to this Court and jury as Muggsy Cohen? A. Automobile thief and a radio thief, yes, sir.

Q. You were asked by Capone's lawyer and Weiss's lawyer about your testimony upstate in the Gangi Cohen case; do you remember that? A. Yes, sir. 3824

Q. Gangi Cohen, what was his right name, first name; was it Irving? A. Irving.

Q. Was he a Brownsville boy? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to as not proper redirect examination.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. When you went on the stand upstate and you were questioned by Mr. Deckelman, the District Attorney, how long were you kept on the stand? 3825

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

A. By Mr. Deckelman?

Q. Yes. A. About three to five minutes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether or not all your testimony in the Cohen case comprises three pages of testimony?

Mr. Cuff: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

A. It took three to five minutes.

3826 Sol Bernstein—For People—Redirect

The Court: He cannot say how many pages.

Mr. Turkus: All right.

Q. How long did Mr. Saul Price, whom you pointed out as having been seated in the second chair at the time he was there, cross-question you or cross-examine you?

Mr. Cuff: Objected to.

3827

A. I think about three or four hours.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. How many hours? A. About three or four hours, sir.

Q. Do you know that Saul Price, the lawyer who questioned you upstate, is Farvel Cohen's lawyer? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Cuff: Objection.

3828 The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. At the time you were sent upstate to Mr. Deckelman's office, were there many fugitives at large?

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to.

A. A lot of them, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

There does not seem to be any hesitancy on this witness's part when counsel for defense objects.

The Court: Please. Do you object?

Mr. Rosenthal: Yes, sir, and I ask—

The Court: The Court has overruled your objection.

Mr. Rosenthal: —I ask this witness be told when counsel for defendant objects, he has the same right as when The People's counsel objects, that he should not answer 3830 until the Court rules on the objection.

The Court: The witness is so instructed.

Mr. Turkus: Do not answer a single question until the objection has been ruled on.

Q. At the time when you testified in the Cohen case, were there fugitives on that indictment?

Mr. Talley: Objected to. Not proper redirect examination.

Mr. Turkus: All right, it is withdrawn. 3831

Mr. Rosenthal: Repetitious.

Mr. Talley: Don't say that.

Q. Were there witnesses who were not then in custody, protective custody?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to as a conclusion of law, not one of fact.

The Court: He said there were many fugitives at large.

Mr. Turkus: I want to know about witnesses who were not taken into protective custody.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it. It is a legal question.

Mr. Turkus: That is not legal.

The Court: It has bearing on motive for thoroughness in testimony. He may answer.

Mr. Talley: It would not justify perjury and false swearing because a few wit-3833 nesses were at large.

The Court: You do not have to argue that to the Court.

Mr. Talley: That is my ground of objection.

The Court: The Court considers that offensive. The Court will ignore it.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. (Pending question read by the reporter.) A. What do you mean, sir?

Q. Do you know that there were certain wi-

3834 nesses in the investigation that were not under the protection then of the District Attorney?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object.

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Objection is overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except and move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

3835

Q. Now, when Mr. Deckelman, the District Attorney, had you on the stand upstate, was your testimony in the Gangi Cohen case in so far as Gangi Cohen was concerned, limited to a single conversation that you had with Gangi Cohen?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the question.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Yes, sir.

3836

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except.

Q. And did you tell District Attorney Deckelman and the jury upstate the truth about that conversation that you had with Gangi Cohen?

Mr. Rosenthal: Object to the question. That is for this jury to say, whether he did or he did not.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: The other jury has passed on that.

3837

The Court: Never mind about that, or there will be trouble in this court.

Mr. Rosenthal: I said the other jury—

The Court: It may go beyond this court.

Mr. Rosenthal: I said the other jury has passed on that.

The Court: You say nothing of the kind.

Mr. Rosenthal: I respectfully except to the Court's ruling. I am not stating anything—

The Court: You sit down. The Court requests you to sit down immediately.

Mr. Rosenthal: I except.

3838 Sol Bernstein—For People—Redirect

Mr. Talley: I wish to make an objection, sir.

The Court: Make it, Judge Talley.

Mr. Talley: I object to it upon the ground that it is not the best evidence—any reference to his testimony in the Monticello Gangi Cohen case. The best evidence of that is the stenographer's minutes. If he is to be interrogated about his testimony there, there is only one 3839 proper way to do that and that is read him the question and the answer.

The Court: I think that is a good objection, and I think that if we proceed under the ruling as made it involves a retrial of the evidence in that case, and that cannot be permitted here

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out the last answer.

The Court: Sustained upon that ground. Strike out the answer.

3840 Q. You were asked by Capone's lawyer and Weiss's lawyer about the Yuran body that was buried. Remember that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Hyman Yuran? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know what business he was in? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know who ordered him killed? A. No, sir.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to that.

Mr. Talley: Object to that, if your Honor pleases, wholly irrelevant, wholly immaterial, makes no difference whether he knew him or not. He has testified that he helped to bury the body, that he helped to carry the body to the burial place. What difference does it make whether he knew him or not?

The Court: Don't argue. Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Did you know the motive for the killing of Yuran?

3842

Mr. Rosenthal: Objected to.

Mr. Talley: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Defendants' Counsel: Exception.

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you testify in any Grand Jury, either in Brooklyn, Sullivan County, or anywhere else, except in the Rosen case, The Gangi case, and the Yuran case? A. Them three cases.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question. 3843

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Q. Did you testify before any Grand Jury investigating any other cases of any kind, nature or description?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. What do you mean, sir?

Q. I will do it over with you.

3844 Sol Bernstein—For People—Redirect

The Court: He said those were the only three cases. Let it go at that.

Mr. Turkus: If that answer is there, I am contented with it. That is all.

Shall I call another witness?

Mr. Barshay: I have some motions.

The Court: Mr. Barshay is starting in.

Mr. Barshay: I just have a formal motion, sir. I don't want this man on the stand.

3845

The Court: You want to make a motion?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: You had better make it.

Mr. Barshay: I renew my motion to strike out the testimony of this witness, both direct, cross, and redirect, on the grounds heretofore set forth, that it is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial with respect to the defendant Buchalter, and does not tend to connect him with the commission of the crime in any shape, manner or form.

3846

The Court: It remains to be seen whether or not it will be so connected.

Mr. Barshay: Yes, but at present, sir.

The Court: That is purely a question of law. The motion is denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, and let the record show—

The Court: Taken subject to connection.

Mr. Barshay: Let the record show that every objection and exception and motion made by every counsel inures to our benefit.

The Court: Precisely. That is everything?

Mr. Turkus: That is everything with this witness.

The Court: First remand the witness.

(The witness leaves the court-room.)

The Court: Gentlemen of the jury, please remember the previous admonition of the Court. Do not discuss this case. 3848
Let nobody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open and follow all other instructions as to your demeanor while under supervision as heretofore given.

You may leave until ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

(The jury retired from the court-room.)

All others remain in order.

The defendants are remanded.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to Friday, October 31, 1941, at ten o'clock a. m.) 3849

3850 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 31, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

MAX RUBIN, (refusing to give his address), called as a witness in behalf of The People, after being duly sworn, testifies as follows:

By Clerk Clark:

3851 Q. Where do you live? A. I will not give my address. I was shot once.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor now to admonish this witness that there shall be no remarks. I do not know whether the jury heard it, but I ask your Honor to tell him now not to repeat it. And if they did hear it, I ask you to admonish them to disregard it.

The Court: So admonished, and the jury is so instructed.

3852 Direct examination by Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Rubin, how old are you? A. I will be 52 November 5th or 7th, I don't know which.

Q. Are you married? A. I am.

Q. Have you any children? A. Two.

Q. Have you been previously married? A. I have been.

Q. When you say "two children," was there a child by each marriage? A. That is right.

Q. Do you live with your wife and son? A. I do.

Q. Did you attend the public school system in New York City? A. I did.

Q. What school did you attend? A. Public School 34, Broome and Sheriff Street, New York.

Q. Is that commonly known as the East Side of Manhattan? A. That is right.

Q. How far did you go in Public School? A. Went up to 4-B.

Q. Did you leave school when you were in the fourth grade? A. I did. 3854

Q. What did you do after you left school? A. I went to work as a messenger boy for the Postal Telegraph.

Q. You say you left school in the fourth grade? A. Yes, sir, that is right, eleven years old.

Q. For what company did you work as a messenger boy when you left school? A. The Postal Telegraph, 533 Broadway, New York.

Q. Did you do any work after you left the Postal Telegraph Company? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall what your next job was? 3855
A. I worked for a concern at 150 Nassau Street, a medical manufacturing company.

Q. What work did you do there? A. Messenger boy.

Q. What was your next job, if you recall? A. Then I worked for a concern named Isidor Cohen, or Isidor Stern on 14th Street, who made gold caps, dental work. I worked in the laboratory.

Q. At one time had you been a messenger boy for the Western Union? A. Yes, sir, in 14th Street east of 3rd Avenue.

3856 Q. Was that a concern that manufactured gold caps named Stillwell & Gladding? A. No, sir, this was an analytical chemist, I worked for later, when I was about 19 or 20 years of age.

Q. I am trying the best I can to put the jobs in the order in which you had them. Did you at one time work for French & Ward? A. Yes, sir, I did, as shipping clerk; they were on Worth or Leonard Street.

Q. How long did you work there? A. Quite 3857 some time.

Q. Did you ever work as a milk driver? A. I did.

Q. For whom were you employed? A. I worked for the Locust Farms and then later on for the Sheffield Farms.

Q. In your capacity were you a milk driver and salesman? A. Well, that is what a milk driver is, a salesman.

Q. Did you work for a railroad company? A. I did, I was a conductor on the 4th Avenue Line, and later on for the 5th Avenue Bus Line.

3858 Q. That would be the New York City Transit System that has railroad and transit facilities throughout New York City? A. That is right.

Q. Having left school at the age of approximately 11 years, Mr. Rubin, did you continue your education? A. I did.

Q. Was it at night schools? A. Yes, sir, preparatory schools and night schools.

Q. What schools did you attend? A. I went to the New York Preparatory School, I went to the Eron Preparatory School, Manhattan. Whenever I could possibly further my limited education I did.

Q. You say you have been married twice? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. In 1917, you were then married to your first wife; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What classification did you get in the draft?

Mr. Barshay: I object. That is a matter of cross-examination, sir. I have not objected to these preliminaries, but they continue on.

3860

The Court: This is just a pro forma background.

Mr. Barshay: It is not a formal background from this point on, these are matters for cross-examination.

The Court: As long as it is objected to I will sustain it.

Mr. Turkus: May I urge I have a right—

Mr. Barshay: Please—I do not want to have any trouble. The Judge sustained the objection.

3861

Mr. Turkus: The District Attorney has no exception.

The Court: You mean in this war?

Mr. Turkus: In 1917. I have a right, I submit, to have his true life.

The Court: This has no relation to what happened lately?

Mr. Turkus: No.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. My first classification was 4-A.

3862 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Was that on the basis of being a married man with children?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: It is irrelevant.

Mr. Turkus: There is a situation in regard to the 1917 draft that the jury has a right to know.

Mr. Barshay: They will know it.

Mr. Turkus: And the District Attorney has a right to submit the witness in 3863 his true light, to the jury for their consideration.

The Court: I think I sense the situation. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (Last question repeated to the witness.) A. Yes, sir.

Q. Thereafter, was there a complaint made in connection with your classification? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that made by your wife? A. It was.

3864 Q. At that time had you been living separate and apart from your wife from time to time, and living with her from time to time? A. That is so.

Q. After complaint had been made, what was your new classification? A. 1-A.

Q. Were you sent for or called to appear for physical examination after the 1-A classification? A. I was.

Q. Did you go? A. I did.

Q. Were you examined? A. I was.

Q. Were you called up for services? A. I was.

Q. Did you go? A. I did not.

Q. Now, sometime in the year 1918 did you join and become a member of a union known as the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. That is right.

Q. Becoming a member of that union did you join a particular or specific local thereof? A. I did.

3866

Mr. Rosenthal: Judge, so that I in no wise may interrupt the continuity of the testimony of this witness, on behalf of the defendant Capone I object to this line of testimony on the ground it is in no wise binding on him. May I have a general objection to the entire line of testimony?

Mr. Talley: The defendant Weiss joins in the objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Defense Counsel: We except.

3867

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have an objection to this entire line so I do not have to get up at each question?

The Court: The trouble is, you get up and then the Court is on its guard. There may be a special reason for some particular question.

Mr. Rosenthal: I mean, if there is any special reason I will get up on a different ground: but my ground now is a general ground in so far as it affects the defendant Capone it is not binding. But if there is any special ground I will get up and make an additional objection so as to apprise the Court of the additional reason, if there be any.

3868 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

The Court: All right.

Q. What was the specific local that you were a member of? A. Local 4, Cutters Union, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Q. At that time who was president of the 3869 Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. Sidney Hillman.

Q. After you joined the Amalgamated Union and became attached to Local No. 4, did you work as a cutter? A. I did.

Q. Did that membership in the Cutters Union entitle you to work as a cutter? A. It did.

Q. Had you done any work as a cutter before becoming a member? A. No.

Q. When you became a member of this union did you get a job as a cutter? A. I did.

Q. You say you had no previous experience?
A. None whatsoever.

3870 Q. Who did you get your first job with? A. My first job was with a bathrobe house, the name of the concern was Pollock & Behrens, they are on 4th Avenue and 12th Street.

Q. Did you get a job there as a cutter for this bathrobe house? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Was that a job of the cutting of bathrobes? A. That is right.

Q. From that time on did you work for a considerable period of time as a cutter for various concerns? A. I did.

Q. By what houses were you employed and what was their line of merchandise? A. I worked for the F.B.Q.; they are on Lafayette Street. They were making uniforms.

Q. Army uniforms? A. Yes, sir. I worked for Kahn & Dreyfus; they were making Army uniforms; and several other houses I do not remember; and then I worked for some clothing houses that made ordinary clothing, like Sherrick & Hirsch, Samuel Falk, maybe some others.

Q. From 1918 how long did you work as a cutter, as you have just related to the Court and the jury? A. Until about 1926 or 1927. 3872

Q. Was there a period of time when you did not work as a cutter? A. That is right.

Q. What was that period of time? A. Between 1921 and 1923.

Q. Did you then leave the United States? A. I did.

Q. What country did you go to? A. Germany.

Q. In order to leave the United States to go to a foreign country it was necessary, wasn't it, to get a passport? A. It was.

Q. In 1917, as you have told the jury, you had evaded service in the draft, is that correct? 3873
A. That is right.

Q. Did you get a passport to leave the United States? A. I did.

Q. Did you get it in the name of Max Rubin? A. I did not.

Q. What name did you get your passport in? A. Instead of using the name Max, I used the name Benjamin.

Q. Was the name Benjamin the name of some member of your family? A. A brother of mine.

Q. When you returned from Europe, did you rejoin your association and connection with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you go back to Local No. 4 of the Cutters Union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. As I understand it, then, you maintained that connection until 1926 or 1927? A. That is right.

Q. Do you know a man named Murray Weinstein? A. I do.

3875 Q. Do you know him well? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America Union? A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity? A. He was business agent, later on became the manager of that particular local, Local 4.

Q. At the time when you rejoined your connection with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America in Local 4, Cutters Union, what position then did this Murray Weinstein hold? A. To my best recollection he was a business agent.

Q. Shortly after you rejoined the union of the Amalgamated Clothing Cutters Union, Local 4, 3876 were you elected to any office in that union? A. I was an executive board member, and became an executive board member when I rejoined.

Q. Had you been an executive board member before you went to Europe? A. I was.

Q. On your return from Europe were you on the executive board again? A. A short time after I came back, yes, sir.

Q. Is that an elective office, in the executive board? A. It is.

Q. In addition to being a member of the executive board did you occupy any other official position with the union? A. I was on committees. I was on the finance committee of the organization.

3877

Q. Until approximately what time—what year—did you continue in these official capacities with the union? A. Until 1927.

Q. Did you, while you were a union official connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, make the acquaintance of a man named Terry Burns?

3878

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as wholly irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

May we fix the date, please?

Mr. Turkus: I will.

A. I did.

Q. Approximately when did you meet Burns? A. About 1923.

Q. Did you also make the acquaintance of an individual while you were an official of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America by the name of Abie Slabow?

3879

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Were those individuals, Abie Slabow and Terry Burns, connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America?

3880 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They were on the payroll.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer. The answer requires "yes" or "no."

3881 The Court: Not necessarily. Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. At the time Burns and Slabow were on the payroll of the union, what position did Murray Weinstein occupy with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that. It has nothing to do with this defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3882

A. He was active in the organizing work of the organization.

Q. Did the payroll, in connection with Slabow and Burns, continue with the Amalgamated at the time after Weinstein became maaager of the union?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection, not binding on this defendant, in no wise connected with this case.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir, until—the payroll continued while Weinstein was manager of the union, yes, sir.

Q. In your connection as a union official, did you become acquainted with a man known as Philip Orlofsky?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3884

A. I did.

Q. Was he connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. He was.

Q. Now, in or about 1926, did Philip Orlofsky secure some official position with the Amalgamated Union?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection; I don't know, Judge, whether we are trying the Amalgamated Union or trying this case.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 3885

The Court: You and I will find it out at the same moment, so we must see what it is all about.

Mr. Barshay: This man has been on the stand forty minutes and he has not mentioned a single thing yet. It is absolutely immaterial to this issue. I know the purpose of this examination.

The Court: I see. If it is not material, then why object?

Mr. Barshay: It is not material.

3886 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Turkus: May the record indicate that the witness went on the stand at approximately ten minutes to eleven and it is now ten minates after eleven?

Mr. Barshay: All right, twenty minutes.

Q. (Last question repeated to witness.) A. He was business agent; then he became manager of the union by defeating Murray Weinstein in 3887 the election.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After Philip Orlofsky replaced Murray Weinstein as manager of the Cutters Union, Local 4, of the Amalgamated, did Burns and Slabow continue on the payroll of the union?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objec-
3888 tion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They did.

Q. Now, how long after Orlofsky became manager of the union did Slabow and Burns remain on the payroll?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Until 1927, I believe.

Q. Now, Mr. Rubin, as an official of the union did you come to know a man named Hymie Holtz?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I knew him as Hymie "Curly" Holtz, very well. 3890

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay. Exception.

Q. Was "Curly" an alias?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know whether Hymie "Curly" Holtz is alive today? 3891

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: This calls for yes or no. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know a man named Shapiro?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

3892

The Witness: What Shapiro?
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Well, the one who is sometimes known as Jacob Shapiro. Did you know such an individual? Did you come to meet him, as an official of the union?

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
3893 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I do, but they never called him "Jacob Shapiro."

Q. Under what name did you know Shapiro? A. Charley Gurrah.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3894 Q. (The Court) How do you spell that? A. G-u-r r-a-h.

Q. As a union official working with the Amalgamated, did you come to know the defendant Louis Buchalter? A. I did.

Q. Under what name other than Buchalter did you know him? A. Lepke, and there is another name we used when we called him on the telephone.

Q. I will come to that later. What was the name under which he was commonly referred to? A. Lepke.

Q. Now, did the Defendant Lepke, Gurrah, and Curly Holtz become connected with the union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They did.

Q. Whose places in the union did Lepke, Gurrah, and Hymie Curly Holtz take? 3896

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Slabow and Terry Burns.

Q. In other words, Lepke, Gurrah and Hymie Holtz replaced Slabow and Burns? A. That is right.

Q. And that was after Orlofsky was business manager of the union? A. That is right. 3897

Mr. Barshay: May we have the time?
Mr. Turkus: You will have it, be patient.

Q. Through whom, Mr. Rubin, did you make the acquaintance of Lepke and Gurrah? A. Through Curly.

Q. Who was it that introduced you to Curly first, do you recall?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Irving Whitey Deutsch.

Q. Was Irving Whitey Deutsch a member of the Union? A. He was, at that time.

Q. Was he a cutter? A. He was.

Q. Was it through your association with Deutsch that you ultimately made the acquaintance of Hymie Curly Holtz, Lepke, and Gurrah? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

3899 Q. How long have you known Lepke and Gurrah? A. Since 1927, I believe.

Q. Had you seen Lepke before you actually made his acquaintance? A. I did.

Q. Where had you seen him? A. In the Clothing Center, particularly downtown, on Broadway.

Q. Is that commonly known as the Clothing District? A. At that time it was below 14th Street. Now it is above 14th Street, on 5th Avenue.

Q. So at the time you first saw him, you saw him in the area that was then commonly known 3900 as the Clothing District? A. That is right.

Q. When did you first become intimate with Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that characterization.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. 1932.

Q. Now, prior to 1932, did you come in frequent contact with Lepke? A. Intimately? You are speaking of intimately? Not how often?

saw him before 1932—you are speaking of intimately?

Q. Yes. A. By intimately you mean after Curly Holtz disappeared?

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out. He can answer yes or no.

Mr. Turkus: I move to withdraw it in that form.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor instruct the jury to disregard that statement? 3902

The Court: It does not mean anything as far as I can see.

Mr. Barshay: Whatever it means, may they disregard it?

The Court: Somebody disappeared—suppose he did?

Mr. Barshay: Do you strike it out?

The Court: It does not mean anything.

Mr. Barshay: I take exception.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Barshay: I withdraw the exception. 3903

Q. Did Hymie Curly Holtz have a place of business in the clothing district?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as immaterial.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He had a place of business on 24th Street.

Q. Did he have a partner in that business? A. He did.

3904

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Who was the partner? A. His name was Dun.

Q. Did you have occasion to go to that place of business from time to time?

3905

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I went there from time to time.

Q. Who did you see there?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3906

A. Curley, Lepke, Gurrah, and a few others.

Q. In the years you have known Lepke, did you ever make contacts with him and with Gurrah?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Rosenthal: At this time I object. I have a special objection. I object to it as in no wise connecting or binding on the defendant Capone; no knowledge on his part of any of these things.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Now, as an official of the union did you have any business deals with Lepke? A. I did, and with Gurrah whenever Lepke was not around.

Q. Without stating the nature of the work you did, will you tell the Court and the jury whether you did any work for Lepke in connection with Local 138 of the Flour Truckmens Union? 3908

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Likewise, without stating the nature of the work you performed, tell the Court and jury whether or not you did any work for Lepke in connection with the Expressmens Association. 3909

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. What was the full name of the Expressmens Association? A. The Greater New York Tailors Expressmens Association.

Q. Was that the association of boss truckers? A. Of boss truckers in the clothing industry.

Q. Exclusively? A. Exclusively.

3910 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. As a result of the work you did for Lepke for the Flour Truckmens Union and the Greater New York Tailors Expressmens Association, did you come in frequent contact and have many meetings with Lepke? A. Almost daily; when he was around, almost daily.

Mr. Barshay: He answered the question.

The Witness: I have got to be careful.

3911 Mr. Barshay: You had better be careful.

The Witness: I want to be exact as I can be. Don't you bulldoze me. I know Hymie Barshay very well. Don't bulldoze me.

Mr. Barshay: I never saw this man in my life. He had an experience in a case before and he is resuming the same tactics, and I read him the record and he was admonished by the judge. Now I ask your Honor to admonish him to answer questions. He is an intelligent individual.

3912 The Court: You are speaking in a very angry tone. You presume to jump up and in that tone to aggravate this witness by addressing him and admonishing him, when you have no business to do it. You brought this on yourself.

Mr. Barshay: I take exception.

The Court: You are both to blame.

Mr. Barshay: You should tell him now he cannot stand up in this court-room and speak that way to any person who makes a legal and proper and competent objection.

The Court: You are in a highly excited state.

Mr. Barshay: I am not excited.

The Court: You are. You are shouting in a high voice and in an excited manner.

Resume the examination, please.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Sometime in the year 1928 were you appointed by the executive board to become a business agent of Local 240 of the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union? A. I was. 3914

Q. At that time was Local 240 of the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. It was.

Q. Sometime in or about the year 1933 did they, Local 240 of the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union, become affiliated as part of the Teamsters Union? A. It did. It became part of the Teamsters Union of the A. F. of L.

Q. In 1928 it was then part of the Amalgamated, is that correct? A. That is right. 3915

Q. Until what year did you continue on the payroll, as business agent of Local 240? A. Until February, 1939.

Q. Did you do any work, however, as business agent for the local from about the middle of October, 1936, until August of 1937? A. I did not—very little.

Q. Now, after that period which you have just related to the Court and Jury, and from on or about August, 1937, until—I withdraw the question 3916 Q. After that period when you say you did very little work, did you become intensely active as business agent?

Mr. Climenko: That is objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Climenko: Exception.

A. From August, 1937, yes, sir.

Q. Now, going back to the time when Orlofsky replaced Weinstein as business manager of the 3917 Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Local No. 4, did there come a time when there was some internal dispute in the union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, not binding on the defendants.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Between whom was the dispute?

3918

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Between the Hillman group and the Orlofsky group.

Q. (The Court) When? A. 1931.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer. I cannot understand what this has to do with this case.

3919

The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Who was with Philip Orlofsky's faction or side?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay Exception.

3920

A. In the union, that is directly connected with the Orlofsky faction, inside the union there was Abe Beckerman.

Q. What position did he occupy? A. He was manager of the Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; there was Dave Wolff, who was ex-manager of the union, and then there were several business agents with Orlofsky in the Cutters Union, that were inside the union.

Q. Who were with Orlofsky outside of the union but on the payroll?

3921

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, not binding upon the defendant. Too remote. Nothing to do with this case. The purpose of Mr. Turkus's question is too obvious—I don't like to say it, but I will be forced to say it if he doesn't desist.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Is the question clear to you? A. Yes, sir.

Hymie Curly Holtz, up to 1932, then Lepke and Gurrah, after that.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, this dispute in the union, what was 3923 that over?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. A question of power.

Q. Was that the real dispute?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the characterization.

The Court: Objection overruled.

3924 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. That was the real dispute.

Q. Would you say power and supremacy?

A. That is right.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you know a man named Bruno Belea?

A. I do.

Q. What position did he occupy in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. He was a general organizer for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers directly, the general office.

Q. Did Bruno Belea take a side in the internal dispute?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that on all the grounds already stated?

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3926

A. H did.

Q. Which side was he on?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He was on the Hillman side.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 3927

Q. Now, daring the course of this internai dispute of control between the Orlofsky faction on the one side and the Hillman faction on the other, did you have a meeting with Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. In that meeting did Lepke and you have a talk? A. We did.

Q. At that time had you been seeing Lepke frequently in regard to other business deals you had with him, the character of which you will not disclose?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

A. I want to know the time.

3929 Mr. Turkus: Question withdrawn.

Q. Do you know a man named Luciano?

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I know him as "Lucky"—Charley Luciano.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of 3930 a mistrial.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Through whom did you meet Charley "Lucky" Luciano?

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Through Lepke.

Q. Now, during the course of this dispute between Orlofsky and the Hillman factions, did Lepke have any talk with you in which the name of Luciano was mentioned?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.
Q What did Lepke tell you?

Mr. Barshay: I object. 3932
The Court: Fix the time.

Q. When was that? A. The early part of 1932.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as too remote, incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
Mr. Rosenthal: On behalf of the defendant Capone I object on the ground it is no wise binding on that defendant. 3933
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.
Mr. Rosenthal: It is in no wise connected with this case.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.
Mr. Cuff: Same objection on behalf of the defendant Weiss.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Cuff: Exception.

3934 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Now, the question is, What did Lepke tell you in that talk?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He told me that Orlofsky would have to give up his fight—would have to give up his union.

3935

Q. Was the name of Luciano mentioned?

Mr. Barshay: Are you satisfied he finished with the answer—the answer is not complete.

Q. Please answer before the next question. A. He said to me that Orlofsky has to give up the fight; that he has to give up his union; that he had just met with Lucky and Bebea, and that the deal was made for Orlofsky to give up the union, and I should get hold of Orlofsky for him.

3936

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

Q. (The Court) How do you spell Bebea? A. B-e-b-e-a, the first name is Bruno.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. What is that—he met who? A. He had just met Bruno Belea and Lucky, and I should get hold of Orlofsky for him. That Orlofsky would have to give up the union, his union.

Q. What union was that? A. That was the union that Orlofsky started in opposition to the Amalgamated.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied. 3938

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Who was "Lucky" that was mentioned in the conversation?

Mr. Barshay: I object. He has been identified.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. His name is Charley Luciano—"Lucky".

Q. When Lepke told you about that deal which he had just made with Luciano and Belea, 3939 what did you say to him?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I said to him, "What about me?" He said, that I am going to remain on but the other officials, Emanuel Strauss, and Abe Beckerman, and Irving Alexander, and maybe one or two others I don't remember, were going to get a year's pay after the union broke.

Q. What was their connection? A. They were business agents, and they continued as business agents in Orlofsky's union. They would have to give that up, but they would get a year's pay from the Amalgamated, and I was to continue as I was before, as business agent of Local 240.

Q. These other officials got a year's pay and were on the street?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as a con-
3941 clusion.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. When you said to Lepke, "What about me?" what official position in the union did you hold? A. I was the business agent of Local 240, the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union, at that time connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Q. After Lepke told you your job would be safe, in the language you told the jury, did he tell you to do anything? A. To get Orlofsky for him.

3942

Mr. Barshay: May we have the date?

Q. Tell the jury to the best of your recollection what Lepke said to you in regard to arranging for a meeting with Orlofsky.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: See if you can be more precise.

The Witness: He told me to get a hotel room where we could meet.

Q. Did you get a hotel room for the meeting? A. I did.

Q. What was the name of the hotel? A. The Governor Clinton.

Q. Did you arrange for a meeting between Lepke and Orlofsky?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3944

A. I did.

Q. Did you attend the meeting? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: I tried to get a date set.
Mr. Klein: It was 1932.
The Court: It was early in 1932.

Q. Did you, Lepke, and Orlofsky meet in a room in the Governor Clinton Hotel? A. We did.

Q. Did Lepke talk to Orlofsky? A. He did.

Q. At that time Lepke was on the payroll of the Orlofsky faction, wasn't he? 3945

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He was.

Mr. Barshay: I move again for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3946 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Will you be kind enough to tell the Court and jury what Lepke said to Orlofsky?

Mr. Turkus: I will withdraw it in that form.

Q. Was there a talk between Lepke, Orlofsky, and yourself? A. There was.

Q. Did Lepke say something to Orlofsky? A. He did.

3947 Q. What did he say to him?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He said he would have to break up his union; that he had just left Charley "Lucky" and Bebea, and that Orlofsky would have to break up his organization.

Q. After this meeting did Orlofsky give up the union? A. He did.

Q. Did he quit the factional fight? A. He 3948 did.

Q. Now, after Orlofsky quit that fight did Lepke and Gurrah continue on the payroll of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled. Say yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

The Court: The witness makes a request, and I was advised before he came on the stand to be on the alert—for physical reasons he wants to take a recess. For how long?

The Witness: Just five minutes.

The Court: Then we will make it ten minutes, so the jury will have a chance to go in and out from the room.

The witness may leave.

The jury may recess for a few minutes. Do not discuss the case.

The defendants are remanded. 3950

(Whereupon a recess of fifteen minutes was taken.)

(After Recess—Trial Resumed)

(12:00 noon)

MAX RUBIN, a witness in behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

3951

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus (Continued):

Q. Did you continue meeting with Lepke and Bruno Belea from time to time? A. I did.

Q. In any of those meetings was there a conversation in which there was a discussion as to who was to be the intermediary between Lepke and the union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3952 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

A. There was.

Q. Who was present at that meeting? A. Belea, Lepke, and myself.

Q. Relate the conversation to the Court and the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

May we fix the time?

3953 The Court: Yes, time and place.

The Witness: It was in 1932—the early part of 1932—I am trying very hard to place the month for you if I can.

The Court: What was the place of meeting?

The Witness: The place, I believe, was Belea's—he had a furnished room on 11th Street—I believe it was in Belea's room.

By Mr. Turkus:

3954 Q. Relate the conversation to the Court and the jury.

Mr. Barshay: Note my objection and exception.

Mr. Talley: I object on behalf of the defendant Weiss, if your Honor please, to all this line of testimony.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. Belea said the union wants Danny Fields and Paul Berger to be the intermediary between the union and Lepke.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

Q. (The Court) Danny Fields? A. Yes, sir, and Paul Berger.

The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. At that time who was the intermediary?

3956

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Whitey Deutsch.

Q. Answer this question yes or no only: Is Danny Fields alive?

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

3957

The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He is not.

Q. Did Danny Fields and Paul Berger become the intermediaries after that conversation, between Lepke and the union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, too remote, calls for a conclusion, tends to prejudice the jury.

3958 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

The Court: So far the Court does not understand it, so I assume the jury does not. It is all subject to connection.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: And not prejudicial.

A. They did.

Q. Was it after that arrangement was made that Murray Weinstein became reinstated as manager of Local 4 of the Clothing Cutters 3959 Union?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. It was.

Q. Do you know Sam Katz? A. I do.

Q. Did you meet him through being a union official? A. I did.

Q. At the time I am talking about, namely, when Weinstein was reinstated as manager of 3960 Local 4 of the Cutters Union of the Amalgamated, was Katz connected with the union? A. He was business agent of Local 4.

Q. Now, after that meeting out of which Fields and Berger became the intermediary between the union and Lepke, did you continue meeting Lepke, Bebea, Sam Katz, and Murray Weinstein? A. On different occasions, yes, sir.

Q. On some of the occasions did you attend a meeting as between Lepke and Murray Weinstein? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you get together, with Lepke and Murray Weinstein? A. At the Governor Clinton Hotel. Murray Weinstein had arranged for a room.

Q. After the arrangement had been made for a go-between, Danny Fields and Berger, did there come a time when Lepke had a talk with you in regard to stoppage?

Mr. Barshay: I objec. The question is ambiguous to me. In respect to what?

Q. (The Court) What was the word? A. Stoppage. 3962

The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (Previous question read to witness.) A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the Court and the jury what is meant by "stoppage". A. It is preliminary to calling a strike. When the union official or union officials are not sure of a success in calling people out and having the strike run properly, they call it "stoppage," so that if it falls down and 3963 does not materialize, or there is a double-cross in any way, nothing is said about it. But if it takes on force and volume, and people respond, then you call it a strike.

Q. Will you tell this Court and jury what Lepke told you about a stoppage?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3964 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

A. He said he had first met Sam Katz and the union wants a stoppage of all the trucks, clothing trucks, that branch stores were taking all the work out of town and that the trucks would have to be stopped, and he said, "If this thing continues, all the workers out of town, there will be nothing left for the New York market." Then he said, "Whenever manufacturers go out of town there is no chance to make a dime."

3965

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, at that time what official position did you have with the union? A. I was business agent of Local 240, the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union at that time connected with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Q. Were the union members fellows who drove clothing trucks? A. That is right.

3966

Q. Was a stoppage to be called in the clothing trucking industry? A. That is right.

Q. Was anything mentioned where the New York business was going? A. Pennsylvania.

Q. Now, when Lepke told you about this stoppage to be called in the clothing trucking industry, did he tell you a specific date or dates where the stoppage would be called? A. He did.

Q. Can you recall that date? A. The summer of 1932, I believe.

Q. After Lepke told you about the stoppage to be called on a specific date, did he give you any instructions? A. Yes, sir, he told me to go out and stop all the trucks.

Q. By stopping all the trucks, what does that mean? A. All the trucks that cart clothing in and out of New York were to be stopped on a specific day.

Q. Does that mean that no trucks roll on the streets? A. No trucks.

Q. When you got your instructions to see that no trucks rolled, did you say anything to Lepke? A. I told him I believed I could stop all the 3968 trucks except three companies that I had my doubts about.

Q. Did you tell Lepke the three companies you had your doubts about? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell us what you said to him? A. I told him I did not think I would be able to stop Louis Cooper, or the Garfield Express Company. I am almost sure the Branch Storage would not stop, and since the New York and New Jersey handled both union and non-union work, I thought there would be trouble stopping them to.

3969

Q. Were they an important factor in the clothing trucking industry? A. They were taking most of the work out of town, yes, sir.

Q. When you said "Louis Cooper," did you say "Louis Cooper, the Garfield Express"? A. I did.

Q. Where was the Garfield Express operating from? A. Oak Street, Passaic, New Jersey.

Q. Was Louis Cooper of the Garfield Express operating as a union or a non-union? A. Non-union.

Q. You have also related to the Court and jury that you mentioned New York and New Jersey. A. That is right.

Q. By that do you mean the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company? A. That is right.

Q. Engaged in the business of clothing trucking? A. That is right.

Q. Now, where was the New York & New Jersey transacting its business, in what state? A. It has done business in New York; had busi-
3971 ness in Passaic, in competition with Louis Cooper, and they had a little business in Pennsylvania, I think in Wilkes Barre, in that section.

Q. In the New Jersey end of their clothing industry, you say they were in competition with Louis Cooper of the Garfield Express? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did Lepke say anything to you about the Pennsylvania business of the New York & New Jersey Transportation Company? A. He said all the business was to stop and the Pennsyl-3972 vania business was to be done away with.

Q. Who was operating as the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company at the time when you were informed of the stoppage and given instructions? A. Nathan Salzman, Morris Bluestein, and Joe Rosen.

Q. By Joe Rosen, do you mean Joseph Rosen, now deceased? A. That is right.

Q. After you told Lepke you might have trouble with those three firms that you have related to the jury, did Lepke say something to you? A. He told me to go out and see what I could do, if I had any trouble to come back and see him.

Q. Were you instructed to report to Lepke? A. Just what I told you. He told me to go and see him if I had any trouble.

Q. Did you, pursuant to Lepke's instructions, go out in an endeavor to have a stoppage of all trucks in the clothing trucking industry? A. I did.

Q. Did you go to Branch Storage? A. I did.

Q. In pursuance of your instructions from 3974
Lepke? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who did you meet, connected with the Branch Storage? A. Meyer Butinsky, his first name is Meyer.

Q. What was Meyer Butinsky in the Branch Storage? A. He was one of the owners.

Q. Did Butinsky agree to stop his truck on a designated day?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 3975

A. He did not.

Q. Did you go to the people operating the New York & New Jersey Transportation Company? A. I did.

Q. Did you talk to them more than once? A. I spoke to them several times.

Mr. Barshay: Let us identify who he spoke to, please.

Mr. Turkus: May I continue with my examination?

3976 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. It is important to know with whom this gentleman spoke.

The Court: Proceed.

Q. After you had this interview you have related to the jury, did you go back to see Lepke?

3977 A. I did.

Q. Did you make a report to Lepke? A. I told him what I had done. I don't like the word "report". I just told him what I had done.

Q. In your conversation with Lepke, was the name of Joseph Rosen mentioned?

Mr. Barshay: I object to Mr. Turkus leading.

The Court: This is simply directing attention to a specific point.

Mr. Barshay: The man said nothing to have his attention directed to anything.

3978 He can ask for the conversation. That can be had from the witness and not from Mr. Turkus.

The Court: See if you can reframe your question so as to direct attention to the conversation without mentioning the name.

Q. Relate what you told us you said to Lepke. A. Regarding the New York & New Jersey?

Q. Yes.

The Court: Try to fix the approximate year.

The Witness: 1932—Summer of 1932. I told him I had been to the New York and New Jersey and that they objected to stop because they thought it was a trick in it—a trick on the part of Louis Cooper—and they did not want to step. And when I told Joe Rosen he would have to give up the Pennsylvania business, Joe Rosen said that was the only thing he had in business; he did not have any money investment there but he had brought 3980 in that business and that is all he had there. Sobler objected also.

Q. After you told that to Lepke did he say anything to you as to what you were to do? A. I told him I thought I could straighten out the account of the concern if I could get him a little more business, and then maybe I would be able to straighten it out.

Q. What concern was that? A. The one I had in mind was the Fyirsky Clothing Company.

Q. I am talking about what concern you had in mind getting more business to effectuate the 3981 stoppage. A. The New York and New Jersey.

Q. Did you see and talk to Rosen after that? A. I spoke to the two, Rosen, Binestein and Sobler.

Q. After talking with them did you have any talk with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke about that interview? A. I told him that the three of them are objecting, Rosen persisted because of the Pennsylvania situation, and the others also objected because they were afraid that Louis

Cooper was going to take away all their business, and there was kind of a move to hurt them.

Q. Was the name of Rosen mentioned? A. Just as I told you.

Q. Did Lepke say anything about Rosen?

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus, please, may we have this man give his testimony on matters which are now for the first time becoming material, in some respects at least, to this issue, without you making suggestions to the witness.

3983

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor must have in mind that there had been a lot of transactions—

The Court: Please don't argue. Objection is overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Last question repeated.)

A. He told me he wanted me to see him.

Q. At about that time, in the year 1932, were there various places where you met with Lepke? 3984 A. There were.

Q. Various places in the clothing district? A. The clothing district, and up in the cloak section.

Q. Now, when Lepke told you he wanted to see Rosen, did he specify any particular place that you can recall? A. To my best recollection, I believe it was Sam Weiner, on 20th Street.

Q. In what business was Sam Weiner? A. Canvas.

Q. Do you remember the trade name? A. I do not.

Q. Where was it located? A. On 20th Street.

Q. Off what other street? A. Fifth Avenue.

Q. After Lepke told you to arrange for an appointment, did you go to see Rosen? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell him that Lepke wanted to see him? A. I did.

Q. Were you present when Rosen and Lepke met? A. I was.

Q. Where did they meet? A. In that concern, Weiner's concern.

Q. Now, who was present there at the time of the meeting, tell us all the people who were 3986 in the room? A. Lepke, Gurrah, Danny Fields, and I.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as irrelevant and immaterial, and too remote.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. Now, do I understand correctly that there were present Lepke, Gurrah, Danny Fields, Rosen and yourself at the meeting? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time was Gurrah associated with Lepke in business?

3987

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as immaterial here.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Danny Fields the individual whom you told us was intermediary? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Gurrah then Lepke's partner?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as a conclusion.

The Court: How does he know?

Mr. Turkus: Question withdrawn.

Q. What did Rosen say at the meeting? A. He walked in and he said that I, Rubin, "told me that I would have to close down the Pennsylvania business, and we have to close down the whole business in New York. The Pennsylvania business was the only thing I have in the concern and if I lose that I lose everything in the 3989 concern."

Q. Did Lepke say anything to Rosen when he said that? A. "You are kidding, you have plenty of business, you are kidding.

Q. Plenty of business in addition to what? A. To the Pennsylvania business.

Q. Did Lepke say anything else when there was a discussion about business? A. He wanted to see his books.

Q. When Lepke said that to Rosen, what did Rosen do? A. Rosen said, "I will show you," and he went to the 'phone and called up his 3990 office and spoke.

Q. He spoke on the telephone? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know a young lady named Sylvia Rosen? A. I do.

Q. What was her relationship to Joseph Rosen? A. His daughter.

Q. After the telephone conversation who came to the meeting? A. Sylvia Rosen.

Q. Did she have something in her possession? A. She did.

Q. What was it? A. A book.

Q. How many, do you know? A. I don't; I know there was one large one.

Q. When she came in with the books—

Mr. Barshay: I object.

Mr. Turkus: Question withdrawn.

Q. Was there one or more than one, if you can recall? A. I cannot.

Q. When she came in with the large book, do you recall what happened? A. She gave it to her father.

Q. What did the father do with the book? A. He brought the book over to the desk.

Q. Who was at the desk? A. Charley Gurrah 3992 and Lepke.

Q. All right, tell the court and jury what happened then in connection with the large book that you recall. A. Charley Gurrah opened the book. He went with his hand like this (indicating), "You cannot go to this house, you cannot go to this house."

Q. Where was Lepke at the time Gurrah did that slicking motion, hitting the book, as you indicated? A. Close by him.

Q. When Gurrah told that to Rosen, what did Rosen say? A. He is being ruined. That is 3993 the only business he has there, and that if he lost that he would lose everything; he would be absolutely—he is a married man—and all that.

Q. Did you participate in that discussion? A. Very little. All I did was, I told Joe Rosen not to hit his head up against a stone wall; if they tell him to do something, he should do it.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

3994 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Was there a time when the daughter left the room?

Mr. Barshay: Now, Mr. Turkus—

Mr. Turkus: There has to be some time—

Mr. Barshay: Let him say what happened, please. I object to it as leading.

Mr. Turkus: I insist it is proper.

The Court: I think it is proper. Ob-
3995 jection overruled.

A. Her father told her to go. She left. She wanted her father to go along with her, but he stayed.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

Q. (The Court) Did she say that? A. Yes, sir.

The Court: Motion denied.
3996 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, after the daughter left was there a further discussion? A. There was.

Q. What was said? A. Joe Rosen started to cry; he said he was being ruined; his business would be lost; he would have nothing left; he was in business all his life and was being pushed out of the clothing business. And Lepke said, "Don't worry, we will do something for you. You have nothing to worry about. If you have any trouble in the concern, we will do something for you."

Q. After that did Rosen leave? A. Then Rosen left, yes, sir.

Q. Can you recall who took the book? A. Joe Rosen.

Q. After that occurrence did you have further talks with Lepke in regard to this stoppage of the clothing trucks? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any talk in which the name of Louis Cooper was mentioned? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Tell the Court and jury what was said in that talk. 3998

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. May we fix the time, please, and the place?

Mr. Turkus: This has a bearing on the stoppage.

The Witness: In the summer of 1932, prior to the stoppage.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (The Court) Where was this talk held? A. In the clothing district, your Honor. 3999

Q. All right, tell us this conversation you had with Lepke in which Louis Cooper's name was mentioned. A. I reminded Louis Cooper that the question of getting Louis Cooper to stop was very important; that he was a big cog in the success of this proposition. And he said he already had an appointment with Louis Cooper.

When you say, "he", who do you mean? A. Lepke; that he already had talked with Louis Cooper, or at least had an appointment with

4000 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Louis Cooper. He wanted me to go up and see him with him.

Q. Did you go with Lepke thereafter and see Louis Cooper? A. Yes.

Q. In relation to that talk you just told the jury about, when did you go with Lepke to see Louis Cooper? A. In the summer of 1932, prior to the stoppage.

Q. How long after the talk, when Lepke said to you that he had an appointment with Louis 4001 Cooper, was it you went with Lepke to meet Louis Cooper? A. Either that day or the next day or the day after—a very short time after.

Q. Can you recall when you and Lepke met Louis Cooper? A. I think we met him for the first time in a speakeasy in 30th Street.

Q. In Manhattan? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you relate to the Court and jury the conversation that took place between Lepke, Cooper and yourself?

Mr. Barshay: I urge my objection to 4002 that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Cuff: We object on behalf of Weiss also.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

A. Louis Cooper told Lepke—Lepke told Louis Cooper he would have to stop his trucks—that there is going to be a stoppage.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. When Lepke told that to Louis Cooper, what did Louis Cooper say? A. He refused. He said he was double-crossed by the Amalgamated once before and does not intend to be double-crossed by them again.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out as not binding on this defendant, what the 4004
Amalgamated did.

Mr. Turkus: The Amalgamated and Lepke have now been established as being like this (indicating).

Mr. Barshay: I again ask for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground of created prejudice.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: I came here, if I may state, to defend a man charged with a 4005 specific crime set forth in the indictment.

The Court: Don't forget it.

Mr. Barshay: I am not forgetting it, but the District Attorney has gone far afield. I made serious, strenuous objections from time to time about long before 1932, when there was absolutely nothing to do between the Amalgamated and this case. All this was brought out only for one purpose, I regret to say—it was used as a political sounding board. It was calculated to be tried out this very way, on campaign material, that has nothing to do with the case. Mr. Turkus has gotten away from it by his very questions and answers. This has nothing to do with the case and it is calculated to prejudice the jury in addition. I have refrained from doing this, but I told Mr. Turkus his questions would compel me to do so, even though I did not want to. It is not fair.

The Court: Your objections have been 4007 strenuous. They have been fervid. There has been no politics brought into the case. The Court suggests that during recess you take a bromide. Proceed.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After Louis Cooper spoke about the double-crossing, what did Lepke say? A. Lepke said, "You have nothing to do about worrying now, I am the Amalgamated, they will not double-cross you this time."

Q. Did Cooper respond to him? A. Not immediately.

4008 Q. What did he say, what did Cooper say after he disclosed that? A. He still refused. He said, "You don't know them as I do; you have not had dealings with them; I did." Finally, he said, "If you will come with me, if you will be my partner, I will stop."

Q. When Cooper said to Lepke, "If you will be my partner, I will stop," what did Lepke say? A. He said, "I will be your partner."

Q. Did Cooper then, after Lepke said he would be his partner, agree to stop the trucks on a designated day? A. He did.

Q. Finally, did this stoppage actually occur? A. It did.

Q. Did any clothing trucks move or roll? A. The Branch Stores were the only trucks that rolled.

Q. Did the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company's trucks remain immobile? A. They did.

Q. Now, you told the jury one of the talks you had mentioned to Lepke was about getting additional business for the New York and New 4010 Jersey, was the name of the Fvirsky Clothing Company; do you remember that? A. That is right.

Q. Did the Fvirsky Clothing account go to one of the men who had been a partner of the New York and New Jersey, after the stoppage? A. It went to the whole concern.

Q. Were there certain cards then issued after the stoppage? A. Yes, sir, they could not start unless they got the O. K. card given out by a committee composed of Amalgamated officials.

Q. What happened to Rosen insofar as the 4011 clothing trucking industry was concerned? A. He was out of the concern.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Try to make that more specific.

Mr. Turkus: I don't know how to make it more specific than that.

The Court: I don't know what it calls for. Try it.

4012 Q. Did Rosen continue in business as a clothing trucker?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He did not.

Q. Now, after the trucks started to roll again, after the stoppage was settled, did Rosen have a talk with you? A. He did.

4013 Q. Where did you have a talk with him? A. On Fifth Avenue.

Q. Do you recall any specific location? A. I usually stood around 17th Street and Fifth Avenue.

Q. Is that the hub of the clothing district? A. It is, and then the Association's office is on 17th Street, 22 East, so I made Fifth Avenue and 17th Street sort of a hangout.

Q. What did Rosen say to you?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

4014 Mr. Talley: I object.

Mr. Barshay: Rosen have a talk with this man, the defendant not being present?

The Court: That is not competent.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, it is.

The Court: What Rosen said to him?

Mr. Turkus: Yes, because it was transmitted to the defendant. It will be connected.

The Court: You will have to show that before it is let in. Let it stand that he had a conversation. The converation with Rosen, and about the hangout at Fifth Avenue and 17th Street.

Q. After you had that talk with Rosen did you see any of the defendants? A. I saw Lepke.

Q. Did you have a talk with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke? A. I told him I just met Rosen, and that Rosen said—

Mr. Talley: I object to what this witness said that Rosen said to the defendant, or to anybody else. 4016

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

The Witness: (Continuing): And that Rosen said that Lepke and I had promised him that he would be taken care of, and that here the stoppage has taken place and everybody has gone back to work and he is on the street.

Q. What did Lepke say to that? A. Lepke said, "What can we do with him?", and I said, "He once worked for Louis Cooper as a foreman, let us get him back there." 4017

Q. Did Lepke say anything in reply to that? A. He said he would get in touch with Louis Cooper.

Q. Thereafter, did you and Lepke and Louis Cooper meet? A. We did.

Q. Where did you meet? A. To the best of my recollection, it was a concern named Rosenblatt Brothers.

Q. A clothing concern? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Lepke say to Louis Cooper at that meeting? A. Lepke told Louis Cooper to put Joe Rosen to work.

4018 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Did he say why? A. He said that he had promised to put him to work— "You got to put him to work." And Louis Cooper said no, he would not put him to work, that while he is a very good foreman, he is a loud-mouthed guy.

Q. After the stoppage and the clothing truck concern wound up—

4019 Mr. Barshay: I object. What has that got to do with these defendants?

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: The court will charge the jury at the proper time, if the case is connected up.

A. The Garfield Express Company got all of the New Jersey business—all of it—with the exception of knee pants, which is considered the smallest part of the clothing business.

4020 Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the word, "considered."

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After the stoppage did the Garfield Truck Company get the New Jersey business that the New York and New Jersey Transportation Company had had before the stoppage, with the exception of the knee pants business which you have indicated?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as a conclusion; secondly, it is entirely irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They got all of the suiting business, all of it.

Q. When Cooper said to Lepke that he did not want him, he was a loud-mouthed guy, to use the language you used to the jury, what did Lepke say to Cooper? A. Lepke said that they should put him to work—"You have most of the New York and New Jersey business and it is advisable you put him to work." 4022

Q. After that what did Cooper say? A. He consented to put him to work at $100. a week.

Q. In what position? A. As a foreman.

Q. After that arrangement had been made did you see Rosen? A. I did.

Q. Under instructions? A. Of course.

Q. Under whose instructions? A. Lepke's.

Q. What did you tell Rosen? A. After the stoppage, it was also in the summer of 1932— 4023

Q. (Interrupting) Answer my question.

The Court: We will now have a noon recess on account of this man's condition. His hour is about up. We will resume at two o'clock.

(To the jury:) Members of the jury, remember the admonition previously given, and follow it. Now, the jury may pass out.

(The defendants were then remanded.)

(Recess taken until two P. M.)

4024 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

AFTERNOON SESSION. TRIAL RESUMED.

MAX RUBIN, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. At the point of recess, Mr. Rubin, I believe you got to where you told us that at the meeting between Lepke and Cooper, Cooper agreed to 4025 put Joseph Rosen to work and you were instructed by Lepke to report that fact to Joseph Rosen. Do you recall that? A. That is right.

Q. In pursuance of the instructions from Lepke, did you see Joseph Rosen? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell him he could go to work for Cooper of the Garfield Express? A. I did.

Q. And did he do so? A. He did.

Q. After some time elapsed, did Joseph Rosen speak to you again? A. Anywheres from eight months to a year later, I believe.

Q. Where did he speak to you, Mr. Rubin? A. On Fifth Avenue.

4026 Q. What did he say to you?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you, after you had the talk with Rosen—was it in the clothing district that you had the talk? A. It was.

Q. After you had that talk with Rosen in the clothing district at the time you have already related, did you see Lepke? A. I did.

Q. Did you talk to Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke? A. I told

Lepke that I had seen Joseph Rosen and Joseph Rosen's wife and Louis Cooper; that I went to Louis Cooper because of a statement made to me about Joe Rosen—a statement made to me by Joe Rosen that he was fired for stealing some hampers and I told him that I went to Louis Cooper and I said to Louis Cooper, "Put that man back to work. That is no reason to fire a man off a truck, for stealing some hampers, if he stole them." And he said, "I am not putting him back." I looked for Lepke and could 4028 not find him. In the meantime Mrs. Rosen came to me and I continued telling Lepke the story.

Q. Yes, continue to tell us. A. This is what I told Lepke. I said, "Mrs. Rosen saw me and I took her over to see Louis Cooper and Louis Cooper told her in front of me that he is not putting him back to work, putting Joe Rosen back to work." And I said, "We cannot afford" —I said this to Lepke—I said, "We cannot afford to have a woman on Fifth Avenue hollering that her husband has lost a job and been put out of business; we better put him back." 4029

Q. In substance then did you relate to Lepke what Joe Rosen had told you in the clothing district? A. I did.

Q. And did you relate in substance, as you have told the jury, what happened in reference to the incident of Mrs. Rosen and Cooper? A. I did.

Q. And had there been such a meeting by you and Mrs. Rosen and then a meeting with Cooper and Mrs. Rosen? A. There was.

Q. And did you give Lepke an accurate report of what had transpired?

4030 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: I object to the word "accurate."

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. After you made this report to Lepke of what had transpired between the Rosens and Cooper, what did Lepke say to you? A. He would get in touch with Louis Cooper for me.

4031 Q. Did there come a time when you and Lepke spoke to Cooper? A. We did.

Q. How long after that report that you had made was that conversation? A. A question of days.

Q. Do you recall where you met Cooper with Lepke? A. I think it was on 18th Street and Fifth Avenue. I am not certain.

Q. With you, Lepke and Cooper there, what was said? A. Lepke asked him—Lepke asked Louis Cooper to put the man back to work and Louis Cooper said he would not, and I said, "You have got to put him back to work. We 4032 had trouble enough and we don't want any more trouble. We want to put the man back to work," and Louis Cooper said he would not do it, he is not going to put him back to work because he bit the hand that fed him and he is not going to put him back to work.

Q. Now, when Cooper said that Rosen bit the hand that fed him, did Lepke say anything? A. Lepke turned to me and said, "I can't do anything about this. We make a God damn good living out of this over here and if Louis Cooper wants to run it that way, that's the way he is going to run it." I said, "If that's good enough for you, it is good enough for me."

Q. Is that what you said to Lepke? A. Yes.

Q. Is that how the meeting broke up? A. That is how it broke up.

Q. After that meeting did Rosen come to you and talk to you? A. Rosen came to me and talked to me after that meeting, yes, sir.

Q. How many times? A. Oh, he was out of work for sixteen months.

4034

Mr. Barshay: That is not responsive.

The Witness: Dozens and dozens of times.

Mr. Barshay: Excuse me. I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. How long was Rosen out of work? A. Sixteen months.

Q. And during the sixteen months that he was out of work, did he come and talk to you time and again? A. He did. 4035

Q. Each time that Rosen came to you and spoke to you, did you report to Lepke? A. I would not say each time but very, very often.

Q. On the times that you did report to Lepke, what did you say to him about Rosen? A. I told him that Rosen was complaining that he is out of work, hasn't got what to eat, married man with a family—words to that effect.

Q. You said he was out of work, Rosen was, for about sixteen months. Towards the end of that period of unemployment, did there come 4036 a time when Rosen had a talk with you? A. Yes.

Q. Was that talk subsequently reported to Lepke? A. It was.

Q. What did Rosen say—in substance? A. I just gave a mere outline.

Q. Tell us first what Rosen said to you near the end of that sixteen months unemployment period? A. Before, Mr. Turkus?

4037 Mr. Barshay: What Rosen said to him? That is your question?

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Turkus: Does your Honor recall that I showed that that conversation was reported subsequently to Lepke?

The Witness: No, it was not completely reported to Lepke. It was not.

The Court: He can tell only what he reported to Lepke.

4038 Q. First, let me ask you this: At the time when you had that talk with Rosen, approximately when was that? A. I think it was in 1935. I am not sure.

Q. Was it before or after the appointment of Thomas E. Dewey as a special prosecutor?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. It was.

Q. It was what? A. After the appointment of Dewey.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this paper be marked for identification.

(Paper marked People's Exhibit Z-2 for identification.)

Mr. Turkus: I further ask that this additional paper be marked for identification. 4040

(Paper marked People's Exhibit Z-3 for identification.)

Mr. Turkus: I offer in evidence Z-2 and Z-3, being, respectively, the order of the appointment of Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court, and appointment and oath of Thomas E. Dewey.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. If Mr. Turkus will give me a date when Mr. 4041 Dewey was appointed for that purpose, I will concede it.

The Court: It has not been connected up yet. Offer it later. Excluded at this time.

Q. After you had that talk with Rosen, I understood you to say you reported to Lepke; you went back and spoke to Lepke? A. That is right.

Q. Did you tell Lepke everything that Rosen had told you? A. No.

4042 Q. Tell us what part of the conversation that you had with Rosen that you told Lepke? A. I told him, "We have a desperate man on our hands. Something has to be done."

Mr. Barshay: Excuse me, please. May the witness just answer what Rosen said to him which he conveyed to Lepke, not his own impression.

Mr. Turkus: That is what he is telling.

4043 Mr. Barshay: Please, Mr. Turkus, I have an objection. He is now giving his impression of Mr. Rosen to this jury.

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Turkus: (To reporter) Will you read to the witness—

Mr. Barshay: May I have a ruling, your Honor?

The Court: What is before the Court?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: This is proper. The conversation is proper.

4044 Mr. Barshay: I do not object to the conversation, sir. I merely object to that part of this man's description.

The Court: The conversation with Lepke is proper.

Mr. Barshay: I do not object to that part. He started off—

The Court: He says he told Lepke that they had a desperate man on their hands. That is proper.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Will you continue where you said to him, "We have got a desperate man on our hands."

4045

Continue to tell the jury what you said to Lepke. A. I said to Lepke, "We have a desperate man on our hands", that we have t get him a job; he will work for anything; he is talking a whole lot and we are liable to get into a lot of trouble with this but he is willing to go to work for any price, anywheres.

Q. Did you suggest to Lepke any place where Rosen might get employment? A. I did.

Q. What did you say? A. I told him that Larry Cooper—no relation to Louis Cooper— 4046 has a man on his job by the name of Meyer Cranes.

Q. Spell the name. A. (Spelling) C-r-a-n-e-s —and that Larry Cooper does not want this man Meyer Cranes on his truck and if I can get a switch, that is transfer this Meyer Cranes over to Louis Cooper's job, which means the Garfield Express Company, I could get Joe Rosen on Larry Cooper's truck.

Q. In other words, Rosen, having been fired from Cooper, you could get Cranes to work for Cooper and give Rosen Cranes' job? A. That is 4047 right.

Q. The job with Larry Cooper, no relative of Louis Cooper? A. That is right.

Q. What did Lepke say to that? A. He would get hold of Louis Cooper.

Q. After that talk, did you have a meeting with Louis Cooper and Lepke? A. We did.

Q. Do you remember where that was? A. Passaic.

Q. Is that where the Garfield Express had its place of business? A. That is right.

Q. What happened there? A. Louis Cooper—

4048 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Lepke asked Louis Cooper to put this Meyer Cranes to work and Louis Cooper said he would not do it and I asked him why wouldn't he do it, it is very important that we get Joe Rosen to work, it is very, very important, and Louis Cooper still said he would not do it. He said the fellow was too small—he is only about five foot two or something like that—and he said he is no good for this job and Lepke turned to Louis Cooper and said, "It is very important 4049 for us if we put him to work", and then Louis Cooper said, "All right, I will take him. Make the change."

Q. Had Louis Cooper himself one time been business agent of Local 240 of the Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union? A. He was.

Q. And that is the union for all of those clothing truckers, that is the drivers of trucks? A. That is right.

Q. Was Cranes in fact a small man about five foot two or thereabouts? A. That's all he was, still is as far as I know.

4050 Q. Finally was the arrangement made whereby Rosen went to work for Larry Cooper? A. He did.

Q. Did Meyer Cranes work for the Garfield? A. He did.

Q. Some months thereafter, did you learn that Rosen had opened up a candy store? A. I did.

Q. In the Brownsville district of Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Earlier in your testimony you told us that you had been doing business with Lepke in connection with the Greater New York Tailors Pressmen's Association and the Flour Truck-men's Union. Do you remember that? A. That is right.

Q. Was that business relationship continuing between you and Lepke at this time? A. It was.

Q. Were you then seeing Lepke frequently in connection with the business that you had in connection with Flour Truckmen's Union and the Greater New York Tailors Expressmen's Association?

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it—in no- 4052 wise connected with this issue.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. How often were you then coming in contact with Lepke? A. Very often, almost daily when he was around.

Q. What places were you meeting Lepke at? A. In 1935?

Q. Yes. A. In Greenberg & Shapiro and I believe the Perfection Coat Front.

Q. You say Greenberg & Shapiro was one of 4053 the places. Was that Shapiro of Greenberg & Shapiro related to the one that you called Charlie Gurrah Shapiro?

Mr. Barshay: Object to it. It is immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. A brother.

Q. In the year 1936, where were you meeting Lepke? A. 200 Fifth Avenue.

4054 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. What was the name of the concern at 200 Fifth Avenue where you had these meetings with Lepke? A. Raleigh Clothing Company.

Q. Do you remember what floor the Raleigh Clothing Company was on? A. Tenth.

Q. In these numerous meetings which you have described to the jury, did you talk to Lepke on those occasions? A. I did.

Q. I specifically direct your attention to a book of matches. Was there a talk in which a book 4055 of matches was mentioned?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. There was.

Q. Where was that talk in which a book of matches was mentioned? A. Raleigh Clothing.

Q. Earlier in your testimony you said that you knew Lepke by some other name and you mentioned the word "telephone" in connection with it. Do you remember that? A. That is right.

4056 Q. Tell us the incident about this book of matches and the conversation that was had?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it unless it has a bearing upon the issue here.

The Court: I cannot tell. Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. Mr. Turkus can tell.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. May I have the question repeated?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. Lepke pointed out an ordinary book of matches, opened it up, and on the inside, like this (demonstrating) he had two telephone numbers. He read them both off to me and he says, "Do you know the numbers?"

Q. Tell us what numbers he read off to you, if you can remember them? A. I can remember one very well.

Q. Tell us the one you remember very well? 4058
A. He read off Gramercy 5—9043.

Q. Did you recognize that telephone number when he read it off? A. Of course.

Q. What was the telephone number, of whom? A. That was the number of the Greater New York Tailors Expressmen's Association, where I used to hang out.

Q. For years? A. Since they moved in there.

Q. When Lepke read off that telephone number, Gramercy 5—9043, the telephone number of the Greater New York Tailors Expressmen's Association, what did you say to him? A. I 4059 said, "Gee whiz, that's the number of the association."

Q. What did Lepke say? A. He told me not to use the 'phone any more, that the wire was tapped.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer. It is apparently incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial to this issue, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4060 Q. Tell us the name that you knew Lepke by on the telephone?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Tell us. A. The name is Murphy.

Q. You mean when you called him on the telephone you asked for Murphy? A. That is right.

4061 Q. And when you asked for Murphy, whom did you get?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Whom did you get when you asked for Murphy? A. Lepke.

Q. When you asked for Gurrah on the telephone, what name did you ask for?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.
4062 The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Callahan.

Q. And when you asked for Callahan, whom did you get on the wire? A. Gurrah.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After you had that talk with Lepke about that number in the book of matches that he had written down, did he say anything to you in reference to the building 200 Fifth Avenue?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.

A. He told me not to use the same exit that I used in going in.

Q. Were there various entrances and exits to 200 Fifth Avenue? A. There were.

Q. Tell us about those entrances and exits. 4064

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is immaterial.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. There is one on Broadway, one on 23rd Street, and one by going into the subway by the Flatiron Building; you go through the street, a tunnel there; you get into the building.

Q. So there was a tunnel entrance that you could go through from the subway to get into that Flatiron Building? A. That is right. 4065

Q. After Lepke gave the warning to you that you told the jury, when he was looking at that number in the—withdrawn.

After Lepke gave you the instruction or warning to be careful and use different exits coming into the building, did he ever talk to you about Joseph Rosen again? A. In June of 1936.

Q. What did he tell you about Rosen then? A. He told me the fellow was going around Brownsville, shooting off his mouth that he is going to go down to Dewey's office.

Q. What did you say to Lepke when he told you that? A. I said, "It does not mean anything. The fellow is harmless. He must be broke and need a couple of dollars. Let me take care of it."

Q. Did you suggest to Lepke how you would take care of it? A. I did.

Q. What did you say? A. I told him I would tell my members to go to the store and do their shopping there, purchase whatever is needed, and I am sure the fellow would keep quiet.

4067 Q. What members were you then referring to when you spoke to Lepke? A. Members of the union that I represented, Local 240.

Q. After you made that suggestion about having the members of the union patronize the candy store, what did Lepke say to you? A. He said, "I don't care what you do as long as he keeps quiet."

Q. Did you talk to the members of your union? A. I first called a meeting of the Executive Board and I told them—

Mr. Barshay: I object.

4068

Q. Relate the conversation.

Mr. Barshay: I object to what he said, in the absence of the defendant.

Mr. Turkus: The Judge will rule.

Mr. Barshay: I intend that he shall.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. All right, was there a meeting of your union? A. There was.

Q Without stating the conversation, did you address the meeting? A. I did. There were two meetings, an Executive Board meeting and a regular meeting.

Q. And did you address both of the meetings? A. I did.

Q. After the meetings of the Executive Board and the members, did you talk with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you tell Lepke? A. I told him that I had called a meeting of the Executive Board and at the regular meeting of the local and at the Executive Board I suggested to the 4070 members that they take $25 from the treasury and bury it in some other item and go into the store and spend the money; that the Executive Board members should do it, and I told Sneaky Levine, Sammy Levine, who was the president of the local at that time, to be sure and see that it is done. Then I called a meeting of the regular members and I spoke to them about taking care of old-timers, that old-timers must be taken care of, and I explained to Lepke just what I had done.

Q. When you explained to Lepke just what 4071 you had done about the expression "old-timers", did you tell him what had occurred at the union meeting? A. I did.

Q. Tell us how you referred to Rosen in that conversation? A. I referred to him as an old-timer.

Q. And were you making the report to Lepke of what had transpired in the union? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell Lepke what the reaction of the union members was about doing these things? A. They all said they were going to go to the store.

Q. Did you tell that to Lepke? A. I did.

4072 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. What did Lepke say after you told him about that? A. O. K.

Q. Did there come a time later on when you had another talk with Lepke about Joseph Rosen? A. There were two or three talks, I believe.

Q. Well, specifically I want to direct your attention—

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, will you tell
4073 the District Attorney please not to lead?

The Court: I want to hear the question.

Mr. Turkus: (To reporter) Read the one prior and read the question.

(Prior question and pending question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Turkus: That is as far as I have gotten.

The Court: Finish the question.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. —Some time around July in the year 1936.
4074 Do you follow the question? A. Yes, I do. He told me again that Rosen was talking and going around to Brownsville, going around in Brownsville, and saying he is going to do down to Dewey's office and is going to speak about Lepke, and I again said there was nothing to worry about that man, he must be up against it, there is no harm in him, there is absolutely nothing to worry about.

Q. After you made that report to Lepke, did you meet a man by the name of Louis Feinberg? A. I did.

Q. Who was Louis Feinberg? A. The secretary-treasurer of Local 240.

Q. The same local for which you were the business agent? A. That is right.

Q. Did Feinberg say something to you? You cannot relate the conversation. A. Yes, Feinberg did.

Q. After Feinberg spoke to you, did you go and talk to Lepke? A. I did.

Q. Tell us what you said to Lepke? A. I told Lepke that Sylvia Rosen had called and asked 4076 for me and Feinberg had told her that I was not in and then she left a message for me to go over and see her father in the candy store; and then I told Lepke that now is a good chance for me to go over there, I am sure I can straighten out Joseph Rosen.

Q. What did Lepke say? A. He said, "Go ahead, if you can straighten him out."

Q. In any other talk that you had with Lepke before that, did Lepke make any suggestion to you about Rosen? A. He always spoke about him talking, that's all. He wants him q[illegible] 4077

Q. When you told him about that telephone call from the daughter of Rosen, what was the discussion then in connection with Rosen?

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, I object to it. It has already been answered, the answer being, "Go ahead."

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Turkus: Well, what I want to do is continue the conversation from that point.

Q. What did Lepke say to you?

4078 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

The Court: I have it here, "Lepke said, 'Go ahead, if you can straighten him out.'"

Q. Well, when Lepke said, "Go ahead," did you say something to him? A. Yes.

Q. All right, what did you say to Lepke? A. I said to him, "I will need some money."

Q. Now, when you said to Lepke, "I will need some money," what did Lepke say to you? A.
4079 He said, "How much money have you got?" I took out Lepke's money that I had in my pocket and I had about $500 there. I said, "I have about five hundred or six hundred"—I don't remember the amount. He said, "You take two bills and give it to Joe Rosen and tell him to stay out of town until I tell him to come back."

Q. How much is "two bills"? A. Two hundred dollars.

Q. How did Lepke refer to Rosen when he told you to take two bills and tell him to go out of town and stay out of town?

4080 Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Let him give the conversation.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He swore at him.

Q. Well, what was the epithet? A. Son of a bitch.

The Court: Tell him to stay out of town until when?

The Witness: Until he tells him to come back.

Q. That five or six hundred dollars that you had in your possession, was that as the result of some financial transactions that you had been having with Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4082

A. Yes.

Q. And was it with the Flour Truckmen and the Greater New York Expressmen's Association? Was that the business?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. Yes.

Q. When Lepke told you what you have related to the jury about the two bills and the message to be given to Rosen, did you agree to do it? 4083

Mr. Barshay: I object to the District Attorney repeating the answer in the subsequent question. We understand what was said.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.
(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I did.

Q. Did you thereafter go to Joseph Rosen's

4084 candy store? A. I took Feinberg with me and went to Joseph Rosen's candy store.

Q. At that time did you know where it was? A. I did not.

Q. Who took you to the candy store? A. Louis Feinberg.

Q. When you went there with Feinberg, did you find Rosen in the candy store? A. I did.

Q. Did you have a talk with Rosen? A. I did.

4085 Q. Was part of the conversation in the presence of Feinberg? A. It was.

Q. Was there a part of the conversation in the absence of Feinberg? A. It was.

Q. Tell us what you said to Rosen in connection with the two bills as directed by Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. This is a conversation with Rosen in the absence of the defendant.

The Court: I beg pardon?

4086 Mr. Turkus: Under instructions from Lepke to deliver the two bills and the message.

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus knows it is not competent.

Mr. Turkus: I know it is competent. There is agency.

The Court: This is special ground and should be on the minutes. Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. You cannot prove agency by the agent.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4087

Q. Tell us. A. Feinberg went into the telephone booth and Rosen and I walked to the side of the telephone booth away from Feinberg so that he could not see us and I said, "Here is $200 from Lepke. He wants you to go away and you are to stay away until he tells you to come back."

Q. When you said that, did you give Rosen the $200? A. I did.

Q. What did Rosen say when he got the $200 and that message?

4088

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Rosen said to me he was going to his son's place in Reading, Pennsylvania, but if he could get another thousand dollars he would sell the store and open some sort of business there.

Q. And where was the son's place of living at that time? A. I said Reading, Pennsylvania.

Q. And was that where Rosen said he would open up another place of business if he could get another thousand dollars? A. Yes.

4089

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. When he told you that about opening up a place of business out of the State of New York, what did you say to him? A. I said, "I will take it up with Lepke."

Q. When Rosen accepted the $200 under those circumstances that you have related to the Court and jury, did he tell you where he was going? A. Reading, Pennsylvania.

Q. After you delivered this $200 to Joseph Rosen and the message, did you go back to see Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke? A. I told Lepke that I had given Rosen the $200 and that he was going up to his son's place in Reading, Pennsylvania, and that if he had another thousand dollars he would stay up there and open 4091 some kind of a business.

Q. Did Lepke make any response to that? A. Not that I recall.

Q. Approximately when was this $200 and the message delivered to Rosen? A. July, 1936.

Q. After that delivery of the $200 and the message, in July, 1936, when was the next time that Lepke spoke to you about Joseph Rosen? A. Friday, September 11, 1936.

Q. Friday, the 11th of September, 1936? A. That is right.

Q. You remember that date? A. Vividly.

4092 Q. What did Lepke say to you on Friday, September 11, 1936, about Joe Rosen? A. I no more than stepped into the office of the Raleigh Clothing Company when Lepke, his face flushed—

Mr. Barshay: I object to the description, sir.

The Court: It is responsive. Leave out the "flushed."

A. (Continued) Lepke said to me, "I have stood enough of the crap that you have been handing me. That son of a bitch, that bastard, is going around Brownsville and shooting his mouth off that he is going down to Dewey. Well, he is not going down to Dewey or any other place. He and nobody else are going down any place or do any more talking or any talking at all." I said, "Louis, don't be rash; don't be foolish; don't do something that will get us into trouble. I can straighten it out. He is harmless. Leave him to me." "No, I have stood enough." I said, "Let me handle it. I will run 4094 over to Murray Weinstein. I am sure that Murray Weinstein will do something about it. Give me a chance to straighten the thing out. Don't forget I was in the store in July." He said to me, "I don't care where you go. Straighten the guy out." I ran as fast as I could, over to Murray Weinstein.

Q. Did you have a talk with Murray Weinstein? A. I did.

Q. Before you ran over to Murray Weinstein, was there anything said in the conversation by Lepke with respect to the length of time that 4095
Rosen was in Reading, Pennsylvania? A. Yes, he said "He was only there for a few days. He double-crossed us."

Q. When you said to Lepke that Rosen was harmless, what did he say to you? A. "The fact that he is going around, talking. Anybody can do us harm." This was in the heat of the Dewey investigation.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike the latter part out.

The Court: Strike that out as irresponsive.

Q. When was that talk? A. September, 1936.

Q. Was the Dewey investigation under way? A. And how.

Q. Where did you have that talk with Murray Weinstein? A. In his office.

Q. Where was it located? A. 15th Street and Union Square West, right on the corner.

Q. Weinstein was then, as he is now, the manager of that Cutters Local 4 affiliated with the Amalgamated? A. That is right.

4097 Q. Did you go back and talk to Lepke after you had the talk with Weinstein? A. I did.

Q. Relate that talk to the Court and jury that you had with Lepke after the visit to Weinstein. A. I said to Lepke—I come back from Murray Weinstein and I told Murray Weinstein that—I just don't know how to put it—

Q. Tell us the best of your recollection what you said to Lepke after you had the talk with Weinstein. A. I told Lepke that I went to Murray Weinstein and asked him to do something for me about Joe Rosen and that Murray Weinstein said he can't do anything.

4098 Q. Did you say anything to Lepke about an invitation from Weinstein? A. I then told him that Murray Weinstein said I should not worry, that the Local 4 baseball team was playing a baseball game in Vineland, New Jersey, and that he invited me out there to attend the game. The game was to take place Saturday afternoon which is September 12, 1936.

Q. After you told Lepke that you could not get Weinstein to do anything, what did Lepke say? A. He said, "Go ahead to the game."

Q. Do you know a man named Paul Berger? A. I do.

Q. Is that Paul Berger the one whom you earlier in your testimony described as an intermediary between Lepke and the union? A. He is.

Q. Was Paul Berger's name mentioned that Friday, September 11, 1936?

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel leading. He asked for the complete conversation, sir. I understood the witness to have given the complete conversation. 4100

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He told me to get Paul Berger and send him up to him right away.

Q. Did you go to see Berger? A. I did.

Q. What did you tell Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4101

A. I told him Lepke wants to see him.

Q. The following morning, September 12th, Saturday, did you go to that baseball game that Weinstein had invited you to? A. I took my wife and child and I went to the game in my car.

Q. Did you actually attend the game? A. I did not.

Q. Where was the game scheduled to be played? A. Vineland.

4102

Q. Did you turn off from the route? A. I did.

Q. Where?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that. That is absolutely immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: How he went to New Jersey, what he did there.

The Court: Overruled.

4103

Mr. Barshay: Exception. This is not pursuant to instructions, let me say. He went there to accept an invitation to a baseball game. Whether he diverted his route and where he stayed and all that, is not relevant here, sir.

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. Along the road, there is a road that leads to Vineland and one to Atlantic City, and I took the road to Atlantic City. I don't remember any more.

4104

Q. What was the condition of your wife's health at that time?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. She just did not feel well.

Q. Did you stay in Atlantic City? A. I did.

Q. What hotel? A. Breakers Hotel.

Q. How long did you stay there?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to, incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Until Sunday about noon time.

Q. Did you see any members of the union at the hotel? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you see Murray Weinstein there? A. I did.

4106

Mr. Turkus: I am going to renew my offer at this time of the Exhibits Z-2 and Z-3 for identification, the appointment of the Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court and the appointment and oath of Thomas E. Dewey.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, and, again, if Mr. Turkus merely wants the date when Mr. Dewey was appointed, I will concede it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4107

Mr. Rosenthal: I object on behalf of defendant Capone.

Mr. Talley: Same objection on the part of defendant Weiss.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that they be marked as separate exhibits.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor inspect them, please, before they are marked?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: Especially with reference to No. 10066, photostatic copy, on the ground that it is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial and an attempt to prejudice the jury.

4108

The Court: Let me see it. Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(People's Exhibit Z-2 for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 33 in evidence. People's Exhibit Z-3 for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 34 in evidence.)

4109

The Court: Briefly, what is the date?

Mr. Turkus: Date of filing, July 3, 1935.

May I read People's Exhibits 33 and 34 in evidence to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: (reading) "Certificate No. 10066.

"State of New York)
"County of New York) ss.:

4110

"I, Albert Marinelli, Clerk of the County of New York and also Clerk of the Supreme Court in and for said county,

"Do hereby certify, that I have compared the within photographic copy of an order entitled Appointment of Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court, etc., the original of which is filed and recorded in my office under Index Number Misc. 907—1935, File Number 28789—1935, Date Filed July 3, 1935, and I do further certify that such photographic copy is a correct transcript of such record and of the whole of said original.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court and county at the City of New York, this 22nd day of October, 1936."

Signed "Albert Marinelli, Clerk of the County of New York and Clerk of the 4112
Supreme Court."

Over to the left-hand side it has a seal and "No fee charged Pursuant to Law." Signed "Albert Marinelli, County Clerk."

At the top, on the left, is a seal. "State of New York, Executive Chamber, Albany.

"It appearing to my satisfaction that the public interest requires it:

"THEREFORE, in accordance with the statute in such case made and provided, 4113
I do hereby appoint an Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court to be held at the County Court House in the County of New York on the 29th day of July, 1935, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, and to continue so long as it may be necessary, for the purpose of inquiring into:

"(1) any and all acts of racketeering and vice,

4114 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

"(2) any and all acts of organized crime or any other crime,

"(3) any connection between such acts and any law-enforcement officials, committed or alleged to have been committed by any and all persons, including public officers, within the County of New York in violation of the provisions of the 4115 Penal Law of the State of New York or the penal provisions of any other general, special or local law; and

I do hereby designate HONORABLE PHILIP J. McCOOK, of the City of New York, who is a Justice of the Supreme Court of the First Judicial District, to hold the said Extraordinary Special and Trial Term as hereinbefore described, and among other things to cause to be drawn according to law a Grand Jury to serve at the said Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of 4116 the Supreme Court; and

"I do further direct that notice of the appointment of the said Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court and the designation of the said Presiding Justice be given by publication of this order on the eighth and fifteenth days of July, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, in the New York Law Journal, the New York Times, and the New York Herald Tribune, newspapers published in the Borough of Manhattan, County of New York.

"This order shall supersede in all respects the order dated June 28th, 1935, appointing an Extraordinary and Special Trial Term of the Supreme Court to be held in the County of New York on the twenty-ninth day of July, 1935.

"GIVEN under my hand and the Privy Seal of the State at the Capital in the City of Albany this third day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine 4118 hundred and thirty-five.

"HERBERT H. LEHMAN" (in ink) and to the left the seal of the State of New York.

"BY THE GOVERNOR:
"Walter T. Brown
"Secretary to the Governor."

People's Exhibit 34:

"Certificate No. 10068. 4119

"State of New York }
"County of New York } ss.:

"I, ALBERT MARINELLI, Clerk of the County of New York and also Clerk of the Supreme Court in and for said County,

"DO HEREBY CERTIFY, that I have compared the within photographic copy of an Appointment and Oath of THOMAS E. DEWEY, the original of which is filed and recorded in my office, under Index Number Misc. 1064—1935, File Number (blank), Date Filed July 29, 1935, and I do further certify that such photographic copy is a correct transcript of such record and of the whole of said original.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said court and county at the City of New York, this 22nd day of October, 1936.

4121

"Albert Marinelli, Clerk of the County of New York and Clerk of the Supreme Court."

To the left, the seal and then "No fee charged Pursuant to Law, Albert Marinelli, County Clerk"

"District Attorney's Office, County of New York.

"I do solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of New York and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of Deputy Assistant District Attorney in the office of the District Attorney in and for the County of New York, according to the best of my ability.

4122

"Thomas E. Dewey.

"Sworn to before me the 29 day of July, 1935.

P. McC. J. S. C."

"State of New York)
"City and County of New York) ss.:

"To all who shall see these Presents, GREETING:

"Know ye, that I, WILLIAM COPELAND DODGE, District Attorney of the County of New York, do, pursuant to the authority conferred by law, hereby depute, constitute and appoint THOMAS E. DEWEY 4124
Deputy Assistant District Attorney in and for the County of New York.

"Given under my hand at the office of the District Attorney in and for the County of New York, this 29th day of July in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty five.

"WILLIAM COPELAND DODGE,
"District Attorney."

with the seal to the right, and to the left: 4125

"Attest:
"George Groden,
"Acting Chief Clerk."

and the cover having: "Filed July 29, 1935, in the New York County Clerk's office."

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. I believe you had told me that you had seen Murray Weinstein in Atlantic City? A. I did.

Q. And did you stay there up until Sunday sometime? A. Sunday noon.

Q. What time, approximately, did you leave Atlantic City? A. About noon time, a little before, perhaps.

Q. When did you arrive in New York City? A. About four o'clock.

Q. When after your arrival was the next time that you had seen a newspaper? A. The next morning.

4127 Q. What newspaper did you see the next morning? A. New York Times.

Q. What did you read in the New York Times?

Mr. Barshay: Objection.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you read an account of—

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus, the Judge just sustained the objection.

Mr. Turkus: It may have been on another ground. I want to show knowledge now, as to a certain event.

4128 The Court: All right.

Q. Did you read the account in the New York Times of the killing of Joseph Rosen? A. I did.

Q. After you read that account in the New York Times, did you go to see Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke? A. I said, "Now I am in trouble. I was there in July and now I am in real trouble." And he said to me, "You have nothing to worry about. Brooklyn is all right. You have nothing to worry about as far as Brooklyn."

Q. That was on Monday? A. On Monday.

Q. I direct your attention towards the end of the month of September, 1936, and ask you if you read an article in the New York Post. A. I did.

Q. When you read that article in the New York Post, where did you go? A. I took the paper with me and went up to see Lepke.

Q. Did you see Lepke? A. I did.

Q. Tell us what happened on that occasion when you were there talking with Lepke with a 4130 copy of the New York Post.

Mr. Talley: May we have the date, Mr. Turkus?

Mr. Turkus: Toward the end of September, 1936.

Mr. Talley: I object to it, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: On behalf of defendant Capone I object to it—subsequent to the time of the killing, in no wise binding upon him. 4131

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: (to reporter) Will you read the question, please?

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I said, "Look at this, look at this paper. Read it. It does everything but mention my name. It makes me a principal in a murder of that fellow."

Q. When you said that and you moved your hands as you did in the witness chair, were you pointing to something when you were talking to Lepke? A. I pointed to the article.

Q. When you said that, pointing to the article, what did Lepke say? A. Lepke said, "You have nothing to worry about. They are not asking for you. They are not looking for you. They are looking for Little Farvel. They are looking for Shimmy. They are looking for Mendy Weiss. They are not looking for you. You 4133 have nothing to worry about."

Q. What was Shimmy's real name? A. Sidney Sales.

Q. Am I correct in the spelling of S-a-l-l-e-s? A. No, S-a-l-e-s, I believe.

Q. Just answer this question yes or no: Is Sidney Sales alive?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground that it is 4134 prejudicial.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. No.

The Court: He said they are looking for whom?

The Witness: Little Farvel, Shimmy, and Mendy Weiss.

Q. You mean Farvel—what is his right name? A. Philip Cohen.

Q. Who is Mendy Weiss? A. There he is, the man with the glasses.

Q. Indicating the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Who is Shimmy?

Mr. Turkus: Shimmy was "Sales."

The Witness: His name is Sidney Sales.

Mr. Talley: I object to it, if your Honor pleases, as not binding on the defendant Weiss.

4136

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception. My motion is likewise to striking out, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Denied. I will instruct the jury at the proper time on the application of evidence.

Mr. Talley: I take exception.

Q. Now, when Lepke said, "Don't worry, they are looking for those three," naming them as you have named them to the Court and jury, did he say anything else? A. He said he is going to send them in when he is ready to send them in. He will send them in to be there. They wanted them for identification purpose. 4137

Q. Whom did he say he was going to send in? A. Shimmy and Farvel.

Q. What did he say about Mendy? A. He would not send him in.

Mr. Talley: Make the same objection, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

4138

Mr. Talley: Not binding upon the defendant Weiss.

The Court: He said he would send who?

The Witness: He would send in Shimmy and Farvel.

The Court: Send them where?

The Witness: To Brooklyn for identification. The police wanted to get hold of them.

4139

Mr. Talley: What is that?

The Witness: The police wanted them. They were hiding.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike the latter part out, if your Honor pleases, not responsive.

The Witness: You said, "Send them where?" didn't you?

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out that voluntary remark of this witness.

The Court: Yes, strike it out. Strike out, "They were hiding."

4140

Q. Sometime in October, 1936, did you have another talk with Lepke? A. I did. Every time I saw him I spoke to him.

Q. Well, what I am trying to direct your attention to now—

Mr. Barshay: Excuse me, Mr. Turkus. The man has not said that he does not recollect any such talk. Let us fix the date and let him give the answer without any suggestions, please.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Turkus: I was in the middle of a question.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is leading.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. —is the conversation after the names of Farvel, Shimmy and Mendy Weiss were mentioned. Now, sometime in October did you have a talk with Lepke? A. The early part of October. 4142

Q. What was said in that discussion?

Mr. Rosenthal: I make the same objection that I made before.

Mr. Talley: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. He said, "See, you have nothing to worry about. Shimmy and Farvel went in. They are out. There is nothing to worry about." And I said, "What about Mendy?" He said, "I am keeping Mendy out." 4143

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out as having no binding effect upon the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. Is the name of McCarthy, a former Assistant District Attorney, familiar to you? A. Yes.

Q. After that talk which you have just told the jury about, did you hear that name in the conversation with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did he say? A. He told me that McCarthy was going around saying he is going to make one of the best pinches he has ever made; he is going to collar Lepke and Gurrah for the Rosen murder.

Q. When Lepke told you this about former Assistant District Attorney McCarthy, did he say anything to you about yourself? A. He told 4145 me I had to go away.

Q. What did Lepke tell you when he said to you you have got to go away? A. The early part of October.

Q. What did he say? What was the language he used? A. He told me I have to go away. "Things are very hot in Brooklyn." This McCarthy is going around and making those statements I just mentioned and that I have to go away.

Q. What did you say to Lepke when he said you have got to go away? A. I didn't know where to go.

4146 Q. What did he say to you then? A. He said, "I have got the spot for you. Go up with Danny Fields. Danny Fields is hiding up in Glens Falls. You go up there and you stay with him."

Q. Was Danny Fields the Danny Fields that you described earlier in your testimony as an intermediary between a union and Lepke? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Just answer this yes or no: Is Danny Fields alive?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir, as I made before with respect to the man whom he identified as Shimmy.

The Court: The witness's information as to the alleged death of Danny Fields may be hearsay. Sustained.

Q. All right. Lepke said for you to make arrangements with Danny Fields to go where he was. What did you say to Lepke? A. I told you before I said I did not know where to go, and he said up there. I said, "All right, I will go," after he told me.

Q. Did Lepke tell you who was to make the arrangements? A. He did. 4148

Q. Who? A. Paul Berger.

Q. Did Lepke tell you anything in reference to Paul Berger?

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, I object to Mr. Turkus leading.

The Court: Do you object to the question?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4149

A. He told me to take Paul Berger around and introduce him to the people that I was getting money from for Lepke.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it now. I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Overruled. Denied.

Mr. Barshay: I now move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Denied.

4150

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception, and I specifically direct your Honor to the case of People again Richardson in 222 New York.

The Court: The part of that answer which refers to collecting money from people is stricken out as irresponsive and incompetent. The jury is instructed to disregard it.

4151

Q. Did you take Paul Berger to various places and introduce him? Yes or no. A. I did.

Q. After you made those introductions, did you go away? A. I did.

Q. Who made the arrangements? A. Paul Berger.

Q. Where did you go and with whom? A. I went with Paul Berger to a sort of coffee stand or lunch room along the road about fifty miles from New York, fifty to seventy-five, and there we met Danny Fields.

Q. After the meeting, where did Berger go? A. Berger went back to New York.

4152

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Where did you go? A. I went with Danny Fields to Saratoga Springs.

Q. How long did you stay in Saratoga? A. One week.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After that week elapsed, where did you go? A. Came back to New York.

Q. Where in New York did you go? A. Hatfield Hotel.

Q. Was that a familiar hotel to you? A. Yes.

Q. Did you have to register there? A. No.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4154

Q. Where is the Hatfield located. A. 28th or 29th Street and Madison Avenue.

Q. Manhattan? A. Manhattan.

Q. After you got into the Hatfield Hotel, did you communicate with anybody? A. I did.

Q. With whom? A. Either with Lepke direct or with Paul Berger to get Lepke for me.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer. He says with one or the other.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4155

Q. After that communication was made, did you see Lepke? A. I did.

Q. Where? A. At the hotel.

Q. Where in the hotel did you see Lepke? A. I had a room there.

Q. When Lepke came in, what did he say to you? A. "Why did you come back?" I said, "I can't stay there. Danny was in different places. I didn't have anybody to talk to. I was very lonesome and I came back."

Q. When you were up in Saratoga, did Danny have a girl friend?

4156

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. Is that our fault, too?

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. He did.

Q. Did you tell that to Lepke? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: Object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4157

Q. When you told him your reason for coming back, what did Lepke say to you? A. He said I should stay in the Hatfield. He wanted to send me away again, but in the meantime I should stay there and out of sight of everybody in the clothing industry.

Q. Did he say why he wanted to send you away? A. Yes, he told me things were getting too hot.

Q. Where? A. That Brooklyn was not straightened out yet, and that the Dewey in-4158 vestigation is closing in on everybody.

Q. Did you stay at the Hatfield, as you were told? A. I did.

Q. Did Lepke get in touch with you? A. Sometime—I went away for a few days, I believe—there was one about—when I came back from Saratoga Springs I met Lepke again and he told me to meet him down at Willie Albert's office.

Q. Who was Willie Alberts? Just tell me his occupation. A. He dealt in bail bonds.

Q. Did he have a connection with Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir, did he have a connection with Lepke.

The Court: Calls for a conclusion. Sustained.

Q. Do you know what his relationship was with Lepke?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Sustained.

4160

Q. Did you have a conversation with Lepke in which the name of Willie Alberts was mentioned? A. He told me to go down to the office.

Q. Where was Willie Alberts' office? A. 2 Lafayette Street.

Q. Manhattan? A. Manhattan.

Q. Did you go there? A. I did.

Q. Did you meet Lepke at Willie Alberts' office? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: Fix the time, Mr. Turkus, please.

4161

Q. This man Feinberg, what connection did he have with Local 240? A. Secretary-treasurer.

Q. Local 240? A. That is right.

Q. You described an individual as Sam Sneaky Levine. What was his connection with Local 240, Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union? A. He was the president of the Local, and ex-business agent.

Q. Who is Louis Plotkin in connection with his relationship to Local 240? A. He worked on the trucks and was also the president of the executive board.

4162 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. And Davey Kantor, what his connection? A. Member of the executive board and worked on the truck.

Q. Tell the jury what Lepke said to you in Willie Alberts' office at that meeting.

Mr. Barshay: May we fix the time, Mr. Turkus, please?

Q. Fix the time, to the best of your recollection. A. When I came back from Saratoga 4163 Springs, I should say anywhere between the middle of October and October 30th, I should say about the 17th, 18th, 20th, something like that, 22nd. Put it in that period.

Q. Now, you fixed the time and the place. Tell us the conversation that Lepke had with you.

Mr. Rosenthal: I make the same objection as I urged heretofore.

Mr. Talley: Same objection, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

4164 Defendants' Counsel: Exception.

A. I think, Mr. Turkus, that Willie Alberts started the conversation.

Q. All right, tell us what was said.

Mr. Barshay: I object to anything Willie Alberts said as not binding on this defendant.

Mr. Talley: The same objection for Weiss.

The Court: Only as to what Alberts said in the conversation where Lepke attended.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, that is what I am talking about.

The Court: Not any part where Lepke may not have been there or was out of hearing. Please restrict it accordingly. Otherwise, overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

4166

Q. Will you relate what Willie Alberts said to you and Lepke and what was said in return? A. He said the police were looking for Louis Plotkin, Sam Levine, Davey Kantor and Jeff Feinberg, and I said, "What for? What do they want them for?" and he said—

Q. When you say "he"— A. Willie Alberts said that they were in the store and they spent some money and the police want to question them about that, and Lepke said I should take them out of town. I said, "You cannot take them out of town. They work on trucks, and Feinberg is in the office." He says, "Well, take 4167 them at least for the week-end, anyhow." And so I got in touch with them—

Q. Did you agree to do it, take them out for a week-end? A. I did.

Q. Did you get in touch with those individuals, Plotkin, Levine, Kantor and Feinberg? A. I did, through Davey Kantor.

Q. Did you take them out of town over the week-end? A. I did.

Q. Where did you go that week-end, you personally? You agreed to take those men out for the week-end, as you have told us. Where did

4168 you go? A. I told Davey Kantor that I would meet him—

Mr. Barshay: I object to anything he said to Mr. Kantor, sir. Now the defendant is not present.

Mr. Turkus: Pursuant to an instruction.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4169 Q. Continue what you told Kantor. A. I told Kantor I would meet him at the Americus Hotel.

Q. Where is that? A. I am just trying to think of the name. The name escapes me. In Pennsylvania.

Q. Is it Allentown? A. In Allentown, the Americus Hotel.

Q. Did you meet Kantor, Plotkin, Levine and Feinberg in that hotel in Allentown? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell them that Lepke had wanted you to take them out for the week-end? A. Of course, not.

4170 Q. Did you return to New York City after that week-end there? A. I did.

Q. Do you recall where you went to stop after you returned from the week-end? A. At the Shelton, I believe.

Q. The Shelton, is that a hotel in Manhattan? A. A hotel, yes.

Q. Is that, to the best of your recollection, the place where you went? A. Yes, I either stopped at the Shelton or the Lexington as many times as I came in. I believe at that time I was at the Shelton.

Q. Did you continue to go to Willie Alberts' place? A. I did.

Q. Did you see Lepke after that week-end with Levine and Plotkin, Kantor and Feinberg? A. I did.

Q. Did you talk with them? A. I did.

Q. What did you say?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I told him that I had taken them out and they are back, and he said to me, "Don't worry about them any more. You have got to go away again." I said, "What for this time?" He said, "Well, things are very, very hot, and you cannot stay around. Willie Alberts has a relation, a nephew, in Salt Lake City. I want you to go up there." 4172

Q. When he said "things were getting very hot", did he mention where they were getting very hot? A. New York.

Mr. Barshay: I then move to strike out the entire testimony with respect to that on the ground that it no longer has any bearing with respect to this case or instructions to anyone. 4173

Mr. Turkus: The conversation has not been completed.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Tell us everything that Lepke said about it getting hot. A. He said that the Dewey investigation is very, very hot and that Brooklyn is not yet straightened out.

4174 Q. Did I understand you to say he wanted you to go with Willie Alberts' relative in Salt Lake City? A. That is right.

Q. When he told you that, did you agree to go? A. Of course.

Q. Was anything said, when you agreed to go, about communication? A. He told me that Willie would keep me informed of how matters are going on, how things are going on, in Brooklyn, how matters were going on in Manhattan, and that Willie would send me my money. I 4175 was getting $50 a week.

Q. When he told you about receiving information as to what was going on and that you would get your money while you were away, through Willie Alberts, did he give you any instructions in preparation for your trip? A. I had some pictures up in the house. He told me to take whatever pictures I had up in the house and give them to Willie Alberts and if I had any money in the bank to take it out and Willie would bring it up to my wife.

Q. What kind of pictures did you have around 4176 the house at that time? A. I had a motion picture camera.

Q. Did you obey Lepke's instructions with regard to the pictures? A. I did. I took Willie Alberts up the house and he took the pictures.

Q. And what did you do with the pictures? A. I gave them to Willie Alberts.

The Court: Pictures of what?

The Witness: Myself, my wife and child, sights.

Q. Did you eventually go to Salt Lake City; yes or no? A. I did.

Q. Before you left for Salt Lake City, did you go to a lawyer's office? A. I did.

Q. Who was the lawyer you went to see? A. Edward Maguire, of Rice and Maguire.

Q. Where are the offices of Rice and Maguire? A. On 42nd Street and Lexington Avenue.

Q. Was Mr. Maguire a labor lawyer? A. Primarily.

Q. And was he at that time representing Local 240? A. He was. 4178

Q. Did you have a talk?

Mr. Barshay: May we have the date, please?

A. In the late 20's, in the 20's of October, 1936.

Mr. Turkus: That is in response to Mr. Barshay's question.

Q. Did you have a talk with Mr. Edward Maguire? A. I did. 4179

Q. What did you say to Mr. Maguire?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, he goes there of his own volition now. He is talking now to his lawyer.

The Court: I misunderstood. Read the last page.

(Questions and answers read by the reporter.)

4180 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

The Court: Sustained. I was under the impression that he was sent there by Lepke.

Q. Did you have a talk, yes or no, with Mr. Maguire of the law firm? A. I did.

Q. Were you then a union official? A. I was.

Q. After you spoke with Mr. Maguire, where did you go, or whom did you see? A. I went to see Lepke.

4181 Q. Did you talk with Lepke about Maguire? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Lepke? A. That Maguire would like to see him.

Q. Did Lepke at that time know that Maguire was representing the local?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Calls for a conclusion. Sustained.

Q. Did you tell him who Maguire was? A. I did.

4182 Q. What did you tell Lepke as to Maguire? A. That Maguire wants to see him.

Q. Did you go with Lepke to Mr. Maguire's law office? A. I did.

Q. Did you have a talk with Mr. Maguire and Mr. Lepke? A. I did.

Q. What did you say to Maguire, what did he say to you, and what was the entire discussion in Mr. Maguire's office?

Mr. Rosenthal: I urge the same objection as far as the defendant Capone, in no wise binding on him.

Mr. Talley: Same objection as to the defendant Weiss.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. I said to him, "Mr. Maguire, will you repeat to Lepke what you told me yesterday?", and he said he would.

Q. Did he repeat? A. He did.

Q. What did he say? 4184

Mr. Talley: Objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. He said it was inadvisable for me to leave the city, that as a union man it was not advisable; as a married man it was foolish; that eventually I would have to come back anyhow, and that I should stay in the city and face whatever I have to face because I cannot stay away, and I would lose my job if I stayed away any length of time. 4185

Q. Did Mr. Maguire say anything about flight in that talk? A. Yes.

Q. What did he say about flight? A. He said it would be a suspicion of guilt, it would be a sign to any jury that I ran away because I was guilty of something, and I should stay.

Q. When Mr. Maguire had repeated the advice that he had given you when you were along with him, what did Lepke say? A. Lepke said, "All I know, that when a witness is not around, there cannot be a case."

4186 Q. After Lepke said, "When there is no witness around there cannot be a case," did Mr.—

Mr. Barshay: He say, "A witness", please, Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: Withdrawn.

Q. When Lepke said that to Mr. Maguire and to you, what did Mr. Maguire say? A. Mr. Maguire said, "Don't forget he is a married man, he has a family. It is no good for him to be away. No family man should be away. It is not right." He pleaded with him that I should stay.

4187

Q. And what did Lepke say? A. "I will see about it."

Q. Did that break up the meeting with Mr. Maguire and Lepke? A. It did.

Q. Did you leave Mr. Maguire's law offices with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. Did Mr. Maguire remain in his office then? A. He did.

4188 Q. After you left Mr. Maguire's presence, did Lepke talk to you? A. He did.

Q. What did he say? A. In the hall, outside of Maguire's office, he says, "I didn't want to tell you this in front of Maguire but you have nothing to worry about. That case in Brooklyn is going to be thrown out the window. McCarthy is not going to take care of it any more and Jacobs is going to come in and Jacobs is going to be pushed in something else in another building and the case will die."

Q. Did he say anything else? A. That is all.

Q. After that, did you agree to leave and go to Salt Lake City? A. I did.

Q. Did you go to Salt Lake City? A. I did.

Q. Do you remember when you left for Salt Lake City? A. I think it was October 30, 1936.

Q. What hotel did you stop at in Salt Lake City? A. The Carlton.

Q. Have you seen photostatic copies of certain documents that were secured by the District Attorney in Salt Lake City? A. I did.

Q. And were those papers submitted to you 4190 for the refreshment of your recollection? A. They were.

Q. What hotel did you stop at in Salt Lake City? A. The Carlton.

Q. Under what name? A. George Miller.

Q. How long did you stay in Salt Lake City? A. One month.

Q. After you got to Salt Lake City, did you get sick? A. Yes, when I got off the train I got sick.

Q. And did you have a doctor? A. I had a doctor.

4191

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you go to a hospital? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: I take exception.

Q. What was the hospital you were taken to? A. The All Saints Hospital.

Q. In Salt Lake City? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is the full name Dr. N. H. Groves Latter Day Saints Hospital? A. That is it.

Q. Under what name were you admitted to the hospital? A. George Miller.

Q. How long did you stay in the hospital? A. Three days, I believe.

Q. Have you seen photostatic copies of the hospital records?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

4193 Q. In the District Attorney's office?

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. While you were in Salt Lake City, did you receive communications? A. I received three letters.

Q. Whom did you receive the letters from? A. Willie Alberts.

4194 Mr. Barshay: I object to it and move to strike out the answer.

Mr. Turkus: This is absolutely admissible, Lepke having told him that Willie Alberts—

Mr. Barshay: Now, please, Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, I desire to address you on a point of law without being hampered by any counsel.

The Court: The only question is the authentication of the signatures. The other legal point is in your favor. Sustained.

Q. Had you frequented Willie Alberts' bail bond place?

Mr. Barshay: Already answered, sir.

Q. Did you know Willie Alberts' handwriting?

Mr. Cuff: Object to that, calling for a conclusion.

A. No.

4196

The Court: He says he did not.
Mr. Cuff: I did not hear the answer.
Mr. Furkus: It is not a conclusion now.

Q. Never mind what was in the letters. Did you receive money?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

A. I did.

The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4197
The Court: Any money?
The Witness: I did, yes, sir.
The Court: With the letters?
The Witness: With the three letters.

Q. How often did you receive money?

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer, the first answer, and I object to this question.
The Court: Overruled.

4198

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I received money four times.

Q. Do you remember in what form you received the money?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4199

A. The three letters had fifty dollar bills in each and the fourth time I received money through a money order sent through the Western Union.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this be marked for identification.

(Paper marked People's Exhibit Z-3 for identification.)

Q. Who was Sam Teitelbaum? A. Nephew of Willie Alberts. He used that name. That was not his right name.

4200

Mr. Barshay: I object to it and move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Does he know the relationship? Sustained. Strike it out.

Q. Where was this Sam Teitelbaum at the time you were in Salt Lake City?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Do you know?

The Witness: Yes, surely. He had a florist establishment there. I went there.

Q. Wasn't that the place that Lepke told you to go? A. He told me that Willie Alberts would send me to a nephew of his and that is where I went.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

The Court: Is that the place?

The Witness: Yes. 4202

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: I thought it was. Let it stand.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: We will take a recess now. Everybody kindly remain in order, the witness going out first.

Gentlemen of the jury, do not discuss the case, let nobody talk to you about it, keep your minds open and follow all the previous admonitions. We will resume at 4203 ten o'clock on Monday morning. Let the jury pass out.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to Monday, November 3, 1941, at ten a. m.)

4204 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Brooklyn, N. Y., November 3, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

MAX RUBIN, a witness called in behalf of the People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. Turkus (continued):

4205 Q. Prior to recess on Friday you were testifying, among other things, that you were told to turn over certain pictures, you were told by Lepke to turn them over to Willie Alberts, and also to clean out a bank account? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you have a bank account? A. I did.

Q. In what bank did you have your account? A. The Bank for Savings, on 4th Avenue.

Q. Did you have money in that bank account? A. I did.

4206 Mr. Turkus: I ask that these papers be marked for identification—the two papers pinned together.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-4 for identification.)

Mr. Turkus: I offer in evidence People's Exhibit Z-4 for identification, the same being a photostatic copy of bank account.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, self-serving.

The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 35 in evidence.)

Mr. Rosenthal: May I have an exception also on behalf of the defendant Capone, as not binding?
Mr. Cuff: I understand we all have exceptions.
The Court: Yes. 4208
Mr. Turkus: May I read People's Exhibit 35 in evidence to the jury?
The Court: Yes.
Mr. Barshay: I object. What has that got to do with it? I object to the reading of this exhibit to the jury, or any part of it.
The Court: Do you mean that when an exhibit goes into evidence, the jury cannot see it?
Mr. Barshay: I did not say that.
The Court: I have overruled your objection. 4209
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
Mr. Turkus: (reading to jury) People's Exhibit 35 consists of two pieces of paper, "No. 1,395,354, July"—"Jul—1 1935" Alongside a dollar sign and the figures "2500." "I hereby agree to be bound by the conditions printed on the reverse side hereof."

The signature is "Max Rubin" in handwriting, and in typewriting it is, "Rubin, Max".

4210

I am reading the left-hand column: 1,395,354.

Reading under the column 1,395,354: "80 Van Cortlandt Pk. South, Bx. Business Agent."

Opposite "80 Van Cortlandt Pk." is "Residence," and opposite "Business Agent" is "Occupation."

"Harry" is opposite "Father's full name," and "Yetta Rothbard-d. Mother's full maiden name."

4211

A stamp across the face of that says, "Closed, Oct. 21, 1935."

The other portion of the exhibit reads, small number "4"—underneath are the figures "1,395,354."

Typewritten: "MAX RUBIN."

"The Bank for Savings in the City of New York."

These figures will appear under four columns: "Date," "Drafts," "Balance," "Deposits." "1935, July 1, Balance $2,500, Deposits $2,500."

4212

In the right-hand column: "$15.62."

Underneath "Balance," "2,515.62."

Underneath "Deposits," it says "15.62."

"Oct. 11, Drafts, $450; Balance, $2,065.62." Over on the right-hand column is "10.32."

"Dec. 7, Drafts, 1,500." Underneath "Balance, 565.62." Right-hand side, small lead-pencil figures, "2.82," Dec. 7, 1936.

"Jan'y 1, Int." Under "Balance, 568.44. Deposits, 2.82. L. 2.84."

"Mar. 2, 578.44," under "Balance." Under "Deposits, 10." Alongside of that in small figures: "2.85."

"April 1, Int." Under "Balance, 581.29. Deposits, 2.85." Alongside of that in small figures, "2.90."

"July 7, Int." Underneath "Balance, 584.19. Deposits, 2.90." And in the right-hand column "2.92."

"Oct. 21, Drafts, 587.11." Underneath is written, "2,537.11." Underneath "Deposits," "2,537.11." 4214

Q. Now, did you on October 21, 1936—

The Court: There was a final withdrawal?

Mr. Turkus: $587.11, which closed out the account.

I want to make a correction in my reading from the first exhibit. The account was closed out October 21, 1936.

Q. Pursuant to that instruction of Lepke's to close out your account in the Bank for Savings in the City of New York— 4215

Mr. Barshay: I object, first on the ground it is repetitious.

The Court: It is repetitious, sustained.

Q. Before recess Friday you told us that you arrived in Salt Lake City, and upon your arrival you were sick and went to the hospital which you described as Dr. N. H. Groves' Latter Day Saints Hospital, am I correct? A. Yes, sir, that is correct.

Q. And that you went there under the name that you were using, George Miller? A. That is correct.

Mr Turkus: I offer a photostatic copy of a hospital record for identification. I ask that it be marked as one exhibit—consisting of 11 pages.

4217

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification.)

The Court: Are they certified?
Mr. Turkus: Only photostats.

Q. When you went into the hospital, Mr. Rubin, I direct your attention to People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification and ask you whether upon admission to the hospital you signed the name of George Miller as the signature for the patient.

4218

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding upon this defendant.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Is that the signature you wrote, appearing on People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification, the one that you just laid down? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Mr. Turkus: I am going to offer in evidence at this time so much of People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification as contains the signature of "George Miller," identified by the witness as having been subscribed by him upon his admission to the hospital.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, not binding in any fashion on this defendant.

The Court: Hospital records will have to come under the provision of the Civil Practice Act which requires certification. 4220
This is not certified. Also, if I recall correctly, it would have to be a record, a public record in this State. I am not clear on the latter point. We will come to that. But on the question of signature, that is not admissible unless for the purpose of proving by outside evidence that that is his signature. That has not yet been done. The rest of the paper is incompetent, in so far as it relates to hearsay matter, which was obviously stated by the patient at the time of his entry into the hospital. Objection sustained. 4221

Q. Without reference to the patient's admission record, can you, without reference to that record for refreshment of your recollection, can you tell me the date you entered Dr. N. H. Groves Latter Day Saints Hospital in Salt Lake City? A. I believe it was November 2, 1936, perhaps November 3rd.

Q. I believe you jsut stated it was—

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel re-

4222 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

peating testimony of this witness just given a few minutes ago.

The Court: Reframe your question.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification and say if you can give us the exact date. A. November 3, 1936.

Q. Do you recall what address you gave in the hospital as your place of residence?

4223 Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I do.

Q. What address? A. The Carlton Hotel.

Q. Do you recall, without refershing your recollection from People's Exhibit Z-5 for identification, who you listed as your relative or friend, and the address you gave?

4224 Mr. Barshay: I object. May I direct your Honor's attention that Mr. Rosenthal sought to introduce letters in evidence, when your Honor sustained objection, and he tried to read contents of those letters under objection by Mr. Turkus.

The Court: You cannot read, therefore you cannot refresh his recollection from memoranda which he himself did not make, but if he recalls independently who it was, he can so state.

Mr. Turkus: I am asking him that.

A. Sam Teitelbaum.

Q. Do you remember what address you gave of Sam Teitelbaum's? A. Broadway—I don't remember the address any more.

Q. Was that the Sam Teitelbaum that Lepke had sent you out to stay with?

Mr. Barshay: I object. There is no such testimony, that Sam Teitelbaum who is alleged to have been mentioned by the defendant is the same person he mentioned.

The Court: Objection overruled. 4226

Mr. Barshay: Exception. There is no proof that Mr. Buchalter ever saw Sam Teitelbaum, so he may not have been speaking about the same man.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes.

Q. Did this Sam Teitelbaum have a florist shop, as you were told before you went out to Salt Lake City?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as not binding on the defendant. 4227

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you spend time in Sam Teitelbaum's florist shop, as you had been instructed to do?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

4228 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Before recess on Friday, you told us you did receive money and you did receive information, didn't you?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

4229 Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit Z 3 for identification and tell us whether this was the Western Union money order, rather, a photostat of it, which you received out in Salt Lake City?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the characterization of Mr. Turkus's question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I don't want to look at it, because I did not receive it.

4230 Q. Did you at any time ever see People's Exhibit Z 3 for identification after you came back? A. I saw it, yes, sir.

Q. When, after you came back, did you see it for the first time, if you can recall? A. A month or two months ago; something like that.

Q. Can you identify this man (indicating)? A. I can.

Q. Who is he?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. (Referring to man who enters room) His name is Murray Weinstein.

Mr. Turkus: (Addressing man) Will you kindly give your name and address to the stenographer?

Person Addressed: Murray Weinstein, 1731 Harrison Avenue, Bronx.

Mr. Barshay: May we have this witness available, if he is under subpoena?

The Court: Are you going to call him again? 4232

Mr. Turkus: He is under subpoena.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Turkus: Mr. Barshay, if he needs him, knows he can exercise the service of a subpoena. Let us have that understood.

Is that man out of the room? (referring to Mr. Weinstein)

The Court Attendant: Yes.

Q. Is that the Murray Weinstein concerning whom you testified on Friday? A. He is.

Q. A union official? A. That is right. 4233

Mr. Barshay: May Mr. Turkus and I come up to see you for a minute?

The Court: Yes.

(Mr. Turkus and Mr. Barshay confer with the Court privately, without the hearing of the jury.)

(Respective counsel return to their places in the court-room.)

4234

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Before you went to Salt Lake City, Mr. Rubin, did you tell your wife where you were going?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Sustained as hearsay.

Mr. Turkus: May I argue that point? I will pursue some other question, and then maybe the relevancy will be apparent.

4235

Q. Did you tell anybody other than Lepke and Albert where you were going in Salt Lake City?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Just yes or no. Objection overruled.

Mr. Parshay: Exception.

A. No.

Q. On Friday you spoke of a Cutters Union, or Local 4, Cutters Local 4, do you recall? A.

4236 Yes, sir.

Q. Affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So that the jury may understand what a Cutters Local is, will you explain the set-up of the Cutters Local in connection with the Amalgamated? A. The piece goods make up clothing for men and boys goes into the cutting floor after it has been sponged. The sponger shrinks the garment as much as he possibly can so no shortage develops afterwards. Then it is put on a table, stretched out by stretchers, or layers, or pullers, who cut it a specific length, and then if he has a required height, 20, 30, 40, and in the cheaper houses, 60 high, a marker comes along with a pattern and puts the pattern on the cloth, and then, with a piece of chalk, outlines these patterns, and then the main cutter comes along and cuts the garments out, and then the fitter comes along and chalks up the respective parts of the fit in the garment. Each one has a chalk number on, so you can relate different parts to one another, the under sleeve, the top sleeve, etc. 4238

Then the bundles are made and go to the tailor shop by the express route that I represented. And in the tailor shop the tailor takes each individual garment and makes it up. The cutter is the hub, the heart, the soul of the make of the garment.

You know, you need about 2,000 cutters and about 20 to 25 thousand tailors, that is the center of that particular organization.

Q. As you have outlined the various steps each of these departments function in connection with the manufacture of a suit or garment, there 4239 are separate locals, aren't there? For example, you have the Cutters Local, you have the Tailors Local—you had better explain, so the jury will understand. A. The Cutters Local represents about 1,800 or 2,000 men, as I said before. Then there are the canvas men, the canvas that goes inside of the garment to give it body, the lapel makers—a special art—and the button-hole makers—a special union. Then there are the operators that make the complete garment, so that in a coat there are four or five—there are four or five or six different organizations that 4240 take care of that particular work; and then there are the vest workers, who have their own local, and then there are the pants makers. The knee pants have a local of their own, and the long pants have a local of their own.

Q. As you state, the hub of the whole thing is the cutters? A. Positively.

Q. Did you tell us on Friday how long you stayed in Salt Lake City? A. I stood there one month.

4241 Q. During that entire month where did you live? A. I lived at the Carlton Hotel.

Q. Where did you spend your days? A. In the flower shop.

Q. With whom? A. With Sam Teitelbaum, in his shop.

Q. After you had stayed that month, where did you go? A. I came back to New York.

Q. Did you contact anyone before you returned to New York City?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as not binding on the defendant.

4242 The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did not.

Q. When you returned to New York City where did you go? A. I stopped I believe at the Shelton.

Q. In Manhattan? A. In Manhattan.

Q. When you got back to Manhattan did you communicate with anyone? A. I did.

Q. With whom? A. With Lapke.

Q. Did you meet him? A. I did.

Q. Where did you meet him? A. My best recollection is in Willie Albert's office!

Q. At No. 2 Lafayette Street, Manhattan, is that the best of your recollection? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. Did you have a talk with Lepke? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Tell us what he said to you and what you said to him. A. He asked me why I came back. I said "I could not stay there, it is too lonesome; I did not see my family; that I am a 4244 home man; I wanted to stay home." He asked me if I had anything in the back of my head that brings me back. I said, "No," I had not anything in the back of my head, that I considered him a friend of mine and I had no notions of any kind. Then he said that things are very hot—"Brooklyn is not straightened out. Investigations are getting very serious," and that I had no right to come back.

Q. After he told you you had no right to come back, was anything further discussed? A. I told him he had nothing to worry about as far as I 4245 was concerned, that I was a friend.

Q. Did you continue to stay at the hotel in Manhattan? A. I did.

Q. All during this period that you were away in Salt Lake City did you have any contact with your wife and family?

Mr Barshay: I object to that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Not while I was in Salt Lake City, no, sir.

4246 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Or with any relative or member of your family? A. No, sir, no one.

Q. Did you obey the instructions you received prior to going to Salt Lake City and when you were there?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as a conclusion.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4247

A. I did.

Q. How long did you continue to stay in this Manhattan hotel, if you can remember? A. Until some part of December; I think it was the early part of December.

Q. Did Lepke, at or about that time, have a talk with you about going away? A. He did.

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel leading.

The Court: Objection sustained.

4248 Mr. Turkus: I ask that this paper be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-6 for identification.)

Q. After you had stayed in this hotel for the period of time you have related to the jury, did you have a talk with Lepke? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who spoke first, if you can remember? A. Lepke told me I would have to go away again.

Q. When he told you you would have to go away, what did you say to him? A. I did not want to go. I said, "I am better off staying in the city."

Q. What did he say to you? A. He said to me, "you are complaining you are lonesome, you have nothing to do, I will send you to a place where you will be occupied; you will make some money besides. I want you to go to New Orleans. Frank Costello is up there, and he is running the machines—all kinds of slot machines. You go around and help with the machines and you will be occupied. You will have money from 4250
New York, money from me, money from there. You will have nothing to worry about. You will be O. K."

Q. Did you agree to go? A. I did.

Q. Did you go to New Orleans? A. I did.

Q. Before you went to New Orleans did you get any instructions from Lepke about communication?

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4251

A. I did.

Q. What were the instructions you received? A. That as soon as I got there I should notify Paul Berger, where I was stopping.

Q. You say you did go to New Orleans? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall what hotel in New Orleans you went to? A. Yes, sir, the Hotel New Orleans.

4252 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. Have you seen a photostatic copy of the registration of that hotel? A. I did.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit Z-6 for identification and tell us if you can identify it. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that your registration in the Hotel New Orleans? A. It is.

Q. Under the name you used? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I offer that in evidence.

4253 The Court: What is the date?

Mr. Turkus: The date stamped on it is December 9, 1936, at 9:56 P. M.

Q. (The Court) Does that refresh your recollection, December 9, 1936? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: The same objection as before.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4254 (Received and marked People's Exhibit 36 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May I read People's Exhibit 36 to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: This is a photostatic copy of a card—

The Court: I thought that was an original.

Mr. Turkus: No, it is a photostat.

(continuing reading) "Welcome to Hotel New Orleans." A large black line under "New Orleans."

4255

"New Orleans' Newest and Most Modern Hotel. Guests are hereby notified that the Company will not be responsible for valuables, Money, Jewelry, Clothing, etc.; unless same are deposited in the safe. Nor will we be responsible for Automobiles, Tires, or other property left in parking space."

Registration "11497"

"Room No. 1016. Rate $2.50. Room Clerk, B." "Baggage" has a check on it—maybe the figure "1"—you can examine it. "Typist: G." "Account Number 26193."

4256

"Arrival," stamped: "Hotel New Orleans, Dec. 9, 9:56 P. M. 1936."

"Name: William Harris.

"City: Phila" — meaning "Philadelphia."

"State: Pa." meaning "Pennsylvania."

Q. Did you register under the name of "William Harris"? A. I did.

4257

Q. Did you use the address, "Philadelphia, Pennsylvania"? A. I did.

Q. In regard to instructions you received from Lepke, to communicate with Berger, did you follow out that instruction and communicate with Berger? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell Berger what hotel you were stopping at? A. I did.

Q. Did you tell him what name you were using? A. I did.

Q. How long did you stay in New Orleans? A. One week.

Q. During the week you were in New Orleans, did you contact or communicate with your wife or any member of your family? A. I did not.

Q. Did you hear anything from your wife or any member of your family? A. I did not.

Q. After you had been in New Orleans a week, where did you go? A. I came back to New York.

Q. Before you came back to New York City did you talk or communicate with anybody? A. I did not.

Q. Did you tell Berger you were coming back?

4259 A. I did not.

Q. Did you tell Lepke you were coming back? A. I did not.

Q. When you came back to New York City from New Orleans, where did you go? A. I went home.

Q. When you got home was your wife home?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. She was not.

4260 Q. Did you see her later?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.
Q. Where? A. In my house.
Q. Did you see your son? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Same ruling.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After that, did you communicate with anybody? A. I went to sleep. When I woke up I called up Paul Berger.

Q. After you called up Paul Berger, did you receive a visit from anybody? A. I received a visit from Paul Berger.

Q. Did he say something to you?

Mr. Barshay: Yes or no.

A. Yes, sir. 4262

Q. What did you say to him?

Mr. Barshay: I object. This is not pursuant to any instructions according to the witness's own testimony.

Mr. Turkus: It will be connected.

The Court: The trouble is, mischief may be done.

Mr. Turkus: I think your Honor can take my judgment when I say it will be connected, that it will be connected, within the next few minutes, right from the witness. 4263

Mr. Barshay: I do not take his judgment or anyone else's judgment on an issue.

The Court: The Court according to its notes undestands the alleged instructions by Lepke were in regard to Paul Berger.

Mr. Turkus: To communicate with Paul Berger and let him know the address, that is all. There have been other instructions with regard to Paul Berger: if you will refer to Friday's testimony you will see what the significance of the 4264 Berger contact is, and I represent to your Honor that it will be connected.

The Court: I thought most of the instructions to Paul Berger were by Belea.

Mr. Turkus: I do not want to go into any extended talk.

The Court: I will overrule the objection.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4265 Q. Will you relate to the Court and the jury what Berger said to you in your house? A. That Lepke is waiting for me, he wants to see me.

Q. Did you go somewhere with Berger? A. I did.

Q. At that time were you dressed, when Berger got there?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I got dressed.

4266 Q. Did you leave your home with Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel leading.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did you walk outside of your apartment or your home?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (The Court) Who went with you? A. Paul Berger.

Q. When you got downstairs was there a conveyance there?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as leading.

The Court: Objection sustained. How did you go?

Q. What was there when you got downstairs? A. Paul Berger's car. 4268

Q. Do you remember the condition of the weather then?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I do.

Q. What was it? A. It was raining pitchforks; coming down in torrents.

Q. Did you go into Berger's car with him? A. I did.

Q. Who drove? A. Paul Berger. 4269

Q. Where did he drive? A. Amsterdam Avenue, 150th or 160th Street, I don't know exactly, but around that neighborhood.

Q. Did Berger stop the car? A. He did.

Q. When he stopped the car did you see somebody? A. Yes.

Q. Where was that "somebody" when you saw him? A. Under an awning.

Q. Who was it? A. Lepke.

Q. When you saw Lepke under the awning, what did you do? A. I walked over to him.

Q. Did he say anything to you? A. He did.

Q. What did he say? A. He wanted to know

4270 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

why I came back. He told me he had something nice for me up there and why I came back—I would have been occupied, I would have been happy up there—I would have had plenty to do—why I came back. I told him I could not stay there, that I went to see two movies a day, and I just could not stay there.

Q. After you said that, did Lepke say something else to you? A. He did.

Q. What did he say to you? A. He asked me
4271 how old I was.

Q. What did you say when he asked you how old you were? A. I said I was 48.

Q. Was that your right age? A. It was at that time.

Q. When you told Lepke you were 48, what did he say to you?

Mr. Barshay: I object to what Mr. Lepke said to him.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4272 A. He said it was a ripe age.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. After Lepke told you that was a ripe age—

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel repeating the answer. The jury heard it and everybody else heard it.

The Court: Go ahead.

Mr. Barshay: May I have a ruling on my objection?

The Court: Objection overruled. Complete your question.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4274

Q (continuing)—what happened? A. I replied to him again that he had nothing to worry about me.

The Court: I don't like to disorganize the court—this is only for a few minutes, in order for the witness to take medicine. See that he is provided with water. You will remain in order, gentlemen.

(Witness leaves stand and returns in a few minutes.) 4275

Q. After you told Lepke he had nothing to worry about, what did he say? A. He told me to get in the car with him.

Q. What car? A. Paul Berger's car.

Q. Did you get in Paul Berger's car with Lepke? A. I did.

Q. When you got into the car what did Lepke say to Berger? A. Lepke told Berger to take me home, I should get my things, and pack, and get out of the house, immediately, and that Berger was to take me down to a hotel.

Q. Did Lepke then say where you were to go?

A. He told me he is going to send me out of town with a fellow who is a very good fellow—a fellow that has plenty of money and was good company, and I would be occupied, and I would be able to stay away, but that in the meantime I should stay in the hotel, I should not go home, I should not stay home.

Q. Where did he tell Berger to leave you? A. At the hotel; I usually stopped either at the Shelton or the Lexington.

4277 Q. Did Berger drive you home? A. He did.

Q. At any time during the trip to your house did Lepke exit from the car? A. He did.

Q. Do you remember where? A. Someplace on the way up.

Q. Now, when Berger drove you home, did he go upstairs with you? A. He did.

Q. Did you pack? A. He helped me pack, yes, sir.

Q. Did you say goodbye to your wife? A. I did.

Q. And your boy? A. He was sleeping. I kissed him.

4278

Q. Where did you go from the house? A. We drove down to the Lexington, and Paul Berger left me off there and took my two valises—I believe I had—and he drove away.

Q. When Berger left you off at the Lexington with the valises, did he drive off in his car? A. He did.

Q. Did you actually stop then at the Lexington? A. No, sir.

Q. Where did you stop? A. At the Shelton.

Q. Was that close by? A. One block.

Q. Do you recall how long you stopped there?

A. I think, with a slight interruption, until about the middle of January.

Q. Did you enter the Shelton after Berger had left you outside there? A. I entered the Lexington.

Q. Were you able to secure accommodations? A. No, sir, they were crowded, overcrowded.

Q. Was it then you went to the other hotel? A. Yes, sir; the door man carried my bags over to the Shelton.

Q. Had you been receiving money all this period of time? A. I had. 4280

Q. Did you get money while you were at the hotel? A. I did.

Q. Who was bringing you the money? A. Paul Berger.

Q. Were arrangements made for you to go and see that man that Lepke spoke to you about when he was under the awning? A. Yes, sir, Lepke told me sometime in January, I believe it was before the 15th of January, that this fellow was going out with a fellow named Bartfield.

Q. What is Bartfield's full name? A. Irving 4281
Zenreith.

Q. Under what name was Zenreith known? A. Bartfield.

Q. Continue the conversation. I stopped you. A. This fellow did not like this Bartfield around with him, and I would be all right, and that he was stopping in the Americus Hotel in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and I should go there and I would meet him.

Q. Are you sure about the name of the hotel in which you met this individual that Lepke 4282 told you to go away with on that occasion? A. I was there several times before.

Mr. Turkus: I ask to have this marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-7 for identification.)

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit Z-7 for identification and tell us if you can identify it?
4283 A. I can.

Q. What is it? A. My signature, Max Rubin.

Q. In what hotel? A. At the Americus—oh, the hotel—the Hotel Adelphi—I am sorry. The Americus is in Allentown.

Q. Did you meet this individual that Lepke spoke to you about under the awning on that occasion, at the Hotel Adelphi in Philadelphia? A. I did.

Q. Did you register in that hotel? A. I did.

Q. Under the name of Max Rubin? A. Yes, sir.

4284

Mr. Turkus: I offer in evidence People's Exhibit Z-7 for identification, the hotel registration record.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection as before.

The Court: The trouble with this is it is a photostat.

Mr. Turkus: Yes.

The Court: It is not identified as an original signature. For a copy to be admissible it must be certified as a public record.

Mr. Turkus: I will prove that.

The Court: I understood when the other hotel record was offered that it was an original, because it appeared to be.

Mr. Turkus: No, it was a photostat.

The Court: It did not look like a photostat.

Mr. Turkus: Do you want that exhibit withdrawn? Being you did not know it was a photostat.

The Court: Well, if there is any motion to that effect. But I cannot let this one in. 4286

Mr. Turkus: You can strike out or withdraw the other exhibit then.

Mr. Barshay: I direct your Honor's attention to the fact that it was given to the jury under my objection.

The Court: The Court has not forgotten that. The Court is ruling in your favor.

Mr. Turkus: This is Exhibit 32, the register at New Orleans.

The Court: Strike that out, and the jury is instructed to disregard the exhibit because it is a photostat and was improperly admitted. 4287

Q. Well, will People's Exhibit Z-7 for identification refresh your recollection as to the date that you met this individual in the Hotel Adelphi at Philadelphia—will that refresh your recollection as to the date? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Look at it for that purpose. A. It does.

4288 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. What is the date you met him? A. January 19th.

Q. And the year—1937? A. 1937, yes, sir.

Q. Did this man have an automobile?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He did.

4289 Q. What state's license plates did this automobile bear?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Michigan.

Q. How long did you stay away with this man? A. About seven weeks.

Q. Where did you go with him? A. We went south to St. Petersburg, Key West, one day in 4290 Miami—about seven weeks all together, traveling around.

Q. Before you went with this man did you receive any word about your money?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to unless it is connected with the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom did you receive word? A. From Lepke.

Q. What were you told about your money? A. That this fellow would get money every week for me and give it to me.

Q. This man with the Michigan plates? A. Yes, sir.

Q. While you were on your seven-weeks trip, going through Miami and all these other places you have related to the jury, each and every week did you get your money? A. I did. 4292

Q. How much? A. Fifty dollars

Q. And in what form did you receive this money? A. In cash.

Q. After about seven weeks on this trip, did you decide to return to New York City again? A. I did.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained as to form.

Q. Did you say anything to the man with whom you were riding about returning to New York City? 4293

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled—yes or no.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In all of those seven weeks' trip, as you have described it, to the best of your recollection did you hear from your wife or child or any member of your family?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did not.

Q. After you told this man about your intention to return to New York City, did you again
4295 see Lepke? A. I saw him in March, in Washington, D. C.

Q. Where in Washington, D. C. did you see Lepke? A. In a hotel room.

Q. Did you communicate with Lepke before you met him in the hotel? A. I did not.

Q. Did you know that Lepke was in Washington before he walked into your hotel room? A. I did not.

Q. When Lepke came into the hotel room in Washington, did he talk to you? A. He did.

Q. What did he say to you? A. He wanted
4296 to know why I was coming back to New York City.

Q. And what did you say to him? A. I told him I was anxious to come back, I wanted to pay my income tax; I usually paid it in the Custom House, New York, and I was anxious to get back.

Q. When you told him you were anxious to get back to New York City, what did Lepke say to you? A. I cannot come back.

Q. When he told you that you could not come back, what did you say? A. I told him he had nothing to worry about, and then I asked him to come into the bathroom with me and without the hearing of the others that were in the room.

Q. Was this man who had the Michigan plates on his car in the room with you when Lepke was telling you you could not come back? A. He and a brother of his.

Q. Then I understand you to say to the Court and jury you called Lepke into the bathroom? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Out of the hearing of the two others? A. 4298
Yes, sir.

Q. What was said in the bathroom? A. I told him he had nothing to worry about, I was coming back to New York, if I got in any trouble he had nothing to worry about; if I had to pay any penalty of any kind I was willing to pay it; but as far as he was concerned he had nothing to worry about.

Q. Did you say anything to Lepke about this other man and your reason for calling him into the bathroom? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you say to Lepke about that? A. 4299
I told him that the reason I brought him in was I was afraid of this other fellow,—that he would give me permission to come back, and perhaps he did not want to give me permission, because this fellow was in the other room and wanted to come back too,—that I brought him in there for that purpose, out of earshot of everybody.

Q. When you made that explanation to Lepke did he say anything to you? A. He said to me, "If you get in any trouble in New York, don't come to me." I said, "What do you mean by trouble?" He said, "I mean if you need a lawyer or need money to get up a bail bond or something, don't come to me for that." I said, "That is all right, I will stay on my own."

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer, with this inducement of flight, nothing to do with the case at issue by the witness's own testimony. He said, "Now, if you get in any trouble in New York"—

4301 The Court: Maybe because Brooklyn is technically a part of New York—

Mr. Turkus: That is what I want for the record.

The Court: Some people in other parts of the city don't want to know it.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the Court's remark.

The Court: Strike it out, and the jury will disregard it. Your motion to strike out the answer is denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4302 Q. Now, you have related to the Court and jury when, in substance, he told you if you went back you would be on your own—did he tell you where to go? A. He did.

Q. What did he say about where you should stop? A. He told me to stop at the Bossert.

Q. The Bossert Hotel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In Brooklyn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did he say anything about the Bossert Hotel in Brooklyn when he told you to stop there? A. That it was a good place.

Q. Did you come back to New York City? A. I did.

4303

Q. And pursuant to Lepke's instructions, did you go to the Hotel Bossert in Brooklyn? A. I did.

Q. Did you register at the Hotel Bossert? A. I did.

Q. Did you register there under your right or true name? A. I did not.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this paper be marked for identification—this is an original.

4304

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-8 for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit Z-8 for identification and ask you if that is the original hotel registration card at the Hotel Bossert. A. It is.

Mr. Turkus: I offer it in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4305

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 37 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May I read it to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: (reading to jury) This is a registration card of the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn: In figures, "116". In writing are the words "Louis Stein." "Date, Mar. 7—1937." Number blank. "Name: Louis Stein. Street: 210 E. 166th St."

4306 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

"City and State: New York City."

Then there is a notice to guests reading: "A safe is provided for the deposit of valuables. The Hotel will not be responsible for valuables not deposited therein.

"Apt. No. 1106. Rate $3.00. Folio 561. Clerk, Karaioff."

On the reverse side is a stamp: "Hotel Bossert, Mar. 7, 3:57 P. M., 1937—Front office."

4307

Q. How long did you stay in the Hotel Bossert under the name of Louis Stein? A. I believe a day or two.

Q. Where did you go from there? A. I went to the home of the president of the union, Sammy Sneaky Levine.

Q. Sammy Sneaky Levine was president of what union? A. Local 240.

Q. The Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union? A. That is right.

4308 Q. While you were at the home of Sammy Sneaky Levine did you communicate with anybody? A. I did.

Q. With whom? A. I got Sam Levine to get Paul Berger for me.

Mr. Barshay: I object from this point on. If your Honor recalls, even according to his own testimony, the defendant said to him, "You are on your own," and there are no further instructions from then on.

The Court: Sustained upon the ground

it calls for a conclusion as to what Berger did and as to what he did in relation to Berger.

Mr. Barshay: May I have an objection, or a ruling on the objection I raised?

The Court: You have all the rulings necessary. You have enough rulings. I sustain the objection.

Q. At any rate, while at the home of Sammy Sneaky Levine, did you see or meet with Paul Berger? 4310

Mr. Barshay: I object.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.
Q. Did you continue to receive your money?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4311

A. I did.
Q. From whom? A. Paul Berger.
Q. How much did you get?

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection.
The Court: Objection overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I got $50, and I got more money besides that.
Q. Tell us what you got. A. I got $50, then

4312 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

some accumulation, I believe, of some money—I don't remember now—but I believe I got some other money besides the $50. I believe so.

Q. Did you get that money from Berger each and every week you were at Sam Sneaky Levine's house? A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long did you stay there? A. About three weeks.

Q. Where did you go from Sneaky Levine's house?

4313

Mr. Barshay: I make the same objection now; he is on his own, your Honor, according to his own testimony; it is not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I took an apartment on Flatbush Avenue.

Q. Where on Flatbush Avenue did you take an apartment, can you recall the number of that? A. 532.

Q. Now, before you had taken that apartment
4314 did you speak to Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court: Objection overruled. Answer yes or no.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. At the time you were living— Question withdrawn.

Q. When you met Berger, at the time you were living at Sammy Sneaky Levine's home, describe your appearance to the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I wore glasses, and I had a moustache; I let my hair—

Q. (interrupting) What kind of glasses did you wear? A. Regular glasses.

Q. And you say you wore a moustache? A. Yes, sir. 4316

Q. Had you ever worn a moustache before or since?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. (continuing) During that period of time? A. No, sir.

The Court: You started to say something else when you were interrupted.

The Witness: I wanted to say I let 4317 my hair grow long, too.

Q. What about your hair? A. I let it grow longer than I usually have it.

Q. You told the Court and jury that you took an apartment at 532 Flatbush Avenue; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you take an apartment under the name of Max Rubin? A. I did not.

Q. Under what name was the apartment taken? A. Harry Chernilow.

Q. Will you spell that, please? A. C-h-e-r-n-i-l-o-w.

Q. While living on Flatbush Avenue in Brooklyn under the name of Chernilow, did Paul Berger see you there?

Mr. Barshay: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4319 A. At least once a week.

Q. Did you get your money at [illegible] once a week?

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. (The Court:) From whom? A. From Paul Berger.

Q. Now, all of this period of time when you were sent out of town by Lepke, was your wife 4320 receiving money? A. She was.

Q. What was the arrangement made about that?

Mr. Barshay: I object unless the defendant is connected.

The Court: Sustained. It calls for a conclusion.

Mr. Turkus: It is not a conclusion, because he had part in the arrangement.

Mr. Barshay: Prove it.

Mr. Turkus: I will, but I cannot prove it if the objection is sustained.

4321

The Court: The question is improper in form.

Q. Tell us what you did to see that your wife got her money.

Mr. Barshay: I object to what he did. That is not binding on the defendant.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4322

A. Before I took the Salt Lake City trip I wrote a letter to the union telling them I was separated from my wife and that I had made an arrangement with her to get $60 a week, and that she should continue getting that $60 every week while I was away.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out what he wrote to the union.

The Court: Strike it out.

Q. Before you wrote the letter to the union did you have a talk with Lepke about your wife getting money? 4323

Mr. Barshay: Yes, or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this book be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-9 for identification.)

4324 Q. As a matter of fact, was the discussion about your wife before and after you met in Maguire's office? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: Objected to as leading.

Q. Look at People's Exhibit Z-9 for identification and tell us if you can refresh your recollection from that and see if you wrote a letter saying your wife was to get the money. Read at the bottom of page 54. That may refresh 4325 your recollection. A. Yes, sir.

Q. When was it you wrote that letter? A. October 30, 1936.

Q. A letter to whom? A. To the union.

Mr. Turkus: Will you mark this specific check for identification?

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-10 for identification.)

Q. I show you People's Exhibit Z-10 for iden-
4326 tification and ask you if you can identify it. Look at the endorsement on the back. A. I can.

Q. Do you know your wife's handwriting? A. I do.

Q. Is that her signature on the back of People's Exhibit Z-10 for identification? A. It is.

Mr. Turkus: The check is offered in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it as not binding upon this defendant.

Mr. Turkus: That is part of the arrangement under which he went away.

The Court: He has not yet so testified.

Mr. Turkus: On Friday.

The Court: He said he had a talk with Lepke about it, but he did not say what the talk was.

Q. Will you tell the conversation which you had with Lepke about your wife getting money from the Clothing Drivers and Helpers Union while you were away?

4328

Mr. Barshay: May we have the time and place fixed?

The Court: Fix the time.

Mr. Turkus: That portion was played up on Friday.

Q. (The Court) Was that before you went to Salt Lake City?

Mr. Turkus: May I discuss the question without this bickering?

The Court: You may state the conversation on that point. Objection overruled. 4329

Mr. Barshay: We want to fix the time and place.

The Court: You are right.

Q. During the period of meeting Lepke at Willie Albert's office— A. That was up to the time I went away—it must have been, to the best of my recollection, in Willie Albert's office.

Q. What was the talk? A. He told me—on the question of cleaning out all the records and everything else, but in order that my wife should not be called before any Grand Jury or any of those things, or it was to be known where I was, that the separation letter should be sent in.

4330 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. (The Court) The what? A. A letter that I am separated from my wife, and all that. I do not remember the exact wording of the matter, but now, to the best of my recollection, the fact I was separated from the wife, that I should go away.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out
4331 as not responsive to the question.
The Court: Motion denied.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. What was said about the arrangement for a check to go to your wife? A. That is the arrangement I made.

Q. After that talk? A. Yes, sir, after that talk.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as not binding on this defendant, that is an arrangement that he made, and 4332 in the talk with Mr. Buchaiter there was absolutely no arrangement with respect to that phase.
The Witness: This is not a question of my own.
Mr. Turkus: May I point out exactly—
The Court: You do not have to argue.

By the Court:

Q. What was said with Lepke about the money to your wife—that is the question. A. He told me to make arrangements that she—

Q. With whom? A. With my wife, that she cannot be dragged into the Grand Jury and asked where I was, that I should make arrangements to sort of separate or appear as if I was separated from her.

Q. Was anything said to the union respecting the money—you did not answer that—to your wife? A. Those are the arrangements we made.

Q. Was anything said to Lepke about the union sending money to your wife? A. No, sir.

4334

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

The Court: The answer will stand, but the Court sustains the objection as to time.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Was it in pursuance of Lepke's instructions that your wife was to keep away from the Grand Jury that you wrote the letter to the Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union?

4335

Mr. Barshay: I object, especially to that part which says she should be kept away from the Grand Jury. There is no proof any Grand Jury was seeking her.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: That was to thwart the Grand Jury.

Mr. Barshay: I thought you did not want any bickering. A question of law can be proven in view of the basis now being laid, but it will have to be proven in the proper way and not by stating a conclusion.

4336

Q. I asked whether you wrote a letter.

The Court: He said he did.

Q. Pursuant to instructions?

Mr. Barshay: I object to that question.

4337

The Court: Maybe the ruling is not understood. Mr. Turkus, have you the original letter?

Mr. Turkus: I haven't it, no, sir.

The Court: Is there any possibility of proving it by secondary evidence, the contents of the letter?

Q. Will you look at Z-9 for identification, particularly the bottom of page 54 and the rest on 55, those are the minutes of the union.

4338

The Court: They are not authenticated.

Mr. Turkus: Look at it. I don't want to go into any discussion about a book not in evidence.

The Court: The point is, these minutes will have to be authenticated by the secretary.

Mr. Turkus: They are.

The Court: He has to be sworn on the witness stand, subject to cross-examination on this point.

Mr. Turkus: All I want to establish is he got instructions from the defendant Lepke, whether he obeyed them, and in pursuance of the instructions sent a letter to the union.

The Court: The Court is trying to call attention to this: that under the rules of evidence you would be required to produce the letter from the union. If this is not produced, because it has disappeared or is out of jurisdiction, then you may prove it by your own witness, by parol testimony, the contents of that letter. 4340

Mr. Turkus: I first have to show there was such a letter in fact sent.

The Court: But as to the contents—

Mr. Turkus: I am not going into that now.

The Court: Then proceed.

Mr. Turkus: Read the last question, so that we can get an answer for the record.

(Pending question read by reporter.) 4341

Mr. Barshay: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Part of it is objectionable as stating his conclusion.

By the Court:

Q. Did you, after that conversation with Lepke, write the letter to the union? A. I did.

Q. How long after? A. Anywheres between, I should say between the 21st and 30th of October. The letter was dated October 30th, that is when the letter was dated; I met Feinberg and I gave him the letter.

4342 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Who was Feinberg? A. I knew him as Jeff. He is Louis Feinberg, the secretary-treasurer of the union.

Q. At the time you wrote the letter had there been any disagreement at all between you and your wife?

4343

Mr. Barshay: I object.

The Court. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. There was none.

Q. Now, at that time, when you wrote the letter to the union, what office did you have in the union? A. Business agent.

Q. Are you familiar with People's Exhibit Z-9 for identification—are you familiar with the book? A. Being an official of the union, I saw it very often.

4344

Q. What is that book? A. It is a minute book of the local, kept a little haphazard, but still a minute book.

Q. Do you know in whose handwriting that minute book is, specifically, pages 54 and 55? A. Yes, sir. Isidore Cohen's.

Q. What office does he hold? A. He was an executive board member when I was there.

Mr. Turkus: I offer in evidence pages 54 and 55 of People's Exhibit Z-9 for identification.

4345

By the Court:

Q. What was your salary as business agent? A. $80 a week.

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. While you were away—

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. First, it is not binding upon the defendant; secondly, it is entirely hearsay; and third, it is not properly authenticated. 4346

The Court: I don't know of any statute under which the minute book of an organization is permissible without putting a witness on the stand who attends the meetings and testifies that the minutes are correct.

Mr. Turkus: I will not press it.

Q. You just told Judge Taylor that your salary at that time was $80 a week? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit Z-11 for identification and tell us if you can identify that book. A. I can. 4347

Q. What book is it? A. That is a check book we had for '36—this is September here (indicating).

Q. What book? When you say "we", who is "we"? A. The Clothing Drivers Union.

Q. Local 240? A. That is right.

Q. Does that book contain in it checks which you received at the rate of $80 a week until you wrote the letter to the union?

4348 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Barshay: I object, unless it is of his own personal knowledge.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: He did not get the checks, your Honor.

The Court: Objection overruled.

4349 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, does People's Exhibit Z-11 for identification refresh your recollection as to when you got your last $80 as business agent before you went away—the date when you received the check is on the top where you turn the page—look at the top one. A. Yes, sir, Check No. 3593.

Q. What is the date? A. October 30, 1936, check made out to Max Rubin for $80 a week.

Q. After that was the date the letter was written that was sent to the union in reference 4350 to your wife, is that correct? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Mr. Turkus: Now I ask that this specific book be marked for identification.

(Received and marked People's Z-12 for identification.)

Q. I show you two People's Exhibits for identification, Z-10 and Z-12, being the first and second checks at the top of the page, and ask you if that represents the first splitup of the eighty into sixty and twenty. A. Yes, sir, that represents it.

Q. On that $20 check, People's Exhibit Z-12 for identification, is that your signature on the back? A. No, sir, that is Feinberg's, but I want to say that he signed other checks for me, too. Even my $80 checks he signed for me.

Q. But you got your $20 differentials? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You say you are familiar with your wife's handwriting on People's Exhibt for identification Z-10, which bears her handwriting on the reverse side? A. I saw that before, yes, sir. 4352

Mr. Turkus: That check is re-offered in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I object. This man affirmatively said the financial arrangement was made by him and not in pursuance of any instructions.

The Court: That is understood. It is clear he received no specific instructions from Lepke. It is relevant to show what he did. The objection is overruled. 4353

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Received in evidence and marked People's Exhibit 38.)

Mr. Turkus: May I read People's Exhibit 38 to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: (reading) "Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, Local 240, A.F. of L. 359.

"Pay to the order of Esther Rubin, 4354 Sixty Dollars"—"Sixty" written out in ink, in longhand.

"Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, I.B. of T. & C., Local 240, A.F. of L.," drawn on the Amalgamated Bank, 11-15 Union Square, signed "Sam Levine, Pres.; Louis Feinberg, Treas."

On the reverse side is the endorsement "Esther Rubin" written twice, and "Received payment" through the check department of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York—and it has "1/30." "November 10, 1936." Another "1/10"

4355 "Prior endorsements guaranteed. Manufacturers Trust Company, 3408 Jerome Avenue, New York, N. Y."

Q. That was your wife's name, Esther Rubin, and still is? A. Yes, sir.

Mr. Turkus: That check number should be "3599."

I ask that this specific check be marked for identification.

4356

(Received and marked People's Exhibit Z-13 for identification.)

Q. Will you look at People's Exhibit Z-13 for identification, at the top of the page, and tell us if that bears the endorsement of your wife Esther Rubin. A. It does.

Mr. Turkus: Offered in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: The same objection.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Received and marked People's Exhibit 39 in evidence.)

Mr. Turkus: May I read 39 to the jury?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: (reading) "Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, I.B. of T. & C., Check No. 3605. Pay to the order of Esther Rubin, Sixty Dollars, New York, November 13, 1936," drawn on the Amalgamated Bank, 11-15 Union Square. 4358
Signed "Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, I.B. of T. & C., Local 240, A. F. of L.," same bearing the signature of "Sam Levine, Pres." and "Louis Feinberg, Treas." On the reverse side the name of Esther Rubin, with the Federal Reserve Bank clearing the check, and the Corn Exchange Bank.

The Court: We will now take a recess, gentlemen of the jury. Remember the admonition heretofore given you in all respects Please follow it. 4359

We will resume at two o'clock.

First the witness will go out.

(The witness left the Court-room.)

Now the jury may go.

(The jury left the court-room.)

Now the defendants are remanded.

(Recess taken until 2:00 P. M.)

4360 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

AFTERNOON SESSION—TRIAL RESUMED.

MAX RUBIN, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, there is a series of weekly checks to Esther Rubin in the sum of $60 which, for the sake of expedition, I would like to offer in bulk as a single exhibit.

4361 Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Authenticate them first.

Mr. Turkus: All right. I ask to be marked for identification as a single exhibit the following checks, the numbers of which I will read off to you with the date: November 20, 1936, check No. 3608; November 27, 1936, check No. 3611; December 4, 1936, check 3616; December 11, 1936, check 3625; December 18, 1936, check 3630; December 24, 1936, check 3644; December 31, 1936, check 3647; January 8, 1937, check 3650; January 15, 1937, check

4362 3656; January 22, 1937, check 3664; January 29, 1937, check 3668; February 5, 1937, check 3673; February 11, 1937, check 3678; February 19, 1937, check 3687; February 26, 1937, check 3690; March 4, 1937, check 3697; March 12, 1937, check 3701; March 19, 1937, check 3708; March 25, 1937, check 3712; April 2, 1937, check 3717; April 9, 1937, check 3727; April 16, 1937, check 3735; April 23, 1937, check No. 3740; May 1, 1937, check No. 3749; May 7, 1937, check No. 3757; May 14, 1937, check No. 3765; May 21, 1937, check No. 3770;

4363

May 28, 1937, check No. 3774; June 4, 1937, check No. 3781; June 11, 1937, check No. 3788; June 18, 1937, check No. 3791; June 25, 1937, check No. 3796. May they be deemed to be marked for identification.

The Court: As long as you specify the dates and numbers, yes.

(32 checks deemed marked People's Exhibit Z-14 for identification.)

4364

Mr. Turkus: May I hand the exhibit to the witness and have him check the signatures on the reverse side of those checks? It starts with check No. 3608, November 20?

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. As to the one dated November 20, 1936, check 3608, is that your wife's signature on the back of it? A. It is.

Q. The next one is check No. 3611. A. It is.

Q. That is your wife's signature. Now look 4365
at 3616. A. It is.

Q. 3625. A. It is.

Q. Check 3630. A. It is.

Q. Check 3644. A. It is.

Q. Check 3650. A. There is a check 3647.

Q. That is right. A. It is.

Q. The next is 3650. A. It is.

Q. 3656. A. It is.

Q. 3664. A. Yes.

Q. 3668. A. Yes.

Q. 3673. A. Yes.

Q. 3678. A. It is.

Q. 3687. A. It is.
Q. 3690. A. Yes.
Q. 3697. A. Yes.
Q. 3701. A. Yes.
Q. 3708. A. Yes.
Q. 3712. A. Yes.
Q. 3717. A. Yes.
Q. 3727. A. Yes.
Q. 3735. A. Yes.
Q. 3740. A. Yes.
4367 Q. 3749. A. Yes.
Q. 3757. A. Yes.
Q. 3765. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3770. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3774. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3781. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3788. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3791. A. Yes.
Q. Check No. 3796. A. Yes.

Q. And when you say "yes" does your wife's signature appear on the reverse side of each of those checks to which you have said "yes" as we have gone over them one by one? A. It does.

4368

Mr. Turkus: I offer in evidence all of those $60 checks from the Local 240, Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, to Esther Rubin, as one exhibit.

Mr. Barshay: Let me see them, please.

Mr. Turkus: That is not an examination of the exhibit. That is an examination of other checks.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out that remark.

Mr. Turkus: That is not a remark. That is an application addressed to the Court.

Mr. Barshay: Mine is an application.

Mr. Turkus: The exhibits were handed to counsel. Upon his examination he wanted to examine those offered in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: That is what I am doing.

Mr. Turkus: He is examining other checks.

Mr. Barshay: That is an outright lie. They are all in order, sir, and I can look 4370
at them one at a time. I cannot keep in mind the numbers as you have them here—

Mr. Turkus: I heard Mr. Barshay say—

Mr. Barshay: —and when I discovered that one of the checks in order is to another person other than Mrs. Rubin, I said in the presence and hearing of Mr. Turkus, "That has no application to this." Don't say I have no right to be looking at something I have a right to be looking at.

The Court: This was entirely unnecessary. Mr. Barshay, all you had to do was 4371 say that Mr. Turkus was wrong and the Court would have accepted your word. Proceed with the examination.

Mr. Barshay: I said it in just that way so that Mr. Turkus won't repeat this again.

The Court: This excitement must stop.

Mr. Barshay: I am not excited. I am incensed. There is a difference.

The Court: Both sides must keep their heads at all times. That is the way to try a case.

Mr. Barshay: I object to their introduc-

4372 tion in evidence on the ground they are incompetent and not binding upon this defendant, especially in view of the witness' testimony that he made the financial arrangements himself.

The Court: Same ruling as to the others. Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Checks described received and marked
4373 People's Exhibit 40 in evidence.)

The Court: Just state briefly to the jury the amount of each check and the name of the payee. Is there one a week?

Mr. Turkus: One a week.

The Court: How much is each?

Mr. Turkus: $60 to Esther Rubin, the wife of this witness.

Preparatory to offering as one exhibit eight checks, I ask that the following checks be deemed marked for identification as one exhibit.

4374 The Court: Are they in the book?

Mr. Turkus: They are in the book, pasted in.

Check No. 3804, July 2, 1937; 3808, July 9, 1937; 3811, July 16, 1937; 3814, July 23, 1937; 3821, July 28, 1937; 3829, August 6, 1937; 3834, August 13, 1937; 3845, August 20, 1937.

(Eight checks above mentioned deemed marked People's Exhibit Z-15 for identification.)

4375

Q. I hand the witness People's Exhibit Z-15 for identification, and ask you, Mr. Rubin, to check the signature on the reverse side of each of those checks as I call them off: 3804, July 2, 1937. A. That is right.

Q. Is that your wife's signature? A. It is.

Q. Check No. 3808, July 9, 1937. A. That is.

Q. Check No. 3811, July 16, 1937. A. That is right.

Q. Check No. 3814, July 23, 1937, is that your wife's signature? A. That is right.

4376

Q. Check No. 3821, July 28, 1937, is that your wife's signature? A. That is right.

Q. Check No. 3829, dated August 6, 1937, is that your wife's signature? A. That is right.

Q. Check No. 3834, August 13, 1937, is that your wife's signature? A. That is right.

Q. And finally check No. 3845, dated August 20, 1937, is that your wife's signature? A. That is right.

4377

Mr. Turkus: The eight checks now deemed marked People's Exhibit Z-15 for identification are offered in evidence as one exhibit.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it on the ground heretofore urged, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. May I look at them?

Mr. Turkus: I offer them in evidence.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Eight checks previously marked People's Exhibit Z-15 for identification received and marked People's Exhibit 41 in evidence.)

4378 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Turkus: In lieu of reading all of the eight checks to the jury, may I merely give the date of the check, the amount, and the payee? They are weekly checks for $60, to Mrs. Esther Rubin, terminating August 20, 1937.

The Court: All right.

Mr. Turkus: Those are a series of eight checks in the second check book, beginning with No. 3804 and ending with 3845.

4379 The date begins July 2nd. They are weekly thereafter down to August 20th and they are all checks of $60 each to Esther Rubin who was the wife of this witness.

Q. On Friday, Mr. Rubin, you referred in your testimony to a Mr. Louis Cooper of the Garfield Express and stated that you had met him on some occasions in New York and other occasions in New Jersey. Do you recall that testimony? A. I do.

4380 Q. Did you ever see Louis Cooper in New York City after the Dewey investigation started? A. No.

Q. Did you ever see any of these other defendants in association with Lepke? A. I did.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Talley: I join in the objection.

Q. Did you ever see any of these other defendants at the same time you saw Lepke?

Mr. Talley: Objected to, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Who? A. I saw Mendy Weiss and Louis Capone.

Q. With respect to Louis Capone, when is the first time you saw him, if you can recall? A. I believe some time in 1932 or '33.

4382

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, entirely too remote. Move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Where did you see him? Do you recall the place? A. I do not.

Q. Who was there at the time you saw him?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception. 4383

A. I saw him with Lepke.

The Court: Is that in 1932?

The Witness: 1932 or 1933.

Q. Were you introduced to him?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. No.

4384

Q. Was there anybody else there?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to as already answered and repetitious. He was asked that question and he said he saw him with Lepke.

The Court: That is what he said.

Mr. Rosenthal: The very question was asked once before.

The Court: Just the three of you?

4385

The Witness: There was another one there.

The Court: You can say who the other was.

Mr. Rosenthal: I object to it.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Defense Counsel: Exception.

A. Buggsy Goldstein.

Q. What was the name? A. Buggsy Goldstein.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer, sir.

4386

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move for the withdrawal of a juror and a declaration of a mistrial on the ground of created prejudice.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Did you see Louis Capone after that? A. Once after.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it as not binding on the defendant Buchalter.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. What was your answer? A. Once after that.

Q. Whom did you see him with?

Mr. Rosenthal: That is objected to.

The Court: Overruled. 4388

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception — unless a time and place is fixed first so that I can make my objection properly.

The Court: Fix it.

The Witness: In 1935, in the fall of 1935, in the office of Samuel Safier, I saw Louis Capone.

Mr. Rosenthal: Wait a minute, please. Now I object to it as having no bearing on the Rosen murder.

Th Court: Overuled.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

4389

A. I saw Louis Capone, Buggsy Goldstein, Pretty Amberg and Lepke.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I move again for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground of prejudice.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4390

Mr. Rosenthal: And I make the same motion.

Mr. Talley: Same on behalf of defendant Weiss.

The Court: Denied.

Q. Did you ever see Capone after that?

Mr. Cuff: Objected to as already answered.

4391

A. No.

Q. And the defendant Weiss, did you have occasion to see him?

Mr. Talley: Objected to, if your Honor pleases.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: I ask the time and place be fixed.

The Court: He can say yes or no.

A. Yes.

4392

Q. Do you recall when and where it was you saw him for the first time? A. To my best recollection, I can.

Q. What is your best recollection? A. Perfection Coat Front.

Mr. Talley: When?

The Witness: In 1934.

Mr. Talley: I object to it, if your Honor pleases, and move to strike it out on the ground it is too remote, two years before the crime designated in this indictment.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: Join in the objection and exception, sir.

Q. Who was there at the time you saw Mendy Weiss?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

A. Lepke. 4394

The Court: Anybody else?

The Witness: Lepke and Farvel Cohen.

Mr. Barshay: I again move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial, sir.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you see him on other occasions with Lepke?

4395

Mr. Talley: Same objection.

A. I may have.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out that asnwer as not being an answer at all. Either he did see him or he did not see him.

The Court: Maybe he did or maybe he did not, or maybe he does not remember. Do you remember whether you did or not?

4396

The Witness: There was one time, your Honor, that Lepke sent me down to meet them on Madison Street.

Mr. Talley: I move to strike out this recital as not being responsive to the question. Did he see or didn't he?

Q. Tell us about this occasion that you started to tell the Judge.

4397

Mr. Talley: I object to that as being too general and indefinite.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

A. That is reason I said I may have. Lepke once told me that Farvel Cohen and Mendy Weiss have some sort of a proposition, a window cleaning or a window association—I don't remember whether it was window cleaning or window association; would I go down and see them. I met them down on Madison Street.

Q. Did you meet them both together?

4398

Mr. Talley: I move to strike that out as having no bearing, immaterial and irrelevant, having no bearing on the indictment here.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Talley: It is not responsive to any question that was asked.

Mr. Barshay: I join in that objection and exception.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. Do you recall whether you saw Farvel Cohen together with Mendy Weiss on that occasion? A. I did.

Mr. Talley: Same objection.

Q. Before recess today you had testified about the apartment on Flatbush Avenue which you had taken under the name of Harry Chernilow. Do you recall that? A. That is right.

Q. And about receiving the payments from Berger weekly while you were there? A. That is right. 4400

Q. You recall that? How long did you stay at that apartment located at 532 Flatbush Avenue under the name of Harry Chernilow? A. Until some time in August, 1937.

Q. Is there anything by which you can fix the exact date that you left that apartment under the name of Chernilow, in Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled. 4401
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. My boy's birthday is on August 9th.

Q. In relation to your son's birthday of August 9th, when did you get out of the Flatbush Avenue apartment in Brooklyn?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I got out August 9th. Mr. Turkus, I may not have taken the furniture out immediately but I got out of there August the 9th.

4402 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. When you yourself finally went out of there on August 9th, your son's birthday, where did you go?

Mr. Barshay: Object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: This is not pursuant to instruction of any defendant, sir.

4403 The Court: I don't know what it is. I am going to find out. Where did you go?

The Witness: I went home. My wife had an apartment that she had taken during my absence at 245 East Gunhill Road, and I went there.

Q. Is 245 East Gunhill Road in the Borough of the Bronx? A. It is.

Q. When you went home, did you find your wife and child at 245 East Gunhill Road in the Bronx? A. I did.

Q. After you got home did you again com-
4404 municate with Mr. Edward Maguire?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is not binding on this defendant, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Just yes or no to that. A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same Mr. Maguire that you had consulted before you went away? A. Yes.

Q. And is that the same Mr. Maguire to whom you took Lepke? A. Yes

Q. Just answer this question yes or no: Did you have a talk with Mr. Maguire? A. Yes.

Q. After that talk that you had with Mr. Maguire, did you ultimately go down to the office of Thomas E. Dewey?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is incompetent, not binding upon this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4406

A. I went to a former office of Thomas E. Dewey, 120 Broadway.

The Court: Who is Maguire?

Mr. Turkus: Mr. Maguire is the labor lawyer. You remember in the early testimony on Friday—

The Court: All right; the one who advised you not to go out of town?

Mr. Turkus: That is right. The one to whom he brought the defendant Lepke under the circumstances he has related. 4407

Q. You say you went to the former office. Were those private law offices that you went to?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes.

Q. And you say they were located at 120 Broadway? A. Yes.

4408

Q. What is the name of that building, do you remember? A. No, I don't remember.

The Court: Equitable, isn't it?
The Witness: Equitable, yes.

Q. Did you there see somebody?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4409

A. I met Mr. Frank S. Hogan and Barent TenEyck who were connected with District Attorney Dewey.

Q. Without stating what the conversation is—the law does not permit the stating of the conversation—did you have a talk with Mr. Frank S. Hogan and Mr. Barent TenEyck?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4410

A. I did.

Q. Were Frank S. Hogan and Barent Ten Eyck then Assistant District Attorneys?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They were.

Q. And were they attached to the office of Thomas E. Dewey?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. They were.

Q. In order to fix the time, can you, with reference to the last check that your wife got for $60, People's Exhibit 41 in evidence, namely the one August 20, 1937, can you fix the time that you were in that office? A. Yes.

Q. Fix it. A. Right after that.

Q. After you spoke to Assistant District Attorneys Hogan and Ten Eyck, did you go back to work as a business agent? 4412

Mr. Barshay: I object to it. It is immaterial and incompetent.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. As business agent for Local 240 of the Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union? A. Yes.

Q. While performing your duties as business agent, Mr. Rubin, did you come in contact with Paul Berger? A. I did. 4413

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you tell anybody that you had been down to Thomas E. Dewey's office and saw Hogan and Ten Eyck?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.
The Court: Overruled.

4414 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did not.

Q. You say you met Berger. Did you meet him frequently at that time?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4415 A. I did.

Q. Where did you see him?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. On Fifth Avenue in the clothing center.

Q. And did you at those meetings talk with him?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

4416 Q. Just yes or no, that is all I want.

The Court: Yes or no.

A. Yes.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you have any talk with Berger in which the name of Lepke was mentioned?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it and I object to counsel leading.

Mr. Turkus: I have to lead at this point. May I tell your Honor why?

The Court: Don't say anything.

Mr. Turkus: I am merely marking something for your Honor to look at. (Handing paper to Court.)

Mr. Talley: I object to any communications of that kind being passed by counsel to the Court.

The Court: That does not call for a ruling. The Court will disregard it. You 4418 cannot give that conversation.

Mr. Turkus: No, I don't want the conversation. I just want a yes or no answer.

Mr. Barshay: May the record indicate just exactly what the Assistant District Attorney passed to the Court?

The Court: No.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: I ruled in your favor. You take an exception. Go ahead.

Mr. Talley: Can we have whatever it 4419 was that the District Attorney handed up to your Honor marked for identification.

The Court: No.

Mr. Talley: I except to your Honor's action in accepting the communication.

The Court: I said I exclude it so the rest of this is just a show.

Mr. Talley: What is that, sir? We do not hear you down here.

The Court: I don't repeat. I am talking audibly and anybody in the courtroom can hear it.

4420 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Mr. Talley: We do not hear it: whether you are speaking audibly or not, we don't hear you.

The Court: Proceed.

Mr. Turkus: Was I overruled?

The Court: I said you cannot put that in evidence and he cannot speak about the substance of the conversation because that reveals a part of the conversation, in substance.

4421 Mr. Turkus: All right.

The Court: The objection is sustained.

Q. At that time were you personally in communication or contact with Lepke? A. No.

Q. Did you know where he was? A. I did not.

Q. I want to direct your attention to a time in September, 1937, and ask you if there was such an occasion when you had lunch with Paul Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

4422 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Prior to the luncheon that you had with Paul Berger, when was the last time prior or before that that you had seen Paul Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I saw him the day before the luncheon.

Q. And when prior to that had you seen Paul Berger last?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About two or three weeks.

Q. Getting back to the day before the luncheon, where did you see Paul Berger? A. On Fifth 4424 Avenue.

Q. Was the luncheon engagement made for the following day at that time?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, no relevancy with respect to this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

A. It was.

Q. Did you keep the engagement?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir. 4425

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Where did Paul Berger take you to luncheon?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding on this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4426 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

A. Child's restaurant on 14th Street east of University Place, on the south side of the street.

Q. Did you there, in that Child's restaurant, have luncheon with Paul Berger?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

4427 Q. Can you identify this man (indicating man who has entered courtroom)?

Mr. Barshay: May the record indicate that this man has been brought in by a sheriff?

The Court: Who brought him in?

Mr. Turkus: A sheriff.

Mr. Barshay: May we get the sheriff's name?

(Name given: Catapano, Deputy Sheriff, Kings County.)

Mr. Turkus: May we have an answer

4428 to the question?

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor give me an objection to this procedure?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

(Pending question read by the reporter.)

A. I can.

Q. What is his name? A. Sam Levine.

Mr. Turkus: (To man in question) What is your name?

(Name given: Sam Levine, 206 Grafton Street.)

Mr. Talley: What is his present address, if your Honor pleases? May we have that?

The Court: You mean where he is being detained?

Mr. Talley: Yes.

The Court: No.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

(Sam Levine leaves the courtroom.) 4430

Q. Is that the Samuel Levine concerning whom you testified before this jury? A. Yes, that is the "Sneaky" I spoke about.

Q. Mr. Rubin, can you identify these gentlemen (indicating two men who have entered the courtroom)?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: How many?

Mr. Turkus: Just two of them.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4431

A. The smaller one is Davey Kantor and the taller one is Louis Feinberg.

Mr. Turkus: (To men in question) What is your name?

A. David Kantor, 295 East 94th Street, Brooklyn.

Mr. Turkus: May the record indicate he is the smaller of the two?

And your name?

A. Louis Feinberg, 1145 President Street.

(Mr. Kantor and Mr. Feinberg leave the courtroom.)

Q. Is Feinberg the official with 240 concerning whom you gave testimony on Friday and today? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is the Louis Feinberg you know as Jeff? A. Yes, sir.

4433 Q. And the other man, Kantor, is the one you testified about on Friday as having taken him out of town pursuant to instructions? A. That is right.

Q. We will go back to that luncheon that you had with Paul Berger in September, 1937. I think you have already told us that you did have lunch with him. Do you know how long you spent in Child's restaurant? Have you any idea? A. I should say about an hour. It was right before, we left right before the noon lunch. People were beginning to come in so we went out.

4434 Q. Toward the end of September, 1937, did you testify before a Grand Jury in Manhattan, an inquiry being held by the office of Thomas E. Dewey?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir, not binding upon this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I object to it upon the ground it is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, November, 1937.

Mr. Turkus: It is September.

Mr. Talley: September, 1937, more than a year after the alleged killing as set forth in the indictment, too remote.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Talley: Exception.

Q. What was the answer? A. I went to the Grand Jury, yes.

Q. And did you testify before a Grand Jury in Manhattan?

4436

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Do you recall the days that you testified?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Only one. It was either the 27th or the 28th of September, 1937.

4437

Q. One day or the other? A. Either one day or the other, yes.

Q. Several days after you testified before the Grand Jury in Manhattan, and specifically on October 1, 1937, what happened to you?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Now you are on dangerous ground. I cannot allow that unless it is connected up. There can be no speculation.

Mr. Turkus: It will be connected up by other witnesses. Your Honor must have in mind my opening statement to the jury.

The Court: That puts upon the Court the obligation of being under the necessity of declaring a mistrial if you fail to connect it up. That is not right.

Mr. Turkus: Well, then I will connect it first and recall the witness later.

The Court: You will have to do that.

4439 Mr. Barshay: On the statement of the District Attorney, sir, I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I join in that motion.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: I make a separate motion as to the defendant Capone. This is in no wise binding upon him or material to him. As such it is incompetent evidence.

4440 The Court: It has relation to whoever may be involved, but we cannot speculate as to whether any of ~~them~~ are involved. Denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Respectfully except.

The Court: We cannot try the case inside out.

Q. Did you sometime in October, 1937, go to a hospital?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it and now move for the withdrawal of a juror and declaration of a mistrial on the ground of prejudice and on the ground by indirection Mr. Turkus has sought to convey to the jury what the Court has seen fit to withhold.

The Court: Your objection is sustained and motion is denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Talley: I join in the motion and in the objection and I call your Honor's attention to the opening of the District 4442
Attorney in this case in which reference was made, in connection with my client, to what he is trying to bring out from this witness. It is highly objectionable,—fatal, it seems to me,—and trying to prove a crime other than alleged in this indictment, and it cannot be done.

The Court: Your objection is sustained.

Mr. Turkus: May we have a five-minute recess at this time, your Honor? We have been going well over the hour.

The Court: You mean for the convenience of the witness? 4443

Mr. Turkus: What did you say?

The Court: So he can take his medicine?

Mr. Turkus: And at the same time I want to discuss something.

The Court: It won't be necessary to discuss anything with the Court.

Mr. Turkus: No, not with the Court.

The Court: I understand the situation. The witness may leave the stand for five minutes, but the court will remain in order.

4444 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

(After a short interval the witness resumed the stand.)

By Mr. Turkus:

Q. Mr. Rubin, in October, 1937, did you see Assistant District Attorney McCarthy of Brooklyn? Did you see him? A. October, 1937?

Q. October, 1937. A. No, I did not see him.

4445 Q. Did you hear his voice?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it and I move again for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you? A. Yes.

Mr. Barshay: I object to it on the ground the foundation has not been laid, no proof that this man here has known Mr. McCarthy's voice.

4446

The Court: Had you met him before?

The Witness: No, sir.

Q. You met him after, didn't you?

The Court: Did you meet him after that?

The Witness: Yes, sir.

The Court: Was it the same voice?

The Witness: The same voice, yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Max Rubin—For People—Direct. 4447

Q. Now, on November 8, 1937, were you at home, living at home? A. Yes, I was home November 8, 1937.

Q. What was your home address then on November 8, 1937? A. 245 East Gunhill Road.

Q. In the Bronx? A. In the Bronx.

Q. Were you then under police guard?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I again move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground of prejudice, as not binding in any wise on this defendant. 4448

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Cuff: Defendant Weiss joins in that motion.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Cuff: Exception.

Q. What was the answer? A. I was.

Q. 24-hour guard? 4449

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: It is immaterial what it was. I assume this is leading up to something.

Mr. Turkus: Yes, it will be connected with subsequent witnesses.

The Court: Don't try the case inside out.

Mr. Turkus: I am not.

The Court: I thought you were leading up to a visit and conversation.

Mr. Turkus: It is a foundation for other testimony that will follow.

The Court: That is as far as you can go in that now. You can bring the witness back on the stand if you lay the basis for this evidence.

Mr. Turkus: I will.

The Court: That would have to come under the theory of spoliation.

Mr. Turkus: That is what it is.

4451 The Court: I think they call it spoliatory. That is the only way in which you can hope to get that in.

Mr. Turkus: That is it.

The Court: After it is connected.

Q. In or about the month of December, 1937, did you see former Assistant District Attorney William E. McCarthy of Brooklyn? A. I did.

Q. Where did you see him?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

4452 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. In the office of Frank S. Hogan.

Q. And when you say the office of Frank S. Hogan, do you mean an Assistant District Attorney attached to the office of Thomas E. Dewey? A. That is right, and at that time they were in the Woolworth Building.

The Court: You have referred to Mr. Dewey being District Attorney. He was not District Attorney at that time.

Mr. Turkus: I had put in evidence the proper designation. He was a special prosecutor.

The Court: Wasn't he a Special Deputy Attorney General?

Mr. Turkus: No, Special Assistant District Attorney, under the order of the Governor and his oath of office—Deputy Assistant District Attorney.

The Court: Not Attorney General?

Mr. Turkus: No.

The Court: All right. 4454

Mr. Turkus: People's Exhibits 34 in evidence and 33 in evidence indicate the official capacity. He was sworn in as a Deputy Assistant District Attorney as indicated in People's Exhibit 34, in the office of William Copeland Dodge. That was the way it was conducted, under that designation. The exhibits keep the record correct.

Q. Did Mr. McCarthy, the former Assistant District Attorney of Brooklyn, ask you questions about the Rosen case? 4455

Mr. Barshay: I object to it as not binding upon this defendant.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Just yes or no.

The Witness: Yes.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that this be marked for identification.

(Papers marked People's Exhibit Z-16 for identification.)

4456 Q. Do you know whether or not the questions and answers that were made at that time were reduced to writing? A. They were.

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. Is People's Exhibit Z-16 for identification a transcript—

4457 Mr. Talley: I object to that, if your Honor pleases, as not proper examination under any circumstances.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Does the date December 16, 1937, refresh your recollection as to the specific time when you were questioned? A. Only that you told me that was the date. I had forgotten it. It was in December.

Q. Did you, in December of 1937, tell former Assistant District Attorney McCarthy the truth in that statement that you gave to him?

4458 Mr. Barshay: I object to it, your Honor, and I object to the form of the question. It is a self-serving declaration.

The Court: Sustained. The paper itself is not competent. Under the law it may be used only for examination, to establish a possible impeachment—

Mr. Turkus: I am not quarreling with the Court's ruling. The District Attorney has no quarrel with the Court's ruling.

4459

Q. Do you recall when Judge O'Dwyer became District Attorney of Brooklyn? A. Only that I read about it.

Q. Did you follow any of his investigations with interest?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, sir.

The Court: It makes no difference whether he was interested or not. Sustained.

4460

Q All right. Did there come a time after Judge O'Dwyer was District Attorney of this county when you met a police official by the name of Michael J. McDermott?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Yes.

Q. When was it that you met that police official? Give us his title, when and where you met him.

4461

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. He is the Chief Inspector. I met him in headquarters, Police Headquarters in New York City, that is, Manhattan.

Q. Do you remember when it was that you met Inspector McDermott? A. The early part of March, 1940.

Q. The law does not permit you to relate the conversation. Merely tell the Court and jury, did Inspector McDermott speak to you? A. He did.

4462 Max Rubin—For People—Direct

Q. And did you speak to him? A. I did.

Q. Following that conversation with Inspector McDermott, did you subsequently go some place? A. I did.

Q. Where did you go?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

4463 The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. In a room in the Bossert Hotel.

Q. Do you remember how long after your conversation with Inspector McDermott that you went to the room in the Bossert Hotel in Brooklyn? A. About a week.

Q. Whom did you meet at the Bossert Hotel in Brooklyn?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it, not binding upon this defendant.

4464 The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Judge O'Dwyer.

Q. By "Judge O'Dwyer," do you mean the District Attorney of Kings County? A. I do.

Q. The law does not permit you to relate the conversation. You can merely state yes or no. Did you have a conversation with Judge O'Dwyer at the Bossert Hotel at the time of that meeting? A. I did.

Q. Did you subsequently meet Judge O'Dwyer again at the Bossert Hotel?

4465

Mr. Barshay: Same objection.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. I did.

Q. Do you remember when that was? A. About a week or so later.

Q. Do you remember who was with Judge O'Dwyer at that meeting?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection. 4466
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. Mr. Heffernan.

Q. By "Mr. Heffernan," do you mean an Assistant District Attorney attached to the office of Judge O'Dwyer? A. I do.

Q. The law does not permit you to relate the conversation. Did you have a talk with Judge O'Dwyer on that occasion? A. I did.

Q. When after that conversation with Judge O'Dwyer was it for the first time that you met Assistant District Attorney Joseph, Assistant 4467
District Attorney Klein, and myself, Assistant District Attorney Turkus?

Mr. Barshay: Same objection, sir.
The Court: Overruled.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

A. About a year later.

Q. Was that sometime in June, 1941? A. That is right.

Q. Without relating the conversation, did you talk to us? A. I did.

4468

Q. And have you testified about the Rosen killing before a Grand Jury in this county? A. I did.

Q. Are you under police guard?

Mr. Barshay: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: I move again for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground of prejudice.

4469

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: Subject to the further recall in connection with the matter which your Honor has temporarily ruled out, I am through with this witness.

The Court: You understand this now puts him under cross-examination on everything opened up thus far. At any time in the case, if you think you have established a sufficient ground to bring him back and ask those questions again, you may do so. Then there may be a cross-examination on that. It is all contingent on what is produced.

4470

Mr. Turkus: Yes, your Honor.

The Court: But the cross-examination up to the present moment cannot be put over until that contingency is, if ever, fulfilled.

Mr. Turkus: I had no intention of doing that.

The Court: All right. Do counsel want to cross-examine this afternoon?

Mr. Barshay: It is only twenty minutes, and we will take a little more than that to cross-examine him, so I think, for the convenience of everybody, if it is all right with the Court, we will consent that it go over.

The Court: You will have sufficient time to digest this situation because tomorrow is Election Day and the following morning we have a sad duty of attending the obsequies of Mr. William Ziegler, who is considered by many to be the dean of the Probation Department in this court. He 4472 dropped dead suddenly a few hours ago, during the night. The services will be held on Wednesday morning, and, I think, in decency, members of the staff should be permitted to attend out of respect for Mr. Ziegler's memory. That means for practical purposes of this trial that we can have the lunch hour at twelve o'clock, assemble at one o'clock on Wednesday, and then continue and work long hours in order to make up the lost time.

Gentlemen of the jury, please do not discuss the case; let nobody talk to you 4473 about it.

Please follow the further admonitions heretofore given.

We will reassemble promptly at one o'clock on Monday and continue for several hours in order to make up lost time.

The jury may leave.

Take the witness out this door.

Defendants are remanded.

(Thereupon an adjournment was taken to November 5, 1941, at 1:00 P. M.)

4474 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Brooklyn, N. Y., November 5, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED

MAX RUBIN, a witness in behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Mr. Rosenthal: I have a motion to make prior to Mr. Barshay commencing his cross-examination. On behalf of the 4475 defendant Capone, at this time I move for a mistrial and the withdrawal of a juror on the ground of surprise and prejudice, evidence having been admitted over my objection as to this witness, having, in my estimation, no bearing either upon the crime the defendant Capone has been charged with, nor in any wise connected with him.

The Court: The Court will have to charge at the proper time, when the legal point involved in the evidence is con-4476 sidered. The motion is now denied.

Mr. Rosenthal: Exception.

Cross examination by Mr. Barshay:

Q. Mr. Rubin, you testified against the defendant Buchalter on a prior occasion, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. That was in the Court of General Sessions, in February of 1940? A. That is right.

Q. Have you since that time read the minutes of that trial? A. I have not.

Q. Have the minutes been read to you? A. They have not.

Q. In the preparation of this case has anybody in this District Attorney's office referred you to questions and answers contained in these minutes? A. They have not.

Q. Did you know a man named Lou Honingsberg? A. Yes, sir, I knew him as Red Honingsberg.

Q. Did you see Mr. Honingsberg, whom you have referred to as Red Honingsberg, in 4478
Dewey's office sometime after 1937, sometime perhaps in the latter part of 1937 or the early part of 1938? A. I cannot recall it.

Q. Did you ever meet him at 5th Avenue, in the garment center, sometime in 1937 or 1938? A. If I did, he never spoke to me.

Q. Did you ever speak to him at all? A. Prior?

Q. Since 1937 or the latter part of it. A. No, sir.

Q. Is it your contention you never had a conversation with him at any time since 1937?

4479

Mr. Turkus: I object to the question as to form.

The Court: As to the word "contention"—objection sustained.

Q. Did you ever speak to him, irrespective of the time, since 1936?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: You mean about the case?

Mr. Barshay: I want to lay my foundation for something.

Q. (The Court) Do you recall? A. I may have spoken to him in 1936, prior to the time I went away.

Q. At any time, did you say to him, in the garment center, around 5th Avenue, "If it is the last thing I do, I will burn Lepke. As soon as Lepke goes to the chair I will feel that I have lived my life"? A. I would have been justified in saying it, but I never did.

4481 Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Strike out the first part; let the last part remain.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor to tell this jury to disregard it.

The Court: Disregard it.

Mr. Barshay: May I ask your Honor now to please tell this witness to answer questions as I ask them and not to volunteer any information?

The Court: So instructed.

4482 Q. When did you testify before this Grand Jury in Brooklyn for the very first time in this case? A. About two weeks ago, or three weeks ago.

Q. Two or three weeks ago? A. Yes, sir.

Q. This is the 5th of November. Would you say in October of 1941? A. I think so.

Q. Before that, sir, you never testified in any Grand Jury in Brooklyn with respect to this case? Am I correct? A. No, sir.

Q. That is correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. I believe you testified here you met the defendant Buchalter in 1927 for the first time?

A. I spoke to him—the first time I spoke to him, yes.

Q. That was in the year 1927? That is what you said here. A. About that time.

Q. You claim you received an education—Question withdrawn.

Q. You said you received an education that extended up to 4-B, public school? A. That is right.

Q. And then you obtained whatever education you could get on your own merit? A. I tried to, 4484
yes, sir.

Q. In the day time or the night time, in various schools? A. Whenever I could.

Q. Did you go to public evening high school at one time? A. No, sir.

Q. Have you gone to public school at night at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. But you did get a good education by yourself, didn't you? A. By having a dictionary and book alongside of me, doing it the hard way. I did the best I possibly could.

Q. You worked as a messenger for various telegraph companies? A. That is right. 4485

Q. You had no training in the clothing area, did you, before 1917? A. I did not have any before 1918, I believe.

Q. You said here that it was in 1917 that you became connected with the Cutters Union. A. It may have been 1918; I am not sure.

Q. So that ten years or thereabouts before you met the defendant Buchalter, you met a man named Noya, Jack Noya, didn't you? A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Was he the one who obtained for you a position in the bathrobe house? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it Beckerman who obtained for you a position with this bathrobe house? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you obtain this position yourself? A. No, sir, the position comes into the office of the Cutters Union, and they give you a card, and with that card you go up to work.

Q. At that time wasn't Mr. Beckerman in charge of the Cutters Union? A. No, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Noya in charge of the Cutters Union? A. No, sir.

4487 Q. Was he a member of that union? A. Not in my time.

Q. He was a man who was instrumental in getting you into this union in 1917, wasn't he? A. No, sir.

Your answer is "No"? A. Positively.

Q. That is a difinite "No," he did not? A. He did not.

Q. You said you testified in the flour case in General Sessions in February of 1940—page 1092, Mr. Turkus— A. That is right.

Q. Were you asked this question:

"Q. When did you first meet Noya? A. Noya, 4488 since 1917; he was one of those who was instrumental in getting me into the union."

Did you make that answer to that question? A. If it is there I must have made it, but it is not entirely correct; it is not correct in the sense of the one that got me in the union.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that and move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: It is responsive to the question.

The Court: Let him answer.

The Witness: (continuing) The one that got me in the union was Abe Beckerman, who was a very close friend of Jack Noya, and I met him right after that, but he did not get me in the union.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out as not responsive, to the question I asked him. I merely asked one question, sir: "Was that question asked of you and did you make that answer?" That is all at the present.

4490

Mr. Turkus: And the question is, "Is that correct?" and the witness made response.

Mr. Bashay: "Is that correct?" had only one reference, and that is, "Is it correct that that question was asked of him, and is that the answer he made, as I read it?"

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Answer this question yes or no, will you please? Were you asked this question by the District Attorney—or counsel for the defendant, rather: 4491

"Q. When did you first meet Noya? A. Noya since 1917; he was one of those who was instrumental in getting me into the union."

Was that question asked of you and was that answer made—yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetition.

The Court: Is that a record of this trial?

Mr. Barshay: In the flour case.

The Court: You mean in General Sessions?

Mr. Barshay: Yes, sir, I directed his attention to that, and all I wanted was—

The Court: Isn't that what he just said? Didn't he just say if it was there he must have said so? Isn't that the same thing?

Mr. Barshay: And then I asked him did he say so, but I never got an answer up to this minute. He made an explanation, your Honor, but he never answered the question.

4493

The Court: Objection sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Also because the explanation he just gave sheds light on the possible meaning of the word "instrumental" as used in the alleged answer.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I did not ask him for any explanation; that is just the point.

4494 The Court: Proceed.

Q. Did you first get into the union or did you first get a job in the bathrobe house? A. First I got into the union—I knew nothing about cutting.

Q. In other words, you were not a member of the cutters' trade upon admission to the Cutters Union; is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Wasn't that the ordinary course of events followed then by the union? A. Not the ordinary, no sir.

Q. Isn't it customary with unions that first you have to be a member of a trade, to work at a trade, and then get into the union? A. Not during the war period, when they needed men. Then they took them off the streets almost. And that was the period when they could use cutters.

Q. You had not been experienced in the cutting field at all, had you, at that point? A. Mr. Barshay, can I make an explanation?

The Court: Yes.

The Witness: Being a puller does not necessarily mean being a skilled mechanic. All you did was to take the cloth and put it on a table, unroll it a certain length, take a pair of shears and cut the cloth that particular length. That is all you did. 4496

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

By the Court:

Q. You mean you did not cut patterns? A. No, sir, you have to be skilled at that.

Q. You just mean unrolling a length of cloth? A. Yes, sir, except that in bathrobe houses, you don't have to fit a bathrobe. If you do not get it exactly right it does not make any difference. 4497

Q. You mean that a bathrobe must not necessarily be a perfect fit? A. No, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the explanation as not responsive to any question I asked.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4498 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Up to that point you knew nothing about the clothing industry; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You had no experience as a fitter, had you, when you joined the union? A. I was no fitter.

4499 Q. You had no experience as a marker when you joined the union? A. I was no marker.

Q. You had no experience as a machine cutter, had you? A. I was no machine cutter.

Q. You had no experience as a fitter? I asked you that before, and you did answer. A. I said no.

Q. Now, before that you were quite friendly with Beckerman, weren't you? A. Yes, sir, quite.

Q. You met him in Socialist movements in which you and he were actively engaged; am I 4500 correct? A. I would not say actively engaged, but I met him through that.

Q. You spoke in Union Square when you were a young man, didn't you? A. I did.

Q. And Mr. Beckerman did too? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever see him there? A. No, sir.

Q. You spoke in various places about Socialism at that time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you speak at the Rand School? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you speak at the Local Union on the subject of Social Economics? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you hold yourself out as instructor of Socialism at that time? A. I was interested in economics, particularly Marxism economics. At that date it was quite the vogue. It had nothing to do with the activity of any Socialist movement; it was an abstract philosophy.

Q. Marxism economics followed the Socialist economic theory? A. Did in colleges.

Q. Were those Socialistic economics followed? A. Socialists took them to their bosom, yes, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, the Marxism theory 4502 is also interpreted as the Communist theory, too, isn't it? A. I don't know what interpretation they put on; I have never been a Communist.

Q. You were quite an eloquent speaker in those days, weren't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, nothing to do with the Rosen murder.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4503

Q. Your speaking attracted the attention of Beckerman and Noya to you, isn't that so? A. It is not so.

Q. As a matter of fact, isn't that the reason why you were taken into the Cutters Union, even though you had no prior experience in that? A. No, sir, that is not so.

Q. Mr. Noya at that time was a gangster, wasn't he—yes or no, please? A. How can I answer that question?

Q. If you cannot answer it, just say no. A. How do I know whether he was a gangster or not; he hung around with gangsters, but I never saw —

Q. You saw him around the union, didn't you, with gangsters, in 1917? A. I told you I was not there in 1917.

Q. In 1918? A. He was not connected with the union in 1918.

Q. When did you see him around with gangsters, in 1917 or 1918 or 1919? A. Whenever I went into his place of business.

4505 Q. You know that this Noya was a strong-arm man for the union, do you? A. Not in 1918, no, sir.

Q. Did you know it in 1919? A. No, sir, he was not there in 1919.

Q. I am trying to respect you; I hope you will be respectful to me. A. If you ask me for an explanation I will tell you the history of the union.

Q. If there is needed any explanation, Mr. Turkus is competent enough to ask you. A. He does not know that end of it.

Q. He is a very smart young man; he knows everything.

4506

Mr. Turkus: I object. This is no time for compliments.

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. Around that time was Abie Slabow a strong-arm man for the union? A. He was.

Q. Did you know that as a fact? A. I did not actually know it until much later, but I knew it.

Q. You knew Abie Slabow since 1923? A. Yes, sir, but I knew he was on the payroll of the union.

Q. You knew he was not a cutter? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Frankly, he was a tough guy, a strong-arm man at that time for the union, wasn't he? A. In 1919?

Q. In 1923. A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Terry Burns in 1923? A. Yes, sir, after that, too.

Q. Did you know Terry Burns in 1923—yes or no? A. Of course I knew him.

Q. Did you know Terry Burns was a gangster, a guerilla, a strong-arm man of the union with which you were connected at that time? A. Of 4508 course I did.

Q. Did you know Johnny Spanish at that time? A. I did not know him, no.

Q. Did you know him by reputation then? A. Yes, sir, I even knew he was around there.

Q. Did you see him around there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know he was a gunman and a gangster for the union then? A. I did not know if he was a gunman for the union or a gangster for the union, but I know he was around there.

Q. He was on the payroll, wasn't he? A. Not of the Cutters Union.

Q. For the Cutters Union or some affiliated 4509 union, was he on the payroll? A. If I answered that it would only be hearsay.

Q. Tell me. A. He was on the payroll of the Shirtmakers Union, which was part of the Amalgamated at that time.

Q. You knew Curly Holtz too then, didn't you? A. I knew Curly Holtz in 1926, yes, sir.

Q. You knew who he was—yes or no? A. I knew who he was, yes, sir.

Q. How long did you work for this bathrobe company? A. I cannot tell you.

4510

Q. Was the name of that firm Behrens & Blinmark(?)? A. When I worked for them it was Pollock & Behrens; then it later became Behrens & Blinmark.

Q. Do you recall you were sent there by the union, and promptly they expressed to you dissatisfaction with your work because you were not skilled as a cutter? A. That is not so.

Q. You were still on their payroll? A. I worked there.

4511

Q. Did you work a full day? A. Positively.

Q. Every day? A. Every day; you don't know that concern when you pass that remark.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: The answer is responsive to the question.

The Court: Strike out the last part of the answer.

4512

Q. When you were on the Joint Board of this union, part of the things that were discussed were grievances of employees against the employer, weren't they? A. That is right.

Q. Accused of violating union conditions? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where a strike was to be called? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. When a strike was to be called? A. That is right.

Q. Who was to run the strike, who was to manage it? A. Well, generally a small group that ran those things.

Q. Mr. Noya was not a member of the joint board at that time with you? A. No, sir.

4513

Q. Did you communicate information that you gathered at these meetings to Noya on the outside? A. I did not have to.

Q. Did you? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you receive compensation from Mr. Noya at any time for that information? A. No, sir.

Q. Is it not a fact that Mr. Noya used that information to shake down manufacturers where strikes were to be called, to your knowledge? A. No, sir.

4514

Q. Is it not a fact that Mr. Noya constantly shares the proceeds of these shake-downs with you, for your information? A. Mr. Barshay, I didn't have enough to eat; he used to buy my meals. You are talking absolute rot.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor instruct this man to answer questions?

The Court: Go ahead.

Q. It is true Mr. Noya did buy you your meals? A. I used to go to the same place to eat.

4515

Q. You were getting $35 a week from the union at that time, weren't you? A. Oh, no.

Q. Weren't you getting that from the bathrobe house as a cutter, as you say? A. Whenever I worked. I didn't have to go anywheres.

Q. Mr. Noya was constantly taking you to Dinty Moore's? A. I think I have been just twice to Dinty Moore's.

Q. Did Mr. Noya take you there? A. I may have gone there with him.

Q. Once or twice, as you say, and you went there because Mr. Noya took you there? A. Yes, sir.

4516 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. You yourself could not afford to pay those prices in those places? A. Positively not—in that place or any other kind.

Q. Did you, through Mr. Noya, in those places obtain favorite contracts for favorite expressmen—yes or no? A. No.

Q. Did you and Mr. Noya share in the kickbacks from these favorite expressmen's contracts which you obtained in those places? A. Your Honor, can't I answer these questions a little 4517 more elaborately?

The Court: I am quite puzzled over something. Did you mean by your previous question that the man was taken to Dinty Moore's because he had nothing to eat?

Mr. Barshay: No, sir.

The Court: Because that is where very prominent and wealthy people go.

Mr. Barshay: I have no reflection on the place; that was not my intention.

The Court: You mean whether he had 4518 ever gone there as a guest, in order to entertain him?

Mr. Barshay: You may call it "guest"; I have another name for it.

The Court: I am trying to find out. All right, then the Court's question remains unanswered. Go ahead. I thought you were trying to create the impression the witness was found hungry on the street, needed a meal and was taken into Dinty Moore's for a sandwich.

Mr. Barshay: You get that impression when the man in reality was getting $35 a week from a bathrobe house?

The Court: Don't argue. I am puzzled as to why you ask it. Proceed. When I got up there I meet judges from General Sessions or men having their annual blow-out. Go ahead.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to your Honor's remarks.

The Court: Yes, let the jury disregard them. 4520

Q. Were you on the Finance Committee in those days in the union? A. About 1923.

Q. That is the time after you came back from Germany? A. Yes, sir.

Q. We will get back to before you went to Germany: You were married to Miss Coghlin, weren't you? A. Yes, sir. Why bring her in—the woman is dead, you know.

Q. You don't blame that on me, do you? A. I blame it if you bring her in.

Q. I have a right to cross-examine you the same as Mr. Turkus has a right to cross-examine you. A. That is all right; I was married to Ady Coghlin. 4521

Q. During the war period in 1917, you and Mrs. Rubin and the child you had by her, were separated. Am I right? A. Yes, sir, on and off separated, now separated and together.

Q. And there came a time when you had to register for the draft? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in your registration you asserted you were a married man living with your wife and supporting her and the child—yes or no? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And by virtue thereof the Registration Board gave you a 4-A classification as a married man? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. That postponed your being called by the War Department? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it at that time you were actually engaged in espousing the Marxism manner of economics? A. No, sir, I was looking for work 4523 then.

Q. I did not know that was your full day's work, but in addition to looking for work did you do that? A. No, sir.

Q. Was it at that time you spoke in Union Square against American participation in the war? A. Never.

Q. So there came a time when your wife complained to the Draft Board about the assertion when you registered that you had been living with and supporting her was not true? A. That is not a fact.

4524 Q. Is it not a fact she complained to the Draft Board? A. She complained, but she did not say what you said she said.

Q. She said you were not supporting her? A. That is what she said.

Q. She said you were not supporting her son, your son? A. She did not say anything about the son; she said I was not supporting her, that she worked, she was a stenographer and typist, and she went to work, but I was not working.

Q. Her complaint was then entertained by the War Department, and were reclassified? A. Yes, sir.

Q. In other words, Mr. Rubin, the War Department believed her story to be true? A. It was true.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. So you were reclassified to 1-A? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. How much money were you making then per week? A. Would you really believe it if I told you I went to work on the docks as a longshoreman, pushing a wheeltruck, and the only place I could work was in the fruit market, where the work was lighter? I could not get a job in those places where they lifted heavy suiting cases. I did not have the strength, but I could push a wheelbarrow to a freight car to earn myself $3 a day. And I would have to go over every day hoping to get work, because I stood on a line with the men and they called me whenever they wanted me. 4526

Q. You just told this jury you got in the Cutters Union at that time because of the necessity of supplying war material? A. I said in 1917, didn't I? 4527

Q. I am speaking about 1917. A. I did not say anything about '17—in 1918 I got in the Cutters Union.

Q. Weren't we in the war in 1917?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The Court will take judicial notice of when we entered the war.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4528 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Don't you know as a matter of fact that America got into the war on the 6th of April, 1917?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.
The Court: Sustained as immaterial.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. There came a time, didn't there, when you were called for actual service by the United States Government? A. That is right.

4529 Q. You were notified to come? A. I was.

Q. And you refused to go? A. Presumably, yes.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out "presumably".
The Court: Let it stand.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. And you did not go? A. I did not go.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
4530 The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. So you became a draft-dodger; is that right?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the characterization.
The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
The Court: You see, the prejudice, as far as the Court can see, does not tend to impeach.
Mr. Barshay: I ask for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: A man may be honest or dishonest and yet be a soldier. He may be honest or dishonest and still be a conscientious objector. So far as I can see, it does not justify presenting to the jury on the question of impeachment.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to 4532 the court's remarks; there is no proof this man was a conscientious objector.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. At that time you relied on what you were doing when you refused or did not answer the call of the United States Government for service?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4533

Q. Did you then adopt your brother's name, your brother's first name? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you live under your own name? A. I did.

Q. Did you stay in the country during the war? A. I did.

Q. And you worked? A. Whenever I could get it.

Q. You earned money? A. Whenever I could, yes, sir.

4534 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. The war lasted during the year 1918, didn't it?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The court takes judicial of the duration of the United States war.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You were engaged—

4535

The Court: If you can tell the court how this has any bearing on credibility, I will revise my opinion concerning William Penn who refused to enter military service and came to this country—

Mr. Cuff: He was a Quaker. This man is not a Quaker.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the court's remarks, and I again move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

4536 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. There is no doubt, Mr. Rubin, that you were not a conscientious objector, were you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. There came a time when you wanted to go to Germany? A. That is right.

Q. That was in 1921? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were a member of the Cutters' Union then? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Had you been working? A. At that time, yes.

Q. Had you been on the finance committee? A. I was.

Q. Had you been on the joint board? A. No.

Q. Had you been on the executive board? A. Yes.

Q. Had you been on the control board? A. No, sir, not then. 4538

Q. You applied for a passport to go to Germany? A. That is right.

Q. You were not sick? A. No.

Q. There was a special reason for you going to Germany? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you adopt your brother's name at that time? A. When I went for a passport?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you used the name of Benjamin Rubin instead of Max Rubin? A. That is right.

Q. You swore to that fact in the application for a passport? A. I did. 4539

Q. You realized then you were under oath?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He said he swore.

The Court: That is what he said.

Q. You swore to that fact, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetition.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you know you were under oath?

4540

Q. (The Court) Did you know you were being sworn? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you committed perjury?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained. That is a question of law.

Q. You knew you were swearing falsely?

4541

The Court: So he says.

A. I did.

Q. You had a reason for doing that, isn't that so? A. A reason for myself.

Q. I understand you had a reason? A. No outside reason.

Q. We will come to that. You knew then that the United States Government was looking for you as a draft evader? A. Oh, no, I went under my own name, went in the Cutters' Union in my name.

4542

Q. When you went to Germany, I am speaking about, and no other time, when you swore that your name was Benjamin Rubin, did you at that time fear detection by the United States Government; yes or no? A. That would be one of the reasons, yes; the other reason was I was anxious to go.

Q. You were anxious to go? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew, if you signed your name, "Max Rubin", on the passport, the chances of being apprehended by the United States Government would be greater than if you used the name, "Benjamin Rubin," isn't that a fact?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. When you went to Germany did you use the name in Germany of your brother? A. I did.

Q. For two years you remained in Germany? A. I did.

Q. Under the name of Benjamin Rubin? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. Then you obtained some work in Germany? 4544
A. I did.

Q. The name of the man who employed you was Mr. Zuckerman? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That Mr. Zuckerman was engaged in the transmission of money to the Soviet Government? A. That is right.

Q. And at that time the United States Government did not recognize the Soviet Government, am I right?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained, nothing whatever to do with the case; solely 4545 for the apparent purpose of trying to prejudice the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception, and I ask for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. On the ground the court's remarks are prejudicial to this defendant.

The Court: Prejudicial to your attempt. Go ahead.

4546 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that.

Q. You stayed there for two years? A. I did.

Q. You came back under the name of Benjamin Rubin again? A. The only way you could come back.

Q. Because that was the way your passport read? A. As you made your bed, so you lie in it.

4547 Q. Whenever you were asked what your name was, you said, "Benjamin Rubin"? A. In Germany.

Q. And on the way back to the United States? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When you applied for re-admission to this country, you did so under your brother's first name? A. I presented the passport.

Q. It was not for the purpose of evading detection by the Federal Government?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

4548 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. So you promptly re-joined the union, didn't you? A. I believe so.

Q. Did you get a job as a cutter? A. I cannot tell you.

Q. Did you work for any house in 1923? A. I worked for a few, I imagine.

Q. Can you name one? A. I think Sherrick and Hirsh is one.

Q. Will you tell me how long you worked there? A. I think for two seasons; I don't remember. I want to explain I went only into work when there was seasons, I was the last one to get on and the first one put off, since I was unskilled.

4549

Q. You had not yet advanced to a skilled workman? A. I never reached that honorable title.

Q. As a matter of fact, in your entire career with the union you never attained any skill at all in the trade? A. There were lots of them there that have reached that stage.

4550

Q. You were strictly a union man?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.
The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Your activities were on behalf of the union, isn't that so, in the shops? A. In behalf of anybody.

Mr. Turkus: I object.
The Witness: What else can I say?

4551

Q. In reality, you did no work at all but received pay because you were connected with the union as a delegate? A. Maybe you can say that for the District Attorney's office. I cannot say that for the Cutters' Union.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out.
The Court: Strike it out.

Q. When you got back in the union were you on the control board or the executive board? A. When I got back in the union I was on the executive board.

4552 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. That was about 1925? A. Maybe so. I believe I got on the executive board in 1923.

Q. Immediately, when you came back from Germany? A. Within a short time; I do not know just how long.

Q. Now, can you explain to this jury the make-up of the union? A. Of a union, or Local 4 of the Cutters' Union?

Q. Well, you confine yourself to the Cutters' Union in view of the fact you know most about that. A. There are members who work in the 4553 shops, known as workers. Then they had an executive board committee, I believe of twelve men, those were members of the executive board.

Q. How were they chosen? A. By election.

Q. To membership? A. Yes, sir; then they had three or four business agents and one manager.

Q. Who appointed them? A. Elected.

Q. By whom? A. By the membership.

Q. The joint membership or the executive board? A. The joint membership.

Q. Go ahead. A. Then in the executive board
4554 they had a committee whenever a certain thing was to be done that required committee activity. They had that committee, and then they had a finance committee which took care of the bills of business agents, or whoever did the organizing work. They would look over these bills, O. K. them, and after they were O. K.'d, vouchers with the signatures of the recipients of the money were drawn up and the amount put in the ledger. And when I was there I was also secretary-treasurer, but there is no secretary-treasurer there now.

Q. You were really on the inside of that union? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you on the Finance Committee? A. Yes, sir, but that was not the real inside.

Q. Did you know, when you were on the Finance Committee, that the union had gunmen on their payrolls in those days? A. Those days and afterwards, yes, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the word 'afterwards."

4556

Mr. Turkus: I move it stand. It is responsive.

The Court: Strike out "afterwards."

Q. You were well aware of that fact? A. Well aware, yes, sir, and they had them within the union, too. I want to help you.

Q. You will have all the chance you want when Mr. Turkus questions you, but in the meantime you can accommodate me. A. I will do so.

The Court: Did you say "gunmen"?

Mr. Barshay: Yes, sir. 4557

Q. In your duties, particularly in that union, did you wish to promote the cause of labor? A. That is right.

Q. And to organize non-union firms? A. No, sir. I never had that job.

Q. Wasn't that part of the union work? A. No, sir, mine was only a mouthpiece, that is all. All I was in my life was just a mouthpiece.

Q. You made speeches at various locals? A. When you cannot use small hands like that (indicating) you have got to use your mouth, and I used my mouth.

Q. That is what you did then? A. And all the time, yes, sir.

Q. Was it part of your job to see to it that manufacturers dealt only with union workmen, union drivers, and union helpers? A. My job?

Q. Yes. A. I was one of the executive board members.

Q. Was that part of your duty on the execu-
4559 tive board? A. No, sir, of course not. They are just small cogs in the wheel. What do they mean to any union?

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike it out as not responsive.

The Court: Let it stand.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You say here that it was not your work to organize firms in the union field; is that what you said? A. Positively no.

Q. On page 1091 of the flour case, were you asked this question:

4560 "Q. To organize those firms that would not organize? A. I helped along in the field."

Q. Did you make that answer? A. Yes, sir. That is not organizing, helping along.

Q. Did you help along in the organizing? A. Yes, sir, of course, every union man helps along. That is his job.

Q. Did you make answer to the question that was asked of you just the way I read it? That is all I want to know.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: I thought he said he had. Is that right?

The Witness: Surely.

Q. Were there strikes then, about that period, in 1923, 1924, and 1925? A. There were strikes all the time; the biggest strike was in 1921. Is that what you are alluding to?

Q. You were in Germany, so I cannot allude to that. A. I went to Germany September 21st.

Q. I am talking about after you came back. 4562
A. Yes, sir, there were strikes.

Q. At that time was union and non-union competition very severe? A. It was.

Q. Was it part of your duty to check manufacturers and contractors and expressmen and allocate work to the union drivers and union expressmen? A. If you take out the word "allocate," the rest is true. You are talking now of 1925 and 1926, when I was in the Control Department, and I had charge of the Control Department for a while.

Q. If it was not your job to allocate it, it was 4563 the job of somebody in your union? A. No, sir, the Amalgamated is some big organization, Sidney Hillman at the head of it. Don't give me that title.

Q. Were you part of that organization? A. I was that small (indicating).

Q. You are very modest, but were you a part of it? A. Very, very small; I have to be modest.

By the Court:

Q. Is that the same Sidney Hillman that is 4564 part of the Government at Washington today? A. It is, sir.

Q. What is his title now, if he is there in Washington? A. I don't know; O. P. M., isn't it?

Q. Office of Production Manager? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. When there were strikes, what did you do
4565 or what did your union do?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. How did you attack non-union competition?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question, no such testimony in the record he did.

Mr. Barshay: He said he was part of the organization, even though he played a 4566 small part in it, he was an officer of that organization.

The Court: If I could sense what this was leading up to, I would know better how to rule, but so far it seems to be rather far afield. There is nothing in the question to indicate it calls for information that has a bearing on the question of impeachment.

Mr. Barshay: The most important part is the first part of this man's direct testimony and I am attacking his credibility on that part.

Mr. Barshay: I object to letting me finish the question.

The Court: We want no discussion on the question of labor union procedure. These things may be interesting enough when written by columnists and read in the newspaper. We don't want the jury to split on the question of what the union should or should not do. The case should be reasonably confined to the guilt or innocence of the accused. 4568

Mr. Barshay: Exception to that.

Q. Was part of the method of dealing with non-union competition the strike method?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You were part of this organization, weren't you, which declared strikes, weren't you? 4569

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: That is what he said.

The Witness: Your Honor, I had nothing to do with the calling of strikes, or anything like that.

Q. Did I accuse you of that? A. What else are you trying to do?

Q. Were you part of the organization which did that? A. So is every member connected with an organization, twenty-five thousand people in New York.

4570

Q. You were an officer? A. I was getting $50. a week in the control department; you are making me as important as the Amalgamated of New York.

Q. I am not trying to do that. Will you be patient? Was strikes one of the methods used to deal with non-union competition?

Mr. Turkus: I object. It is a well known fact, but it has nothing to do with the Rosen murder case.

4571

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did that part of your union activity call for all sorts of work in connection with strikes?

The Court: You mean illegally?

Mr. Barshay: If the court wants me to anticipate—I don't want to say anything. I have an important case. If you insist, I will answer.

The Court: I don't insist. The objection is sustained.

4572

Mr. Barshay: If I did, I would lose my point that I have in mind.

The Court: Please do not argue. Hereafter the court will say either sustained or overruled to avoid argument on your part.

Q. Do you know your own union, of which you were a member, no matter how small a part you were, at that time, in order to win a strike, was using dirty and illegitimate methods?

Mr. Turkus: I object. We are trying a murder case.

The Court: Objection sustained as indefinite, calling for a characterization which may or may not mean something.

Q. Did you know of your own personal knowledge at that time that men were being beaten up, merchandise was being stolen, in the course of that strike?

4574

Mr. Turkus: I object; nothing to do with the Rosen murder case at that time.

Mr. Barshay: You started in 1917.

The Court: Its present form is objectionable, because it does not show who was doing the beating up. Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: If you want to limit that to activity of the union to show participation by this witness, you can do so.

Mr. Barshay: I think I have a right to show—

4575

The Court: Don't argue.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you know of your own personal knowledge that the union, in calling and conducting a strike at that time, would beat up strikers, or rather non-strikers, and would spoil merchandise, throw acid on merchandise, break windows, throw stink bombs, et cetera?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: You can ask him if he participated in any such methods.

Mr. Barshay: I don't want to ask him if he participated—that is not my point. I do not accuse him of participation actively.

The Court: Are you sure?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: Are you through?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

4577 The Court: Objection sustained. In seeking to know what the union does, we are entitled to know whether he participated in any illegitimate acts.

Mr. Barshay: I take exception.

The Court: I withdraw it, if you take a contrary view. I thought I was doing something in your favor. That you won't answer—all right, you are entitled to show whether or not he participated in any illegitimate acts, but not what anybody else did. I will not permit you to be disorderly when the court rules.

4578 Mr. Barshay: I am not disorderly.

The Court: You are when you are recalcitrant.

Mr. Barshay: I am not recalcitrant.

The Court: The court has ruled and deems you to be disorderly.

Mr. Barshay: I take exception.

Q. Did you at that time close your eyes as to what was going on in the 1925 strike, yes or no?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained; too indefinite.

Q. Did you complain to any police official, to any District Attorney, or to any other official, with respect to what was going on in the 1925 strike?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as having nothing to do with the Rosen case.

The Court: Objection sustained. 4580

Q. Was there a strike in 1925 that you know of, or was it in 1924? A. I don't know off-hand. Tell me and I will tell you the time. There were strikes at all times.

Q. There was a strike in 1925, wasn't there? A. There may have been.

Q. I am not creating it through the air. A. I don't know what you are talking about.

Q. You testified about this before, didn't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He did not testify about this at all. 4581

Mr. Barshay: I am talking about a strike.

The Witness: You are certainly reading that backwards.

Q. You read it at 293. Maybe it will refresh your recollection.

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4582 Q. When you were a member of this organization at any time when there was a strike, wasn't your method of attack against non-union competition the calling and execution of a strike?

Mr. Turkus: I object. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4583 Q. There were all sorts of methods used by you? A. By me?

Q. Yes. A. By me? You know what I amounted to in this union. By me?

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer.

The Court: Motion denied.

Q. You just said, "By me?", in the form of a question, intimating that you had no particular knowledge, is that so?

4584 Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. In the flour case were you asked this question:

"Q. When you had severe non-union competition your method of attack was by strikes, is that right? A. All sorts of methods were used."

A. By the union, not by me.

Q. I can only read what I see in there. It says you, and I cannot interpret that to mean the union. You understand me, don't you? A. Very well.

Q. Did you answer that question as it was asked?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to a repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. I take it at that time you were doing personally legitimate and honest work? A. I was working for the joint board in 1925. 4586

Q. You really were? A. I was.

Q. You were absolutely doing nothing dishonest at that time? A. Dishonest?

Q. Yes. A. Absolutely no.

Q. Was this question asked you:

"Q. You were not doing anything dishonest at that time, were you? A. Except that union activity called for all sorts of work and I knew of the work going on though I had no part of it at that time."

A. That is correct.

Q. "Q. You just closed your eyes to what was going on? A. Yes." 4587

Mr. Turkus: I object. Your Honor sustained an objection to that question. It cannot be done differently by another question.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Turkus: I ask that the jury be instructed to disregard the question and answer.

4588 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

The Court: The objection has been sustained. Disregard it.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You did not withdraw from membership in that union when you saw what was going on, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4589

Q. You did not withdraw from the executive board at that time when that work was going on which you say you know of doing?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you remember there was a strike in the International Clothing Company? A. You mean the International Tailoring Company?

4590 Q. Yes. A. That is right.

Q. That was in 1926? A. It may have been that year.

Q. You participated in the conduct of that strike? A. During the summer.

Q. Did you, in any fashion whatever, in the summer months, visit the premises almost daily? A. The premises, no, sir, outside.

Q. On the street? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There were pickets? A. There were.

Q. There were strikebreakers, as you called them there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Jack Noya was connected with the union at that time? A. Yes.

Q. Paul Berger was connected with the union at that time? A. Paul Berger was connected.

Q. How long was Paul Berger connected with the union? A. I could not tell.

Q. Did you know Paul Berger's connection with the union? A. A machine cutter.

Q. And what else? A. Did whatever work they wanted him.

Q. Was he a strong-arm man? A. When they 4592 wanted him.

Q. Was he a guerilla? A. When they wanted him to do something.

Q. Was he a guerilla? A. The union calls for a lot of work of that kind.

Q. Did your union? A. All unions would do that kind of work.

Q. Did your union call for that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4593

The Witness: I only got $50. a week salary when I worked.

Q. We will come to that. Mr. Turkus will ask you that in orderly fashion.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. I am trying to find out, do you know— A. (Interrupting) if you are saying the Amalgamated instead of "my" union, and "your"

4594 union, and things like that, I will answer you, but when you say "my" union and "your" union, you are not putting the questions honestly, and you know it.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor admonish this witness?

The Court: Admonished.

Q. I am only taking the testimony as you gave 4595 it in other places, so do not attribute it to me.

Mr. Turkus: I object to Mr. Barshay stating that on the record: it has no place in the record.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Turkus: I move to strike it out, and I ask that the jury be told to disregard it.

The Court: Yes.

Q. Call it the Amalgamated, if you please. You were drawing money from that union, isn't 4596 that so? A. I was working for them in the control department at $50. a week.

Q. You knew what you were doing? A. I was doing control work, and nothing but.

Q. You knew what the union was doing?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.

Q. (The Court) Did you do any illegal work? A. Positively no.

Q. (The Court) Did you participate in any acts of violence? A. No, sir.

4597

Q. (The Court) Did you give instructions as to acts of violence? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you close your eyes to it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You did not withdraw from the Amalgamated by virtue of the work charged to them?

4598

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Witness: No more than you withdrew from the District Attorney's office whenever work went on there.

The Court: Strike it out. The jury is instructed to disregard that. The witness is admonished not to do that again.

Q. In the International strike did you know a man named Burrow? A. Burrow?

4599

Q. Al Burrow? A. There was a cutter named Al Burrow.

Q. Did you point out his brother-in-law to Paul Berger during that strike, and Paul Berger killed him; yes or no? A. No.

Q. Do you know a cutter named Samuel Miller? A. You mean Nuttsy Miller?

Q. You have a name for everyone, call him Nuttsy. A. That is a name he has in the union.

Q. Did you know a man named Sam Miller? A. I know fifteen hundred cutters in the union.

4600

Mr. Turkus: I move to strike out the previous question, "You have a name for everyone."

The Court: Yes.

Q. You called him Nuttsy Miller? A. Everybody called him Nuttsy Miller.

Q. You did so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he molested because he demanded work when you would not give it to him? A. I? When did I ever have any power to give anybody any work? What job would I have? You have to go to the business agent and he gives you a card.

4601

Q. But you get the work? A. What did I have to do with that?

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor instruct him to answer questions?

The Court: Yes.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the last answer.

The Court: Yes.

4602

Q. Do you recall Mr. Sam Miller stood on line one Saturday afternoon in Orlofsky's office while you were there, waiting his turn to see Orlofsky, do you recall that? A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall when Sam Miller could get no work in the Cutters' Union?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Let him finish the question.

A. (Continuing) And had to take a job as a taxi driver?

Mr. Turkus: I object; nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you recall having a talk with Mr. Miller in the outer office of Mr. Orlofsky's, in 1925, or 1926? A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall when this Sam or Nuttsy Miller was so beaten that he had to go on crutches for eighteen weeks, do you recall that? 4604

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you point him out to Mr. Jack Noya on 12th Street and Broadway when Mr. Nuttsy, or Sam Miller, as I called him, was violently assaulted by Jack Noya; yes or no? A. What year is that?

Q. 1926 or 1925, was it in that year? A. I don't remember it.

4605

By the Court:

Q. Do you remember pointing him out? A. I positively did not; it is too ridiculous for words.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike that out.

Q. Have you ever been a finger man? A. No, sir, never.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Did you know Kid Dropper, when he worked for the union in 1920 or 1921? A. I met Kid Dropper. I saw him in Jack Noya's place of business.

Q. Did you know he was a gunman? A. I did.

Q. Did you ever work with Dropper? A. No, sir, never; never even spoke to the man.

Q. Did you know Sammy Fields? A. Very well.

Q. In 1920 or 1921, what was his connection with the union? A. I don't know.

4607 Q. Did you know him in 1920 or 1921? A. I think I did.

Q. Did you know him in 1917, 1918 or 1919? A. I don't know what years he was around.

Q. You knew him for a considerable time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know he was then on the payroll of the union?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time is fixed.

Q. From the time you knew him, whatever time
4608 that may have been? A. I don't know if he was on the payroll of the union until much later.

Q. Did you know that he was on the payroll of the union in 1923, 1924 and 1925? A. I could not tell you.

Q. Did you see him around? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you know he was a strong-arm man? A. I think they used him.

Q. You knew that? A. I did.

Q. You knew he did the same type of work as Berger? A. Yes, and there were a lot of others.

Q. And they were working for the same union from whom you were drawing pay?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.
The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I was working in the control department. They were part of the Cutters' Union. If any work was done, it was done from the Cutters' Union, not where I was.

Q. You came from the Cutters' Union; that does not necessarily say it was part of their work. That is how you got into that union, through the Cutters' Union? A. Yes, sir. 4610

Q. You did not withdraw from the union or from the executive board?

Mr. Turkus: I object.
The Court: Objection sustained.
Mr. Barshay: I did not finish the question. I take an exception.

Q. Now, there came a time in 1927 when you met the defendant Buchalter? A. That is right.

Q. And there came a time that in a talk with Buchalter he told you that Orlofsky would have to give up his union? A. Yes, sir. 4611

Q. And that the other business agents would get a year's pay, isn't that right? A. That is right.

Q. And at that time you knew who Buchalter was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You willingly participated with him, didn't you, in union activities? A. I did.

Q. The same as you willingly participated with Hymie Curly Holtz? A. When you mean participate, will you please explain what you mean?

Q. We will come to that. You know what the word participate means? A. I don't know what it means because participation can mean a whole lot and mean very little. Tell me what you mean.

Q. There are two types of participation, active participation and passive participation. Do you know the difference? A. Mine was passive.

Q. That is exactly what I have been trying to prove, you knew what was going on but you did nothing about it? A. Positively no.

Q. And you did not withdraw from it? A. I did not.

4613 Q. Incidentally the control department is a department which knows what is going on in the union itself, isn't that so? A. They should know.

Q. They knew what gangsters were on the payroll? A. Oh, no, only about the work. They get a report from the express boy at that time and they were supposed to get it from the chairman of the shop, what cut work was in their particular place, but he would not always report the work if it did not belong to him, and we did not always know. It had nothing to do with people being on the payroll, that is, gangsters.

4614 Q. Sometimes you did know? A. I knew by the fact we should be able to.

Q. At any rate, you knew sometimes what was going on?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you know what kind of a union Orlofsky was organizing at that time? A. You are talking about after?

Q. When Buchalter told him he had to give up his union, what kind of a union did Orlofsky have? A. A rival union.

Q. What? A. A local in opposition to the Amalgamated.

Q. The Amalgamated was an all-powerful union at that time, wasn't it? A. I would not say all-powerful.

Q. Very powerful, numerically? A. Numerically, yes.

Q. Numerically, it was the strongest union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Orlofsky lost out then? A. He was thrown out, yes, sir.

4616

Q. In what year? A. 1931.

Q. So he tried to form an independent union? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He did not have much success, did he, to your knowledge? A. Well, he had small success at first; it could have been more.

Q. How many firms did he have in his union, if you know? A. I don't know.

Q. Wasn't it one firm, just one? A. I don't know.

Q. Wasn't it a membership of less than one hundred? A. I could not tell you that.

Q. You did not know that at all? A. No, sir. 4617

Q. Wasn't it insignificant by comparison with the Amalgamated? A. For members?

Q. Yes. A. Of course.

Q. And, of course, insignificance in members was a very significant factor? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So Orlofsky was not giving up much; when he had to give up that union it was incipiently growing? A. At that time it may not have been large; it could have been large, or it could not have.

Q. You know who Lucky was? A. I heard about it.

Q. Lucky Luciano? A. I heard about him.

Q. When Buchalter mentioned Lucky Luciano's name, you were fully familiar as to who he was? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You did not ask Buchalter for a year's pay from the union, did you, together with the other business agents, who he told you were going to get a year's pay and their connections would be severed? A. No, sir, he told me I did not have to.

4619 Q. All you wanted to know was, "What about me?"? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You were interested strictly in yourself? A. Quite naturally, yes, sir.

(A recess of five minutes was taken at this point.)

The Court: We will not take a recess because of the trouble is disorganizing and reorganizing the court. All will remain here except the witness, who will come back as soon as he takes his medicine.

4620 (The witness leaves the stand.)

Q. I think I asked you, Mr. Rubin, about your knowledge of Lucky Luciano at that time, if you recall? A. I knew of him, yes.

Q. That is when you said, "What about me?" and you were told you could stay on; is that right? A. That is right.

Q. So it was then your own voluntary act to stay on, was it not? Yes or no. A. No, it depended on Buchalter whether I stayed on or not.

Q. What I am trying to find out from you, Mr. Rubin, is did you willingly stay on yourself?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

A. Of course.

Q. So much so that you said, "What about me?" You were concerned about yourself? A. I wanted to know if I would go out with the rest of the Orlofsky group that did go out.

Q. You knew at that time, as you say in your language, who was controlling the union. Is that so? A. I did.

Q. Define to us please, if you can, what were the duties of the control board? A. When I was 4622 there? Is that what you want? Or the control board in general?

Q. The control board when you were there. A. We got the reports. The express boys that worked on the different trucks gave in a daily report to Louis Feinberg of the amount of work that they took from a particular manufacturer to a particular pants, coat and vest maker. Feinberg would make that report out and bring it into the control department that I was in. I would then take those stubs to the respective managers. Each branch had a manager and 4623 these managers would look over those slips and if they disagreed with where the work was going to, they would stop the work in the shop where this work was in.

Q. Before you got to the expressmen's local, did the control board turn over information of its meetings, the complaints, its grievances, to the Cutters Local? A. The managers of these particular groups?

Q. Well, the entire control board, through some person, did they communicate the result of the meetings to the Cutters Local? A. No.

When I was there, each manager took care of his own particular branch.

Q. But there would be some one then who could communicate to the Cutters Local what was going on, whether it was you or someone else? A. It would have been one of the managers perhaps of the different branches or sometimes it would be such a minute thing they could stop it themselves, they would not call on the Cutters.

4625 Q. And, as you said, the Cutters were the very hub? A. That is right.

Q. The most powerful financially in America? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Well, is it a fair guess to say that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to speculation.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. It is true though that when every other method was used and failed in bringing non-union shops into some sort of a compromise, the Cutters Local would be called upon to do it; isn't 4626 that so? A. That is true.

Q. And if they acted, why that would practically end any non-union activity, if they acted? A. If they had the control of the shop, if they had one of their men in there that they could call out, that would be the end of it, if they had one.

Q. Did you know the firm of Siegel & Cohen in New Jersey? A. I did.

Q. Beckerman was in control then of what? A. He was the manager of the Joint Board.

Q. What position did you hold?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time be fixed.

Mr. Barshay: He can fix the time.

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection, your Honor.

Q. Can you fix the time?

The Court: Fix the time.

A. When Beckerman was there?

Q. The Siegel & Cohen incident. A. With 4628
Beckerman, you mean?

Q. Yes, with Beckerman.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the use of the word "incident".

The Witness: I know what he is alluding to.

The Court: What word?

The Witness: Incident.

Q. I won't describe it. Call it transaction. What year was it, Mr. Rubin? A. I had no 4629 transaction.

Q. Was it 1926? A. I had no transaction.

Q. Was it directly before— A. But I had no transaction.

Q. We will get to that. A. O.K.

Q. You are entitled to your version too, I admit that, but I have a right to ask you about it.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the statement of Mr. Barshay; ask it be stricken from the record and the jury told to disregard it. It was not a question.

The Court: Disregard it. Proceed.

4630 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Was it the year of 1926 or 1927? A. About then.

Q. Did you and Beckerman accuse each other of extorting $1500 from that firm?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4631 Q. Did you extort that money or participate in the extortion of that money from that firm? A. There was no money extorted.

The Court: By you?

The Witness: By me at all. If you want the incident, I will give it to you and then you won't have to ask so many questions. I will help you.

Mr. Barshay: I appreciate that but I am going to ask some questions and Mr. Turkus will ask you some other questions.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it now because 4632 it has nothing to do with the Rosen killing. We are here trying a murder case.

Mr. Barshay: This affects his credibility, sir.

The Court: Next question.

Q. Did Beckerman charge you with taking that money?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you charge Beckerman with taking that money?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. At any rate, as the result of that incident, your connection with the Joint Board ended; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4634

Q. Right after that did you sever your connection with the Joint Board?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It does not affect the Rosen killing or his credibility.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. When did you sever your relations with the Joint Board? A. About 1927 or 1928.

Q. With respect to the month, can you tell us in relation to the Cohen incident? 4635

Mr. Turkus: That has been objected to and sustained.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.
Mr. Turkus: I object to the innuendo.

Q. Can you tell us the month?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.
The Court: Immaterial.
Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4636 Q. Where were you living then, Mr. Rubin?

Mr. Turkus: In 1927? I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial, nothing to do about affecting his credibility, certainly nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Overruled. Do you remember where you were living in 1927?

The Witness: I can give all the places that I lived in the Bronx and I may strike

4637 that.

The Court: Do you remember where you lived in 1927?

The Witness: I may have lived at—

The Court: Do you remember?

The Witness: No, I do not, your Honor.

Q. Did you furnish a new home at that time? A. 1927?

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. Did you buy new furniture for your home? A. No, sir, not in '27.

4638 Q. Was it then that you got into the Expressmen's Local? A. That is right.

Q. What were you getting by way of salary with the Joint Board? A. $50.

Q. Who suggested you going to the Expressmen's Local? A. Sneaky Levine.

Q. What was Sneaky Levine's position with the Expressmen's Local at that time? A. He was the business agent.

Q. How much was he getting? A. $80.

Q. So Sneaky Levine gave up an $80 job and he went back on his truck; is that correct? A. That is right.

4639

Q. And you who had a $50 job got the $80 job? A. Oh, no. I got a $50 job.

Q. Did you get $80 from the union? A. I didn't, no.

Q. From the Expressmen's Local? A. I got $50. I had to split some of it.

By the Court:

Q. You mean you got $50 net? A. $50 net, sir.

4640

Q. Counsel wants to know what the gross was? A. The gross was $80 but I only got $50.

Q. $30 was the kick-back? A. It went to other officials in the union. I was a new man and in order for me to get in, I gave the rest of it to a fellow by the name of Mike Wolff and I stayed there under this arrangement for over a year until Mike Wolff went into the Waiters Union.

Q. That is, you had to pay $30 a week to hold the $80 job? A. That is right.

Q. That is what the Court means by kick-back. A. I was glad to do it, your Honor, so it was not a kick-back. I was glad to work.

4641

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Did you give Mr. Levine a kick-back? A. No.

Q. So that he, according to you, of his own volition, gave up a job which paid him $80 a week?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

Q. In order to drive a truck?

4642

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. It is repetitious.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Incidentally, while you were working for the Joint Board, you received $50 plus expenses for an automobile? A. You don't know the Joint Board. No, I didn't.

Q. Never? A. Not from the Joint Board. I

4643 got the expenses from the Expressmen's Local, if that is what you mean. I bought my own automobile but the expenses I got from the Expressmen's Union.

Q. Was it $15— A. Whatever the bill was, the garage bill was sent to the office and not to me and they paid it.

Q. That you did not get from the Joint Board? A. No.

Q. So you bettered your position, did you not? A. And the time you allude to was 1933 and 1934.

Q. That is exactly what I was going to ask 4644 you next, the year 1933. A. '33 or '34, yes, sir.

Q. The Local at that time, 1927, that you joined it contained how many members? A. About eighty.

Q. It was a very small union, wasn't it? A. Always was. I think during the war they had about a hundred members.

Q. The dues were small, were they not? A. The dues were very high.

Q. Were they paid? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Was its treasury full? A. Oh, no. Only eighty members.

Q. That is what I asked you. A. Eighty members, two dollars a week.

Q. It was a very poor union, comparatively speaking?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He stated the amount of dues, two dollars a week, eighty members; the rest is speculation; incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, nothing to do with the Rosen killing or affecting his credibility.

4646

Mr. Barshay: I guess nothing that I ask has anything to do with the Rosen killing.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Of course you never drove a truck? A. Never.

Q. And so you became familiar with the membership of that Local 240 which is the Expressmen's Local? A. I did.

Q. You came to know the members? A. I did.

Q. Intimately? A. More or less. 4647

Q. Did you listen to their grievances? A. They never had but when they did I listened to them.

Q. When they did have grievances, you listened to them and you tried to straighten them out? A. That is right.

Q. You knew exactly which truckman served which manufacturer, did you not? A. I did.

Q. You knew exactly about the amount of business that each truckman did with the respective manufacturers? A. I did.

Q. You knew approximately the financial condition of each of those trucknmen? A. I cannot tell you that, what their financial condition was.

Q. From the earnings? You could tell by the amount of business they did with the respective manufacturers? A. They always cried so you could never tell.

Q. But there was a way to find out from the manufacturer, was there not?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. This is 4649 going far afield, has nothing to do with the Rosen murder or his credibility.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. It was your business to know which manufacturers lived up to union conditions at that time? A. When I was in the union?

Q. Expressmen's Local. A. No.

Q. It was not your business to know which were living up to the union conditions and which were violating them? A. You mean the trucking bosses?

4650 Q. That is right. A. It was a very loose proposition. They worked practically 52 weeks a year and so if they put in extra hours in the busy season, it did not mean anything. Most of them worked all that time.

Q. I am not concerned with that. What I am trying to find out is this: Some manufacturers would give their work to non-union truckmen: isn't that so? A. They did.

Q. It was your job to know who they were? A. That is right.

Q. It was your job to stop it? A. Oh, no; just to know:

Q. After you knew that a manufacturer was giving his work to non-union truckmen, what did you do with your knowledge? A. Told it to Orlofsky or if Beckerman was in the office, in his department, Beckerman.

Q. And then they could do something about it? A. Sometimes they didn't.

Q. Did you check whether something was done about it? A. No.

Q. When did you become acquainted with Rosen? A. Well, I saw him and knew him 4652 around there for some time. I can't tell you when.

Q. About when? A. I saw him on Louis Cooper's truck; I did not speak to him. It was a non-union shop.

Q. I am speaking of 1927, Mr. Rubin, 1927. Did you know Rosen then? A. I think I knew him then.

Q. When you first got into the expressmen's local, did you know him then? A. Not well enough.

Q. Is that the first time you had met him? A. 4653
No, I saw him around there.

Q. You saw him before? A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever speak to him before? A. No.

Q. Did you have anything to do with him before? A. No.

Q. Did you know anything about him before? A. No.

Q. You did say you knew him or that you knew that he worked for Louis Cooper? A. Yes, I knew of him.

Q. That is in New Jersey? A. I knew of him.

Q. How long before 1927 did you know that fact? A. I imagine since I have been around there, but I am not sure.

4654

Q. That is many years? A. Yes. I am not sure, of course.

Q. Did you know Sobler? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you know Bluestein? A. Morris Bluestein, yes.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Kelly? A. I knew Kelly, yes.

Q. Did you know where Rosen worked in 1927? A. I can't tell you.

Q. Did you know that Rosen originally came from Brooklyn? Did you? A. From Brooklyn?

4655

Q. Yes. A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Did you know that he moved over to Passaic to work for Sobler and Bluestein?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. Did you know it was Mr. Bluestein who gave Mr. Rosen a job when Sobler and Bluestein ran, in Passaic, the Garfield Express Company? A. I did not know those things in those days, no, sir.

4656

Q. Did you know when Louis Cooper joined the Garfield? A. In my mind he was always there. I don't know. I don't remember him being out of there.

Q. Did you know that Sobler and Bluestein first owned it and then Louis Cooper came in afterwards? A. I thought that Louis Cooper started it.

Q. I thought that you were familiar with the truckmen business, being the business agent for the Local. A. Not at that time.

Q. That was 1927 and 1928. A. I did not know. I was practically new then.

Q. Did you know the reputation of Rosen in the industry at that time when you came into the Local? A. I did not.

Q. Did you learn it thereafter? A. Later on, about 19—in the 30's, and so on, I heard about Joe Rosen.

Q. You heard he was a very good workman, did you not? A. Yes.

Q. Did you aiso hear—

Mr. Turkus: I object to this. The character of the deceased is not in issue. There is no defense here of self-defense. 4658

Mr. Barshay: He brought this out on direct examination, sir. I am leading to something now.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: It may lead to something.

Q. You are the man who told us that Cooper fired Roser. because of stealing some packages? A. Hampers.

Q. Hampers, rather. A. That is right.

Q. In 1930 or 1931, when you learned to know Rosen, when you learned to know his reputation that he was a good workman, did it come to your attention in the trade that he was in the habit of stealing packages? 4659

Mr. Turkus: That is highly reprehensible and objectionable.

Mr. Barshay: Highly reprehensible? It is most material here, sir.

A. I could answer it negatively, anyhow.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor to have the jury disregard Mr. Turkus's remark, and that it be stricken from the record.

Mr. Turkus: Mine was an objection.

The Court: I thought it was an objection.

Mr. Turkus: It was, your Honor.

The Court: The Court's affair, not the jury's. The witness has answered the question.

4661 Q. You did not know that? A. I did not.

Q. You did know about the time he took those racks from Cooper, for which he was fired?

Mr. Turkus: That is objectionable. There is no such testimony that was the alleged charge upon which he was fired.

The Court: It means the same thing.

A. Just what Rosen told me he was charged with; and what Louis Cooper told me that he did.

Q. You knew more about that than you told 4662 us, isn't that so? A. Oh, no.

Q. You suspended the people who bought those hampers or racks? A. What did I do?

Q. You suspended them from the union. Were the names Siegel and were the names Epstein? A. Siegel and Epstein?

Q. Yes. A. I put them back to work after they were fired, you mean. I did not suspend them. They went right back to work, because I had enough power in New York to put them back, and they went right back to work and I don't remember Epstein. Which one is Epstein? I remember this Siegel. We used to call him Galitz.

The Court: How do you spell that?

The Witness: (Spelling.) G-a-l-i-t-z. He comes from Galicia, so they called him Galitz.

Q. Is he the person to whom Rosen is alleged to have sold those hampers or those racks?

Mr. Turkus: It is objected to, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Let him answer.

Mr. Turkus: It calls for hearsay. 4664

A. All I heard was that they were involved in that thing.

Q. Being involved, were they not suspended from the Expressmens Local 240? A. Positively not.

Q. Weren't they kept out of work for a considerable number of years, or for a considerable number of months, rather, and only restored when the wife of Mr. Siegel came to plead to you on their behalf? A. Positively not. He went right to work. 4665

Q. How long was he out? A. Two days, three days. Dave Siegel was the boss, and I was able to speak to him. I said, "Put him back to work," and he put him back to work. I don't remember who this Epstein was. If you tell me where he worked, I may recollect who that particular party is.

Q. Did you check whether or not Rosen stole those things from Mr. Cooper? A. I was not interested. I wanted him to go back to work.

Q. The stealing of things may be a cause for discharge in the minds of some people, Mr. Rubin, isn't that so?

4666

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. It was in the mind of Mr. Cooper?

Mr. Turkus: You would have to have a mind reader to know that.
The Court: Is there an objection?
Mr. Turkus: There is.
The Court: Sustained.

4667

Q. Mr. Cooper told you that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, already answered.
The Court: Sustained.

Q. Mr. Rosen told you that?

Mr. Turkus: That is repetitious and objectionable.

4668 Q. Isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: I have an objection.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: I never asked that on cross examination, your Honor.
Mr. Turkus: You did, just before this.
The Court: What differences does it make what Rosen told him?

Q. Did you know when Sobler and Bluestein left the Garfield? A. I did not.
Q. And started the New York & New Jersey?

4669

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious.
The Court: Overruled.

Q. Did you? A. I did not know the date, no.
Q. Was it 1927? A. I can't tell you that.
Q. Did you know that they had been competing with the Garfield? A. I can't tell you from what year on.
Q. Well, at the time you joined the Local,—that is 1927 according to your own language,—did you know that? A. I can't tell you whether they started in that year to compete with Louis Cooper.

4670

Q. Did you know that Rosen at that time went out to Pennsylvania to build up a route for himself? A. I can't tell you that, whether he went out or Kelly went out or they both went out, but they had a route in Pennsylvania.
Q. Let us go step by step. Did you know Kelly before you knew Rosen? A. No, I would not say I did. Do you mean before they became partners?
Q. Before they became partners. A. I saw them in the district.

4671

Q. Did you know that Kelly was operating in New Jersey and Pennsylvania? A. I only knew him to operate in New Jersey.
Q. In New Jersey? A. That is right.
Q. And he was doing non-union work? A. Absolutely non-union work.
Q. Did you know that Rosen at that time was also doing non-union work? A. If he was with Kelly, he was doing non-union.
Q. Before he was with Kelly. A. I can't answer that.

4672 Q. Did you know that Rosen would go to the small towns in Pennsylvania and solicit the Chambers of Commerce to invite New York manufacturers to build their factories to avoid union competition? Did you know that? A. Well, he may have done it. All the contractors usually did it. Those contractors that went out of town would do it. It was quite common.

Q. It was a very common thing in those days? A. Yes.

4673 Q. And the more people that left New York, contractors or manufacturers, the less success the union had in New York, isn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. The more work taken from New York, the less powerful the union? A. That is right.

Q. So the union's job was to try to limit it as much as possible, and even to avoid it? A. That is right.

Q. And it was the union's job to call stoppages? A. That's right.

Q. It was the union's job to call strikes? A. That is right.

4674 Q. Considered lawful to call a stoppage and considered lawful to call a strike? A. That is right.

Q. And it was considered lawful for the settlement of the strike to allocate work to the various truck drivers for the various contractors, is that so? A. Yes.

Q. They do that now, don't they? A. Yes, except with the truck drivers. They are usually fixtures in the house. The truck drivers were usually fixtures in a house and there was hardly any change.

Q. Sometimes there were changes? A. Sometimes.

Q. You yourself have changed truck drivers from one house to the other? A. I did in one case, yes.

Q. That was perfectly lawful, perfectly proper? A. It was a necessity.

Q. Yes, but it was perfectly recognized as lawful? A. I don't know how lawful it was.

Q. You did not do anything illegitimate? A. It was not illegitimate, but when I look back 4676 now, it was not such a sensible thing to do.

Q. They are doing it now? A. I do not know; I have not been there since,—

Q. You have been a labor—

Mr. Turkus: The time was shut off.

Q. Since when? A. '39.

Q. They did it as late as 1939? A. I don't think so. It is a rare course.

Q. You mean to say that unions— A. I am talking about the truckmen.

Q. Do you mean to tell me that unions did not 4677 and don't now allocate work for every truckman to deal with certain houses and say to them, "You will take this manufacturer, and you will take the other"?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

A. It is very rare in the clothing industry, very rare.

Q. Do you know that is an unlawful thing to do?

4678 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Do you know that in April of 1931 Rosen was not meeting with any success in building a route in Pennsylvania? Did you know that? A. Who was he partners with at the time?

Q. Himself A. I can't tell you that.

Q. You did not know that? A. No, I didn't.

4679 Q. You did not hear it in the union? A. No.

Q. You know he had no trucks? A. I didn't know that.

Q. You had been in this Expressmen's Local Union since 1927, and I am talking now about the early part of 1931. A. I would not know that, whether he was trying to get—

Q. That was four years of active work in this local as business agent, with only eighty members belonging. A. I would not know whether he went to Pennsylvania to look to build up a business.

Q. Did you hear it in the trade? A. I did not.

4680 Q. Did you know that at that time Rosen and Kelly had agreed to form a partnership under Kelly & Rosen, Incorporated? I am speaking of April, 1931. A. I only know that at one time they started to go to Pennsylvania in relation to that one particular contractor that went up there.

Q. Named Goldstein or something like that? A. No, an Italian fellow.

Q. Was it in April of 1931? A. I cannot tell you the time; no, sir.

Q. Did you know that it was agreed that Rosen should contribute whatever customer or customers he had in Pennsylvania and that Kelly would contribute the trucks that he had and that they were to form a partnership in April of 1931, and each was to have fifty per cent of the business? A. I would not know that, no, sir.

Q. Did you know that Rosen's share was to be his contribution toward the incorporation expenses and Kelly's was to be likewise, in April of 1931? A. I would not know that.

Q. Did you know that the deal did not go through because Rosen in April of 1931 could 4682 not and did not pay his share of the incorporation expenses? Do you know that? A. No.

Q. Do you know that is why the firm never went into existence as Kelly & Rosen, Incorporated? Did you know that? A. No.

Q. Did you report to the Amalgamated the names of the manufacturers who used non-union contractors?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time be fixed.

Q. 1931, 1930, 1929, any time after you became 4683 connected with Local 240?

Mr. Turkus: Further objection, it is repetitious.

The Court: Let him answer.

A. Whenever I knew of any, I would report it.

Q. Did you know which one of these Rosen served in Pennsylvania? A. No, only—

Q. Can you name one? A. Yes, I could name one.

Q. Yes? A. But I don't know the year.

Q. The only time that I am speaking of and the only time I thought that of your own knowledge Rosen went to Pennsylvania was about 1930 and 1931. A. Yes, that would be the time that I know. There was a concern named Goodstein Bros. that went out of town, and a contractor by the name of Ferraro, Johnny Ferraro, went out of town. That is the only one that I can remember.

4685 Q. Do you know Rosen personally, without Kelly, served them as truckman? A. I do not know whether it was with or without Kelly, but I know they drove for them.

Q. Do you know that, out of pity, after Mr. Rosen failed to pay his portion of the incorporation expenses, Kelly just let Rosen stay on with him? Do you? A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you know that business in 1931, the period that I speak of, was so bad for Rosen that he was allowed by Kelly to keep the few dollars that he collected from the contractors?

4686 A. I would not know that.

Q. Did you know that they struggled along until November of 1931 and then agreed to combine with Sobler and Bluestein and conducted the New York & New Jersey Corporation? A. That is when I really knew about them.

Q. Were you instrumental in getting them together? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you know that—

Mr Turkus: There is an answer that is not responsive to the question. I am going to ask it be stricken because it may be ambiguous and confusing.

Mr. Barshay: Let us have the question and the answer.

(The following was read by the reporter: "Q. Did you know that they struggled along until November of 1931 and then agreed to combine with Sobler and Bluestein and conducted the New York & New Jersey Corporation? A. That is when I really knew about them.")

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

The Court: Strike it out. 4688

Mr. Barshay: Take an exception.

Mr. Turkus: May the witness be permitted to answer the question, because under that state of affairs that answer was not responsive to the question.

The Court: Read it, please.

(The same question was read by the reporter.)

The Witness: I would not know that about the struggling and all that.

Q. Did you know that when Kelly and Rosen were together they could not even afford a bookkeeper in 1931? A. I don't know that. 4689

Q. You did not hear that in the trade? A. No.

Q. Did you know that then Rosen was borrowing from all the express drivers that belonged to your union? A. Never heard of it.

Q. Did you know that Rosen could not even afford to pay the dues in your union? A. I don't think he belonged to it.

Q. There was a time when he did belong. A. That was much later.

4690 Q. Did you know that your union dropped him for non-payment of dues?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it unless the time be fixed. Has nothing to do with his credibility or the Rosen murder.

The Court: Sustained as immaterial.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception. May I urge the Court the reason for my proceeding with this line of questioning?

4691 The Court: You don't need to urge, you can tell me, if you want to make it clear.

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus has advanced the theory that Rosen was forced out of a prosperous business. I am trying to disprove that theory by facts which would show that no such theory could have existed, because Rosen was impoverished from the beginning, and I am trying to establish it in the only way I can.

4692 The Court: The ruling stands.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. New Jersey and Pennsylvania then was open territory? A. Yes, I believe there was a certain section of Pennsylvania that had single knee pants. That is the other end. But the part that Rosen went was non-union, and New Jersey, the section that Louis Cooper went and Bluestein, took non-union work—Bluestein, Sobler—was practically a non-union territory. There was a union shop here and there, but not much of it.

Q. Do you know that the financial strength and numerical strength of the Amalgamated at that time in New York was very weak? A. 1931?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, I think that was during that—

Q. And that was because—

Mr. Turkus: There was an answer shut off.

4694

A. (continued) It was during the slump. There was a period during 1931, a very bad period.

The Court: You mean hard times?

The Witness: That is right.

Q. And that slump was enhanced by the moving of the contractors and manufacturers out of the city, isn't that so? A. I think you are right.

Q. So that the New York & New Jersey, which was owned by Sobler and Bluestein, was in competition with Kelly and Rosen in those Pennsylvania territories. 4695

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. There is no such testimony.

Mr. Barshay: I am asking him.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question. The "so" infers there has been such testimony in the record. When you say "so", the implication and the inference is that he has so testified. I object to the form.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4696 Q. Did you know that? A. If they went to Louis Cooper's territory they would compete. It would be natural.

Q. You knew that to be the fact? A. Louis Cooper had his house pretty well sewed up and it was very hard to get into that territory.

Q. Did you know that Kelly and Rosen, and Sobler and Bluestein were competing with each other more than they were competing with Louis Cooper of the Garfield? He was too big to 4697 compete with, wasn't he? A. That would be quite probable.

Q. And so—

Mr. Turkus: I ask that it be stricken. This is hearsay, obviously.

Mr. Barshay: He says he knows of his own knowledge.

The Witness: No, I said it would be probable.

Mr. Barshay: I asked if he knew those things of his own knowledge by virtue of 4698 his position as business agent for the Expressmen's Local.

Mr. Turkus: The answer indicates the witness does not know, when he says, "probable." That is speculation.

The Court: Read the question.

(Question read by the reporter.)

The Witness: Actually I do not know.

Q. Were you told that?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

Q. Were you told that by Sobler or Bluestein or Rosen or Kelly?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.
The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you learn it in the official connection that you had with the Expressmen's Local then?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.
The Court: Sustained as calling for a conclusion.
Mr. Barshay: Exception. 4700

Q. Did you know the lawyer who closed the deal between the New York & New Jersey and Kelly and Rosen? A. Do I know his name?
Q. Yes. A. Maybe if you told me. I don't know.
Q. Did you know him without knowing his name?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that. That is a peculiar question. I do not understand it. "Did you know him without knowing his name?" 4701
Mr. Barshay: You can know people without knowing their names, Mr. Turkus.
The Court: Did you know his name?
The Witness: Not offhand, no.

Q. Was it Eisenberg? A. I never heard of him.
Q. Was it Salzman? A. I never heard of him.
Q. Was it either one? A. I never heard of them.
Q. Did you know that Sobler and Bluestein at 4702 that time had four trucks and agreed to contribute that to the new corporation?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He has already indicated by his testimony that he did not knew of the arrangements.

The Court: Yes or no, did you know that?

The Witness: You mean Kelly and Rosen?

4703 Q. I say Sobler and Bluestein agreed to contribute to the new organization to be composed of Kelly, Rosen, Sobler and Bluestein? A. I can't remember.

Q. Did you know that they agreed to contribute four trucks? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Did you know the financial condition of the New York & New Jersey at that time before this new combination was to come into existence? A. No, I don't know.

Q. Did you know that the New York & New Jersey's trucks were all fully mortgaged?

4704

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. He just said he does not know the financial condition so the answer to this is obvious; he could not know.

Mr. Barshay: He can answer it if he does not know.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It has nothing to do with the case, waste of time after that answer.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: I object to counsel saying—

The Court: Do you know that?

The Witness: I do not know anything about the finances.

Mr. Barshay: May we have an objection in legal form and not by saying it is a waste of time?

The Court: The Court won't direct the verbiage of an objection.

Q. Did you know that Rosen agreed for his 25 per cent interest in this corporation to pay $5,000 by deducting $250 each and every year out of the earnings, if there were any? 4706

Mr. Turkus: Object to it.

Q. Did you know that?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it. He just said he knew nothing of the financial conditions.

The Court: Do you know anything about it?

The Witness: I don't: no, sir.

4707

Q. Did you know that the formal contract for the new corporation was entered into on November 2, 1931, and that Rosen's shares were held in escrow? Did you know that? A. No.

Q. Did you know that the new corporation agreed to assume the existing indebtedness of Kelly and Rosen of $1521?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. The witness has said he knows nothing of it. This could go on ad infinitum.

The Court: Do you know?

The Witness: I do not.

4708 Q. Did you know from the very first week that the partners were unable to draw any salaries whatever? Did you know that? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't Rosen tell you that at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Did Kelly tell you that at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. Was the firm the subject of discussion in your union? A. No.

Q. Did you know that from the very beginning
4709 both Kelly and Rosen kept the accounts they collected and they did not contribute it to the new corporation? Did you know that? A. I would not know that, no, sir.

Q. Did you know that the State of New Jersey instituted proceedings in 1931 for failure of this new corporation to even pay its franchise tax? A. I didn't know that.

Q. Would this refresh your recollection, or would it bring to your mind a reconstructed recollection of whether or not you may have known it? Will you look at this instrument, please? A. You want me to read that part that 4710 you have with X's?

Q. No, just to yourself. A. I see here a name.

Q. Just to yourself, please. Now look at the outside of that book.

Mr. Turkus: The question is if it refreshes your recollection, not to read it into evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I am not asking him to read it into evidence, Mr. Turkus. I expressly said "Read it to yourself," didn't I, Mr. Rubin?

The Witness: That is right.

Mr. Turkus: Nobody quarrels with that.

Q. Does that reconstruct your recollection, sir? A. No, it does not.

Mr. Barshay: Will you mark it for identification.

(Marked Defendants' Exhibit T for identification.)

4712

Q. Did you know that Kelly's lawyer in April of 1932 filed a petition declaring that corporation in insolvency? This is April of 1932. A. I did not know that, no, sir.

Q. You said you did not know the lawyer whose name was Henry H. Eisenberg, 58 Broad Street, Elizabeth, New Jersey? A. I never heard of the name before.

Q. Did you hear or do you know personally of the action that he started, Martin F. Kelly, Incorporated, a corporation of New Jersey, against the New York & New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, Incorporated? Did you know that? A. No, I didn't. 4713

Mr. Barshay: May we mark this for identification.

(Marked Defendants' Exhibit U for identification.)

Q. Did you know that in settlement of this petition Kelly withdrew his two trucks that he put in and that the corporation agreed to assume the garage and fuel expenses and in addition gave Kelly two notes for $100 each—$150 each—each of which came back unpaid? Did you know that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He says he never knew about the lawyer, never knew about the lawsuit. How could he know about that?

The Court: Do you know about that?

The Witness: I do not.

4715 Q. You never heard that discussed with respect to Rosen? A. No.

Q. Wasn't it the subject of discussion at the various meetings or subjects of discussion preliminary to meetings of your association? A. No, sir, never.

Q. Didn't you see Rosen around the union borrowing money or attempting to borrow money? I am speaking now of April, 1932, before the stoppage. A. I never have, no, sir.

Q. Did you know a man by the name of Goldman who worked for the New York & New Jer-

4716 sey? A. Yes.

Q. Did you speak to him? A. He was a member of the union.

Q. Did you speak to him?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

A. Of course.

Mr. Turkus: As already answered.

Mr. Barshay: He may be a member of the union without speaking to him.

The Witness: Not that union.

Q. In other words, everybody brought their complaints to you? A. Everybody spoke to each other. It was a small group.

Q. Did you know that Goldman was unpaid to the extent of $700 by the New York & New Jersey Transportation in April of 1932? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did he ever tell you that? A. No, sir.

Q. Did he ever enlist your aid in trying to speak to the members of the corporation to pay him that money? A. No, sir.

4718

Q. Did you place him in another job? A. I think I sent him from there to Louis Cooper in Passaic.

Q. Did you? A. I do not know. He went to Passaic. I do not know whether he went from that job or not.

Q. Do you know the reason he quit the New York & New Jersey? A. I can't tell you the reason.

Q. Do you know it was for nonpayment of wages? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know that they gave him checks of $30 and $35 and they were not paid? A. With Sobler being there?

4719

Q. With Rosen, Sobler and Bluestein remaining after Kelly left. A. Sobler is a very rich man. I can't understand that.

Q. You know Mr. Sobler then was a member of a corporation? You know that? A. I did not know that.

Q. Well, he was a member of the New York & New Jersey and you say he is a very rich man. You mean now? A. At that time, as far as I know.

4720

Q. He did not own the company as an individual, did he? A. No.

Q. To your knowledge? A. No.

Q. He did not obligate himself to run this corporation as an individual? You understand that? A. Yes.

Q. Did you place Plotkin with the New York & New Jersey Corporation? A. I don't remember that.

Q. You did not? A. I don't remember.

4721

Q. You said before you transferred some truckman from one concern to another. Is Plotkin the name of that man? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you know Plotkin worked for Fvirsky? A. That is right.

Q. Did you know that Fvirsky expressed for Greenbaum? A. That is right.

Q. Aren't you the person who transferred Mr. Plotkin from Greenbaum to the New York & New Jersey?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time be fixed.

4722

Q. In 1932. A. That is right. It was not a transfer. He went along with the house. He went along with the Fvirsky Clothing house. That was the main house of this Greenbaum and he went along with this house and he went with the New York & New Jersey on that basis.

Q. In other words, the New York & New Jersey got a new house? A. That is right.

Q. To cater to? A. That is right.

Q. And express for? A. That is right.

Q. You are responsible for that situation or did you aid in that situation? A. I aided.

Q. Plotkin was one of the men who went along? A. He was the man.

Q. He was the only man? A. I think so.

Q. Now do you recall that the very first week he finished his work with the New York & New Jersey, a little after April of 1932 or thereabouts, there was not sufficient money to pay his his wages? I am speaking before the stoppage. A. I can't recall that, no, sir.

Q. Didn't he complain of that fact to you? A. I don't remember it if he did. 4724

Q. Didn't Plotkin tell you that the first Saturday that he was there, the first pay day, all the workmen were lined up waiting for their money and they did not get it? Didn't he tell you that? A. No, sir. I do not remember. He may have but I don't remember.

Q. Didn't he beg you to take him back from that concern and put him back? A. No.

Q. He did not tell you that? A. No, sir.

Q. Didn't he tell yo uhow he pleaded with Rosen that he must have his money? Didn't he tell you that the arrangement was made immediately after the first week that Fvirsky was 4725 to pay Plotkin directly and charge it to the New York & New Jersey account and that was the only way Plotkin could get his weekly wages? Didn't he tell you that? A. I can't recall that.

Q. He may have? A. May have, but I can't recall.

Q. It would b part of your job to know? A. It would be.

Q. You won't deny that he did? A. Of course not.

Q. Did Plotkin tell you "what kind of a con-

4726 cern did you send me to? The workmen, one says 300, one says 400, one says 500, and there was no answer from the New York & New Jersey"; did he tell you that?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as repetitious, incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4727 Q. Did you know that the garage seized the trucks of this New York & New Jersey for non-payment?

Mr. Turkus: Object unless the time be fixed; further, that it is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. I am speaking of the period before the stoppage. You understand, Mr. Rubin? A. Yes. I heard that the trucks were seized but I would not know where I heard it.

4728

The Court: Do you know it?

The Witness: I do not know it only what I heard.

Q. Did you know that they stored their trucks in Pink's garage in Passaic, New Jersey? A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you know that in disgust Rosen left the New York & New Jersey? Did you? A. No.

Q. Because he could not draw any money there? A. I would not know that.

Q. Did you know that the bookkeeper was getting only five or six dollars a week? A. I did not know that.

Q. You never attended their place of business? A. No, I was in there once in a while and there did not seem to be that poverty there that you speak about.

Q. There was poverty, wasn't there? A. Nothing along the lines you mentioned. I thought they had a very good business.

Q. Is that why the petition in insolvency was filed? 4730

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute.

A. It surprises me.

Mr. Turkus: He has answered it now.

Q. It is a surprise to you? A. Yes.

Q. Do you want to look at this petition, Mr. Rubin?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained. 4731

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you know that their bank account never exceeded the sum of $100 as an average balance? A. I would not know that.

Q. In your visits there, were you not told that fact?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That would be hearsay.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4732 Q. Did you know that the telephone company brought action against them for nonpayment of their telephone bills? This is before the stoppage, Mr. Rubin.

The Court: Do you know anything about it?

The Witness: Not a thing.

Q. Do you know when Mr. Rosen left the New York & New Jersey? A. At the time of the 4733 stoppage.

Q. About when was that? A. In the summer, I believe, or maybe the fall of 1932.

Q. The stoppage was in August, 1932. A. I do not know the date.

Q. I will remind you it was August 4, 1932. A. It was around that time. I do not know the date.

Q. Well, between August 4th and August 12th. Did you know how much money Rosen drew from the New York & New Jersey before the stoppage? A. I do not.

4734 Q. You said a little while ago that it was not the poverty that I described. Is there a poverty which you can describe based on your own knowledge and observation before the stoppage? A. My opinion is that they had a darn good business.

Q. It is only your opinion I am now asking of your personal knowledge.

Mr. Turkus: He has already told him that he did not know anything of his personal knowledge. He has been telling him that for a half an hour. I object to it.

The Court: That is what he said.

4735

Q. You said it was not the poverty I described.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is a play on words. It is objectionable.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Well, you yourself on direct examination said that Rosen said that they had a little business in Pennsylvania? A. That is right.

Q. "Little" you mean financially little? A. It was a small business. That would mean financially small also. 4736

Q. You knew that Rosen had no trucks of his own? A. I did.

Q. No visible assets of his own? A. That is right.

Q. No garage? A. That is right.

Q. No employees? A. That is right.

Q. Whatever he could build up in Pennsylvania under non-union shop was all he had, wasn't that so? A. That is right.

Q. Let us get down to the stoppage. Tell me, who calls the stoppage, Mr. Rubin? A. As far as I know, Sidney Hillman. He was out on the picket line every day with his wife, walking up and down,—thousands of people marching up and down Fifth Avenue—so I figured that he must have called it. 4737

Q. Who else had the power to call the stoppage? A. The Joint Board in conjunction with the Cutters' Union.

Q. In other words, no one individual does it, but the organization through its elected officials or organization officials? A. Yes, officially it 4738 would be done that way, though one man would simply suggest it.

Q. This stoppage was called according to the rules of the organization? A. Yes.

Q. By the officers? A. That is right.

Q. The defendant Buchalter did not call it, did he? A. The stoppage?

Q. Yes. A. No.

Q. He had no power to call it, did he? Yes or no. A. No, he was not in on any of the con-
4739 ferences with the union officials, if that is what you mean—I mean with the actual organization.

Q. So, Mr. Rubin, that is a condition that occurred through no action of Mr. Buchalter?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. That is not the testimony.

Mr. Barshay: The stoppage, I am speaking of.

Mr. Turkus: That is not the testimony either.

Mr. Barshay: He just said that.

Mr. Turkus: No, he did not.

4740 The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Was the stoppage called by the duly-constituted officers of the union?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to as repetitious.

Q. To your knowledge?

Mr. Turkus. That is objected to as repetitious.

The Court: Overruled.

A. To my knowledge it was called by the actual officials of the organization.

Q. Mr. Buchalter at that time was not a member of the organization, an official of the organization, was he? A. He was not.

Q. Now, the stoppage is called, as you say, and then it is executed; isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. I do not know whether this is a general discussion of stoppages or whether it is the stoppage that we are referring to in this particular case. 4742

Mr. Barshay: I am only speaking of this stoppage, and the witness is clear about it and he has been answering it just that way.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question as being ambiguous.

The Court: The testimony under direct was that Buchalter once told the witness that Katz wanted a stoppage of all clothing trucks, as the New York business was going to Pennsylvania, and he told Buchalter that he had doubts about stopping Cooper of Garfield, and New York & New Jersy, also the Branch Stores. 4743

Mr. Barshay: I am not up to that yet, your Honor.

The Court: You may cross-examine on that.

Mr. Barshay: That is exactly what I am trying to do.

The Court: He said in 1932 he told Buchalter that the New York & New Jer-

4744 sey and Rosen objected to the stoppage, also Sobler, and Buchalter wanted to see Rosen at that time about it, at 20th Street off 5th Avenue. That is properly subject of cross examination.

Mr. Barshay: Do you want to recess, your Honor? I will be quite a while with this witness yet.

The Court: How long do you expect to be?

4745 Mr. Barshay: I have twenty pages of notes that I must cover, your Honor.

The Court: I do not know what that means. You do not think you can conclude this afternoon?

Mr. Barshay: Oh, no, undoubtedly I cannot.

The Court: Gentlemen, please do not discuss the case. Let nobody talk to you about it. Keep your minds open and remember all of the admonitions and restrictions heretofore directed.

4746 Everybody will kindly remain in order. First let the witness pass out. Let the jury go by the other door.

Ten o'clock tomorrow morning.

Defendants are remanded.

(Whereupon an adjournment was taken to Thursday, November 6, 1941, at 10:00 A. M.)

(Continued in Volume III)

Vol. III

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD

Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1942

No. 606

LOUIS BUCHALTER, PETITIONER

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 610

EMANUEL WEISS, PETITIONER

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COURT OF APPEALS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

No. 619

LOUIS CAPONE, PETITIONER

vs.

PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

ON WRIT OF CERTIORARI TO THE COUNTY COURT OF KINGS COUNTY, STATE OF NEW YORK

PETITIONS FOR CERTIORARI FILED — DECEMBER 30, 1942.
JANUARY 2, 1943.
JANUARY 4, 1943.

CERTIORARI GRANTED MARCH 15, 1943.

INDEX

	PAGE
Statement Under Rule 234	1
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	3
Amended Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Buchalter	6
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	9
Notice of Appeal of Defendant Louis Capone	11
Minutes of Presentment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	14
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Buchalter	16
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Emanuel Weiss	18
Minutes of Arraignment of Defendant Louis Capone	20
Indictment against Defendants Buchalter, Weiss and Capone	21
Endorsements on Indictment	22
Pedigrees	26
Order of Brancato, C. J., Denying Capone's Application of Severance	29
Notice of Motion for Severance (Capone)	31

PAGE

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 33

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 45

Affidavit of Leon Fischbein, Sworn to August 4, 1941, Read in Support of Application for Severance (Capone) 55

Exhibits Annexed to Affidavit of Leon Fischbein 60

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Severance (Capone) 65

Opinion of Brancato, C. J., Denying Application for Severance (Capone) 72

Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 76

Affidavit of Emanuel Buchalter, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 110

Affidavit of Benjamin D. Fernbach, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 112

Exhibit A Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter 116

Exhibit B Opinion of persons interviewed as to guilt or innocence of Buchalter, questioned in a different manner 121

PAGE

Copy of Indictment 122

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 123

Affidavit of Solomon A. Klein, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 125

Answering Affidavit of Hyman Barshay, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 139

Affidavit of Jesse Climenko, Read in Support of Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 155

Copy of Indictment 164

Opinion of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 165

Order of Mr. Justice Daly Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 167

Affidavit of Burton B. Turkus, Read in Opposition to Application for Change of Venue (Buchalter) 169

Order of Mr. Justice Brennan Denying Change of Venue (Buchalter) 175

Memorandum Opinion of Taylor, C. J., Adjourning Trial 177

Minutes of Trial 178

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Buchalter 214

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Buchalter 216

PAGE

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 218

Death Warrant against Defendant Emanuel Weiss 220

Judgment of Conviction against Defendant Louis Capone 222

Death Warrant against Defendant Louis Capone 224

Case and Exceptions 226

Opening Statement on Behalf of People 227

Opening Statements Waived as to Defendants 244

Motions to Dismiss Indictment 243, 2712

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Buchalter 3525

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Weiss 3532

Renewal of Motion to Dismiss Indictment against Defendant Capone 3538

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Buchalter 3543

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Weiss 3647

Summation on Behalf of Defendant Capone 3699

Summation on Behalf of People 3782

Exceptions to Court's Refusal to Permit Objections During People's Summation 3869

The Charge of the Court 3871

PAGE

Requests to Charge and Exceptions.... 3932

Verdict 3993

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Buchalter 3994

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Weiss 3995

Motion to Set Aside Verdict against Defendant Capone 3996

Stipulation as to Exhibits 4022

Clerk's Certificate 4029

Testimony

Witnesses for People

Estelle Rosen:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 245

Cross by Mr. Barshay 263, 310

Cross by Mr. Talley 265, 312

Harry Regenbogen:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 314

Louis Stamler:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 322

Guglielmo Cappadora:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 331

M. Edward Marten, M.D.:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 339

Frederick W. Walsh:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 361

George V. Dumont:

Direct by Mr. Turkus 376

PAGE

Emil Schaefer:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 378

Herman Schiesser:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 379

Hirsh Merlis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 384

John J. McGowan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 394

Samuel Pearl:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 397

Henry G. Nelson:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 403

William S. King:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 408

Henry F. Batts:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 411

Max Kaufman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 435
Cross by Mr. Talley 444

William R. Jarvis:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 445

Simeon P. Ambraz:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 449

Abraham Waxman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 455

Harold D. Rosen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 465
Cross by Mr. Barshay 487

Hyman W. Barron:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 545
Cross by Mr. Talley 559

PAGE

Anthony O. DeSario:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 563

Sylvia Greenspan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 564
Cross by Mr. Climenko 585
Cross by Mr. Talley 678
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 684
Recross by Mr. Talley 685

Sol Bernstein:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 690
Cross by Mr. Talley 764, 1263
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 937
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1274

Max Rubin:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1284
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1492
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 1749
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 1754
Recross by Mr. Barshay 1755
Recross by Mr. Talley 1755
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2371
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2391
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2402

Edward C. Maguire:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1757
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1763

Paul Berger:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 1776
Cross by Mr. Barshay 1883
Cross by Mr. Talley 2042
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2191
Recross by Mr. Talley 2201

PAGE

Albert Tannenbaum:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2203
Cross by Mr. Barshay 2245
Cross by Mr. Talley 2341
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2353
Recross by Mr. Barshay 2368

Seymour Magoon:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2421
Cross by Mr. Talley 2472
Cross by Mr. Rosenthal 2486
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2603

Albert E. Aman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2607, 2618
Cross by Mr. Talley 2614, 2684
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 2686

Joseph Bell:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2687
Cross by Mr. Talley 2691

James C. Ryan:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2699
Cross by Mr. Talley 2702

Thomas J. Winne:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 2704
Cross by Mr. Talley 2706

Witnesses for Defendants

John J. Fegan:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2716

Henry H. Eisenberg:
Direct by Mr. Climenko 2740

Larry H. Cooper:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2776

PAGE

Michael J. Monz:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2780

Nat Sobler:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2784
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2825
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 2889
Recross by Mr. Turkus 2894

Ellsworth Baker:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 2897

Carl Shapiro:
Direct by Mr. Wegman 2901
Cross by Mr. Turkus 2921
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 2991
Redirect by Mr. Barshay 3000
Recalled:
Redirect by Mr. Wegman 3014, 3022, 3030, 3037
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3016, 3023, 3035

Major William W. Kleinman:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3003
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3012
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3014

John J. Canevari:
Direct by Mr. Barshay 3039
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3043

Harry Cohen:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3047
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3063
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3067

Sidney Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3070
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3076
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3224

PAGE

Samuel Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3239
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3242

Dorothy Isaacson:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3259
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3268
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3320
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3321

Blanche Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3322
Cross by Mr. Turkus 3329
Redirect by Mr. Talley 3445
Recross by Mr. Turkus 3445

Helen A. Hazley:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3446

Lena Weiss:
Direct by Mr. Talley 3447

Rebuttal

Witnesses for People

James P. Malone:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3493
Cross by Mr. Talley 3506
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3508

John J. Whalen:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3509
Cross by Mr. Talley 3514
Redirect by Mr. Turkus 3517

Vance Newman:
Direct by Mr. Turkus 3518

Exhibits

People's Exhibits

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*1—Photograph showing body of Joseph Rosen	321
*2—Photograph of Rosen Candy Store	326
*2-A—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 2	327
*3—Photograph of Louis Stamler's house	327
*4—Photograph showing Rosen Candy Store as viewed from a window of Louis Stamler's house	330
*5—Bullet labeled "M.M."	353
*6—Bullet labeled "M.R."	354
*7—Bullet labeled "F.W. 2"	366
*8—Bullet labeled "F.W. 1"	369
*9—Bullet labeled "F.W. 3"	370
*10—Bullet labeled "F.W. 4"	371
*11—Bullet labeled "F.W. 5"	372
*12—Bullet labeled "F.W. 6"	372
*13—Photograph showing plate number L-16-67, N.Y., 1936, of automobile	382
*14—Photograph of automobile	383
*15—Photograph of candy store	385

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

		ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*16.	Photograph showing walk across the railroad leading from Livonia and Van Sinderen side to Junius Street side of tracks	389
*17.	Photograph showing Junius Street side of walk over connecting up from the entrance to the stand	390
*18.	Photograph showing place where Samuel Pearl was walking	399
*19.	Gun found by Samuel Pearl in a lot and initialed "WK" in presence of the policeman	402
*20.	Photograph showing premises in which Max Kaufman lived, and the surrounding locale	437
*21.	Photograph showing locale as it was in September 1936	458
*22.	Photograph showing garages including the one in which the Ford automobile was stored	460
*23.	Photograph of car of Abraham Waxman	464
*24.	Diagram showing the candy store as it existed in September, 1936	553

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

	ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*25.—Photograph of Ardies' Soda, Candy and Luncheonette Store	686
*25 A.—Small sized photograph of People's Ex. 25	738
*26.—Photograph showing Sackman Street near where the car was parked	697
*27.—Photograph showing house and alley as it were when the drop was rented by Sol Bernstein	707
*28.—Photograph of garage	708
*29.—Photograph of house to which Mendy Weiss told Sol Bernstein to go	730
*30.—Photograph of an apartment house at Wyona and Belmont Streets	734
*31.—Photograph shewing corner of the park at Bradford and Blake Avenues	738
*32.—Photograph showing garage where the gun was hidden in the cellar	749
*33.—Order of Appointment of Extraordinary Special and Trial Term of the Supreme Court, etc.	1370
*34.—Appointment and Oath of Thomas E. Dewey	1370

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on page 4022 to 4028

	SUBMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*35.—Bank account of Max Rubin in the Bank for Savings, 4th Avenue	1403
*36.—Registration record of Max Rubin in the Hotel New Orleans	1418
*37. Registration record of Max Rubin in the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn	1435
*38. Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin	1451
*39. Check for $60, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, dated Nov. 13, 1936	1453
*40. Thirty-two checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, various dates	1458
*41. Eight checks of $60 each, from Clothing Drivers & Helpers Union, etc. to Esther Rubin, various dates	1459
*42. Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2620
*43.—Two sheets consisting of check and stub	2627
*44. Bank book of Security National Bank, Kansas City, Kansas, in name of James W. Bell; deposits, Oct. 1, 1940, $1000	2629

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

		ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*45.	Card taken from Mendy Weiss	2631	.....
*46.	Social Security Card No. 500-14-1906 bearing name of James William Bell	2633	.....
*47.	Registration Certificate for Selective Service issued to James William Bell	2634	.....
*48.	Motor Vehicle License Receipt No. 35629	2642	.....
*49.	Prescription blank of Dr. Geo. Wm. Bancroft	2646	.....
*50.	Copy of Operator's License, State of Colorado, No. A 9 6138	2656	.....
*51.	Driver's License No. 1078237 bearing name of James W. Bell	2659	.....
*52.	Motor Vehicle Driver's License, Kansas City, Mo., No. 153827 bearing name of James W. Bell	2661	.....
*53.	State of Colorado, Application for a Title for a Motor Vehicle, made by Rose Bell	2664	.....
*54.	Receipt for $40.00 from Geo. W. Bancroft, M.D. to James Bell, dated Sept. 23, 1940	2668	.....
*55.	Receipted Bill from St. Francis Hospital and Sanatorium to James Bell, dated Aug. 29, 1940	2669	.....

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028

	ADMITTED PAGE	REJECTED PAGE
*56. Receipt for $11, from Standard Finance Company to Rose Bell, dated July 24, 1940	2670
*57. Card of Martin's Indoor Poultry Farm	2672
Defendants' Exhibits
*1. Envelope in the handwriting of Sol Bernstein	1246
*2. Affidavit of Albert Tannenbaum, sworn to April 3, 1940	2327
*3. Affidavit of William J. Kennedy	2493
4. Agreement between Morris Bluestein and Nathan Sobler, and Martin F. Kelly Inc. and Joseph Rosen, dated Oct. 28, 1931	2793	3908
5. Agreement between Morris Bluestein, Nathan Sobler and Joseph Rosen, and New York and New Jersey Clothing Transportation Company, Inc., and Martin F. Kelly, Inc. and Martin F. Kelly, dated April 27, 1932	2807	4007
6. (Admitted in Evidence as Ex. 7) Original lease between The Fifth Avenue Building Company and Raleigh Manufacturing Inc., dated Jan. 29, 1936, together with diagram	2903	4016

*Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

		ADMITTED PAGE	PRINTED PAGE
*7.	Ten Checks	2995	.....
8.	Two green blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 9568 and 9569, respectively	3033	4018
9.	Two pink blank checks of Raleigh Manufacturers, Inc., Nos. 1121 and 1122, respectively	3033	4020
*10.	Copy of birth certificate of Sidney Weiss, certified June 12, 1941	3238	.....
*11.	Map showing layout of streets in connection with Rosen Candy Store, Rosen Residence, Long Island Railroad, etc.	3489	.....

* Not printed pursuant to stipulation on pages 4022 to 4028.

Brooklyn, N. Y., November 6, 1941.

TRIAL RESUMED.

MAX RUBIN, a witness in behalf of The People, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross examination by Mr. Barshay (continued):

Q. As business agent for Local 240, didn't you then have the power to distribute jobs to various 4748 drivers who belonged to your union? A. Yes, sir, after consulting the executive board, of course.

Q. The executive board, you mean, of Local 240? A. That is right.

Q. Who was on the executive board at this time? A. Moe Levine, Sam Levine, Louis Plotkin, Davey Cantor, Isidor Cohen.

Q. They were all drivers, weren't they? A. Yes, sir, and there were a few others.

Q. Rarely, if ever, were you overruled by the executive board? A. I believe so. 4749

Q. That is true? A. Yes.

Q. It was also your job to know which employer—truckman employer. I am speaking of now—operated for a non-union house A. Not when I was with the Expressmens Union, no, sir.

Q. Wasn't that one of your jobs, to see that your men could have their employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Wasn't it to their advantage that they should work for a union house? A. No.

Q. Wasn't that the very purpose of the union?

4750 A. No, sir, not Local 240. The purpose was to keep their men working. The question of organizing jobs or organizing manufacturers, that was a job for the Amalgamated, as I said yesterday, so I was a very minute part there.

Q. Mr. Rubin, wasn't it to the advantage of members of Local 240 to see to it that the manufacturers employed union truckmen

Mr. Turkus: I object.

4751 The Court: Objection overruled.

A. From the standpoint of unionism, do you mean

Q. For their own personal, private interest. A. No, sir, it made no difference.

Q. Wasn't there a holding up of union men then A. It was simply I had no non-union in the industry—I had none—I don't remember one non-union truckman I had—that anybody drove a non-union truck that was a member of my local at that time.

4752 Q. Of course, that was the very point of the existence of that local, to have only union men in the union? A. No.

Q. And it was to their advantage to see to it that that situation continued? A. I don't know about that. That is an abstract question. Whether it was to their advantage or whether it was of interest to them to keep it that way, that is another question.

Q. Why were they paying you a salary if not to preserve their status? A. You asked me a question of unionism and non-unionism and non-enforcement; you did not ask me anything about maintaining the status of all the members of the local I was business agent of. I say of course it was an advantage to them to be a member of that particular group and maintain their condition.

Q. And they put you there to see that that condition was carried out? A. Yes, sir.

Q. We understand each other now. Now, you said that truckmen were a fixture with every manufacturing house? A. As a general rule, yes, sir.

Q. And if a manufacturer became non-union, Local 240 men might lose their jobs with him? 4754
A. No, sir, unless the work went out of town into the hands of non-union truckmen—go out of town—but in the city it had no effect.

Q. It had no effect? A. Yes, sir, out of town, but not in the city.

Q. They did a lot of work outside the city? A. Three concerns; there may have been others, but three primarily.

Q. As a matter of fact, the stoppage occurred because so much of the work was going out of the city? A. That we had no control of, particularly the branch.

Q. And you were familiar with that situation 4755 before the stoppage? A. Of course.

Q. Now, you knew the Svirsky Clothing House very well, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you extort from the Svirsky Clothing Company the sum of $1,500 just before you severed your connection with the Joint Control Board—yes or no? A. Postively not.

Q. Just for the sake of repetition from yesterday, very briefly: The Amalgamated is made up of representatives of the various locals constituting the various branches of the garment trade.

directing the interests of the helpers, drivers, etc.? A. That is right, at that time.

Q. I am speaking only of the time before the stoppage. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Incidentally, before this stoppage, did you participate in any other stoppage? A. Well, the strike in 1921 was a big one; there may have been some others.

Q. In the 1921 strike, Mr. Rubin, you received your orders directly from the duly constituted 4757 officers of the Amalgamated? A. In 1921 I worked in the office, giving out relief to employees. I was getting $35 a week. That is what I did then.

Q. Did you partake in stoppage? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever partake in stoppages other than in 1932? A. That was the only one, I think.

Q. Was that your first experience? A. I don't say that; there may have been a little strike here and there. That is the first one I played any real part in.

Q. In the little strikes that you had previously experienced did you receive your orders directly 4758 from the officers of the Amalgamated, or else their subordinates? A. No, sir.

Q. You yourself did not call a stoppage? A. No, sir.

Q. Someone above you instructed you that there was a stoppage? A. No, sir, not me. I just went around to see how things went along; I had no power.

Q. I want to know if you had any part in the stoppage. A. I had absolutely no part in any stoppage except the 1932 stoppage; that I played an actual part in, actually.

Q. You led me to believe you did participate in some small stoppages on other occasions. A. By going around, that is, I went around to a particular neighborhood where a strike took place. I was a part of it. I took some part in the stoppage of the International Tailoring Company you spoke about yesterday.

Q. Coming down to this stoppage, you had heard it was to happen to the general industry, didn't you? A. I did not know that, no, sir.

Q. You did not know the stoppage was to take place? A. No.

4760

Q. You did not know that the business was so bad because of the truckmen of the manufacturers and contractors going out of town? A. I know we done business, if that is what you mean, but you speak about stoppage.

Q. You did not know the officers of the Amalgamated were contemplating something in order to correct that condition? A. Of course, no—Mr. Barshay, let me explain. I will help you.

Q. Just a second. I am trying to get from you, before the stoppage was called by the duly-constituted officers of the Amalgamated, is that a fact? A. I answered that I was an outlaw there. The Amalgamated group wanted no part of me. What would I know what the Amalgamated officers would do? They did not talk to me.

4761

Q. I am now speaking of the time when you are not an officer connected with any group except Local 240 as business agent. Do you understand me now? A. You spoke of before the stoppage.

Q. Before the stoppage in the summer of 1932, you were business agent of Local 240? A. That is right.

4762 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. You were part of the Amalgamated? A. In the Cutters Union, yes, sir.

Q. That is the only period I am speaking of, immediately before the stoppage did you get your instructions from your superior officers of the Amalgamated as to any stoppage that would take place? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you learn of it? A. Yes, sir.

Q. From whom did you learn of it? A. From Lepke.

4763 Q. Didn't you testify yesterday in this very court room at page 1416: "To my knowledge"—

"Q. Was the stoppage called by the duly-constituted officers of the Union?"

And then after Mr. Turkus made an objection to the question did you say that to your knowledge—

"A. To my knowledge it was called by the actual officials of the organization."

A. Wouldn't that be the logical thing, for a union to call a stoppage—but when I heard about it, that is a different story.

4764 Q. Of course, you don't suppose they are going to get an outsider to call a stoppage for them? A. They will call it—of course they will—they go through all the legal formalities of calling a stoppage after they first find out whether the thing can be successful. Once they find out the thing can be successful, then they go ahead, but not until then.

Q. So that this stoppage was called by the duly-constituted officials of the Amalgamated, wasn't it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as already answered.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You also said that Mr. Buchalter at that time was not a member or official of that organization; is that correct? A. Officially? Of course not.

Q. As business agent of the Expressmens Local, which is an important factor in executing a stoppage successfully, would you not get your instructions directly from the Amalgamated officers? A. Not at that period; I was not part of that machine. 4766

Q. I am now speaking of the time when this stoppage was called in 1932. You were part of the machine then, weren't you, as business agent? A. No, sir, the Orlofsky union started in 1931, and I went with that group. Bruno Belea came into Local 240 and assumed sort of a dictatorial position there. I could not immediately go back to my own job. That was part of the arrangement. 4767

Q. You got into Local 240 in 1927? A. That is right.

Q. Anyway, all the way up to the time of the stoppage in 1932, at that time you were in full control, as business agent, of Local 240, weren't you? A. Except for two months.

Q. Excluding now the two months. A. I don't know when Belea was there. It was right after the agreement was made.

Q. When was the agreement made? You said yesterday Orlofsky's union was given up in April, 1932; you said the stoppage was called 4768 August 4th. A. It was between that period. I did not even go to the place.

Q. A day or two or three or four before all the stoppages in August of 1932, you were business agent of that union, weren't you? A. I was always business agent.

Q. And you were getting your money? A. I did not get paid. They paid me later on.

Q. You mean you did not get paid because financially they could not afford to pay you then? 4769 Was that the reason? A. I don't know if that was the reason. No one paid any dues, it is true. The union was demoralized. Belea was there.

Q. Actually, you got your money at a subsequent time? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was that immediately before August 4, 1932, you were business agent of Local 240? A. That is right.

Q. In the normal course of events, when a stoppage was called by the Amalgamated through all its branches, all the way down, would you not receive, as business agent, your instructions with respect to carrying out your part in 4770 executing successfully this stoppage?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as speculative.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: You can ask what he did do, not what he would do.

Mr. Barshay: I want to first show the custom and then show what he did, that it was not a deviation, but that it was in the ordinary course of events that this man carried out his instructions.

The Witness: You cannot show that by me.

The Court: Counsel may try to show it.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Rubin, that immediately before the stoppage was called in 1932, you received your instructions as to what part you would play in this stoppage from the duly-constituted officers of the Amalgamated? A. Absolutely not. I will tell you the reason why— 4772

Q. Please don't volunteer. Do you recall that when this stoppage took place hundreds of workmen connected with the Amalgamated lay down in the street on 5th Avenue in the garment center to prevent trucks from leaving the City of New York to go to Jersey and Pennsylvania? A. A few did.

Q. Your members participated in that demonstration, didn't they? A. They did.

Q. No trucks rolled? A. They did not.

Q. No trucks rolled outside of Branch Stores? A. No trucks rolled. 4773

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Rubin, the stoppage was successful and was completed about the 11th of August, 1932? A. I do not know the date.

Q. Well, about August 11, 1932?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He says he does not know the date.

Q. I asked him is it about August 11th. A. I have no idea; I think you told me yesterday from the 4th to the 12th.

4774

Q. What part did you play in this stoppage in those eight days? A. Nothing at all, just walked around the same as the others did. Did absolutely nothing else.

Q. You mean you took a walk in the street? A. It was the Amalgamated's strike.

Q. You were part of the Amalgamated; your union was part of the Amalgamated? A. Yes, sir, but that is all we did.

Q. Just walk around? A. The members and 4775 myself walked around. There was nothing else for us to do.

Q. Did you instruct your members not to roll? A. I did. I told the express force also not to roll.

Q. In other words, briefly, you carried out all the duties necessary on your part to culminate this stoppage successfully? A. Yes, sir.

Q. No matter what you had to do, whether to instruct them or to urge them, dictate or instruct them to lay down and not to work, walk around in group demonstrations, to take them 4776 off the trucks or similar duties, isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: He can answer. Objection overruled.

A. All I instructed the men to do was to help on the picket line. We were only aiding. There were 25,000 or 26,000 other people out on the street, say about 5,000 were out on the street of the organization and you might add that maybe fifteen or twenty or thirty were there too.

Q. In order to successfully prosecute a strike you needed the cooperation of every branch of the industry, didn't you? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you giving yours? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, stoppage is lawful, and means the carrying out of a conflict, a temporary conflict between the union and manufacturers?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: He cannot answer a question of law. Objection sustained.

Q. They do it right now, don't they? 4778

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: He testified on direct that stoppage was practically to see if the men were in a mood to strike and if a strike could be successfully undertaken.

Q. And this stoppage resulted in a strike and was successful, wasn't it? A. It was, all the elements inside and outside of the union cooperated.

Q. As a matter of fact, Mr. Rubin, right now you read in the daily papers with respect to these strikes and these stoppages? 4779

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. It is the customary way of trying to culminate successfully a dispute between a manufacturer and the union?

Mr. Turkus: I object.

4780 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

The Court: I think you missed the point. I did not understand the direct testimony on this point to be for the purpose of showing that an illegal act was being done, but simply that the purpose was part of a general scheme, as he said, according to Lepke, for a stoppage because business was going to Pennsylvania; and that there was protest by this witness against bringing in either the Garfield concern or the New York & New Jersey, 4781 but that, notwithstanding this protest, there was, in the summer of 1932, a conversation in which he told Lepke the New York & New Jersey and Rosen objected to the stoppage, and that Sobler and Bluestein also, and that Lepke said he wanted to see Rosen. This is all put in, as I understand it, as part of a chain of events and not to show the stoppage itself was illegal. There is no question of law presented.

Mr. Barshay: Can I have it understood

4782 for this record that the stoppage called then was lawful, in the regular course of Amalgamated work?

The Court: The Court recognizes the alleged exercise of stoppage rights as legal; the question here is what was the purpose of the stoppage, as one of a chain of events leading up to the alleged killing. Was it directed particularly at the one who became ultimately the victim of a killing? It does not legitimatize that.

Mr. Barshay: I don't urge that at all.

I urge it is entirely disconnected with the alleged killing.

The Court: That is a question for argument to the jury.

Mr. Barshay: I am trying to prove by this witness that stoppage is the ordinary means used between unions and manufacturers, that it was not unusual, and that it was not directed at Rosen or anyone in particular; it was directed at the industry.

The Court: You have a right to show that. 4784

Mr. Barshay: I am trying to do that from this witness.

Q. Wasn't that the very purpose of the stoppage?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

Mr. Barshay: I will withdraw the question.

Q. This stoppage was not directed expressly at any particular person, was it? A. It was expressly directed— 4785

Q. At any particular individual, was it? A. No, sir. Not at any individual, the industry—the Branch stores—it was particularly directed at that group and any other group at that time that wanted to regulate industry altogether, but particularly stop the Branch Stores from taking work out.

Q. Mr. Rosen was no part of the Branch Stores? A. No, sir.

4786 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. The Branch Stores are a large outfit? A. Fairly large.

Q. The Garfield was substantially large? A. Yes, sir.

Q. By comparison, Rosen's little business in Pennsylvania, as you described it, was infinitesimal, wasn't it? A. On the whole it was not much.

Q. I am speaking of Mr. Rosen's interest in the little business, the Pennsylvania business he 4787 had, in the collection of it; you do not seek, do you, to convey the impression that in any degree this stoppage was called by the Amalgamated and all the subsidiaries in order to get Rosen out of business? A. Oh, no.

Q. How long did you know Weiner? A. Sam Weiner?

Q. Yes. A. About 1928, '27, '29, something like that.

Q. Weiner was the one in the Perfection? A. When I knew him he was not with them.

By the Court:

4788

Q. He was the man who had the canvas place? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Where the books were produced and examined? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. You knew Weiner before you knew Buchalter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. You knew Weiner independently of Buchalter? A. Yes, sir. I knew Weiner independently of Buchalter, sure.

Q. You know Weiner had a "Perfection Coats"? A. I knew him to be the Perfection Coats.

Q. What was the address of Weiner in 1932? A. Around 20th Street, I don't know.

Q. Around 20th Street? A. Yes, sir.

By the Court:

Q. You told us before 20th Street off 5th Avenue; is that correct? A. Yes, sir; I believe it was on the north side of the street. 4790

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. You claim you had a meeting at Weiner's with the defendant Buchalter in 1932?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question, "you claim."

Q. You said that? A. To my best recollection it was in 1932.

Q. Was Buchalter then connected with the Perfection? A. I don't think the Perfection was any good since then. 4791

Q. Whatever the name, was Buchalter connected with Weiner in any business then? A. I don't think so.

Q. Did Buchalter have any interest in Mr. Weiner's concern then? A. I don't think so.

Q. Don't you know, as a matter of fact, Buchalter did not become connected with Weiner until 1934, two years after this meeting you described? A. You mean became a partner in the concern?

4792

Q. Yes. A. That is true, in 1934.

Q. Don't you know Buchalter did not visit Weiner until he became a partner with him in 1934? A. I don't know that, and neither do you.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the voluntary remark. If he wants to put my credibility at issue, I will tell him what I know.

The Court: Strike out the last part,

4793 and also your remarks about telling him what you know.

Q. How many times did you meet Buchalter in Weiner's in 1932? A. That happens to be a year that I had great difficulty—

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as not responsive.

The Court: Let him finish his answer.

Mr. Barshay: It is absolutely unresponsive, from the very beginning.

The Court: Let him finish his answer.

4794 Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Witness: (continuing) in placing all the places where I had stopped in the clothing industry.

By the Court:

Q. That is nine years ago and you cannot place all the places? A. I know a good many places where I stopped in 1932; there was about five or six.

Q. You remember the places, you have a mental picture of them. Did you keep a record or sheet? A. No, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the Court's question.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. You remember this particular meeting with Buchalter, don't you? A. Yes.

Q. You did not keep a diary of that meeting? A. No, sir.

Q. You kept no written record of this meeting, and it is nine years ago? A. No, sir. 4796

The Court: Do not quarrel.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the Court's comment, that I am quarreling with the witness.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you meet Buchalter in Weiner's place in 1932, the other meeting you just described? A. I don't remember. 4797

Q. You cannot remember another instance? A. I cannot, no, sir.

Q. Did you meet and go there before this meeting in 1932? A. I think one time we met when he borrowed $6,000 from Sam Weiner. I think it was in that period. I am almost—I am not sure—I am not positive, because I am afraid to say I am positive, because I may not be, but he borrowed $6,000 from Sam Weiner around that time.

Q. In Weiner's office? A. I don't remember the diagram, I say.

4798 Q. I am asking you about Weiner's office and no other place. A. I don't remember, but I know there was an incident like that that took place, around that particular time.

Q. I did not ask you about any other place; do you understand? A. I am doing the best I can.

Q. The best you can do is to please answer my questions in the same way you cooperated with Mr. Turkus. A. I am trying to.

4799 Q. I did not ask you about any other incident or any other place. I want to know, if you cannot remember, tell me; if you can, tell me. That is all I want from you. Do you know of any other time in 1932 before this alleged meeting?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as repetitious.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. (continued) With Buchalter, at Weiner's place.

4800

Mr. Turkus: I object.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Or after that.

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I cannot remember of any other.

Q. Do you know the date of this meeting? A. No, sir, just before—

4801

The Court: Do you mean the book event in the office of Weiner?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: He testified it was in the summer of 1932.

Mr. Barshay: I think I have the privilege of getting an answer from this man, what this man's recollection is, without being refreshed constantly as to what he testified to on direct examination. That is exactly the point of cross-examination.

4802

The Court: Do you impute to the Court an ulterior motive?

Mr. Barshay: I don't impute any such thing.

The Court: Then just come to order and do not be disagreeable.

Mr. Barshay: I am not disagreeable.

The Court: You act that way.

Mr. Barshay: I do not act that way. Then I have a duty to cross-examine him, but he is constantly being told what he testified to on direct examination, so there may as well not be a cross-examination.

4803

The Court: The Court will not permit you to address it in that tone of voice. The Court demands respect. The Court is trying to get that respect, and has never raised its voice. Your manner toward the Court is distinctly quarrelsome, extremely so.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that.

The Court: Outside of the court-room you would not talk to a judge in such a tone. Now please come to order, and do not forget your manners.

4804

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that. I have control of my manners.

The Court: I wish you would exercise it.

Mr. Barshay: It is a matter of opinion, sir.

The Court: Decidedly. There is only one person in the court-room taking your 4805 side, and that is yourself, on that point.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Did you go out immediately after you received notice about this stoppage, to all of the truckmen?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is not the testimony. The testimony he gave as to what he did on stoppage was related on direct examination. This is taking in evidence something he never testified to.

4806 The Court: The word stressed here is "all" of the truckmen.

Mr. Barshay: I am going to a different subject now, your Honor.

The Court: Objection overruled.

(Pending question repeated by reporter.)

A. I believe I did.

Q. How long did it take you? A. Not so very long.

Q. All the same, you knew what was going on? A. I told each one individually.

Q. You had no difficulty? A. Just with those few.

Q. You mean they said they did not agree with this stoppage, is that what you mean? A. One absolutely refused.

Q. You had no fight? A. No, sir, I am not a fighting man.

Q. You did not threaten anybody? A. I am not a threating man.

Q. I am asking you now, did you? A. Of course not.

4808

Q. You did not intimidate anybody? A. No, sir.

Q. There was no necessity for it? A. I never did, even if there was any necessity.

Q. Does your conscience bother you? A. Not at all.

Q. I am not accusing you at the present, am I? A. I don't know.

Q. Then you came to the Branch Storage, and there was some difficulty with them? A. Yes, sir.

Q. They refused it? A. Yes, sir.

4809

Q. Did they continue to refuse, or did they finally give in?

Mr. Turkus: I object, unless the time is fixed, otherwise it is confusing to the jury.

Mr. Barshay: What is confusing? You know we are speaking only of stoppage. It is not confusing, is it, Mr. Rubin?

The Witness: I spoke to Butinsky, and he said no trucks had rolled.

4810 Q. You and Meyer Butinsky and the defendant Buchalter never met at Weiner's, did you? A. I don't think so.

Q. Or any other place? A. He knew Meyer Butinsky very well. He is a partner of Meyer Butinsky.

Mr. Turkus: May the record show that when counsel said "he", he indicated Lepke?

4811 Mr. Barshay: Yes.

Q. He knew Meyer Butinsky very well? A. Of course he did.

Q. Mr. Turkus wants the record to show it, and I want to see that it does. Was he a partner of the Branch Storage, to your knowledge, at that time? A. Before the stoppage?

Q. At the stoppage, or before the stoppage.

Mr. Turkus: I object to the confusion. "He." I don't know whether it refers to Lepke or Butinsky.

4812

By the Court:

Q. Was this a partnership or a corporation? A. There was stock given out, yes, sir, and the stock was made out to Hymie Curley Holtz.

Q. It was not a partnership? A. It was a corporation, to my best knowledge.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. At the time of the stoppage, to your knowledge was Buchalter a partner in the Branch

Storage? A. He had Hymie Curley Holtz hold the stock, because I had it in my hands to sell for him.

Mr. Barshay: May we have instructions to this witness to answer the question yes or no?

The Court: He cannot answer that yes or no; he answered it already.

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer as absolute hearsay. 4814

The Court: He said he had the stock in his hands to sell, although it was in somebody else's name. Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Now, assuming, for the sake of your testimony here, that the defendant Buchalter was practically, as you say, a partner or a stockholder in this Branch Storage, he did not ask you to play favorite with the Branch Storage, did he?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question, "assuming for the sake of." It is confusing; it is improper. I object to it. 4815

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. He did not tell you to play favorites with the Branch Storage, did he—yes or no?

The Court: The Court has ruled on that. Do not repeat it.

Mr. Barshay: The Court has not ruled on that question because in the other question I put in something else.

The Court: The objectionable part of that is the word "favorite," because it may be interpreted by the witness in a different sense.

Q. He told you to stop the Branch Storage? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The same as he told you to stop every other truck? A. That is right.

4817

Q. You say that the certificate you speak of, you held in your hand? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. You are sure it was the Branch Storage? A. Positively—no, it was the Holland Haulage, which later went in the Branch Storage.

Q. You straightened yourself out. Is it the Branch or the Holland? A. It was the Holland Haulage that went into the Branch. It was originally started as the Holland Haulage, and then it came into the Branch Storage. This was in nineteen hundred and—I don't know, 1929, '30, or '31. I don't know what year it was, about.

4818

Q. When did you see the stock? A. During the stoppage.

Q. That was 1932? A. Yes, sir, but the stock was made out—

Q. Now, Mr. Rubin—

Mr. Turkus: I object: he interrupted with a question before he finished the answer.

The Witness: I remember the Holland

Haulage original stock was taken out, and then later on it became the Branch Storage.

Q. You never saw stock of the Branch Storage belonging to the defendant Buchalter, did you? A. Was it the Holland Haulage then? I am sure it was the Holland Haulage or the Branch, but it was a long time ago. If you will refresh my memory by questioning me—

Q. It was the Holland, wasn't it? A. Yes, sir. 4820

Q. And not the Branch? A. I think so.

Q. You corrected yourself.

Mr. Turkus: I object. There is no question but one is the successor of the other.

By the Court:

Q. Was it the same business? A. Absolutely.

Mr. Barshay: I object. This witness is not competent to testify to that.

The Court: That is a question as to 4821 physical setup. Objection overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. You know the Holland Haulage was already out of business at the time of the stoppage? A. They ordered it into the Branch Storage; they forced it in; they made some arrangement with the Branch Storage outfit and they became one.

Q. Is the Holland in business now?

4822 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as immaterial to the issue in this case; we are trying a murder case.

The Court: Objection overruled.

A. I know they became part of one outfit.

Q. So he asked you to stop the outfit with which he was connected? A. Yes, sir. That is peculiar.

Q. He did? A. Yes, sir.

4823 Q. You went to the New York & New Jersey, in accordance with your testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you know the set-up of the New York & New Jersey, who was the president, who was the vice-president, who was the secretary, who had the trucks? A. No, sir, I did not know that. I knew there were three bosses there; that is all.

Q. Did you know that Rosen was the least financially interested in the New York & New Jersey at that time? A. I could gather that from his past—

4824 The Court: No, not what you detected or assumed. Do you know anything about it?

The Witness: No, sir, not actually, no, sir.

Q. Did you know he had only one customer in Pennsylvania, and that is all he had in the business? Did you know that? A. Only one he had there?

Q. There was one customer in Pennsylvania? A. The only business he had there was the Pennsylvania business; whether it was one or more

I could not tell you, and I don't know the one you mentioned; I only know Freddy Ferraro.

Q. Whatever the name was, it was only one? A. That is all I knew; there may have been others.

Q. One customer did not furnish much money to Mr. Rosen, did it?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to; he was a partner in the whole concern. That was the business, according to the testimony, of the New York & New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. 4826

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr Barshay: Exception.

Q. Was Kelly there at that time? A. No, sir, I never heard of Kelly there.

Q. Was he part of the concern at that time? A. Kelly?

Q. Yes. A. I don't know.

Q. To your knowledge, do you know that Kelly ever was? A. I heard he was a partner there at one time, but I don't know at this particular time 4827 whether he was or not.

Q. Sobler & Bluestein did not agree to stop? A. No, sir.

Q. You never brought them to the defendant Buchalter, did you? A. They were more pliable.

Mr. Barshay: May I ask that the witness be instructed to answer the question?

The Court: Yes.

A. No, I did not bring them down.

4828 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Mr. Barshay: Again I must ask you not to volunteer.

Q. You did not bring them down—Sobler & Bluestein?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as already answered: "They were more pliable."

The Court: The Court sustains the objection. That part was stricken out.

4829 Q. (Question read by the reporter.) A. No, sir.

Q. Get down to this meeting. You said nothing in that meeting which implied any threat or intimidation to Mr. Rosen, did you—you personally?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as a conclusion.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. You did not threaten Rosen personally in 4830 that meeting, did you? A. Of course not.

Q. You did not intimidate him in any respect? A. I did not.

Q. This was a discussion which involved the reason for Rosen not agreeing to stoppage, isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The question is what was said in the place. Not conclusions.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4831

Q. There was a discussion between the defendant, you say, and Rosen, as to why he should agree to the stoppage, and Rosen in return gave the reasons why he should not agree to the stoppage?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that as a conclusion. The jury is to draw conclusions as to what the language means that was said in the room under those circumstances.

4832

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Nobody hit Rosen then? A. No one hit Rosen, no, sir.

Q. As a matter of fact, as you said on your direct testimony at page 1153— "What did Rosen say at the meeting? Walked in—" You said, "I, Rubin, told me that I would have to close down the Pennsylvania business." A. What is the wording on that?

Q. "Q. He walked in and said that I, Rubin—" meaning he meant you, Rubin— Well, I will read it as it is. It is only what I am looking at. "He told me I would have to close down the Pennsylvania business and we had to close down the whole business in New York. The Pennsylvania business was the only thing I have in the concern. If I lose that I will lose everything in the concern." That was the nature of the discussion, wasn't it? A. That is right.

4833

Mr. Turkus: I object. That was only one element, one question and answer.

4834 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

There were discussions there that went on, that included Lepke and Gurrah.

Mr. Barshay: Please make your objection without a speech.

Mr. Turkus: That is an objection, to draw a conclusion from what transpired. The jury does that.

The Court: Objection overruled.

Q. You did tell Rosen that he would have to quit the Pennsylvania business, didn't you? A.
4835 I said, "Don't hit your head," in that room.

Q. Before that time? A. Yes, sir, before that time I did. He told me he would not do it. He told me he could not do it.

Q. So in this room, then, the defendant, you say, told him again something? A. That is right.

Q. You were present? A. Yes, sir.

Q. He said no, he could not do it? A. He said he could not afford it; that was all he had. He did not say "No," he said he could not do it. He was pleading.

4836 Q. Then the defendant, you say, said to him, "Rosen, you are kidding, you have plenty of business, you are kidding," that is exactly what he said? A. That is about it, yes, sir.

Q. Then the defendant said, "You show me the books," and Rosen said, "I will show you," and he went to the telephone and called up his office, is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. Then a lady came in who was Sylvia Rosen, with a book? A. That is right.

Q. Did you look at the book? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't it part of your business to see that? A. No.

Q. What route, or business, or customers, he was serving in Pennsylvania? A. Not with Lepke and Gurrah in the same room, no.

Mr. Barshay: I object to that as not responsive and move to strike it out.

The Court: Motion denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. The lady came in with the book, is that correct? A. Yes, sir.

4838

Q. She was invited to sit down? A. I don't remember that.

Q. Well, she sat down, didn't she? A. I hope so.

Q. Nobody asked her to leave the room during the ensuing discussion? A. No, sir.

Q. Nobody made any effort to keep from her what the subject of the discussion was?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the form of the question.

The Court: Objection sustained as to form.

1839

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. How long did she sit there? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Do you know whether it was five or ten minutes, or twenty minutes? A. I don't know: it was a short time, but I cannot tell you how long.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection that she testified here it was twenty minutes, would that refresh your recollection? A. It was a short time; sometimes twenty minutes is short and sometimes it is very, very long.

Q. Then Rosen was told, "You cannot go to this house"? A. That particular house was mentioned, Gurrah said, "You cannot go here," mentioning like Mr. Turkus said, a flicking of his hand across the books.

Q. That is done all the time in the union field? A. Oh, no.

Q. Aren't truckmen allocated to various manufacturers? A. They have those houses registered 4841 and it belongs to them, yes, sir.

Q. You yourself have transferred truckmen from one house to another? A. In one case.

Q. That is what they were doing in this instance? A. They were doing?

Q. Yes, they were telling Rosen he could not go to this manufacturer? A. They said, "You cannot go here, you cannot go here."

Q. He only had one customer, you told us? A. I didn't know that. I said I only knew one; I did not know if he had any others.

Q. Did Rosen, in your presence, tell them he 4842 had more than one? A. I did not hear that.

Q. Did Rosen tell him how many he had? A. No, sir, I did not hear that.

Q. Did Rosen name another? A. No, he did not.

Q. Did you join in the conversation and say to Rosen, substantially, "Don't hit your head up against a stone wall, if they tell you to stop, stop."? A. That would apply to all people who did not stop.

Q. Isn't that so—that cards would not be given to other truckmen? A. It had nothing to do with cards. I don't know the formation.

After the stoppage was over I did not know how things were going to end.

Q. You spent your life in union activities with the Amalgamated, Joint Board, Control Board, Finance Committee, Business Agent, didn't you, so you knew what was to be followed subsequent to stoppage? A. I can answer that. I don't think there was ever a time before that that O.K. cards were given out. I think that was an innovation.

Q. Have they been given out since then? A. 4844
Since that particular talk. I think that was the first time, if I can remember correctly, that was the first time these O.K. cards were ever given out.

Q. They were given out in the regular offices of the Amalgamated? A. No, sir. I think the meetings were held at 22 East 17th Street, the office of the manufacturers and trucking.

Q. Books were kept as to whom you gave each card? A. I think they kept a record.

Q. That was the system inaugurated then and followed since? A. I think so.

Q. Mr. Rosen was not treated in any other 4845 way than all the other truckmen were treated at that time? A. From the Amalgamated?

Q. Yes. A. Of course, not.

Q. You made the suggestion that you would try to get him some extra business? A. I did.

Q. And that pleased Rosen?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as calling for a conclusion.

The Witness: I think Lepke promised first more.

4846 Q. Lepke made him that promise, you say? A. He did.

Q. And you carried out that promise? A. I did.

Q. Perfectly proper, wasn't it? A. I don't know how proper it was; I carried it out.

Q. You did so? A. Yes, sir.

Q. On those visits, Mr. Rubin, you told this jury you did nothing illegitimate? A. That is correct, that is right.

4847 Q. I mean you used no illegal methods to get Mr. Rosen that customer? A. No, sir, I just went up to Sam Svirsky and told him he would do us a big favor—I told him who wanted the favor—he did it.

(At this point the witness was allowed to leave the stand.)

The Court: Recess for five minutes for the benefit of the witness. The court will remain organized.

(The witness returns to the stand.)

4848 Q. Did you know, Mr. Rubin, then, at the time of the stoppage that the Pennsylvania, or the territory in Pennsylvania, was declared to be on the union side or the non-union side, did you know that? A. When we went up to see Svirsky, before the stoppage, do you mean?

Q. No, during the conference about the stoppage? A. I was not in any of those things. I cannot answer that.

Q. As a matter of fact, you know now, don't you, that Svirsky still employs Sobler who was once with the New York and New Jersey, approximately to this very day? A. Yes. What has that got to do with the Pennsylvania question that you just asked prior?

Mr. Barshay: I ask that the witness be instructed to answer questions.

The Court: So instructed.

The Witness: Yes.

Q. And he still does work for them today, do you know that?

Mr. Turkus: I object. 4850

By the Court:

Q. Does he? A. He does, yes, sir—I mean, I have not been out since 1939, so I have reason to believe he still continues. He did in 1939.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Now, the allocation of territory was really the allocation of the houses included in certain towns in Pennsylvania where the union work was going on? 4851

Mr. Turkus: I object. The question is confusing. I don't understand what it means.

The Court: I think we know what it means.

By the Court:

Q. When Gurrah had the book and forbade certain accounts, did you see what the accounts were? A. No, sir.

4852 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Did he mention what the accounts were so you could tell whether they were in Pennsylvania or not? A. No, sir, and he did not, either.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Do you know where those accounts were located? A. The New York and New Jersey?

By the Court:

4853 Q. No, that were forbidden by Gurrah? A. No, a couple I know, he spoke, he said about Wilkes Barre region, I believe.

Q. No, do you know? A. No, I don't know. All I know is it was not in the territory of the Branch. It went to a different part of Pennsylvania than the Branch did.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Summing it all up, wasn't it decided as a result of the successful conclusion of the stop-
4854 page, which towns and territory were to be catered to by union truckmen? A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You never learned of that? A. No, sir.

Q. Wasn't that the very purpose of the stoppage? A. No, sir.

Q. What was the purpose of the stoppage? A. To prevent him from going out of town.

Q. You say, "Going out of town," you mean out of town to perform under non-union conditions? A. No, sir, it was union shop; they were taking the work away from New York.

Q. Union shops competing with union shops, no matter where they were? A. No, sir.

The Court: There is a question which has not been cleared up by anybody.

By the Court:

Q. When you speak about business going out of town, do you mean pieces of cloth, cut from patterns, were being sent out of town for sewing and finishing? A. In some cases piece goods 4856 went out of town, too.

Q. You mean the cutting as well? A. Yes, sir, in some cases.

Q. You mean that the manufacturer instead of having work done in Manhattan was shipping these goods, the cut goods, to Pennsylvania, and getting the labor there? A. That is right.

Q. For completing, making and completing the garment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that some of the Pennsylvania shops were not union shops, and that union labor was obtained which made a bigger overhead in the 4857 production of the garment? A. Yes, sir, it was cheaper to produce the garments there, and that is the reason the manufacturers sent their work out.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. And that was really the reason for the business going out of town? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that was opposed to the best interests of the Amalgamated? A. (No answer).

4858

By the Court:

Q. And these truckers could have prevented their taking the stuff out of town, which would strangle the transfer of unfinished garments for making or completion to non-union districts? A. That is right.

Q. Is that correct? A. Yes, sir, that is right, but with the question of the Branch stores, if I may amplify it—they could get sales territory in 4859 Pennsylvania, for manufacturers to go there. That was an added danger to them and their concerns.

Q. What concern? A. The Branch stores.

Q. When you say, "Branch Stores," do you mean a specific organization having that name? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Do you know how many accounts the New York and New Jersey had in this Wilkes Barre region? A. I do not.

4860 Q. Do you know whether it was one, two or three? A. I don't know, I told you before.

Q. Did you ever learn? A. No, sir.

Q. In the conference room, did you ever learn? A. I was never in a conference room.

Q. The conference room I am speaking of now was where Rosen was there with you and the defendant, as you claim.

Mr. Turkus: I object. That was no conference room at all. The jury will decide what went on in that room. You refer to it as conference: I would call it something else.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception.

The Court: Call it the room where the conference was held.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the remark used by Mr. Turkus.

By the Court:

Q. When you speak of Wilkes Barre, that is in the coal mining district? A. That is right. 4862

Q. Was the condition in the coal mining district at that time one of general unemployment where men and women get jobs at something other than the coal mines? A. I cannot answer that. I was not up there.

Q. Where labor was cheap? A. Yes, sir, labor was cheap in Pennsylvania.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. The room where this conference took place, you were there, weren't you? A. I was. 4863

Q. And it was a conference room for the moment? A. That is right.

Q. Who asked the daughter to leave? A. Her father told her to go.

Q. The defendant did not? A. No, sir.

Q. She left? A. She did.

Q. And the discussion continued? A. That is right.

Q. Rosen urged his side of the story, didn't he? A. Urged his side of the story?

Q. Yes. A. Yes, sir.

Q. Then the defendants said, "Don't worry,

4864 we will do something for you. You have nothing to worry about. If you have any trouble, we will do something for you."? A. That is right.

Q. That is exactly what he said? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then Rosen left? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know how soon thereafter Rosen went to the Garfield as an employe? A. When they resumed work, I believe.

Q. When was that, August 12th, do you say?

4865 A. Yes, a few days later, I think so.

Q. So that at the most, Rosen, after this alleged conference, or after this convention, went to the Garfield within a week? A. About that time, I imagine.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether or not Rosen while he was a member of the New York and the New Jersey was drawing $100. a week? A. I cannot tell you that.

Q. Do you know whether he drew less? A. I imagined he would draw less, but I would not know definitely.

4866 Q. Do you know whether he ever netted in his connection with the New York and New Jersey anywhere in the sum of $100. a week? A. I do not know of any.

Q. Now, you had a talk with the defendant before he went to Garfield to work, didn't you, before Rosen went to Garfield to work? A. Before we got him into the Garfield, yes, sir.

Q. In other words, the defendant was instrumental in persuading the Garfield to employ Rosen at $100. a week? A. Positively.

Q. As a matter of fact, Cooper refused to do it? A. Yes, sir, that is right.

Q. And this was before the defendant, to your knowledge, was invited by Cooper to join the Garfield? A. He did not go to work, in my opinion, for Louis Cooper until after the stoppage.

Q. The stoppage was finished August 12th? A. He could not have gone to work for Louis Cooper much after that.

Q. Had you gotten Louis Cooper to agree to the stoppage before he went to work for Cooper, within the week? A. After the stoppage was 4868 over.

Q. But it was within a week? A. I think so.

Q. It took a little longer than that for the defendant to accept Mr. Cooper's invitation to join there? A. No, sir, no, just the same moment, the same day.

Q. You mean stock was issued and the agreement was drawn on the same day? A. I don't know anything about stocks. I am talking about a conversation Louis Cooper had with Lepke in a particular speakeasy.

Q. I am asking you if you know when the 4869 defendant Buchalter joined, at the invitation of Cooper? A. I don't know if there was any stock issued.

Q. You know formal legal papers were drawn? A. No, sir.

Q. You know that lawyers attended to the drawing and closing? A. No, sir, I don't.

Q. You don't know that, either? A. No, sir.

Q. Rosen was put to work immediately within a week, at $100. a week? A. That is right.

Q. Was it $125., do you recall? A. I think he got that later.

4870 Q. So he was advanced to $125. a week shortly, later?

Mr. Turkus: I object. That is confusing.

The Court: Sustained as leading. He said he got it later.

Q. How much later? A. Maybe $115.

By the Court:

4871 Q. Do you know anything about it? A. I know he got an increase; Rosen himself told me.

Q. Did you see him get it? A. No, sir, Rosen himself told me.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. So he continued to work for Louis Cooper at the Garfield? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know exactly how long he worked? A. I said before about eight months; I may be 4872 wrong, but that is my opinion.

Q. Could it have been two years? A. It may have been.

Q. Could it have been two and one-half years, do you know? A. I am not sure of the exact time.

Q. You had been seeing Rosen in the meantime? A. Oh, yes.

Q. He was grateful, wasn't he? A. Grateful?

Q. Yes, to you? A. No more than usual when you get something which is all right.

Q. He was getting $115. or $125. per week, he was a foreman in a large concern, he expressed his gratitude to you, didn't he? A. He did not thank me; he was glad; he thanked everybody, I imagine.

Q. In other words, Rosen was quite happy about the change?

Mr. Turkus: I object. There is no such testimony on this record.

The Court: It is too psychological. Objection sustained.

4874

Q. He expressed joy, didn't he, verbally? A. When I told him that I did not have any more business with the man.

Q. When you first told him he was going to work for the Garfield at $100. a week, he expressed his pleasure? A. At that particular time.

Mr. Turkus: I object. It is confusing. When a man has no alternative—

Mr. Barshay. I object to Mr. Turkus making any argument.

The Court: You are going in the realm 4875 of psychology and philosophy.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it as confusing.

Mr. Barshay: I took an objection to the speech.

The Court: It makes no difference whether he was grateful or not. Rosen's reactions are of no consequence.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: The District Attorney made a speech which was inflammatory and prejudicial, when I was trying to dis-prove the theory advanced by him and just at a time when I was succeeding.

4876 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

The Court: The Court did not hear the speech, so many people are talking at once.

Mr. Barshay: The jury heard it. It was intended for the jury and not for the Court.

The Court: Then the jury will disregard it. These interruptions must stop 4877 after objection is made. The Court must rule without wrangle. We have had enough of that in the last few days. We must go along with the case in an orderly fashion.

Q. Now, you say you don't recall how long he worked, maybe eight months, maybe a year, maybe a year and a half? A. That is right.

Q. No complaint from Rosen in the meantime, Mr. Rubin? A. No, sir, none whatsoever.

Q. Did Sobler and Bluestein, to your knowledge, still continue with the New York and New 4878 Jersey, or did they split? A. I think they split up. Sobler continued to run the business: Sobler took the New York business and Bluestein took the Jersey business.

Q. Sobler is still in business? A. He is.

Q. Then there came a time when you met Rosen and he told you that Copper had fired him? A. That is right.

Q. The defendant Buchalter had nothing to do with his discharge, did he? A. I don't believe so.

Q. You know he did not? A. I can safely say he had nothing to do with it.

Q. As a matter of fact, when you conveyed that fact to the defendant, he said he was going to see Cooper and try to have him reinstated? A. That is right.

Q. And he went to Cooper? A. That is right.

Q. And he urged Cooper to reinstate Rosen? A. That is right.

Q. And Cooper said he stole some racks, he bit the hand that fed him? A. He stole some hampers.

Q. That was the only reason Cooper ascribed 4880 for discharging Rosen? A. That is right.

Q. You did not agree with him? A. Positively not.

Q. Cooper persisted? A. That is right.

Q. And Buchalter did everything he could for Cooper to change his mind? A. Everything he could?

Q. Yes, in the conference?

Mr. Turkus: I object. He does not know.

Q. He urged him to reinstate the man; he 4881 said, "Take him back"? A. That is right.

Q. He agreed with you that the stealing of a few hampers is no reason for discharging a man? A. That is correct.

Q. He said, "Cooper, take Rosen back"? A. Yes sir.

Q. He said it more than once? A. A dozen times.

Q. And Cooper persisted? A. Yes, sir.

Q. So you ascribe the discharge of Rosen directly to Mr. Cooper, don't you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to what he does.
The Court: He has already said so.

4882

Q. Now, Cooper was the man who really ran the Garfield, wasn't he, the manager? A. He managed it, yes, sir.

Q. He was the active person in the business? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The defendant Buchalter took no participation actively in the business? A. No, sir, except that everybody knew that he was a partner, of course.

4883

Q. I said actively, he did not hire or fire, or do anything in the business? A. No, sir, not at all.

Q. Cooper said finally, "I will not take him back," and he did not? A. That is right.

Q. Finally, the defendant gave up his efforts to convince Cooper to reinstate Rosen? A. That is right.

Q. You agreed with that by saying, "It is good enough for you, it is good enough for me"? A. That is right.

4884

Q. So that at that time you felt that you did your bit for Rosen? A. That is right.

Q. You felt the defendant did his bit for Rosen? A. No, sir, I did not feel that way.

Q. You know what I am speaking about? At the time of these conferences when Cooper persisted in refusal to reinstate Rosen, the defendant Buchalter a dozen times urged upon Cooper to reinstate him? A. That is right.

Q. You heard it yourself? A. That is right.

Q. And you joined in that? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you say, with respect to Cooper, the defendant did everything he could with Cooper to put him back? A. By word of mouth, yes, sir.

Q. You did not want Buchalter to hit Cooper and make him take Rosen back? A. He did not have to.

Q. It was then you said, I repeat, "If that is good enough for you, it is good enough for me"? A. That is right.

Q. You could put a man to work yourself, couldn't you? A. I could.

Q. Because of being a business agent? A. Anything in New York that happened I could do in New York. 4886

Q. Did you personally try to get any employment for Rosen? A. I did.

Q. And you could not succeed? A. No, sir.

Q. To whom did you go? A. I spoke to dozens of bosses and they did not want him.

Q. They personally did not want him? A. No, sir.

Q. That had nothing to do with the defendant Buchalter? A. No, sir, not at all.

Q. So every person who rejected your request for employment of Rosen, to your personal knowledge, did so of their own volition? A. Positively. 4887

Q. Was it because of his reputation in the industry?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to.

The Court: Objection sustained.

Q. Did they ascribe a reason to you for their failure to employ Mr. Rosen?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

4888 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

The Court: Objection sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Mr. Barshay: Your Honor, it goes directly to the point. The claim here, as advanced by the District Attorney, is that the defendant is the one who forced Rosen out of business, when everything is undoubtedly to the contrary. I am proceeding along that line through this witness' own knowledge.

4889 The Court: I am just thinking— The Court made a ruling. Now it comes to mind that before Lepke and this witness went to Cooper, there is evidence in the direct that this witness told, as a reason for going there, to Lepke, that it was no time to have Rosen hollering on Fifth Avenue, and that Rosen should therefore be put back. In view of that testimony you may cross-examine on that point. The Court reverses its ruling.

4890 Q At this conference between Cooper, you and the defendant, when you say the defendant—

Mr. Turkus: (Interrupting) I object, unless the defendant is named. We have three defendants here.

Mr. Barshay: Isn't it obvious, Mr. Turkus, that I am representing Louis Buchalter. If you want to call him Lepke, go ahead. I call him Buchalter—the only name I know him by.

The Court: The Court stands reprimanded. The Court will call him Buchalter.

Mr. Barshay: I am addressing Mr. Rubin—let the record be clear that I looked at Mr. Rubin and not at the Court.

The Court: The Court will not address any defendant by "Mister", or "Your Honor", or anything like that. We will call people by their proper names.

Mr. Barshay: I will call the defendant, "Buchalter." 4892

Q. Do you say that you had this talk with Buchalter or Cooper? A. All I can recall— I think it was 1934—

Q. Do you recall the year? A. I think it was '34.

Q. Have you any recollection of the month? A. No, I am not even quite sure about the year, but I think so.

Q. Now, in the talk you had with these men, these truckmen to whom you went to seek employment for Rosen, can you please tell us what reasons they gave for not wanting to employ him? A. He was considered a chiseler in the trade, and that, if you want me to amplify it, he would go to a tailor shop and take $25. from a tailor and promise to get him some work and not get him the work; and he would go to a manufacturer and take a suit of clothes and promise to pay the manufacturer, and then he did not send him the money—that he did not want to pay the man—just petty larceny stuff. 4893

Q. Who was that? A. Joe Rosen, he had that reputation.

4894

Q. That is why, Mr. Rubin, these men refused to give him employment? A. Trucking bosses, yes, sir.

Q. So he stayed out of work for a considerable period of time? A. I figure about sixteen months.

Q. Despite your efforts to get him employment? A. That is right.

Q. You made honest and sincere efforts to get him employment? A. Yes, sir.

4895

Q. And you got rebuffed at the hands of employers because of the reason you gave this Court and jury? A. Yes, sir.

Q. When Mr. Cooper persisted in his refusal to re-employ Rosen, I believe you had a visit from Mrs. Rosen? A. Mrs. Rosen?

Q. Yes. A. The only time he was discharged, yes, sir.

Q. She came to you and she wanted to know why her husband was discharged by Cooper? A. That is right.

Q. Did she ask you? A. She did.

4896

Q. Did you tell her? A. I did.

Q. Did she then ask you to go to Cooper? A. I said, I invited her— I said, "Come on over."

Q. Did you go? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Cooper say? A. He would not put him back.

Q. That is all he said? A. Well, that was the gist of the conversation.

Q. Give us everything you can recollect. A. He would not put him back; he was no good; did not want him, and so on.

Q. Try to give us the best you can everything that was said. A. That is about all.

Q. That is about all? A. That is about all. It may have been a little longer, but that was the gist.

Q. He never said to her, "It is not up to me, go and see Lepke"? A. I did not hear that.

Q. And you were present all the time? A. That is right.

Q. Were there any other unemployed truck drivers in the Local 240 about that time? A. 4898
I don't think so.

Q. Did you place any to work? A. I cannot tell you now, but I don't—the problem of unemployment is never very great there.

Q. In other words, if people really wanted men, there was plenty of work for them? A. I don't say plenty of work, but I never took anybody in there to keep them hanging around. Unless there was a job for a man I brought in, I would bring nobody in.

Q. Finally, after a considerable period of unemployment, as you described, and the reasons therefor, did you meet Larry Cooper, who was 4899 not related to Louis Cooper at all? A. He has been in business a long time.

Q. You know him? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you instrumental in getting Larry Cooper to employ Rosen? A. Yes, sir, I spoke to him about it.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether the defendant Buchalter also spoke to Larry Cooper and asked him to take Rosen? A. I could not answer that, but as far as I know, he did not.

Q. He may have, without your knowledge? A. Of course.

Q. And so Larry Cooper employed Rosen as a truckman, is that so? A. Yes, sir, after the switch.

Q. But you were able to accomplish that—and a man named Cranes did work for Larry Cooper had to be shifted to the Garfield? A. That is right.

Q. It could not be done otherwise? A. No, sir.

1901 Q. Larry Cooper would not fire a man to accommodate Rosen? A. He would not dare.

Q. But Louis Cooper did not want to do that? A. That is right.

Q. Then Buchalter was then a partner with Louis Cooper in the Garfield about that time? A. I don't know when, but he was a partner.

Q. Was the defendant a partner with Louis Cooper in the Garfield about that time? A. I don't know when, but he was a partner.

Q. As a matter of fact, he was a partner since 1937, wasn't he? A. He was a partner.

Q. In the Garfield? A. From 1932.

1902 Q. Until 1937? A. I don't know when he severed his connection.

Q. So again it was necessary to enlist the aid of the defendant Buchalter to persuade Louis Cooper to take Cranes? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The defendant Buchalter did persuade Louis Cooper to employ Cranes, so Rosen could get employment? A. Yes, sir.

Q. There was a little difficulty to persuade Cooper to carry out that transaction? A. Yes, sir.

Q. The defendant Buchalter who was a partner of Louis Cooper insisted and finally succeeded and Cranes was employed and still is employed, to your knowledge, with the Garfield? A. I think he still is, yes, sir.

Q. Now, Rosen worked for Larry Cooper how long? A. A very short time, a few months, I believe.

Q. Larry Cooper did not fire him, to your knowledge? A. He did not.

Q. Rosen quit of his own volition? A. That is right.

Q. He claimed he was sick? A. I don't know the reason; I heard afterwards that he claimed he was sick. 4904

Q. Something the matter with his heart, do you know?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to as hearsay, what he heard about the man.

Mr. Barshay: I asked him did he know.

Mr. Turkus: I object; it is hearsay.

Q. At any rate, Mr. Rubin, it is definite that the disassociation between Larry Cooper and Rosen was absoluteiy voluntary on Rosen's part? 4905

Mr. Turkus: I object. The witness indicated he does not know how it happened.

The Court: I will allow it. Answer the question.

A. It was voluntary, wholly voluntary.

Q. After the disassociation of Rosen from Larry Cooper, did you see Rosen? A. Only the time I spoke of.

Q. In the candy store? A. Yes, sir.

4906

Q. In other words, he no longer came in to ask you for employment? A. He did not.

Q. He no longer bothered you about getting a job for him any place? A. He did not.

Q. The first you learned, he bought a candy store, he did not ask you, or ask your help to get money to buy the candy store? A. He did not.

Q. Do you know when he bought the candy store? A. I don't know, sir.

Q. When did you learn he bought the candy store? A. A short time after I saw he was not on the job and I made inquiry, and some of the members he told me he had a candy store, told me he bought a candy store in Brownsville.

4907

Q. Would you say that was some time in April of 1936? A. I imagine about that time.

Q. You said that Dewey was appointed in July of 1935?

Mr. Turkus: That was June.

Q. You agree with Mr. Turkus, then?

4908

Mr. Turkus: It doesn't make any difference whether he does or not.

Q. Isn't that so? A. Yes, sir, July.

Q. July of 1935, let us not quibble about the date, but it was in July, 1935? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let us go back to 1934. You became connected with another union, a flour trucking union? A. You mean by visiting unions?

Q. You became connected? A. I did not become connected. I visited the union in 1932, at the end of the year.

Q. Was there another trucking union, Local 138? A. Yes, sir.

Q. That has to do with flour trucking? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Disassociated completely from the garment workers? A. Yes, sir.

Q. One had nothing to do with the other? A. That is right.

Q. Did you know a man named Mike Cashel? A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was his position? A. He was as- 4910
sistant representative of the teamsters' union of the American Federation of Labor.

Q. Did you know him well? A. For a short time I was a member of that outfit.

Q. You mean the flour outfit? A. No, sir, when I became a member of the American Federation of Labor; I became a member in 1933.

Q. Was it through his influence that you obtained admission to Local 138? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone that was the fact? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you finally receive compensation from 4911
138? A. I did.

Q. How much? A. $25. a week.

Q. You did not inform Local 240 that you were getting $25. a week from Local 138, did you? A. I did not.

Q. You did not inform Local 138 what your salary was with Local 240? A. I did, but that has nothing to do with it.

Q. In other words, you carried on two jobs at one time? A. No, no, it was not a job.

Q. A pretty big job? A. It was not a job, no, sir, it was not, it was an association.

Q. A very big association? A. Yes.

4912 Q. From which you profited? A. I profited by it, yes, sir.

Q. Without telling your employer, your real employer? A. Without notifying Local 240 of the union?

Q. Yes. A. I never notified them.

Q. As a matter of fact, your membership began, as you claimed, with your association under 138? A. That is not even true.

4913 Mr. Turkus: I object. It has nothing to do with the Rosen killing.

The Witness: It is not even true.

Q. In Local 138, you actively participated, didn't you? A. No, sir, not in local affairs, not at all.

Q. Will you please answer this yes or no—Did you participate and share financially, to your profit, in extortion, while you were associated with Local 138? A. As agent of Lepke, yes, sir.

4914 Mr. Barshay: May I ask you to do something with this witness, your Honor, who despite all your admonitions and instructions is speaking forth from the witness stand answers which have nothing to do with the case and he does it purposely, repeatedly and deliberately.

Mr. Turkus: Your Honor, he knew the situation when he asked the question.

Mr. Barshay: We will find out about that. Of course I knew it or I would not ask.

The Court: The qualification "as agent for Lepke", although competent, and although it may be brought out in any direct by the District Attorney, is not responsive. Therefore it is stricken out.

Mr. Barshay: Now, for the record, as in the Richardson case, which I call to your Honor's attention, I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: The motion is denied, a purely technical rule. The subject-matter is competent. 4916

You may ask again if he was a graft collector. He can answer, but he may not state whether for his own pocket or for another, in response to your question.

Mr. Barshay: Of course, the Court is entitled to put it to him and to ask him to answer yes or no. May I take an exception to your Honor's ruling.

The Court: The ruling is based—

Mr. Barshay: On the withdrawal of a juror. That is what I have reference to.

The Court: Denied. 4917

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you participate in a shake-down of the Gottfried Baking Company to the tune of $15,000? A. I did.

Q. Did you participate in a shake-down of the Wagner Pies to the tune of $1,600? A. I don't remember that; I did not participate in that at all.

Q. Is your answer no, you don't remember? A. I don't know—I said I don't remember; I happen to remember the Gottfried very well, but I don't remember Wagner Pies.

Q. Is there a name to refresh your recollection? A. Maybe you can look in the book.

Q. You testified in the flour case? A. Look at the books and get the question and answer. They are correct.

Q. I want to give you a chance. A. Why should you? I don't remember; I am giving it the best I can. I said that Gottfried I remembered very well. I don't remember the 4919 Wagner Pies.

Q. Do you deny it? A. No, sir, I don't deny anything.

Q. You admit it? A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know whether you participated in the shakedown of the Wagner Pies? Answer my question. A. I am trying to do the best I can. When you ask me— Let me make a general statement—

Mr. Barshay: I object. There is something your Honor can do that I cannot.

4920 The Court: Put your next question.

By the Court:

Q. Did you participate in a lot of shake downs? A. I did.

Q. Never mind whether for yourself or for whom. A. I did, at the end of '34 until '36.

Q. Two years? A. Yes.

Q. Did you do a lot of graft-collecting? A. From the end of 1934 I did until about the middle of 1935, until I went away in September or October, 1936, the middle of October, 1936. I did all that, from about the middle of July, 1935, until about October, 1936.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Do you need to refresh your recollection? A. You read it from the book; what is in there I said; I simply don't remember the Wagner Pic. It does not stand out as the Gottfried. I am not denying anything.

Q. Do you want to refresh your recollection by looking at your testimony? A. No, you read it. Put it on the record. 4922

Q. I have read it. I ask you if you now admit participation. A. Read it to me and I will tell you.

Q. Won't you read it to yourself? A. If it is necessary, all right.

Mr. Turkus: Let me see what you are showing him.

Mr. Barshay: Sure.

Mr. Turkus: May the record note it is page 950—don't close the book on me. 4923

Mr. Barshay: Wait a while. Don't pull that stuff. The Court has something to say about this.

The Court: The Court cannot permit books to be handed to witnesses to read, which would delay this trial. Ask your question and let the witness answer.

Mr. Barshay: I thought it shortened the trial.

Mr. Turkus: That was not the purpose.

The Court: The Court rules you cannot do it.

4924 Q. On page 950, were you asked this question: "What did Harold Silverman say at that time? A. He got $1,500 from some lawyer, I believe I don't remember the name—about the Wagner Pie, and that he was giving me one-half but under no condition should I give Wolfy any of it; that Wolfy threw him out of the office and wants nothing to do with him. He does not want Wolfy to get any of this."

Does that refresh your recollection? A. Yes, sir.

4925

Mr. Turkus: May the record show that folio 2859 was not read?

The Court: You have your re-direct when this is over.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor tell the District Attorney to desist from this kind of talk? He has re-direct, and he can read it.

The Court: Maybe he will, and maybe he will forget.

Mr. Barshay: He will not forget; he has two assistants to remind him.

4926

Q. Did you participate in a shake-down or extortion of Fink in 1936? A. I think Fink Sam Schorr came to my house and gave me some money.

The Court: Did you or didn't you?

The Witness: I did not meet Fink.

By the Court:

Q. Did you shake down Fink? A. I got some money from somebody who told me he got it from Fink.

4927

Q. Who did you get it from? A. I don't know what particular man he got it from; I got it from Sam Schorr.

Q. You got your split? A. Yes, sir.

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Did you participate in a shake-down or extortion of Micky Shalit? A. Yes, sir.

4928

Q. Is it not a fact that between 1935 and 1936 you participated in total shakes of $400 to $700 per week? A. It may have been more some weeks and it may have been less.

Q. But that was—some of it, rather, was after the appointment of Thomas E. Dewey as Special Prosecutor in July of 1935? A. That is right.

(A recess was then taken until 1:30 P. M., the jury admonished as to their demeanor in the interim.)

4929

(The witness is first allowed to leave the room, the jury next; defendants are remanded.)

4930

AFTERNOON SESSION—TRIAL RESUMED.

MAX RUBIN, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

Cross-examination by Mr. Barshay (continued):

Q. Before we adjourned, Mr. Rubin, the last question I asked you was, "Q. Some of it was after the appointment of Thomas E. Dewey as special prosecutor in July of 1935? A. That is right." Is that correct? A. That is correct.

4931

Q. Did you hear, after the appointment of Mr. Dewey, Mr. Dewey's speech on the radio, appealing to the public for cooperation and offering protection of all witnesses who would give information against people whom he was investigating? A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you read it in the newspaper? A. I may have. I don't remember.

Q. Did you hear about it in any way then? A. I may have.

Q. Did you know that Mr. Dewey was then offering police protection to all those who wished to testify, putting people under guard for 24 hours at a time? Did you know that? A. I may have.

4932

Q. As Mr. Dewey proceeded to work along in his special investigation, did that subject ever come to your attention? A. As I worked with the Dewey office, is that your question?

Q. No, as Mr. Dewey himself was proceeding with his investigation— A. No.

Q. Did you learn that he was offering witnesses protection? A. No.

Q. I take it you had absolute faith in the integrity of Mr. Dewey? A. I absolutely did, after I knew the man.

Q. You had faith in him before you knew the man? A. I did not know him so I could not have faith in somebody I did not know.

Q. By his reputation— A. I can't have faith in anybody I don't know. After I know a person, I can have faith in him. After I knew him I had a lot of faith in him.

Q. You committed no extortions in the Borough of Brooklyn, did you? A. No, sir. 4934

Q. The extortions which you admitted participating in were all in the Borough of Manhattan, were they not? A. I don't know where the money came from. I, myself?

Q. Yes. A. I was only in the office of 138.

Q. All your activities, whether large or small, were in the Borough of Manhattan? A. Whatever money was collected in 138, I got in Manhattan, yes, sir.

Q. You are not under indictment in Manhattan, to your knowledge, for any of the crimes you admitted participating in, are you? A. I am not. No. 4935

Q. You never have been? A. Never have been though I signed two waivers of immunity.

Q. I understand that. But you never have been indicted. That is what I want to know. A. I have not.

Q. And when you signed the two waivers of immunity, was it with respect to the flour extortion case? A. Yes.

Q. And that is the case in which you gave testimony against the defendant Buchalter? A. That is right.

4936 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Were you on the Garfield payroll at any time? A. No, sir.

Q. At no time? A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever on the payroll of Brown & Pollock? A. No, sir.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you collected money at the restaurant of Shimmy Weinberger? You know Shimmy Weinberger, don't you? A. He is an ex-cutter.

Q. Did you ever collect money through him
4937 from the firm of Brown & Pollock? Yes or no. A. No, sir.

Q. Now there came a time that you referred to as September 11, 1936. You said in your direct testimony that you met the defendant Buchalter on that day, Friday, September 11, and that day you remember quite vividly. Do you recall that on direct testimony? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Will you tell us the place you met him? A. 200 Fifth Avenue, Raleigh Clothing.

Q. Will you tell us the time you met him?
4938 A. Some time about one o'clock, I imagine, in the afternoon.

Q. Give us as best you can the time you met him? A. Well, I would say in the early afternoon. I can't tell you exactly.

Q. Was it one o'clock? A. He usually came around, I believe, around one o'clock.

Q. You remember that day vividly. Can you tell us whether it was one o'clock or two o'clock or three o'clock? A. It was the early part of the afternoon.

Q. What is your best guess, your best recollection with respect to the time, best recollection?

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable, best guess.

Mr. Barshay: I said best recollection and I leave "guess" out.

The Court: Have you any recollection, best or not best?

The Witness: The early afternoon, sir.

Q. Can you tell us who was in the room? A. When I spoke to Lepke? 4940

Q. Yes. A. I don't know if there was anybody there in that particular place.

Q. Have you any recollection on the point? A. I think there was a bookkeeper on the other side but I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether she was within hearing distance, on the question of space? A. I can't tell you that. I don't know if she was paying attention or not.

Q. You did not ask her to get out of the room? A. I did not. Of course not.

Q. The defendant to your knowledge did not ask her to get out of the room? A. No, he did not. 4941

Q. Do you know her name? A. No, I don't.

The Court: Do you remember whether she was there or not?

The Witness: I don't remember but there was always a girl—

The Court: We don't want any conjecture; we only want recollection.

The Witness: I don't remember, your Honor.

4942 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Do you know how long your talk took? A. Not very long.

Q. Would you say a half hour? A. I don't think so.

Q. Would you say less? A. I imagine so.

Q. Did anybody come in while you were talking to him? A. I think Allie Tannenbaum came in.

The Court: Not what you think; do you remember?

4943

The Witness: I think Allie Tannenbaum came in.

Q. During the conversation? A. Yes.

Q. Did he participate in the conversation? A. No.

Q. Was he within hearing distance of you and Buchalter?

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable. He cannot tell what someone else can hear.

The Court: He can say how close he was, if he remembers or if he noticed.

4944

Q. How close was he? A. I don't know. I didn't notice.

Q. Was he as close as I am now to Mr. Turkus, about two feet? A. I can't tell you that. I don't remember.

Q. You don't remember that? A. No.

Q. Were there any telephone calls while you and he were speaking that came into the office? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Were there any telephone calls made by 4945

Buchalter or by you or by anyone there while you were in the office? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Did you say at that conference that you were going to see Murray Weinstein? A. After Lepke got through talking, yes.

Q. Did you make an appointment with Murray Weinstein? A. No.

Q. Did you telephone him that you were coming? A. No.

Q. Did you know that he was in his place of business? A. On a Friday he is usually there earlier than usual. 4946

Q. Did you know that day? A. No, I took a chance and went over.

Q. What entrance did you go into the 200 Fifth Avenue when you came up that day to Buchalter's office? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge which entrance Tannenbaum used, if you know? A. I don't know.

Q. Did you leave alone? A. I did.

Q. Do you know whether or not Tannenbaum remained after you left? A. He did.

4947

Q. Or before you left? A. He remained.

Q. How did you go to Weinstein's office? A. Down Broadway.

Q. Did you walk? A. I did.

Q. How long did it take you? A. From 23rd Street to 15th Street.

Q. How long did it take you? A. Five minutes.

Q. Did you meet any people on the way? A. I may have. I don't remember.

Q. Did you stop to talk to them? A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you recall the names of any people you met? A. No, I don't.

Q. What time did you get to Weinstein's office? A. I don't know. It was right after I left Lepke.

Q. Was he there—Weinstein? A. He was.

Q. Did you see anyone else there? A. The place was full of cutters or a few cutters.

Q. Did you wait your turn to see Weinstein? A. No, I went right in; knocked on his door and went right in.

Q. Was anyone present when you talked to him? A. No.

4949 Q. How long did you talk to him? A. About a half hour or so.

Q. And during that time did you call from his office? A. No.

Q. Do you know whether Weinstein called from his office while you were there? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. Did you tell Weinstein that Rosen would work at anything at all, anything? A. I did not tell him that.

Q. Did you tell that to Buchalter? A. Not at that Friday, no.

4950 Q. You asked Weinstein to give him a position, did you not, to make room for Rosen some place? A. I said to help me as far as Rosen was concerned.

Q. And Weinstein was the head of the union that employed how many people? A. Two thousand.

Q. And you now say that Weinstein rejected any help for Rosen?

Mr. Turkus: Object to the form. The word "now" carries an implication not warranted by the testimony.

Mr. Barshay: I withdraw the question.

Max Rubin—For People—Cross

4951

The Court: Yes, he said that on his direct.

Q. You say now that Weinstein showed no interest in Rosen?

Mr. Turkus: Objectionable. The word "now" is objectionable.

Mr. Barshay: I will leave out the word "now".

The Court: Go ahead.

4952

Mr. Turkus: Your question has to be reframed.

Q. Do you say that Weinstein showed no interest in Rosen? A. I would not say he did not show any interest. He simply did not want to do what I requested him to do.

Q. Where did you ask Weinstein to place Rosen? A. I did not ask him to place him at all. I asked him to help me. I wanted to save his life. I asked him to help me. That is what I told him.

4953

Mr. Barshay: I move to strike out the answer of this witness which is entirely voluntary and not in response to any question put by me to him.

The Court: Strike it out.

Mr. Turkus: May that part where he said "I did not ask him to place him at all" remain?

The Court: Strike out the rest. The jury disregard it.

Q. Did you ask for any particular work for Rosen of Weinstein? A. No.

Q. Do you know of your own knowledge whether Weinstein knew Rosen? A. He did.

Q. Was Weinstein then in a position to obtain employment for Rosen as a truckman?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. That is—

4955 Q. To your knowledge?

Mr. Turkus: That is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You told Weinstein that Buchalter sent you, did you not? A. I did not.

Q. You did not convey that message to him at all? A. No.

Q. This was a personal request on your part of Weinstein? A. That is right.

4956 Q. What time did you get back to Buchalter that day? A. If I was a half hour in Murray Weinstein's office, then it must have taken me another fifteen minutes or so to get back.

Q. Can you give me as best you can— A. I said it was early afternoon.

Q. —what time you got back Buchalter? A. I don't know the time.

Q. Was it three o'clock? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. It was after lunch? A. Yes, sure.

Q. Was it an hour after lunch? A. I said around one o'clock, a little after that.

4957

Q. One o'clock you started with Buchalter? A. It would be another three-quarters of an hour.

Q. By the time you got back would you say it was a little after two, three?

Mr. Turkus: I object. The witness' recollection has been exhausted on point of time.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4958

Q. In the conversation with Weinstein then, September 11, he told you about a baseball game, is that so? A. That is right.

Q. Had he ever told you about a baseball game before? A. He never did.

Q. Did you know there was to be a baseball game? A. I did not.

Q. Did you ever got away for week-ends yourself before? A. Oh, yes, conventions and things of that sort.

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. You did not need Buchalter's permission to go, did you? A. To go away?

4959

Q. Yes. A. No, sir.

Q. You could go wherever you wanted to? A. No, not all the time.

Q. On week-ends the time was your own? A. You mean this particular period that you are speaking of now?

Q. Yes. A. Yes.

Q. And so the subject of Rosen between you and Weinstein was dropped and the talk continued about a baseball game, an invitation to you to attend it in Vineland, New Jersey? A. That is right.

4960 Q. You had never attended a baseball game before with respect to the union playing on one side or the other? A. That is right.

The Court: Where is that, near Cape May?

The Witness: It is near Atlantic City, your Honor, about an hour's ride from Atlantic City.

4961 Q. Was there a convention in Atlantic City that week-end? A. No; he simply told me to meet him at the Breakers Hotel, to go to the game and meet him at the Breakers Hotel.

Q. Did he say he was going to the game? A. Yes.

Q. When you came back to see Buchalter, what entrance did you take? A. I don't remember. There were three ways of getting in.

Q. Which way did you choose? A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you have to use the tunnel? A. At times I used it.

4962 Q. I mean then, that day? A. I don't remember that.

Q. When you came back, did you see Tannenbaum? A. I did not.

Q. You did not? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see any detectives around the building? A. I don't know if I saw them that particular day. I know they were around.

Q. I am speaking only of that day, Mr. Rubin— A. I don't remember seeing them.

Q. And no other day. Didn't you know, Rubin, that Buchalter was under the constant supervision of the Police Department, under the constant surveillance of the Police Department, then 24 hours each and every day? A. I didn't know that and I know it can't be true because many times I met him and there was no surveillance of any kind.

4963

Q. You did not expect that the police would show their faces to you, did you?

Mr. Turkus: Now—

The Court: Don't argue. Sustained.

4964

Q. Didn't you know that from the latter part of September or rather from the early part of September, 1935, until the defendant was tried in the Federal Court in October of 1936, the defendant Buchalter was under the constant surveillance 24 hours a day of the Police Department of the City of New York and Tom Dewey's office?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is already answered by the witness.

The Court: Sustained as repetitious.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

4965

Q. Did you know that the surveillance continued while he was being tried in the Federal Court?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

Q. In 1936.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

4966 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Did you know that it continued until about March of 1937?

Mr. Turkus: Same objection.

The Court: All I can see to this persistence in the face of the Court's ruling is that it may be an attempt to impress on the jury something that is not in the evidence.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to the 4967 Court's remarks.

The Court: Don't do it again. Abide by the ruling.

Mr. Barshay: I am asking the question, your Honor, and if your Honor sustains it I will abide by it but I am laying my foundation for something which I have in mind and which your Honor could know at the bench in one single second.

The Court: Please don't violate the Court's ruling again. You have done it several times and each time gets into the mind of the jury something suggested by a 4968 question but not substantiated by an answer.

Mr. Barshay: It will be in the form of proof, sir.

The Court: Go ahead to something else.

Mr. Barshay: I ask the Court whether or not the District Attorney has in his possession in this court-room the records of the Police Department of the City of New York with respect to the surveillance of the defendant Buchalter during the periods I put to this witness.

4969

The Court: Proceed with the cross-examination.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: (To witness) The Court asked you where Vineland was because the Court wants to get an idea why you went to the Breakers. Is Vineland below Atlantic City?

The Witness: It is off to the left. I don't remember the road now but there is a certain place—

4970

The Court: After you get to Atlantic City?

The Witness: No, sir; you have to make a turn, if I remember correctly, to the right in order to get to Vineland. It is about an hour's ride from Atlantic City.

The Court: The Causeway ride alone is half an hour or more?

The Witness: I would not know that.

The Court: But at any rate are we to understand that you were told to go to the Breakers? That was the meeting place of those who were going to the baseball game in this place outside of Atlantic City?

4971

The Witness: That is right.

Q. Can you tell me what time you left the defendant Buchalter at the Raleigh on September 11th, the second time?

Mr. Turkus: That is objected to. That has already been gone over. The witness' recollection has been exhausted.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay. Exception.

The Court: You mean the time he was told to go and get Berger?

Mr. Barshay: I am leading to that, Judge.

The Court: All right. That is what I thought you meant.

Mr. Barshay: I am leading to that now.

Q. Do you recall then? A. Right after I reported to—4973 Q. I asked you for the time, that's all. A. I can't tell you the time.

The Court: Did you time any of these events?

The Witness: I did not.

Q. You said you remembered this vividly? A. I didn't remember any time. I know the—

Q. Was it after three?

The Court: Were you looking at your watch at any time?

4974 The Witness: No, sir.

Mr. Barshay: I object to the Court's question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: This is a very vital point in my examination.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. How long did you stay with Buchalter before you went to get Berger? A. In and out.

Q. You told him about the baseball game? A. Yes, but I mean after I explained to him what happened. I went in, explained to him what happened, and went out.

Q. It took how long? A. A few minutes. I don't know the time.

Q. Anybody else there at that time? A. I don't remember.

Q. Buchalter did not send you to the game, did he? A. No, I told him I was going there. He said, "Go ahead."

Q. You were the one suggested it? A. I told him that Murray Weinstein had suggested it. 4976

Q. And you accepted the invitation? A. Yes.

Q. I mean Buchalter did not bring up the subject? A. No.

Q. He did not tell you to get out of town? A. No, I told him I was going. He said O.K.

Q. You volunteered that yourself? A. That is right.

Q. Where did you go to get Berger? A. I think I met him at the Expressmen's Association on 17th Street. I think so.

Q. Did you phone that you were coming? A. No. 4977

Q. Did you walk over there? A. I did.

Q. What time? A. I don't know. That is right after I left Buchalter.

Q. How long did that take you? A. From 23rd to 17th Street, five minutes, ten minutes.

Q. Walked again? A. Yes

Q. Did you meet anyone on that occasion? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was Berger in the quarters where you say you went? A. I believe he was there when I got there, in fact I am sure he was there.

Q. Did you speak to Berger? A. I did.

4978 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. How long did that take? A. Just to tell him that Lepke wants to see him.

Q. Was anyone else there? A. The room was full of people.

Q. Anyone within earshot of you, do you know? A. No.

Q. Can you name some of the people that were there? A. No.

Q. Can you name one of the people? A. Friday was usually the day when people came in in the 4979 afternoon. They played cards there, pinochle and so on, so there was a few people there.

Q. So you cannot give us the name of one person? A. No.

Q. You knew everyone in that room? A. I did.

Q. Did Paul Berger leave right away? A. He did.

Q. Can you tell us that time? A. No, I can't.

Q. Not even approximate? A. No.

Q. Would you say it was about two hours after the first conversation you had with Buchalter? A. I would approximate it that way.

4980 Q. So the next day you went to Atlantic City? A. I took my wife and child in my car and we drove to Atlantic City.

Q. The reason you took your wife and child was because she was ill? A. No, I took her.

Q. Maybe I misunderstood you. A. She got ill on the way. She did not feel so well as we neared the place, so instead of driving to Vineland I drove to Atlantic City.

Q. Then I misunderstood you when you said to Mr. Turkus at that time your wife's health was not good. A. Oh, no.

Q. It was just on the way? A. On the way.

Q. You started out for the game? A. That is right.

Q. Did you get to the game? A. No.

Q. When did you decide not to go to the game? A. On the way up to Atlantic City or through that section.

Q. At what point? A. I can't tell you that.

Q. You had a son then, I take it. Was your son with you? A. Yes, he was with us. He is thirteen now and he was about nine or eight then.

Q. Did you tell him that you were going to the 4982 baseball game? A. My boy?

Q. Yes. A. Maybe, but I don't remember. A very little fellow, you know.

Q. Was there a convention at The Breakers at that time? A. There was not.

Q. Were there any union people stopping at The Breakers? A. I don't believe so. I didn't see anybody outside of those that went to the baseball game.

The Court: Were there many of those?

The Witness: About a hundred, sir, left 4983 from the Cutters Union on 15th Street, and we all drove out together, but in driving out on the road we lost one another.

Q. Generally, you were a retiring gentleman personally, were you not? You were not a good mixer?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. At the Breakers Hotel you mixed with everyone, did you not? A. No, I didn't

Q. You registered under your name? A. I did.

Q. You saw Murray Weinstein there? A. I did.

Q. Talked to him about your not going to the game? A. No, I did not see him until after the game.

Q. Did you tell him you were not at the game? A. I imagine so.

Q. Did you tell him why? A. No, I didn't.

4985 Q. Did you ask him again to do something for Rosen? A. I didn't.

Q. Did you tell him anything about Buchalter sending you to get Berger.

Q. Did not mention a word about it? A. No, sir.

Q. Did you mention to Weinstein one word about the conversation you and Buchalter had after you reported to Buchalter that Weinstein could not do anything for you? A. No, sir.

Q. Not one word? A. Not one word.

Q. So that you did not tell anything at all with respect to what happened between you and 4986 Buchalter? A. To no one.

Q. The next day you left, back for New York? A. Sunday.

Q. The next morning, that is, Monday morning, you read the New York Times, and you learned of the death of Rosen? A. That is right.

Q. The first thing you did was to go to see Buchalter? A. That is right.

Q. Let us go back to the time you visited Rubin at the store. A. Rosen?

Q. I beg your pardon, Mr. Rubin—Rosen at the store, when Feinberg was there, which was the only time you say you were there. A. That is right.

Q. You did not threaten Rosen, did you? A. Of course not.

Q. You did not intimidate him? A. Of course not.

Q. You did not even speak in a boisterous tone to him, did you? A. Hardly ever do.

Q. You were quite gentlemanly with him? A. I was.

Q. You did absolutely nothing wrong? 4988

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute. That is for the jury to decide.

Mr. Barshay: He says she did not.

Mr. Turkus: That is for the jury to decide, whether when he delivered Lep'o's message and the $200, whether he did something wrong or not.

The Court: Yes, the jury will have to say.

Q. I am speaking of you personally, Mr. Rubin. You, yourself, of your own free will, did absolutely nothing wrong with respect to Rosen in that store on that day? 4989

Mr. Turkus: It is for the jury to say.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You gave him $200? A. I did.

The Court: The question of right or wrong is an indefinite term, solely a matter of viewpoint and largely influenced by 4990 whether or not the person himself does it. You are entitled to cross-examine thoroughly on the question as to what extent, if any, this defendant, and whether or not this defendant, was in any way implicated as principal or as an accessory in this alleged murder.

Mr. Barshay: You mean this defendant, or this witness?

The Court: This witness. The ruling
4991 is only on the question of the use of the word.

Q. You had some money belonging to Buchalter there? A. I did.

Q. You gave it to Rosen? A. The money he told me to give to Rosen, I gave to Rosen; yes.

Q. And, giving it to him, you threatened him, not at all? A. Absolutely not.

Q. You told him to go out of town? A. I told him that Lepke told me to tell him to go out of town and stay out until he tells him to come back.

4992 Q. There were no instructions—

The Court: That was not at the baseball game?

Mr. Barshay: This has nothing to do with it.

The Witness: He is talking about July, 1936.

Mr. Barshay: When he went there with a man by the name of Feinberg.

The Witness: Louis Feinberg.

Q. You were not instructed to tell Rosen to sell his candy store? A. I was not.

Q. You were not? A. No, sir.

Q. You were not instructed to have Rosen go some place under an assumed name? A. I was not.

Q. You were not instructed for him to go to any particular place? A. I was not.

Q. You were not instructed for him to close the store and take his wife and family? A. I was not. 4994

Q. You were not instructed to give Rosen any other instructions to become a fugitive, were you? A. Oh, yes.

Q. Wait a minute. —in the sense of disguising, concealing, or using an assumed name, were you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is not the testimony.

Mr. Barshay: He knows whether he was or not.

Mr. Turkus: The jury draws the inference from the authorization as to what that meant when Lepke sent a message to get out of town. 4995

The Court: It is a confusing question because it calls for two different things. Divide it up.

Mr. Barshay: I will withdraw it.

Q. Did Buchalter tell you to tell Rosen to conceal himself? Did he? A. Yes.

The Court: The word "conceal"?

4996

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Witness: Said, "Get out of town." Concealing by orders.

Q. I am asking a specific question.

The Court: Did he use the word "conceal"?

The Witness: No, he did not use the word "conceal."

4997

Q. Did he use the word "disguise"? A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you to tell Rosen to leave no trace of his whereabouts? A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you to tell Rosen to close the candy store until such time as he receives word to come back? A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you to tell Rosen to register some place under an assumed name? A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you to tell Rosen not to go to Reading, Pennsylvania, where his son lived?

4998

A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you to tell Rosen that more money would be forthcoming, in that conversation; yes or no? A. He did not.

The Court: Briefly, did he tell you anything—be careful now; listen carefully—did he tell you anything besides that you should give $200 to Rosen and have Rosen to stay away until he, Buchalter, told him to come back?

The Witness: Nothing else besides that.

The Court: That was all that was said on that subject?

The Witness: That is right.

Q. And that was all you did? A. That is all I did.

Q. So that when you and Rosen finished the conversation, in the absence of Feinberg, you said nothing to Rosen that, "If you don't do this, something is going to happen to you", did you? A. I did not.

Q. Not even an intimation? A. Not an intimation.

Q. You left him in good spirits? A. I thought I did. 5000

Q. Did he tell you where he was going? A. Yes.

Q. Where? A. Reading, Pennsylvania, to his son's.

Q. And you reported that to Buchalter? A. I did.

Q. His son's name was Rosen, too? A. Yes.

Q. Harold Rosen? A. Yes.

Q. To your knowledge, at that time Harold Rosen and his father were friendly? A. As far as I know.

Q. The family relationship was friendly? A. I can't tell you that, except that he told me he was going there, so I take it that it must have been friendly. 5001

Q. And then he came back, or did he at that time say, rather, that he would like to have another thousand dollars? A. At that time he told me if he sold his store for a thousand dollars he would go up there and open a little business, when I gave him the two hundred.

Q. Will you repeat that answer, please? A. At that time, when I gave him the two hundred dollars, he said if he had another thousand dollars he would open a business out of town.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor let the stenographer—

The Court: Let him finish this. He has not finished.

Mr. Barshay: I wanted the answer, your Honor, from the stenographer.

The Court: You are interrupting.

5003 The Witness: That is the best answer I remember.

The Court: Is that substantially what he told you?

The Witness: Yes, surely.

The Court: Without being the exact words?

The Witness: That is about it.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor to have the stenographer read the first answer to that question.

The Court: Why?

5004 Mr. Barshay: Because it was different, in my opinion, than the one he gave now.

The Court: You heard it?

Mr. Barshay: I heard it.

The Court: Presumably the jury heard it.

Mr. Barshay: Can't we have it again?

The Court: All right.

(The following was read by the reporter: "At that time he told me if he sold his store for a thousand dollars he would go up there and open a little business, when I gave him the two hundred.")

Q. That is what you said at first, isn't that so?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That appears in the record.

Mr. Barshay: Then it is conceded that he did say that?

Mr. Turkus: You cannot stipulate with this. The record shows.

Mr. Barshay: Don't concede it, Mr. Turkus; the record shows it.

The Court: The jury will figure out 5006 whether that is substantially correct.

The Witness: Instead of "sold", I should have said "got". Is that what you mean?

Mr. Barshay: I will tell you what I mean in a second.

Q. Did he tell you that he wanted $1,000 from Buchalter or from you or that he wanted to sell the store? A. I said he wanted a thousand dollars. I did not say he wanted a thousand dollars more from Buchalter. If he got another 5007 thousand dollars—

Q. Was it from you, from Buchalter, or through you or through Buchalter? A. He did not say. He just said, if he got another thousand dollars.

Q. Did you tell Buchalter that he wanted another thousand dollars by selling the store? A. I just said, "He said if he got another thousand dollars he would open a business out of town," yes.

Q. With his son, or near his son? A. Yes, in Reading, Pennsylvania.

5008

Q. Buchalter said nothing about that? A. He said nothing to it.

Q. So as far as your own personal conduct is concerned in the store on that day, Mr. Rubin, you did nothing which in your own mind violated any law whatever?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. That is for the jury to decide, when he delivered that message.

5009

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. And after you read the newspaper, you said you saw Buchalter and you said to him, "Now I am in trouble." Did you? A. That is right.

Q. Were you in trouble? A. I ask you whether being in the store in July, when a man gets killed in September, whether you are not in trouble.

Q. All right, the Court won't allow me to answer the question, so I won't.

5010

The Court: The Court has not ruled on that.

Mr. Barshay: If you want me to answer it, I will.

The Witness: You cannot answer it, because I would ask you where you were at that time. Maybe you can tell me.

The Court: Go ahead with the next question.

Mr. Barshay: Take it easy, Mr. Rubin.

The Witness: Don't accuse me of things. I will admit everything I know that I ever did. I am willing to open myself up to any accusation that I am guilty of, but don't insinuate anything that is not so. Be open and above board and on the level with your questions and don't be throwing any hints, because I have had enough experience with you and your kind.

The Court: Strike that out. The jury disregard it.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial. 5012

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception. I ask your Honor to do something about this witness.

The Court: What do you want me to do?

Mr. Barshay: I know what I would get if I conducted myself in this fashion.

The Court: Don't give an answer like that. Make a motion. Ask me something that I can rule on.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor to hold this witness in contempt. 5013

The Court: I will take care of that at the proper time.

Mr. Barshay: Now I ask your Honor to admonish this witness not to argue with counsel, and answer questions.

The Court: I remind you of this, that holding for contempt is a job of the Court, without any suggestion of counsel at any time. The Court will take care of its own dignity.

Mr. Barshay: I ask your Honor to admonish this witness not to repeat this again.

The Court: The witness is so admonished.

Q. Mr. Rubin, I did not accuse you of anything, did I?

The Court: Mr. Rubin, it is very important that you maintain your composure and put your mind on the examination and, no matter what the strain may be, try to avoid any and all further emotional outbursts. Just put your brains on it, not your emotions. Go ahead, counsel.

5015

Q. Mr. Rubin, I did not accuse you of anything, did I?

Mr. Turkus: Objection.

The Court: Don't start anything again. That is only quarreling. Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception.

5016

Q. I am trying to prove you did not do anything in the Rosen store, Mr. Rubin. Do you understand me?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. And I say to you again: You did nothing wrong in the Rosen store, personally, did you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it.

Max Rubin—For People—Cross 5017

The Court: Sustained.
Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Nevertheless, you said to him, "Now I am in trouble", is that so?

Mr. Turkus: I object to the "nevertheless."
The Court: Sustained.

Q. And you said to him further, "I was there in July and now I am in real trouble." Did you say that to him? A. I did. 5018

Q. But you personally were not in any trouble whatever, were you?

Mr. Turkus: That was answered before, and we had some altercation.
Mr. Barshay: This is another sentence, Mr. Turkus.
Mr. Turkus: All right, if you want to pursue it.
Mr. Barshay: Yes.
Mr. Turkus: Objection withdrawn. 5019

A. I felt I was in tremendous trouble. I felt as if the world was coming to an end as far as I was concerned and if you ask me why, I will tell you why.

Q. I am not asking you why, I am merely repeating what you just said. A. I will tell you why I had this particular feeling.

Q. If your conscience is bothering you, Mr. Rubin, I cannot help it. A. It is not my conscience.

5020 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Mr. Turkus: That is inviting another outburst.

A. (continued) Maybe years.

Q. You won't get me to roll in the gutter with you, Mr. Rubin.

Mr. Turkus: Please. I object to this, your Honor.

The Court: Stop.

5021

A. I rolled in the gutter with a bullet hole wound.

The Court: Strike that out. The jury disregard it.

Mr. Barshay: I move for the withdrawal of a juror and declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Denied upon the ground you provoked it, a normal reaction.

Mr. Barshay: I take exception to your Honor's remark, and on the remark that 5022 your Honor made I move for the withdrawal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: This is an intelligent jury and I believe will obey the Court's instructions too.

Mr. Barshay: I object to your Honor saying I provoked anything.

The Witness: You said I was in the gutter.

Mr. Turkus: May we have a five-minute recess for the witness?

The Court: I think I will take a five-minute recess both for the witness and counsel.

Mr. Barshay: I object to your Honor saying counsel needs any recess.

The Court: You are highly excited.

Mr. Barshay: I am not excited but I won't tolerate any abuse from anyone in this court-room. 5024

The Court: You are shouting—

Mr. Barshay: I am not, sir.

The Court: Showing disrespect of the Court, even interrupting it.

Mr. Barshay: The Court is going to treat me with respect, and I am entitled to it, and I have been treated with respect for eighteen years and I have returned that respect, and you know it better than any other man.

The Court: Compose yourself. The witness will retire. The jury disregard this. Pay no attention to it; don't be influenced by it. 5025

(The witness leaves the stand, and after a short time resumes the stand.)

By Mr. Barshay:

Q. Buchalter further said to you, "You have nothing to worry about", did he? A. That is right.

Q. And he added, "You have nothing to worry about as far as Brooklyn is concerned"? A. That is right.

5026

Q. This was in September of 1936? A. That is right.

Q. There is no mistake about that? A. No mistake.

Q. Answer this yes or no, please: Did you know at that time that in the Borough of Brooklyn there was a Special Prosecutor by the name of Hiram Todd at that time: yes or no?

5027

Mr. Turkus: Just a minute—investigating a special matter.

Mr. Barshay: Please, Mr. Turkus—

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. It is incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial, having nothing to do with this indictment.

Mr. Barshay: I asked a simple question, if he knew it or he did not, and Mr. Turkus puts an answer in the gentleman's mouth.

The Court: Sustained. Mr. Todd's investigation is of no consequence here. We are not going to litigate it.

5028

Mr. Barshay: I did not even say it is or it is not.

The Court: The Court knows that it is not.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor concede for the record that he was a Special Investigator, then: yes or no?

The Court: He was investigating the Drukman case. He had no such general powers as Mr. Dewey. What difference does it make?

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception, sir.

Q. You did not leave town thereafter, did you, Mr. Rubin, on September 15th, did you? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not leave town on September 16th? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not leave town on September 17th? A. No, sir.

Q. You did not leave town on September 18th? A. I don't think so.

Q. Or the 19th? A. No, I don't think I left.

Q. Or the 20th? A. No, sir. 5030

Q. Or the 21st? A. No, sir.

Q. Or the 22nd? A. I don't believe I left town during that period at all.

Q. How long did you stay, after you came back from Atlantic City, in the City of New York, before you went away for the very first time? A. I think I stayed until the middle of October.

Q. What? A. I think in New York until the middle of October.

Q. You attended to your regular business? A. I did. 5031

Q. Went to your home? A. I did.

Q. Saw your family? A. I did.

Q. Worked at the union? A. I did.

Q. Saw your customers? A. I did.

Q. Did not disguise yourself? A. No, sir.

Q. Lived the normal daily life? A. That is right.

Q. Anybody come to the office from Brooklyn to look for you, police or district attorney, during that period, any single day? A. No.

Q. Anyone leave word at your home from the

5032 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Police Department or District Attorney's office at any time before you left? A. No, sir.

Q. Anyone call you by phone or leave a message for you, or in any way, directly or indirectly, during that period notify you that you were being sought? A. No, sir.

Q. Or wanted for questioning? A. No, sir.

Q. Not a word, is that so? A. Not a word.

Q. In the meantime, Dewey was becoming very active in the flour cases, was he not? A.

5033 Becoming active in general.

Q. But very active in the direction of Buchalter in the flour situation, was he not? A. In September of 1936?

Q. From then on. A. I imagine so. I am not so sure.

Q. You learned or you knew personally? You knew personally that witnesses in the flour industry were now being subpoenaed and questioned by Thomas Dewey in the flour investigation at that very time?

5034 Mr. Turkus: I object to it. Mr. Dewey's investigations are known to him, what he was investigating in 1936, not to the witness.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Did you know that of your own personal knowledge?

Mr. Turkus: Object to it.

The Court: I cannot see its relevancy. Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception.

The Court: This is cross-examination. The witness testified to a long series of ramblings, covering a considerable period of time, while allegedly keeping away from New York for a specific purpose, and then coming back because he could not be away any more; he got lonely.

Mr. Barshay: May I address the Court?

The Court: Just a minute. According to the direct examination, he did not go to Mr. Dewey until after he came back 5036 and consulted with a lawyer.

Mr. Barshay: All right. I will tell the Court what I have in mind and maybe we can get along. It was undoubtedly the attempted proof by Mr. Turkus that this man was induced to flee from the authorities in Brooklyn on the theory of inducement of flight and consciousness of guilt.

The Court: I assume that is true.

Mr. Barshay: That is correct. And now I am in possession of proof, and I am trying to prove through this witness, 5037 that this flight that he said was induced because of this case had absolutely nothing to do with this case but that he was fleeing from the Dewey investigation in New York, and he so testified in another place, under oath, in another court. That is the purpose of my proof.

The Court: Very well, then, you may cross-examine on that point.

Mr. Barshay: That is what I am trying to.

5038 Q. In New York, however, Mr. Rubin, you did participate in extortions, did you not? I mean in the Borough of Manhattan.

Mr. Turkus: It has been already answered.

Mr. Barshay: Preliminary question.

A. In the flour situation?

Q. Yes, I am talking about the flour. A. Yes.

5039 Q. And that was the inquiry that Thomas E. Dewey was then diligently proceeding with?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. Mr. Dewey knows everything he was investigating, not this witness.

The Court: The witness can say whether or not he knew that at the time he went away.

Mr. Turkus: He may have known more.

The Court: Overruled.

Q. You knew that yourself? A. I did not know

5040 what particular thing he was investigating.

Q. Well— A. He had general powers.

Q. You spoke, did you not, to this jury on direct examination with respect to Buchalter telling you that Dewey had certain wires tapped? A. That is right.

Q. Then you knew that Dewey was investigating Buchalter, did you not? A. I knew there was an investigation, of course.

Q. You knew that? A. Of course.

Q. You knew that Thomas E. Dewey could tie up Buchalter through you, isn't that so? A. I knew that that could be done, yes.

5041

Q. Subsequently he did tie up Buchalter in the flour investigation through you? A. That is right.

Q. And the thing that Dewey was investigating about Buchalter in those days was the flour extortion in which you participated?

Mr. Turkus: That is not the limit of the Dewey investigation.

Mr. Barshay: I do not say it was.

Mr. Turkus: Let us not confuse the jury.

5042

Mr. Barshay: Let the jury say later on whether they are confused or not, Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: I object to it, your Honor. This witness cannot tell what Mr. Dewey was investigating unless there were leaks from Mr. Dewey's office.

The Court: The witness said at the time of going away he did not know on that point. The present question is not as to whether or not he did know at that time on that point, but as to what Mr. Dewey was doing. That is incompetent. Sustained.

5043

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. You knew what Mr. Dewey was doing with respect to Buchalter's activities in the flour industry? A. I did not. He was making a general investigation.

Q. You know he investigated one industry at a time, don't you? A. There were different men there who investigated different industries. I cannot state specifically. I took it for granted and I agree with you that the flour was among the many branches that he was investigating.

5044 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. You said on direct testimony that Buchalter told you the wires were tapped? A. Yes.

Q. Buchalter told you that a Dictaphone was in the Tailoring Association office?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. There is no such direct testimony.

5045 Q. In some office. A. You mean in Local 138?

Q. 138, was it?

Mr. Turkus: Please. I have an objection. You cannot have any repartee when there is objection. There is no such testimony in the record about a Dictaphone. The conversation was about a book of matches and a number on the cover.

Mr. Cuff: We object to the statement.

The Court: Gramercy 9043.

The Witness: Gramercy 5-9043.

5046 Q. Whose number was that? A. Association, Greater New York Tailors Expressmen's Association.

Q. Anything else that Buchalter told you?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless the time be fixed.

Q. Then and there, about September of 1936, and that is the only time we are speaking of.

Mr. Turkus: I ask, before or after the Rosen murder?

5047

Mr. Barshay: Long after the Rosen murder.

The Court: You mean at the time of the match book incident?

Mr. Barshay: Yes.

The Court: Anything else said?

A. He told me that he thought there was a Dictaphone in the room and that I should tell Wolfie Goldis to buy a radio and if we put a radio on loud enough, if there is a Dictaphone in the room, you cannot hear any of the conversation. 5048

Q. Wolfie Goldis was the man who was interested in the flour investigation, wasn't he? A. Wolfie Goldis was—

Q. One of the men? A. In 138, an official of the union.

Q. That is the flour. And so Buchalter was giving you information personally that 138 was being investigated, did he not? A. That is right.

Q. And you in your mind then knew that an investigation of 138 in the flour industry would undoubtedly involve your own personal self, did you not? A. I did not think of it at the time. 5049

Q. It did not occur to your mind at all? A. No, I was very secure in the magic powers of Mr. Buchalter.

Q. You thought— A. I was lulled into a sense of security.

Q. You thought he could do things with Thomas E. Dewey; yes or no? A. I did not say that.

Q. You tell us now when Buchalter was telling you that 138, the flour local, was being investi-

5050 gated, you did not have in your mind one single thought of the extortions that you participated and shared in; is that what you tell us?

Mr. Turkus: Objected to. He has answered about being lulled into security.

The Court: Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. Didn't Buchalter tell you the very first time you went to Saratoga that it was because 5051 of the Dewey investigation? A. Positively not.

Q. Positively not? A. Positively not.

Q. No doubt about that? A. Absolutely no doubt.

Q. You testified in the flour case, did you not, as you said? A. I did.

Q. Were you asked this question, at page 1144: "Q. Now you claim that Buchalter told you to leave and go to Saratoga, is that right? A. That is right."

Did you make that answer to the question the way I read it? A. I guess so. You are 5052 reading it correctly, I hope.

Q. You can take my word for some things. A. Then don't ask me whether I remember it. If you read it, I will take it for granted it is correct.

Mr. Barshay: Will Mr. Turkus concede I am reading correctly?

Mr. Turkus: Let us not quibble over it. Of course you are.

Q. Were you asked this question: "Q. And I believe you testified that that was to avoid being questioned by Mr. Dewey or his staff? A. That is right." Was that question asked and that answer made by you in the flour case? A. If it is there, I answered it.

5053

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus—

Mr. Turkus: It is there. We will not quibble about it.

Q. Were you asked further, at page 1161: "Q. Well—"

5054

Mr. Turkus: What folio?

Mr. Barshay: 3483.

Mr. Turkus: All right.

Q. "Q. Well, at the time you say Lepke told you to go away, did you testify here that he told you to go away on account of the Dewey investigation? A. That is right." Was that question asked and was that answer made by you? A. That is right

Q. So the first place you went was to Saratoga? A. That is right.

5055

Q. You had a talk with Buchalter before you went to Saratoga? A. That is right.

Q. Where was that talk, Mr. Rubin? A. I think over at the Perfection Coat Front or Greenberg & Kupperman. Oh, you mean in 1936?

Q. Yes. A. I think it was at the Raleigh.

Q. He told you that you had to go away? A. That is right.

Q. That is the very first time? A. That is right.

Q. Give us again, please, your language, as best you know how, what Buchalter said to you at that time, the early part of October? A. He told me that things were too hot, that McCarthy was going around saying he is going to make one of the greatest pinches he ever made, he is going to collar Lepke and Gurrah. He told me that I would have to go away and I told him I did not know where to go and he said that Danny Fields is up in Saratoga Springs and I should get Paul Berger and Paul Berger would take me up there; before I could go there I should take Paul Berger to certain places.

5056 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

5057 Q. Have you got the date in your mind? A. About the middle of October.

Q. Now you have told us everything Buchalter has said? A. I think so.

Q. Do you know the time of the day, if you can? A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you know the time of the day? A. No, I don't.

Q. Was it at night? Was it? A. No, I don't believe.

Q. Was anyone present? A. I don't remember.

Q. Was your memory fresher in 1940 with respect to this than it is now?

5058

Mr. Turkus: I object to that.

A. I don't know.

Mr. Turkus: It calls for a conclusion.

The Court: Calls for an opinion.

Mr. Barshay: His own opinion, of his own mind.

The Court: I think it is a matter of argument to the jury. (To witness) What do you think on the subject?

The Witness: I am getting older and sicker.

The Court: Does your memory improve with age?

The Witness: It certainly does not.

Q. In other words, the longer away from an event, the better you remember it?

Mr. Turkus: He did not say that.

Mr. Barshay: He said it gets better with 5060
age.

The Witness: I said it gets worse.

Mr. Barshay: I am sorry. I did not hear it.

Q. So we can reasonably assume that your memory was better in 1940 when you testified in the flour case than it is now? A. I try to recollect thinks as best I know how without any prompting from anybody.

Q. I did not suggest anything. A. That is the implication to me by the question.

Q. You testified with respect to flight as against 5061 the defendant Buchalter in the flour case before Judge Freschi in General Sessions in 1940, is that so? A. That is right.

Q. And the same place that you testified here that you fled from the Rosen case you testified there you fled from the Dewey investigation, isn't that so? A. No.

Q. Did you go to any other place? A. Any other place than I say there that I went? You mean cities where I went like Saratoga and so on?

Q. That is right. A. Those are the places.

Q. You said you left for Saratoga and New Orleans, and the talk in Washington and Philadelphia? A. That is right.

Q. You remember all that? A. I do.

Q. There are not any additional places that you are testifying here that you went to that you did not testify there? A. No, sir.

Q. The District Attorney there asked you questions with respect to what Buchalter said to you before you went to Saratoga, did he not? A. I think he did.

5063 Q. And you answered? A. Yes.

Mr. Barshay: Page 961, flour record.

Q. You keep in mind, Mr. Rubin, what you said here a few seconds ago what Buchalter said to you, will you? A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked these questions: "Q. Now when did you go away? A. The middle of October, 1936." Did you make that answer to that question? A. I did.

Q. "Q. And did you have a conversation with defendant Buchalter about it? A. Yes." Did 5064 you make that answer to that question? A. Yes.

Q. "Q. How long before you went away? A. A week, two weeks.

"Q. What was said between you?

"Mr. Price: Objection on the ground it is not binding on my client.

"The Court: I will take it as against the defendant Buchalter.

"Q. What did he say? A. He told me I was getting too hot and I should go away." Did you give that answer to that question? A. If it is there, I made it, yes.

Q. You can take my word I am reading correctly.

"Q. What did you say? A. I said I did not know where to go." Was that answer made by you to that question? A. It was.

Q. "Q. Did he say anything else?" and did you make this answer: "A. That having a job and working for a union I could not go away. He told me things were too hot. He seemed to 5066 have an idea—

"Mr. Kleinman: I object to this.

"Mr. Grumet: All right.

"Mr. Kleinman: I ask him not to volunteer anything.

"The Court: Yes.

"Q. —"

Mr. Turkus: That answer was interrupted.

Mr. Barshay: By whom? 5067

Mr. Turkus: By Mr. Kleinman the lawyer for Lepke.

Mr. Barshay: I cannot help it. I am reading correctly, am I not?

Mr. Turkus: Will your Honor take a look at the record? That answer was interrupted by Mr. Kleinman who then represented Buchalter or Lepke as he has been called here and there, so that that answer is not complete, the Court having sustained and admonished the witness not 5068 to pursue that any further, so how can that be the concern of this jury?

The Court: Go ahead with your question.

Mr. Barshay: Very clever argument, Mr. Turkus.

Mr. Turkus: This is no time for compliments. I have an objection.

Mr. Barshay: I don't mean that as a compliment either.

5069 Mr. Turkus: Then it is no time for insults either, if he means it that way.

Mr. Barshay: I don't insult you. I am reading correctly and that is all I care about.

The Court: Read the rest.

Q. "Q. Did he say anything about Dewey? A. He said the investigation was too hot, that things were getting too hot" Did you give that answer to that question as I read it?

5070 Mr. Turkus: The very next question.

Mr. Barshay: Mr. Turkus, you know very well you have a right to read that next question at the proper time and please don't do it again.

The Court: You read a series of questions. As long as you have seen fit to read a series of questions, complete the context.

Mr. Turkus: There is one more question and answer.

Mr. Barshay: I did not say I am not going to read it. I did not say I am, but I have a right, your Honor, to pursue my cross-examination in the way I planned it and I won't deprive Mr. Turkus of any rights to read any other question.

The Court: When the Court rules, please continue the context.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception.

The Court: As far as it relates to and qualifies and becomes naturally a part of this question.

Mr. Barshay: Will your Honor instruct the jury that by no innuendo is it conveyed to the jury that I am not going to read, or I did not intend to read, or I intended to exclude the next question from this Court and jury? 5072

The Court: Will you please proceed and finish it?

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

Q. "Q. Did he say anything at that time about Dewey? A. No." Were those questions asked of you and did you make those answers? A. That is right. 5073

Mr. Barshay: Then there was a discussion, Mr. Turkus, between Mr. Kleinman and the Court and I am proceeding to the bottom of the page, page 962.

Q. "Q. Where did you go? A. I went to Saratoga Springs." May I refresh your recollection on that point, Mr. Rubin. A. Will you repeat that?

Q. "Q. Where did you go? A. I went to Saratoga Springs." A. That is right.

5074 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

Q. Is that right? A. That is right.

Q. Were you asked these questions:

"Q. Did you have a conversation with Lepke about it before you went to Saratoga Springs? A. I did." A. That is right.

Q. And again were you asked:

"Q. What was said? A. He told me to go up." Then there is—

Mr. Turkus: I ask that you read that.

5075 Mr. Barshay: "He told me to go up" and there is an answer interrupted Mr. Kleinman interrupting, "I object to it.

"The Court: I shall receive this as to the defendant Lepke only.

"Mr. Kleinman: Exception.

A. He told me to go up there." Did you answer the questions the way I read them? A. I did.

Q. "Q. What else did he say about it? A. He said I would find Danny Fields up there, that Danny Fields was right below Saratoga Springs 5076 and I would find Danny up there. I would have company." Did you make that answer to that question? A. I did.

Q. And so you gave to the questioner then, the Assistant District Attorney from Mr. Dewey's office in charge of the prosecution, the full conversation that you had with Buchalter before you went to Saratoga; is that correct?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it. There is nothing inconsistent.

The Court: Do you remember whether you gave him every detail?

Mr. Barshay: I object to your Honor's question.

The Court: Overruled.

Mr. Barshay: Exception.

The Court: Mr. Witness, do you remember whether you gave all details of that conversation?

The Witness: I did not give all the details of the conversation. I gave all that I could remember. I was concentrating on the case dealing with that particular court and that case and I gave him 5078 answers to cover that particular case and when you speak of the Dewey investigation, any particular place, to me wherever there was any question at all about Dewey it was part of his jurisdiction.

Q. You did not say a word there about McCarthy, did you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to that. That would have been bringing in a matter of 5079 another incident that might have made reversible error in New York.

Mr. Barshay: I object to Mr. Turkus' statement and I wish he would not do that, your Honor. It is most unfair when a man is cross-examined and is in the box to be pulled out of the hole in just that way.

Mr. Turkus: I am not pulling anyone out of the hole. I am addressing the Court.

The Court: Mr. Turkus' objection is correct. Sustained.

Mr. Barshay: I except, your Honor.

Q. You understood, did you not, when the District Attorney questioned you there, when he said, "What else was said?" You understood the meaning of that word, did you?

Mr. Turkus: I object to it because if the witness was to bring out anything—

Mr. Barshay: Can he make an objection, your Honor, without a speech?

5081 Mr. Turkus: I have urged the ground if he brought in some other incident.

The Court: If the Rosen case were brought out in the flour case, there would promptly have been a motion by Mr. Kleinman for a mistrial.

Mr. Barshay: Is that so, your Honor? Will your Honor please look at the record and see whether it was brought out or was not brought out in the Rosen case?

Mr. Turkus: By the District Attorney, if it were brought out.

5082 Mr. Barshay: In the flour case, your Honor.

The Court: By the District Attorney?

Mr. Barshay: By both sides.

The Court: All right, now proceed. Come to order and don't forget yourself.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that.

The Court: Counselor says this (note on the record) in an angry resentful tone.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that. I am neither angry nor resentful.

5083

I am merely asserting my rights, your Honor.

The Court: Will you please come to order and resume the cross-examination?

Q. You did testify with respect to the Rosen case in the flour case, too, did you not?

Mr. Turkus: I object unless it be brought out whether it was on direct examination or cross-examination?

5084

The Court: Sustained.

Q. Did you testify on both direct and cross with respect to the Rosen case?

The Court: Is there an objection to that?

Mr. Turkus: There is.

The Court: Sustained.

Q. As a matter of fact weren't you questioned by the Assistant District Attorney Mr. Grunnet—

5085

The Court: The Court instructs you to come to order and not ask any more questions on that line.

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that.

The Court: Now you are trying to provoke a quarrel with the Court.

Mr. Barshay: I do not want to quarrel with the Court but I am going to make my record.

The Court: You are going to make the 5086 record accounting to Hoyle as a lawyer should.

Mr. Barshay: That is what I am doing.

The Court: And stop interrupting the Court.

Mr. Barshay: I ask for permission to put a question at page 1175 asked by the Assistant District Attorney.

The Court: Put your questions, only don't violate the Court's instructions.

5087

Mr. Turkus: May it be noted that page 1175 is redirect by the District Attorney after cross-examination?

Mr. Barshay: That is right.

Mr. Turkus: That is an entirely—

Mr. Barshay: What difference does it make?

Mr. Turkus: The Judge will tell the jury.

The Court: Will you resume the trial of your case and stop playing to the gallery? If you were trying this case without a jury and without an audience, you would have your manners with you because you would not want to antagonize the Court and would have a decision on the facts.

5088

Mr. Barshay: I take an exception to that.

The Court: I am trying this case without a gavel.

Mr. Barshay: I don't need a gavel.

The Court: The Court at all times is maintaining its poise. Now please proceed with the case.

Mr. Barshay: And let the record show that counsel is not losing its poise.

The Court: Because if the Court did you would probably get an exception on the record and get a motion for a mistrial and there might be something to it, as you know.

Mr. Barshay: Let the record show that counsel is absolutely calm and collected 5090 and is not baiting the Court and I move for the withdrawal of a juror based upon the Court's remarks and the declaration of a mistrial on the ground of prejudice.

The Court: Denied.

Mr. Barshay: Exception, sir.

Q. (Page 1212 of this record) When you got back from Saratoga, Mr. Rubin, you met the defendant Buchalter at the Hatfield Hotel. Is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. And here you said: "Q. Did he say why 5091 he wanted to send you away? A. Yes. He told me things were getting too hot." Is that correct? A. That is right.

Q. "Q. Where? A. That Brooklyn was not straightened out yet and that the Dewey investigation is closing in on everybody." You said that? A. That is right.

Q. Now in the flour case (at page 964, folio 2836) were you asked these questions: "Q. Did you have a conversation with Buchalter after you returned to New York?" and did you give this answer: "I did."? A. That is right.

5092 Max Rubin—For People—Cross

"Mr. Kleinman: Will you ask him, when, please, he returned?

"Q. When did you return? A. I would say around the end of October, something in the 20's." Did you give that answer to that question? A. That is right.

Q. "Q. You mean the latter part of October? A. Yes." Did you give the answer to that question? A. That is right.

5093 Q. "Q. Did you have a conversation with the defendant Buchalter? A. Yes.

"Q. Tell us what was said?" A. I will answer yes to those things.

Q. "Q. Did you have a conversation with the defendant Buchalter? A. Yes."? A. Yes.

Q. "Q. Tell us what was said?

"Mr. Price: I object to it.

"The Court: I shall receive this as against the defendant Buchalter only.

"Mr. Kleinman: Exception.

5094 A. I told him I could not stay up there with Danny.

"Mr. Kleinman: I move to strike out that as not having been a part of anything involved in this case even though it purports to be a conversation with Buchalter."

Do you remember those questions?

Mr. Turkus: You have to finish what the Court said.

Mr. Barshay: Please, one at a time. I have to make my record, sir.

Q. Did you give those answers to those questions? A. That is right.

Q. "The Court: Is that all the conversation that took place? I want to know this in order to rule.

"The Witness: That would be the gist of the conversation, yes.

"The Court: You just told him why you did not stay? 5096

"The Witness: I told him why. I gave him more details of the way that fellow was living up there and so he and I couldn't—" interruption by the Court

"I am going to allow that to stand.

"Mr. Kleinman: Exception."

Mr. Turkus: May it be indicated for our record now that the witness was interrupted in the conclusion of the answer at folio 2893 by the Court in that case?

Mr. Barshay: I read every word, Mr. Turkus, just the way it followed and just the way you said. 5097

Q. Were those questions asked? A. That is right.

Q. Were those answers made? A. That is right.

Q. Dewey was closing in on everybody, wasn't he? A. He was.

Q. And that everybody included you? A. I don't know if it included me.

Q. Again I say you were the very central

